City Tax Rates Unchanged; City Studies Annexation

When the electorate receives its municipal tax bills April 1, it will encounter a pleasant surprise: the rates are unchanged. Thus, the capitation tax remains at $8.50, with property tax still at 80¢ per hundred dollars.

After accepting the tax list from City Manager Kathryn T. Derriekson Monday night, the Council made short work of determining the tax rate. Some councilmen thought additional funds might be secured from services but did not elucidate.

It canceled its regular meeting next Monday and agreed to meet on its regular night, Monday, April 1, barring special meetings.

Annexation came in for a large share of the Council's attention Monday night, spearheaded by the Council's commitment to furnish a sanitary sewer and a larger water main to the cutting room of Harrington Shirt Corporation on the northbound lane of U.S. 13. The garment concern has stated it plans to build an addition costing from $200,000 to $250,000.

Since it, and adjoining firms had evinced an interest in annexation, the Council Monday night motioned for the city manager and Dale Phillippi, superintendent of public works, to secure agreements for rights-of-way from the shirt corporation, Ace Manufacturing Company, Callis-Thompson, an unascertained owner of some woods, and Max Corder, owner of land once slated as a sales lot for trailers. The agreements must be returned to Council before signing.

The same negotiators were also authorized to get the opinions of persons living on the southern side of Delaware 14, from U.S. 13, to a tract the city owns near Hollywood Cemetery.

Owners of the U.S. 13 tracts would get sewer and water. Those on Delaware 14, it was felt by the Council, if they desired annexation, would pay only minimal taxes for minimal services, such as collecting garbage and police protection.

The City, too, was interested in annexing land to the branch railroad but in this case, as on Delaware 14, it did not feel it had funds for sewer and water.

The City's dream, by annexation, is to round out the land it owns in the southeast quadrant of U.S. 13 and Delaware 14.

This area is to contain a new sewage-disposal plant and two polishing ponds, part of a communitywide sewer-improvement program. Turning to the engineering plans for the improvement, Dudley Willis, of Edward H. Richardson Associates, the City's consulting engineers, said the State Water & Air Pollution Control Commission had approved.

QUILLEN SAYS HE WILL PUSH FOR STERILIZATION LAW

A Harrington legislator said Monday he will push hard this year for legislation either to curb welfare grants for illegitimate children or authorize sterilization of women who have more than two children out of wedlock.

Rep. George R. Quillen (R-Harrington) told a press conference in Dover he also will push for enactment of an amendment to the criminal code which would ease the state's abortion laws.

Quillen predicted that the abortion amendment would pass the legislature as part of the proposed new criminal code, but could not stand on its own.

The Harrington lawmaker said he thinks he can win approval of his bill (HB 129) to ban welfare payments for more than two illegitimate children in the same family.

He also said he will seek enactment of a law to authorize the State, through the Welfare Department and Department of Health, to sterilize mothers who bear more than two children out of wedlock.

"I think such legislation would stop this practice," Quillen said.

Comprehensive Development Plan Ready for Publication on City

A comprehensive development plan for Harrington, with a summary of proposals, was amended and approved for publication Tuesday evening at a meeting of city officials, and members of the City Planning Commission, and Joseph Paterno, assistant planner of the State Planning Department.

The report was the outcome of meetings of two years with the local commission and the state planner. The project started under the regime of Luther P. Hatfield, former mayor, and was finished under his successor, Mayor Fulton J. Downing. James Moore is chairman of the local planning commission. Costs of making the report were paid for by the City and the federal government.

Copies of the report will be placed in libraries at the city hall, in schools, and in state offices.

In the meanwhile, the highlights of the report will be printed on the back of a city map for general distribution.

Starting this week, The Harrington Journal will publish the comprehensive development plan serially. The report will include many maps and tables, some of which may be published by The Journal. This newspaper may also publish some technical studies which formed the basis for the report.

This will be the first time Callaway-Kemp-Raughley-Tea Post No. 7, has entertained the national commander. After a cocktail party, Galbraith will speak at a dinner in the cafeteria at Delaware State Fairgrounds. There will be a dance afterwards at the post home on U.S. 13. James O'Neal is chairman of the committee handling the arrangements.

Commander Galbraith, the leader of the largest veterans organization in the world, is a native of Nebraska. He has been active as a layman in various phases of education. He is presently operating a farm and a livestock feeding unit.

He is a Navy veteran of World War II and has been active in

The American Legion since his release from active service. He has held almost every elective office from Post level to his present position which he assumed in Boston on August 31, 1967.

Commander Galbraith will speak at the Masonic Club at 12:15 today, the 22nd of March and at Harrington that same evening. He has recently returned from Vietnam and will discuss the course of events and current situation there.

It is expected that many public officers and Legion officers from surrounding areas will visit with Commander Galbraith.

William Eugene Galbraith, 41, of Beemer, Neb., was unanimously elected National Commander of the American Legion, the world's largest veteran organization at the closing session of the 49th annual National Convention, in Boston, Mass., on August 31, 1967.

A veteran of World War II service with the U. S. Navy, National Commander Galbraith served in the Atlantic Theater, and was on active duty status from January, 1945 until May, 1946.

On release from active service he joined American Legion Post No. 159, Beemer, Neb., in 1946, and served his post as Service Officer, Adjutant and Post Commander. He served his department as a member of the Boys State Board of Directors, and as a member of its Legislative Committee. He was Department Commander in 1962-63. He was elected National Vice Commander in Portland, Ore., at the 47th National Convention, August 26, 1965. His election to the top executive office of the more than 2,500,000 war veterans of The American Legion has completed a cycle that began in 1946, of holding almost every elective office in the Legion, from post level on up.

In addition to his American Legion activity, he served as chairman of the Nebraska Centennial Commission, co-chairman of the Governor's Conferences on Education, and as a member of the Board of Directors of the Nebraska Youth Council.

Galbraith has been active in civic, social and professional organizations, and is a Past Master of Masons, a member of the Beemer Chamber of Commerce and Country Club. He is a past chairman of the County Board.

Will Bread Cast on The Water Return at Harrington School

By Albert C. Price

Will Bond Bread return to Harrington school? To be, or not to be, that is the question.

Claude Neeman, local manager of General Baking Company, appearing before the Board of Education Thursday night, March 14, requested an explanation of its action in discontinuing the purchase of his company's bread in the school cafeteria after 29 years.

