He's Been Working on the Railroad All the Live-Long 40 Years

By Albert Price
Marion L. Brown, 66, Simpson St., observed his 40th year railroading Sun., Aug. 4. He began Aug. 4, 1928, as a carpenter's helper on the Baltimore & Eastern, now a part of the Penn Central, at Love Point, Md. He was in the bridge and building department and, in time, became an operator of heavy equipment. In September, 1940, Brown was promoted to an inspector of bridges and buildings and was transferred to Harrington. He resided at Belle Derrickson's rooming house on Delaware Avenue, just behind the railroad station, until Jan. 3, 1941, when he and Mrs. Brown, the former Roxanna Horton, moved to 205 Center St. Brown says he has traveled many miles, from Olean, N. Y., to Norfolk, Va., to assist in emergencies, such as bridge washouts and repairs. The Browns have two children, Richard, 31, a consulting engineer, at Silver Spring, Md., and Mrs. Ralph Bankert, 26, who formerly taught school. She is soon to become a mother and resides in Freehold, N. J.

Angler Drowns Near Camden

A fisherman drowned Wed., Aug. 7, when he became tangled in an anchor line in Derby's Pond, near Camden. State police identified the man as Earl G. Edinger, 30, of Town and Country Trailer Park, Camden. He was pronounced dead at Kent General Hospital at 6:55 p.m.

According to reports, Mr. Edinger was fishing from a canoe when it upset. They said he became entangled in the anchor line. Persons on the bank notified police. Fire company rescue squads from Dover and Camden were dispatched to the scene, but Mr. Edinger's body was recovered by a spectator before arrival of the rescue teams.

Mr. Edinger was an employee of Standard Brands, Inc. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ioma Edinger; two daughters, Donna and Nancy Jean, both at home; his mother, Mrs. Ruth Delmar, and stepfather, Edward Delmar, both of Felton; a brother, Ronald, of Springdale, Pa.; a stepbrother, Dennis Delmar of Felton; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Wray, of Springdale and Mrs. Mary Ellen Boyd, of Felton, and a stepister, Miss Denise Delmar, of Felton.

Services were held Monday afternoon in the C. Wylie Funeral Home, Pittsburgh, Pa. Interment was in Oakmont (Pa.) Cemetery.

Bridge, Ferry Sets Traffic Record for July

Delaware River and Bay Authority set new traffic records in July over its two facilities — Delaware Memorial Bridge and the Cape May-Lewes Ferry. Ironically, ferry traffic increased over July 1967 by 1,479 vehicles, while the bridge was up by 1,039 crossings. The ferry increase was 40 vehicles ahead of its big brother, according to General Manager Theodore C. Bright.

However, Bright reported that Delaware Memorial Bridge set a new monthly record in July when it handled 1,679,902 vehicles. Income for the month was $1,005,768.83. Ferry traffic is off to a good start in August, Bright reported. There were 1574 and 1571 crossings the first Saturday and Sunday between Lewes and Cape May. In August 1967, there were only two days when volume exceeded 1500 vehicles.

All this was taking place as the bridge was approaching its 17th birthday on August 16 and plans were being completed for dedication of a twin structure on September 12. The ferry began its fifth year of operation on July 1.

Kent's Residents To Pay $2,071,067 In School Taxes

Kent County residents will pay an estimated $2,071,067 in school taxes this year. A report recently published by the Department of Public Instruction outlines the county's contribution to the education of its 19,539 public school students.

According to the publication "Assessments & Tax Rates", New Castle County will collect $17,396,269 to support its schools and Sussex will collect $1,748,986. The local districts contribute about 18% of the funds to support their schools. The state provides 76% of each district's funds and the federal government, 6%.

District taxes in Kent County range from a high of $845,338 in Dover to a low of $792 in Oak Point. Dover district residents pay the highest real estate tax rate at 91.5¢ per $100 valuation. Harrington reflects the county average with a 70¢ tax while the Oak Point school is supported solely by an $8 capitation tax.

The highest capitation taxes in the county—$18—are paid by Hartly and Houston district residents. The $5 capitation tax in the Kenton district is the county's lowest. Milford's $13 capitation tax is about average.

The figures do not include Dover Air Force Base schools, which are supported by the federal government, or Rose Valley and Wiley's districts. Figures from the latter two districts were not available. In addition to district taxes, county property owners pay a 2¢ tax to provide the $42,488 in county support for the Kent County Vocational Technical Center.

The Dover and Milford districts will also collect real estate taxes to support their local public libraries. Library taxes are not part of the public school costs but are collected with school taxes because the library districts coincide with school districts. Dover's 7.5¢ tax will provide $62,023 for its library and Milford's 4¢ will provide $11,186.

Total school taxes to be collected in each district are as follows: Dover, $845,338; Felton, $110,193; Frederica, $20,349; Harrington, $130,740; Hartly, $35,781. Houston, $16,240; Kenton, $14,450; Magnolia, $11,183; Milford, $192,521; Oak Point, $792; Caesar Rodney, $354,792; and Smyrna, $338,058.

7 Injured In Crash In Sussex

A two-car collision on U.S. 13 near Greenwood resulted in injuries to seven persons Tuesday, including a Maryland resident in critical condition in the Nanticoke Memorial Hospital, Seaford. Police said both cars were demolished.

Mrs. Annette Cohen, 40, of Pikesville, the daughter of the driver of one car, underwent several blood transfusions and later was taken into surgery for internal injuries, police said. Her condition was listed as critical Tuesday night.

The mishap, police said, occurred at about 10:20 a.m. at the intersection of U.S. 13 and Delaware 16, just east of Greenwood. Besides Mrs. Cohen, police said the injured, all treated and released after they had been taken to the hospital by Bridgeville and Blades ambulances are:

—Max Polovoy, 64, of Baltimore, operator of the car in which his daughter, Mrs. Cohen, was a passenger. Polovoy was treated for cuts to his scalp and elbows.

—His wife, Mary, 63, who suffered a cut right arm and brush burns of her shoulders.

—Fred Dyer, 41, of 304 Walnut St., Bridgeville, the driver of the other vehicle, a cut forehead, and his wife, Violet, 36, cuts to her right leg and rib injuries.

—The Dyers' children, Sharon, 9, and Lorraine, 7, cuts of their legs and hands.

Greenwood Man Receives Sussex Service Award

A Greenwood man was cited by Sussex County service clubs Tuesday night for his outstanding contributions to agriculture in southern Delaware.

E. Laird Kratz received the annual Service Club Award in ceremonies at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Agricultural Substation. Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences made the presentation.

Kratz, who is active in church and service club affairs, is a member of the Peninsula Horticultural Society and is active in its program to improve fruit products and Delaware fruit marketing. He helped organize the Delaware Electric Cooperative and served as secretary to its board of directors.

He served on the Agricultural Extension Service Fruit Advisory Committee for 10 years and was a member of the Farm Labor Committee during World War II. Kratz also represented agriculture on the Sussex County Selective Service Board during the war.

Sussex County service clubs began the award for outstanding contributors to southern Delaware agriculture in 1956. Approximately 250 club members and their wives attend the annual picnic supper presentation on the evening preceding the University's annual Farm and Home Field Day.

Boy, 7, Dies In Fall From Tree

The son of an airman now serving in Vietnam was killed when he fell from a tree and struck his head on the sidewalk in front of his home. State police identified the child as Ivan Dale Caswell, 7, son of Airman I C. and Mrs. Dale J. Caswell, of Main St., Felton.

