Film on Former Miss America To Be Shown March 16

"Hey There, Vonda!" a new color motion picture featuring Vonda Kay Van Dyke will be shown at Georgetown High School on Saturday night, March 16th at 7:30. Mar-Del Youth for Christ, a local youth program geared to the evangelism of teenagers, cordially invites everyone to attend.

Many Americans are aware of the poise and beauty which won the title, Miss America 1965, for Vonda Kay Van Dyke, but only a few realize the tremendous talents that make her one of the outstanding personalities of our times.

Not yet 25 years of age, Vonda Kay Van Dyke is the author of "The Girl in Your Mirror", a best-seller, which has sold over 250,000 copies and "Dear Vonda Kay," which will be off the press in December. She is a clever ventriloquist, a forceful speaker. More than these, she has the strength of Christian character that is so desperately lacking in the lives of many of today's youth.

"Hey There, Vonda!" begins with inflight footage of Miss Van Dyke flying her own plane and continues to an airport reception where she receives the key to the city. At a VIP press conference, she answers, with a depth of insight far beyond her years, pertinent questions that are being asked by today's youth.

"Hey There, Vonda!" is loaded with humor in varied forms yet it is designed to provide inspiration and direction for young rebels whose lives are being deeply shaken by the events of a bewildered generation. It is the newest production from Gospel Films, Inc., of Muskegon, Mich., producers of the award winning "Tony Fontane Story" and "Worlds Apart".

Gospel Films, now in its 17th year, distributes films in 30 languages in 121 countries around the world.

Possible Sewer Routes On U.S. 13 Continue Under Study by Council

The City Council Monday night considered three routes for a sanitary sewer on U.S. 13 south and authorized the city's consulting engineers to make feasibility studies and costs.

The report of Edward H. Richardson Associates may be revealed Monday night when the Council will conduct tax appeal night and other business.

The three routes were as follows:
1. Along the western side of the southbound lane of U.S. 13 in the highway right-of-way.
2. Across the lawns and driveways of homeowners and business establishments along the highway.

3. A right-of-way from Simpson Street due south to city limits along the eastern boundary of land owned by the Trane Corporation.

The first route has problems, according to Dudley Willis of the engineering firm. There is a water line 12 feet from the highway. If a sewer line is placed between the water main and the highway, it must be 10 feet from the former, according to specifications of the State Board of Health.

Route 2 would present problems which need no explanation. Route 3 would mean agreements would have to be secured from the Trane Company, Ernest E. Killen, and Nelson Rash. A feeder sewer would contact several houses near the city limit.

Kirby & Holloway Transportation Company could run a lateral to the main sewer. A feeder sewer would also run from the rear of The Bride Bit Restaurant, north past the rear of several houses to a main sewer coming from Peck Avenue. This main sewer would cross U.S. 13, proceed south to a branch and follow it to the sewage-disposal plant. An arm of this sewer, with a water main, would proceed south to the cutting room of Harrington Shirt Corporation which is planning an addition.

Willis figures the sewer on the right-of-way abutting the Trane Company land would be the cheapest and the easiest to dig. Furthermore, he believes this right-of-way would be valuable as a street, and as an extension of Simpson Street.

In the meanwhile, Willis is to get in touch with the Trane Company and report Monday night, at which time it is also hoped Killen and Rash will be present.

The sewer project is part of an improvement project for which a $380,000-bond issue was voted in last summer.

In the same vein, it was mentioned a sanitary sewer would be laid in Coleman Street which would also get a water main.

In other business Monday night, the Council acted as follows:
Authorized the consulting engineers to survey an alley from Dickerson Street east to an alley connecting Liberty and Clark Streets. The latter alley is also to be surveyed.

Told Dale Phillippi to patch up Dickerson Street in front of the property of Jack Wyatt.

Told Mrs. Kathryn Derrickson, city manager, to ask Chesapeake Utilities to keep City posted on installation of gas mains. It was thought a map would be helpful, especially if the city had street work.

Heard police report from Chief of Police Franklin Rogers, as follows: 604 hours served in February; 37 hours overtime; 27 hours at court; 22 arrests, $680 in fines.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Holberton

No longer will you have to mull over the meaning of "jumbo size" or take a magnifying glass to help you search for the package weight, or spend precious time diligently looking for the product ingredients.

By this July, every food package on grocery shelves across the country must have a label meeting the requirements of the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act of 1966. As usual, there will be a few exceptions. Labels on meats, poultry, tobacco, alcoholic beverages, and some other products are already regulated by law and won't change.

A few new labels can already be found on products in local stores but just in case you haven't seen them and you are not sure what this is all about, here is the information.

First, what does the packaging law do for you? Basically, it helps you get more precise information about the food products you buy. It also makes it easier for you to compare prices, per ounce, of various products in various package sizes. This law does not standardize package sizes, nor does it regulate the amount of a manufacturer's product going into a container. It is still up to you to read the not-so-fine print on the package label and then make your own mathematical calculation. The important thing is, it will be much easier to do since all weights will be in total ounces and you won't need a conversion table.

These new labels look like this: The net contents of the package must be listed on the principal display panel, which is the part you usually see when the product is on the grocery shelf. It must be shown in total ounces, followed by a statement showing pounds and ounces. These figures must be in bold type in a color that is in distinct contrast to the rest of the label, and they must be located in the lower 30 per cent of the display panel. No more turning the box upside down or on its side, looking for figures you usually can't see.

The name of the product must also go on the front panel, along with the products form (whole, dried, etc.) unless the product can be seen through the package or is illustrated. Ingredients must be listed by common names and in order of their importance. This list, however, does not have to be on the front panel but must be in a prominent place that will not be overlooked.