He explained there were 23 employees of his firm who live in Harrington school district and thereby pay school taxes. Continuing, Neeman said a Salisbury, Md., bakery, from whom the school is purchasing bread, isn't paying one cent in taxes to the school. He added, "I do not feel that I, or my company, was treated fairly in this matter, and to regain your business (approximately 170 to 190 loaves per week), I have been authorized to offer you bread for 1/2¢ per loaf cheaper than you are now getting it from the Salisbury baking firm."

Roland Hitchens, the board's acting president in the absence of Melvin R. Wyatt, commented

"In my opinion, this matter was not handled properly since neither the cafeteria manager nor Mr. Neeman were contacted before the board took this action."

At this point, a question was raised regarding the soliciting of bids for other commodities used at the school, such as milk, produce, meat, ice cream, etc. It was answered it has always been the school policy to purchase these commodities locally if they could be provided.

The board then tabled the matter until its next meeting after expressing thanks to Neeman for appearing.

In other action, the board acted as follows: Met in executive session with Solomon Markowitz, elementary principal, and Charles A. Hoff, high-school principal, to discuss contracts of faculty members for the 1968-69 school year. No action was reported pending notification of individuals involved.

Approved for school calendar for 1968-69, in accord with all county schools, including Kent Vocation-Technical School at Woodside, as follows:

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Holberton

Weather, both good and bad, is sharply affecting the fresh vegetable situation. Prices are going up and down almost daily and quality needs to be checked before you buy. Right now, this is the way it looks. Very good weather in California has brought large supplies of good quality asparagus to market and prices have dropped. Broccoli, also from California, is another good buy as supplies increase. This is expected to be a big year for broccoli, so put this vegetable on your shopping list and buy often when the prices are reasonable. Other vegetables a bit cheaper are cauliflower, celery, green onions, mushrooms, and green peppers.

On the other side of the ledger is a long list of fresh vegetables, all of which are higher in price. Quality may or may not be off. High winds and cold weather in Florida are blamed for short supplies of many of these fresh vegetables.

If you cannot find what you want at the fresh vegetable counter, do take time to check canned and frozen vegetable supplies. In a number of stores you can buy at very reasonable prices canned whole tomatoes that are excellent in tossed salads, canned spinach that is delicious when fried and served with slices of hard cooked eggs, black-eyed peas, collards, turnip greens, zucchini, carrots, and beets for all occasions are just a few of the canned food available. As for the frozen foods, well, there's almost anything the heart desires. Prices in many cases are no more than the fresh vegetables. In others, it can be expensive.

The fruit counter continues to be piled high with citrus fruit. But this cannot continue for weeks and weeks, since the peak of the season is over for oranges and in a week will be over for grapefruit. Lemon prices are up again, and so are honeydew melons. Both fruits registered the highest prices among all fruits. Fresh pineapple is very reasonable as are bananas. Strawberry supplies are small since harvesting in Florida is very light. Increased volume is expected in the next two weeks if the weather permits.

Meat prices remain high this week. The few price changes that did occur are all up. Watch for specials to get you best buys. With beef the forequarter cuts are most likely to continue to be the economical choice. Among the pork selections are chops, shoulder roasts, hams, sausage and bacon. Even though lamb is scarce, a few stores are featuring this meat, so don't bypass lamb altogether.

Trinity Methodist Church Notes

Young Women Needed By Army

High School girl seniors may receive a place in the U.S. Army Technical School of their choice before they enlist in the WAC, according to M/Sgt. Walter R. Frazier, local Army Recruiting Officer.
The Army technical school program, open to qualified women interested in additional education, offers applicants selection from a list of 150 different jobs in technical and professional fields, he said.
Under this program, the individual receives a written guarantee from the Department of the Army authorizing attendance at the school of her choice. This guarantee is made before joining and requires a three year enlistment.
The courses open to women interested in the WAC are: machine accounting, stenography, public information, drafting, photography, X-ray specialist, medical and dental specialist and many more.
To be eligible for enlistment in the WAC, women must be between the ages of 18 and 34, single, of fine character and physically fit.
M/Sgt. Walter R. Frazier said that a school catalogue listing all job assignments is available at the Army Recruiting Station located at 218 S. Governor's Ave., Dover, or phone 736-6937.

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS
Q—Because I am being transferred, I must sell my G.I. loan financed home. I find it advantageous to let my G.I. loan be assumed by the purchaser. Is there any way I can be released from my liability to the Government on the G.I. loan?
A—Yes. You may be released from liability to the Veterans Administration if your G.I. loan is current, if the purchaser obligates himself by contract to assume all of the liabilities on your loan and satisfies the VA that he is an acceptable credit risk.
Q—I know that a veteran's former wife received his G.I. life insurance payment after he died recently, while his widow and children received nothing. How can this happen?
A—The veteran evidently named his first wife as the beneficiary when he applied for his G.I. insurance. Possibly he wanted his first wife to receive the proceeds of the life insurance, but more likely he neglected to change the designation of his beneficiary. The Veterans Administration is required by law to pay insurance benefits to the beneficiaries, named by the insured. Responsibility for naming the correct beneficiary rests with the policyholder.
Q—Is a certificate of attendance needed each month for veterans who are training under Public Law 89-358, if the training is below the college level?
A—Yes. Payment may not be made to veterans in training below college level for any month until a certificate of attendance has been received.

VULGARITY HITS THE BIG MAGAZINES

The vulgarity, evinced by the writing in some prominent national magazines, is appalling. Fortunately, the press has not been affected by this blight.

FAIRNESS IS A TWO-WAY STREET

We are incensed by the manner in which magazines and TV play up but one side of the racial issue. Negro comedians have made puns on TV about the white race. This reminds us one Geoffrey Cambridge told of an off-Broadway play he was backing. The cast comprised all Negroes but their faces were whitened. How many black-face comedians do we see nowadays?

The magazines are the greatest offenders in publishing the remarks of Negro entertainers about "how they were mistreated by the whites." One such entertainer used vile language, in his discourse, and others have referred to the whites, in the magazines, as "whitey" and "honkies." The "poor, abused entertainer" started out in 1961 and now makes $50,000 per week in nightclubs, more than that on some single-night stands, besides what he makes in the movies, on TV, and with records. Where would Bill Cosby have been had it not been for "whitey."

When the prominent Caucasians are interviewed by the leading magazines, do they (the whites) use deprecatory remarks in describing the Negro?

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

During early days of railroading it was customary for engine crews to do a lot of adjusting, oiling and emergency repairs en route. The firemen could easily be identified from the Engineer by the difference in their ages and the fact, he usually carried his own scoop (fire shovel) which gradually became a part of him over the, sometimes, twenty years manual labor, and many thousand tons of coal he handled before promotion. One of those "old faithfuls" still around and enjoying retirement is Walt Lyons of Greenwood who, with his wife, Nell, a retired school teacher returned recently from Florida.

