

Milford Hospital Blue Cross Officials to Meet

As a matter of policy and in an effort to protect downstate Blue Cross subscribers, Milford Memorial Hospital will do everything possible between now and April 30th to reach an amicable understanding with the hospital insurance plan. I. G. Burton, chairman of Milford Memorial's negotiating committee, announced this week.

Earlier, Milford Memorial notified Blue Cross that the hospital was not renewing its contract after its expiration date of March 31st. But at the request of Blue Cross, the hospital extended its contract for one additional month.

In making the announcement, Mr. Burton said that Milford Memorial is only seeking the minimum required to keep open the doors of the hospital and to provide the medical and auxiliary services necessary and needed by downstate people.

"We reiterate our former statement that we feel Blue Cross is providing a very necessary function and that we want to see it continue and expand," Mr. Burton declared, "but, we also realize from our financial reports that some improved method of reimbursement must be given this and other Delaware hospitals or they will be forced to curtail or suspend service."

The Milford Memorial spokesman cited uncollectible bills, charity cases and expanded government medical services as all contributing heavily to hospital deficits.

State Insurance Commissioner Robert A. Short has called together both Blue Cross and the state's seven non-profit hospitals in an effort to resolve the differences between both groups. Another meeting is scheduled on April 7th at which time, both sides express cautious confidence, an agreement may be reached.

Highway Dept. In Charge of Junkyard Maint.

The Delaware State Highway Department has forwarded over 160 letters to junkyard operators along the primary highway system outlining their responsibilities to the State of Delaware.

The passage of House Bill 206 has charged the Delaware State Highway Department with the responsibility of regulating and controlling the establishment and operation of all junkyards by licensing.

The bill requires: 1) that all junkyards within 1000 feet of a public highway be screened; 2) that there be a fee for the license; and 3) that junkyards be defined to mean old or scrap copper, brass, rope, rags, batteries, paper, trash, rubber debris, waste, or junked, dismantled or wrecked automobiles, or parts thereof, iron, steel, and other old or scrap ferrous or nonferrous material.

Ernest A. Davidson pointed out, "The bill is pretty explicit and covers any accumulation of junk whether or not the person responsible for the accumulation is in the business or not."

The responsibility for administering the junkyard control bill has been delegated to the Roadside Development Section of the Department and a fee of $30 has been set for those who qualify for a license.

The Department has completed a preliminary survey of areas that come under its jurisdiction and has forwarded letters to the property owners, which will explain their responsibility and need for compliance by obtaining a license.

Local B. & P. W. Club to Celebrate Its 20th Birthday

Twenty years ago Jean McDonald moved to Harrington from Sussex County - where she was a member of the Sussex Business and Professional Women's Club. A new president is elected each year, but most hold office for two years.

Many worthwhile projects have been accomplished... the first Youth Center, scholarship for a high school girl graduate, library and many many more too numerous to mention. In the 20 year period several members have been lost due to death or retirement from active employment, but the club still maintains an average membership from 33 to 35 members. Each year there is a special program to celebrate the club's birthday. This year being no exception, the club will on March 24th, board a chartered bus to attend Woody Allen's Comedy "Don't Drink the Water", at the Wilmington Playhouse.

City Tax Exemptees Must Apply by March 31

Persons seeking exemption from city poll taxes must apply at the City Hall by Mar. 31, it was agreed by the City Council after its appeal night Tuesday.

Under an ordinance, adopted nearly three years ago, it was stipulated persons 65 and over, with earned income of less than $2500, must not pay the poll tax if they appeared at City Hall with a request.

Tuesday night's action was taken for the following reasons: 1. To prevent requests from persons who had reached 65 after the taxes were due. 2. To prevent unnecessary bookkeeping in the City Hall.

In other business Tuesday night, the Council received two appeals on taxes and acted as follows: Lowered $800 assessment to $400 on lot of William Wheeler on Hanley Street. Lowered assessment of William Stoltzfus, on Simpson Street from $5300 to $3450. Refused request of Stoltzfus to put school bus in rear of house for a workshop.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

The rains came and now we reap the harvest since both the supply and quality of a number of vegetables are cur-rently being affected. The ex-tensive rains in California have sent that favorite spring vegetable — asparagus — up when normally prices would be falling. Supplies have de-creased since fields cannot be harvested due to the condi-tion of the soil.

The same problem has af-fected cauliflower and iceberg lettuce. You may have seen the signs that are being placed above these vegetables in many stores, explaining the unusual high prices at this time of year.

