Mrs. Ethel C. Raughley, 73, of 62 Clark St., was pronounced dead on arrival at Milford Memorial Hospital after suffering a heart attack at her home Sunday morning.

She was the owner of the Raughley Insurance Agency of Harrington and the widow of Ernest Raughley, who died in 1948. Mr. Raughley was a founder and secretary of the Kent & Sussex County Fair, now Delaware State Fair, from its founding in 1919 until his death.

She was a member of the Trinity Methodist Church, its Loyal Workers Bible Class and the Trinity Choir and past president of its Woman's Society of Christian Service. She was past recording secretary of the Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Mrs. Raughley was past president of the Harrington New Century Club and a member of the Harrington High School Alumni Association.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Arnold Gilstad of Harrington, and two grandchildren.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the J. Millard Cooper Funeral Home, 110 E. Center St., Harrington. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

One Charged With Vehicle Theft

Local police arrested a juvenile Monday on a charge of stealing a motor vehicle. Search is continuing for two other suspects.

The automobile, stolen from the residence of Sammy Lyons on Hanley Street, Dec. 27, was recovered Dec. 30 by State Police, Troop 3, Dover, who found it abandoned near Little Haven.

Carroll Welch, Sr., Retires As Chief School Custodian

The retirement of Carroll Welch, Sr., as chief custodian of Harrington schools, was announced last week by the Board of Education. He will go to Florida for a couple months.

The board also announced the appointment of Joe Lane, Route 1, Harrington, as custodian.

BID OPENED ON BOND ISSUE FOR SEWER IMPROVEMENTS

A bid was opened Tuesday for bonds to improve Harrington's sanitary system.

Peoples Bank of Harrington and Farmers Bank of Dover, offered to accept the $380,000 issue at an interest of 4.9 per cent, just under the 5 per cent in the bid specifications. There were no other bidders.

The City Council will vote to accept the bid Monday night at its regular meeting.

The next step will be the awarding of construction bids.

Exploding Tire Injures Man

A tire that was being inflated blew up in man's face here Monday seriously injuring him.

John Howard, 24, of Lincoln, was treated at Milford Memorial Hospital and taken to Delaware Division, in Wilmington, where he was admitted with a fractured skull, according to hospital authorities. He was reported in serious condition on Tuesday.

State police said that Howard was inflating a truck tire when it exploded, flinging an outer rim against his forehead.

Howard was apparently working on his own tire, police said, at Fry's Station on U. S. 13 about 5:45 p. m. The tire was not on the vehicle while Howard was working on it, they said.

Literature Course Starts in February At U. of D.

"Philosophical Ideas in Contemporary Literature" is the title of a course starting next month at the University of Delaware.

Offered by the university's Extension division as a credit or non-credit course, it will be taught by Charles W. Mason of the university faculty.

The course will be divided into three divisions, each with selected readings. The divisions and some of the books are:

Secular and religious — "The Secular City" by Cox and "The Montgomery-Alitzer Dialogue" Society and the individual — "Darkness at Noon" by Koestler and "Brave New World Revisited" by Huxley. Man on his nature — "Lord of the Flies" by Golding and "Abolition of Man" by Lewis.

These works produce or reflect a changed concept of man and the world.

Classes will meet Thursday night from 7 to 9:45 for 15 weeks in Memorial Hall, starting Feb. 8. Fees are $45 if taken without credit, and $45 for Delawareans and $105 for others taking the course for three credits.

Terry Signs Viet Veteran Bonus Bill

Delaware service veterans of Vietnam War Monday became eligible for special bonuses from the state, under a bill signed by Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr.

It was the last measure on Terry's desk from the 124th General Assembly.

The act provides for the appointment of a five-member commission. Leon de Valinger Jr., the state archivist, has been named in the act as executive director.

Terry signed House Bill 275, which provides for bonuses for those who have served after Aug. 5, 1964 — the date of the Gulf of Tonkin resolution — and for the families of deceased veterans in that period.

The bill provides for a maximum bonus of $300, based on $15 a month, up to a maximum of $225, for service within the United States, and $20 a month for service overseas, up to a maximum of $300. Also provided is a $300 benefit in case of death or disability.

To be eligible, a veteran must have served more than 90 days for purposes other than training, and must have been born in and entered to service from Delaware, or have lived in the state for at least a year before induction.

The bill authorizes the issuance of bonds of up to $3.5 million to pay the bonuses.

Reorganization Of Guards Jan. 31

Reorganization of the Delaware Army National Guard will take place on January 31, Maj. Gen. Joseph J. Scannell, Delaware Adjutant General, announced this week.

Federal approval of Delaware's detailed plan for reorganization was not received until Tuesday, General Scannell said, although preparations have been going forward on a tentative basis for about six weeks.

The plan was developed by the Delaware National Guard staff, in accordance with Defense Department proposals accepted by Governor Terry last year.

Under the plan, the Military Support Section of the State Headquarters, which is responsible for planning and liaison with Civil Defense and other civil authorities, will move from Wilmington to Dover, as will Hq. and Hq. Battery, 261st Artillery Brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. Albert W. Adams.

The Army National Guard and Selective Service Sections of the State Headquarters will remain in Wilmington, as will the office of the adjutant general.

Artillery units of the Army Guard will be reorganized into three battalions at 83% of war strength. At present there are four artillery battalions, three of which are limited to lower strengths.

Overall authorized strength of the Army National Guard will be cut from 3,132 to 2,846, but no Guardsmen will be discharged as a result of the reorganization. Since December, the Guard has accepted only men with previous service, and this policy is expected to continue until normal.

Boy Thumbs Ride, Police Arrest Him

A teen-ager hitchhiker was picked up near Harrington by two state troopers — one an off-duty captain — and accused of stealing a station wagon Tuesday.

Police said he and a companion fled from the stolen vehicle an hour before. The companion was still the object of a police search Tuesday night, with dogs used in the hunt.

The hitchhiker was identified only as a 17-year-old Dover resident. He was turned over to Dover police, who charged him with grand larceny of an auto. He was being held at the Dover police station Tuesday night, but was later turned over to Family Court and placed in the Stevenson Home for Juveniles at Milford.

State police gave this account of the incident:

Capt. Robert Stewart had finished his tour of duty for the day and was on his way home from Dover state police headquarters. Earlier, a report had been received that a station wagon had been stolen in Dover.

Stewart spotted a station wagon answering the description on U.S. 13 near Harrington and forced it to stop. As it pulled over to the roadside, two males jumped out and fled into the woods.

Stewart notified headquarters and additional police, including police dogs, were sent to the scene. The area was searched without results.

About an hour later, Stewart and Trooper Jerry Weller were in a patrol car when they saw a youth wet and covered with mud, hitchhiking near the abandoned station wagon.

Police said the youth, when picked up, made a statement in connection with the theft of the station wagon. Police said he also named his companion.

Dover police Tuesday night said they were still searching for the companion. They released no other details.

Records An Important Part of Farm Business

Keep a good set of farm records in 1968, advises W. T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist at the University of Delaware. Records are necessary for justifying income tax returns, measuring financial growth, obtaining credit and for production comparisons.

Record keeping difficulties are not caused by lack of a record book or a satisfactory system, says McAllister. Record keeping is a matter of determination. Resolve to keep better records; develop a definite procedure; get the necessary equipment — a record book and a file for bills and cancelled checks; keep the records up to date.

Keeping records need not be a disagreeable chore, he adds. For those who dislike keeping records or who just don't have time, commercial record keeping services are available at a reasonable cost.

Fleming Celebrates 93rd Birthday

Joseph Fleming, of Vernon Road, celebrated his 93rd birthday last Friday. As he sat next to a warm stove Sunday afternoon, he said: "I was born in this room."

Sussex Levy Court To See Canadians' Jet Incinerator

With its interest in a comparatively smokeless incineration process increasing, Sussex County's Levy Court is planning a February trip to Ajax, Ontario.

If the high-velocity air incinerator meets the "delighted" expectations of the commissioners, Lincoln's Birthday may prove a red letter day for Sussex garbage woes.