There also existed back in those early days, a poetic-minded engineman Shandy Maguire, who could sling the king's English as well as the coal, and is responsible for the following:

REGRETS FOR MISSPENT HOURS

Times are changing every hour,
And man, for knowledge and for power
Is toiling late and early;
All those who are endowed with brains
Can drive, they're masters of the reins,
In old times met with rarely.

We men, whose heads are turning gray,
Can well recall our first sad day—
And many more thereafter —
When in the cabs we tried to solve
Each problem, with a great resolve,
Amid spectators laughter.

And yet, we somehow got along,
We learned the right thing from the wrong,
We wrought with good endeavor;
We filed our brasses, keyed our rods,
And put in springs at fearful odds
With rusty jack and lever.

We're men who rose from lower ranks,
Who owe to none but Nature thanks
For every inch assension;
We lived before the days of schools,
And had to go by horse-sense rules,
And seldom met declension.

Schools now abound of every grade,
Where heads requiring brains are made,
All over this great nation,
Where every branch of learning's taught,
And ignorance is bravely fought,
By art of education.

Oh, could we but have had the chance
Men nowadays have to advance,
How gladly we'd enjoy it;
Each hour we've squandered by the way,
In indolence or thoughtless play,
In study, we'd employ it.

Take this advice, dear readers, all;
"Where'er your lot in life may fall,
Or high or low your station;
Acquire all learning that you can,
A dullard will never gain life's van,
For lack of education."

(3) To improve the traffic flow in and around the City; to provide for a one-way or loop traffic system around the downtown area to plan for new roads in areas presently land-locked and in areas for which better access is required.

(4) To work on a long-range basis toward providing additional public buildings (i.e. library, municipal hall, civic and recreation center) to serve the needs of Harrington's present and future population.

(5) To improve upon the quality and quantity of housing supply within the City; and to develop attractive single family areas where high quality homes could be developed. The needs of rental housing and mobile home courts should be recognized and provided for.

(6) To provide areas for future employment in order to attract the young work force; and to provide an improved economic and tax base for Harrington.

(7) To work toward the eventual annexation of the areas east of the City, and to plan for their being serviced with essential public facilities and utilities.

(8) To inform the citizens of Harrington of the benefits to be accrued from comprehensive planning and how it can serve to improve the City. In this regard, civic organizations and the local school system should be prime participants.

(9) To plan for and allocate more open space within the City limits, particularly in the downtown area, and to reserve areas outside the City limits for which future recreation potential exists.

(10) To undertake a street and sidewalk improvement program within the City.

(11) To increase the effective buying income of Harrington's residents by encouraging higher paying industries to locate within or near Harrington.

(12) To endeavor to establish through the process of Capital Programming, priorities for the construction of public works projects, and to determine the manner in which they are to be financed, keeping in mind the present and future financial resources of Harrington.

(13) To improve upon the design quality of housing development (conventional or mobile) through the enactment of a local Subdivision Code.

(14) To revise the Zoning Ordinance and Map in order to bring the Comprehensive Plan and Ordinance into greater conformity.

(15) To establish an effective continuing planning program by seeking out professional guidance in the up-dating of the general plan and in resolving the day-to-day development problems that arise.

(16) To work with Kent County in planning and zoning matters affecting the area surrounding Harrington and to recommend to the County Planning Commission, appropriate uses from a soil, agricultural and urban point of view for those areas bordering Harrington's city limits.

(17) To continue to co-operate with state agencies such as the State Development Department as well as with local private organizations (Chamber of Commerce) to promote Harrington as an attractive community in which to live and work.

(18) To seek out State and Federal Assistance in those areas for which the City cannot act alone. Grants for public facilities, urban renewal, housing and open space, only to mention a few, are available from higher governmental bodies and should be applied for if a need is evident.

(19) To encourage the adoption of the Comprehensive Plan by the Planning Commission, Mayor, and Council after the public has had an opportunity to assess and comment on it.

(20) To continue to re-examine these planning goals and objectives and to revise them as the economic, social and physical conditions for the City change.

(To Be Continued Next Week)

2nd String Quartet Premiere March 28 At U. of D.

The American premiere of the 2nd String Quartet by Israeli composer Franz Crbellitzer will be featured by the University of Delaware resident string quartet in a Mitchell Hall concert, Thurs., March 28, at 8:15 p.m.

The concert is the fifth in the quartet's Masterpieces of Chamber Music series and is open to the public without charge.

Also on the program will be Faure's Piano Quartet No. 1 in C Minor, featuring guest pianist Barbara Townley, and Mozart's Quartet in D Major.

Crzbellitzer, born in Germany in 1905 and educated there, is an accomplished pianist and composer. He is presently living in Tel-Aviv where he devotes himself to composition, performance and the teaching of young musicians. He has appeared throughout Europe and Israel in concert and chamber music performances.

A prolific composer, he is one of Israel's most respected musicians. Among his works are a ballet pantomime, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin"; concertos for piano, viola, trumpet and two pianos; phantasies for violin, cello and orchestra; two symphonic phantasies for orchestra, a suite for string orchestra and numerous chamber music works.

Crzbellitzer's music is a fusion of Neo-Romanticism and exotic Middle Eastern harmonies. The result is one of fascinating sounds and exciting rhythms that depict the atmosphere of distant, colorful surroundings. The music, though written in the tradition of classical forms, is fresh and individualistic in character.

The composer himself has said, "The modern composer has to find something new and individual in his style both harmonically and rhythmically. To have a style of my own—this was my aim all the time I devoted to composing."

Prime Hook Wildlife Refuge Regulations

The Prime Hook National Wildlife Refuge near Milton, announces regulations regarding public use. At the present time 4,766 acres are open to the public. Travel by motor vehicle, bicycle, horseback, or on foot is permitted, unless specifically prohibited by posting, for the purpose of nature study, photography, hiking, and sight-seeing during daylight hours. Pets are permitted on a leash of not over 10 feet in length. Under special regulations and in compliance with state laws, the waters of the refuge will be opened to fishing this season. The ebb and flow waters within the refuge are favored spots for crabbing. The Prime Hook Refuge held its first public hunting season with an estimated 1,800 hunters afield during 1967.

Fox hunters are reminded that although the state law allows them to chase foxes through April 30, all hunting on the refuge closed on February 28. The primary reason for this earlier closing date is to reduce the disturbance to migrating waterfowl which frequent the refuge marshes and fields during the spring.