The name, address and zip code. The name, address and zip code of the manufacturer, packer, or distributor are also required to be somewhere on the package. The manufacturer does not have to list the number of servings, but if he chooses to, he must give it in a common measure such as ounces or cups.

All in all, it should save quite a lot of time as well as give you the satisfaction of knowing what you are doing when you shop for cereal, soup, etc.

The manufacturer does not have to list the number of servings, but if he chooses to, he must give it in a common measure such as ounces or cups.

Senior Center News

Last Thursday our members took a spring stroll. We attended the grand opening of Gerardi Brothers new store and was very much impressed with their line of merchandise and enjoyed the hot coffee and donuts. From there we visited the new Harrington Library at City Hall. The library will be of great benefit to the community and we do hope the community will give it its loyal support. Next we visited Chief Franklin Rogers' Leathercraft Shop and were amazed at the chief's ability and the beautiful leather work he is doing. Did you know that he also makes beautiful cases, repairs luggage and handbags. We are lucky to have such a shop in our town.

Friday was another balmy day and Jennie Morris, Betty Lee Lyons, our new aide, and the executive director took 15 members on a shopping trip to the Blue Hen Mall. We had lunch at Woolco's then on a visit to Rodney Village returning home exhausted but happy for such a nice day after all the bad weather.

Monday afternoon a large group turned out and we had a ball. Bernice Johnson helped some start on crocheted rugs while others worked on hooked rugs, made yardstick hooders, sewing caddies and cut materials for use in a nursing home.

This Thursday is our monthly birthday party. Come out and watch our crazy hat parade and feather race.

Friday Frances Hatfield is going to teach weaving of hats. Grab a hank of wool and an old tin foil pie pan and join the fun.

Our Center members are sponsoring the Easter Seal Drive this year with Bessie Jester acting as chairman. The cans are out and the girls will soon be knocking at your doors. In the event you are missed just drop your donation off at Bessie's or the Senior Center.

Our ceramic kiln has been installed and we hope to start classes very soon. Watch for the starting date.

Don't forget our soup sale, Friday, March 22, from 12 noon until 3:30 p.m. We will serve soup, sandwich, jello and coffee for 75 cents. Items made by the members will also be on sale.

We are glad to welcome Arthur Wall, of Felton as a new member and hope some other men will decide to join him.

It is nice to have Viola Jacobs back with us after her seige with the flu and hope that Edna Outen will soon be back with us.

Sour Cream Coffee Cake and Elegant Chocolate Log were the winning recipes in the Reddy Foods Contest. Robin Hill, Farmington Peach Blossom 4-H'er and Marjorie Hudson, Felton, Paradise member, received first place in the junior and senior divisions. Karen Newnom, Peach Blossom, and Diane Koble, Woodside Emerald, were in second and third place with some fifty 4-H'ers behind them. From a group of some 30 seniors, Margaret Thomas, Marydel, Westville 4-H Club, and Denise Yelverton, Woodside Silverleaf, placed second and third. These 4-H'ers along with eleven more will represent Kent County at the state contest. Judges were Mrs. Earl Scheidt, Mrs. Barbara Noble, Mrs. Lockwood Emert, Miss Elizabeth Edmonds, Miss Fran Shoffner and Mrs. Charles Cranston. Sponsors of the contest are the Delmarva Power and Light Company, Delaware Electric Cooperative and the University of Delaware Extension Service.

Blue ribbon winners were: Robin Cahall, Linda Newnom, Peach Blossoms; Jean Beruck, Kent Light Horse; Joe Gibson, Cheryl Warren, Kathy Koble, Woodside Emeralds; Julia Forbord, Double T; Lisa Ogg, Kent Kounty Klubber; Sandra Kirk, Joy Gooden, Fox Hall; Bernadine Yelverton, Woodside Silverleaf.

Each participant prepared a main dish, dessert or bread, planned the menu and displayed their dish at an attractive place setting. Originality was the note with place settings. The ideas ranged from baby shower ideas to holiday ideas from Hawaii to Ireland. 4-H gals from 9 years old to 19 years old displayed their abilities. Another example of the practical and educational value of the 4-H program.

Select National 4-H Conference Delegates

Four Delaware 4-H'ers have been selected as delegates to the National 4-H Conference April 21 through 27 in Washington, D. C., according to James O. Baker, state 4-H leader.

Sally Pierson, Wilmington; Bonnie Layton, Georgetown; Robert Reed, Greenwood; and Henry Retz, Middletown, will represent Delaware at the annual event.

The four were selected on the basis of their 4-H activities, leadership abilities, citizenship and community service, says Baker. The conference is designed to help delegates learn more about important national issues and problems facing America and to help increase their understanding of democratic values and citizenship responsibilities.

Miss Pierson, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Pierson. She has been active in 4-H work for nine years and was national bread project winner in 1966. She is also a three time winner of state food judging competition and has won state honors in food preservation judging and dairy judging. Miss Pierson, now a freshman at the University of Delaware, received the Joseph Mitchell Award as Delaware's outstanding first year 4-H'er in 1969.

Miss Layton, the daughter of Mrs. Roy Layton, has been a 4-H member for eight years. She was the state photography winner in 1966 and has won over 30 ribbons for food preservation, clothing, home improvement and photography exhibits at the state fair. Miss Layton, a senior in the Georgetown Special School District, also participated in the interstate 4-H exchange program, served as Delaware representative to the Older 4-H Youth Conference at Jackson's Mill, West Virginia, and was mistress of ceremonies at the state 4-H public speaking contest.