On Feb. 12, the commissioners plan to see a demonstration on how the waste disposal unit is employed to dispose of municipal refuse in Ajax.

Tuesday, after meeting with Evans Andreacolo and Eugene E. Ferry, representative of the Conshohocken, Pa., manufacturer, the Levy Court commissioners were unabashedly enthusiastic about purchasing two of the incinerators for Sussex.

Andreacolo quoted the purchase price of the Thermal Research & Engineering Corp. units at $40,000 each, and the commissioners hope they can get a federal grant to offset part of the expense. Their optimism is based on the fact that the process is

Former Kent Man Killed In Va. Fire

A former Harrington man, was when flames swept his home at 7512 Schaaf Drive, Richmond, Va.

Lewis H. Warren, Sr., 43, was in bed with the flu and died from suffocation, fire officials in Richmond said. The cause of the blaze was not immediately determined.

The victim, employed by the Virginia Employment Commission in Richmond, was alone at home when the fire started.

Born in Harrington, he was a graduate of Harrington High School in 1943 and the University of North Carolina in 1949. He was an Army veteran of World War II.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jean W. Warren; two children by a previous marriage, Lewis H. Jr., and Miss Dorothy L. Warren, both of Greensboro, N. C.; his mother, Mrs. M. Viola Warren, of Harrington; a sister, Mrs. Phyllis A. Bodenstein of Savannah, Ga., and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Laura M. Handley, of Preston, Md.

Services will be Friday afternoon at 1 at the McKnatt Funeral Home, Harrington, where friends may call an hour before the services. Interment will be in Hollywood Cemetery, Rev. John Edward Jones, officiating.

Fire Causes Early Move To New Home

A family of 11 made a premature move to a new home Tuesday when the two-story frame house they were living in was almost destroyed by fire.

The fire at the home of Lonnie Johnson, a road builder, was discovered about 10 a.m., and finally extinguished about four hours later.

No one was at home at the time. Marvin Smith, chief of the Farmington Volunteer Fire Company, said the family is moving into a new home they were building, although it was still without heat and electricity. Neighbors were trying to find a gas heater for the family to use temporarily, he said.

"Everything was lost in the fire," he said.

Eight of the children were in school, Smith said. Johnson had the baby with him and the mother was at work, he said.

Both the Farmington and the Greenwood fire companies responded to the alarm.

Firemen Receive Year's Second False Alarm

Harrington received the year's second false alarm Thursday afternoon, Jan. 11, about 4 o'clock. It has not been learned who pulled the alarm. The previous false alarm was believed made by a small boy seen leaving the scene.

Harrington and Milford firemen assisted the Houston Fire Company late Saturday evening when a barn was burned on the farm of Douglas Fry between Houston and Milford. A calf and some feed were also lost.

Wednesday evening the firemen answered a call to the residence of Emil Adams, Commerce Street, where there was a fire caused by a washing-machine motor.

Federation Head Describes Activities and Preventives On Civil Disturbances

A 5 foot-1 inch ball of fire spoke at length at a covered-dish supper of the Ninth District Democratic Club Monday night at Farmington Fire House.

Mrs. Mary Doto belied the often mispronunciation of her name, "Dodo" ("Dead as a dodo bird") and kept the audience awake with a description of her activities as president of the Delaware Federation of Democratic Clubs and preventive measures taken by Gov. Terry to prevent civil riots in Wilmington.

The latter information, printed here for the first time, was particularly interesting. Mrs. Doto, told of late July when Gov. Terry signed a State of Emergency Bill when there were rumors of approaching civil riots in Wilmington.

Living near a Negro neighborhood, she was warned she and her two blonde daughters should seek safety. "We moved out of the city for 11 days," she said.

Precautions against riot, especially on Market Street, Wilmington, were commented on. Police were hidden in trucks, on tops of buildings; guardsmen concealed in covered trucks. "Few persons were on the street," she said, "and girls going to lunch, ducked their heads and ran swiftly." Helicopters flew over the area. "God bless Gov. Terry," she emphasized.

Mrs. Doto is in charge of the state executive office in Farmers Bank Building, Wilmington. She told of trying times when civil demonstrators were in her office, in the hallway. These, were finally ejected by police.

Getting back to her activities in the federation, she said she was a clubwoman, not a politician, and that she had visited practically all the associated clubs in the state during her office. She also attended 11 picnics, using two cans of spray, and five Christmas parties.

Mrs. Doto, saying all counties and Wilmington have supported her, described her philosophy: "If you have any enthusiasm, it will rub off. Love every Democrat. I wanted to build up the federation and your clubs. Rome wasn't built in a day because the women weren't asked to do it."

"We need a lot of young blood but I'm also for resurrecting those old ones, too. We should all work together and train the young."

The club presented Mrs. Doto with earrings.

It was also announced Mr. and Mrs. Herb Rothermel, club members, would celebrate their 25th anniversary Tuesday.

Del. Hospitals Receive $30,000 Grant

The Association of Delaware Hospitals is one of six state units to receive a $30,000, three-year grant each from a national organization to speed development of educational programs for hospital personnel.

Richard R. Griffith, executive director of the Delaware Association, and Dr. Edwin L. Crosby, executive vice president of the Hospital Research and Educational Trust, announced the matching grant from HRET, an affiliate of the American Hospital Association.

Other states receiving grants were Florida, Iowa, Ohio, Virginia, and Wisconsin.

Two divisions of the University of Delaware, which cooperated in the preparation of the proposal for the HRET grant, are currently engaged in a survey to determine educational requirements for non-medical supervisory courses in the state's hospitals.

The university's Extension Division will offer the courses, which will be determined by priorities indicated by the survey conducted by the Division of Technical Services.

Griffith said, "The Association of Delaware Hospitals plans to retain a fulltime educational director to plan and carry out a continuing educational program to assist hospital administrators to maintain up-to-date management methods and techniques."

The new HRET programs, effective Feb. 1, are part of the Hospital Continuing Education Project which was established in 1964 with a grant from the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek, Mich.

Personnel Code Test Unnecessary

The first test of the new Kent County personnel code, which had been scheduled for later this month, will not occur after all, County Personnel Director Donald Jester said Monday.

Instead, he said, the Democratically controlled Kent County Board of Assessment will return Ralph C. Baynard, ousted board secretary, to his former job.

Baynard, a Republican, was dismissed from his job Dec. 11 — the day county Democrats returned to power on the assessment board. His dismissal resulted from a motion by Harold W. Powell, Democratic assessor, who was returned to the board with the aid of a State Supreme Court decision and a Superior Court order that same day.

Jester said Monday the Board of Assessment backed down on its decision to oust Baynard because of a previous Kent County Levy Court decision which froze all county employees' jobs until they could be classified by the Personnel Commission.

Baynard's job was frozen prior to his dismissal, Jester explained. Last month, Jester said the county personnel board would schedule a hearing this month on what he termed Baynard's illegal dismissal unless he was reinstated to his job.

Mrs. Barbara Boyer, deed clerk and a Democrat, has served as acting board of assessment secretary during the period Baynard was dismissed from his job.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

Food prices are headed for the escalator. Fresh produce is heading that way this week. At least 14 fresh vegetables are higher in price, but quality needs to be checked carefully. The vegetables included in this escalation are radishes, both carton and loose tomatoes, cauliflower, broccoli, cucumbers, green beans, carrots, potatoes, squash, celery hearts, lettuce, corn, and egg plant. The vegetables down in price are mushrooms and celery.

True, the majority of the price changes, both up and down, are only a penny or two. However, the outlook seems to be for steady increases as the year progresses. Fruit prices are mostly upward. Tangerines, Temple oranges, strawberries, avocados, pineapple, apples, bananas, and pears are from one to ten cents higher. There is still quite a lot of good quality grapefruit at local markets for average prices. Florida oranges are another good buy as prices remain steady. To offset these increases are a number of good buys available at both frozen and canned food departments. Check both types of foods and be sure to keep both your pantry shelves and your freezer well stocked for the bad weather that is sure to come.

