Sussex Slay Charge Reduced

Willie Lee Walker, 36, of Greenwood, last Friday pleaded guilty in Superior Court to a charge of assault and battery.

Walker had originally been charged with second-degree murder in connection with the death of Louis William Hinton, a 29-year-old parolee from Greenwood who police said was wounded last June in the right thigh by a blast from a 12-gauge shotgun.

Hinton died in the Milford Memorial Hospital five days after the shooting.

State police said at the time that Hinton and his mother, Luvinia, 46, went to the Walker residence on Sussex 539, just north of Greenwood municipal limits, to borrow a phonograph.

Once in the house, Hinton allegedly knocked Walker to the floor and attempted to cart the record player outside to a car, police said.

Walker, after being struck again while trying to retrieve the machine outside, went back to the house and returned to the doorway, where he fired one round of buckshot from a double-barrel shotgun at Hinton, police said.

Last October, Walker pleaded not guilty to the second-degree murder charge. The attorney general's office said the reduced charge he pleaded guilty to was accepted on the basis of the circumstances of the case. Judge John J. McNeilly ordered a presentence investigation.

Senator Williams To Leave Office Next Year

U. S. Senator John J. Williams (R-Del.) has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election to the United States Senate in 1970.

In a statement issued from his Washington office, the Delaware Republican stressed age as the major reason for his decision not to run for a fifth term in the Senate.

"I shall be 66 next year when my present term expires," Senator Williams said, "and in making a decision as to whether I should seek re-election I must project that upon the conclusion of another term I would be 72."

Long an advocate of a reasonable age limit for top government officials, Senator Williams pointed out that private industry generally retires its officers at age 65, "and younger men are promoted to places of leadership."

"This practice of recognizing the capabilities of young men in industry has proven effective," he said, "and the Government of the United States should take notice."

Senator Williams pointed to the increased work-load of the Congress in recent years adding, "today Congressional service is a full-time job with long hours if a member really does his work."

At the same time he suggested the possibility of a Constitutional amendment setting mandatory retirement ages for Members of Congress and the Federal Judiciary. He proposed a maximum age of 68 for U. S. Representatives and 65 for Senator to begin new terms coupled with a mandatory age limit of 70 for judicial service.

Senator Williams, who has

Plenty of Liniment For Basketballers

Latest news on the Donkey Basketball Game is that Tom Clendening, the local druggist, announced on hearing of the game, that he is increasing his supply of liniment in anticipation of a large increase in business the morning after the game.

The game, which will take place on March 6 at the local field house will pit the stars of several of the service clubs against each other. A number of "former" luminaries of the hard-woods are anxious to show their stuff. Even from the backs of trained donkeys they promise to repeat their old-time techniques for the benefit of the crowds.

Tickets for either of the two performances can be obtained from members of the American Field Service Chapter, or at the door. Prices of the tickets are 75 cents for students, and $1.25 for adults.

Line-ups for the games will appear in a later issue of this paper. Watch for them.

1st Highway Recompense Bonuses Set

Residents along New Castle Avenue in Wilmington will be among the first in Delaware to benefit from a new federal law requiring bonus payments for properties torn down for highway right of way.

Ernest A. Davidson, director of operations for the State Highway Department, explained the change Wednesday to the Joint Finance Committee.

It will require a change in state law, which limits payments to persons whose houses must be torn down to the appraised value, Davidson told the legislators.

Under the Federal Highway Act of 1968, he said, persons forced to vacate are eligible to receive the appraised value of their property, plus up to $5,000 to insure their new residence is "decent, safe and sanitary," and relocation or moving expenses.

All such money will come from federal funds until July 1, 1970; then the state will split it with the federal government on the same ratio as the highway project involved.

New Castle Avenue in Wilmington, and work on two small roads in Kent and Sussex Counties, are the first projects started since the law took effect, Davidson said.

Details of how the law will be administered are still being worked out, but Davidson said an official will have to investigate other comparable housing to decide how much of the possible $5,000 a person would receive.

Tenants in apartment projects also would be eligible for a rent supplement for up to two years in a new apartment under the law, Davidson added.

Davidson appealed to the committee for more funds in the agency's 1970 engineering division budget, pointing out the figures proposed by former Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. are less than that spent this year in several categories.

The division asked for $10.5 million altogether. Terry recommended $9 million, about $800,000 less than the division will spend this year.

Davidson asked for an in-

State Sets $26,000 For Killen's Pond

The State Budget Commission last week earmarked $26,000 to develop Killen's Pond, the only state park in Kent County.

The Game and Fish Commission was given permission to purchase 133 acres at Milford Neck for $23,955.

A request from the State Highway Department to transfer $1,165,000 from various projects to others was approved after Ernest A. Davidson, director of operations, told the commission increased costs made certain project starts impossible.

The commission took the action after an opinion from the attorney general that the transfer is legal.