Refuge Manager Nelson advises that persons on the refuge in violation of federal regulations will be prosecuted. Dogs which are allowed to run at large can be impounded by refuge personnel or U.S. Game management agents. Local fox hunters are urged to refrain from starting their dogs in the vicinity of the refuge.

Literature describing the Prime Hook National Wildlife Refuge and information concerning public use of the refuge is available at the refuge headquarters located off Route 16, Broadkill Beach Road. For current hunting and fishing regulations contact the manager.

Conference to Be Held at State Home Set for April 9

Outpatient hospital services will be the subject of an all day conference to be conducted at the State Home and Hospital in Smyrna on Tues. April 9th. The topic, according to Dr. Hector J. LeMaire, executive director for the Aging, the organization sponsoring the conference, is particularly timely. Hospital care costs are constantly rising and will continue to do so in the future as the demands for services increase.

One demonstrated method of reducing costs to patients is by the use of outpatient clinics and home care programs. Both are much lacking in the downstate areas and need to be expanded elsewhere in the state. Suggestions on the methods and means as to how this may be done will be one of the major considerations of the representatives of the medical and para-medical professions who will be in attendance.

Due to the limitations of space in the Smyrna Home facility, attendance will be on an invitation basis only. A capacity audience is expected to hear the speakers all of whom will be members of the medical profession or persons who render social and medical services.

The keynote speaker will be Richard R. Griffith, executive director of the Delaware Hospital Association. He will be followed in turn by William H. Duncan, M. D. who will address himself to the topic "Home Care in Action", and will give an overall picture of this type of program as it relates to patients, nurses, social workers, therapists, physicians and others.

Edgar Hare, Jr., liaison officer, greater Delaware Valley Regional Medical Program, will moderate a panel consisting of Harry Taylor, M.D., Maynard Mires, M.D.; Sheldon Schweißel, administrative officer of the State Department of Mental Health, and Rev. John E. Keene, administrator of the Ingleside Nursing Home in Wilmington.

In the afternoon there will be several reactor tables manned by persons who will respond to such subjects as: Can Outpatient Care Provide Better Services for the Elderly?; Effects of Outpatient Care on Nursing Home Procedures; Outpatient Care and the Mentally Ill; Outpatient Care and the Small Community Hospital, and Outpatient Care in the Non-Urban Areas.

In addition to those previously referred to, several knowledgeable downstate persons will participate in the proceedings. Included are hospital administrators and others. Among these are Frank Larsen, Gordon S. Crispin, Harold J. Laggner, M. D., Maurice W. J. Abraham, Mrs. Mary Rundell, R.N.; Arthur R. Vandepoel, Joseph Ahlschier, Mrs. Louzema Melvin, R. N., Harry Naydock, and Rogert Keister, from the administrative staff of the State Home and Hospital. All will voice their professional views on the subject under discussion.

Mrs. Florence Murgatroyd, director of Volunteer Services of the Home and Hospital, has secured the assistance of this group headed by Mrs. Sherman W. Tribbitt, wife of the Lt. Governor of the state, to act as hostesses for the affair. The buffet lunch will be catered by the Hub Restaurant of Dover, under the supervision of Gregory Kramedas, of that establishment.

Dr. Allison J. Morris, an internist specialist and a member of the State Commission for the Aging, will moderate the conference. The Commission has adopted the attitude that there should be realistic remedies sought to halt the rising costs of hospital services in which the older, impoverished person is too frequently the innocent victim. Careful consideration must be given to all possible alternatives which can alleviate the situation.

Cancer Film Available From Film Library

A popular cancer film, "The Traitor Within", which points out that people are being cured of cancer everyday by surgery, radiation and x-ray, is available on free loan service from the Film Library, State Board of Health, Dover.

Designed to counteract some false beliefs and unfounded fears regarding cancer, the film also emphasizes that everyone is subject to the risk of contracting this disease.

The seven danger signals are presented and anyone developing one of these is urged to discuss the symptom with a physician.

Animation and anatomical drawings show the routine function of healthy cells and illustrate how they sometimes develop into cancer producing cells. If untreated, they divide and multiply to crowd out and destroy healthy cells.

This is a color film with an eleven minute running time. Other cancer films available in color from the State Board of Health include:

Breast Cancer, Self-Examination, 16 minutes; From One Cell, 15 minutes; Life Story, 14½ minutes; Man Alive, 12 minutes; Million Club, 28 minutes; Other City, 22 minutes; Sense in the Sun, 14 minutes; Time and Two Women, 18 minutes; Time For Decision, 16 minutes; Warning Shadow, 16 minutes.

Reservations can be made by writing the Film Library or calling 734-5711, ext. 436.

Curriculum Revision Approved By U. of D. Faculty

A significant curriculum revision by the department of civil engineering at the University of Delaware has been approved by the university faculty.

The changes will reduce the number of credit hours required for graduation from 140 to 134 and the new regulations will become effective immediately. Seniors who graduate in June will need only 134 hours.

Dr. Eugene Chesson Jr., department chairman, said the changes were made in accordance with recommendations contained in the recent Goals Report of the American Society for Engineering Education and represent faculty recognition of the interdisciplinary nature of civil engineering.

To enable a student to attain depth in the professional field of his choice, 18 hours of technical electives will be required. A student may pursue intensive study in one area of civil engineering or to explore several areas, such as structures, environmental en-

with George K. Vapaa

"We don't want to see our area go to the dogs for lack of community spirit," says Joseph Brinster of Harrington. He was telling our Kent County Technical Action Panel about the goals of the McCauley Pond Watershed Community Improvement Organization. This group came into existence because the county chose to develop a dump in their neighborhood. Unplanned growth loomed as a threat.

To my knowledge, this is the first rural community group in Delaware working to mold the character of their environment. Joe is group president. Alvin Brown serves as chairman of the projects committee.

The proposals are impressive. Consider this: Channel clearing as a basic step. A bridle path. Alvin says the stream has good potential for trout fishing. Rebuilding of a washed out dam. Wildlife development and possibly a nature trail. Reclaiming old sand pits with forest plantings. Solid waste disposal using efficient methods. The area is full of small farms which might make ideal vacation spots for paying farm visitors.

One low-income area of 30 families is called Burley Field. It's hardly a town yet, but most certainly is a community with an excellent potential for improvement. It follows the pattern of other similar collections of houses with no indoor plumbing and lacking community facilities.

The group wants to preserve the essential rural character of their community. They see agriculture as an industry to preserve the open space living they sought when they first moved out to their small farms.