Egg prices seem to be the exception on this week's market as prices decline. When buying eggs, be sure to check prices before buying, since higher prices do not always designate top quality. When checking the markets this week, I found Grade B large size eggs selling for the exact price as Grade A large size. There is only one reason for buying Grade B eggs, and that is because they are enough cheaper than Grade A to make them worthwhile for baking, scrambling, and the like.

While prices on beef, poultry and pork make these meats more economical, these purchases offer the best chances to save money on main dishes, such as a juicy roast or a sizzling skillet of fried chicken. When buying meats be sure to consider the cost per edible portion, not price per pound. For after all, it is what we can use that we are interested in, not the waste. Many times the more expensive cut is the cheapest in terms of usable meat.

As prices edge up this year, it will take a wise shopper to stay within a set budget, but before we get upset and demand an investigation, we should in all fairness check to see where the food dollar is going. It is interesting to know that the largest share is going for labor—money to pay the workers who are processing, transporting, wholesaling, and retailing foods, not to the middleman or the farmer.

WEDNESDAY— 7:30 p.m. Healing service. THURSDAY— 7:30 p.m. Vestry meeting. SATURDAY, Jan. 27— 7:30 p.m. Canteen Dance.

It will be notified from the calendar that the 183rd Diocesan Convention takes place this week. The host church is St. Alban's which is located in Brandywine Hundred, a suburb of Wilmington. St. Stephen's is represented by Messrs. Robert Creadick and Carrington Burgess, with William Smith as alternate. Actually Mr. Burgess, also an elected alternate for this year is serving as a voting delegate in the absence of George Thompson, who will not be able to attend. The convention will convene on Tuesday afternoon and will end around noon on Wednesday. The convention of the Episcopal Churchwomen will meet on Wednesday morning. There will be a convention banquet on Tuesday evening at the DuPont Country Club at 7 p.m. and a combined convention and Episcopal Churchwomen luncheon on Wednesday after the morning sessions.

The congregation and friends of St. Stephen's are reminded that Bishop Mosley will be here February 4, at the 10:45 a.m. service of Divine Worship at which time he will confirm a class of 11 confirmands.

On the table in the rear of the nave will be found tentative flower schedules for the coming year. Those who desire to place flowers in memory of or in honor of friends or loved ones during the year may find an open date on these schedules. They should fill out one form with the open date and get it to the parish office at their first convenience.

Everyone should be looking forward to Fun Night at St. Stephen's. It will be held on Saturday night, Feb. 17. It should be remembered however, that Fun Night does not mean a night of skits and comedy only but can include any feature which give anyone a chance to express his or her talent or hobby. In other words it is sort of a talent night as well as a fun night with major emphasis on fun. Everyone is urged to be preparing for this affair.

The St. Stephen's Librarian, Mrs. Carrington Burgess, has announced that there are now 350 books in the St. Stephen's library, including some 35 or so books which have been placed there since the last announcement. These are for people of every age and are both biography and autobiography, documentary, adventure, historical, art, science, counsel, fiction, theological, devotional and humor. The congregation and friends of the church are invited to look through both new and old editions and are urged to sign books out.

Advance notice is given to all adult and senior high school youth members of the church that there will be here at St. Stephen's beginning with January 29, a School of Prayer, conducted by Mrs. Shy Mackes of Dover. While this is put on by the Women of St. Stephen's it is no more a thing only for women than prayer itself is only for women. Last year Asbury Church here put on a similar school of prayer with several people of St. Stephen's attending. There were quite a few men present at every session and a gratifying number of members from both Asbury and Trinity. The congregation will be interested to know that the Rev. John Edward Jones of Asbury thought enough of the outcome of his church's school of prayer to say that he is planning to run advance notice in his bulletin this week urging his own people to attend the school of prayer here at St. Stephen's. It is hoped that members of other churches in the community will attend also.

Surely this is important enough for every thinking Christian to arrange his calendar so that he can be in attendance. The sessions will last for five Monday nights. Certainly this is more important than our favorite television show, our civic activities, a dance or dancing classes if they were available. Also surely we realize that we cannot feel very much at home with our Lord until we have learned to be with him in prayer. Perhaps this is one of the reasons why so many of us have inward problems. The vicar prays earnestly that this little note will move many adult men and women and many senior high youth to participate.

Advanced Military Study Way of Life For Guardsmen

Advanced military study is becoming a way of life for most Delaware Army National Guardsmen.

In addition to regular training with their units, hundreds of Delaware Guardsmen are attending a variety of formal military schools appropriate to their rank.

Thirty-one officers, in grades from captain to lieutenant colonel, are pursuing the Command and General Staff College course offered by the Wilmington U. S. Army Reserve School. This is a five-year course, including two-week active duty sessions each summer, which parallels the resident course given at Fort Leavenworth.

Twenty-one other Guard officers in ranks from captain to general — almost ten per cent of the Delaware Guard's officer strength — are already graduates of the Command and General Staff College.

Forty-seven officers, in grades from first lieutenant to major, are taking the advanced officer course of their appropriate branch school—23 through the local U.S.A.R. School, 24 others through extension courses. Almost half of all Delaware Guard officers have already completed their advanced branch school, either through a four-to-five month active duty resident course, or through non-resident instruction over a period of three to four years.

Of the Guard's second and first lieutenants who have not yet begun higher level courses, 34 have completed their branch orientation course through either resident or non-resident programs, and 28 more are currently enrolled.

At the state's own Delaware National Guard Academy, 23 enlisted men are enrolled in the academy's 12th year-long officer candidate school. Sixty senior non-commissioned officers just began study in the academy's third four-month course for non-coms. In February, 37 enlisted and warrant officer maintenance specialists will begin a special course at the academy.

In addition to all the Guardsmen studying in classrooms, 350 enlisted men are enrolled in extension courses related to their own specialties, and each year about 40 others go to active army schools for advanced courses lasting one to ten months.

DARC Gets Good Report

The Sussex Chapter of the Delaware Association for Retarded Children was addressed by Guion Miller of Wilmington at the January meeting. Mr. Miller is executive director of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Delaware. He was assisted by Harold Cook, director of the Delaware Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center, at Georgetown, and by Donald Gaines, of Seaford, Assistant Director of Fairlee Manor Camp. The camp is operated by the Easter Seal Society.

Mr. Miller discussed the results of experimental inclusion of the mentally retarded in the Easter Seal rehabilitation program. He stated that, based on the experience of the past year, many of the methods and facilities used in the rehabilitation of the physically handicapped seem to be applicable as well to the development and training of the mentally retarded. He pointed out also that the physically handicapped and the mentally retarded seemed to get along well together. These results have encouraged future work along this line.

Dept. of Navy Asks Aid From State Dev. Dept.

The Department of the Navy has asked the aid of the State Development Department in their search for suppliers for a variety of items, Samuel L. Shipley, Department Director, has announced.

In a letter to Mr. Shipley, Morris Quastal, Special Assistant for Small Business and Economic Utilization, said, "The Navy has revised its listings of items for which it needs additional suppliers in its continuing efforts to increase awards to small business and labor surplus area concerns."

In the past, relatively few industries have competed for contract awards for the items listed. In some cases, this was due to a high set-up investment and the need for specialized facilities or trained workmen. However, according to Mr. Shipley, there are Delaware firms which could produce these items and it is hoped that they will compete for the contracts.

Among those items listed are 26-foot plastic personnel boats, radio sets, detonators, sectional steel pontoons, air conditioners, and practice bombs. The supplies listed are needed in quantities of up to 720,000.

Mr. Shipley urged interested firms to contact the State Development Department, 45 The Green, Dover, Delaware 19901, for a complete list and additional information.

Sewing Tips Feature of U's Farm - Home Week

From the first simple apron you ever sewed to the last high-fashion suit, you aimed for the professional look. When you sew, do friends know immediately you made it or do they ask, "Where did you buy it?" That's the difference between the professional and the amateurish appearance.