To look at the brighter side, this is the way the newly released U.S.D.A. Vegetable Situation describes the cur-rent fresh vegetable outlook: "Fresh vegetable supplies dur-ing the next few months likely will be the largest in several years. Indicated production of all major vegetables is larger than last year, with abun-dant supplies in prospect for cabbage, carrots, celery, let-tuce, and tomatoes. Supplies of stored onions also are ma-terially above a year ago, and a big new spring crop ap-peared likely. Prices for fresh vegetables should average sharply below the record prices of last winter."

Florida grapefruit is still in heavy supply and many stores continue to feature this fruit at prices you can't afford to overlook. Controlled atmos-phere apples remain in fair supply, and quality is excel-lent. Fresh strawberries con-tinue to be abundant and many South American fruits are increasing in supply. Prices remain high on these im-ports (peaches, plums and nectarines), however. There are plenty of lemons, limes, bananas, and Temple oranges available and prices remain steady.

Forequarter beef cuts offer many saving values as chuck cuts, all styles, are heavily featured. Other beef cuts to consider are standing rib roast, short ribs, round steak and rolled rump roast. Pork prices continue to ease down with excellent buys on such cuts as butts and loins. Chops, all cuts, are heavily featured together with smoked picnics and hams. Don't forget to buy some extra pork for your home freezer; the prices are low now but when the warm weather comes they will climb to the seasonal high point.

Eggs went up a bit but they are still much lower than the recent high price level. When you buy eggs, be sure to select those that are refrigerated and keep them in a closed con-tainer in your refrigerator, if you want to keep them fresh and good tasting.

Anyone who says women aren't sewing any more just hasn't been inside a fabric shop lately. These shops are about the busiest places around. The displays of beau-tiful fabrics would tempt al-most anyone to try their luck at sewing.

If the crowded shops don't convince you, these figures may be surprising. Between 22 and 42 million women in this country are "active" seamstresses. One sewing ma-chine company sold a million sewing machines for the first

Lecture IV-Ocean Engineering Seminar

Projects of the National Science Foundation and is past president of the U.S. Navy Hydrographic Office Branch, Scientific Research Society of America.

Engineering geology will be the subject of a talk by Dr. Adrian Richards, University of Illinois professor of geology and civil engineering, at 8 p.m., Mar. 24 in the Ewing Room of the Student Center at the University of Delaware.

Dr. Richards has taught and conducted research at Scripps Institution of Oceanography, the U. S. Navy Hydrographic Office, U. S. Department of Agriculture and the Office of Naval Research in London, England.

The Ocean Engineering Sem-inar series is presented by the department of civil engi-neering through the division of university extension as a ser-vice to persons interested in this new field.

Approximately 600 million pieces of apparel are being produced by home sewers this year. Another source claims that home sewn garments equal one-third of all gar-ments produced in factories.

Two hundred million pat-terns were sold in 1968, with sales of 225 million expected in 1969. Of course, there are no figures to show how many of these were actually made into garments.

Some 85 per cent of all teenage girls sew and they make 82 million items a year. Fifty-five percent of all sewing machine owners are under the age of 40. So apparently this interest in sewing will be around for a while. This helps explain, too, why so many pattern styles seem to be for the young.

Since the young years are the years when clothing is usually considered most im-portant, many a girl helps substantially with the family income by producing her own clothing. At the same time, she can be well dressed and develop her creative and de-sign ability with fabric and pattern.

Encourage your daughters to sew. It's a useful skill she will enjoy all her life.

If you or your daughter are among the 44 million who sew, you're in good company. It's the "in" thing today.

U. of D. Prof. Speaks to English Teachers

"English today is suffering from affluence," Dr. George Henry, professor of Education at the University of Delaware, told the Alabama Council of Teachers of English meeting at Auburn University last week. He also said that English teaching is more like Care, the Peace Corps and Vista.

Dr. Henry outlined the vast wealth of material and methods available to today's English teacher then said it is contained in a curriculum plan which is essentially the same as it was in 1903.

The curriculum container, he said, is the Carnegie curriculum plan - a measured method of instruction which puts English on the assembly line. Dr. Henry said the curriculum container over the years had distorted the concept of the nature of English. He said even the new approaches of team teaching, advanced placement and ungraded English had failed to alter the 1903 container.

Emphasizing that English is not learned like other subjects, Dr. Henry described English as a condition, an atmosphere and a consciousness of grabbing experience rather than "all thought." In comparing English teaching to experiences such as the Peace Corps he said one of the great problems is how to best institutionalize the subject to make it workable.