The leaders admit they are dreaming about what can be done. All of these ideas are practical. Many of them have a commercial potential and this can bring the project to fruition. This is where our TAP can be of service.

Putting plans to work is the theme of the 3rd State Planning Conference to be held on March 30. It will be held in the Science Center of Delaware State College starting at 9:30 a.m. and continuing through 4 p.m.

All of a sudden it is time to begin using the ideas coming out of state, county and city planning sessions. We will hear what they are in the morning. The afternoon sessions will have three workshops dealing with three immediate areas of concern: (1) Regional and community planning, (2) Delaware's waste disposal problems and (3) Soil surveys as a basis for planning.

In addition to these there will be seven consulting services available to registrants. It is for those who are looking for specific answers to their own problems.

The registration fee of $3 includes lunch and a copy of the proceedings of each session. Call 736-1216 if you want more information. I particularly hope that we have good representation of our farmer groups.

The big city flower shows are a better sign of spring than the traditional first robin. I try to catch at least one each year. This year it was the International Flower Show in New York City. A county agent tends to see the show differently than the city dweller. We're impressed with the magnificence of the displays, but more so with how they were built. I think flower shows are so popular because most exhibits are traditional. The rose gardens, the water fountain settings, floral arrangements, etc. Most people marvel at all the blooms and the sodded lawns, all of which are forced in the greenhouse.

Two ten year old girls returned time and again to the farm garden display, which featured Josie the Jersey cow and her newborn calf. Jersey cows are the beauty queens of the bovine world, and they fit better into a display. Josie weighed perhaps 800 pounds, as compared to perhaps 1200 pounds for the more efficient Holstein cow. Pity the poor exhibitors! The Rutgers-Cornell Extension Service display featured annual blooms for sunny, shady and windy locations. Eight county agents man the booth all the time, averaging 20 questions per hour for each man. Each questioner had two or three questions on the average. How would you like to try this for eight hours at a trick?

Ostrich feathers seemed to be most sold "flower" of the show! My wife and I settled for some tricky holders for making our own floral arrangements. It seems that about one person in five at a flower show today is a shutter bug. One of the film companies has a new leaflet out on taking close-ups of flowers. Check your local film dealer who sells the film in orange colored packages. One thing unsettles me about the city dwellers. They seem tensed up and wrapped up in their own affairs. They speak only to the exhibitors, and then as though in secret. It is a relief to recognize the gregarious out-of-towner, who appears to be in no hurry, is relaxed, and smiles when he talks.

Progress Through Research is the title of the 1967 Report of our Substation work at Georgetown. A farmer called me this morning asking if it is ready yet. I was opening the mail and the very next envelope contained the report! He will be surprised when he finds it in his own mail tomorrow.

Some 60 different crop research projects are summarized by Ed Wisk, crops research associate. The objectives of each trial, together with the treatments, and the results to date are presented in the report.

Some of the topics include air pollution measurements, asphalt barrier studies, subsurface and surface irrigation, sugar beet seed production, all sorts of variety trials, fertility studies, weed control, insect problems, diseases, and cultural practices.

Del. Professor A World Authority

A letter from the Fiji Islands; a package from Australia; an inquiry from Japan—all addressed to Dr. Lewis P. Kelsey, the world's authority on window flies.

Kelsey, assistant professor of entomology and applied ecology at the University of Delaware, has identified, described and catalogued over 200 species of the tiny flies in a new bulletin being published by the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C.

Window flies are a family of small flies usually found in museums and mills, says Kelsey. Early specimens were taken in museums where they were attracted to the windows by light, thus the name "window flies". Generally speaking, these little flies are beneficial insects that feed on carpet beetles and small insects that infect stored grain and decaying wood.

Kelsey's study of window flies began back in 1960 when he took a sample of mill trash and began a colony of carpet beetles to use in teaching entomology. Soon a window fly appeared in the colony and Kelsey began to study the characteristics of its discarded pupal skin.

In the early part of the study, he discovered several errors in earlier identifications of adult window fly species. "Before I could go any farther with my study of the fly's pupal stage, I had to go back and straighten out these earlier mistakes," he explains. "I guess this changed the direction of my work from a study of pupal skins into a revision of the North American window fly species and finally into a revision of the world species."

Since that time, Kelsey has studied window fly type specimens at museums in London and Paris and has had specimens from many other museums and private collections sent to him at the University. He has received specimens from all over the world including Africa, Australia, New Guinea, Thailand, the Fiji Islands, the Galapagos Islands, Europe and North and South America. After examining, dissecting and studying these specimens, he has identified and catalogued over 240 species.

Kelsey's new publication, which comes after six years of study, is the most complete reference work on window flies in the world and contains 210 original drawings detailing the various species.

Since completing his publication, Kelsey has identified at least 40 new species; the last shipment of specimens he received contained at least six additional species. "Although this bulletin will be a valuable reference tool in studying window flies, I've probably just begun to scratch the surface," he says. "Window flies are common in virtually all parts of the world, and yet nothing is known about the many species behind the Iron Curtain and relatively little is known about the window flies of Africa and South America."

Window flies are a fascinating insect to study—they're so common, yet so little is known about them. Kelsey has several specimens that he has been studying for over six years and still hasn't been able to classify—and he's the world's authority.

All fruits contain some vitamin C—but in varying amounts. The fruits rich in vitamin C are oranges, grapefruit, cantaloupes and strawberries.

Fruits containing smaller but worthwhile amounts of vitamin C are fresh apricots, bananas, blackberries, blueberries, pineapple, red raspberries, and watermelons.

For vitamin A, serve cantaloupes and apricots. Dried apricots are a concentrated source of vitamin A.

Good sources of iron include dried fruits such as raisins, dates, prunes, peaches and apricots.

Farmers Need Current Pesticide Information

Rapid changes in regulations governing the legal use of pesticides demand that farmers have the latest pesticide information, says Frank Boys, agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware. Labels on leftover pesticides do not necessarily contain current recommendations for the product, he warns. Many changes in pesticide regulations have occurred since last season. Responsibility for proper and acceptable use of agricultural chemicals rests with the individual farmer.

"Just because you use a certain chemical last year does not mean that it may be used the same way this year," says Boys. "If you are using pesticides in 1968, make sure that you are familiar with the 1968 regulations."

Improper use of chemicals may result in unlawful residues. If forage containing harmful residues is fed to dairy animals, residue could show up later in milk, meat or butterfat.