If your swing seems amateurish, tips from a professional will help. Fashion designers and sewing specialists will be on hand with just that vital advice at the University of Delaware's Sewing Spree, Tuesday, Jan. 30, at the University's Student Center. The day long-meeting will be a feature of the annual Farm and Home Week.

Mary Johnson, sewing editor for Woman's Day magazine, will describe "How to Achieve the Professional Touch" in the morning general session at 9:30 a.m. The author of several sewing books and the founder of the Mary Johnson Fashion School, Miss Johnson will give the tips you need to turn out a home-sewn fashion wardrobe.

No matter how well-made the dress, if it doesn't fit properly, it won't look good. New pattern sizes are designed to help you make a better fitting garment. To explain these new sizes and help with your fitting problems, Miss Helen Wright, Simplicity Pattern Co., will describe "Fitting for Fashion" at 10:30 a.m.

She will also be available to discuss individual fitting problems. New fashions and new fabrics will be featured in one of a series of four sewing classes at the Sewing Spree. Miss Beth Peterson, home economist with E. I. DuPont de Nemours, will give a fabric and fashion forecast. Miss Joan Callahan, Pellon Corporation, will have a class on "Working with Stripes and Other New Fabrics."

Additional classes will feature Miss Eva Bouchard, Singer Sewing Machine Co., on "Get the Most From Your Sewing Machine" and Miss Carolyn Chesarek, Coats and Clark, Inc., with "New Zipper Techniques."

Lunch will be available at $1.25. For reservations, send the money to University Extension, 79 Amstel Ave., University of Delaware, Newark, Del. 19711.

By W. Cliff Miller SING ME A SONG TODAY

Sing me a song today that will rest me, A love song, or soft lullaby,

Call back the memories of woodlands Of days that we played by the stream,

Only call back the days that we wandered, Through soft shady nooks in the dell,

It seems but a few steps back yonder, On yesterday's roadway so dear.

Next Monday, Jan. 22nd, from one to three p.m., we oldsters are planning on getting together at the Senior Center.

Nazarene Church To Be Remodeled

The Church of the Nazarene of Harrington announces a major remodeling of their facilities. The congregation voted in October to borrow sufficient funds to provide for the project. Contracts for the work were extended on November 1 and construction was begun on November 6.

The following is a list of improvements being made: aluminum siding on the exterior, new vestibule, suspended ceiling in interior, all interior walls paneled with maple paneling, new heating system, new restrooms, new wiring and light fixtures, tile floors in main auditorium and Sunday School annex, new windows in main auditorium and storm windows on annex, new folding wood partitions between the main auditorium and the annex, new carpet on the platform, the choir area, and down the aisles; refinishing of all pews and pulpit furniture.

Contractors for the work have been: Eastern Shore Tile Setters, General Construction; Milford Plumbing and Heating, heating system and restrooms; and Louis H. Collison & Sons, Pella folding wood partitions.

The entire project is estimated to cost $13,000. Much of the work has also been donated by members of the congregation. The building committee was made up of: Mr. Fred G. Gustafson, Sr. and Mr. Fred G. Gustafson, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Darling, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jump, Sr.

The church has also agreed to purchase the Melvin Wyatt property at 107-109 Mechanic Street, for use as a parsonage. When the pastor's family have moved into the new parsonage, the old one will then be demolished.

The congregation is also very happy to announce that the balance of its mortgage on the parking lot at the corner of Dorman and Mechanic Streets has been paid in full. This property was purchased for the church in 1960.

ROTC Head Presented Award

Col. Edward G. Allen, head of the University of Delaware's ROTC program for more than five years, was recently presented with the nation's second highest non-combat award.

Maj. Gen. John C. F. Tilson III, deputy commanding general of the U. S. First Army, pinned the Legion of Merit on Col. Allen this morning (Friday, Jan. 19) in a brief ceremony in the office of Dr. John W. Shirley, acting president of the university.

Col. Allen was cited for "vastly improving the morale, esprit de corps, and quality of the entire cadet corps."

Following his retirement from the Army in November, Col. Allen became the university's director of financial aid. He had been in active service for more than 27 years, the last five as professor of military science at the university.

He received a bachelor of science degree from the University of Vermont, his native state, in 1936, and four years later entered the Army's infantry school at Ft. Benning, Ga.

His service with infantry forces in two wars earned him the Silver Star, Bronze Star with cluster, Purple Heart, Combat Infantry Badge with star, and campaign and service medals with eight battle stars.

During a four-year assignment in the Office of Civil Affairs, Col. Allen was one of three military members of a 13-man President-appointed task force which made recommendations on aid to the Ryuku Islands.

Col. Allen is married to the former Virginia G. Stallone and resides at 44 The Horseshoe, Covered Bridge Farms, Newark. He is the father of Mrs. H. Douglas Vess of Franklin, Va., and Edward G. Allen, II, a recent graduate of Amherst College.

The citation which accompanied the Legion of Merit read: "The President of the United States of America, authorized by Act of Congress, July 20, 1942, has awarded the Legion of Merit to Colonel Edward G. Allen, United States Army for exceptionally meritorious conduct in the performance of outstanding services."

"Col. Allen distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious service as professor of military science, University of Delaware, from August 1962 to October 1967. Col. Allen consistently demonstrated professional competence, sound judgment, and unusually skillful and resourceful direction in revitalizing and improving the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at the university."

Particularly praiseworthy and indicative of his unique talent was the firm and professional manner he maintained in all contacts with students and faculty. Col. Allen's primary purpose was to continually present the ROTC program and the United States Army to the university and the general public in a most favorable light.

He strongly encouraged the instructor group personnel and the ROTC cadets to participate to the fullest in all campus activities. Col. Allen conducted a successful campaign to maintain and increase the capabilities of the Army ROTC at the University of Delaware.

ski said. In other words, he noted, a substance when analyzed promises a high amount of mechanical strength, but in actual performance falls far short.

"If this gap could be filled, immense reserves of mechanical energy in materials would be detected. On a smaller scale, they could be compared with the reserves of the well-explored nuclear energy," Dr. Nowinski said.

The third phase of the research project concerns the behavior of materials in strong electromagnetic fields. "This is important in detection of earthquakes and underground explosions, in ultrasonics, and in space travel when vehicles pass through strong electromagnetic zones," Prof. Nowinski said.

The two previous NSF grants to support Prof. Nowinski's research have led to the publication of some 30 research reports in national and international periodicals, some of them presented at professional meetings throughout the world.

Born in Poiana, Prof. Nowinski joined the University of Delaware faculty in 1961. He received his education in Warsaw, and taught at the Johns Hopkins University, the University of Wisconsin, and the University of Texas before moving to Delaware.

Author of nearly 150 research papers and articles, Dr. Nowinski belongs to the New York Academy of Science, the American Mathematical Society, Sigma Xi, the Society for Natural Philosophy, and the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

U. of D. Faculty Approves Recommendations

The faculty of the University of Delaware voted overwhelmingly Monday to accept the recommendations of its Committee on Courses and Curricula for undergraduate students in military science courses.

The optional policy will become effective in September, but students already enrolled at the university will be required to complete one or two years in the basic course, depending upon their date of matriculation.

Change in the military science requirement, which has been considered twice by faculty committees since 1964, apparently will bring to an end student agitation for voluntary rather than mandatory ROTC. Student discontent became pronounced this fall and the disruption of a military science class drill led to a series of disorders that troubled the university community for more than six weeks.

Specific recommendations by the Committee on Courses and Curricula approved by the general faculty were: 1. That enrollment in military science courses be optional (rather than compulsory) for students matriculating at the university in the summer or fall of 1968 and thereafter.

2. That all male students who matriculated at the university prior to the summer of 1967, unless exempted through procedures currently in practice, be required to complete satisfactorily two years of the basic course in military science.

3. That male students who matriculated in the university in the summer or fall of 1967, or in February of 1968, be required to complete satisfactorily one year of the basic course in military science.

