

CITIZENS MEETING TONIGHT, CITY ELECTION TUESDAY

The annual citizens meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., today in the Fire Hall, followed by the municipal election Tuesday.

At the meeting, petitions will be read from the candidates seeking to run in the election. Mayor Fulton J. Downing and Council will be present. Copies of the annual financial statement will be available for those attending and the mayor and Council will answer questions on it. It is possible, also, the mayor will recite accomplishments of the past year and the hopes of the next administration.

There are two candidates for mayor — Councilman G. Bradley, First Ward, and Councilman Burton E. Satterfield, Third Ward. The unexpired term of the winner will be filled by a person named by the Council. The mayor serves two years; councilmen, three.

In the race for the City Council, John S. Satterfield, Fifth Ward, is unopposed for re-election. In the Sixth Ward, Councilman Gordon Dale is up for re-election, to be opposed by Jack Apt, former councilman, who lost to Dale three years ago.

Election will be held Tuesday at the Fire House from noon to 7 p.m. A reorganization meeting will be held immediately after the election.

Kent Meeting Set On Zoning Laws

The Kent County Regional Planning Commission Monday announced four public meetings to explain the interim zoning ordinance which takes effect Feb. 1.

The meetings will be held at Cheswood Fire Hall, Jan. 14; Marydel Fire Hall, Jan. 16; Woodside Community Hall, Jan. 21, and Houston Fire Hall, Jan. 23.

In other business, the commission set minimum fees for review of subdivision and land development. Commissioners approved $10 as a minimum on major projects and $5 for minor.

The fees are subject to final approval by Kent County Levy Court. The commission set aside Jan. 22 for a special session to discuss the comprehensive planning program. Robert W. O'Brien, director, said O'Brien, director, said the meeting would determine the responsibilities of the county planning staff and the consulting engineers.

He said the session would also produce an estimated cost for the planning program.

Judge Stevenson Dies at 68

Judge W. Marion Stevenson, whose record of public service spanned 40 years, died Sunday at his home in Frederica after suffering a heart attack.

He was 68.

Judge Stevenson had served the Family Court of Kent and Sussex Counties since its creation in 1951. He was chiefly responsible for the addition of new personnel to the staff of the court and for the construction of a youth detention center in Sussex County; The W. Marion Stevenson Detention Home, dedicated in July 1967.

He began his public career in 1928, when he was elected secretary-treasurer of the town of Frederica. He held that post until 1951. In 1930, he was elected to a term in the House of Representatives from the 8th District. He won his first election as prothonotary of Kent County in 1936, and his four re-elections to that position set a record for the longest continuous public service in that county.

In 1951 Stevenson, by virtue of his post as prothonotary, was appointed to serve as clerk to the State Supreme Court after its reorganization.

Later that same year, he was appointed judge for the old Juvenile Court of Kent and Sussex Counties by then Gov. Elbert N. Carvel. He was the first judge in Delaware history to be appointed without being a qualified attorney. He was reappointed for a second 12-year term in 1963.

Judge Stevenson was born in Wilmington but had lived in Frederica since 1909. He was a merchant there from 1919 to 1936. He was married to Miss Ruth Adams, of Harrington, in 1923.

At the time of his death he served on the board of directors for the Delaware State Fair Association, the Milford Memorial Hospital and the Frederica Methodist Church. He was past president of the Frederica Fire Company and past secretary of the Democratic Committee of Kent County.

Judge Stevenson was a 32d degree Mason of the Milford Lodge, a member of the Frederica Lions Club and the Shield and Square Club of Delaware and active on the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

In addition to his widow, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Ruth Adkins, of Milford, and two grandchildren.

At the Stevenson Building's dedication in July 1967, the longtime jurist, explaining his feelings about rehabilitation, said:

"It would be so easy to send him (the offender) to jail . . . But our duty doesn't end there.

"I am sure that we do rehabilitate many just as I am sure there are many we do not rehabilitate. But it's our duty to try."

Noting that in his 16 years as a judge up to that time he had sentenced only five first offenders to prison, Judge Stevenson said:

"Just because we have this detention home doesn't mean that every child who gets in trouble will be locked up."

In speeches in the 1950s, Judge Stevenson had decried lack of understanding and sympathy in the home for leading too many of youngsters' problems with the law.

"Children reared in love and security get along with their fellow citizens at home and abroad," he said in a 1952. (Continued on Page 4)

AFS Chapter Seeking Host for '69 Student

The Harrington Chapter of the American Field Service will again be considering families to serve as hosts for next year's foreign exchange student. Thomas Peck, president of the chapter, announces this week that he will be glad to supply further details of the program to interested families.

Francis Ryan, principal of the Harrington High School may also be contacted for information.

Louisa Quesada is the present exchange student. She is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll and their family. Louisa is the fourth A.F.S. student to come to this community. Each of the visitors have afforded a great deal of pleasure to their host family.

Since there are forms to be completed and interviews to be made, any family interested should apply in the very near future.

Felton Romps Over Greenwood And Delmar

Art Refosco's Felton High basketball Green Devils blistered the nets for 199 points in their first two Henlopen Conference starts of the season. The Devils scorched Greenwood 90-41 and Delmar was seared 109-43. Felton had no trouble in an easy victory over St. Michaels, Md., in December.

Both Delmar and Greenwood are weak this campaign but nevertheless, Felton must be rated the class of the loop at this point.

Roger Bradley, out last campaign because of illness, has returned to take up the slack left by the graduation of Bob "Red" Dill. Bradley tallied 22 points against Greenwood and 24 in the Delmar tilt. Chris Moore matched Bradley's output against Delmar and was only a point behind Roger in the Greenwood game.

Behind this pair, Refosco has John McCloskey, Howard Price, Gene Palmer, Mike Fisher and Ron Voshell, who are capable of double figures at any time. Dan Demora could join this group when he recovers fully from a football leg injury, suffered in the last game of the grid season.

ALUMNI TO MEET

The Harrington High School Alumni Association will hold a regular meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the school cafeteria.

New Levy Court Eyes Landfill

Advise and consent was the main order of business for the first session of the now-Democratic-controlled Kent County Levy Court at Dover Tuesday.

Primarily, commissioners were briefed on the present standing of various county programs. Walter L. Fritz, county engineer, informed the Levy Court that he is completing a letter of application to the Economic Development Act fund.

The federal money would be used to assist the county in constructing a proposed $11-million sewage treatment plant. Fritz was authorized to apply for the funds by the previous Levy Court.

The county engineer also informed the Levy Court that a decision would have to be reached shortly on an option the county has on a 147-acre tract of land.

The land, owned by Andrew Sills of Newark, is midway between Felton and Frederica. The previous Levy Court intended the property to be used as a landfill, and eventually the possible site of a county incinerator.

Fritz pointed out that the property, priced at $30,000 is ideal for that use and does not need much preparation.

The option expires on Jan. 15.

