Two Injured In Crossroads Crash

Two persons were injured Wednesday afternoon when two cars collided at U.S. 13 and Delaware 14. Steven Parris, 715 E. Ivy Drive, Seaford, suffered lacerations of the face and knees, while Margaret Crouch, Roanoke, Va., a passenger in the car Parris was driving, suffered lacerations of the face and loss of teeth. Both were treated at Milford Memorial Hospital. Leona Mader, Route 1, Harrington, operator of a 1953 Chevrolet, and a passenger, Clarence Boyles, RFD, Harrington, were given checkups at the hospital where all principals in the accident were taken in the ambulance of the Harrington Fire Company. State police of the Bridgeville troop said the accident took place when the Parris car, a 1959 Austin-Healey, traveling south on U.S. 13, failed to stop for a red light and collided with the Mader car westbound on Delaware 14.

Parris will be tried in Court 5, Milford, at a later date on a charge of running a red light.

Reg. Due For National Teacher Exams

Only two weeks remain for prospective teachers who plan to take the National Teacher Examinations at the Dover Red High School on February 3, to submit their registrations for these tests to Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N. J., Dr. Elizabeth Lloyd, state director of teacher education and professional standards, announced this week. Registrations for the examinations must be forwarded so as to reach the Princeton Office not later than January 12. Dr. Lloyd advised.

Bulletins of information describing registration procedures and containing registration forms may be obtained from Mrs. Susan Schmittinger, Teacher Education and Professional Standards, State Department of Public Instruction, Dover, Del. 19901, or directly from the National Teacher Examinations, Educational Testing Service, Box 911, Princeton, N. J. 08540.

At the one-day test session a candidate may take the common examinations, which include tests in professional education and general education, and one of the thirteen teaching area examinations which are designed to evaluate his understanding of the subject matter and methods applicable to the area he may be assigned to teach.

Each candidate will receive an admission ticket advising him of the exact location of the center to which he should report, Dr. Lloyd advised. Candidates for the common examinations will report to the Dover school at 8:30 a.m., February 3, and should finish at 12:25 p.m. Dr. Lloyd said. The teaching area examinations will begin at 1:30 p.m. and should finish at 4:15 p.m. according to the time schedule for these examinations which has been set up by Educational Testing Service.

Annual Citizens Meeting Tonight; No Contest For Council Seats

Kent Will Books Falling Apart

Mrs. Loretta Clark, deputy to the Kent County register of wills, told the Levy Court Tuesday that pages are falling out of the will indexes.

The books can't leave the register's office to be bound, Mrs. Clark said. "We need these in the office because lawyers and everybody need to record wills in them every day," she said. "Whoever does it will have to come here."

The books, which index each will in Kent County since 1736, are still used to record current wills. Some pages in the old books have come unfastened from the binding, however, and Mrs. Clark is afraid some valuable records will be lost.

Commissioner Isaac Thomas suggested that the old books be retired, and new books be used for recording current wills.

"If they record in those old books every day eventually they'll ruin them, because they're brittle," he said. "Why couldn't we put the new records in new books and save these old ones just for posterity or for people who want to look up the records?"

Glenn A. Richter, Levy Court president, said he would contact Leon DeValinger, Jr., state archivist, about fixing the books.

Delaware Senate Youth Winners Are Selected

Bonnie Holliday of Corpus Christi High School in Wilmington and Gerald Lee Bunting of Millsboro Central School have been selected to represent Delaware in the 1968 Senate Youth Program. Alternate representatives are James Shippe III, DeLaware High School, and Thomas B. Townsend, Caesar Rodney High School.

The Senate Youth Program, in its sixth year of operation, gives outstanding young people an opportunity to observe federal government first hand. Delegates from the 50 states spend an all-expense-paid week in Washington, D. C. as guests of their senators. This year the delegates will be in Washington, Jan. 20-27.

Selection of Delaware's representatives was based on scholarship, school activities, recommendations and interest in the program.

Miss Holliday is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Elinor Holliday, 6 Rigdin Road, Wilmington. She is treasurer of the student council at Corpus Christi High School, editor of the school newspaper, captain of the cheerleading squad, and has held offices in the Junior Achievement Company. She was also selected "Miss Junior Achievement" for 1967-68. Gerald Bunting is the son of Mrs. Bertha Vickers, Laurel Highway, Millsboro. Kent OKs $2,500 For Child Unit

The Kent County Levy Court voted Tuesday to give $2,500 to the Children's Bureau and heard a request from the welfare department for more money.

The county commissioners voted the money to the bureau after a request from Miss Elizabeth Townsend, executive director; Mrs. William K. Paton, board member, and Miss Nancy Ware, administrative assistant.

The court read a letter from Ronald E. Miller, welfare department director, telling the commissioners an earlier estimate of county funds the department needs for 1968 is too low.

The original estimate of $200,550 for both programs for the year has been upped to $211,000 because of a larger than expected case load.

Miller said the general assistance case load in Kent County rose from an average of 521 persons in April to 560 persons by the end of October. The dependent children case load average rose from 1,804 persons to 1,897 persons.

The annual citizens meeting tonight will reveal no contests when petitions will be presented for the nomination of two incumbent councilmen.

At the meeting, a holdover from the New England town meeting, petitions will be presented for the nomination for reelection of Wilson G. Bradley, for his third term as councilman of the First Ward, and Burton E. Satterfield as councilman for the Third Ward. Satterfield will also serve his third term. Councilmen serve three years.

Other councilmen are as follows: Second Ward, Benjamin Hughes; Fourth Ward, Grace Wanda Quillen; Fifth Ward, John Satterfield, and Sixth Ward, Gordon Dale.

Other activities of the meeting, at 7:30 o'clock in the Fire House, will include a review of the city's financial report and proposed improvements for the current year. The council and Mayor Fulton J. Downing will be available also to answer questions.

The audience can make suggestions but they will not be binding on the city government. The financial report, prepared by William E. Howe & Co., Philadelphia auditors, will be for 1967. The firm, however, has also reviewed the city's finances for 1968.

The Philadelphia firm has based considerable of its research of the activities of Frank E. Holton, Jr., of Milford, the city's accountant, who was hampered at one time by hospitalization.

Felton Mail Carrier Wins Cooking Contest

Lester Blades, mail carrier and school-bus contractor, has won a cooking contest, sponsored by a grocery-products company, for Delaware. His recipe was "Cock-A-Doodie Casserole."

East state champion will receive a gold trophy engraved with his name, title, and year of award. Regional champions, to be selected from the state champions, will compete in the finals Jan. 23 at Miami Beach.