A request from the Department of Public Welfare to purchase 12 new vehicles for $13,000 was denied.

Using Slugs On Automatic Toll Machines Illegal

Attempts to foil the automatic toll machines are on the increase according to officials of the Delaware Memorial Bridge.

Noting that toll collectors have reported a greater number of slugs, foreign coins, washers, and promotional coins during January, Theodore C. Bright, Bridge general manager, said that surveillance has been stepped up. He also cautioned that many of the slugs trigger a violation alarm system.

Bright said that many motorists are not aware that substantial fines are imposed for such violations. A recent incident resulted in arrest and subsequent fines of $50 for failing to pay a toll and $100 for fraudulent use of spurious coins.

The Bridge is operated by the Delaware River and Bay Authority, a bi-state agency.

Flu Case Show Sharp Decrease

There were only nine cases of influenza reported in Kent County in the past two weeks says a morbidity report of the State Board of Health.

Elsewhere in the state, Wilmington reported none; New Castle County had 16, while Sussex County reported 259.

For the year thus far, in the state, the total is 2121 flu cases, against 867 for the same period last year.

Local Man Working on MTESSA Project

The MTESSA (Miniature Tracking of Environmental Science Services Agency Weather Satellites) project has been designed around several interests at Delaware Technical and Community College and is aimed at tracking and receiving video information from the ESSA series of weather satellites. The final product of the project will be pictures of the earth's surface. This final product will be the result of the efforts of five individual departments within the school.

The project has been divided into four departments for convenience and efficiency, and engineering heads have been appointed: Antenna Construction - Eric Boving; signal receiving, Harry Thielemann, Leon Kukulka; video receiving, William Arnold; satellite tracking, David Evers.

The antenna construction department is responsible for mounting the antenna on the roof of the school in such a manner as to have free movement around the Azimuth and Elevation axis. They will also be responsible for antenna movement during the actual tracking operation.

The signal receiving department is responsible for the design, construction, and maintenance of an FM receiver, tuned to the Satellite Broadcast frequencies between 137.0 Mc. and 138.0 Mc. The output of the receiver will be a 2400 hz. Am signal which will be monitored, recorded, and sent to the video receiving department.

The video receiving department is responsible for construction of the circuitry to demodulate the 2400 hz AM signal; the video synchronizing circuitry; and the mechanical device (facsimile recorder) to project light variations on an 8 x 10 inch sheet of photographic film. The photographic processing will also come under this department.

The Satellite Tracking Department is responsible for locating any of the ESSA weather satellites at any given time; determining which satellite will give the project useful intelligence and when it may be received; supplying antenna movement instructions; and analyzing the finished product. The Department is coordinating with the Data Processing Center at the school.

The systems coordinator, David Evers, will be coordinating between department heads of MTESSA and the technologies of the school to insure efficiency and expedite of the project, which is hoped to be a continuing, interesting, and informative educational experience.

Additional specific information on MTESSA may be obtained by contacting the systems coordinator. Weather satellite information is available from the National Environmental Satellite Center, Suitland, Md. 20023.

State C. of C. Announces New Legislative Serv.

Members of the General Assembly and key state officials will be supplied with a new reporting service by the Delaware State Chamber of Commerce. The Log of the 125th General Assembly is a copyrighted loose leaf reference book which will provide subscribers with a complete indexed record of the activity of the legislature during the next two years. According to Ross E. Anderson, Jr., Executive Vice President of the State Chamber of Commerce, and the state government leaders at no charge as a part of the recently announced 11 Point Program of Action.

The Log will feature a Legislative Roster with maps of the Representative and Senatorial Districts. Two sections will be published weekly during Legislative sessions - the Bill Listing section will offer the number, sponsor, and description of every bill introduced. A Status Table will trace the progress of selected bills through the various steps in the law-making process.

Monthly reports will be published in three areas. The voting record of each senator and representative will be color coded and indexed for ready reference. A Digest of selected bills and an index of all amendments to the Delaware Code will be periodically updated. Anderson noted that at the present time pocket-

Blue Cross Should Have New Contract for Hos.

Rights of downstate subscribers should be completely protected and for that reason Blue Cross should come up with a new and equitable contract for Milford Memorial Hospital, Jackson W. Raysor said this week.

The present contract between the hospital and Blue Cross expires March 31.

Mr. Raysor, president of the hospital Board of Directors, said that Milford Memorial wants Blue Cross and agrees that the insurance plan provides a much needed service.

"But private hospitals cannot continue to exist if government and certain insurance health plans refuse to pay more than 83 to 85% of charges," Mr. Raysor said, and added:

"There are simply not enough non-insured patients, foundation grants, charitable contributors or other sources of income to make up the deficits hospitals are incurring."