The commissioners received an outline of land fill operations in general from William McCabe, director of county landfills. McCabe is scheduled to give an in-depth report Tuesday.

The court appointed two lawyers to determine the use for the newly acquired Allee Building at The Green. The county engineering office is located on the second floor of the building.

It was decided that lawyers would best be able to recommend which county offices should be shifted to the building because of their familiarity with Levy Court operations.

Named to the advisory committee were N. Maxson Terry Sr., a Democrat and Herman C. Brown, Kent County Republican chairman.

Robert O'Brien, director of the County Planning Commission, told the court that he had mailed 250 copies of the county interim zoning ordinance to interested parties.

He pointed out that the ordinance is not similar to Sussex County's, particularly concerning house trailers.

N. Maxson Terry Jr., appointed court attorney Tuesday, said commissioners should consider an amendment to the law which would cut down on the amount of time required to rezone land.

Presently, the ordinance calls for two public hearings, one conducted by the zoning commission and one by the court, which could take months to complete. The attorney suggested doing away with the zoning commission hearing.

Tuesday's meeting was called to order by Betty McFadden, clerk of the peace, because the court had no official leader.

She called for nominations for president. Torbert was the only nominee and he was elected unanimously. The meeting was then turned over to him.

He opened nominations for vice president and was offered the name of William J. Paskey Jr. a fellow Democrat, who was also elected without opposition.

In addition to Terry Jr., the court appointed Joshua Twilley to serve as attorney for the county row offices.

City Annexes 82 Acres; Considers Additional Sewers

The City Council Monday night annexed 82 acres which, with the some 15 annexed in a referendum last year, will enlarge the city about 97 acres.

Last year's annexation, the first, said one councilman

Monday night, since the city incorporated in 1869, comprised approximately 15 acres. This area ran southward from Delaware 14, between the lanes of U. S. 13, to a mall owned by the state. On the east side of U. S. 13, it ran from Porter Street extended to and including the property of the New Era Shirt Company. The Journal was in error recently when it stated the land extended to Cadillac Realty Company.

The Council Monday night annexed by resolution, 2 acres comprising the former city dump and sewage-disposal plant and about 80 acres of the Hammond land which it had purchased.

In other business, the Council considered a bond issue to provide sanitary sewers in the territory annexed last year, water and sewer on Coleman Street, and sewer on a final section of Mispillion Street. The City was scheduled to receive an estimate of the cost of the project yesterday morning. The bond issue would have to be passed by a referendum.

It was also revealed that Fred Gunner was the first property owner on East Street to hook up to the sewer system. The street was included in the current sewer-improvement program.

The Council Monday night also received a letter of resignation from Mrs. Townsend Masten, city clerk for two years. Mrs. Masten gave no reason for her resignation. Council made no mention of a replacement.

Harrington Bowling League

By Leah S. Wheeler

Congratulations to B. Johnson, in being named December's Bowler of the Month at the Milford Bowling Lanes. Johnson, who bowls for Quillen's Market, in the Harrington Bowling League, rolled a fabulous 656 series December 17 to capture this honor. He also set himself up as the man to beat in the series column of the league, leading all bowlers in this category.

Hamilton Fund moved up from the third place position they held the week before Christmas, into a tie for first place with Quillen's Market. Tuesday night's action was the first since a two week rest because of the holidays, and it seemed some bowlers were a bit rusty, as there were very few high scorers. Jarrell Fuel dropped three games to Hamilton Fund, losing the first game by way of forfeit, causing them to concede in the series also, and bowing to the finance boys in another one of the games contested. This three game loss dropped Jarrell Fuel into a four-way tie for sixth place, though R. Jarrell rolled a fine 541 series in defeat. J. Bogden, of Hamilton Fund, aided his team with a nice 522 series.

Quillen's Market couldn't take advantage of the lead they held a couple weeks ago, as they dropped three games to Penn Central. The only thing that saved them from losing a hold on first place was the fact that the rest of the teams on top also had a bad night. H. Jump was high bowler for the grocery boys with a 522 series, with B. Johnson contributing a fine 211 game. Penn Central's M. Brown rolled a nice 514 series, as the railroad boys joined three other teams in a share of sixth place.

Robbins Hardware had a chance to move up into the first place, but muffed the effort by falling victim to Butler's Fuel, dropping three games in Tuesday night's action. Robt. Wright, with a real fine 538 series, including a nice 213 game, led the attack for the fuel boys. H. Brown came through for the hardware boys with a fine 547 series, including a nice 209 game. Robbins Hardware is now in the third place spot, dropping a notch in the standings, while Butler's Fuel moved up into a tie for fourth place.

McKnatt Funeral Home couldn't get any momentum Tuesday night, dropping three games to The Spoilers, although The Spoilers were only able to field a four-man

Smith Leads In Race For Dem. Chairman

James G. Smith Jr. appears a sure thing to end Vernon B. Derrickson's 20-year reign as Kent County Democratic chairman.

Derrickson told the party's county committee, last Friday night he is firm in his resolve to retire.

Earlier, county Democrats backing Smith had looked at a list of candidates on the last day for filing for county committee posts and declared that their candidate would have enough votes to win the chairmanship.

Derrickson had announced months ago that he would retire after his current term ended, but since then there had been persistent reports that Democrats in his corner have been trying to rally those who have traditionally supported him. Friday night, however, Derrickson said firmly that he is not a candidate.

"I've been in 20 years and that's long enough," he said. Smith's backers had assumed there would be a contest, and had induced like-minded Democrats to file in most of Kent County's 29 election districts. The 29 committeemen and 29 committeewomen will elect a chairman on Feb. 11.

The activity of Smith's supporters created 15 contests for committee seats, as of late Friday night. Officially, candidates could file until midnight, and withdrawals are possible until the day before the election on Jan. 18, so the number of contests can change.

"I don't understand all this filing for the committee," Derrickson said Friday night. "As far as I know, there's no contest. What are we trying to do to the committee?"

Smith, a Dover automobile dealer, is regarded as a member of a younger faction anxious to take over the power held by the "old-guard" group headed by Derrickson and outgoing Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr.

The committee election in most districts will be held at the same polling places used in November. Derrickson said Friday night that any changes in polling places will be announced.

Contenders are:

Harry Aumach and Robert Craig in the 2d election district of the 28th representative district, Joyce Newland and Frances E. Shetzler in the 3d of the 28th, Ed Lewis and Elbert Golder in the 1st of the 29th, Joann Slights and Sarah Behan in the 4th of the 29th, Margaret Hurley and Mrs. Donald Culver in the 3d of the 30th, William Murphy and James Hamilton in the 2d of the 31st, Bailey Thomas and William L. Courtney in the 3d of the 31st, and Hazel M. Short and Barbara A. Weller in the 3rd of the 31st.