Blades, has also served as the constable for Kent County. He had only been cooking for five years—until he won the state title. His wife, the former Louise Voshell, and children, Donna and Lester Jr. have been so proud of his victory they have voted him massive confidence in the kitchen. Now he takes over the cooking duties completely on two days a week. He experiments frequently on new recipes. His friends say his recipes "taste even more unusually delightful" since he won the title. His standard reply is that he now tries harder. Blades attended school in Harrington. Swimming and fishing are his other hobbies. He is a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Volunteer Fire Company.

Health Frauds

Mrs. Jeannette Cordrey of the Board of Health will be at the Senior Center located in the Century Club building on Fri., Jan. 12, at 1:30 p.m. to discuss health frauds. This meeting is open to the public. Why not come down and learn first-hand what medicines and machines that can't possibly help you with your health problems. Don't waste your money, get the facts.

Slipups Balk Meeting Of Kent Commission

At its first meeting of the new year the Kent County Regional Planning Commission could not muster a quorum because one member forgot to come and another's car wouldn't start.

"Oh, my goodness, I meant to attend," said Dr. Luna I. Mishoe, president of Delaware State College, when he was asked about his absence.

"My secretary doesn't come in until tomorrow. I'm here by myself, and no one got me out of here," Mishoe explained, saying he had simply forgotten.

Mishoe said that he hoped future meetings would be held at night when it would be easier for him to attend.

E. Dallas Hitchens of Milford said his car wouldn't start in the sub-freezing temperatures and it was 11:45 a.m. before he got it going. The meeting was at 10.

Commission Chairman G. Wallace Caulk, however, suggested to Robert W. O'Brien, the county's new planner, that he draw up a procedure to follow in the future.

Meanwhile, Caulk suggested that the Board of Assessments continue to accept building permit applications and the fees temporarily and tell the applicants they would be notified later of the outcome.

Assessment board members Franklin T. English and James B. McIlvaine, who were present at the meeting, agreed.

The Levy Court has given the planning commission broad regulatory powers over building permits, and Caulk indicated that either the planning commissioners or O'Brien would pass on every application.

The permits would still be subject to the final approval of the Levy Court, Caulk said. "We will try to handle these things as quickly as we can," Caulk said. Most applications for building permits will be processed within a week, he said, although major projects would take longer, allowing the planners to investigate the application.

"We've got to educate people—the major builders—that where it took them three days to get a permit, it may take two months," O'Brien said.

Caulk and Brice M. Hickman were the only members of the present four-man commission who appeared at Tuesday's meeting.

Glenn A. Richter, Levy Court president, said Dover Mayor Crawford J. Carroll had advised him he would appoint the Dover member of the board after the city elections Jan. 15.

"We're going to have to do something to have people present," Caulk said. "We're getting involved in thing."

O'Brien, who started his $13,200-a-year-job Monday, said he and the personnel director are still looking for a secretary.

Wises Return From Trip To Hawaii

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Wise returned to Harrington on December 21st after a two week, 11,000 mile trip that took them to southern California and Hawaii. They were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hobie Alter of Laguna Beach, California for three days. While in California the Wises visited many of Bill's friends who are associated with the surfboard industry. The highlight of their stop in California was a visit to the Spinal Cord Injury Section of Rancho Los Amigos Hospital in Downey. Rancho Hospital is renowned for its progressive work in the rehabilitation of spinal cord injury paralytics. Bill said he picked up invaluable information on equipment and techniques that would help him a great deal from the very considerate people at Rancho. Sharon Alter, Hobie's wife, arranged for the visit to Rancho Hospital.

While in Hawaii, Bill and Rosalie were taken under the wing of Dick Metz, the surfboard dealer in Honolulu. "Dick was a fanatic host," said Bill. "Thanks to him our stay on Oahu was a memorable one. He arranged our stay in the Outrigger Hotel, our transportation, wonderful meals and entertainment, and in ten days became our close friend. He is truly a superb person."

The Wises also spent several days in the Royal Hawaiian Hotel as the guests of Duke Kahanamoku, the former Olympic Swimmer and "grand old man," of surfing. He stay at the Royal Hawaiian as well as several visits to the Duke's Restaurant where all part of being entertained by Kimo McVay, the Duke's right hand man, for the Duke Kahanamoku Invitational Surfing Championships.

The Duke Contest was held on the north shore of Oahu at Sunset Beach in 10 to 12 foot surf. With a special camera rig, Bill shot 275 photos of the surfing contest section. He said it was the greatest surfing he had (Continued on Page 8)

J. Frank Gordy, well-known poultry leader and educator from Georgetown, was recently honored by the directors and officers of Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., at a dinner and directors' meeting of the Peninsula-wide poultry association at the Seaford Golf and Country Club. The dinner marked the 20th anniversary of the founding of Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. It now numbers 5524 members.

Gordy, who has been executive secretary of the peninsula-wide poultry group since it was founded, received a framed scroll from Wm. R. Stephens, Bridgeville, outgoing president of the association, in the presence of nearly 100 members of the association's board of directors.

Stephens, one of 12 of the 15 past presidents of the association who attended the dinner, said that Gordy's leadership, unselfish devotion, cooperative spirit, inspiration, and guidance had built the association into one of the most influential poultry groups in the country and had brought it wide recognition and acclaim.

At the close of his remarks, the assemblage gave Gordy a standing ovation.

In addition to his past with Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., Gordy has long been director of the Southern Substation Division of the College of Agricultural Sciences, University of Delaware, located near Georgetown. He has represented the U. S. at poultry meetings, shows and other events in Europe and has been host to dozens of official agricultural and poultry deputations from many foreign countries at the Georgetown Experiment station headquarters. Experimental work in poultry science carried on at the station for more than a quarter of a century, much of it under Gordy's direct supervision, has been acclaimed and used around the world.

In replying to the award, Gordy said that the success of the association's work had been due to the unselfishness of the members of the Peninsula's poultry industry and the willingness to forget small differences and contribute countless hours of their time to building their organization, rather than to the efforts of any one man

Power Cuts Smoke Up 2 Trailers

Two house trailers smoked up last Friday night when power failures apparently affected trailer heaters. The occupants were not home.

Charles Smith, public relations officer for the Felton Fire Company, said his fire company went to the Flying Dutchman Trailer Park off U.S. 13 at Four Corners in Canterbury at 7:35 p.m.