In these days of expanding population, increasing life spans and more public involvement in health care, hospitals should be permitted to build sufficient reserve so that this money can be plowed back into vitally needed expansion, Raysor pointed out and said the current Blue Cross plan virtually eliminates this possibility.

Currently Milford Memorial is embarking upon an expansion program that will increase its present capacity of 141 beds to 185 when completed in 1970.

"If you could see the way we must utilize some of our hallways as inpatient rooms and the general overcrowded conditions in practically all

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

Lent has started and for the next 40 days many people will be searching for meat substitutes to serve. True, it is not a necessity as it once was, but many individuals will continue to follow the old way of observing fast days. For those who will observe meatless days, the choice of fishery products is a good choice, since there is such a wide variety to choose from and many are priced fairly reasonably.

Fresh fish supplies are not as large now as they hopefully will be as weather conditions improve in the fishing areas. However, fresh rock fish is down in price this week, and quality looks good. Supplies of porgies, bluefish, butterfish, sea bass, flounder and Boston mackerel are adequate and will be increasing. Such items as shrimp, scallops, and oysters are all expensive, ranging well over a dollar per pound.

There are many good buys to be found at the frozen food counters as supplies of cod, haddock, and sole remain bountiful. Prices on these products are reasonable and for the most part the quality is high. When these frozen products are combined with the many canned fish products available, there should be no trouble in finding many items to fill the need.

Egg prices are down this week—not much, but every penny counts. Be sure to remember to buy eggs that come from refrigerated cases and do store them in a closed container in your refrigerator. These two things are important if you want top quality eggs.

Pork prices are beginning to show some signs of declining as greater supplies are becoming available. Hams of all varieties illustrate this price reduction. Many stores will feature ham again this week along with fresh and smoked picnics, spareribs, and chops. Generally speaking, pork represents a good meat buy.

Beef prices have come down a bit also and if you enjoy steak, now is the time to compare prices and perhaps buy some. Ground beef, sirloin roast, and rump roast are other beef choices to consider and may prove economical.

Ten fresh vegetables are lower priced this week and nine are higher. Cherry tomatoes lead the list of changes downward. There is a good market for these little tomatoes as they definitely have a better flavor than the big hot house varieties. Other lower priced vegetables are cucumbers, green onions, cabbage, eggplant, beets, cauliflower, yellow squash, and white turnips. Fresh asparagus is here to help spruce up winter appetites, but prices are high.

Lemons continue on a price spree, but Florida oranges are showing signs of lower prices. This is true also of cold storage apples.

Most homemakers are familiar with U. S. Department of Agriculture's inspection seal on fresh meat and canned meats.

The consumer is also protected by the U.S.D.A. on the inspection of meat and poultry that is imported to the United States. These products must pass strict U. S. standards for cleanliness, wholesomeness and truthful labeling—or be rejected at the points of entry. Only those foreign plants which meet U. S. meat inspection regulations may export meat to the states.

U. S. Department of Agriculture veterinarians visit the exporting countries to observe the meat and poultry inspection programs. They check the packing plants to see that they have adequate before and after slaughter inspection, sanitary handling of the product and proper supervision of production.

To further assure American consumers of wholesomeness of imported meat and poultry, there is a re-inspection at the ports of entry.

Veterans' News Armed Forces News

A record 1,234 Post-Korean veterans and servicemen entered Delaware schools and training establishments in the fall term just ended, Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington, Delaware Veterans Administration Regional Office, said this week.

It is almost certain, he added, that this record will be broken during the spring semester now starting.

Mr. Fields pointed out that before the beginning of the 1968-69 school year, the VA estimated that the peak fall enrollment nationally of Post-Korean veterans and servicemen would be about 553,000.

Nearly 557,000 actually entered training.

The VA estimates the peak spring enrollment of eligible Post-Korean veterans and servicemen at approximately 640,000 nationally.

To be eligible for VA educational assistance under the Post-Korean G. I. Bill, a veteran must have had at least 181 days of continuous service, part of it after January 31, 1955, while a serviceman must have completed at least two consecutive years of active duty.

Mr. Fields said that of the 1,234 veterans in Delaware who entered training this fall, 1,052 enrolled in college level institutions, 48 took on-the-job training, he pointed out.

Servicemen in Delaware who entered college level training this fall totaled 27, with an additional 107 entering schools below the college level.

The manager explained that servicemen on active duty are not eligible for Post-Korean G.I. Bill on-the-job training.

Veterans and servicemen in Delaware who are entering G.I. Bill training for the first time this spring were reminded of a recent liberalization in VA training and education entitlement.

Effective last December 1, the Post-Korean G.I. Bill was changed to give veterans separated from service after January 31, 1955, one and one-half months of educational assistance—up to a maximum of 36 months—for each month of military service.

The previous limit was one month of entitlement for each month of service, Mr. Fields said.