To avoid unlawful residue, be sure you have the latest information necessary for proper pesticide use. Be sure that you understand the limitations placed on various chemicals and the restrictions on the use of treated crops and crop residue.

Use of pesticides is a touchy business, says Boys. If you are thoroughly familiar with the chemicals you use, you can be sure of a safe harvest next fall.

Fishy Facts

Let's have fish for dinner. It's one of the most delicious and economical protein foods you can buy.

Fish is easy to digest because it has few connective tissues, and weight-watchers will find calorie-shy fish a real boon. It's simple to prepare, but be careful not to cook it too long. Unlike raw meat, explains Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware, seafoods are tender and juicy in their fresh state.

Cooking simply brings out flavor and thickens the protein. Fish protein is much like egg white; if over-cooked, the protein loses water, shrinks and becomes tough and rubbery. Cooking is complete when the juice and flesh turn whitish and the flesh can be easily flaked from the bone.

Fish can be broiled, fried, baked, poached and steamed; with such a variety, how can you have a dull menu?

Broil fish about six inches from the heat source; don't turn the fish unless it's quite large and thick. Pan-frying is best done with a few pieces of fish at a time. One popular method is to dip the fish in flour, then into a milk and egg mixture, then into bread crumbs and finally into a buttered skillet. Finished pieces can be kept warm in a turned-off oven.

You don't need large quantities of fat for deep fat frying fish. Oil is ready when a bread crumb is browned in 30 seconds. If the oil smokes, you know it's too hot and the fish won't cook properly.

Bake fish in a hot oven, 400-450°. If the fish is stuffed, allow 10-12 minutes per pound baking time. Adding some liquid to the bottom of the pan will keep the fish moist.

When poaching bring fish to a gentle boil and then allow it to simmer for 3-6 minutes per pound. Fish can be poached with salted water, milk, wine, or bouillon.

According to Miss Krackhardt, where the fish is "fat" or "lean" determines the cooking method. Fat fish, such as swordfish, salmon, and mackerel, have fat mingled throughout the flesh. Lean fish, such as flounder, haddock, and perch, store fat in the liver leaving the flesh dry. While almost any kind of fish can be successfully fried or broiled, fat fish do well baked and lean fish are excellent in stews and chowders.

When buying fresh fish, check to see that the flesh is firm and does not separate from the bones. Skin should be shiny and not faded. Fish directly from the water has very little odor; so if the fish you're buying has a strong disagreeable odor, it's probably too old. Fishes should be bright and full; sunken eyes indicate staleness.

Refrigerate fresh fish products in their original wrapper as soon as possible. And don't hold fresh fish longer than a day or two before cooking, cautions Miss Krackhardt.

When you select frozen fish, make sure it is solidly frozen and without odors. Fish should be wrapped in moisture proof material with little or no air space between the fish and wrapper.

Keep frozen fish solidly frozen until you're ready to use them; never thaw and refreeze fish. Freezer storage is a convenient way to keep fish, but don't store too long if you want to preserve the best flavor. Date packages as they are frozen and keep them no longer than 6 months.

Miss Krackhardt says the safest way to thaw fish is in the refrigerator. Never thaw fish at room temperature or in warm water.

Local Chapter of American Field Service Meets

The Harrington Chapter of the American Field Service recently met to elect officers for the coming year. Thomas Peck will serve as the new president, assisted by the following officers: vice president, Mrs. James D. Moore; secretary, Mrs. Robert J. Masten; treasurer and finance officers, Mrs. Bessie Bozer; student-family liaison, Charles A. Hoff; American Abroad coordinator, Mrs. Allen B. Parsons; school liaison, Mrs. William Smith; student representative, Judy Davis.

The community of Harrington has been most fortunate to have had three excellent representatives from the American Field Service program as guests during the past three school years. Miss Toby Kristvinsdotter, of Iceland, was the first exchange student. She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Taylor. Last year, Miss Anita Sapunar, of Bolivia, became the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Peck, and this year Miss Elsbeth Amsler is enjoying the American home of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Davis. Each of the girls and their families have enjoyed their year together immensely. It is the hope of the A.F.S. Committee that this will be a continuing trend for many years to come.

The American Field Service is an organization unique in many ways. Membership in the local Chapter requires no dues, no initiation or any of the many requirements of other clubs. It does require the interest and support of its members. The benefits are many, since the Chapter works closely with the A.F.S. student and his American family. Anyone interested in joining the Harrington Chapter is cordially invited to do so. Mr. Peck or any of the officers listed above would be most happy to supply any additional information.

A project for the Chapter will be occurring in the near future. This will be the very popular AFS Fair to be held at the school on May 10. Additional publicity will be appearing concerning this event in the next few weeks.

In the meantime, Beth Amsler will be speaking at many local organizations in the near future. Be sure to attend one of these meetings and hear the A.F.S. story from someone who knows how wonderful it is.

Veterans' News

The Veterans Administration issued a reminder that benefits of the new GI Bill are not limited to Vietnam Era Veterans, but apply equally to veterans who served in the Armed Forces any time after January 31, 1955.

Leon Fields, manager of the VA Regional Office, Wilmington, said that veterans who had at least 181 days active duty service, except for the 6 months active duty training, any part of which occurred after January 31, 1955, are eligible for these GI Bill benefits:

* Educational assistance. Full-time payments for college type training range from $130 a month for a single veteran to $175 for a veteran with two dependents, with $10 extra for each additional dependent.

* High School. The same payments are available to a veteran while he completes high school without losing any GI Bill eligibility for advanced educational benefits.

* Apprenticeship or other on-the-job training. Payments (based on six-month periods) begin at $80 per month in the first period for a single veteran with added payments for veterans with dependents.

* Farm cooperative training includes institutional courses. Payments range upwards from $105 a month.

* Vocational flight training. Payments over 90 percent of the established charge for flight training for veterans who have the equivalent of a valid private pilot license.

* GI loans. VA guarantees a portion of loans made through commercial lenders. On home loans the VA will guarantee up to $7,500 of the loan; on farm real estate loans up to $4,000, and on non-real estate farm loans up to $2,000. VA will make direct loans for homes in certain cases.

* Medical care. VA provides hospital care for all veterans who served in the Armed Forces after January 31, 1955, (whether their service is classified as wartime or peacetime) on the same basis as for veterans of earlier wars. Top priority goes to men needing treatment for service-connected or service-aggravated disabilities. If a bed is available, veterans may be admitted for any ailment requiring hospitalization if they are unable to pay for the treatment in a private hospital.

* An allowance of $1,600 toward purchase of specially-equipped automobiles for veterans with certain severe disabilities suffered while in service.