Police said the boy apparently grabbed a rotten limb of a tree in the front yard and toppled 20 feet to the cement walk about 4 p.m. Monday. He was taken to Dover Air Force Base Hospital, where he was pronounced dead at 6 p.m. Police said a fractured skull was ruled the cause of death.

Ivan would have been in second grade at Felton Elementary School this September. In addition to his parents, he is survived by a sister, Elaine, 6, and two brothers, Timothy, 5, and Christopher, 4.

Services were held yesterday afternoon in the Torbert Funeral Home, Dover. Interment was in Sharon Hill Memorial Park.

Only State-Sold Vanity Tags Are Legal

It's against the law for your car to sport a vanity license plate unless it's one you purchased from the state for $25. An amendment to Senate Bill 291, which became effective July 1, prohibits licenses other than those of state issue on either front or rear of the car.

State Motor Vehicle Commissioner Russell W. Whitby said the law does not apply to signs with more than five letters, such as names of groups or the like. Personal vanity tags are being removed when cars go through state inspection lanes.

Felton Registers New Pupils

The parents of pupils who will enter Felton schools in September for the first time are requested to register their children at the school office as soon as possible. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 daily.

Pupils who are entering the first grade and who were not registered and tested last spring should present a birth certificate showing a date of birth prior to Jan. 1, 1963. Pupils who have not been tested for reading readiness will be tested during the first week of school.

No pupils will be registered on September 4, the first day of the new school year. Pupils not registered prior to that date will be required to wait until the following day. School will be dismissed at 12:30 on the opening day and a teacher workshop is scheduled for the afternoon. However the schools will operate on a regular full day schedule after the first day.

McGinnis Will Seek Senate Seat

Former State Sen. James D. McGinnis, after apparently patching up a county Democratic rift, announced Tuesday he would seek his old Senate seat, now held by Sen. Andy Foltz.

McGinnis, who originally had planned to run for the at-large Levy Court seat, said Democrat J. Edwin Lewis had withdrawn his bid for the Democratic nomination for the Senate seat.

Lewis could not be reached for comment. McGinnis' withdrawal from the Levy Court race leaves a clear field to Democrat George Record who had also announced.

Written communications should be addressed to the above at: 311 Landis Avenue, Vineland, N. J. 08360.

Dr. Ingram Quotes Firearms Purchase Law

Dr. Albert L. Ingram, Jr., Delaware's mental health commissioner, has outlined the procedure to be followed by former mental patients who wish to obtain firearms. A law approved by Gov. Charles L. Terry, Jr., on July 5, makes it a crime for certain persons to purchase or possess firearms.

In a memorandum Dr. Ingram points out that Section Two of the new law provides as follows: "Any person who has ever been committed for a mental disorder to any hospital, mental institution or sanitarium shall be granted 60 days from the enactment of this act to procure and possess a certificate from the State Board of Trustees of the Mental Health Department stating that he is no longer suffering from a mental disorder which interferes with or handicaps him in the handling of a firearm."

Dr. Ingram said that in implementing this section, "the Board of Trustees of the Delaware Department of Mental Health authorized the following procedure by which persons may fulfill the requirements of this law. The statute (Continued on Page 8)

Engaged

Linda Sue Richardson
Miss Richardson Engaged to Local Man

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin M. Richardson of Harrington announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Linda Sue Richardson, to Mike E. Wamsley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Wamsley also of Harrington. He is a graduate of Harrington High School and is now attending the University of Delaware.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Harrington High School and received an Associate Degree at the University of Delaware. She is now employed by the Delmarva Power & Light Company in Harrington. No definite date has been set for the wedding.

President To Attend Twin Span Dedication

President Lyndon B. Johnson has assured the governors of New Jersey and Delaware that he will attend ceremonies opening the second span of the Delaware Memorial Bridge. Completion of this second identical twin makes the Delaware Memorial Bridge the longest twin span bridge in the world.

Ceremonies will be held at 11 a.m. Thurs., Sept. 12. Site of the ceremonies will be the Bridge Plaza on the Delaware side of the bridge. A press headquarters will be opened to the left of the speaker's stand on the perimeter of the natural amphitheater created by the gently sloping area adjacent to the bridge.

Refreshments, press kits, typewriters and other assistance will be available at the press headquarters. Nearby there will be several mobile telephone units provided by the Diamond State Telephone Company.

Television stands are being erected as requested by television news directors. A three-tiered press platform for still photographers and working press will be located adjacent to the speaker's platform.

Electricity for cameras and other requirements is being installed at several points in the dedication site. A special parking area for press vehicles has been designated.

Editors and directors desiring advance press credentials and car stickers, or who may have specific requirements for which we can make arrangements, are urged to advise us of the names of those who will be covering this event. Write or telephone the following: Ralph C. Squillace (609) 692-6111, for press arrangements; Stan Orlin (609) 692-6111 for TV and radio arrangements.

Terry Scorecard: 85 Vetoes Bills

Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. has vetoed 85 bills in his four years as governor, a semiofficial tally revealed Tuesday. Terry cleared his desk of 124th General Assembly legislation Tuesday. The last bill became law without his signature at midnight.

The legislature has recessed for the summer, and perhaps for good. The bill which became law without signature Tuesday sets up a framework for county merit systems. New Castle and Kent Counties already have such systems.

Tuesday's count showed that Terry vetoed 35 measures from the overwhelmingly Democratic 123d General Assembly and 50 sent him by the 124th, which has had varying degrees of Republican control. This, the last year of Terry's term, has been the most active for the veto-writers in his office. He has disapproved 39 measures — 31 since Republicans gained control of the Senate and thus of the entire General Assembly on April 24.

The vetoes have accelerated steadily since then — one in May, three in June and a dozen in July. This month, Terry has vetoed 15 of the bills the General Assembly passed before recessing last month.

The scorecard for other years: 11 in 1967, six in 1966, and 29 in 1965. The Democratic 123d General Assembly held office in 1965 and 1966. No records are immediately available on the veto records of past governors, but Terry probably set a record in at least one respect: He vetoed three versions of the same bill — the auto registration fee rollback.

643,257 Pounds Of Meat Are Inspected

State inspectors checked 643,257 pounds of previously uninspected meat and meat products last month, a statement from the meat inspection division said Wednesday morning. The new inspection system was implemented in July.

The statement Wednesday morning said that the total for July was higher than expected. The figure, however, is expected to approach a million pounds a month during the coming winter as some plants closed for remodeling and as normally heavy winter operations begin.

Dr. Vincent Lobo, is one of the recipients of the Outstanding Young Men of America Award. The 33-year-old doctor, who resides at 12 Short Street, here, is married to the former Hurla Schulze, of Greenwood, and has one son, Steven. Dr. Lobo received his BS degree from the University of Delaware, his DO from the Pennsylvania College of Optometry, and his OD from the Pennsylvania College of Osteopathy Medicine. He completed his internship at Riverside Hospital in Wilmington.