Another provision of this new law grants veterans with at least 18 months of continuous service after January 31, 1955, who have satisfied their military obligation, the maximum of 36 months of educational assistance.

Still another addition to the 31-month old Post-Korean G.I. Bill education and training program entitles veterans who have not completed high school to receive VA assistance while earning their high school diploma or its equivalent. This assistance is not charged against a veteran's full eligibility for training beyond high school.

With a record number of veterans and servicemen in Delaware expected to enter training this spring, Mr. Fields urged those who are enrolling for the first time under the G.I. Bill to apply immediately to the VA Regional Office, if they have not already done so, for their Certificate of Eligibility.

He stressed that a delay in applying for this essential certificate could delay receipt of VA education assistance allowance checks.

4-H Club Talk with Marion MacDonald

4-H is fun. Come out to Caesar Rodney High School Saturday evening, Feb. 22nd, for an evening of youth in action. Kent County 4-Hers will be presenting their annual talent show. It's open to the public and no admission.

Local 4-H clubs are busy with a variety of activities. The Honey Bees club of the Vernon-Harrington area recently held a turkey shoot in which all the members participated.

Mrs. Eunice Collison tells me they had a good time in this money raising activity. Down in Milford the Millwood club's leader, Mrs. Pat Cooper, has added an extra to the members first sewing project.

Mrs. Cooper is teaching her girls to smock on the aprons. She's also included several mothers in this project.

4-H Alumni: Older 4-Hers and Links recognized Josephine Moore Hufnal's picture in the local paper recently. Josie is the president of the Legal Secretaries organization. Other 4-H alumni active in young adult groups are two members of the Venture Club of Dover; Nancy Konschak Theirwechter and Lois Wiebel. Beverly Lucks is active in a Diamond State Telephone Club. These are just three of a long list of alumni who are active in community organizations. Each finds they can add much to these groups having had the opportunity to be officers in 4-H and gain confidence in group activities.

4-H prepares youth for the future. Dover needs 4-H in town — adults interested in serving can contact the 4-H Club Office at 736-1448.

It Seems To Me By Janet C. Reed

If the recent Paris fashion showings are any indication, we'll all be wearing pleats before long. Pleats of every type and size made their appearance in the collections of major fashion designers. And there go our "easy to sew" styles!

Pleats aren't really that difficult but they do require careful attention to cutting and careful fitting so they hang properly. And this takes time and patience.

Pleats must hang in straight lines with the fold line on the exact straight grain line. If they are not pressed on the straight of grain, the pleats will appear to twist and curl under as they fall.

Some Paris designs feature a tunic with pleated skirt—the pleats falling from the hipline or lower. And here is the fitting problem. If we tend to be larger than the dress, the pleats will fall out of line and gap as they hang over the most prominent curve. This is particularly noticed over a prominent tummy or derriere.

If you hipline is flat, the pleats will sag with an uneven hemline. The pleated skirt must fit exactly with pleats falling straight from the most prominent curves.

If you remember the old days when getting pleats straight was enough to make us give up sewing, we also need to give a thought to present day technology. No pattern company or fabric manufacturer is going to let you throw up your hands in despair. They'll probably make permanently pleated fabrics to take all the tedium away.

I don't know what they can do about the fitting problem though. Except encourage us to stay on that diet and to realize that pleated styles don't really do much for some of us.

Country Lane Extension Club News

By Charlotte Collison

The Home Economics Extension Club met at the home of Mrs. Mable Jean Donovan, Feb. 4 at 1:30 p.m. The meeting was called to order by the president. All repeated the prayer, homemaker creed, and flag salute. Secretary's report was read and approved. There were no committee reports.

A discussion on the loss of interest in the club meetings brought about a general decision, that one of the reasons could be the leader training meetings are not of any interest to members of the club.

Next month we are going to have a demonstration of padded pictures.

Mable Jean Donovan, leader of the month, had prepared meat balls straganoff (Russia), a dish from "Menus with International Foods". It was served with fruit salad, cookies, coffee or ice tea. Everyone thought it was very tasty and different.

Next club meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Jane Everline.

GROWING OLD GRACEFULLY

While in Florida, a couple of years ago, it was my good fortune to renew old acquaintance with retired railroad employees whom I had worked with over fifty years ago, and to find them enjoying a fellowship similar to that which our own Senior Citizen movement is endeavoring to establish for us here.

In the St. Petersburg area, there were individual cliques from various RR systems that would contest each other at shuffle-board or rooting for their favorite team in the Grapefruit training league.

Have often wondered if they (PRR and NYC) merged along with the actual take-over here.

However, it was a lot of satisfaction to be one of them and feel:

THE JOY OF GROWING OLD

Do not fear tomorrow, friend—
 Behold that rainbow, 'round the bend!
 This life is sweet, so smile and spend
 The joy of growing old.

God, in His wisdom, lets us grow
 Along with those we cherish so —
 They age with and let us know,
 The joy of growing old.