Smith said the smoke was due to blackouts in Viola, Canterbury, and Felton during the evening. K. M. Farrow, a spokesman for the Delmarva Power and Light Co. district office in Harrington, said there were some outages in the Felton and Frederica areas, but details would not be available until Tuesday.

"Apparently when the heaters came back on, there was an excess of fuel in the heaters and this started smoking—there was no fire outside of the heaters," Smith said. "One trailer suffered heavy smoke damage."

Smith said one of the trailers was occupied by Mrs. Ethel Gorman, who was not at home. There were no injuries.

REAPPORTIONMENT WILL BE TEDIOUS

Reapportionment of state election districts will be a tedious matter and the outcome is uncertain and devious. Once before we had reapportionment but the courts now declare this unacceptable. Furthermore, they say that unless the General Assembly comes up with a suitable plan by Jan. 10, the federal court will formulate its own plan.

Since the plan called for one vote for one man, a census was required. The Republicans wanted the census, completed last year, done by the Department of Urban Affairs of the University of Delaware. The Democrats wanted it by the federal government, as it was done.

The reapportionment, or redistricting plan, was then turned over to the Legislative Council, comprising five Republicans and five Democrats. This group passed the buck to CROND (Computer Research on Nonpartisan Districting).

CROND came up with three plans, on which the Legislative Council could not agree. With a tie vote, Gov. Terry saw no reason to call the General Assembly back to sanction a plan.

Observers now believe it will be up to the courts to develop a plan of reapportionment. This scheme would go into effect in the 1968 elections and could call for, among other things, a statewide election of members of the General Assembly, as well as the usual state and national ticket.

In 1970 there will be a national census, with another reapportionment set for 1972, with similar measures every 10 years.

With this continual harassment, it appears government and the electorate will both suffer.

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS

Resolutions always seem necessary, The first of every January. They vary little in general scope, Of vices they deplore and sins they hope, To eliminate during the bright new year.

Most of the time it seems through fear Of getting too fat, Or a heart attack. Or developing of a liver cirrhosis, Requiring prescription's expensive doses Of some medicine that doesn't taste so good. As chronic tipplers think it should.

These fellows say the trouble with a resolution Is, it interferes with their constitution, And instead of being about things "not to be done," Should be about things that "need to be begun."

Maybe they have something there, but we have one more day (366) this year to think about it, and never want to reach the point where we don't believe that resolutions have their good points, which reminds of the fellow who didn't believe in flying saucers until he pinched the waitress.

Budget Director Announces Approp. Plan

The State appropriation to the public school districts next year will be at least $6.9 million above that appropriated during the current year. This is exclusive of those public school services provided at the State level by the State Board of Education and exclusive of higher education.

The total required State appropriation to the districts will be $57.3 million next year compared to $50.4 million this year. School district appropriations are generally set forth in the Delaware Code. The increases reflected here are for the statutory increase in school employee's salaries, and increased staffing enacted by the General Assembly and for a normal increase in the number of pupils.

This example illustrates most vividly the restrictions placed upon the Governor in preparing his budget recommendations. In addition to the public school item, there are several other statutory expenditures over which the Governor has no immediate control. For instance, during the current year $7.9 million is appropriated for pensions and social security; $29.4 million for debt service; $7 million for tax refunds; and $2 million for municipal street aid. All told, $46.3 million of the current year's budget is allocated to these statutory expenditures, and it is certain that some of them will increase next year. The United States Congress has already passed legislation to increase social security contributions; past experience shows that pension costs are increasing about 10% annually; and debt service will necessarily increase by over $4 million.

In summary, over $100 million of the budget, including more than $11 million in increases, is already committed for the public schools and other statutory obligations for fiscal 1969 before the Governor even starts to review the requests and requirements of all the various agencies including higher education and the State Department of Public Instruction.

Agricultural College Enrollment Increases

This year's enrollment in the nation's agricultural colleges is seven percent greater than in 1966, according to Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware. Enrollment in the College of Agricultural Sciences at Delaware increased 10 per cent over the past year and is 84 per cent larger than five years ago.

At the national level, McDaniel said that 1967 fall term enrollment for baccalaureate degree programs in agriculture is 47,723, an increase of 3,127 over the 44,596 students enrolled in 1966. Greatest increases in enrollment came in junior and senior classes, indicating that a large number of students transferred to agricultural colleges from other colleges and universities.

Graduate students enrolled in agricultural courses increased about 10 per cent nationally. McDaniel said that the total agricultural enrollment in graduate school was 16,154 compared to $14,687 in 1966. Fields of graduate study showing the largest increases were animal science, agricultural economics and agricultural education.

Enrollment figures are for the 68 member institutions of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

Cure Toothaches Before They Start

In bygone days, some people believed that kissing a donkey would cure a toothache. Others believed that a sprig of parsley hung around the neck would prevent a toothache. While modern dentistry has dispelled odd superstitions, there are still misconceptions about dental health.

During the week of Feb. 4 through 10, the nation will observe the 20th anniversary of National Children's Dental Health Week. Its purpose is to provide sound dental health information to children and parents, and to remove misconceptions about dental health.

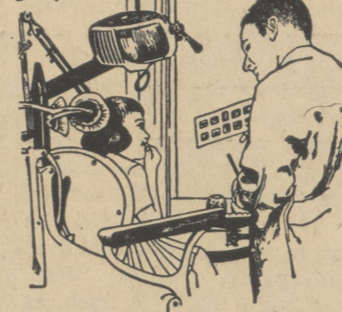

Today, people don't go around kissing donkeys, but some still believe that dental caries (decay)—the cause of a toothache—can be cured. It can't. Dental decay can be removed from a tooth and the tooth filled. And, with proper care—by cleaning the teeth after meals and by cutting down on sweets—the decay possibly won't recur.

Decay can be prevented—not by parsley, but by fluoridation. Countless studies of children in fluoridated communities have proved that fluoride in the water prevents decay by about 65 per cent. And, if fluoride is not in the water, the dentist can either paint a child's teeth with a fluoride substance, or he can prescribe dietary fluorides. The American Dental Association says some fluoride toothpastes are recognized as effective in decay prevention.

Here are some important facts about dental health:

—Baby (primary) teeth are important. They save the proper eruption space for permanent teeth and are necessary for chewing, speech and appearance.

—Milk does not prevent decay, it helps the teeth form properly.

—Sweets are a causative factor in decay and their consumption should be limited, probably to meal times.

—A great proportion of children are afflicted with gum disease. If untreated, the disorders will become more serious as the child grows. Gum disease is the greatest cause of adult tooth loss.