In addition to VA benefits, which will be explained in detail at any VA office, veterans who served after January 31, 1955, are also entitled to Civil Service preference in Federal employment and to job counseling and placement by the Department of Labor and State Employment Service Offices.

Farm Retirement Plan Available

An improved income tax deferred retirement program is now available to farmers and other self-employed persons, says W. T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist at the University of Delaware. Starting this year, self-employed persons can set aside up to 10 percent of their taxable income, or $2500, whichever is smaller.

Basically, the new law is designed to give the self-employed the opportunity to build a retirement program with tax-free income similar to retirement plans now enjoyed by employed persons.

Dollars put into the retirement program are not actually tax free, explains McAllister. Tax is merely deferred until retirement. The taxes are paid when the money is withdrawn as income during the retirement years.

This law has a good deal of merit for farmers, says McAllister. However, they will want to study it closely before committing themselves to any long-term retirement program.

Principal advantages of the program are that it provides systematic savings to supplement Social Security and other retirement income; it also provides the opportunity to delay taxes on money in the retirement fund until after retirement. "In reality, this is like taking money from one pocket and transferring it to the other," he says. "But in the process, a tax saving results."

Farmers who elect to begin a retirement program must include employees who have worked for them three years or longer. Payments based on their income must be the same percentage which the farmer contributes to his own fund. An employee who works at least 20 hours a week for five months during a calendar year is considered as having worked a year.

Money contributed to retirement plans must be put into certain types of investments and the overall plan must be approved by the Internal Revenue Service. Invested funds may not be used as collateral and once the program is established, it must be continued. Failure to continue an established retirement program may result in heavy penalties.

For farmers, the major consideration is whether tax deferred privilege plus income earned through investment in the retirement program is greater than earnings resulting from putting the money to profitable use in the farm business, says McAllister.

"Before you do anything, dis-

Discuss the retirement plan with your insurance agent, stock broker or bank trust officer," he advises. "There are a number of details and options that should be considered, but don't ignore the idea just because it may seem complicated."

The monthly birthday party for Bessie Jester, Mildred Vincent and Marie Jandak was well attended. Everyone made a crazy spring hat and joined in the hat parade. The judges were amazed at the ability of the contestants and had a difficult time selecting the winners. A picture of these winners appears elsewhere in this paper.

Frances Hatfield joined us on Friday and taught us how to weave hats by using a pie pan as a form. These hats are very attractive and several are in the process of being made. Look real close and you might see some of them in the Easter Parade.

This Thursday we will be busy getting ready for our home-made soup sale which will be held Fri., March 22, from 11:30 until 3 p.m. There will be soup, sandwich, dessert and coffee or 75 cents. Or you can buy each item separately. Soup to take out will be 60 cents a quart. Look for our posters in the local stores.

Betty Cooper will be with us and teach the making of golden angels on Mon., March 25.

Hazel Trice will present a travel log "Come Fly With Me" on Thurs., March 28.

The ceramics project is moving along and it is hoped more information will be available by next week.

Awards Available To Engineering Students at Univ.

Two new awards with cash prizes are available to engineering students at the University of Delaware, according to Thomas W. Brockenbrough, assistant dean of the College of Engineering.

The first winners of the awards will be announced at the university's annual Honors Day on May 2.

The Delaware Society of Professional Engineers, a branch of the national organization, is offering $50 for the engineering junior with the highest cumulative grade index.

A $25 award is offered by the Delaware section of the American Society of Civil Engineers for the junior in civil engineering who exemplifies sound character and scholarship.

Advises Home Gardeners

Many home gardeners believe that home-grown vegetables are fresher, more nutritious and less costly than vegetables sold in local stores, says Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware. Gardening is also a source of healthful outdoor exercise and is an interesting hobby.

Plan your garden on the basis of space available, says Stevens. Family preferences, the quality of vegetables you need and the amount of time you wish to spend in the garden are also important considerations in planning.

In planting the garden, select a location with good soil, drainage and access to sunlight and water, he advises. Avoid an area where shrubs and trees may compete for available nutrients and moisture.

Prepare the seedbed properly and improve soil conditions by adding organic matter and fertilizer when needed. In some instances, it may be necessary to correct soil acidity by adding lime.

When planting, consider the width between rows, planting depth, transplanting and starter solutions. Proper planting time is also important, says Stevens. Cool season crops such as onions, peas, lettuce, carrots, cabbage, radishes and beets should be planted as soon as the ground can be worked. Plant tender crops like beans and squash later in the spring.

Weeds compete with vegetables for water and nutrients and often harbor insects and diseases. Since chemical weed controls are usually impractical in the home garden, control weeds by cultivation or mulching.

Control insects and diseases by selecting disease resistant crops, using proper growing practices and maintaining a spraying or dusting schedule on susceptible crops.

Stevens points out that 1968 vegetable variety recommendations for Delaware are available from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, 19711.

Bridge traffic for the twelve months ended February 29, 1968, was 15,299,785 vehicles compared to 14,878,376 for the 12-month period ended February 28, 1967. This is an increase of 421,409 or 2.8 percent.

Record Track Turnout at H.H.S.

Track practice began at Harrington High on Tuesday afternoon despite a track sodden from several days of rain and snow. It appears that the oval could be in good shape by the April 3rd opener with Lewes and Rehoboth, if the weatherman cooperates. Meanwhile some of the trackmen are training at other locations, on blacktop roads and the like.

Coach Harold McDonald has a list of sixty candidates at present. Past experience indicates that another twenty or so will materialize when the sun comes out and the temperature climbs a bit.

Track is a popular sport at Harrington High because the variety of events gives practically every boy a chance, be it in sprints, middle distance races, long distance races, throwing events, jumping events, etc.

Another reason for its popularity is the fact that the track schedule, unlike some H.H.S. sports, is not simply a test involving Harrington-Felton, Harrington-Greenwood, Harrington-Bridgeville, or some other Henlopen Conference foe.

The track and field slate varies considerably and changes yearly keeping the competition, fresh and interesting.

For example this season's slate has the Lions open with a triangular meet involving two Diamond State Conference foes, Lewes and Rehoboth, followed by another such contest with John M. Clayton and Selbyville.

At the Seaford Invitational the locals vie with lads from 16 or more schools. This meet has attracted teams from Smyrna and Centreville, Md., to the north and Cambridge, Md., Princess Anne, Md. and Chincoteague, Va., to the south. Can a Harrington-Greenwood confrontation in any sport compare with this thin clad extravaganza, which features hundreds of athletes? Of course not!