Other contests include: Robert Collins and Elvin T. Moore in the 4th of the 31st, Frank Kent and P. Padilla in the 1st of the 32d, Eleanor Hollinger and Anna M. Aus. (Continued on Page 4)

MR. AND MRS. ROBERT LEE JARRELL, of Harrington, announce the engagement of their daughter, Diane, to John W. Hammond, son of Mrs. Pearl Hammond and the late Robert W. Hammond, of Williamsville. Miss Jarrell is a 1968 graduate of Harrington High School and is employed at Laytex in Dover. Mr. Hammond works as a groom with the horses. A June wedding is planned.

Supple Paces H.H.S. Over Greenwood

Buddy Supple's 28 points led Dave Adams' Harrington High cagers to a 66-34 defeat of visiting Greenwood on Tuesday night. Harrington's season opening victory came against a Greenwood team, that lost heavily by graduation, and should not be construed to mean that Harrington High is a contender for the Henlopen Conference title. But after winning only two basketball games last season, the Lions are off to an encouraging start.

John Swain was the only other Lion in double figures but John Christopher and Frank Daniels just missed. (Continued on Page 8)

Citizenship Classes Begun At Base School

Classes for the foreign born in citizenship and English began this week in Dover.

The two courses are being held on Mondays and Wednesdays from 7 to 9:15 p.m. at the Dover Air Force Base High School.

The citizenship class, being taught by Robert Good, is meeting in Room 227. The English class, with Hector Villa as instructor, is meeting in Room 231.

Registration is still open and interested persons may sign up at a class session. The classes are offered without charge.

The classes, sponsored by the Department of Public Instruction, will continue through March 26.

PIZZADILIS TO OPEN ITALIAN DELICATESSEN HERE

Two Felton residents have purchased the store building, formerly housing Short's Grocery, on Center Street at the Penn Central crossing, and will open a similar business.

Brothers Tony and Pete Pizzadilli said the new establishment would be known as The Italian Delicatessen and would open for business in late January or February.

They said last week the business would also sell groceries. The delicatessen would offer prepared Italian food and seafood to take out, as well as fresh salads. The brothers also mentioned they would have gourmet foods.

The operators of Harrington's newest enterprise also have Pizzadilli Delicatessen in Dover. (Continued on Page 8)

UDRF Luncheon Hears Three Researchers

Some 150 persons heard reports from officers and researchers at the annual luncheon meeting of the University of Delaware Research Foundation, Sat., Jan. 4, at the Student Center on the campus.

In his preliminary remarks, Foundation President Robert W. Cairns noted that the organization's policy of supporting young researchers with promising ideas had paid handsome dividends in recent years. The projects of 15 young men who received $90,000 in UDRF grants later were supported by $2,140,000 in grants from the Public Health Service, NASA, the National Science Foundation and other governmental agencies.

Assistant Secretary C. Lator Burdick gave a brief history of the Foundation, calling attention to two important anniversaries being celebrated this year. The first, dating to 1938-39, was the joint effort of the late Dr. Charles M. A. Stine and H. G. Haskell to stimulate support for research at the university by contributing funds for research on two diseases of cattle, mastitis and brucellosis. This work was successfully undertaken by a young man recently graduated from Yale University, Dr. James C. Kakavas, now an Emeritus Professor of Biological Sciences, who was present at the meeting.

In 1942, the Haskell Research Associates was set up to administer the royalties from patents received as a result of Professor Kakavas' work.

A twentieth anniversary, dating to 1949, was the establishment of the Haskell Research Foundation, the direct predecessor of the University of Delaware Research Foundation. Dr. Burdick noted that the continued growth and success of the Foundation rests largely upon the generous support of the Haskell and Brittingham families. Harry G. Haskell Jr., recently elected mayor of Wilmington, is treasurer of the organization and Baird Brittingham is assistant treasurer and chairman of the finance committee.

During the last 20 years, the holdings of the Foundation have increased substantially, permitting continued growth in the number and size of grants, Dr. Burdick said. These have been awarded to professors interested in biological sciences, mathematics, physics, agriculture, chemistry, engineering, geology, psychology and computer science.

University President F. Arthur Trabant told the 150 members that "the university's mission is to be a pace setter for the state" and said he will attempt to provide improved opportunities for effective interchange between industrial and campus researchers.

President Trabant said that last year for the first time, Delaware was among the top 100 universities in the nation in educating advanced degree recipients.

The rapid growth of the university's physical plant and the quality of the faculty and student body mean that "greatness is within our grasp," he said.

UDRF researchers gave reports on the geology of the state's coast, a device for simulating hydrodynamics effects, and the isolation of a control mechanism in the brain of a cockroach.

Dr. John C. Kraft, associate professor of geology, in his discussion of the "Geology of Cape Henlopen Split, Dune and Marsh Tract," showed how his research led him to interpret a new geography for the Cape Henlopen area of 1000 years ago and relate this information to the Paleo-Indian cultures and the artifacts of that period found in the area.

Dr. William S. Gaither, associate professor of civil engineering and coordinator of the University's ocean engineering program, described the construction and educational application of the ripple tank his research produced. The tank, 20-feet long, 4-feet wide, and 5-feet deep, is used to simulate the effects of wave motions on ships and other vessels.

The tank contains a plate glass bottom with reflecting mirror. A mirror above the tank is used for group demonstrations of wave motions. It can be replaced with a screen for instructional purposes.

Waves of varying height and speed can be generated by a variable speed plunger at one end of the tank. The waves are spent on a "beach" at the tank's opposite end. A camera can be fixed above the tank to record wave motions on various models in the tank.

Dr. Steven D. Skopik, assistant professor of biological sciences, described the biological clock, which he said every organism contains. He pointed out that certain outside stimuli, such as light and darkness, influence this biological clock, or timing mechanism.

He showed how surgery in various areas of a cockroach's brain made changes in the roach's activity patterns. By his surgical experiments, Dr. Skopik was able to locate the biological clock in one area of the roach's brain.

Besides talks by the three researchers, there were displays and exhibits of other work being conducted under UDRF grants.

The research presentations were preceded by an interlude of violin music, by Jorge Gardos of the University Resident String Quartet, who was accompanied by Anthony J. Loudis, professor of music and chairman of the music department.

Dance Company To Appear At Artist Series

The Paul Taylor Dance Company, regarded by many critics as one of America's finest, will appear on the University of Delaware Artists Series on Fri., Jan. 10th at 8:15 p.m. in Mitchell Hall.

The Company played its fourth Broadway season in December 1967 at the Billy Rose Theatre. This was followed in the spring by a nine week tour of Europe with performances at the Festival of Nations in Paris (interrupted when the French students closed the Odeon Theatre), Stockholm, the Royal Danish Ballet and Music Festival in Copenhagen, the Ljubljana Festival in Yugoslavia, and St. Helens, England. Paul Taylor also taught his dance "Aureole" to the Royal Danish Ballet and the Company performed for Danish television.