We learn to love the little things —
 The thrill that children's laughter brings,
 And from each humble blessing springs
 The joy of growing old.

A child lives in a wonderland —
 Youth laughs away life's trickling sand —
 But you and I can understand
 The joy of growing old.

Letter to Editor

C. H. Burgess, Editor
 The Harrington Journal
 Harrington, Delaware
 Dear Mr. Burgess:

These days the national news media often reports on the conflicts, problems, and very rarely the triumphs of metropolitan law enforcement officers in their day to day work. Civil disorder, crime in the streets, and the theoretical "intellectual revolution" of the college student make good newspaper copy and screen well on the television. The metropolitan men in blue are necessarily an ever present part of the sensationalism that is so evident in these incredible times.

We seldom stop to consider, I think, the local counterpart of the big city policemen, our own "town cop". The rare occasions that this topic is discussed we hear snorts, chuckles, and belly laughs interspersed with tired cliches such as "Matt Dillon", "Canadian Mounties", and such. Such bad-mouthing shows great disrespect and lack of consideration and understanding of the men of our local police force and the job they do so capably and conscientiously.

Our entire police force, and particularly Chief Rogers, has earned my personal respect and admiration for the job they have done and are doing now in the town of Harrington. I think that they not only deserve a pat on the back, but also the moral support of each man, woman, and child of this community. Police work is at best a thankless task. Let's make their work a little easier by expressing our appreciation and pride for these men and the job they do.

Sincerely,
 Bill Wise

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Human ecologists may become the new name for home economic extension agents and others in the near future according to what I heard at Cornell University recently. What was the reaction to the new proposal? Something like: "Ah, me, no sooner do people feel they know what we do than other changes come along."

Which raises another interesting point about agricultural agents. Particularly the name agent, which Webster defines as "a person who acts for another, as in a sale". And it was perhaps because federal land agents opened up the West that the name carried over to modern times. Such states as Illinois and California use the term farm adviser. It is more appropriate because we are essentially teachers. Our state university, the United States Department of Agriculture, and every huckster of new products loads us with bales of information to use in demonstrations, projects, news columns, radio spots, circular letters, meetings, etc.

One writer describes the county agent as a catalyst of change, which like human ecologist is a pretty good description if everybody understands the terms.

So let's define them with reference again to Webster. Ecology is that branch of science relating to organisms and their environment. And to extend the thought, every new discovery - or change - calls for new adjustments all along the line. The discoveries may be physical, political or social. We can't stop discovery - and the changes are coming so fast that the world is in turmoil. The emerging issues can be resolved with good faith and hard work, or so we hope.

Catalyst is still defined in Webster as I learned it in a chemistry course many years ago. It's a "substance or agent that initiates a chemical reaction and enables it to proceed under milder conditions than otherwise possible." Does that mean county agent are peacemakers? Probably not, but I've always said that the place of anyone in this kind of a job belongs in the middle of an argument. Someone should be able to talk with both sides, to search out alternatives or possible new answers.

Your county agent enjoys being able to talk with both parties on the proposed West Dover By Pass controversy for example.

We can hope that 10 years of advance preparation for planning and zoning our Kent County lands will proceed with less friction than might have been the case. And for this, credit our Kent County Projection (Long Range Development) Advisory Committee headed by George C. Simpson of Houston. These leaders advised us as extension agents to "proceed with deliberate speed".

They said: "Don't try to make a big splash or crash program on what is probably our greatest need. But sell the power structure first, the local leaders, with small discussion groups and easily read literature. Expand it to groups like the Granges, the Farm Bureau, service clubs, and special interest groups. Then when pressures build up, people will be more sympathetic to the needs."

The Scandinavians have a person who functions a bit like a county agent. He is called an Ombudsman and his duties include listening to people's troubles and helping to find answers with whatever government agency may be involved. The ombudsman is not a judge, tho he serves much like our old time town elders.

I guess our town mayor serves the same function to a degree today. But he is elected and rarely has the background or training to quickly resolve issues.

Delawareans I hope are aware of the Urban Agent program in the Division of Urban Affairs at the University of Delaware. This was started by grant funds provided by the Ford Foundation. The goal here is to provide expertise to our elected officials in Delaware - particularly in the social sciences of economics, sociology and public administration.

So who benefits from all of this? Let me close with two statistics. The U. S. Department of Agriculture spent $5.6 billion last year of which $1.6 billion can only be charged directly to farmer programs. All of the rest directly benefited you the consumer in cheaper, more plentiful, safer food and fiber.

Senior Center News

Members of the Center were saddened by the death of one of their friends, Mrs. Edythe Melvin. She had been very much interested in the work in ceramics and had produced many beautiful items. We wish to extend our sincere sympathy to the members of her family.