Reed, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Reed, is a senior at Greenwood High School and has completed four years of 4-H work. He is the winner of the 1967 livestock judging competition and placed second in the demonstration contest. Reed also participated in the interstate 4-H exchange program and is secretary of the Sussex County 4-H Council.

Retz, 17, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Retz, has been a 4-H'er for four years. He was 1967 state winner in the field crops and tractor driving contests and participated in regional tractor driving competition at Richmond. Retz is a senior at Middletown High School, was a member of the winning state land judging team in 1966 and has assisted with project training at the local and county levels.

Army Seeks Pilots

The Department of the Army is in urgent need of Army pilots, according to a statement issued by Sgt. Walter R. Frazier local Army recruiter.

He said that the Army has greatly expanded its new Warrant Officer Flight Training Program, which guarantees flight training before enlistment to qualified applicants, to help meet this critical need.

High school graduates, between the ages of 18 and 30, who pass the mental and physical examinations and are accepted by a Warrant Officer Flight Training Board will be enlisted in the Regular Army. After successful completion of basic training, they will be sent to Warrant Officer Flight Training School. Upon graduation, the pilots will be commissioned as Warrant Officers.

Warrant Officers are technical specialists who enjoy the privileges of commissioned officers. In addition to their commission status, Army pilots receive $100 a month above and beyond their base pay, subsistence and quarters allowance.

Interested persons may contact Sgt. Frazier in his office at 218 S. Governor's Ave., or by telephoning 736-6937 for further information.

Discuss Future of Corn Production

Delmarva's large corn crop and the low price that farmers received for corn last fall has caused a good deal of concern about the future of corn as a cash crop, says W. T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist at the University of Delaware.

In 1967, Delmarva farmers harvested a crop of almost 44 million bushels, a surplus of about 14 million bushels over the local demand. When the size of the crop exceeds local demand by only three to five million bushels, serious price declines can be expected.

Delmarva has benefited over the years as a corn deficit area, says McAllister. Local price has been lowest price plus about two-thirds of shipping cost to Delmarva from surplus areas. This price premium has amounted to about 20 cents a bushel. Freight reductions have cut this price advantage somewhat, but Delmarva has continued to enjoy a favorable corn price because of the great demands of the broiler industry.

Here on Delmarva, the level of prices that farmers get above or below the national price is directly related to whether this is a surplus or a deficit area. If farmers continue to produce corn at the 1967 level, Delmarva will be a surplus area.

"The broiler industry has demonstrated that we get more for our corn if we use it locally rather than shipping it out," says McAllister. Is it possible and profitable, then, to feed more corn to livestock on Delmarva farms?

Hogs and corn go together. In fact, hogs use more of the total corn supply than all other livestock together. Will a major hog industry develop on the peninsula if the corn surplus continues? This, of course, is a possibility. If Delmarva farmers continue to grow 500,000 acres of corn annually, a surplus will exist and prices will decline. This lower price will encourage more hog feeding to maintain income at the present level. Lower corn prices will also enable local farmers to compete with Midwest hog production costs.

Speculating on the loss of Delmarva's corn price advantage, McAllister points out that corn is an extensive type crop—one with small unit profits—and that a farmer must produce large

Many Factors Can Affect Herbicides

Of all the factors affecting chemical weed control, soil moisture at time of application is probably the least understood, says Dr. John Meade, weed control specialist at Rutgers University.

Meade told growers at the second annual Delmarva Soybean meeting that, generally speaking, if the soil is dry enough to plant beans, there will be no effect on the herbicide. "In most instances, dry soil does not cause problems with herbicides unless soil temperature is extremely high or unless the dry condition persists several days," said Meade.

Soil texture often determines the weed killing ability and the safety of the herbicide. For example, water will carry herbicides much deeper into sandy soils than into clay soils. In some instances, the soybean seedling may absorb enough herbicide to kill the plant—or at least stunt its growth. One of the reasons some herbicides don't kill soybeans is because it stays above the soybean seed.

Meade cited nutsedge, jimson weed, giant foxtail, velvet leaf, and bindweed as some of the most troublesome weeds facing soybean growers. Some of these weeds even defy control, he said.

"From this list of problems, it might appear that herbicides are not really useful," said Meade. "Actually, nothing could be further from the truth. The control of weeds is still important in

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

Next Sunday: Saint Patrick's Day (in the morning)

Observed as a legal holiday in Ireland commemorating the death of this Patriot Saint who converted Ireland to Christianity. The date has always stood out in my memories, all the way from childhood where my playmates and school chums were mostly Irish from whom I learned a lot about:

IRISH FOLK LORE

They never lied, these Irish folk,
 Who told us tales as true,
 Of seeing ghosts of warriors bold
 In days of O'Donnell Abu.

Fairies on the roof were heard,
 Like children now at play;
 And many a little child there was
 By fairies whisked away.

The murderous cry they often heard
 Across the lonely moors,
 And ghost-like figures tapping panes,
 And rattling cabin doors.

The wayward son was carried off,
 By "Little Men O' the Hills,"
 While turf burned low on open hearths,
 And night wind shook the sills.

I'm sure these tales must all be true,
 To prove them no one tried,
 For every mother's son must know
 The Irish never lied.

The above lines, recited at a St. Patrick's Day Rotary program shortly after I came to Harrington, was highly appreciated by the late Walter Paskey, who asked me for a copy of it. While I was writing it off at my office that night, Walter and Harvey Burgess and Harry Boyer were exchanging Irish quips and I recall Harvey telling about the undertaker who called police headquarters to report there was a dead mule lying on the street in front of his house:

Irish police sergeant: "Why don't you bury it, you are an undertaker?"