—Destroyed tooth enamel cannot be repaired. If a tooth stops aching, this means the pulp has been infected—an indication of real trouble.

Very few people are "immune" to dental decay. Approximately 98 per cent of the population suffers from caries. But regular toothbrushing, fluoridation and routine dental care will greatly reduce decay. 4-68

The Breeding Herd For Tax Purposes

A breeding herd, for income tax purposes, can refer to several categories of livestock, says W. T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Determining whether livestock is held for draft, dairy or breeding purposes depends on all facts and circumstances in each case, says McAllister. A farmer's actual use of the animal ordinarily shows the purpose for which the animal is held. He cites several examples which may help clarify the term "breeding herd" for tax purposes.

An animal intended for breeding purposes may be discovered to be sterile and sold within a reasonable time after. The animal was held for breeding purposes.

A farmer may retire and sell his entire herd, including young animals he planned to use for breeding or dairy purposes if he had continued in business. These animals would be considered breeding or dairy stock. McAllister points out that any sale of breeding or dairy animals should be handled as a capital gain rather than as ordinary income and should be reported on schedule D, not on form 1040F.

A farmer may raise hogs for slaughter. Before selling the sows, he gets a single litter of pigs from them and raises them for sale. Even though the sows are held for ultimate sale to a customer and are sold after bearing the litter, they are considered held for breeding purposes. However, these animals must be held for a minimum of 12 months.

A farmer who buys cattle and fattens them for slaughter buys sows with calf. Calves are born while the cows are being held by the farmer. These cows are not held for breeding purposes.

Livestock for income tax purposes includes cattle; hogs; mules; donkeys; sheep; goats; fur-bearing animals, such as mink; and other mammals. Chickens, turkeys, pigeons, geese, fish, frogs and reptiles are not included.

For further information on livestock and income tax, ask you county agent for a copy of the "Farmers Tax Guide".

Asbury W.S.C.S Notes

"The New Year Resolutions" an original playlet written by Mrs. Audrey Schreck was presented Tuesday evening at the January meeting of the Asbury Methodist Church Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Members of Martha Circle, portrayed themselves going about their everyday activities, but being tempted to do otherwise by the Devil. Each one was faithful to her duty and resisted the suggestions from the evil one. The final moment of the play were devoted to resolutions that everyone might make for the year 1968. Mrs. James Neeman was narrator, and others appearing in the skit were: Mrs. William J. Brode, Mrs. Virginia Clarkson, Mrs. Oscar Dickerson, Mrs. Clarence Kemp, Mrs. Charles Rapp, Mrs. Schreck, Mrs. Nina Smith, Mrs. C. Fred Wilson, Mrs. Fred B. Greenly and Mrs. George Mahony. Mrs. Greenly and Mrs. Mahony are co-leaders of the Martha Circle.

Mrs. Guy Winebrenner opened the meeting with a devotional program.

The business meeting followed with several department secretaries making reports. Mrs. James Moore, local church activities chairman announced that the swine banquet would be served on January 30. Circle leaders will be called to provide help and dessert for the dinner. Mrs. Edgar Graef reported that the Student Recognition Day held during the morning worship service last Sunday was very successful with the students most cooperative in taking part in the program.

Two new members of the Martha Circle were announced. They are Mrs. Henry White and Mrs. Thomas Porter. The February meeting will be on February 6 with Mrs. Earl Thomas and the Esther Circle in charge.

Conversation was enthusiastic. Time flew by and everyone agreed that it represented two hours well spent and that it was enjoyed by all.

On the table in the rear of the nave will be found tentative flower schedules for the coming year. FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

An open letter for "Small Farmers":

If you could find an "angel" to help you earn more money on or off the farm—what would you plan to do?

The U. S. Department of Agriculture wants to build stronger programs for small farmers. Your ideas will be considered in the nationwide search for grass roots solutions.

Here are some ideas already given:

1. A program to help a small farmer buy more land so he can compete better. The government would help buy the land and hold a first lien to be repaid when the land is resold. The farmer would pay interest and principal on only 40 per cent of the purchase price. He could, but need not, feel forced to pay the total price as long as he controls the land.

2. A man has a small dairy barn but sold the cows because he could not expand the herd or buy a bulk tank. He would like to convert the barn to care for horses—either harness or pleasure type. (I know a man who wants to hire someone to house and care for 12 harness horses.)

3. Another man likes to deal with people. He lives along a main road with many interstate travelers and would like to set up a certified camp-site business. He plans to use a piece of woodland bordering on a stream and also a farm pond stocked for fishing.

Just scratch out your ideas and send them into our County Extension Office, P. O. Box 340, Dover, 19901. Someone will come out and talk with you more about it if need be. Or phone 736-1448 and I'll be glad to discuss your thoughts with you.

All-risk crop insurance is coming to Delaware this year for corn and soybean crops. William W. Hutchison of Clayton will be handling this new federal program for Kent and New Castle counties. He is having an open meeting at the Clayton Fire Hall on January 9 at 1 p.m. to explain the details.

The program has been used in neighboring Maryland counties and other places for some time. Basically, the insurance feature guarantees at 75 per cent cash return when premiums have been paid. The premium cost is about 6 per cent of the guaranteed return. Or put it another way. A premium cost of $3 per acre for a guaranteed return of $45 per acre.

There are several conditions. A farmer must qualify by using good crop practices, including planting on time and a history of the land use.

This looks like a good way to assure crop financing. Most bankers will welcome this sort of security for a crop loan. It seems that we finally can say: "Yes, we can do something about bad weather risks."

The Farmer's Tax Guide, 1968 edition, is now available at our County Extension Service Office for free. No farmer can feel certain that his report is accurate unless he checks thru this handy reference.

Some of you many want to get the information out of the horse's mouth. A special 4-week course on income tax reporting will be held at the Dover Air Base High School starting on Mon., Jan. 8 at 7 p.m. and continuing for the next four Mondays. The instructor will be Edwin Benson, of the Internal Revenue Service. He has special training in farm tax problems and is familiar with Delaware farms. The course cost is $10.

Indian corn and gourds. Who wants a growing contract with a guaranteed outlet for all you can produce? Bob Stevens, our extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware, has this request from what appears to be a very reliable firm in northern New Jersey. They have been in business for 25 years and offer excellent credit references.

We can provide cultural information if anyone is interested in growing these special crops on a commercial scale. Phone our Extension office 736-1448 and we will line up more details.

Dairy farmers are invited to four management sessions slated to start on January 10 at 11 a.m. in the Houston Fire Hall. Dairy men in the northern part of Kent County may prefer to attend the evening sessions scheduled for 8 p.m. the same days at the Carothers Mill at Mount Pleasant, just north of Middletown.