This is a project of the non-profit Outstanding Americans Foundation, to recognize, honor and inspire young men for professional excellence, business advancement and civic contributions. These young

No Primary Here Tomorrow

All but five of the 21 primary election contests across the state Saturday will be for General Assembly seats. There will be no contest in the Harrington area. Eleven primaries will be held in New Castle County, seven in Sussex County, and three in Kent County. A series of withdrawals has reduced the number of primaries with more than two candidates per nomination to just two — one in Sussex and one in Kent. Polls will be open in all three counties Saturday from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Only persons registered as Republicans or Democrats are allowed to vote. A rundown of the contests for Kent and Sussex Counties is as follows:

Kent County
Three primary contests are scheduled in Kent County, all involving General Assembly seats. Incumbent Sen. Andy Foltz, of Dover, has been challenged by Stanley Mikell in the only Republican primary in the new 15th Senatorial District (the 29th and 31st Representative Districts). The area includes Dover and its environs. There is a three-way fight in the 32d Representative District, where Democrats Joseph Rawlins and William Cunningham of Bowers Beach and Ralph Smith of Milford all want the House nomination. The district is in the county's southeast corner. Mrs. Rebecca Twilley and Julius Tudor will vie in a primary for the Democratic nomination for the House from the new 31st District. The district includes Camden, Wyoming and the area just south and west of Dover. Another primary fight was averted Tuesday in a Democratic doubleplay. James McGinnis, who had been scheduled to oppose George M. Records for the at-large Levy Court seat, switched to the Senate race in the 15th District. J. Edwin Lewis, who had been the Democratic candidate there, dropped out.

Sussex County
Republicans will have five primary election contests Saturday in Sussex County, with two on tap for the Democrats. On the Democratic side, Sen. Curtis W. Steen of Dagsboro, will oppose Frank S. Parker of Millsboro in the 18th District. In the newly created 19th Senatorial District, the contest is between Dr. Charles F. Moore of Blades and Earle M. Tull, a Seaford businessman. On the Republican score-board there will be races for two senatorial slots and two representative seats, plus a county-wide office. In the 17th Senatorial District, Sen. Frank R. Grier of Milford, is being challenged by James Pepper, a Georgetown real estate salesman. There is a three-way battle for the candidacy in the 18th Senatorial District, involving Thomas E. Hickman Jr. of Bayard, Jesse F. Jones of Lewes and Carroll B. Farlow of Selbyville. Both Jones and Farlow have attempted to defeat Democrat Steen in the past. Rep. Louis R. Burton of Georgetown faces competition from George A. Bramhall of Georgetown in the 35th Representative District, while in the 39th representative district, Rep. Robert M. Dodge of Rehoboth Beach, the House majority whip, is opposed by David A. (Tony) Potter of Lewes. On the county level, the GOP has the only contest, a four-cornered battle over two candidacies on the Sussex County Levy Court. The competitors are William B. Chandler Jr. of Dagsboro, John Keller of Milford, Albert A. Tanyer of Laurel, and Richard L. Timmons of Ocean View.

KENT SEWER PLAN PUBLIC HEARING SET

Kent County Levy Court Tuesday tentatively set a public hearing on its proposed $7.2 million sewer project for late this month. Commissioners agreed to immediately place the advertisements which must appear in print 10 days before the hearing. The date of the hearing probably will be announced this week. Peter E. Maffa, the county's consulting engineer, explained to the court Tuesday that it still must choose whether to set a referendum on the project voluntarily or to gamble that it will win acceptance without a vote. This is the procedure, as explained by Maffa: After the public hearing, if there have been no major objections, Levy Court will adopt a resolution approving the new sewer district and the area it contains. Then it can call for a referendum, or it can choose to wait. If Levy Court does not ask for the vote, it can be demanded at any time within 30 days by a petition bearing the names of holders of 10 per cent of the assessed valuation in the district. The referendum then would be held within 45 days. In either case, residents would have one vote for each $1,000 in assessed valuation they hold in the proposed district. Only after passage of the referendum—or of 30 days after adoption of the Levy Court resolution — will work on preliminary designs begin. The county has a tentative commitment in federal funds to pay for 30 per cent of the project. The remainder would be paid in part by users in the district, and in part by those who hold contracts to share in the facilities. Such agreements are being negotiated with Dover Air Force Base and the municipalities, including Dover and Milford. The county sewer committee will meet this morning at 10:30 in Levy Court chambers to discuss Dover's proposed participation in the system. Also at Tuesday's meeting, the county commissioners were urged to help establish a county fire and ambulance call board. Commissioners Glenn A. Richter and Isaac Thomas came to the meeting with a letter from Charles A. Legates Jr., chairman of the call board committee of the Kent County Volunteer Fireman's Association. Richter, Thomas, Legates and other visited Anne Arundel County, Md., Saturday to study the emergency call board system there. Legates said that "since Kent County is the only county in our state without a central dispatch system for fire and ambulance, it is incumbent upon the fireman's association to establish a communications center as soon as is feasible." It is still to be decided whether the association, Levy Court, or another agency should operate the system. Levy Court took no action Tuesday.

Mrs. Earl Cain

Mrs. Carrie Cain, 82, a life-long resident of Felton, died at Milford Memorial Hospital last Friday after a short illness.

Her husband, Earl, died in 1961.

Survivors include two sons, James, Georgetown and William, Milford; three daughters, Mrs. Pearl Yankoskie, Spring City, Pa.; Mrs. Rosetta Crosley, Dover, and Mrs. Marie Tribbett, Felton; 21 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the Berry Funeral Home, Felton, with burial at the Hopkins Cemetery, near Felton.

Harley J. Rickert

Harley J. Rickert, 84, of Harrington, died last Friday at Fletcher Nursing Home, Felton, after a long illness.

Mr. Rickert, a native of Indiana, had lived in the Harrington area for about the past ten years. He owned the Family Shoe Store in Harrington. His wife, Mrs. Myrtle Rickert, died in 1952.

There are no immediate survivors.

Services and interment were held Tuesday in Nappanee, Ind. Friends called at the McKnatt Funeral Home, Harrington, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Jessie D. Ward

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Bessie) Ward, 93, of Harrington, died last Friday at Fletcher Nursing Home, Felton, after a long illness.

Mrs. Ward was a member of Prospect Methodist Church and its W.S.C.S. Her husband, Jessie D. Ward, died in 1945.

She is survived by a son, Joseph G. of Harrington; a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Wandell, of Ambler, Pa.; and three sisters, Mrs. Edgar L. Cain and Mrs. Florence Layton, both of Harrington, and Mrs. Morrow C. Hart, of Lansdowne, Pa.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the McKnatt Funeral Home. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

The dog days of August are a difficult time to be creative. County agents are like everyone else. You try to take care of what must be done. But the heat and humidity tend to stifle any energy that might have survived State Fair week.

A good example. I drove over to Rising Sun, Md., for some needed Milk-O-meter parts for our Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisors. But the parts man had gone out of business. So back to Newark for some testing acid only to find that the acid carboy pump was on the fritz. Frustrations!

Your county agent writes this column a week ahead to give the weekly newspapers time to set their type. Last week the lead item dealt with a visit to Kent County by Connecticut potato growers. Only trouble was—they didn't get here. We had a last minute cancellation because the weather is dry in Connecticut too and all their growers were busy watering their crops. Now they plan to come in late August.

Three big events happened this week—I think. The Substation Farm Field Day took place yesterday at Georgetown. But your county agent was scheduled to host 25 Australian potato growers with Joseph Lamberta of Smyrna. We had 114 New York State farmers on Tuesday looking at the Wheatley processing plant at Clayton, the Dover Air Force Base and the Papen Brothers fresh vegetable farm at Dover.

In the meantime, we had better wait to report what may have been newsworthy!

Solid praise should go to the Delaware State Grange for good service at the State Fair. Some members stayed and worked there all week. No doubt Pat Caulk, the master, will report some of the highlights in the Grange magazine.

Take the sweet corn for example. Three or four people were kept busy husking and preparing just this.

I noticed that the expanded building space was in use a good bit of the time. Good team work, good food, and good neighbor relations accounted for the success.

Other organizations worked willingly also. But it seems the Grange was the pacemaker.