Monday, the monthly birthday party was attended by 22 of our members. There were three, born in February, who were honored: Mrs. Essie Redden, Mrs. Lillie Sullivan, and our director, Mrs. Angela Johnston. The tables were attractively set by the chairmen: Mrs. Lelia Hopkins and Mrs. Gladys Hill. Cakes were furnished by Mrs. Louise Burgess, Mrs. Gladys Hill and Mrs. Virginia Clarkson. The program was given by Mrs. Johnston who showed slides picturing scenes taken in Belgium and Holland. She also displayed and described many articles that she had collected while living in France, Spain, and the Netherlands. These included dolls, rare lace, wooden shoes, fans, shawls, mantillas, and castanets. Given away were three prizes which had been made and donated by Mrs. Johnston. A decorative ceramic fish plate was won by Mrs. Mabel Kemp; Mrs. Essie Redden received a colorful ceramic pineapple dish, and Mrs. Mary Zubieli was given a beautiful hand-embroidered picture. Everyone enjoyed a pleasant and profitable afternoon.

The soup and bake sale held on Fri., Feb. 14, proved to be a success. A profit of approximately $80 was realized. Members of the Center are grateful for the support given them in these projects by the citizens of our community.

There will be a covered luncheon on Mon., Feb. 24. Each member is asked to bring a dish and to come enjoy the afternoon visiting with friends.

It is good to have those who have been ill or unable to attend to again be coming to the Center. Mrs. Edith McKnatt, Mrs. Edna Outten, Mrs. Virginia Clarkson, and Mrs. Lillie Sullivan have all been in attendance this week.

Mrs. Essie Redden received a very nice letter from "Aunt Lucy" Knipper. She does not like being in Kentucky and is hoping to return to Harrington in the near future. She enjoyed attending the Center and wishes to be remembered to all her friends.

On March 28 the spring bazaar will be held. We only have a few weeks to get ready, so please plan to visit the Center and help with making the articles to be offered for sale.

Prof. Glenn To Lecture at Univ.

Professor Edmund S. Glenn will provide "An Introduction to the Problems of Intercultural Communications" in the first in a series of lectures on intercultural communications at the University of Delaware at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 26 in the Ewing Room of the student center on the campus.

The series is open to the public and is being sponsored by the Graduate Student Association and the University of Delaware Graduate School.

In his talk, Prof. Glenn will introduce intercultural communications as it deals with the problems arising from the meeting of two different cultures of class, academic or ethnic origins.

Glenn joined the University of Delaware faculty this fall and is establishing a program which includes a seminar intended for students contemplating careers in international trade, diplomacy, urban affairs or education in the ghettos.

Before coming to the University of Delaware, Glenn was a member of the State Department for 21 years. He was appointed Chief of the Interpreting Branch in 1950. He had served as personal interpreter in French, and occasionally Polish and Russian, for Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson.

Glenn will serve as lecturer for two other presentations dealing with "Problems of Communication between the Sciences and the Humanities," Mar. 19 and "Intercultural Miscommunication Between the Races," Apr. 9.

Professor Ralph K. White, professor of psychology, and senior member of the Institute of Sino-Soviet Studies at George Washington University will speak May 7 on "The Psychological Causes of War." White is the author of "No-body Wanted War" and has been nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Seminar Stresses Partnership In Rebuilding U.S.

Problems of the city and the ghetto will be discussed by four speakers in a seminar co-sponsored by the University of Delaware Student Engineering Council and the Delaware Council of Engineering Societies at 8 p.m., Feb. 25 in the Rodney Room of the Student Center on the University of Delaware campus.

Allan C. Rusten, administrative assistant to the Mayor of Wilmington; Richard M. Bauer, director of the New Castle County Department of Planning; Dr. C. Harold Brown, acting director of the University of Delaware's Division of Urban Affairs; and E. F. Weatherby, Jr., District Claim Agent for the Penn Central Company, will discuss four aspects of the seminar topic, "Partnership in Rebuilding Urban America." The seminar topic is taken from the theme for Engineers Week which precedes the seminar at the University.

Edward W. Comings, dean and professor of the College of Engineering at the University, will be the moderator.

The purpose of the seminar is to focus campus attention on the place of various specialists in the solution of problems of the city and the ghetto. The panel will discuss government, planning, sociology and transportation in terms of the seminar topic.

Rusten, a graduate of Temple, has served as administrative assistant to Wilmington Mayor Haskell since Jan. 7 of this year. He was previously associated with the Greater Wilmington Development Council, first as director of public relations, then associate executive director.

In 1964, Rusten worked for the Republican National Convention after heading the public relations program of the Republican State Committee of Delaware for five years. Prior to that he had worked for WRCV-TV in Philadelphia and WDEL radio in Wilmington.