The Paul Taylor Dance Company has made 14 foreign trips since 1960, five of these under the sponsorship of the U. S. State Department's Cultural Presentations Program.

They appeared at the 1960 Spoleto Festival of Two Worlds, toured Italy in 1961, and danced at the Festival of Nations in Paris in 1962 where Taylor received the top prize for choreography.

1963 started with performances in Mexico City and Acapulco sponsored by the Mexican government. Appearances at Philharmonic Hall and the Long Island Festival of Arts preceded a coast-to-coast tour that fall. A fifth foreign tour and the Company's first Broadway season climaxed this highly successful year.

In 1964 the Paul Taylor Dance Company toured America, performed for the second time at the Spoleto Festival, and were applauded at the American Dance Festival, the Long Island Festival of the Arts and the Tyrone Guthrie Theatre in Minnesota.

The Paul Taylor Dance Company played its second Broadway season in 1965, the year that saw them depart on a six-week tour of South America under State Department auspices. During the course of this tour the company was awarded the Premio de la Critica by the Critic's Art Circle of Chile. Later that year the troupe toured Europe, performing at the Holland Festival and the Cologne Festival.

The Company toured again under State Department auspices in 1966, appearing at the Holland Festival, the Hammamet Festival in Tunisia, the Israel Festival and the Edinburgh Festival. The year closed with their 3rd Broadway season at the ANTA Theatre.

1967 opened with an around-the-world tour under the aegis of the State Department and, in the fall, opened the Harper Theater Dance Festival in Chicago. They continued to tour 13 States and were the first dance company to appear on the Public Broadcast Laboratory television program.

The Company's performance in Newark will feature three of Mr. Taylor's finest works, "Lento" to music of Franz Josef Haydn; "From Sea to Shining Sea", to a score by John McDowell, and "Aureole," danced to music of George Frederick Handel. Tickets may be reserved by calling 738-2204.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

Believe it or not, this new year will be filled with surprises and many new foods. For the first time, would you believe that the supermarket shopper spends more for dog food than for commercial canned baby food? It's true. And this year gourmet foods have been added to the list of things made especially for Fido, Snoopy, or Fifi.

The new dog delicacies are designed to help the finicky eater find a food he will desire. If he refuses ordinary dog food, it will not be necessary for the owners to cook especially for their pets; simply buy a dog dinner of "Beef Burgundy" or "Beef Kidney Stew." These dinners are described as having "such appetizing ingredients as pure beef and kidneys, diced carrots, peas, and potatoes and a delicious gravy to appeal to canine gourmet tastes. There's not a bite of cereal fillers or meat by-products in the can." These are only two of a new line of dog dinners now available.

Even without this gourmet breakthrough, pet food is big business. Yet it is not fair to say this is part of the food bill — it is an extra, just as cigarettes and paper towels are.

As you can see, more of us each day are finding that more and more of our grocery money is going for other items that do not feed our families — yet the family pooch is a member of the family, so how do you balance the budget?

As for new foods for the family — many of them will be processed by some type of dehydration. New drying methods are being introduced at a rapid rate and some are being combined with other techniques of freezing and canning.

Here is a list of dried foods for you to look for: orange, pineapple, grapefruit and lemon juices. Dried applesauce, tomatoes, peas, asparagus and green beans are becoming available in larger amounts.

There will be more dehydrated dips available in a much wider variety. Other delicacies such as lobster tails, passion fruits and even such things as "soul foods" are being dehydrated and sold in the gourmet section of your favorite grocery store.

As for right now and this first new month of 1969, the U.S.D.A. has published its plentiful foods list and it includes the following foods: broiler-fryers and canned salmon are the two meats. The vegetables include potatoes, onion, dry beans, canned tomatoes and canned tomato products. The fruits on the list are fresh oranges, grapefruit and tangerines. The canned fruit is grapefruit juice.

All in all it is a good list; long and varied enough to help start this new year with a feeling of satisfaction.

Take Advantage Of Local Interest Of Investment Credit

In filing 1968 tax returns, take advantage of the investment credit allowed farmers and other businessmen, advises W. T. McAllister, extension economist at the University of Delaware. Each dollar of tax credit is a dollar of tax you don't have to pay.

Investment credit is a real tax break, but it can also be a source of trouble, cautions McAllister. Trouble develops when equipment on which the farm claimed investment credit in a prior year is not kept for the length of time used in computing the credit.

An example would be a tractor purchased in 1964 for $5,000. The farmer expected to keep the tractor for six years and claimed two-thirds of the investment credit allowed. This would be 2/3 of ($5,000 x .07) or $235. However, the tractor was not large enough, so in 1968, the farmer traded it in for a larger one investing an additional $4,500.

The problem is double complicated, because having owned the tractor for four years, the farmer qualifies for only one-third of the investment credit, not the two-thirds claimed. Therefore, one-half of the investment credit, or $117.50, must be paid back as tax on the 1968 report. A special line for this purpose has been added to the 1968 tax returns.

The second problem is to determine the basis for figuring investment credit on the new tractor. This is done by adding the undepreciated value of the machine traded to the amount of additional money invested. Assume the remaining value of the original tractor was 1,667. The basis for determining investment credit on the new tractor would be $4,500 plus $1,667 or $6,167.

If the farmer determined that the life of this new tractor would be six years, he could take two-thirds of the full seven percent investment credit allowance. He reports this investment credit of $287 on form 3468 and transfers the tax credit to line 13 of form 1040.

It's not really difficult to figure investment credit, adds McAllister. Just read the instructions carefully and follow the examples given in the Farmers Tax Guide available from your county agent.

The Wilmington School district may legally lease the Brown Vocational High School property to the New Castle County Vocational - Technical School District when the City of Wilmington becomes a part of the county vocational school district.

Present teachers who need one more year for tenure in the Wilmington District will not be able to carry their two years of experience credit after they transfer to the New Castle County Vocational - Technical School District.

Teachers who are completing their first year toward tenure in the Wilmington School District will not be able to transfer that credit toward the three years needed for tenure if they transfer to the New Castle County Vocational-Technical School District.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

IT'S A MIGHTY GOOD WORLD

Some people worry their way along
 As they travel life's great highway,
 While others will never hear the song
 If it tells of a better day:

Too many people are whining
 And blaming the Fates when they fall,
 Why, tomorrow the sun may be shining—
 It's a mighty good world, after all.

It IS a good world and the Apollo 8 flight by three devout, God fearing astronauts, has given to history, science and the world, the greatest New Year's present since the birth of Christ.

They saw what no man has seen before: a close-up view of the moon, of the bleak pock-marked craters, a "vast, lonely, forbidding sight"; and the Earth, tiny at an immense distance, yet a "grand oasis in the big vastness of space."

The high moment in the flight, to me, was when the three astronauts in one of their TV broadcasts read from the Book of Genesis starting with: "In the beginning God created the Heaven and the Earth", and ending with God's naming of the land as Earth, "and God saw that it was good."