Dual meets with Dover Air and Milford follow with a 12-team Milford Invitational sandwiched in between.

A trip to Wilmington involves competition in the Peninsula Relay Carnival. At the conference meet at John M. Clayton, all 12 schools in the Henlopen Loop may compete. Only Delmar was not represented in 1967.

The icing on the cake is the state meet, at the University of Delaware, where the finest athletes in Delaware compete on this state's finest and fastest track.

With so many candidates reporting Coach McDonald again faces a massive juggling job, as he tries to get all the square pegs in the square holes.

Ken Tribbett is the leading sprinter, with Ron Morris, Gerry Cagle and John Swain giving strength to both the quarter mile and mile relay.

Chris Wetherhold, as an eighth grader, posted the top Henlopen Conference clockings in both the half mile and mile runs and was second in the state meet. Now a freshman, he may pick up a school record or two this spring.

The two mile is in fine shape with last year's No. 1 eight-lapper, freshman Danny Hitchens, sophomore Roger Jarrell and Brad Morris.

The only questionable running event is the 880 relay with Tribbett needing three partners. Buddy Wyatt and Nick Morris are the broad jumpers. Morris is the Henlopen Conference pole vault champion, also.

Doug Berry, a fine high jumper, has done 5 feet 7 or 8 inches, higher than his own height.

Bill Webb and Bill Moore are adequate shot putters. Lenny Donovan, a transfer from California, has thrown a 10 pound shot 44 or 45 feet, a year ago. If he can get the high school 12-pound-ball out 40 feet, he will pick up some points in this area.

Webb and Louis Kemp are the discus throwers and would not have to improve much over last year to make this a strong point. This is a pretty fair team, that could be a very good team, if a couple of border-line cases blossom into instant stardom. This happens in this highly-individualistic sport.

Chief trouble spots are the 880 relay and the lack of backup men in the sprints and a couple of other events. For example, in a dual meet a good performer wins an event and gets five points for his team. But if the other team gets second place and third place, the pickup there is four points. Thus, the good boy has only made a one-point profit. The need for additional help in the battle for seconds and thirds is apparent.

Jackie D. Parker leads a group of junior high prospects. Jackie

All Conference Boys Basketball Teams Selected

The Henlopen Conference announces the All Conference Boys Basketball Team as selected by the varsity coaches under the chairmanship of Robert Engel, Conference basketball chairman.

Because of a tie in voting six boys were named to the Conference first team.

First team selections are: Albert Horne, Bridgeville; Frank Hitchens, Milton; Bob Dill, Felton; Anthony Brinkley, Selbyville; Ronald Hovington, Millsboro; and Andy Raymond, Rehoboth. All the boys selected are seniors with the exception of Brinkley, who is in his junior year.

Second team selections consist of Francis Johnson, Bridgeville; Richard Johnson, Milton; Wayne Quillen, Lord Baltimore; Wayne Webber, Lord Baltimore; Larry Wyatt, Greenwood.

Honorable mention went to Edward Cannon, Millsboro; Larry Hughes, Greenwood; Barry Lynch, John M. Clayton; Bill Moore, Harrington; Chris Moore, Felton; Gary Pusey, Bridgeville, and Gregg Stebbens, Dover Air Force Base.

Harrington Bowling League

With the final third just about half over, we feel as though we were witnessing the second third again as the race for the top spot has caused the league standings to really tighten up. The margin separating each team is so close that any one of eight teams, of the ten team league, could be on top after next week's bowling.

Hamilton Fund took the measure of Wally's Garage, winning three games and exchanged places with them in the standings. Though L. Breeding tried to aid Wally's Garage with a fine 203 game, it was not enough to keep them from slipping down to second place. H. Devoil hit very close to a 500 series with a 499 series to lead Hamilton Fund to the top position. From the series' standpoint, it looks as though Tuesday night was another one of those bad nights, when you consider the fact that there are 60 or more men bowling each week and that only three men could hit over the 500 mark.

McKnaft Funeral Home, who has nothing to worry about, after taking the first third, moved up into a tie with Hamilton Fund for the lead, after being tied with them for the second place spot last week. Robbins Hardware was their victim this week for three games, although they (Robbins Hardware) still maintain a chance to go to the top of the league with a good showing next week. McKnaft's received a nice assist from H. Brode, who rolled a fine 522 series.

Kent Gas was knocked from a tie of first place, down a couple of notches by a Taylor & Messick combine, who came out Tuesday night ready to bowl. G. Collins led in the individual game department with a superb 213 game and was second in the series department with a real fine 564 series for a real good night's work, to lead Taylor & Messick in their win. Even though Taylor & Messick won all four games Tuesday night, they could not advance in the standings, remaining near the bottom of the league. They have served notice, however, that they are on the move and will not remain there much longer, so the teams above them had better beware.

Acme and Penn. R. R. battled it out to a stalemate, each taking two games, to remain in the same position as last week. Either one of these teams can cause problems for the teams above them, so they should be approached with caution as they both have been known to pull an upset or two.

Jarrell Fuel, who seems to be having difficulty removing itself from the ninth position, took three games from the Spoilers, on the real fine effort of D. Hayman, who led in the high series department with a grand 573 series, including a fine 203 game. The Spoilers cannot seem to vacate the cellar position after dropping down there several weeks ago.

Mile Run For 12-and-Under Boys Planned

In 1966 and 1967, a mile run for boys aged 12 and under was held at Tower Hill School, Wilmington. The first race was won by Chris Wetherhold of Harrington in 5:17.

The second test saw Donald Parker of Harrington clock 5:55 to get the first place award.

Plans for this year's contest were shelved when Bob Behr, Tower Hill's track coach, left to spend a couple weeks in Florida, in an effort to teach the baseball Phillies how to run a little faster.

This writer felt that Harrington had this race in the bag for the next few years with a very fine crop of young runners coming up. Jackie Parker 12, Danny Porter almost 11, Mark Krouse 10, Ray Gannon and Howard Parker both 9 have had several competitions already in Penns Grove, N. J.; Harrington, Milford and a couple of other places. Porter trounced a large crop of Philadelphia runners in Penns Grove and like the others can even handle the 2.4 miles cross-country distance in fine style.

Since the upstate race is off for this year, a similar race will be held at Harrington High sometime in early April. Trophies and plaques will be given to the first six finishers.

The above five boys are already entered along with Donald Bryant, a sixth grader. Interested boys see Coach Harold McDonald or Keith S. Burgess.

Any lad who was still 12 years old or younger on March 1st, 1968 is eligible to run in this race.