4. That entering freshmen, prior to registration, be provided advisement regarding their military obligations, including the alternatives available to them for fulfilling these obligations.

5. That the four credit hours of basic military science be accepted by all colleges as counting in the total credit hour requirements for the baccalaureate degree.

When conversion to a voluntary program was first studied by university officials in 1964, it was feared that Delaware would not be able to meet its minimal requirements established through contract with the Army. These include enrollment of at least 100 freshmen each year and the graduation of at least 25 commissioned officers annually.

The rapid growth of enrollments in the last four years makes it feasible to establish the voluntary program at this time, a university spokesman said. Dr. John E. Worthen, acting chairman of the Committee on Courses and Curricula, reporting on the status of the military science program, said that ROTC "should be conducted in such a way that it remains a viable program and one that is sufficiently attractive that an adequate number of students will voluntarily elect the basic course."

Dr. Worthen said it was the opinion of his committee that the university's basic course, although it probably will have smaller enrollments in the future, will be stronger. It has been the experience of other institutions of similar size, such as the University of Rhode Island, that higher morale and interest have been demonstrated by volunteer participants.

Committee members called for the development of an information and recruiting program by the Military Science Department; the offering of appropriate credit for military science courses; a continuing evaluation of courses to keep them relevant, meaningful and interesting; and University-wide support of the voluntary program.

FENCE TALK
with George K. Vapaa

Imitation milk, filled-milk, non dairy food—call it what you will. It represents the newest threat to the fluid milk market. And it's time to be asking some questions. First of all, can you tell the difference by taste and appearance? Some of these imitation products will fool you. Especially the one which uses skim milk as the only portion which came out of a cow. Coconut oil is usually the source of fat—definitely not butter fat.

Will we see something like the butter - oleo hallel again - between whole milk and the imitation product? Or will whole milk and the imitation be blended just as we buy and pay a premium for high test gasoline? Can the imitation product eliminate the dairy business? No, but I'm prejudiced. Our family still prefers butter over oleo.

Will whole milk ever be produced cheaper than the imitation product? It's bucking history, but I have hopes. Animal fats and animal protein has always been more expensive to produce than vegetable oils or vegetable protein. Most animal foods are the end product of animal production which are fed crops to grow. I have hopes that mechanized animal production will one day be cheaper than mechanized crop culture. Why? Over the world, the healthiest farm economies are built on animal enterprises. We may yet reach a time when the roughage feeds — the hays, silages and pastures — will be cheaper to grow, or at least not as much income per acre as some of the feed grains, fruit or vegetable crops.

We come close with alfalfa, which is a high yielding, perennial, hay crop. Hay making is still a tedious, dirty job with too much hand labor. But the day will come when one man with a machine of good capacity will cut, cure, perhaps pelletize, and then auger a top quality product into a storage bin and eventually into an animal. Broiler feed efficiency now permits a gain of a pound of broiler on two pounds of feed. Compare this with 20 years ago when it took four pounds of feed to give a pound of gain. We may expect similar results in time from other meat animals.

Milk cows and people go together. In general, milk is produced close to market. Delaware ranks 15th among states in number of cows per square mile. States ahead of us include most of New England, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Maryland.

Thumb rule on pig profits: It takes the first six weaned pigs in a litter to pay your cash costs. The seventh pig saved pays your wages. The eighth pig is your profit.

We had a cool summer in 1967. Corn need hot weather to develop fully. This is Dr. William Mitchell's reason why farmers didn't get as much corn as they hoped for, even the yields were quite good. He went on to say that neither narrow rows nor heavy populations always give top yields. Tests on 50 varieties in 1967 show that any given variety may perform very differently from another. We do know that where plant population was jumped from 14,000 to 19,000 plants per acre in one test, stalk breakage increased 65% in narrow rows.

Slush, snow and rain tracked in on the carpeting can cause serious damage if not attended to immediately, so it's a good idea to remove wet shoes and boots before entering a carpeted area. Even if the bottoms have been wiped off on a door mat, water can drip down from the sides. If the water is allowed to soak through to the backing, a brown stain may appear. And, once the stain has formed it is almost impossible for even a professional to remove it.

If snow or water is tracked in, blot up the area immediately with white, clean absorbent material. Next, place a 1/2 inch thickness of absorbent material or tissues over the area and weight down with books for six to eight hours. This procedure will prevent unsightly brown stains from occurring.

Another common source of damage to carpet during the winter is salt and ashes spread on slippery sidewalks. As salt attracts moisture, it may keep the carpeting damp and also cause brown stains. And if allowed to remain damp it may cause mildewing. Ashes are even more dangerous in that they are almost always alkaline and thus most harmful to dyes. Scatter rugs at all entrances and frequent vacuuming are the best preventatives.

To prevent permanent damage, rugs and carpets should be given a professional cleaning as soon as possible after winter soiling.

Sat., Jan. 20, 4-H members will compete in their 4-H Public Speaking Contest. The event will start at 7:30 p.m. at the new Caesar Rodney High School. I do hope parents will attend. It is difficult to keep up with ones children but it is so important for parents to show their interest and support. Parental interest today can mean fewer problems tomorrow. And it's fun to hear what our 4-H'ers have to say. The delightful, originality of the nine year old to the convictions of our young adults reminds one that our youth are aware of today's world. Do plan to come — we'd like to have you there.

Farm and Home Week will be held January 30, 31 and February 1st. Interested in clothing? The Tuesday program is one not to miss. Topics will cover the Professional Touch, Fitting for Fashion, in the general session with specific class sections later in the day. 4-H leaders will have their program on Wednesday with a section on Record Books in the morning and Publicity in the afternoon. Two topics that are always a 4-H interest.

It's good to know 4-H clubs such as the Harrington Sunshine are already practicing for our February Talent Show. It's not too early for individuals and clubs to start getting ready for this event. You'll need to be ready early as we plan to have a rehearsal about two weeks before the show. This will give you a chance to become familiar with the facilities and for the 4-H office to know your specific needs. 4-H provides a world of opportunity for youth.

Discover Wonderful Del.

There's a little room upstairs at the Delaware State Museum that every Delawarean should discover. It commemorates a person who was a wonder of wonderful Delaware in the proudest sense — the famed astronomer, Annie Jump Cannon.

In these days when the education of women has become commonplace, and women make contributions in all the professions, it's hard to realize what a pioneer she was. Annie Jump Cannon was born, in 1863, in the house that still stands at 34 S. State Street, Dover. She was the daughter of a prosperous shipbuilder who was also a member of the State Legislature at the time of the Civil War. Growing up in Dover, her love for the stars came early, for her mother taught her little daughter what she had learned of astronomy at school in Philadelphia. Young Annie used to climb through an attic trap-door to the roof of the Dover house and spend evening hours gazing at the stars. Among her papers is an account of starlit skies at Kitt's Hummock, where the family had a summer cabin.

She attended the Dover Public Schools, graduated from Wesley College (then called "Wilmington Conference Academy"), and in 1885 entered Wellesley College — one of the first Dover girls to go to college.

After graduating from Wellesley she began work at the Harvard College Observatory in Cambridge, Mass. Her work on the Henry Draper Catalogues, for which she identified nearly 400,000 stellar bodies, made her famous. The catalogues, and the system she developed for classifying stellar spectra, are used the world over.

Awards and honors followed, and she was still a pioneer, for she became the first woman honorary member of the Royal Astronomical Society of Great Britain. In 1925 Oxford University made her a Doctor of Science — the first woman to be so honored by Oxford, and in 1931 she was the first woman to receive the Henry Draper Gold Medal from the National Academy of Science. She also received honorary degrees from the University of Groningen (Holland), Wellesley College, Oglethorpe University, Mount Holyoke, and the University of Delaware.

For many years at Harvard she held the William Cranch Bond Chair in Astronomy, and was Curator of Astronomical Photographs. She died in Boston in 1941.