Undertaker: "We will, but it's our policy to notify the first of kin."

"Last Monday Morning"

A robin flashed across the moor,
 And settled at our office door,
 And warbled "Spring is here!"
 And, mind you—that was weeks ago;

Today the shifting, drifting snow
 Has mantled cold and mere.
 We'd heard that birds were heaven's own,

Symbolic of the gleaming throne
 Beyond yon arching sky!
 Today we mutter, cuss and swear,
 And put on winter underwear—
 We know that robins lie!

"Happy Haven" To Be Presented By E 52 Theatre

A rollicking new comedy by one of England's leading playwrights will be the next production of E 52 University Theatre, March 20-24.

"The Happy Haven" by John Arden deals with the lives of five old patients in a home for the aged somewhere outside of London. Dr. Copperthwaite, superintendent of the home, wishes to experiment on the unwilling patients with a youth serum he has invented. Traditionally, audience sympathy would lie with the old people, but Arden has made every effort to write the play from both the doctor's and the patients viewpoint. The tough, unsentimental characterizations of the old people with all their foibles gives the play more humanity than would have resulted from a rose-tinted fantasy.

Typically Arden's style deals with social subjects from a new angle, at the same time posing pertinent questions about life and old age. He reflects the same concern for society and its problems today that Marlowe felt for 16th century England and expressed in "Dr. Faustus." The play is a mixture of highly formal verse and extravagantly informal prose. Throughout the play the actors step out of the action and sing explanations of themselves or the play. This Brechtian device helps the audience take a more objective view of the events taking place.

Arden, born in England in 1930, studied architecture at Cambridge and Edinburgh and has practiced as an architect. He began writing plays in 1955. His best known is "Sergeant Musgrave's Dance" which ran successfully in New York. English critics regard his work on a par with that of Harold Pinter and Arnold Wesker.

"The Happy Haven" will be presented March 20-24 at 8:15 p.m. in Mitchell Hall. Tickets may be reserved by contacting the Mitchell Hall box office.

General Assembly Members Tour Del. Tech. College

Fourteen Delaware legislators toured the Delaware Technical and Community College Southern Branch at Georgetown last Thursday to hear about progress and see for themselves how the tax dollars are being spent.

Administrators and faculty described how the College is adding to the technical know-how and academic education of its 705 students in daytime and evening programs.

Financial reports by Paul K. Weatherly, executive director, indicated that there is a balance of $512,274 in the capital budget for 1968 and a reserve of $365,285 in operating funds.

These sums represent savings effected in the establishment of the college and its program. They will be used to defray expenses in opening the Northern Branch in Wilmington where rented buildings will require some alterations and partitions and where faculty and administration officers are now being engaged.

Student applications for the Wilmington Branch have now passed the 200-mark.

The General Assembly members who visited the Georgetown Branch were: Senators Curtis W. Steen, Dean C. Steele, Herman M. Holloway, Sr. and Representatives George E. Gray, Herbert A. Air Pollution To Be Discussed At Public Forum

Dr. Stephen Ayres, New York City, and Dr. Frank O'Brien, Wilmington, will speak on the health effects of air pollution at a public forum on Wednesday, March 27. The forum will be in the Academy of Medicine Auditorium, Lovering Avenue and Union Street in Wilmington at 8 p.m.

geon. Dr. Ayres conducts research into the effects of air pollution as director of the cardiopulmonary laboratory at St. Vincent's Hospital and Medical Center of New York. He is also on the faculty of New York University School of Medicine. He is one of the nation's leading experts on the effects of air pollution on health. His extensive research has been published in the major medical journals. He is chairman of the Manhattan Action for Clean Air Committee and is a member of the medical advisory committee of the New York City Department of Air Pollution Control. The talks will be illustrated with slides.

The forum is the second in a series of three cosponsored by the Delaware Academy of Medicine, the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society and the Citizens for Clean Air to inform the public about air pollution.

New Progress in Genetic Research Is Reported by the March of Dimes

DOCTORS AND NURSES with their small patients—and the patients' genetic charts showing chromosome abnormalities—at the March of Dimes-sponsored Birth Defects Center at the University of Tennessee Memorial Research Center and Hospital, Knoxville, Tenn.

March of Dimes research scientists during 1967 reported progress in pinpointing causes of two major classes of birth defects.

New blood-testing techniques may show the extent and nature of birth defects in the children of women who contracted seemingly mild infections during pregnancy.

Progress is also being made in testing human cells to determine carriers of certain rare defects and to find out how those defects are passed from generation to generation.

Dr. Charles A. Alford is testing babies born at the University of Alabama Medical Center by a new technique of determining the level of a blood protein called IgM. A high level indicates that the baby has been infected in the womb. Dr. E. H. Keen and associates will launch a similar program of testing obstetric cases admitted to the lying-in branch of the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center for laboratory evidence of toxoplasmosis, a parasite that often causes brain defects and blindness in the baby. The infection is usually completely symptomless in adults.

At the University of Rochester, N. Y., Dr. James B. Hanshaw is testing babies born at the Strong Memorial Hospital for cytomegalovirus, another infection harmless to the mother but dangerous to her unborn offspring in causing damage to the brain, eye, liver, and other organs.

On the hereditary side of the birth defects problem the major development of 1967 is medicine's rapidly increasing ability to spot the "normal" carriers of genes for certain inherited diseases.