Bill Henderson and I are combining forces this year with the Houston meetings. The 11 a.m. start will permit a farmer to get his morning chores out of the way—and he can be home again in plenty of time for afternoon feeding and milking. We will also provide noon time lunches at a nominal cost.

Check your Delaware Dairy Digest for the details of each program. Every dairy farmer should be on our mailing list. If you are not, give us a telephone call, 736-1448.

We like the story of the farmer who had been taken through the usual routine when buying a new car. The basic car price was the one advertised in the paper, but after he got through buying the "accessories", radio, backup lights, seat lift, etc., the bill was a good bit higher.

A short time later he advertised a good cow for sale as follows:

FOR SALE: 1 Registered Holstein Cow:	$200
Accessories —
2 muted horns at $15	30
2-tone color job	75
automatic fly swatter	10
extra stomachs at $10	30

Discover Wonderful Del.

It's plain that Delawareans consider their new-old Governor's House a small wonder of Wonderful Delaware. Their pride and pleasure is proved by the large numbers who visit it. On Tuesday afternoons, when the house is open to the public, the ladies who serve as guides have a busy time of it.

The house on Kings Highway in Dover was built in about 1790 by Charles Hilliard, and is an unusual and beautiful example of the late 18th century architecture of Delaware. During the Civil War period, it was a station on the "Underground Railroad" for escaping slaves. Known as "Wodburn" for years, it has come to be called simply "The Governor's House" since the State of Delaware acquired it as a home for the State's governors, and the name suits it very well.

After its acquisition by the State, the house was restored and furnished by the State Archives Commission, with a great deal of help from Mrs. Charles L. Terry, Jr., wife of the Governor, and from other interested people.

The Terrys have lived there now for just more than a year, and the house continues to grow in charm.

It's not large, and it's certainly not pretentious by today's standards, but somehow it has the dignity and beautiful simplicity that Delawareans associate with the office of Governor.

The guides know their job of showing the house to visitors—but here are some things to notice: the grounds—the trees and the beautiful boxwood are very old indeed. The entrance—the large hall is at the end of the house instead of in the middle, as was more customary. The front door is astonishingly big. The rugs in the hall are particularly beautiful, and the gold-leaf screen was brought from Hong Kong in 1760. The parlor—the original woodwork is a beautiful example of its kind. The set of Staffordshire china, commemorating the war of 1812, was collected piece by piece. The Kelsey Johns portraits in the dining-room date from around 1750. Be sure to notice the unusually large and beautiful breakfast—as if you could miss it.

Upstairs, the house is equally charming. The lovely circassian walnut desk in the hall belonged to a former governor. The two bedrooms are furnished in perfect keeping with the period.

The Governor's House is on Kings Highway in Dover just south of Division Street. It can be visited on any Tuesday afternoon, between 2 and 5 p.m. Groups of any size planning to visit will do well to let the Public Archives Commission, Dover, Delaware 1901, know ahead of time, so that special arrangements can be made.

It's a small wonder of wonderful Delaware, the Governor's House, one that is becoming increasingly dear to the hearts of all Delawareans, and a lovely discovery for visitors to the state.

Watch Those Bargains!

Sale! Sale! It's a magic word this time of year that calls most women to attention. After-Christmas clothing sales offer a chance for a good bargain—if you know what you want and need.

Know the original value of the merchandise and keep your wits about you as you shop, advises Miss Janet Reed, extension clothing and textile specialist at the University of Delaware.

Check your wardrobe; do you really need that new suit or dress? Don't let the excitement of a sale tempt you; money spent on a garment you will wear once is a poor investment compared to the same amount spent for one you can wear often.

Will the bargain fit into your turnable. Especially check seconds and irregulars; they can be good buys unless flaws affect their use.

If the clothes are soiled, be which did not sell? Some colors are on sale. Is it a color or style sure cleaning bills won't add more to the cost than you're saving in the sale. Also, cleaning instructions are vital with today's varied fabrics; are they attached to the garment?

Try on the clothes and look at yourself critically suggests Miss Reed, does it fit well? Can you make any changes or repairs yourself or will you need to pay for alterations?

Ask yourself why the clothes you make any changes or repairs yourself or will you need to pay wardrobe, or will you need to pay for accessories? New shoes, purse or hat to match could double the cost.

Examine the bargain carefully, warns Miss Reed. Check size, color, style, guarantee and condition; sale items may not be re-made and styles are not becoming to most people so the garment is left at the end of the season. If it's attractive on you, it may be an excellent buy.

Is the price reduced because only hard-to-sell sizes are left? The very small and the large sizes most often are left on the racks. You're lucky if you fit into one of the less common sizes.

Finally, before you buy, decide whether you really like the garment very much, or only so-so. When you wear it, will it give other people the impression you want them to have of you? If not, pass by the temptation.

Remember, cautions Miss Reed, nothing is a bargain if it just hangs in your closet unworn.

Atrazine Residue May Be Reduced

Use of atrazine in combination with other herbicides for full season weed control in sweet corn significantly reduces the amount of atrazine residue left in the soil, according to E. M. Rahn, associate professor of horticulture at the University of Delaware.

In a paper presented at the 22nd annual Northeastern Weed Control Conference in New York Wednesday, Rahn and research assistant Richard Ashley said that atrazine at one-half rates in combination with either proachlor or R-1910 produced excellent full season weed control while reducing atrazine residue.

Tests conducted at the University's Newark research farm indicated that both proachlor and R-1910 were outstanding in controlling annual grasses but were weak in controlling broadleaf weeds. Full season control of the broadleaf weeds was significantly better with atrazine.

Among the herbicide combinations tested, proachlor and R-1910 in combination with atrazine at half rates provided excellent overall weed control. No crop injury was observed with any of the treatments. Differences in weed control between the various treatments were not enough to cause significant reduction of yields.

Indicator crops showed that trazine and atrazine incorporated into the soil before planting left the greatest amount of residue while that half-rate combinations left significantly less residue.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Several years ago I elected to receive Army retirement pay rather than VA disability compensation. Is it too late to change now?

A.—No. There is no deadline for a current election of pay. However, you must under-compensation in lieu of retired go a VA medical examination to determine the degree and nature of your disability and the amount of compensation to which you are entitled. You can make arrangements for this examination through your nearest Veterans Administration office.

Q.—I am receiving a pension as a widow of a veteran and for our two children. I am considering marrying again. If I remarry will I lose this pension?