In 1963, on the anniversary of her birth, Wesley College commemorated it most famous graduate by awarding Annie Jump Cannon Centennial Medals to seven outstanding women. The little room at the Delaware State Museum display Annie Jump Cannon's academic honors and diplomas, and a series of articles tells the story of her life. It's a place to stop and think of this brilliant pioneering woman — a true wonder of wonderful Delaware.

The Delaware State Museum, on South Governor's Avenue in Dover, is open Tuesdays through Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., and on Sundays from 2 to 5 p.m.

University Receives Wildlife Collection

The University of Delaware has recently acquired a large collection of scientific specimens, mostly from the Delmarva peninsula, according to Dr. Dale F. Bray, chairman of the University's department of entomology and applied ecology.

The collection, which has been given to the University by the Society of Natural History of Delaware, will be used primarily for reference and research purposes. It contains specimens of plant, animal and bird life gathered in 19th century Delaware. Arrangements for the gift were made through the Department of Entomology and Applied Ecology and the College of Agricultural Sciences.

Bray points out that many of the specimens in the collection, such as the extinct passenger pigeon, are extremely valuable. The collection also includes many of the original specimens of Taitnall's definite study of the native plants of Delaware.

"A collection such as this serves as a strong foundation on which the University can base its future collections," says Dr. E. Paul Catts, assistant professor of entomology and a member of the Society's board of directors. "This material will greatly extend the value of our own collection by providing a background of historical specimens in which we can study changes in various lifeforms or introductions which have occurred in Delaware's wildlife."

Catts added that many of the wildlife specimens are mounted in lifelike positions. "We hope to put these on display here at the University as soon as possible," he said.

Should Your Paper Name Juvenile Lawbreakers?

For a good many years newspaper editors and publishers have studied the question of whether they should or should not print the names of youths who run afoul of the law. Some do and some do not. Even within the two schools of thought on the subject there are differences of opinion as to why one or the other course of action should be followed.

Among those who do not favor printing the names, for instance, you will hear it argued that it will brand the culprit as a law violator and could have a bad effect on his future. Those using this argument probably are unaware that most companies check hometown police records before hiring new men. Another argument against names is not so concerned about the effect on the youth, as they are about embarrassing his family. Still another argues that publicity regarding law violation enhances the culprit's prestige among his companions.

On the other hand there are those who contend that the youths shun such publicity and would be more careful about their conduct if they knew their names were to be used in reporting the escapades. It is also argued that parents are often not aware of their children's misconduct and that printing of names in connection with law violations would alert them to the fact their youngsters could be heading for serious trouble. It is not at all uncommon for parents to disavow any knowledge of law violation by their child, even though the youth may have a lengthy police record.

The News-Herald has not heretofore printed names of youthful offenders unless the crime is an extremely serious one. But we are beginning to have doubts about the wisdom of our policy, especially after last week's false fire alarm episode. The names of three of those involved have been withheld previously in connection with escapades. It has started us to wonder just whom we are serving with our policy. Certainly it wasn't the large number of people who scrambled out of bed at midnight and risked accidents on slick streets to rush down to what had all the earmarks of being a major fire. —Italy (Tex.) News-Herald

Newspaper Taken For Granted

Sat in church the other day and heard the minister extoll radio and TV stations in metropolitan areas for donating free time to shows designed to tell the story of a particular project the church was backing.
As we understood it the church put up the money to produce the two shows, radio and TV, and the stations then donated millions of dollars worth of time for them to be aired.
All of which was most commendable.
Thought which lurked in the corner of our mind was the millions of dollars worth of space donated to all church activities, not just this particular one, by the newspapers of the country, most of which, unfortunately, goes unused.
We don't blame the ministry for singing the praises of TV and radio on the few occasions they donate some time for a church-oriented cause.
And we don't blame TV and radio themselves for spelling out on behalf of an otherwise uninformed clergy the dollar value of the time donated.
We do blame ourselves, and the other publishers of the nation, for not pointing out to the clergy (and our other readers as well) the day to day, week to week job we do on behalf of churches and other worthwhile activities.
Problem is we're taken for granted, and, in too many instances, we're content to be so.
How lost this community, or any other community would be without its newspaper can be graphically seen in the complete dependence upon the newspaper for information about this one, vital aspect of our lives alone, church and church related activities.

In the normal course of a week we devote at least a page and a half to such news. This would include, in addition to the church notes themselves, items about church board meetings, women's groups meetings, and the like, and at our rates would be worth $250.

Then come the holidays, Christmas, Easter, and other special occasions, when the total would run well over two or three pages.
Don't get us wrong.
We're delighted to carry this news. Delighted that our readers think to provide us with it. Delighted that the clergy has come to depend upon us for week to week reporting.
Point we're making here is that this is just another of those "good news" functions of a weekly or daily newspaper, a function which is too often taken for granted and a function which points up the dependency of a community upon its newspaper.

When local businessmen, who after all pay the bill for support of a newspaper in the community, advertise in the paper they help to make all of these functions possible.
When they choose to spend their advertising dollar in other media, direct mail, radio, TV, they help to undermine the newspaper, may someday see the town lose its paper and all the good that it does. — Fayette County Union, West Union, Iowa.

Dairy Outlook Is Improving
Delaware dairymen face a promising outlook throughout 1968 and into the 1970's, according to Dr. W. R. Hesselstine, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware.
Speaking at the opening session of the University's winter dairy series January 10, Hesselstine predicted a rapid expansion of the national economy in the 1970's with aggressive, efficient dairymen doing well.
The 1970's will be years of great expansion for the national economy. However, a large percentage of the dairymen will not realize that the boom is on, he said. These people will produce only enough to stay in business and will be concerned about increased costs, labor shortages and the need for higher farm prices.
Capital, farms and livestock will move into the hands of the better managers; dairymen must learn better management techniques to take advantage of the national growth.
For 1968, Hesselstine advised dairymen not to be afraid of progress and change. "Take advantage of it," he said. Dairymen should use their knowledge and capital to make as much money as they can.
In the long run, those producers who gear their operations to a high degree of efficiency for the 1970's will come out on top. The only way to remain in business is to be an efficient producer.
Hesselstine also predicted that prices for all classes of milk would probably increase by 1970 and suggested that support prices may rise in mid-1968.

DMB Has First 15,000,000 Vehicle Year

The Delaware Memorial Bridge had its first 15,000,000-vehicle year in 1967.
Opened to the public in 1951, the span, operated by the Delaware River and Bay Authority, carried 15,131,298 vehicles in 1967, an increase of 338,636, or 2.3 per cent.
William J. Miller, Jr., Authority director, pointed out that when the second bridge, now under construction, was begun in 1964 traffic engineers estimated that the 15,000,000 total would not be reached until 1971. The 1967 mark is four to five years ahead of estimates.
"The continued traffic growth highly indicates the need for the second bridge structure now nearly 90 percent completed and scheduled for opening early this summer," said Mr. Miller.
"The accelerated traffic volumes," Mr. Miller said, "emphasize the wisdom of the bi-state agency in proceeding with the twin-span construction."

Miller also pointed out that completion of the second bridge will not necessarily solve the immediate traffic problems because before full traffic relief can be provided it will be necessary to remove the center strip from the first bridge. This will make it possible for four lanes of traffic to move smoothly on each bridge with the original span taking traffic to New Jersey and the new one bringing it to Delaware.
Reviewing toll collections for the calendar year, T. C. Bright, general manager of the bridge, said they were, like the traffic, the highest for any year, totaling $9,237,919.95.
This is an increase of $261,703.85, or 2.9 per cent, compared with the $8,976,216.10 total for 1966.

The reason that the percentage increase in tolls was somewhat higher than that for traffic was found in the fact that more heavy vehicles, particularly large trucks, used the span, upping the average toll paid.
Since the Delaware Memorial Bridge was opened on Aug. 16, 1961, some 172,148,747 vehicles have crossed it.