Bauer, a native of Philadelphia, received his B.S. in landscape architecture from Pennsylvania State University and earned a master's degree in urban planning from Michigan State University. Prior to his appointment as director of New Castle County's department of planning in 1963 he was executive director of the planning commission of Burkes County, Pa.

Fire Company News

By Barry Fry

On Thursday night, Feb. 6 the Harrington Vol. Fire Company held its first fire school class in the Harrington station.

The topic for the first class was "Breathing Apparatus" which is very essential in the fire service. In a recent study it was found that of 7000 injuries to firemen, 6000 were due to smoke inhalation. Of the 6000 injured firemen, 832 required hospitalization and 39 died from their injuries. So it is very important to Columbia, Pa. to and including Marine Operations in Norfolk, Va. His assignments include commuter operations between Newark, Del. and Philadelphia, Pa.

He is presently associated with the New York Claim Conference, the Claim Association of the American Association of Railroads and the Delaware Claim Association.

The public is cordially invited to attend and participate in this seminar.

Wonder where all the starling birds are finding food? I guess some of the stray corn has been left in the fields and many household scraps are being found. Must be millions of them flying through the air.

Little Roland Draper, of near Harrington spent Friday evening with his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Porter.

The signs along the dumping area have been changed from "Dump Area" to "Land-fill Area" which is more appropriate.

Theodore Thistlewood, of Milford, visited relatives in this community on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Reese, of Dover, were community visitors on Sunday.

Profit Tips For Corn Growers

Delaware corn growers must act now to develop programs allowing them to compete with farmers throughout the nation, according to Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

To escape undesirable weather effects, select some early, medium and later maturing hybrids, he suggests. Pollen shedding from the second to the last week in July will spread the risk of damaging temperatures or moisture stress during critical tasseling periods. Hybrid variety will also spread harvesting from late September to November, an important consideration when farming large acreage.

The switch from pickers to combines has meant the sale of high moisture corn for many growers. Without on-the-farm drying and storage facilities, a grower is forced to live with moisture discounts which reduce profitability. However, a strong-stalk hybrid planted early and at the right population will lose much of its moisture while maturing and will stand well enough for good combining.

For good yields and strong stalks, Mitchell recommends populations of 12,000 in loamy sand; 14,000 in sandy loam; and 18,000 in loam and silt loam.

With present hybrids, you can generally expect a few bushels increase by closing rows from 38 inches to 30 inches, says Mitchell. However, test results have varied, and it's doubtful if rows narrower than 30 inches can be counted on to improve corn yields in 1969.

The trend toward late April planting is also beneficial, he adds. Stalks are shorter and heavier and yields are generally higher. But April planting means colder soil. Corn plants have difficulty absorbing phosphorus from cold soil and are often weak, yellow and stunted. To overcome cold soil problems, plant shallow in well limed soil. Nitrogen also increases phosphorus absorption in corn which is a good reason for using planter fertilizer during April.

In nitrogen application, Mitchell recommends 75 pounds for 12,000 plant populations; 100 to 125 pounds for 14,000 plant populations; and 125 to 150 pounds for populations of 18,000.

Irrigation can make the droughty soils of southern Delaware among the most productive in the state, he adds. With ample water, the yield potential of these soils is usually doubled, or even tripled.

Admittedly, the investment is high, but many growers would be wise to install irrigation as soon as possible. Corn irrigation is not new, and its profitability is evidenced by the rapidly increasing corn acreage under irrigation.

With irrigated corn, plant population may be increased to 20,000 or 25,000 an acre, says Mitchell. And there should be no hesitation in using 200 pounds of nitrogen. With ample water and high fertility, you can anticipate yields of 150 to 200 bushels an acre.

Many growers have decided that irrigated corn will have to bring more money and are investigating new markets. Many are even "walking" their corn to market in the form of beef or pork.

Again, this involves substantial investments and radical changes in the farm program, but it may be another profitable idea for 1969.

Bromeliads Excellent Houseplants

Bromeliads, relatives of the pineapple, make excellent houseplants, according to Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Recently, scientists have discovered that these seldom flowering plants can be induced to flower if placed in a plastic bag with a ripe apple for four days. The apple produces an ethylene gas which causes bromeliads to bud and flower within a few months.

The bromeliads, which include several plants such as Billbergia and Aechmea, are often called "living vases" because their leaves form a vase-like cup in the center of the plant. Bromeliads thrive if this vase is filled with water every few days.

In addition to producing brilliant orange, blue, lavender, yellow or green flowers, bromeliads produce an attractive foliage. They are able to tolerate the hot, dry conditions of most homes and lend themselves well to a modern decor.

Bromeliads are available from many local florists, garden supply houses and department stores.

Fish-A Delicious Project

Delicious, low in calories, high in food value and easy on the budget—sounds like a perfect food, doesn't it? Since seafoods are also easy to prepare in an almost endless variety of ways, they're bound to be family-pleasers.