Dr. Henry said, "Marks, report cards, tests, failure promotion, are alien to it (English); they are unnecessary to self-development through language." He also said most research in English keeps teachers obsequiously obeying the rules of the curriculum container e.g., units, grades, instruction by the book.

Report cards in English every six to eight weeks, according to Dr. Henry, do not offer enough time to measure progress in composition or reading. He said "Even a year is not enough with most pupils, as a rule."

Dr. Henry said in most schools and colleges language study is just another specialty, relegated to a department. He pointed out that language study was not a specialty, unless being human was to become a specialty.

In his keynote speech Dr. Henry urged the Alabama teachers to plan to simplify the discipline of English, yet retain its essence. He also said it was crucial for an English staff to make efforts to change the container so that the special nature of English was no longer perverted.

Dr. Henry said, "In my own teaching, the longer I taught the more I threw overboard and yet the better prepared were my pupils." He said that English must be considered as a process and taught by the "spiral method."

The "spiral method" takes selected root concepts, such as the idea of nature, and divides them into various dimensions to be enriched over a period of time. It entails teaching through comparison and contrast of literary works and builds up learning through a logical process.

Dr. Henry said exposing a student to a concept such as nature might mean sensitizing the ninth grader to such subtle feelings as the flight of a bird, falling snow or the sound of an oar, and embarking on relatively easy poems and passages in the tenth year, reserving the grand comprehensive works such as the sea in Moby Dick for later years.

Dr. Henry asked the teachers to demand more time for English back home and to try ungradedness, team planning of process, and more informal ways of reporting progress in writing.

He said that English is now fumbling to emancipate itself from the industrial, mechanical view and attempting to see itself not so much as language but as experience in language.

U. of D. Receives Grant For Sleep Research

The University of Delaware has received the sum of $59,600 from the National Science Foundation for research entitled "EEG Synchrony and Inhibition."

The project is under the direction of Dr. Jerome Siegel, associate professor of psychology. The grant is effective for a period of approximately two years.

Garden Specialist Offers Planting Tips for Trees

Early spring, before the growing season begins, is an excellent time to plant trees and ornamental shrubs, according to David V. Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

Generally speaking, the hole should be large enough to hold bare tree roots without spreading out, says Tatnall. For bagged nursery stock, dig a hole two feet wider than the root ball. Plant so that the soil line is at the same level on the trunk that it was at the nursery.

Work plenty of peat moss into low grade soil, he adds. Or replace poor soil from the hole with good soil. Pack soil under and around the roots and stake or guy the tree before filling in the rest of the soil.

In most cases, a single stake long enough to reach the lower part of the crown will nicely support trees up to two inches in diameter; two or three stakes will support trees from two to four inches in diameter.

For larger trees, circle the trunk with hose covered with wire and stake one wire in the direction from which the prevailing wind blows. Then stake two additional wires to form a triangle. Fertilization will not usually be necessary the first year.

To fertilize existing trees, bore holes 12-15 inches deep and two feet part around the area covered by tree branches. Distribute fertilizer equally in these holes.

One way to determine the proper amount of fertilizer for a particular tree is to measure its trunk diameter three feet above the ground. Apply one to two pounds of fertilizer for each inch of diameter.

Water most newly planted trees with a slow-running hose for about an hour a week, says Tatnall. But don't apply more water than the soil can absorb. Too much water can harm your tree.

For additional planting tips, write for the pamphlet "Planting Trees and Shrubs." Address requests to Mail Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, 19711.

Master's Level Fellowships in Ed Offered

The Bureau of the Handicapped of the United States Office of Education has renewed five fellowships at the University of Delaware for master's level study leading to careers in teaching disturbed children.

The awards are part of the Socially - Emotionally Disturbed Teacher Training program. The fellowships include tuition and a dependency allowance in addition to a basic yearly stipend of $2200.

The graduate level program consists of one year plus one summer session of study. Coursework includes 18 hours in education and 12 hours in related fields.

To be eligible for the fellowships applicants must meet the entrance requirements for the College of Graduate Studies and have an interest in the area of special education.

For additional information applicants may contact Abraham W. Nicholaou, assistant professor, College of Education at the University of Delaware.

Metal, Wood Free Stalls O.K.

Delmarva milk sanitarians have voted to allow Delaware dairymen to use either wood or metal in construction of free stall dairy housing, according to Dr. W. R. Hesseltine, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware.