Scientist H. G. Wells once thought science would make men like God. It hasn't and it won't, but perhaps we may some day grow up to become men.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa
What are the dimensions of our land use problem? They are not as simple as checking the dimensions of a beauty contestant. Nor does any single dimension give a winning solution to either problem.

Stay with land use. Land use planning and zoning alone are good guides for community development. But these tools are merely traffic signals. They do little to stimulate economic or social growth. Their purpose is to protect the status quo for the most part.

Water, air and waste pollution make up part of the problem. So when we talk about land use and community development, we should be more concerned about the kind of place we want to live, grow and work in. This is not easy to define or resolve.

How do you regulate hope, faith or belief? The answer of course is that you don't. Yet these are part of the problems for individuals and for groups.

The industrial age combined machines and corporate management. Agriculture only recently has been moving into the economic pool as an industry.

Big industry has tended to shift people to cities where they have more jobs. Suburbs sprouted for the more mobile, more affluent people. Slums developed for the less mobile, poorer people unable to find or hold an industrial job. More industry in rural areas? It can make sense.

John Johnson is our urban agent with the Division of Urban Affairs at the University of Delaware. He and I agree that people should insist that the Democratic process be observed. We should polish up the tools that reflect the hopes and needs of good citizens.

The Ag-industry has needs. Here in Kent County we seem to be developing some effective spokesmen. The proposed West Dover highway by-pass is a good example. One of these days someone or some group will recognize that land on less desirable crop land is available and will solve the problem.

Your county agent is scheduled to trade land use ideas with some North Carolina agents late this month and with New Jersey farm leaders in February. I hope to find some new dimensions that we can use in our own Kent County situations.

The old Dover Postoffice no longer bears its original masted head on the front of the building. It now says: Wesley Church Educational Center.

Nothing has changed for our Kent County Extension Office. We're still on the second floor, and will be until the new Federal building is completed.

It can be a bit confusing talking about Dover postoffices. The present City Hall once served as the postoffice, but was moved from State and Lookerman Streets in the 30's to its present location across the street.

There are two other Agricultural buildings in the Dover area. Both are on the dual highway just north of the Camden traffic light. Both are regulatory agencies. One is the State Board of Agriculture and the other houses Federal farm agencies.

Confused now? Call or visit our office in the Wesley Church Educational Center. If you have a farm type problem we can get you with the right person for an answer.

Dairy farmers will have their winter dairy series of meetings on Wednesdays in January. They will start at 11 a.m. at the Houston Fire Hall and be repeated at 8 p.m. in Crothers Brothers Store at Mt. Pleasant.

The January 8 meeting will look at the price outlook for 1969 and projections for Class I milk sales. Ivan H. Crouse, Salem County (N. J.), dairy agent will tackle the labor problem—men or machines.

The January 15 session will deal with nutrition, corn silage and grain supplements. Breeding will be the topic on January 22. The final session will be at the University of Delaware Farm and Home Week.

Farm Policies To Reach Consumers

Delaware consumers have a great deal at stake in maintaining a healthy and prosperous farm economy.

In his annual New Year's message, Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware, said consumers must watch farm developments closely. If farmers cannot maintain sufficient production efficiency to counterbalance increasing farm costs, consumer prices for food will have to rise.

McDaniel said consumer food prices are increasing, along with the prices of nearly all other consumer commodities, as inflation continues. However, these price increases are the result of higher prices for equipment, labor and transportation and higher rates of interest paid by agribusiness. But, farmers must pay these higher prices, also.

Because farmers have increased their efficiency and are producing more, the price of farm products have gone up very little. Some have even declined. "The farmer continues to receive less and less of the consumer's food dollar, and the percentage of the consumer's take-home pay spent for food continues to decline," McDaniel pointed out.

Research at agricultural colleges in Delaware and throughout the United States has to a large extent been responsible for the increase in farming efficiency. An ever growing population is being fed by a decreasing number of people on the farm. "Consumers have contributed much to this fantastic accomplishment by their tax support of state and federal appropriations to colleges of agriculture."

However, as the nation's prosperity climbs, consumers must not forget that only four per cent of that population still remains on the farm. "All people in the U. S. and many people in foreign countries have — and will continue — to receive benefits resulting from the very small number of farm workers required," McDaniel stated. Farmers released from farms are now employed in manufacturing and distribution of many non-farm consumer products. These workers are contributing greatly to this country's standard of living.

Modern farmers, like their predecessors dating back to the days of the Revolution, are independent. They prefer to operate their farms in competition with each other with little, if any, outside interference. They like to sell their products in a competitive market.

However, the continuation of this pioneering spirit has meant increased production. As a result, the prices of farm products have not increased as rapidly as the prices farmers must pay.

Farmers have offset this disadvantage, up to the present, by increasing efficiency. But, McDaniel asks, can this trend continue at a fast enough rate to maintain a decent standard of living for the American farmer? If not, prices for farm products must rise, which will inevitably mean higher prices to consumers. Food prices will therefore depend largely on developments in agriculture and future farm policies, McDaniel concluded.

He added, "We can again assure you that the staff of the College of Agricultural Sciences will continue to work for a prosperous agricultural economy which will result in a continuance of an abundant food supply at reasonable prices to the consumers of the State of Delaware."

Farm & Home Week Features Home Fashion

Be your own home decorator. It's good advice, but where do you start?

Most homemakers decorate a bit at a time — one piece of new furniture at a time, new carpets the next. They don't want to end up with a badly matched jumble. But often, they aren't sure of their own judgment so they're bewildered when faced with today's profusion of furnishing styles.

Advice from several professional decorators will be featured at the Home Fashion Forum beginning at 10 a.m., Thurs., Jan. 30. Part of the University of Delaware's annual Farm and Home Week, the Forum will be held at the Student Center on the University's campus.

Miss Ann Sloan, assistant professor in the College of Home Economics at the University, will begin at the beginning of all decorating with "Identifying Your Taste." It's your own home and the decor should reflect your family's likes and dislikes. Experienced in commercial interior decorating, Miss Sloan teaches interior design.

Have you ever had the problem of coping with that old red rug you must use, rooms full of dark woodwork, odd sized and shaped windows and furniture you might call either old attic or early marriage? You can use color to help solve these decorating dilemmas.

Miss Sharon Torasso, J. C. Penney Company's field home economist, will conduct a Forum session on "At Home With Color." This program, developed in conjunction with Milo Baughman, well-known furniture designer, will show you how to solve decorating problems even on a limited budget.