I hope someone will bring back the "threshing dinner" next year to the fair. A group of antique farm machinery buffs feel they can develop enough teamwork for a stronger working show next year. Want to get in on it? Call 736-1448 and I'll clue you in with the leaders.

So your corn crop is insured. It looks terrible because of the effect of the drought in July. You would like to salvage what is there for silage.

"Fine, go ahead," says Bill Hutchison, of Clayton, who is in charge of the Federal Crop Insurance Program. "But phone first at 653-9024 so that the drought damage can be assessed. It is not necessary to wait until the corn matures before a settlement is made."

It Seams To Me

By Janet C. Reed

To line or not to line? That is the question—and it troubles many seamstresses.

Ask yourself why you want a lining or underlining. Does the fabric need extra stiffness to carry out the style you selected? Do you need to make your fabric opaque? Do you like the comfort of a lining? Do you want the fabric to have less elasticity? Once you define your purpose in using a lining the rest is easy, but it does require a knowledge of fabric drape and an "educated touch."

Lining or underlining fabrics may be classed as soft or crisp, each available in varying degrees. To determine what is right for your fabric, place one thickness of each together and see if it takes on the amount of extra body you want and allows the drape that is right for your pattern.

Unless you want the underlining to change the original hand or drape of the fabric, choose a soft type. The fabric should look and feel no different with both layers together. This lining would be used primarily for comfort and possibly to keep the fabric from stretching when the garment is worn.

The difference between linings and underlining is slight. Technically, each piece of an underlining is sewed to each piece of the outer fabric and the two are treated as one. A lining is usually assembled as a complete garment and attached to the outer garment with all raw edges enclosed.

Some garments such as coats and suit jackets may require both a lining and an underlining. An interfacing is a strip of fabric inserted between garment and facing to give extra firmness and support. Sometimes the underlining can serve as an interfacing.

A lined garment was never meant to be worn without a slip in spite of sales talk you may have heard. A fine silk lining will wear out quickly when exposed to body oils and perspiration. Even if you do not line with a silk fabric, the garment will stay clean longer and wear better when you wear a slip.

Another misconception about linings is that bonded fabrics do not need a lining. Many bonded fabrics consist of a thin out fabric and a lightweight knit lining. Both of these can stretch badly when the garment is worn so a firmly woven lightweight lining will help retain shape.

Also, bonded fabrics such as lace and acetate tricot are quite sheer and need the opaqueness of an added lining.

A lined garment is best dry cleaned unless you have thoroughly pre-shrunk both fabrics ahead of time.

The choice of linings and underlining is a matter of knowing what you want and using common sense to help you achieve it. Each problem is different and there's no one answer, but that's the fun of sewing.

It Doesn't Pay To Pinch

Buying fresh fruit is a touchy subject. People touch, pinch and rub fresh fruit trying to squeeze out the best ones.

It doesn't pay to pinch, says Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. Rough handling causes fruit spoilage and waste. The grocer has no choice but to pass this loss to the consumer, so costs go up.

Blueberries, grapes, melons, nectarines, peaches and plums are now in season. Take advantage of seasonal buys; quality is higher and prices more reasonable.

Buy blueberries that are plump, firm, uniform in size and free from stems or leaves. A dark blue color with a silvery bloom is a good indication of quality. This silvery bloom is a natural protective coating.

White or green grapes are sweetest when the color is yellowish or straw color with an amber tinge. Red varieties are better when a rich, red color is predominant over most of the berries. Whatever variety you choose, pick plump grapes that are firmly attached to the stem. Bunches are more likely to hold together if stems are green and pliable.

When you select melons, know the signs of maturity and ripeness. A mature fruit is ready to be picked, explains Miss Krackhardt. A fruit will ripen properly if it's picked when mature; otherwise it won't ripen at all.

A mature cantaloupe will have thick and coarse netting or veining. If all or part of the stem base remains or the stem scar is jagged, the melon's probably not mature.

A ripe cantaloupe will have a yellowish cast, pleasant odor and will yield slightly to (light) thumb pressure on the blossom end of the melon. Most supermarket cantaloupes are quite firm when freshly displayed. Hold them at room temperature until completely ripe.

Choose honey dew melons with a soft, velvety feel. A ripe honey dew is slightly soft at the blossom end, has a faint fruit aroma and a yellowish white to creamy rind color.

There are so many varieties of peaches it's easier to list what not to look for. Very firm or hard peaches with distinctly green ground color won't ripen properly. Also avoid very soft fruits, which are overripe. Don't buy peaches with large flattened bruises or with signs of decay.

Plum varieties differ widely in appearance and flavor, so you should buy and taste just a few to see if that variety appeals to you. Avoid fruits with skin breaks, punctures, or brownish discoloration.

Nectarines combine characteristics of both peach and plum. Look for rich color, plumpness and a slight softening along the "seam".

It seldom pays to buy perishable fruit just because price is low, concludes Miss Krackhardt. Unless the lower price is a result of overabundance, the so-called bargain may be unusable. Remember fruits are perishable — buy only what you can use.

Let's put an end to fear and failure!

Never has the time been so right for the leadership of Russ Peterson.

The blundering policies and inaction of an outdated, old-politics state administration have miserably failed the people of Delaware. The results are obvious. Wherever you look . . . fear, no confidence, a lack of hope.

Delaware desperately needs a change. Not just for the sake of change . . . but a change that will turn things around and get us thinking and moving positively again. Russ Peterson is the only candidate for Governor with the proven ability to inspire, to lead and to accomplish what needs to be done to get us going forward.

Russ Peterson does not steer away from the issues of our day. He speaks out for law and order with justice, for attacking the causes of lawlessness and unrest, for better jobs, better education, better housing . . . a better future for all Delawareans. His record in the war against crime speaks for itself:

While others have just talked about doing something to reduce crime, he led a citizens' movement from 1961-64 to protect the community from rising crime by providing tighter control and supervision of offenders. He also caused legislation to be introduced recently calling for mandatory minimum jail terms for those who repeat crimes of violence. He has for years urged strengthening and upgrading our police forces.

Russ Peterson is a man dedicated to bringing common sense management to government. He is experienced in stopping wasteful spending and in solving problems. He has repeatedly pointed out the irresponsible handling of taxpayers' money by the present administration and has called for an end to programs that aren't working so that we can afford needed programs that will work.

His philosophy stems from these basic beliefs:

- 1) Every person must have the opportunity to earn self-respect and dignity.
- 2) People working together can solve almost any problem.
- 3) Problems cannot truly be solved without an attack on the conditions that cause them.

Under the leadership of Russ Peterson, such a philosophy is not a dream. Russ Peterson is a practical man who gets things done. He can make it work. And, we need to make it work.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

The first of next month (Sept.) will be the tenth anniversary of my life on Paradise Alley Road. During that time the dirt road has become a busy thoroughfare, being the first blacktop tar mixture with existing loamy sand.

We understand rail and highway approval has been granted for flashing light warning signals at the railroad crossing at Mile Post 61.

It has been my good fortune since coming here, to enjoy a retired life with good health and a lot of good neighbors in an environment which prompts recalling poetic scenes of my childhood, such as—

LETTING THE OLD CAT DIE

Not long ago I wandered

Near a playground in the wood (Wheeler's Park)
 And there heard words from a youngster's lips
 That I never quite understood.

"Now! Let the old cat die," he said,
 And I saw him give something a push,
 Then gaily scampered away
 As he saw my face peep over the bush.

"The little villain has stoned a cat
 And hung it upon a limb,
 And left it to die all alone," said I
 But I'll play the mischief with him.