According to Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension foods and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware, fish cookery is simple and easy—if you keep these few pointers in mind. Salt before cooking to bring out the flavor. Cook quickly and for as short a time as possible. Cooking too long draws out the natural juices; the fish shrinks and dries out. Fish is done when it's fork-tender, separates from the bones and flakes easily. Serve immediately on a warmed platter.

Almost any kind of fish is delicious fried or broiled. As a rule, fat fish, such as salmon or shad, are most desirable for baking, broiling and planking because their fat content will keep them from becoming dry.

Lean fish, such as flounder, halibut and swordfish, are preferred for boiling and steaming since their flesh is firm and will not easily fall apart while cooking. To broil or bake a lean fish, baste frequently with melted fat. Both kinds are suitable for frying.

Since there are only a few basic rules for fish cookery, add variety by using different cooking methods—fish doesn't always have to be fried. Try different sauces and seasonings too, advises Miss Krackhardt.

Try adding your favorite stuffing the next time you bake fish; bread and oyster stuffing are standbys. To stuff between two fillets, or dip the fillet or steak in lemon juice and grated onion before baking. A lemon-parley sauce poured over broiled fish steak will add color and flavor.

You can improve the flavor of boiled fish by cooking in a liquid seasoned with lemon juice, fish stock or court bouillon. A rich, bright colored sauce will add flavor excitement too; experiment with Hollandaise, tartar, creole, cucumber, egg, Spanish and mushroom sauces for variety. Use them on broiled or baked fish, too.

Garnishes will provide contrast and add appeal to fish dishes. How about sliced lemon, parsley, sliced tomatoes, watercress, sliced hard-cooked eggs, or any colorful sliced pickles? Spices that go well with fish include basil, bay, marjoram, saffron, savory, tarragon and thyme.

Fish chowder, bouillabaisse, shrimp cocktail, lobster thermidor, clam pie, oyster stew or scalloped oysters are only a few of the time-tested, family-pleasing ways to serve seafood. Why not try them all?

This coming Sunday, there will be no 8 a.m. Service of Holy Communion at St. Stephen's. It is the opinion of the vicar that when a community turns to God in prayer as at the Mayor's Prayer Breakfast, everyone should participate where possible. The people of St. Stephen's of the Harrington area are therefore urged to attend the prayer breakfast at 7:30 a.m. Sunday. Those attending are asked to contact the City of Harrington by telephone.

The Women of St. Stephen's are giving advance publicity to their meeting, which will take place on Mon., March 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the parish hall. At that time there will be a special guest from the Kent General Hospital who will show films on how that hospital is organized for its very important business of saving lives. There is no solicitation for funds. The program is being put on simply for the enlightenment for those who come. Men and women and youths of both sexes both from St. Stephen's and from the community are invited to attend.

During this Season of Lent, beginning this coming Tuesday, Feb. 25, the Rev. Victor Kusik, of St. Mary's in Bridgeville, will conduct Lenten discussions at St. Stephen's. The Rev. Mr. Kusik, well known at St. Stephen's as an inspirational speaker and discussion leader. Those who desire a spiritually rich Lenten season will set aside the Tuesday nights of Lent.

Ira Frank, who will probably go to the Landis Retirement Home at Littitz, Pa., early next month, will worship with the church family of St. Stephen's this coming Sunday, and it will be remembered that Ira was confirmed here at St. Stephen's before transferring to St. Paul's in Camden. He is also particularly remembered as the author of three fine books; "The Ephrata Story," "My Search for an Anchor," and "Meditations of a Layman". Ira will be glad to autograph any books of which he is author which are already owned by members of the congregation, if they will bring them to the service this coming Sunday. The people of St. Stephen's will keep Ira in their prayers as he goes to Landis.

Lions Nip Greenwood, 64-63

Harrington High's basketball Lions notched their second victory of the season, when they beat Greenwood 64-63 in a thriller at Greenwood Tuesday night. The Lions had not won since defeating the Foresters in early January.

Harrington has two victories and ten defeats and must win one more contest if they are to better last winter's record. Delmar's Wildcats with three victories are the team most likely to bend the knee to the Lions.

Felton's Moore Passes 1000 Pts.

Felton High's sharpshooting junior, Chris Moore, tallied 26 points in Felton's 72-64 romp over Delmar and now has a career total of 1007 points with the rest of this season and all of next to play. He can become the top scorer in Delaware scholastic history if he surpasses the 1415 points tallied by Newark's Bunny Blaney, in the fifties. He has the ability if he doesn't have too many bad breaks along the way.

Powerful Dover Air victimized the Lions for the second time this season by a score of 91-54.

Penn Central also came close to being on top by taking three games from Wally's Garage in Tuesday night's contest. W. Sapp and M. Brown rolled fine series of 529 and 528 respectively to provide the scoring punch for Penn Central, to keep them close to the leaders.