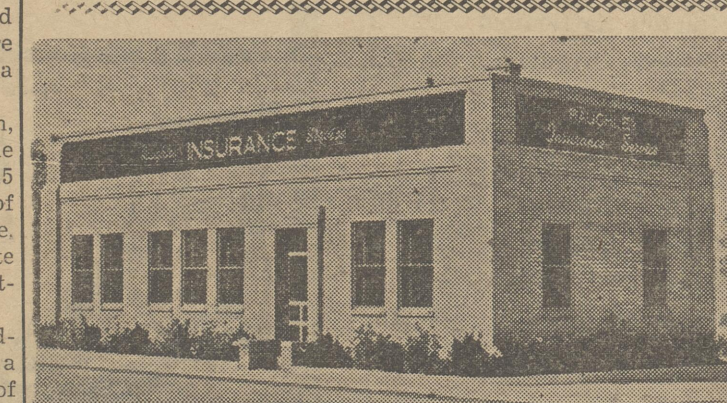

Most women know how to use color and accents in their wardrobe; the same principles apply to furnishings. Mrs. Olive Parks, interior decorator, Laurel, will discuss "Live as Well as You Look" at the Home Fashion Forum. She will use a model dressed in varying, well-coordinated outfits and translate the principles of a well-dressed woman to a well-furnished room. Mrs. Parks is a graduate of Drexel Institute who spent eight years as an interior decorator in Philadelphia before coming to Laurel.

Much of modern interior decorating reflects the past. Mrs. David A. Eastburn, Wintertur Museum, will describe the social patterns and 19th centuries. The influence of customs of these periods on furniture, textiles, floor coverings and ceramics was strong and is still important in decorating your home today.

Luncheon will be served for $1.50 at the Student Center during the Farm and Home Week's Home Fashion Forum. Reservations should be made before January 20, with University Extension, 79 Amstel Avenue, University of Delaware, Newark, Del. 19711.

It Seems To Me

By Janet C. Reed
Making New Year's resolutions? If you're a seamstress, this year take a look at your sewing plans.

If I were to make a New Year's resolution, it would be to discard some of my stock of fabric and sewing supplies — if I could bring myself to do it. If you like fabric, it's easy to buy more than you have time to make up or more than you really need.

Among my possible discards is the fabric I bought because it was a luscious color, excellent quality and a good markdown — a wonderful buy. But that was back in the days before permanent press. Even if I make it up now, would I want to take the time to press it each time I wore it?

Then, there's the wool I bought because it would coordinate beautifully with my wardrobe colors. But that wardrobe plan has long vanished and the color doesn't go with anything in my present color plan.

Another remnant was to be combined with some other fabric. But, it never seemed quite suitable.

This beautiful hunk of fabric by a famous fabric designer I couldn't bear to leave in the store. But I can't bear to part with it either, even if I have no definite plans for its use. Every now and then I bring it out, admire it and feel refreshed with its beauty.

After I sort fabrics, I can begin on patterns; that passe' silhouette with an interesting collar or the one with the unusual neckline saved to adapt to newer silhouettes and the Paris design I never used. It's difficult to throw away an unused, expensive pattern even when it's out of style. If I can be patient and find a little more storage room — some of these styles are beginning to look right again.

This pattern fit so beautifully — way back then — and here are still more patterns from a size ago. Maybe I need to make a different New Year's resolution.

And then, the trimmings — the bits or rick rack, bias tape and seam binding; the braid never used; the beautiful buttons for something — who remembers what?

There are groups who will welcome your discards. Maybe this is the time to weed out your sewing supplies and give them where they'll do more good than in your storage cupboard. You'll be doing yourself and others a good turn.

And besides, once you get those cupboards cleared out you can start on a new set of treasures.

Beekeeping Program At U. of D.

A "beehive of activity" may well describe Delaware in a few years. The growing interest in backyard beekeeping has inspired a special program at the 1969 University of Delaware's Farm and Home Week.

Aimed at the hobbyist who has—or wants to start—a hive or two, the evening meeting will be held at Agricultural Hall auditorium. George Vapaa, Kent county agricultural agent, will act as chairman.

The session will feature William Stephens, extension apiculturist at Ohio State University, Columbus. He will discuss "Beekeeping — an Intriguing Business or Hobby." Stephens has been working with bees for many years and is the author of several beekeeping publications.

A discussion panel on bee problems by local beekeepers will follow. Norman Toadvine, commercial beekeeper at Farmington, will have a display of equipment needed to establish a hive.

Preceding the beekeeping meeting, a buffet dinner will be held at Hornes Restaurant, Route 896, near Newark. The Delaware Beekeepers Association, a group open to commercial and hobbyist beekeepers, will be reorganized at that dinner. Jack Dukes, Smyrna, past president, will be present. Anyone interested in attending the dinner should make reservations with a county agent either in Newark, Dover or Georgetown.

Aquaculture Farm and Home Week Feature

A rapidly increasing interest in commercial fish farming has inspired a half-day session on aquaculture at the University of Delaware's annual Farm and Home Week.

Guest speakers at the January 30 program in Agricultural Hall will be E. E. Prather, Auburn University; James B. Engle, Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, Oxford, Md.; and Theodore P. Ritchie, marine resources specialist at the University's shellfish laboratory, Lewes.

Prather will discuss the biological and economic aspects of commercial catfish production in farm ponds. "There's a tremendous demand for catfish in the south, southwest and parts of the midwest," says program chairman Oscar Harmon. "In fact, the market is so great that catfish bring from 40 to 60 cents a pound on the wholesale market."

Engle, who has been involved in aquaculture research for several years, will discuss oysters—another rapidly growing facet of fish farming. "Oyster farming is not particularly new," says Harmon. "But raising seed oysters in a farm pond environment is new. Engle will review many of our past oyster farming practices, discuss present techniques and predict future trends and opportunities in oystering."

Finally, Ritchie will explain the University of Delaware's expanding aquaculture extension program, examine the feasibility of catfish farming in Delaware and review the status of Delaware oystering.

A variety of aquaculture exhibits will also be displayed throughout Farm and Home Week.

Offers Tips For Winter Driving

Winter driving is as easy as warm weather driving when you use the proper driving techniques, reports Oscar R. Harman, assistant professor of agricultural engineering at the University of Delaware.

There is an obvious difference between mild weather and winter driving, says Harman. Sudden actions are exceptionally dangerous in winter. Even releasing the accelerator too rapidly can cause skidding on slippery pavement.

To minimize winter driving hazards, avoid overpowering, over-braking and oversteering, he advises. Prevent overpowering by applying light pressure on the accelerator; increase pressure gradually. At the first sign of skidding, decrease acceleration — slowly.

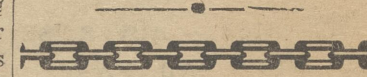

Overbraking may trigger skidding by locking the wheels. Apply brakes sooner and slower on ice and snow than under normal conditions. Pumping, applying brakes for an instant and quickly releasing them, will help prevent skids caused by over-braking. Avoid oversteering by steady, gradual turns of the steering wheel. A sharp, quick turn is conducive to skidding.