Kent Soil & Water Conservation District Notes

Now is one of the best times of year to make plans for correcting poorly drained crop field or bothersome pot hole, says Frederick T. Mott, Work Unit Conservationist, Soil Conservation Service.
With crops off the fields and leaves off the trees, Soil Conservation Service technicians can do an excellent job in obtaining surveys needed by the farmer in making his drainage plans.
Soil Conservation Service technical assistance is made available without charge to Kent County farmers through their Soil & Water Conservation District. Upon request to the District, these conservation technicians will help any farmer develop and carry out drainage, or other soil conservation practices. These conservation technicians work directly with the farmer and find winter planning more advantageous for him.

She is survived by her husband, James Hutson; four daughters, Mrs. Ruth Bullock, Mrs. Gladys Hurd and Mrs. Doris Dell, all of Harrington; and Mrs. Pearl Davidson, of Milford; a son, Harold Melvin of Harrington; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Morris, of Felton and Mrs. Louise Greer, of Harrington; four brothers, William Donophan, of Hartly; Clifford Donophan, of Smyrna; Charles Donophan, of Felton, and Alvin Donophan of Harod Harbor, Md.; 10 grandchildren and a great-grandchild.

Eugene P. Brasher Improves Varieties of Vegetables

When you sit down to your next fine meal, you may owe a word of thanks to a University of Delaware professor as well as to the chef.
Eugene P. Brasher, chairman and professor of horticulture at Delaware, has spent nearly 30 years developing new and improved varieties of vegetables.
Products that are sweeter, more disease resistant, more attractive in shape and color and greater in yield are the results of his patience and scientific know-how.
Prof. Brasher's most recent breeding experiment has led to the development of the Hi-Red Garden beet. This high-quality beet was produced from crosses between a long-season, highly-colored unnamed beet reproduced for generations by an Indiana family and a commercial variety, Perfected Detroit. One of the progenies from this cross was backcrossed with Perfected Detroit producing Deepest Red which was backcrossed with Perfected Detroit again. It took nearly 23 years of selective breeding and testing before Hi-Red was named and released to seed companies for production.
Hi-Red, much superior to common varieties grown today, has a sugar content varying from 6 to 10 per cent. Its color is a rich, deep red, a particularly desirable quality to processors using beet juice to make food palatable and colorful. The Campbell Soup Company found Hi-Red contained 61 per cent more pigment than the average of 21 other varieties tested. Company officials were anxious to make the seed available because they rely on beets to give V 8 Juice its bright hue.
Professor Brasher also is responsible for developing the Delaware Belle pepper, the Delsher tomato and the Golden Perfection cantaloupe. He is now working on a new variety of tomato for mechanical harvesting which can be harvested in a once-over operation.
The Delaware Belle pepper has already been a nationwide commercial success, but the Delsher tomato, which combines the names of the state and the horticulturist, has become most popular locally. Hybridization and selection programs leading to Delsher were begun in 1949. No other garden tomato plant has surpassed its productivity, quality, fruit size, color, length of producing season and resistance to common diseases such as Fusarium wilt. Individual test plants have produced over 30 pounds of tomatoes in a 90-day harvest period.
Professor Brasher's new tomato variety will have just the opposite characteristics of Delsher. Selecting a Canadian plant that bears its fruits in a short period of time, he crossed it with leading commercial varieties to obtain a productive plant that ripens most of its fruit at one time. The lack of farm laborers has created a need for a plant of this kind which can be mechanically harvested in a single operation.
Prof. Brasher's research in this area already has led to considerable success. On a test farm, 24 tons per acre were produced in a single harvest—a huge yield. But such results are not obtained overnight. The current project has been underway for 10 years!
Fortunately for commercial processors and food lovers everywhere, Prof. Brasher has an understanding wife. Not once in 30 years has she objected when her husband casually disclosed that he spent the day with a well-bred tomato.

Hospital Bills Continue to Increase

A Brookings Institution study predicts that average daily hospital costs of $100 are not far off. The study recommends state regulation as one way of combating this high cost of illness.
For almost 20 years hospital costs have been rising at a rate of from 7 to 8 per cent a year. In the last two years, however, this rate has doubled. It is this trend that caused the Brookings researchers to put the probable cost at $100 a day and recommend state regulation. We don't see how state regulation could have much effect on the rising cost of hospitalization. The surge in hospital costs stems from a threefold cause:
—Inflation has pushed the price of everything from mops to bedsheets upward.
—minimum-wage legislation, which for the first time included hospital workers last year, has fattened hospital payrolls.
—Medicare has jammed hospitals, throwing the supply of demand for hospital rooms way out of balance.

What can the states do about any of these causative factors? Nothing. Federal fiscal policies have given life to inflation. Federal law sets and enforces the minimum wage. Medicare is a child of Washington. The only way state regulation could affect rising hospitalization cost is to put the states in control of Washington. It doesn't sound like a bad idea, at that. — Dallas (Tex.) Morning News.

Farm and Home Week to Feature Bird Session

"Birds and Birding in Delaware," a discussion of the state's nesting and migrating birds and birds of prey for the non-expert, will be one of the highlights of the University of Delaware's Farm and Home Week.
The purpose of the program is to stimulate the average person's interest in nature, particularly in birds, says program chairman Dr. Thomas C. Maddux, poultry researcher at the University. He emphasized that the program, which will be Wed., Jan. 31 at 7:30 p.m. in the Agricultural Hall auditorium, is intended for the general public as well as for the devout naturalist.
Featured speakers at the program include Chandler S. Robbins, research biologist at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center and Dr. Maurice Brown, curator emeritus of the Hawk Mountain Sanctuary.
Robbins, a prominent lecturer and author of Birds of North America, will discuss birds in Delaware—an introduction to the identification of birds found in the area. Brown, a recognized expert on birds of prey, will discuss the role of these birds in the state.
Other speakers on the program include Robert E. Jones of the University of Delaware's department of entomology; John T. Linehan, research biologist for the United States Fish and Wildlife Service; and Winston Wayne, former president of the Delmarva Ornithological Society.
Jones will speak on nesting bird studies done by the University while Linehan will discuss migratory bird studies. Wayne

Garden Session Is Farm and Home Week Feature

One of the featured sessions of the 1968 Delaware Farm and Home Week will be "Garden Go Round," a program for the home gardener and plant enthusiast.
Gardeners attending the program will be given the opportunity to plant their own amaryllis or lily. All materials for the project will be furnished by the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences. Amaryllis will be potted at the morning session; planting a lily for home forcing will climax the afternoon program.
"Garden Go Round" will also feature discussion and demonstration of new materials and methods for next season. Among these are fertilizer in plastic bags which will not harm roots and may be used by plants over a three to five year period and spray materials in plastic bags that dissolve in water. Garden gadget and garden helper exhibits will include tree supports, plant ties and a house plant mister.
Several new plant varieties including cacti and succulents, begonias and double patience will be displayed. There will also be

The officers and ten typing members held their first work meeting, on Mon., Jan. 15, typing 1100 statements and envelopes, affixing stamps and stuffing the envelopes. A lot of work goes into an Association of this size.
January 15 being the birthday of the association's treasurer Donald Derrickson a refreshment period was held at the end of the evening work. A large birthday cake and ice cream were served.

Bridgeville Nips Felton, 85-78

Felton's Green Devil basketball team dropped a tight 85-78 verdict to Bridgeville Tuesday night.

It looks from this seat like Bridgeville could not have won this contest, if Felton's Roger Bradley had been healthy and in the lineup.

Al Horne (27) and Francis Johnson (20) had the hot hands for the Mustangs, Bob Dill scored 25, Chris Moore, 22, and Gene Palmer, 17, for the losers.

Foresters Lose to Bridgeville, Beat Dover Air

Greenwood High's basketball team split a pair of close contests, as they bowed 71-59 to undefeated Bridgeville and edged Dover Air High's Falcons 69-60.

Bridgeville's Mustangs led 20-15 after one quarter and 42-31 at halftime but Greenwood outscored them 17-11 in the third period to trail by only five points.

At Horne, who looks like a good bet for first team All-State honors, led the Mustangs with 30 points. For Greenwood Larry Hughes tallied 21, Steve Willey, 13, Frank Spence, 12, and Larry Wyatt, 10.