New biological test techniques make it possible to recognize the gene carriers of 67 out of 99 known "inborn errors of metabolism," which are inherited enzyme deficiencies often responsible for severe deformity or mental retardation in children. Dr. David Y. Yung Hsia, only told a March of Dimes-sponsored Genetics Institute meeting. Study of disease carriers provides scientists with sharper tools for understanding the subtleties of inherited deficiencies, said Dr. Hsia. Detecting disease carriers also provides geneticists with useful information on how genetic traits are inherited, he added. Chemical differences among carriers of the same disease, for example, may reveal that more than one gene is involved in the disease process. Identification of carriers simplifies calculation of how frequently the disease-producing gene occurs among different populations.

All this information, says Dr. Hsia, takes much of the guesswork out of genetic counseling. A simple test performed on persons of high-risk populations—either relatives of a person with a heritable disease or members of population groups having a high disease incidence—may tell whether they do, in fact, carry the disease and, if so what the likelihood is of transmitting it to their children.

ALIAS SUMMONS IN DIVORCE IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF DELAWARE In And For Kent County, No. 35 Civil Action, 1968. EMILY THOMAS, Plaintiff, JOHNIE M. THOMAS, Defendant.

Criminal Code Battle Looms

The eighth and final hearing on a proposed new criminal code ended Wednesday, but the possibility was strong that the fight over the bill was just beginning. As was the case at previous hearings, the House Judiciary Committee heard arguments from those who think the bill would coddle criminals and those who think it represents little significant change in present "antiquated" thinking.

The chairman of the committee, Rep. W. Laird Stabler Jr., R-Montchanin, said Wednesday an entire new bill probably will be drafted to incorporate some of the suggestions made at the hearings and amendments which have been offered. The vast majority of these amendments would benefit police and prosecution and make penalties stiffer. Stabler said Wednesday he has a list of more than 100 amendments. Rep. David S. Benson, R-Graylyn Crest, has announced he will submit personally to publish this process as required by statute.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Let's create some fresh water lakes and then drill shallow wells in the immediate area (salt water) marsh to fresh says Dr. he hastens to add that there Johna Groot, state geologist. But he hastens to add that there may be conflicting interests with wildlife people.

A group of farmers, who use irrigation water for their crops, met at the University of Delaware recently to consider ways of building present fresh water supplies. Dr. Groot feels that the best and cheapest supplies can be developed in Delaware near the surface with careful management.

The farmers heard Dr. Robert Jordan describe the history and nature of the Atlantic coastal plain soils. These form 94 per cent of our land area and are considered young — only about 135 million years old. He showed how the geologists are tracing ancient stream beds in Delaware, which run generally north and south and are our best sources of stored water.

Kenneth Woodruff, hydrologist, showed how our 44 inches average rainfall in Delaware is used. Some 29 inches goes off as evaporation by plants and the soil surface. About 3 or 4 inches moves off in streams to the river and bays and is lost, except where trapped in reservoirs. About 12 inches moves into underground storage. This is the supply for most deep wells in Delaware.

Dr. Donald Fieldhouse works in projects at the University of Delaware to do something about the 29 inches that is "wasted" in evaporation. He reduces the size of plants, which does not cut yield, but can give surprising increases. He has been working with plastic mulches to partially blanket the soil and plant, with whiteners to reflect light and thus reduce transpiration (sweating), and with any other means to cut the need for irrigation.

Several members of the Water and Air Resources Commission met with us. James Crothers of Middletown is chairman of the water resources committee, one of seven members on the Commission to divide the varied responsibilities. Even though agriculture is excluded from regulation, he appealed for a closer working relationship to develop a comprehensive water use plan for Delaware. Dr. Groot added that well drilling information and a log record of water use can be extremely helpful and mutually helpful to farmers and all interested parties.

Rescheduled watershed tour, to be held on March 15 because of the recent snowfall. We will start with a Dutch treat lunch at the Bride Bit Restaurant south of Harrington at noon. The tour itself leaves at 1 p.m. and will be completed by 4 p.m.

This is an inspection tour by the Kent Soil & Water Conservation District supervisors. But everyone is welcome. It is a splendid chance to see how the drainage of excess surface water benefits the community.

We will look at maintenance work on the Whitemarsh Tax Ditch and new road culverts for the Upper Nanticoke Watershed. We should arrive at Woodenhawk bridge by 2 p.m. to see the pilot channel for the Marshy Hope Watershed and gradually work back at Harrington to see the proposed Brown's Branch Tax Ditch, which drains both the city and farmland at the north edge of town.

The 3rd State Planning Conference will be held on Sat., March 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Delaware State College. Everyone is welcome and encouraged to attend. The $3 registration fee includes the noon lunch and a copy of the proceedings after the meeting.

We will talk more about the program in next weeks column. There are some lively topics for three workshop sessions — on municipal planning, resolving the solid waste problem, and the use of soil surveys for land use planning.

Joe Paterno of the State Planning Office in Dover has put the program together. Call him at 734-5711, ext. 259 or 298 if you want a copy of the program and want to make a reservation.

Soybeans Respond Certified Seed To Fertilization Your Best Buy

Thoughts on soybeans and soil fertility are changing, says Dr. S. Eugene Younts, vice president of the American Potash Institute. The latest ideas are that corn and soybeans show little difference in their response to phosphorus and potassium, particularly on a percentage basis.

Speaking at the second annual Delmarva Soybean meeting recently, Younts said that soybeans contain large amounts of plant nutrients and can cause a large drain on soil fertility. Highest yields are usually obtained by following a fertilizer program that builds soil fertility to a medium plus or higher level.

Nitrogen is not usually recommended for soybeans because nitrogen fixing bacteria enable the plant to take much of the required nitrogen from the air. Phosphorus and potassium usually provide the greatest response, but only if other nutrients are in good supply and the pH is between 6 and 6.5. If the pH is below 5.5, added nitrogen will generally result in some increase of yields.