Carbon monoxide is also a very common, very real danger, cautions Harman. Always drive with a window partly open. The fresh, cool air will keep you alert and reduce the danger of inhaling exhaust fumes. Carbon monoxide is colorless, odorless and deadly.

To insure safe winter driving, inspect tires for tread wear and proper inflation. Adjust brakes to eliminate uneven braking, a frequent cause of skidding. Check muffler and tailpipe for leaks.

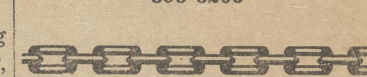

If you and your car are prepared, winter driving can be a pleasure, says Harman. Just don't over-drive.

Asbury W.S.C.S. News

The first meeting for 1969 of the Asbury Church Women's Society of Christian Service was held on Tuesday evening in Collins Hall.

The devotions were given by Mrs. Mark Willey. Following the singing of "This Is My Father's World", Mrs. Willey, using a New Year's message of inspiration set the stage for the program of the evening.

Mrs. Wayne Brown was in charge of the topic for the meeting. Choosing the theme "Poverty in the Midst of Plenty", she began with a three-way dialogue concerning the plenty that some Americans have access to—diamonds, gold cosmetic cases, luxury cruises, as opposed to the need of other Americans. The third side was composed of Scripture readings of a related nature.

An informative interview sketch by two women told of some of the poverty existent in the United States. Using examples of families in the mid and far west, and the South, the tale of bitter and desperate need among people who are willing to work and who make the most of their situations, but who are still woefully under nourished, clothed and housed, was portrayed. It was a program that brought to the women of the Society some facts that are, perhaps, not generally known.

Assisting Mrs. Brown were Mrs. Kenneth Garey, Mrs. Joseph Adamo, Mrs. Robert Taylor, Mrs. Louis Hopkins, and Mrs. Donald Garey.

Miss Pauline Hopkins was welcomed to membership in the Society in the Mary Circle.

Mrs. James D. Moore, chairman of the local church Responsibility Committee, announced that the society will serve the annual dinner of the Delaware Swine Grower's Association on January 23. Circle leaders will be calling their members for assistance with the dinner. If any member can help, please call your leader and volunteer.

Beetles Invade Stored Foods

Many Delawareans are beginning to complain of beetles in stored food products, reports Frank E. Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

The offenders, cigarette, drugstore and confused flour beetles, will eat almost anything, says Boys. So before using spices, seasonings and other stored food products, check them for beetle infestation.

Pepper, paprika, sage, tobacco, drugs, flour, cereal products and upholstered furniture are among the common household items attacked by beetles, he adds. Eggs are laid in these materials and hatch in six to ten days. Although the life span of these insects is only 45 to 60 days, there may be from three to six generations of beetles each year.

To control these pests, dispose of infested products immediately, says Boys. Vacuum all cabinets thoroughly and wash with soap and water.

Finally, spray cabinet interiors with one per cent DDVP or pyrethrins at the rate of one pint to 62-125 square feet. Remember to spray cracks, crevices and points thoroughly.

Retraining Conference For Red Cross Water Safety Instructors

A Retraining Conference for Red Cross Water Safety Instructors will be held by the Delaware Chapter, American Red Cross, on Friday, Jan. 24, and Sat., Jan. 25, at the University of Delaware, Newark.

The two-day conference will be held for 500 instructors from throughout the State who serve in Red Cross water safety programs, including "learn to swim" classes and senior and junior life saving courses.

The Conference is planned by the Red Cross, in cooperation with the University of Delaware Division of Physical Education and Athletics.

All training sessions will be held in the University's new pool in the Carpenter Sports Building on the North Campus. The program will begin on January 24 at 5:30 p.m. An all-day training program is scheduled on January 25 starting at 8:30 a.m.

The retraining program became necessary due to changes and additions in Red Cross Water Safety courses, according to Mrs. Barbara Lovell, chairman of the Delaware Chapter's Water Safety Committee.

"A new textbook on swimming and water safety has been published, and the instructor's manuals for the swimming and life saving courses have also been revised," Mrs. Lovell said.

"Our forthcoming retraining program is designed to raise the quality of the instruction program by providing instructors with a more uniform interpretation and understanding of the newly-revised course content."

She pointed out that all Red Cross water safety instructors are required to participate in a retraining program to become eligible for re-authorization. Retraining must be completed before December 31, 1969.

"One of the innovations will include training in the teaching and proper use of fins, snorkel and mask," Mrs. Lovell explained. "Lack of knowledge in using these pieces of equipment has resulted in a number of deaths. Instruction in their proper use has been included in the new manual in order to conserve human life."

The program also will include demonstrations of basic swimming strokes and variations; survival floating; an introduction to skin diving; small craft demonstrations, lectures and films.

Mrs. Jacqueline Z. Houck, of the University of Delaware Division of Physical Education and Athletics, and Harry W. Rawstrom, also of the University's Division of Physical Education and Athletics, will serve as Red Cross water safety instructor-trainers. Abraham Eagle, chairman of the Red Cross Small Safety Committee, will direct the life saving and small craft programs.

Rh Vaccine Prevents Birth Defects, Infant Deaths, Says March of Dimes

Turning points have a way of slipping by unnoticed. Their significance is often apparent only after years have passed.

But in 1968, a major turning point in modern medicine was immediately recognized when a vaccine to prevent "Rh disease" was approved by the Federal Government.

For the first time in history, doctors have the means to prevent a major cause of birth defects. The remarkably effective Rh vaccine, called "Rho-GAM," promises to eradicate a condition which each year threatens an estimated 40,000 babies with death or damage before or soon after birth.

"The Rh vaccine is so important to potential parents and to the health of so many future children, no one can afford to overlook its availability," says Dr. Virginia Apgar, vice president for medical affairs for The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

The voluntary health organization, which initiated a national campaign against birth defects ten years ago after the conquest of polio was assured, has undertaken an aggressive education program to inform the public about the new preventive for Rh disease. Through radio, TV, magazines, newspapers and leaflets distributed at marriage bureaus and other outlets, young people are urged to have a doctor or clinic check their blood for Rh factor identification.

The Rh factor is a part of the blood which is found in about 85 per cent of the population. Those who have it are called Rh positive; those who don't are Rh negative. Whether an individual has the Rh factor or not makes no difference to his or her own health. But it can cause serious Rh disease in children if a mother is Rh negative and the father Rh positive.

In such a case, if the unborn child inherits the father's blood type, the mother's system may react against the child she is carrying. This rarely occurs in a first pregnancy, but the danger rises in subsequent pregnancies with the result that a child may die in the womb or be born severely anemic and jaundiced due to "erythroblastosis fetalis," the medical term for Rh disease.

PREVENTIVE VACCINES for certain birth defects bring a turning-point in modern medicine. Vaccine against Rh disease is now available. A forthcoming German measles vaccine will protect future children from multiple defects like those affecting this little boy.