I forced my way between the boughs,
 The poor old cat to seek;
 But what did I find but a swinging child,
 Who's light hair brushed her cheek.

Her waving locks flitted to and fro
 Her little red dress flashed by,
 But the liveliest thing of all, I thought,
 Was the gleam of her laughing eye.

"Steady, I'll send you up," I said,
 But she stopped me with a sigh;
 Go way! Go way! Don't touch me please
 I'm letting the old cat die.

"Your letting him die!" I cried aghast,
 Why, "where's the cat my dear?"
 And, lo! The laughter that filled the woods
 Was a thing for the birds to hear.

Why, don't you know, laughingly said
 That smiling beautiful elf,
 We call it "Letting the old cat die,"
 When the swing stops all by itself.

So, swinging and swaying and looking back
 With the merriest light in her eye,
 I bade her "Goodbye" and left her alone
 Letting the old cat die.

After agriculture had suffered untold damage from drouth, torrential rains in this area Friday and early Sunday morning, did some damage when they formed numerous ponds, some knee-deep. These flooded areas were particularly noticeable in the Barratt's Chapel District.

Editor
 Harrington Journal
 Harrington, Delaware 19952

Dear Sir:
 It is with great pleasure that I send this letter trusting you will print same. I feel that Harrington is being honored to have such a well qualified gubernatorial candidate such as Cubbage Brown, a native Harringtonian. This man, not only being a native of our fair city, is a well educated, highly skilled attorney, renowned harness horseman, and understanding of all people's problems. I feel personally that if each individual would analyze this man's ability, they would agree that he is the best qualified Republican candidate for Governor.

Very truly your,

Letter to Felton Area Residents

From Representative
 G. R. QUILLEN

It is with much disfavor I must inform my constituents of the Felton area that the Governor vetoed my bill appropriating funds to the State Highway Department for construction of the new road to the new Felton High School. At this writing, I have not as yet received the veto message stating the reasons for veto, but will inform you at a later date.

I am sure that the teaching profession is aware that the Governor signed a $400.00 pay increase effective July, 1969.

In your new county tax bill you noticed a two per cent tax increase for vocational schools. This can be increased in the next year's bill. This new tax, I feel, is unjust and I voted against Bill for this. Reason No. 1 — it should be included in State Board of Education's Budget Request. Reason No. 2 — it is unconstitutional as it originated in the Senate and should have been from the House.

The bill that the Practical Nurses had an interest (H.B. #635); died in the Senate, therefore, is a bill which no longer exists.

Social Security Notes

On August 14 Social Security in America will be 33 years old.

When it began, almost a third of a century ago, it was merely a pension system providing income protection for certain workers when they reached retirement age. It was a step in the right direction, but it did not provide for the wife and children of a retired worker nor did it provide for the family if the breadwinner died before reaching retirement age.

In 1939, amendments were passed that provided benefits for dependents and survivors of insured workers. The worker was protected, and when he retired or died, his family had protection too. In 1950 social security coverage was extended to millions of people who had not been covered under the original law—people like farm workers, domestic workers, certain self-employed people, and many more. In the years after 1950 even more occupations were to become covered—for instance, ministers, members of the Armed Forces, and self-employed doctors.

Currently, about one out of every eight people in the United States is protected by social security.

In 1956 disabled workers became eligible for monthly benefits as early as age 50 if they were totally disabled. Two years later, a disabled worker's dependents also became eligible for monthly payments. And in 1960 a disabled worker became eligible for monthly benefits at any age, if he had worked long enough under social security.

In 1965, Congress created Medicare, a system of health insurance under social security to help people 65 and older pay their hospital and medical bills. Beginning in 1967, severely disabled widows became eligible for benefits at 50 instead of having to wait until 60, people who became disabled before they reached 31 no longer needed as much work under social security in order to qualify for benefits, and children could become eligible on their mother's account under exactly the same rules as on their father's earnings, etc.

If you would like more information about your rights under the social security law, write, visit, or phone your local social security district office. The social security office in Dover is located at 19 Blue Hen Mall. The phone number is 674-3610. It is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, and for your added convenience until 8 p.m. on Thursdays.

Why not try some of these handy tricks with soap?

Drawers — Make a sticking, squeaky drawer slide easily and quietly by rubbing the tops of both sides and the under surfaces with soap.

Light Bulbs — Press a bar of damp soap into the broken ends of a light bulb and turn left to remove it from the socket. But remember, first turn off the current; if in doubt, remove the fuse.

Nails and Screws — Lubricate nails and screws with soap to make them easier to drive into wood or plaster.

Pots and Pans — Protect the bottoms and sides of pots and pans for outdoor cooking with a thin film of soap or detergent suds. Later the soot will wash off readily with the suds.

Wallpaper Paste — make wallpaper easier to apply and also prevent the hardening that causes it to crack and peel, by adding a small amount of soap or detergent to the paste bucket.

Windowpanes — protect windowpanes when painting the frames by coating each pane with a thick paste of soap or detergent and water. Afterwards, paint splatters wash off easily with the suds paste.

Moral: Some People Want To Stay The Way They Are

The classical definition of liberalism is grossly distorted in the belief of many of the new-style liberals that government is the friend and protector of the people.

Mr. James H. Lorie, Professor of Business Administration at the University of Chicago, takes exception to the new liberalism: "The Constitution of the United States was based in part on the belief that people needed protection . . . from the government, and that free, competitive enterprise was the most efficient engine for promoting the public good . . . the intellectual climate of this country

St. Stephen's is again glad to have her faithful friend and former vicar, the Rev. Joseph S. Hinks, in the chancel today. During the service, Father Hinks will read a letter from the congregation of St. Stephen's, which was prepared by the vestry to Bishop Mosley, in appreciation of his devoted service to the diocese and to St. Stephen's.

On September 29, from 4 to 6 p.m. there will be a reception and tea, probably at the Cathedral in Wilmington, in honor of Bishop and Mrs. Mosley. At that time a gift, probably of money, will be presented to the Mosleys from the people of the diocese. Those who desire to have part in this gift may get it to the office or may get it to the secretary of the vestry, Mrs. Clyde Perry. Surely everyone will want to take this opportunity of expressing his and her gratitude to Bishop and Mrs. Mosley for their devoted service over the years.

At that time the President pointed out that "a disabled placed the burden of proof for the necessity of interference with the market process on those who would interfere. Interference was presumed to be an error unless an overwhelming case could be made for it. In the present intellectual climate, the reverse is probably true - actions by the government to regulate business are presumed to be beneficial and the burden of proof is on 'those who oppose it.'"

The professor then compares the tender concern of government for the consumer to the Boy Scout who came to a scout meeting with a 'black eye. The scout explained that he had tried to help a little old lady across the street. "How in the world," asked the scoutmaster, "could you get a black eye doing that?" He replied, "She didn't want to go." It could be that people do not wish to go where the new liberals are leading them.

Leland E. Hobbs

Leland E. Hobbs, age 58 years, husband of Catherine Hobbs, 110 Hanley Street, died Tuesday in Milford Memorial Hospital. He was a retired farmer.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, L. Lester Hobbs, Harrington; one daughter, Miss Marjorie E. Hobbs, at home; one grandchild; five brothers, Ormond, Herman and James Hobbs, all of Harrington; Preston and William Hobbs, both of Wilmington; three sisters, Mrs. Beulah Messick, Milford; Mrs. Irene Clark, Flatwoods, Ky., and Mrs. Mildred Poore, Wilmington.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the McKnatt Funeral Home, 50 Commerce Street, where friends may call on Friday evening. Interment will be in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington.

veteran can take Vocational Rehabilitation and receive a training allowance only if he trains full time. This restriction may present him with a hard choice; leave his job for training, or forego the training itself.