Younts pointed out, however, that magnesium and sulfur are becoming more of a concern in soybean fertilization. Molybdenum is also showing some value on soils with low pH.

In research tests, soybeans planted on higher fertility cotton soils yielded five to ten bushels more per acre than beans planted on so-called "soybean lands", said Younts.

"Can you afford not to fertilize when one bushel of beans pays for about 35 pounds of phosphorus or 60 pounds of potash? When 17 bushels is a break-even yield and where 10 extra bushels can triple profits?" he asked.

A pretty garnish adds glamour to a meal.

Lemon cups are simple to make and provide a colorful garnish for meat, poultry, or fish. For a special treat, fill the cups with lemon or orange ice, cranberry sauce, or sour cream. To make lemon cups: cut each lemon in half, ream out the juice and save it for use later. Scoop out the pulp lining of the shells with a spoon, or strip it out with the fingers. Cut a slice from the bottom of each cup so it will stand upright. Scallop or notch the edges or the cups if desired. For firmly frozen sherbert cups — fill cups with sherbert and put them on a tray and keep them in the freezer until serving time.

The following are paragraphs written by Mrs. Nelson's fourth grade English class last week, which they wish to share with the public:

THE ROBIN Do you know why the robin has a red breast? Well, once upon a time my father was painting our house. He decided to paint the house red. There was a robin up on the roof. As my father started painting, the robin started watching him go from side to side. Finally the bird lost its balance and fell into the red paint. Since then all the robins have had red breasts!

SPRING AND SUMMER I like spring and summer. I like to smell the fresh air, hear the robins singing at my window, see the flowers blooming, plow the fields, and get the fresh hay from the fields. I like to go boating in the water, ride the ponies all over the farm, plant seeds in the gardens, and go swimming. I like swimming the best. That is why I like spring and summer.

by Ray Gannon

ON THE WEEKEND Do you know what I plan to do this weekend? I'm going to play football. I might go bowling on Sunday. Sometime over the weekend I'll go over to Brian's house. We'll pretend that we are robbers and we'll rob the bank. My cousin, Marky, will come and play baseball with me. I may go over to my friend's house and play with his Lost in Space set. I'll have a busy weekend!

ROBIN RED BREST Did you ever wonder why the robin has a red breast? Long, long ago there was a bird named Robin. He was an ugly blackish-brown color. He didn't like his color too well. . . . so one day he flew by the Red River. Suddenly his half cousin pushed him in on his breast. When he flew out his breast was red. He didn't like the splash but he loved his color! He thanked his cousin and went home to show his mother.

SPRING Do you know why I like spring? I like to hear the birds sing and to see them fly to the ground and eat. I like the smell of the flowers. I enjoy seeing the flowers blossom. I like to sit in the shade. It is so quiet too.

MY STORY Have you ever thought about the color red and what it reminds you of? I have! When I think of the color red, I think of Jesus! I think of how they nailed him to the cross, how one of the Romans threw a spear through his side, and how the blood came rushing out. That is what I think of when I see the Convenience foods have eliminated Grandma's elbow grease, but are they really worth their place on the shelf? Convenience foods have been changed in some way by the packer. Everything from topper carrots and pasteurized milk to puffed cereals and frozen dinners and convenience foods. Their price pays for food, processing, packaging, management, shipping and marketing.

Miss Marguerite E. Krackhardt, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware, suggests that convenience foods are a wise buy only if they fit the budget and conform to family needs and tastes. But selecting the best buy from 5,000 pretty packages can be frustrating.

You'll be less tempted by luxury products if you make a shopping list. Stick to the list, but take advantage of unadvertised bargains too. Check weekly specials; often canned and frozen orange juice, frozen green peas, canned fruit cocktail and some cake mixes are cheaper than their fresh counterparts.

Read labels and check prices, warns Miss Krackhardt, to see that you're buying more food than box. Constantly question your choices. Does the soup with the prettiest label really taste better than the others? It is worth paying twice the price to save adding water to condensed soup? How much of the frozen meat pie or meat slices is gravy?

Is it really worth extra money to squirt cheese from a can rather than scooping it from a jar? Take time to compare different forms of the same product. Whole fruits and vegetables in a can are usually more expensive than slices, chunks, or halves. Small or mixed pieces cost even less. Save money by selecting fruits packed in light rather than heavy syrup.

Boil-in-the-bag buttered vegetables are much more expensive than frozen vegetables. But large bags of frozen fruits and vegetables are money savers; take out what you need and save the rest.

Hot cereals cost less than ready-to-eat varieties. Unsweetened cereals cost much less than the sugared variety.

Consider savings on storage and number of shopping trips when you compare costs. Whipped cream in an aerosol can costs more than the conventional type but its refrigerator life is much longer. Boxed potatoes take up less room than the fresh and you don't have to worry about skins and bad spots. Fresh fruit and berries in season are cheaper than the frozen but they are also very perishable, and must be eaten immediately.

Research shows that convenience meals average 13 cents more than home prepared meals but save one-fourth the preparation time. The skilled cook who has time can cut grocery bills by preparing attractive meals from less expensive foods. However, the homemaker who is employed, in poor health, or with numerous activities outside the home may find it economical to buy more foods with built-in maid service.

Don't let convenience cooking turn into lazy cooking, concludes Miss Krackhardt. Use the time you save to present your meals more attractively and to be a more gracious hostess.

Select Corn Hybrid Now

Delaware farmers should begin selecting hybrids for corn silage now, even though corn planting is several weeks away, says Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

Quality rather than quantity is the important factor in silage, explains Mitchell. Silage hybrids must have a high grain yield, stand well and hold their ears until harvest. They should also be highly resistant to disease and insects.