An injection of the new vaccine, given to an Rh negative mother within 72 hours after the birth of each Rh positive baby, prevents an adverse reaction in the mother's blood which can endanger future offspring.

For those women who have already been sensitized by previous births, the Rh vaccine is ineffective. But new techniques of giving blood transfusions to unborn babies can save many Rh babies who might otherwise be stillborn. And exchange transfusions immediately after birth protect 95 per cent of the babies born alive with Rh disease.

Effective as these corrective measures are, The National Foundation-March of Dimes considers prevention of birth defects through universal use of the vaccine far more desirable. For the same reason, March of Dimes volunteers are already preparing for another turning point in medicine, hopefully within the next few months, when Federal approval is given to a vaccine to prevent German measles. This deceptively mild infection, also known as rubella, can cause serious birth defects of the heart, eyes, ears and other organs when an expectant mother contracts it during the early months of pregnancy. More than 20,000 damaged babies were born to mothers who had the virus infection during the epidemic which swept the United States in 1964-65. German measles vaccines are now being tested. As soon as a safe and effective one is licensed, March of Dimes volunteers will spearhead efforts to make sure that every potential mother is protected against the disease, thus chalk up another advance in their unrelenting campaign to prevent birth defects.

NEW YEAR'S EVE, ALONG WITH FATHER TIME RANG DOWN THE CURTAIN on the racing days of "Sweetheart Direct", a dear favorite of the Parker family of Harrington. Al Sleva Sr. Wins Governor's Purse At Georgetown Milford's Al Sleva, Sr., who last week won the Governor's Purse race with Cuba Libra at Georgetown Raceway, is a great competitor; he loves horses; loves harness racing and loves to win.

He is one of the top 15 drivers at the downstate track and has earned 10 wins, five place and eight show finishes in 46 starts this meet.

Al's own horse, Timely Prince, has chalked up three wins, one place and one show in five starts for the 36 year old Sleva.

"Every driver has a different approach. It's my idea when I'm in the bike to beat the best horse in the field; that's what I concentrate on," says Sleva.

Concluding he said, "I'd rather race here than anywhere, because the people here are 100 per cent. I mean they like to race and they race fair and are good sports".

Sports Odds And Ends

It seems that Richard M. Nixon was a football candidate for four years at Whittier College in California. He rode the bench that entire period and despite strenuous effort never won his varsity "W". One reason he never made the grade was his lack of size. This is precisely why other fall sports such as soccer and cross-country exist. Many lads simply do not fit into the football program.

Perhaps the next vignette is a little out of place in a sports column but here goes anyway. "Jake the Drake" is not dead after all. Jake is a real drake living between Harrington and Farmington. He is 32 years old and despite his advanced years survived a vicious attack by a huge dog. The canine had earlier killed a duck and a rooster.

Jake disappeared for a couple of days. Feathers and blood in the barnyard seemed to indicate that Jake had met the same fate, as had the other unfortunate fowl.

A search disclosed the wounded bird lying in a culvert. After his rescue it took only food and a good night's sleep to put the ancient one back on his feet again.

Clay Jester, a Harrington native, was a Delaware State High School wrestling champion last winter at Caesar Rodney High. Now at the University of Massachusetts, he has won his first four matches on the freshman team there.

Another former Harringtonian, Mark Dalton, of Smyrna High, scored 11 points for his school against Seaford, in varsity basketball.

Last week we saw on television, a football game between youth teams from Harrisonburg, Va., and Bridgeton, N. J. The New Jersey Club had a big lead when we switched off the set.

What interested us was the knowledge that in 1967 the Virginia Club had made the long trek to Bridgeton and now the return match was unfolding at Harrisonburg. We think that intersectional rivalry of this type is good for all concerned and is so much more interesting than playing only neighborhood rivals year in and year out. There should be room in such programs for both traditional opponents and an occasional outside foe.

Another event of this type took place in 1967 and 1968 during the Christmas holidays.

Last winter Jim Hogsten, then basketball coach at Holy Cross High in Dover, loaded up his squad and took them to Garfield, Va., 25 miles south of Washington, D. C. A friend coached the high school team there. For three days, the Delaware and Virginia boys played basketball and thus reported back after the holidays in fine fettle.

Jim Hogsten is now junior varsity coach at H. H. S. but lives in Dover. The Garfield team came to his house, stayed for three days, slept on the floor, ate at Gino's, Burger Chef, etc. and scrimmaged Dover High for two days and Harrington High the third day.

The Virginia team comes from a high school slightly smaller than Dover High but, of course, it's much larger than H.H.S.

At any rate they proceeded to clobber both Delaware schools with ease. They were a very fast, accomplished group, though lacking Dover's height; and Dover is picked to repeat as Diamond State Conference champions.

Win or lose such informal practice sessions have got to benefit all the lads who took part. We know it's especially fun for the kids whose turn it is to make the trip.

Did you see any Harrington people on T.V. this weekend? At halftime of the recent Hula Bowl or Mud Bowl game, whichever title you prefer, the recent National Collegiate Athletic Association Cross-Country Championship race was shown. Ten locals attended the event, held at Van Cortlandt Park in New York City. Sharp eyes might have spotted some of them at the finish line. Matt Burgess, Tom Clarke and Tommy Clarke shook hands and chatted briefly with Jim McKay of ABC's Wide World of Sports before the telecast.

McKay asked the winner of the grueling six mile test, diminutive Mike Ryan of the Air Force Academy, "Did you have a plan in mind for this race?" Ryan said "No, sir. I just wanted to get all the hide I could."

We can testify to the fact that the little gamester got all the hide there was to get, as he soundly trounced some 235 of the best college runners in America.

Chris Wetherhold, local distance running prospect at 15, talked with Eastern Kentucky's coach after the race. Eastern Kentucky contacted Chris last year after somehow hearing about his freshman exploits.

Ken Silvious of Eastern Kentucky, a so-so runner in high school, was shown holding his side in pain at one point of the journey, attesting to the courage required to run six miles over rugged terrain, against top-flight competition. Silvious later recovered and millions of viewers saw him flash a swift home-stretch kick to nip a California runner for 14th place. He beat some 220 of America's finest. Quite a trick for a lad who came in only 45th in his high school state meet in Illinois.

squad. The three game win put The Spoilers up a notch into tenth place, while McKnatt's holds a share of fourth place.

It doesn't seem that the holiday lay-off hurt some bowlers, as G. Collins led the league and his team in rolling a grand 570 series, with a 211 game included, to aid Taylor & Messick in their move into la tie for sixth place, by downing People's Restaurant for three games. The restaurant boys find themselves in 11th place at this time, dropping from eighth place.

Also in sixth place is Wally's Garage, who dropped three games to Gerardi Bros Tuesday night, being able to only field a four-man squad. H. Wheeler led Gerardi Bros. with a 556 series, including a 200 game. P. Fallon also contributed a grand 234 game, though Gerardi Bros. could not advance out of the cellar spot.