"Clearly, that choice is unfair," the President said.

PL 90-431 continues the requirement that the veteran generally be rated at least 30 per cent service-disabled in order to be eligible for vocational rehabilitation but establishes a pro-rata schedule of training allowances based upon three-quarters and half-time training, Mr. Fields said.

The VA Regional Office Manager explained that the full-time vocational rehabilitation training allowance remains at $110 monthly for veterans with no dependents, $150 for veterans with one dependent, and $175 for veterans with two or more dependents.

Permitted for the first time under PL 90-431 are three-quarters time training allowances of $80, $110 and $130 monthly, respectively, for veterans with no dependents, one dependent and two or more dependents, Mr. Fields said.

The newly authorized half-time training allowances are $55, $75 and $85 monthly.

Under the part-time vocational rehabilitation program, the VA will pay all tuition, fees and other training costs in addition to the training allowance, as it has done under the established full-time program, Mr. Fields said.

He emphasized that in addition to the training allowance and costs, the eligible service-disabled veteran, whether receiving full-time or part-time vocational rehabilitation training, is also paid a service-connected disability compensation from VA based on his degree of disability.

Veterans rated 50 per cent or more disabled also receive an added dependents allowance as part of their compensation benefits.

Fields said that detailed information on the liberalized vocational rehabilitation training program can be obtained from the Wilmington VA Regional Office handling the claims for eligible disabled veterans in this area.

Let's Get Our Terms Straight

This is the era of dissent in America and it is time that the meaning of the word and its corruption with some other words were delineated.

The main problem with dissent is not to keep it from being crushed. Far from it. Instead, it is how to keep it from being corrupted.

Dissent, in its most grammatical and literal sense, merely means "to disagree." Thing of the crimes that have been committed under the mere guise of dissent. Dissent doesn't mean to disrupt, to block, to hamper, to humiliate, to discredit, to steal, to shoot, to infiltrate, to overturn, to take over, etc.

Voltaire's true comment about not agreeing with the speaker but defending his right to say it surely never meant for dissent to take in the territory it now does. And the worst offenders in our society today are those who tolerate the distortion of true dissent. They equate unreasonable wrecking with reasonable reckoning.

The notion has taken a deep hold in some segments of American life that somehow dissenters are automatically and invariably more courageous, more noble, more discerning and hence more correct than anyone else in the country.

A considerable body of American men and women appear to believe that, whether the issue be Vietnam or some other, the only honorable place to be is among the dissenters. But in a democratic society founded upon real debate and reasoned choices, the defenders and advocates of both sides of every great issue must be honored.

This is true whether it may be a national, state or local issue. You have a certain percentage of our society whose whole lives are devoted to being "agin" something. They are often frustrated persons who have no real contribution to make in society's true debate on things. They have a closed mind, accumulated prejudices, social maladjustments, logically, carry a constant chip on their shoulder and don't ever want to hear the other side.

We've always had these.

You know someone who fills the bill. We personally always think of them as destructive critics.

But this is not the particular breed we're thinking about. They never get violent, do overt acts or the like; in fact, they never show up in wide, public places but prefer small audiences and a certain degree of anonymity.

Now, this animal does some harm but nothing in common to the newly-bred varmints running loose.

Dissent has become a cover for the anarchists, the foreign invaders, the militants, the draft-card burners, the carrying of Viet Cong flags, sit-ins at draft boards, campus capers, the whole works, the broad spectrum of distortion.

The idea that anything goes regardless of its effect upon the democratic process, the rule of law instead of men, the whole notion of freedom as it underlies this society must be corrected.

Let's rest our sights. Let's keep in mind what our forefathers meant by freedom—freedom to dissent, too. Let's distinguish between constructive and destructive criticism.

Eight Magic Rules

Here are eight rules to living to be 100. Be a woman. Choose a family with a history of longevity. Don't drink or smoke. Be moderate and regular in your habits. Raise a family. Work hard. Be contented. Live in the country.

These are the findings of a survey which was conducted in Britain after it was discovered recently that there are 800 centenarians living in that country.

The questioning turned up other rules for living to a ripe old age, ranging from eating lots of onions to drinking stout, but the aforementioned are those most of those surveyed agreed upon. — Joplin (Mo.) Globe

Who Needs Food?

We were somewhat distressed to learn that four young men who've undergone 50 days and nights sealed in a mock spaceship out in Santa Monica, California, requested upon their release (1) hot meals and (2) girls—in that order.

It seems clear that the long confinement has scrambled their mental processes. Not that we have anything against hot meals. But such pragmatic men, it is safe to predict, will never reach the moon. —Asheville (N. C.) Citizen

Mr. and Mrs. John Clark and sons, Jack, David and Glenn, of near Smyrna, spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. C. Emory Webb.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton
"Generally hot and humid; few light to moderately heavy scattered showers over most of the eastern states." This has been the weather forecast for many days and it describes a condition that calls for inactivity. This is true for humans and it seems to apply to plants as well.

The large crop of fresh peaches that had been predicted is now described as light. This is especially so for most summer varieties, and harvesting is nearly over. Other varieties are ripening, but they, too, seem to be in fairly light supply in Maryland and Delaware. The early apple market is nearly over; and it too is described as very light with the best opportunities for buying these apples at roadside markets.

Supplies of cantaloupes in our area are moderate with active roadside and local sales. The season for local watermelons is now under way, with all popular eastern shore varieties available in good supply and of excellent quality.

The vegetable situation is a bit better. In fact, potatoes are "in distress." Prices have been declining at wholesale for the past two weeks. This has been a good year for potatoes and the yield per acre has been large. Then, too, the early summer and the late summer crops are now overlapping due to the later-than-normal harvesting of the early crop.

Tomatoes should be in large supply, since many acres are planted in tomatoes. However, due to the weather large numbers of this vegetable have cracked, blistered, and are of poor quality. As a result prices are not as low as was anticipated. Delaware cabbage is limited in supply, and most of the cabbage sold at retail is arriving from New York, Pennsylvania, and other growing areas. Local summer squash is now in light supply, and prices have edged up on this vegetable. The meat picture remains much as it has been for the past two weeks. As far as beef is concerned the chuck cuts continue to offer the most economical buys. However, a few stores will offer good buys on sirloin and rib steaks. If you've been wondering when beef prices will decline, it won't be until after August. This is true for pork also.

Veterans' News

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS
Q—I plan to enter college under the G.I. Bill in September and intend to take one three-semester-hour course. With a wife and three children, I must also work. Will I receive extra training allowance for my dependents?
A—No. A veteran enrolled for less than half time can be paid the cost of the course only but not to exceed $30. Three semester hours are one quarter time for an undergraduate student. Thus you will not receive additional training allowance for your dependents.
Q—I am a World War II veteran receiving VA service-connected disability compensation for blindness of both eyes. I have never received the $1,600 automobile allowance. Is it possible to receive this benefit now?
A—You may now be eligible for this benefit. You should file a claim with the Veterans Administration regional office which maintains your records. The "Veterans Pensions and Readjustment Assistance Act of 1967," signed into law last Aug. 31, removes the time limit in which eligible veterans can apply for this benefit.
Q—I am thinking of selling my home which I bought with a G.I. loan. The loan has not been paid in full. If the prospective buyer defaults, will I be liable to the Veterans Administration for the unpaid amount of the loan? Is there any way I can be released from this liability?
A—The answer to both of your questions is yes. If you sell your home, which has not been paid for, and the buyer defaults on the G.I. loan, you will be liable to VA for any amount VA must pay the lender under the loan guaranty contract.
However, the VA generally will release you from all further liability to the Government if the buyer of your home will assume full liability for the repayment of the loan in a written agreement required by VA.
You should write to the VA office that guaranteed your loan before you sign a sales contract and ask for the necessary forms and instructions on how you can be released from personal liability on your loan.