A.—Your pension will be terminated but your children will continue to receive benefits if neither has an income exceeding $1,800 per year. Children do not lose their rights to a pension when the widow remarries or dies. They will continue to receive a pension until they reach the age of 18 or, if they remain in school, until age 23. The rate for two children together is $65 per month. Where there is only one child, the rate is $40 per month.

Q.—I entered active duty last year under the Six-Month Reserve training program and I served 182 days during this tour. Am I eligible for schooling under the G. I. Bill?

A.—No. The fact that you had the required minimum of 181 days in service does not apply in your case. Veterans who enlisted under the Six-Month Reserve program do not qualify under the G. I. Bill.

Veteran's News

The Veterans Administration paid out in 1967 an estimated $8,997,000 in compensation and pension benefits to 9,200 Delaware veterans or their survivors. Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington VA Regional Office, said last week.

Included in this estimate are increased pension and Vietnam era wartime disability compensation payments provided by the Veterans' Pension and Readjustment Assistance Act signed by the President last August, Mr. Fields said.

Of the estimated $7 billion of all VA expenditures nationally in 1967, approximately $16,900,000 was expended in Delaware, Mr. Fields explained.

He said that an actual state-by-state count of the veteran population and of VA expenditures by major programs on a fiscal year basis will be available and released in 1968.

Compensation and pension benefits for approximately 4.5 million American veterans or survivors account for nearly $4 billion of the $7 billion total of VA expenditures this past year.

The next highest VA expenditure in 1967 was for hospital and medical services. To care for ill and disabled veterans in its 166 hospitals and 202 out-patient clinics in 1967, VA spent more than $1.3 billion, Mr. Fields said.

VA payments for insurance and indemnities in 1967 totaled nearly $890 million.

Education and training expenditures were the next highest item in the VA's budget this past year. Under this program, which cost approximately $320 million, about 468,000 veterans went to high school, college or post-graduate school, or received on-the-job, farm, apprenticeship or flight training in 1967. Additionally, some 37,000 children of veterans who died from a service-connected disability or who are permanently and totally disabled as a result of military service received about $33 million in educational assistance this past year.

The GI loan programs, boosted by the participation of Post-Korean and Vietnam era veterans who accounted for more than four-fifths of the loans, were strong in 1967. VA guaranteed approximately 200,000 loans with a face value of nearly $3.4 billion in 1967. This past year VA also made slightly more than 42,000 direct loans valued at nearly $150 million.

As in past years, the cost of administering VA's $7 billion programs of veterans benefits and services was less than three per cent of its total budget, Mr. Fields said.

Forget Those Old Frostbite Treatments

Frostbite is an important health hazard each winter in most parts of the country. True frostbite means that the tissues are frozen. Crystals of ice form between the cells. Nerves, muscles and blood vessel tissues are most susceptible.

Frostbite can happen before you know it, and it isn't necessary for the temperature to be excessively low. The wind plays an important part. The chilling effect of air at 20 degrees moving at 45 miles an hour is the same as 40-below-zero air on a still day.

One of the dangers of frostbite is that you often don't feel it. First thing you know is that someone else notices that your ear or nose is turning white. The frozen part becomes hard to touch and loses feeling. Many sports leaders advocate a buddy system for outdoor winter sports: two persons are paired off, each watching the other for signs of frostbite.

To prevent frostbite, first be certain that you are properly dressed for the temperature. Avoid over-exertion and excessive perspiration. Avoid contact of bare flesh with cold metal. Don't drink alcohol or smoke.

In first aid for frostbite, forget the old saw about rubbing the affected part with snow, and also forget the completely invalid caution against rapid thawing. Also, don't massage or rub the frozen part. Don't touch it at all. Begin rapid rewarming as soon as possible. A hot bath is excellent, but avoid scalding. Hot wet towels will help, changed frequently and applied gently. If no fire or hot water is at hand, place the patient in a sleeping bag, or cover with coats and blankets. Hot liquids will help raise body temperature.

For any frostbite, even a mild case, prompt medical attention is important. The depth and degree of the frozen tissue cannot be readily ascertained and the treatment will vary with the severity of the injury.

Dress properly and use common sense about exposure in severe cold, and most cases of frostbite can be avoided.

Dean Delivers New Year's Greetings

During the past year, much has been said about increasing the farmers' bargaining power in order to obtain higher prices. In his annual New Year's message, Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware, said that progress will be slow for many crops including corn and soybeans and for livestock and livestock products.

He added, however, that progress for vegetable crops, especially those grown under contract, will probably be faster and more successful.

McDaniel pointed out that attempts to obtain bargaining power are generally thought of as cooperative or group efforts combined with federal legislation.

"However, the individual agricultural producer can make efforts on his own to obtain bargaining power in the market," he said.

McDaniel suggested that each Delaware farmer should give thought during the winter months to how he should divide his time allocated to obtaining increased marketing power. How much time should be devoted to cooperative and group efforts? How much time should be devoted to individual action to obtain better prices?

He cited production of better quality products and marketing products in better form as individual efforts for increasing prices and said that the marketing system should be modified to better reward those farmers producing the highest quality product.

"In 1968, the quality of management in both marketing and production will play an increasingly important role in the amount of net income received by individual farmers," said McDaniel. This is because the average investment per farm in land and equipment, as well as in operational expense, is increasing at a much faster rate than net income. For this reason, the farmer is managing an increasingly larger amount to obtain a relatively small increase in net income. Under these conditions, management errors become more costly.

"To each of you, I want to emphasize the availability of the staff of the College of Agricultural Sciences wherever and whenever we can be of service to you," he concluded.

Should Use Proper Herbicide Rates

Tomato growers should use caution to apply no more than the recommended rate of herbicide when low temperatures prevail or are expected following the setting of tomato transplants in trifluralin treated soil, says E.M. Rahn, associate professor of horticulture at the University of Delaware.

Rahn and research assistant Richard Feulner discussed the response of tomato and pepper transplants to trifluralin at low temperatures at the 22nd annual Northeastern Weed Control Conference in New York.

Tests conducted at the University's Georgetown Substation indicated that pepper transplants did not suffer any adverse effects from recommended rates of trifluralin at low temperatures.

In tomato transplants, trifluralin at the recommended rate depressed fresh and dry weights of tops at low temperatures; weight of fruit was not depressed. The weight of fruit harvested was reduced, however, when plants were treated with double the recommended rate of trifluralin and subjected to low temperatures.

This suggests that tomato transplants should not be subjected to more than the recommended rate of trifluralin when low temperatures are expected to follow, said Feulner.