Hybrid varieties should use the full growing season to give silage a high degree of digestible nutrients. Varieties that mature too early waste part of the growing season while those maturing too late are unable to produce maximum feed value. Late maturing hybrids may yield a high tonnage of silage, but it will probably be high in water content and low in actual feed value.

Feed value of corn silage is highest if the ears are fully dentated at harvest, says Mitchell. Fully dented corn is high in carbohydrates and needs no additives.

High carbohydrate levels are also desirable for preservation. With fully dented corn, carbohydrate levels will be high and moisture content will be about right for proper preservation.

Early harvesting can reduce silage quality, says Mitchell. "If you're planting a lot of corn and want to harvest it at the best stage of development, plant several different hybrids with different maturity ratings. This helps to assure quality silage as harvesting progresses."

Minor, Little, Senior Baseball League Registration To Be Held March 27

A meeting of managers, coaches, and officers of the Harrington Baseball League was held at the home of James Carroll Tuesday evening. The meeting was called to order by President David Welch. Minutes were read by Emma Carroll, secretary, and were approved as read.

In the new business, it was agreed to hold the first registration Wednesday evening, March 27, at 6 p.m., at the Fire Hall.

The registration is for the Minor, Little and Senior Leagues and all boys must register regardless if they previously played ball. A registration fee of $2 is to be paid upon registering.

The first try-outs will be held Saturday morning, March 30, at 10 a.m. for boys who are going out for the Little League. Try-outs will be held at the school.

At 1 p.m., March 30, the Senior League try-outs will be held at the school grounds. All boys wishing to play ball in the Senior League should be present.

Any boy not registering to play on the Little or Senior League by April 24th will not be eligible to participate this season.

The Minor League will also hold registrations on Sat., April 6; Sat., April 20, and Sat., April 27 at the school, with try-outs also to be held on those dates.

A final deadline for all registrations is June 1st and anyone not registering before that date will not be eligible to play this season. Any boy missing the four registration dates set for the Minor League, should register with Jim Simpson before the final deadline.

Also discussed at the meeting was the possibility of a 16-18 year-old boys' regulation baseball team. Any boys interested in playing on such a team should contact David Welch by March 31, at which time any additional information can be explained.

Under consideration is the formation of a booster project in which members of the community would be participants. It was decided more research was to be made before any final decision is made on this project. Any information concerning this matter will be made at a later date via this newspaper.

After a discussion of general procedures, at which time no other new business was brought up, the meeting was adjourned.

Herman Bastianelli, Georgetown's ultra-successful mat coach boycotts this event stating that he doesn't have enough time to prepare his team. Local mat coaches followed his lead and as a result Harrington doesn't vie in the Invitational. Here is our thinking on the matter.

If eight other teams can get ready, so can H.H.S. and Georgetown. We have been around sports for four decades and we know that actual competition develops a boy much quicker than does practice. Thus, when a Harrington boy comes up against a kid from Smyrna or C.R. during the regular season, the Lion often may have had three or more less matches under his belt. Let's suppose that two boys are equal in ability at the start of the campaign. But when they finally face each other Boy H has had six matches and Boy S has had nine. Boy S has had the advantage of more starts and will usually come out on top.

Tribbitt, Jarrell, Chris Glean In Frostbite Meet

Ken Tribbitt, Roger Jarrell and Chris Glean reached new heights in their budding track careers, at the fifth annual Frostbite Invitational Track Meet held at Tower Hill School, Wilmington, Friday afternoon.

Coach Harold McDonald entered five young runners and all did well but the above trio set new personal marks.

Tribbitt, a 16-year-old sophomore at H.H.S., had a best mark of 6.8 seconds for 60 yards prior to the meet. He lowered this to 6.6 in the trials, then did 6.5 in the finals. George Thomas of Conrad, Carter of Wilmington and Tribbitt were so close at the finish, that the judges could not agree on the order of finish for several minutes. Finally, the nod was given to Thomas with Carter second and Tribbitt third. The trio just missed the meet record of 6.4.

The one mile run was divided into two heats. The first section of a dozen competitors was won in 4:59, a time exceeded several times by Chris Wetherhold last year, as an eighth grader. Chris was placed in the second heat against the strongest group of scholastic milers in Delaware history.

The H.H.S. freshman, at 14, didn't expect to win since the top runners are all at least 17 years old. His goal was to lower his eighth-grade time from 4:53.3. As expected, Jeff Brokaw of Tower Hill was the winner. Brokaw holds the scholastic state record in the mile. Dover's Mike Patterson, 1967 Group I mile king, was only two feet back. Emile Gardner of Conrad was third with John Burke of McKean in fourth. Burke was Group I cross-country champ last fall.

Wetherhold caught a Haverford, Pa., runner at the wire to finish fifth in a fine 4:51.2, more than 2½ seconds under his old mark. This was another very fine effort as the young Lion continues to improve. On the all-time H.H.S. mile list only five runners have better times. Bob Smith, now a junior at Maryland, clocked 4:48; the Hackett brothers, Clarence and Dwight were in the neighborhood of 4:41 or 4:42. Dennis Rogers, later to run for two different colleges, did 4:40. Harry Knotts holds the record at 4:38. Wetherhold has a chance to move into No. 1, while still a freshman.

Roger Jarrell, as we wrote two weeks ago, had trouble breaking 13 minutes in the two mile run, ten months ago. After a cross-country season, he clocked 11:45. He cut this to 11:38 on the indoor track at the University of Delaware.