Ferry Passenger, Vehicle Traffic Sets Record

Both vehicular and passenger traffic counts set new all-time high records this past weekend on the Cape May-Lewes Ferry, reported General Manager Theodore C. Bright this week.
On Sat., Aug. 10, there were 1,690 vehicles tabulated on the huge bayliners. Sunday's figure was 1,672 vehicles.
Both days topped the previous high established one year earlier, on a Saturday in August, 1967, when 1,653 vehicles used the Ferry.
Passenger totals also hit new highs this weekend. Saturday's figure of 6,354 and Sunday's of 6,641 both were higher than the previous record set last year of 6,327 on one day.
The Cape May-Lewes Ferry, now in its fifth year of service across the mouth of Delaware Bay, has expanded its summer schedule of sailings five times since Memorial Day to accommodate the ever-increasing flow of traffic, said Bright.

Help Prevent Home Poisonings

Too much of a good thing can be deadly, says John S. McDaniel, agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware.
Aspirin has cured a good many aches and pains, but it's also responsible for the greatest number of accidental poisonings. In fact, aspirin has caused more poisoning accidents than soaps, detergents, cleaners, bleaches, vitamins and minerals, pesticides, poisonous plants, polishes and waxes, hormones or tranquilizers.
Over 600,000 poison accidents involving pre-school children occur in the United States each year, says McDaniel. Results of these accidents are sometimes curable. But accidents are always preventable.
Read and understand the label of any product that looks suspicious. Household cleaners, lighter fluid, kerosene, medicines, furniture polishes, cosmetics, pesticides, glue and even vitamin food supplements can be dangerous if not used properly.
Keep all products in their original containers, he adds. How is a small child to know that kerosene stored in a soft drink bottle is any different from other sodas? And don't treat medicines like candy. A spoonful of sugar might make medicine go down easier, but treating the medicine cabinet like a candy jar can set a dangerous example.
Discourage prying fingers by storing poisons out of reach. That kitchen cabinet might be handy for the housewife, but it can be a prime target for a curious child. And take a few extra minutes to put a lock on cabinets used for storage.
Should you ever suspect that a poisoning has occurred, call a doctor at once, says McDaniel. Or call the Poison Information Service at 655-3889. Be sure to keep the suspected product container so the proper treatment can be administered. Most important, don't panic and don't delay in summoning help.

Help Prevent Home Poisonings

Too much of a good thing can be deadly, says John S. McDaniel, agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware.
Aspirin has cured a good many aches and pains, but it's also responsible for the greatest number of accidental poisonings. In fact, aspirin has caused more poisoning accidents than soaps, detergents, cleaners, bleaches, vitamins and minerals, pesticides, poisonous plants, polishes and waxes, hormones or tranquilizers.
Over 600,000 poison accidents involving pre-school children occur in the United States each year, says McDaniel. Results of these accidents are sometimes curable. But accidents are always preventable.
Read and understand the label of any product that looks suspicious. Household cleaners, lighter fluid, kerosene, medicines, furniture polishes, cosmetics, pesticides, glue and even vitamin food supplements can be dangerous if not used properly.
Keep all products in their original containers, he adds. How is a small child to know that kerosene stored in a soft drink bottle is any different from other sodas? And don't treat medicines like candy. A spoonful of sugar might make medicine go down easier, but treating the medicine cabinet like a candy jar can set a dangerous example.
Discourage prying fingers by storing poisons out of reach. That kitchen cabinet might be handy for the housewife, but it can be a prime target for a curious child. And take a few extra minutes to put a lock on cabinets used for storage.
Should you ever suspect that a poisoning has occurred, call a doctor at once, says McDaniel. Or call the Poison Information Service at 655-3889. Be sure to keep the suspected product container so the proper treatment can be administered. Most important, don't panic and don't delay in summoning help.

Marydel Girl Outstanding Del. 4-H'er

A 16-year-old Marydel girl has been named the outstanding Delaware 4-H'er at the American Institute of Cooperation meeting in Blacksburg, Va.
Margaret Thomas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Thomas, received a $50 VIP scholarship.
Miss Thomas, who has completed six years of 4-H club work, is president of the Westville 4-H club. She has been active in 4-H demonstrations at the state and county levels and has won blue ribbons in the Reddy Foods contest for the past three years. She has also received three judging scholarships to 4-H camp and was awarded a trip to New York as the Delaware 4-H poultry winner. Miss Thomas has also participated in the Junior Broiler program since 1962 and served on the National Chicken Cooking Contest committee in 1967.
She also served as a youth panel discussion leader on community public relations for cooperatives at the four day AIC meeting at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.
Miss Thomas was selected for the award by the youth committee of the Delaware Council of Farm Cooperatives.
Other Delaware youngsters attending the conference were Gary Drummond, Greenwood; Susan Feucht, Middletown; Janice Harrison, Goldsboro, Md.; Steve Henry, Laurel; Beverly Luicks, Wyoming; Daniel Vanderwende, Bridgeville; John Vincent, Milton; John Webb, Ellendale, and M. J. Webb, III, Greenwood.
Accompanying the group were Alan Slobojan, vocational agriculture instructor at Newark High School and Mr. and Mrs. David Elliott, Laurel. Elliott is president of the Delaware Council of Farm Cooperatives, sponsor of the delegation.

Bad News And Youth

Newspapers everywhere, including this one, are often accused of printing only the "bad news," especially where young people are concerned. We have frequently been asked, "Why don't you emphasize more of the good things our teenagers do instead of always telling the bad things?"
Our curiosity drove us to investigate and see for ourselves how must "bad news" we really print. We chose (at random) three issues of the Standard Press and counted (1) the stories favorable to youth and (2) the stories that may be considered unfavorable.
We did not include sports in the survey, since such reports are too obviously favorable. Here is the count we came up with. You might be quite surprised.
Oct. 26, 1967: Stories favorable to young people, 15; stories unfavorable, 2.
Jan. 18, 1968: Stories favorable, 20; stories unfavorable, 4.
May 2, 1968: Stories favorable, 18; stories unfavorable, 3.
Totals for the three issues: Stories favorable, 53, stories unfavorable, 9.
Perhaps people only remember the "bad news".

BURN 'N SERVE

Kent County Engineer Walter Fritz has come up with a new idea: buying landfill areas, to sell them later. He calls the purchase a "recoverable investment." That means the land will be worth more after the County gets through with it, than it is before they use it for a dump.
Funny thing; that's just what Democratic Levy-Courtman Bill Holden said before the first landfill lease was signed. Filling poor land makes it a better buy.
So why are the GOP Three on the Levy Court paying $4,800 a year to three men for the privilege of making their land more valuable?
And just why those particular three locations, anyway? If Herman's Boys don't know, maybe their "know-nothing" candidate for governor has the answer. How 'bout that, Boss?

Too bad Mr. Fritz doesn't think as much about landfill neighbors as he does about "recoverable investments." Seems the dirt road to one dump runs practically through a neighbor's living-room. And nothing the man could do would get it changed. "People Power" doesn't count for much with Herman's Boys.