Larry Wyatt was the big gun for Greenwood with 21 points and Spence, 20 and Hughes, 17 points respectively combined to give Greenwood their balanced attack.

Chris Moore topped Felton with 20 points, with Price, 16; Dill, 10, and Sipple, 10, to also hit double figures.

Harrington's basketball opener with Dover Air was postponed due to fog in the area. No new date for the contest has been set.

Harrington Bowling League

Taylor & Messick made a real strong showing Tuesday night to overpower Jarrell Fuel and slipped past Robbins Hardware to take over the league lead. Real fine efforts by D. Hayman with a superb 639 series including two 200 plus games of 216 and 231; G. Collins with a 201 game and a 577 series; K. Outten with a grand 225 game, and S. Collins with a fine 205 game, gave Taylor & Messick all the help they needed to move into the lead. Taylor & Messick also racked up a team high series for the year with a great 2654 series, to lead the league in that department. Speaking of departments, Hayman's series of Tuesday night is the top series of the league this season, and is the one to catch.

Robbins Hardware found Penn. R. R. waiting and ready for battle as it proved to be one of their better nights against a strong team. Robbins Hardware could do no better than a split with the railroad boys as they ultimately dropped their league lead to fall into second place. Even though Penn. R. R. put on a good showing, they could still not vacate their lowly cellar position.

Kent Gas seems to be having difficulty in hitting the pins as Walley's Garage took three games from the Kent Gas team to force them to drop to third place. Walley's Garage managed to move up a notch from last week's standings by their fine night's effort.

Acme took the measure of McKnatt Funeral Home to the tune of three games and enabled themselves to move into a tie for third place. The three game loss pushed McKnatt's down a couple notches from last week's standing.

B. Wilson rolled a fine 543 series, including a 200 game, and J. Bogden rolled a good 204 game and a fine 529 series to enable Hamilton Fund to trounce Hobbs Newsstand for three of four games. Hamilton Fund also moved up the ladder into a three way tie for third place. This three game loss left Hobbs Newsstand just one game away from the cellar position.

ever seen. Twenty-four of the best big wave surfers in the world competed. The select group of surfers came from Hawaii, California, the East Coast, and Australia, as the guests of Duke Kahanamoku. The Duke contest will be televised as an hour long sports spectacular sometime in the next two months.

Bill said, "As a serious surfer I had always dreamed of the big surf of Hawaii's north shore. When I became paralyzed from a surfing accident two and a half years ago I still dreamed, but figured I would never get to Hawaii. But now, thanks to a wonderful group of people in the surfing world, I have realized that dream. I will cherish the memories of this trip for the rest of my life." Bill added, "More than this I will cherish the friendship of those that made it possible. Wow, what a beautiful group of people!"

Among those that made the trip possible were: Hobie Alter, surfboard manufacturer of Laguna Beach, Calif.; Bruce Brown, surf film producer of Dana Point, Calif.; "Grubby" Clark, manufacturer of Clark surfboard foam of Dana Point, Calif.; John Severson, editor of SURFER magazine of Dana Point, Calif.; R. Paul Allen, surf film promoter of Dana Point, Calif.; Ditch Metz, Surf Shop Owner of Honolulu, Hawaii; Duke Kahanamoku and Kimo McVay, both of Honolulu, Hawaii.

Two Schools In Sussex Urge Merger

Members of the Lord Baltimore and John M. Clayton school boards urged voters Tuesday night to approve a proposed merger of the two districts. The proposal comes up for vote Saturday.

The directors said the merger should be approved because the districts need immediate educational improvements.

About 40 persons attended a meeting of the two boards Tuesday night at the Lord Baltimore School.

J. M. Clayton district facilities according to board members, would be used for all students in grades nine through 12 in both districts should the proposal pass.

All pupils in grades one through six in Lord Baltimore would continue to attend that school.

Those in grades one through three in the J. M. Clayton district would attend school as close to their homes as possible. Board members said they do not now know for sure where seventh and eighth grade students would go to school.

If the proposal passes, the school board for the new district would be composed of all members of the two existing boards. Each year during the next five years two members would drop off and only one position would be filled until a five-member board remained.

Board members said the tax structure for the new district would be set to comply with current state laws. This would mean the tax rate for current expenses for the new district would not go higher than the current rate in either district. The effective date of consolidation would be July 1. Board members said reorganization would go into effect in September, benefiting the high school students immediately.

USDA Film Helps Shoppers

How can you be sure you're getting the most for your money in the food store? How can grading and inspection help you shop for your family?

"Janet and the Genie", a 28-minute color film produced by the Department of Agriculture's Consumer and Marketing Service, answers these questions and many more.

Home economics students and homemakers will enjoy taking a trip with Janet, a young high school student, as she journeys through meat packing, poultry processing, apply packing, egg grading and dairy plants with the help of "The Genie."

This magical character shows Janet how to become a smart shopper by using the Department of Agriculture's grading and inspection service.

"Janet and the Genie" was made primarily for young high school students, but homemakers will also enjoy the trip with "The Genie" of the marketplace.

This film is available to interested groups through the Agricultural Editors Office, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, Delaware 19711.

Mr. Omwake retired in 1963 as a director of education at the Gov. Bacon Health Center. He came to Delaware to teach in Dover in 1930, and was later principal of Hockessin Elementary, Rose Hill-Minquadale and Greenwood Schools.

He took the health center post after a controversy with the Greenwood School Board. The board refused to renew his contract, and four teachers who defended him also were dropped.

Mr. Omwake was the founder of the Archaeological Society of Delaware in 1931, and of the Sussex Archaeological Association, now the Sussex Society for History and Archaeology. He was a member of the Eastern States Archaeological Federation and many state societies throughout the country. He was instrumental in obtaining legislation establishing the State Archaeological Board and was the recipient of the Archibald Crozier Award for outstanding service to archeology.

Mr. Omwake was also a member of the Kiwanis Club of Greenwood and past president of the club.

Donald Knouse, state supervisor of social studies for the Department of Public Instruction, organized the program for Delaware.

NDEA To Be Held At Univ. of Del.

For the fourth consecutive year, the University of Delaware has been chosen as the site for an NDEA institute for Advanced Study in English.

A grant of approximately $37,000 has been awarded to the university by the U. S. Office of Education for a six-week program in literary criticism.