Twenty-three points by Frank Spence of Greenwood took high-game honors. Teammates Larry Wyatt canned 20, and Willey and Hamstead totaled 21 more.

Harrington Cagers Are Upset At Delmar

Harrington High's Lions picked the wrong night to come up with cold hands. After giving a good account of themselves against three of the Henlopen Conference's strongest clubs, after sinking 28 field goals against a strong Felton five, the Lions could cage only 13 against winless Delmar and bowed 50-41.

Burt Culver the basketball player-turned-wrestler - turned-basketballplayer, led the Wildcats with 20 points. John Winkler was high for Harrington with 16 markers. Bill Moore was next with 12.

Felton Cagers Down Harrington

The luck of the draw gave Harrington three of the Henlopen's strongest teams in a row to start this season's play. The result of this has given Harrington three straight losses, despite respectable performances each time.

We might take on St. Peter's, of New Castle; St. Peter and St. Paul, of Easton; Rock Hall, Mardela, Hebron, or some of those small Maryland schools between Salisbury and Ocean City.

At Felton Friday night, a loaded Green Devil unit grabbed a 24-12 first period edge but the Lions virtually matched the eventual victors basket-for-basket over the last three stanzas.

Felton outscored the Lions 38-28 in field goals. However, their marvelous performance at the foul line ended any Harrington hopes for victory. The Devils missed only two free throws of nineteen. Harrington's 20 of 31 was a very good effort but was nullified by Felton's deadly accuracy.

Chris Moore and Bob "Red" Dill with 32 and 27 points respectively paced the victors, with Buddy Sipple (15) and Howard Price (11) also in double figures.

For the Lions John Swain with 27 markers, Bill Moore with 21 and Nick Morris with 20 showed the way.

All-Star Football Game Nets $48,300

The mentally retarded children of Delaware received a belated holiday gift with the announcement by William H. Kelley, co-chairman of the Delaware All-Star Football Game, that the 1967 game had produced a net total of $48,300.

The net proceeds of the 12th annual game will be distributed to various agencies in support of the continuing program to help the mentally retarded of the state.

"In view of the inclement weather that existed until just before game time, the members of the All-Star Game Committee feel most gratified at the wonderful support given this cause by the people of Delaware", Mr. Kelley remarked.

The All-Star Game, which is sponsored by the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children, has now produced also $409,000 for the benefit of mentally retarded. These funds, allocated with the expert advice of such organizations as the Delaware Association for Retarded Children, have provided initial support of worthy new projects, as well as contributing on a continuing basis to such projects as the training of specialist teachers in Delaware, and the Research Fund of the National Association for Retarded Children.

Harrington Bowling League

Taylor & Messick finds themselves in a tight first place spot after Tuesday night. Kent Gas was up for the battle for first place and just barely missed upsetting the league leader. The fray Tuesday night saw Kent Gas take three games from Taylor & Messick as K. Layton led the pace with a grand 588 series.

D. Jones also aided the cause with a fine 215 game. A half game picked up earlier in the second third enabled Taylor & Messick to hang on for another week by that slim margin. With two weeks of bowling left in this third, they can't afford to lose any games if they wish to win this round.

Robbins Hardware is still in the thick of things as they picked up three more games to keep up with the pace setters. McKnatt Funeral Home was the victim this week, as Robbins Hardware came up with some fine balanced bowling. Could be that with nothing to worry about after winning the first third, the McKnatt team is just biding their time until the final playoff.

Acme and Penn. R.R. battled it out and when everything was finished, Acme found itself winner of three games. Neither team moved in the standings, but Acme could, if a team up on top should falter, walk away with the second third. This team will have to be regarded carefully and should not be taken for granted.

Lion Grapplers Beat Holy Cross, Bow to Smyrna

Tom Muehleisen's debut as Harrington High wrestling coach was a smashing success, as his Lions rolled to a 39-7 triumph at Holy Cross High School in Dover. The Crusaders could manage only a win and a draw in the 12 weight classes.

One major fly in the ointment from a Harrington standpoint was the inability of some locals to make the weight in their respective divisions. This resulted in two or three lads wrestling in heavier classes. The Lions got away with this against weak Holy Cross but were beaten 38-13 by a powerful Smyrna team, that had just ended Georgetown's seven-year winning streak.

At Holy Cross Chuck Hurd moved from 103 pounds to 112 and nipped Birch 5-4. Bill Webb went from 180 to the Unlimited class and prevailed by the same margin.

John Brown (138) took a 2-0 decision over Lynch of Holy Cross.

Spike Adams (95), Allan Greenly (133) and Louis Kemp (154) won by forfeit.

Lenny Donovan and Poling, of Holy Cross drew. 95-Adams, Harrington, by forfeit; 103-Preskenis, Holy Cross, pinned Redden, 1:12; 112-Hurd, Har. dec. Birch, 5-4; 120-M. Adams, Har., pinned Hoyer, 5:40; 127-Klapp, Har., pinned Cook, 3:00; 133-Greenly, Har., by forfeit; 138-Brown, Har., dec. Lynch, 2-0; 145-Welch, Har., pinned R. Pecher, 2-45; 154-Kemp, Har., by forfeit; 165-C. Hurd, Har., pinned Valliere, 1:40; 180-Poling, H.C. and Donovan, Har., drew, 4-4; Unl.-Webb, Har., dec. B. Pecher, 5-4.

At Smyrna newcomer Jim Redden dropped a decision in the opening 95 pound class but kept his shoulders off the mat, thus limiting Smyrna to three points instead of the five they would have gotten with a fall.

However, the host Eagles picked up 15 valuable points when Harrington did not wrestle in the 103 and 145 pound classes and Bill Webb had to default because of injury at 180 pounds.

David Hurd led the Lions by pinning Reynolds in three minutes and 7 seconds.

proposed installing two of the incinerators, one on each side of the county. The commissioner said he thought this would be sufficient for the county's disposal needs, although he did foresee difficulties in getting residents to haul garbage any great distance.

"We're just going to have to devise a way to catch them," commented Commissioner John L. Briggs. There have been complaints that some county residents are dumping trash along roadways or in woods.

They intend to fly to Canada on Feb. 11, attend an early morning demonstration in Ajax the next day and catch a noon flight back to Delaware in order to be here for their regular Tuesday meeting.

"I'm satisfied," commented Martin W. Johnson, Levy Court president, "that if we can get this thing going, garbage will no longer be a problem in Sussex."

vide record keeping services for members; banks and other credit institutions specializing in farm loans sometimes offer computer record services on a fee basis. The Delaware Cooperative Extension Service also has several accounting systems available to the farmer. Any county agent can help find a record keeping system suited to the farmer's individual needs.

Records have little value unless they are used to improve farm business, says McAllister. Before storing them away, analyze the year's business: What percentage of gross income went for depreciation? What per cent return on equity did the business earn? How much has the net worth of the business improved? How do weekly earnings compare with an off-the-farm job?

Records are an important part of farm business, he concludes. They should be accurate and complete.

Shifts in a number of unit locations will be made, as well as consolidations and changes in designation. No community that now has a unit will be left without one, and all armories will continue to be used.

New locations of units are as follows: First Bn., 198th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Richard A. Reiter—all five units at Greater Wilmington Airport.

Second Bn., 198th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Harry F. Kemske—Hq. and Hq. Btry, Middleton; Btry A, Smyrna; Btry B, Marshallton; Btry C, Milford; Btry D, Greater Wilmington Airport.

Third Bn., 198th Artillery, commanded by Lt. Col. Harold J. Coulbourn—Hq. and Hq. Btry, Laurel; Btry A, Dagsboro; Btry B, Seaford; Btry C, Harrington, and Btry D, Georgetown.

On May 1, the Third Bn. will assume the Selected Reserve Force mission now assigned to the First Bn. It will begin intensified training immediately after reorganization, and within a year is expected to reach the SRF training objective—ready for overseas mobilization.