Many metal free stalls have become rusted and broken after only three or four years use, says Hesseltine. Until metal is known to last or is guaranteed for 10 years, dairymen are advised to avoid using metal free stalls.

To avoid the expense of early free stall replacement, wood remains the recommended construction material, he adds. All free stalls must still be made using concrete curbing. Recommended free stall size is seven feet long and four feet wide.

For additional free stall information and plans, contact your county agent in Newark, Dover or Georgetown or write to Dr. W. R. Hesseltine, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, 19711.

IT HAD TO COME

A minority group of students at the University of Wisconsin presented a list of tongue-in-cheek demands to the administration and threatened a strike if they were not met at once.

The present structure of the university is irrelevant to the lives of Irish students and unresponsive to their needs, Karen O'Callaghan, 21, vice president of the Irish Students' Association, said.

"Sure and the university is a racist institution," charged Miss O'Callaghan, a senior from Atlanta. "It discriminates against people of Gaelic origin."

Now, the news item incorporating the above came out, by coincidence, on St. Patrick's Day, but, with the demands, not requests, of black students we have been wondering.

Why not university departments for the study of the culture of the yellow race, for Chinese and Japanese immigrants have played a prominent part in the building of this great nation, especially in the West?

Why not a department for the brown race? Why not a department for the red race. After all, where would the western movies be without the Indians?

Persons of the yellow, brown, and red races could also demand they be allowed to select their professors, to determine the courses of study they (the students) would pursue, to determine what percentage of the student body they would comprise, and to lower the requirements of an entrance examination.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

LIFE IS "TIME"
 and
 TIME IS "ETERNITY"

As time goes on we are reminded of an inspiring talk some time ago by the Rev. Garrett at one of our Methodist Men's Breakfasts on "The Value of Time". Some of his thoughts are well defined in the following:

A HALF MILLION FOR YOU

In his stimulating book, "Life Begins at Forty" Walter B. Pitkin says that we all come into the world with a certain chance of acquiring a working capital of round half million. No, not dollars—hours! Those hours will be paid in full if we are skillful enough and lucky enough to stick around until we reach the age of three-score years and ten.

Our greatest sin is the measure of everything in terms of money. We should get off the money-standard, and on the time-standard in our thinking. The art of living is the art of getting the most out of the minutes that are ours. How to make every minute count for happiness, for growth, for service, for peace and contentment—that is our real objective.

The man who burns himself out piling up wealth and then spends the sunset of his life sitting on the porch of a sanitarium watching the healthy poor go by—has failed. He has failed in his use of time—the minutes that came to him bright and shining right from eternity—just as they come to you and me. In his accumulation of millions of dollars he has sacrificed thousands of hours of happiness. For time, not money, is the stuff of which life is made.

FELTON IN 1868 as shown on the atlas of Pomeroy & Beers. It shows the Fountain House on the south side of Main Street just east of the railroad. (See other photo in this issue regarding Felton as a peach center.)

This photo, shown in our issue of March 7, as being in Harrington, was made in Felton. It looks like Harrington, we were told it was in Harrington but it isn't, as several from Harrington and Felton have informed us. Mrs. Alice Langrell, 224 Delaware Ave., who had an original copy, said the picture belonged to her father, the late Leslie Jackson. Copies, however, are in Dover and at Wooleyhan's Package Store on U.S. 13 north of Felton. Mrs. Langrell, a former Felton resident, said her father, one Friedel, Jack Eaton, and one Luff were in the picture. It looked south from the Main Street, and was taken on a day in 1881, says one informant, when 18,000 baskets of peaches were shipped. The building to the left, shaded, is the Fountain House now the grocery store of Freddy Casper. In 1859, this hostelry was owned by P. A. Jollie. In later years, says Reuben Outten, of Felton, it was operated by Dennie Price, and later, Phil Dill. The grain warehouses were on the right. North of the crossing, back of Luff's Drugstore, were other grain warehouses, one of which was purchased by William Paskey and taken to his farm.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Walter S. Gibbons of Lexington, Ky., is the brawny, if elderly, man you may have seen around Dover recently in the 10 gallon hat. He was sales manager for the dispersal of the horses in the Purple and Red Stable, Inc. It was my privilege to shepherd him around Dover and to Harrington while Del Miller was in the county to speak at our Standardbred horsemen at the Delaware State Fair.

He tells me he has done everything in the horse business, and is now semi-retired. He has built a number of race tracks including Brandywine. He is proudest of the one at Pompano, Fla., which has a gravel base and a cushion of ground up marl on top.