DOLLAR DRAIN DEPT.: Not only are GOP lawmakers not getting "Vanity Dollars" from their State Auditor. (He already had initials on his station wagon.) The last we saw, they weren't even getting the regular license fee. The careful Auditor's tag ran out in June; and no one ever noticed. Some oversight, George!

People power does count with the Democrats. Choose your candidates in Saturday's Primary voting.

Del. 4-H'er Wins Tractor Driving Contest

An 18-year-old Lewes youth will represent Delaware in regional 4-H tractor driving competition at the Virginia State Fair in Richmond next month.

John Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, advanced to the 22 state regional event after winning the Delaware state 4-H tractor driving contest at the Delaware State Fair.

Martin, who has completed five years of 4-H club work, is president of the Kool Kats 4-H Club. He has carried tractor projects for the past three years and has received two county awards. He has also received county awards in gardening.

Accompanying Martin to Richmond will be his coach, Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware. Both will arrive in Richmond on September 22 to participate in a get-acquainted banquet and tour Jamestown, Yorktown and colonial Williamsburg.

The regional tractor contest will include a written examination on maintenance and safe operation and a practical examination on maintenance. Driving competition includes handling a tractor and wagon on a course designed to represent a farm lot situation.

The Eastern United States 4-H Tractor Operators Contest is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service of the participating states and is designed to give 4-H'ers an opportunity to demonstrate their tractor maintenance knowledge and their skill in operation.

Other winners in the Delaware contests include Gene Wells, Milton, second; Daniel Vanderwende, Bridgeville, third; and David Robinson, Townsend, fourth. Jimmy Higdon, Townsend, finished fifth while Jim Harrison, Goldsboro, Md., placed sixth. Seventh and eighth place winners were Roy Schepins, Maryland, and Jeff Moore, Newark.

The commissioner added: "(1) Those persons residing in New Castle County should apply directly to the superintendent of the Delaware State Hospital who shall then arrange for an evaluation by a senior psychiatrist to determine the individual's eligibility to possess and handle firearms.

"(2) Those persons residing in Kent or Sussex Counties may apply to the directors of the Mental Hygiene Clinics in their respective counties, where a similar process shall be followed. The clinics in Kent and Sussex Counties shall have available to them the records of the Delaware State Hospital upon request.

"(3) In the event a certificate is not issued due to current ineligibility of the applicant, a Review Committee shall then consider the application. The Committee shall consist of the Commissioner, the Superintendent of the Delaware State Hospital, and either the deputy to the Superintendent of the Delaware State Hospital or the Director of the Clinic involved, whichever is appropriate in the individual case being considered.

"(4) When appropriate, a certificate shall be issued to the applicant with a copy retained for his medical records and a copy to be retained by the commissioner's office."

McGINNIS

ed for the county court seat. McGinnis' morning press conference was attended by Ned Davis, the governor's press secretary, and Kent County Chairman Vernon B. Derrickson.

"The Democratic Party is united and we are going to win," Derrickson said. "Jim is going on to win and he is going on further. He is a man of ambition, a man of courage, a man of foresight."

McGinnis said he did not know what plans Lewis, a Senate attaché, had.

"He was my candidate for the Senate," McGinnis said. "I'm not sure why he withdrew. If any deal was made it was without my knowledge."

Political observers had long felt McGinnis wanted a shot at trying to get back his Senate seat which he lost to Foltz in the 1966 election.

McGinnis served two years in the Senate and two years in the House of Representatives.

McGinnis, owner of a food market chain and executive vice president of the Cloverleaf Standardbred Owners Association, said he would hold bi-weekly press conferences to present his stand on the issues.

However, he did say he would not make open housing—which Foltz had supported—an issue.

"We haven't had an opportunity to see how a federal law works. I don't like to have four laws to accomplish the same purpose," McGinnis said, adding he would prefer to see the effect of the federal law before supporting state legislation.

He also came out strongly in favor of an open meetings law which failed to win passage in the last General Assembly, but was backed by Foltz.

"I would support it 100 percent," McGinnis said. "Not only would I introduce it, I'd get it passed and I'd give you two-to-one odds I'd get it signed."

McGinnis pointed to the mosquito control program and the establishment of state kindergartens as two of his major accomplishments when he served in the General Assembly.

He declined to comment on Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr.'s veto of a kindergarten bill which would have allowed funding of state supported kindergartens for every school district which has requested them for this fall.

He said he would have to discuss the matter with the governor to learn Terry's reasons before commenting.

McGinnis, making an oblique reference to some intra-party differences, said, "I Echoing What Professors Say; Does Student Learn Anything?

It may save heartache and harsh words in some families if we share with you some things we have learned about higher education in our country. Perhaps as good a place as any to begin is with the case of an East Coast family. The father earned a doctor's degree, and taught at two or three top-name universities. He is the author of half-a-dozen books, at least two of which have had national prominence. One of his sons survived college. The second did not.

After one semester, the father sternly told the second son that it was not his responsibility to educate his professors, that he would win his sheepskin only if he could learn the art of echoing what his professors intoned, even if he knew the concepts to be cokeyed. This particular young man wouldn't. He quit, served a tour in the Marines, entered private enterprise, and is on the way to making it big. So we won't worry about him. He'll be heard from.

Another case: A young lady we know has become a useful citizen and mother after being flunked in a senior high school course for an essay documenting that the Tito regime in Yugoslavia is a Communist government. The teacher had insisted no. Her father had entertained anti-Communist refugees from Yugoslavia in their home. She chose to take the "F" and earn the passing grade in a summer session.

The point is that parent after parent can testify that their youngsters in college can succeed only if they learn to echo what their professors say. That frequently means forgetting what they have learned earlier, what they have am still a Democrat and a good one. We owe it to the people of our country . . . to stop fighting. We are here for one purpose . . . to prove the Democrats are going to unite and win in November."

Delaware Farm Labor News

State Summary
Most seasonal workers in the state are working full time this week, several growers are indicating that their crews are short of enough workers to do their job properly. Some rain fell during the past week but most areas are in need of additional moisture. There is no need for additional crews in the state at the present time although some additional individuals could be placed.

Wilmington Area
The potato harvest continues to move slowly with approximately 280-300 workers. Tomatoes are using 150 workers and a sugar corn cannery is using 40 contract Puerto Ricans. Despite some showers, irrigation of potatoes, sugar corn, lima beans and late cabbage continues. One potato grower is finished, and his crew is moving on to work in Long Island.

Dover Area
There were scattered showers throughout the area, but irrigation of sugar corn, lima beans and late cabbage continues. There are approximately 700 workers harvesting potatoes. There are 300 workers picking tomatoes and another 100 migrant workers in tomato canneries. One sugar corn processing plant is using 25 contract Puerto Ricans and 45 walk-ins are picking for fresh market. Peaches are using 21 local men and 35 walk-in Puerto Ricans. There are approximately 50-60 workers picking snap beans. The labor situation is fairly good, but several growers could use individuals to round out their crews.

Georgetown Area
Processing local tomatoes, snap beans, and lima beans. Due to dry season yield of lima beans reported poor to fair. Tomatoes all size, some growers are irrigating to supplement soil moisture. Harvest hands picking cucumbers, tomatoes, sweet corn, peaches, watermelons and cantaloupes. All available crews have full-time work, but several crews need individuals to supplement. Laurel Auction Block reported excellent season to date. Prices for cantaloupes and watermelons expected to remain high this week. Farm Labor office at Laurel Auction Block, filled 290 job openings during past week.