Roger showed up at Tower Hill with a list of clockings he wanted to record in Friday's test. The times were for each of the eight laps, with an 11:20 projected two mile. He was reminded that 15 seconds was quite a lot to cut off in one race. Nevertheless, he ran the first three laps in four minutes and cruised along nicely until an old basketball injury to his foot caused some pain and a diminishing of speed over the last three or four laps. In spite of this, Jarrell clocked 11:21 and now trails only Marshall Hatfield (11:20) and Jerry Garey (10:54) on the all-time list at H.H.S. And at 15 he has three full track seasons yet to go. Hot dog!

Roger passed Ellis Myer (11:24) and Danny Hitchens' (11:26) with Friday's great stint. Myer's run was in 1965, Hitchens' in 1967.

Chester Scott's first 60 yard dash effort was a good 7 seconds flat.

Jackie D. Parker ran perhaps his best 800 yet. The tiny, 12-year-old has a 2:39 and did 2:41 this time. But, he was slowed by a cold, was boxed in at the start and collided with a careless official after the first lap.

Coach McDonald's Lions, all sophomores or younger, made a fine showing in a field of 18 schools, including three from Pennsylvania.

Harrington Bowling League

Wally's Garage is holding on to their lead by the skin of their teeth as Acme pulled a big upset in taking three games from them Tuesday night. Backed by the fine bowling of R. Gray, who amassed a great league leading 585 series, supported by games of 201 and 202 for a real fine night's effort, Acme moved up one notch closer to the league leader. Wally's Garage can take advantage of their league lead if they use Kent Gas and McKnatt's as shields to keep away their nearest opponent.

Kent Gas is tied for the league lead after Tuesday night's bowling, winning three games from the Spoilers. Since they took the second third, they are just occupying space as their lead will not displace any other team from taking the third. Should they manage to become sole occupants at the top of the league at the end of the third, the second place team would automatically win the third. K. Layton aided Kent Gas with a fine 554 series, including a good 206 game.

Hamilton Fund and McKnatt Funeral Home are tied for second place just one game behind the leaders; with Hamilton Fund splitting four games with Penn. R. R. In the meantime, McKnatt's was splitting four games with Jarrell Fuel. Giving Penn. R. R. a real big boost was M. Brown with a personal best effort this season to date with a grand 233 game. H. Jack neared that magic mark with a very grand 584 series, with a real fine 207 game also to help keep McKnatt's up in the standings. M. Jarrell lead in the high game department this week with a superb 241 game and rolled a real fine 588 series, enabling Jarrell Fuel to break even with McKnatt's in four games.

Robbins Hardware split with Taylor & Messick Tuesday night, remaining in the same position as last week. They are still within striking range of the leader, just 1½ games off the pace, as this third is proving to be as rough as the second third.

Hitchens, Jarrell Lead Two Mile Pack at H.H.S.

The two mile run shapes up as a good, solid event, as the Harrington High track team prepares to start its 13th season.

Cross-country veterans Danny Hitchens and Roger Jarrell, are third and fifth on the all-time two mile list at the tender age of 15. Jarrell trained all winter and in two races recorded 11:38 and 11:21. Hitchens, in 1967 as an eighth grader, clocked 11:26 to score in the Henlopen Conference varsity track championship meet, after setting new personal marks almost every time out.

These boys are very young as varsity performers go and have years of competition ahead of them. They are also about as different physically as you'll ever see in this event. Hitchens is 4 feet 7 and about 75 pounds. Jarrell is around 5 feet 8 and 140 pounds.

The official school record for two miles is 10:54, done by Jerry Garey in the Seaford Invitational. Hitchens did well at Seaford in 1967. He and Jarrell, training and competing together, could get under 10:54 this spring and could possibly finish first and second in the Henlopen Conference. Brad Morris is another good prospect at two miles.

College Recruiting

On the advanced-degree level, however. While there have been gains since January in the number of offers reported, the volume for both master's and doctoral candidates continues to lag behind the corresponding period last year. The number of doctoral offers is currently 18 per cent under last year and master's volume is down 31 per cent.

The aerospace industry continues to make the most offers to bachelor's candidates but its proportion of the over-all volume continues to be significantly below last year's. At this point in 1966-67 it had accounted for 23.5 per cent of all offers; this year the ratio is 17.5 per cent. This dropoff has been counterbalanced by increased activity by 10 of the 16 employer groups, with electrical machinery, electronics, and petroleum showing the major increases.

In dollar value of average monthly offers, there have been mixed gains since the close of the 1966-67 recruiting season. Only four of the 12 bachelor's curricula studied have gone up six per cent or more; last year there were nine. Gains at the advanced-degree level have been even more modest.

The average offer to a bachelor's candidate with a technical major has gone up 5.4 per cent of $759 per month since last season. In the non-technical area, the average offer to general business students is $645, an increase of 5.2 per cent, which the average for students majoring in humanities or social sciences is $614, a gain of 4.2 per cent.

Last year, the master's program in business administration following a technical undergraduate degree became the first non-engineering program to head the average dollar value list at the master's level. The picture has reversed, however. The M.B.A. with a non-technical background continues to receive the most offers but the number reported this season is down 35 per cent—675 compared with 1,044 at this point a year ago.

Only two doctoral programs have received a sufficient number of offers to make their data meaningful. Since June chemical engineering has gone up 4.3 per cent to $1,226 and chemistry has gained 3.5 per cent to $1,157. As has been the pattern in recent reports, the percentage increases in doctoral dollar values are lower than those for both the bachelor's and master's levels.

Success is not measured so much by the position that one has reached in life, as by the obstacles he has overcome while trying to succeed.