He listened patiently while I spoke of our early efforts to make an all-weather track at Harrington. The biggest problem was to improve the drainage of the hub rail area by digging a large pond in the infield. Then the horsemen decided that they liked the Brandywine surface best, a simple matter of following Gibbons' prescription for sand, loam and clay.

It is a bit more involved than that. During the training and racing season, the sub-surface is never permitted to become dry. The cushion works like a rug, to protect the horses legs. It is maintained by constantly dragging off or stirring up the surface.

And that's about all I know about Walter Gibbons and race tracks.

Violent and disastrous price swings are the curse of the market egg industry. Producers are sick of a system where a 2% or 3% egg surplus threatens their very existence. So they are organizing as a national poultry federation known as United Egg Producers.

The only information I have is some mail from the national headquarters, but the ideas seem worth sharing. UEP proposes to operate in the market place to discover the true value for eggs, a commodity with a rather steady demand. They feel the market often fails to speak the truth.

For example, the supply situation in November 1968 was only 3 per cent lower than for the same month a year earlier. Yet prices were almost 50 per cent higher!

So, we're seeing five regional egg cooperatives trying out their own market muscle. Steadier levels of retail prices should be a boon to the housewife as well.

Crambe or sesame as possible new crops for Delaware? Dr. Merle Teel, chairman of the plant sciences department at the University of Delaware, sees some possibilities, at least on a trial basis.

Not much is known about crambe. Most of us in Delaware never heard of it. But Dr. Teel says it is in the mustard plant family, and producers a seed that can be pressed for oil that has special uses. The oil does not break down under conditions of extreme heat.

A question was asked by a farmer if crambe would cross pollinate with our mustard weeds. Another farmer responded: "Who cares if the seed is so valuable!" Tho of course a mixture could truly be a problem.

Now is a good time to give your trees added strength by pruning and other measures. First take a good look at your trees. Are limbs dangling over drives, walks, garage and house? Are crowns too thick? Are there unwanted crossover branches? Dead branches? "Sucker" branches on trees such as maple, poplar, apple?

If any of these conditions exist, the trees need pruning now. Pruning will restore tree shape and, more important, will help prevent winter storm damage.

"Clean-up" operations may be followed by bracing and cabling weak "Y" crotches and large limbs, if needed. These limbs can split under the weight of snow and ice and as the result of violent winds. Such storm damage protection can add years of life to valued trees.

Other tree care measures to perform during the winter months are:
Feeding trees when the ground is not frozen.
Dormant spraying to help reduce spring populations of scale and other harmful insects. This is done before active growth starts in the spring.

Install lightning protection cables, if needed.
My thanks to Ralph Snodsmith, Rockland County, New York Extension Agent for these hints.

A dairy tour to California will be made in July by Delaware and West Virginia farmers Travel to the West Coast will be jet from Baltimore. Interest is so strong that two buses will be used in California starting at Los Angeles and returning from San Francisco.

Total cost for the week starting July 18 will be approximately $375. The group will be guided by University of California extension service dairy specialists.

Call our county agent's office if you might want to make a reservation. Do it quickly because the Delaware quota is only 12 people.

U. of D. Political Science Dept. Chairman Named

Dr. William W. Boyer, professor and head of the department of political science at Kansas State University, has been named Messick Professor of Public Administration and chairman of the department of political science at the University of Delaware. He will assume his new post in September.

In making the announcement, Dr. Arnold L. Lippert, dean of the College of Arts and Science, said that Dr. Boyer "will bring a new emphasis to our graduate program in public administration."

Dr. Boyer succeeds Dr. Felix A. Nigro, acting chairman of the department, who is leaving to take a post at the University of Georgia.

At Kansas State since 1965, Dr. Boyer served as chairman of the convocations committee since 1966 and coordinated a Landon lecture series on public issues since 1967. The Landon series has attracted such notables as the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., Gov. Ronald Reagan and Sen. George McGovern to Kansas State.

A graduate of the College of Wooster, in Ohio, Dr. Boyer received his Ph. D. at the University of Wisconsin in 1953. Besides Kansas State, he has taught on the faculties of Grinnell College and the Universities of Wisconsin, Connecticut, Florida, Southern California, and Pittsburgh.

His extensive service in public administration includes assignments as research assistant to the Wisconsin Legislative Council and as administrative assistant to the governor of Wisconsin in 1954-55.