The institute, to be conducted from June 24 to Aug. 2, will be under the direction of Dr. Franklin B. Newman, assistant professor of English, and will serve teachers in Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

"The need for such an institute is apparent," Dr. Newman said, "when we consider the number of teachers who graduate from college without having elected a course in criticism. Even teachers who hold the master's degree more often than not have never had such a course. They have never had the opportunity to obtain an overview of the critical principles which structure their discipline."

The first Delaware institute in 1965 was general in scope, and included courses in language, composition and literature. The focus of the 1966 institute was on poetry. Last summer, institute members were concerned primarily with the teaching of language. The 1968 institute on the theory and practice of literary criticism will complete the cycle of coverage.

Two courses and a workshop will be included in the institute program. The courses will be Theory of Criticism and Practical Criticism, while in the workshop, the participants will develop a complete plan for the teaching of literary works of their choosing and prepare a curricular report, determined by group analysis, on how best to teach a movement, period, theme or literary concept.

The well-qualified institute faculty will include Dr. George H. Henry, professor of education and associate director; Dr. Lawrence Sargent Hall, professor of English and chairman of the English department at Bowdoin College; and Dr. Stephen C. Moore, assistant professor of English at Delaware.

Dr. Newman said that the ultimate beneficiaries of the institute will be the students of the participants, who have not previously been exposed to the "vast reservoir of concepts and critical approaches" that have developed since the 1930s, but have not been used effectively because of the lack of grounding by inservice teachers. In this respect, he said, instruction in English has lagged behind mathematics and the sciences which have better disseminated new knowledge and theories among elementary and secondary school teachers.

Applicants for the 30 available positions in the institute must have a master's degree in English or its equivalent or a bachelor's degree with a minimum of 18 hours in English. They must be teachers in grades 9-12 and intend to continue their teaching careers. Recommendations of school officials and an evaluation of the candidates' records also will be considered. Participants will receive a subsidy of $75 per week, plus $15 per week for each dependent. Applications must be submitted to Dr. Newman, Institute Director, at the University of Delaware, Newark, 19711, by March 17.

Door Prize Is Packaged By Ocean Hiway

A spectacular door prize is packaged by the Ocean Hiway Association for the annual fundraising dinner of Delmarva Hospitality Incorporated to be held on January 16 at the National Guard Armory in Salisbury.

The winner and one companion will travel for eight days visiting major attractions along the Ocean Hiway from Salisbury, Maryland, to Sea Island, Georgia, and back, as guests of the Association. Ovis Rent-a-Car will supply transportation. The tour is scheduled to begin on a Saturday in February.

By unfolding the scenic and historic attractions of the coastal plain to these fortunate travelers, the Ocean Hiway Association hopes to demonstrate that Routes 13 and 17 are more than a traffic chute to Florida.

First stop will be Norfolk where the travelers will be met by Association and Chamber of Commerce representatives for the famous Norfolk tour of historic landmarks, the U.S. Naval installation, and lunch in the Gardens - by - the - Sea Teahouse. There will be dinner at Virginia Beach and an overnight stay in the Golden Triangle Motor Hotel.

Sunday will bring visits to historic sites in Edenton, Bath and New Bern, colonial capital of North Carolina, and a tour of a national fish hatchery. The overnight stop and dinner will be in Wilmington.

In Wilmington there will be a visit to the battleship U.S.S.

North Carolina of World War II fame, now a memorial to service men and women. Side trips will be made to the elaborate gardens of Orton Plantation and through the winding drives of Airlie Gardens.

Continuing south toward Charleston there will be lunch at Little River and tours of Brookgreen Gardens and colonial Georgetown in South Carolina. Tuesday will begin in Charleston with a Gray Line tour of either the harbor or historic homes and buildings, and end with dinner at the Cloisters in Sea Island, Georgia.

The travelers will tour Georgia's famous vacationland, the Golden Isles, by causeway across St. Simons Island, the Marshes of Glynn and Jekyll Island. For dinner and the evening they will be in Savannah.

After a tour of the historic landmarks of Beaufort the travelers head north again on Thursday. They will be entertained for an afternoon and evening at Myrtle Beach, North Carolina. By Friday evening they will again be in Virginia Beach for a final night as guests of the Princess Anne Inn.

The Ocean Hiway route to New York leads through Delmarva either across Delaware Memorial Bridge or by way of the Cape May-Lewes ferry. The Association cooperates with Delmarva Hospitality Incorporated which was organized a year ago to publicize the attractions of Delmarva to travelers and vacationers.

Principal speaker for the Delmarva Hospitality dinner on January 16 will be Donald Y. McCoy, executive director of Discover America Incorporated, one of the nation's top men in travel promotion. The newly elected president of the organization, who will take office at the dinner, is Wayne Browning of Tasley, Va.

The American Medical Association points out that exercise, or lack of it, is often a significant factor in the control of obesity, diabetes, heart and circulatory problems, orthopedic disease and emotional disorders. Fitness developed through vigorous activity and exercise can be preventive, as well as therapeutic, in nature.

In a positive sense, health includes abundant energy and vitality. A healthy person is physically fit when he can perform his daily work and tasks without undue fatigue, maintain adequate reserves of energy to enjoy recreational activities and leisure, and meet the challenge of unexpected demands. These might be running to catch a train, quickly climbing several flights of stairs, shoveling snow, or jacking up the car to change a tire.

Can you go up several flights of stairs without severe discomfort, chest pain, or having to stop before you reach the top? You would expect to be puffing a little at the top, but this should subside soon if you are reasonably fit.

The best exercise is doing something physically active which you enjoy, with the exercise part secondary. If you enjoy swimming or tennis, or handball, these are excellent sports for exercising most of the body. Golf is good for the tired businessman. Most of us, however, find it difficult to exert the mental discipline to keep at a program of daily calisthenics purely for the sake of exercise.

If you have had little or no exercise for years, be cautious about plunging immediately into active sports. Work up to strenuous exercise gradually.

There are simple tests by which your doctor can determine the extent of your physical fitness. If you flunk the tests miserably, and many of us will, then ask your doctor to prescribe a simple, daily exercise program to help you get back in shape. 1-68

EARL QUILLEN, JR. SAYS: DID YOU KNOW

A parking lot is a place where you leave your car to have the wheelbase shortened and the trunk caved in.

A good education helps you to worry about what's going on all over the world.

Every hunting season some accidents happen because both the HUNTER and the GUN are loaded.

Quite often a fight for what is right turns into a quarrel for what is left.

A good way to find out when you're getting old is when you start wearing shoes without shoelaces because they enable you to get dressed in the morning without having to bend over.

FINALLY — God gives food to every bird — But he doesn't throw it into the nest!!