As director of international specialists programs in public administration for the U.S. State Department from 1957 to 1962, he conducted a lecture tour in seven Asian nations during which he delivered 80 lectures on public affairs to universities, government officers, and other groups.

In 1964 Dr. Boyer returned from a two-year stint as professor-advisor at the University of the Punjab, in Lahore, Pakistan, where he helped develop a graduate program in public administration under the auspices of the University of Southern California and the U. S. Agency for International Development.

During the summer of 1967, Dr. Boyer was Visiting Senior Fulbright Professor at Andhra University in South India where he helped develop the first course on development administration in an Indian university. During the following summer, he was Visiting Professor of Public Administration at the University of Malaya, in Malaysia. He has lectured in 18 universities in ten Asian nations.

Author of three books and numerous articles in Asian and American scholarly journals, Dr. Boyer most recently served as editor for Issues 1968, published by the University Press of Kansas. Contributors to the book included Norman Cousins, J. W. Fulbright, Robert F. Kennedy, Alfred M. Landon, Ralph McGill, Ronald Reagan, and George Romney.

Vision Testing For Pre-schoolers March 22-29

For all children, 4 and 5 years old in the Harrington, Frederica, and Felton School Districts, a very simple vision screening test which will take only a few minutes to complete will be held at the following schools: West Harrington Elementary School and the Felton School.

This program, sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary of Delaware is being conducted in cooperation with the State Department of Public Instruction. The local school nurses are volunteering their time on two consecutive Saturdays, March 22 and March 29 from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.

The purpose is to discover eye defects, especially amblyopia (lazy eye) at this early age so that the child may have the greatest benefit from treatment, and possibly prevent eventual blindness.

Parents are requested to accompany their children to the schools so that if any eye defect should be found they may receive information from the nurse relating to further testing.

If the children have been screened in head start, nursery school, or kindergarten they need not be re-screened. This service is free. There will be no charge of any kind.

Jim Temple Had 38 Points In 1960 Tilt

Recently we penned that Buddy Sipple had set a new school record of 46 points. This was true. However, we were incorrect in stating that the mark Buddy had broken was 35, set by Dr. Bob Smith in 1938. Jim Temple had broken Smith's mark by netting 38 points at Middletown in 1960.

Temple was a wizard ball-handler. Although, he led a winning team in scoring as a senior, his scoring was often overshadowed by his dribbling and other floor work. At times, a late-game H.H.S. freeze consisted solely of Temple putting on a Marquis Haynes act and dribbling skillfully and merrily around the court, eating up the clock, while opponents futilely chased him.

Temple did not play the game as a junior, although he did as a sophomore. Any student of basketball knows that a player who sits out a junior year loses a lot of momentum, experience, practice time, playing time, etc. Jim Temple finished third in the state in scoring in 1960 despite his junior year absence. It is out belief that if his career had not been interrupted, he would have easily led the state as a senior and would have had an excellent chance for an All-State berth.

In 19 games, including the Alumni game, he caged 374 points on 148 field goals and 77 foul shots.

Only once did he fail to score in double figures. Lord Baltimore held the Lion to 9 points. In his next two outings he exploded for 73 points. At Middletown, in overtime, he set a new school mark of 38, then equalled the old standard with 35 at Delmar.

The Middletown contest was an unusual one. The score was tied at 60-all in regulation time because Harrington's Bruce Smith had scored a basket for Middletown. It was poetic justice when Smith scored the winning points, by hitting the first basket in overtime. Temple had scored 34 points, one under the old school mark. He had four points in the extra period to set the new standard. Thus, Smith's accidental two-points-for-Middletown gave Temple the time he needed to erase Bob Smith's 22-year-old record.

Another unusual aspect of the game was the fact that three seniors, who had been pacing the Lions in scoring all campaign, tallied all the points. After Temple's 38, Ron Collison had 21 and Bruce Smith had 8. Temple's 35 at Delmar, a few days later, came in a losing contest.

Francis Ryan, local high school principal, had a cousin who played for St. Peter's of New Castle, in two losing efforts against the 1960 Lions of Coach Dick (don't call me Brad) Jeffers.

Temple's 1960 Scoring — Alumni 7, St. Peter's 24, Bridgeville 17, Greenwood 16, Felton 18, Selbyville 27, Milton 15, Milford 20, Delmar 13, Millsboro 10, Greenwood 25, Milton 14, Felton 26, Lord Baltimore 9, Middletown 38, Delmar 35, John M. Clayton 18, St. Peter's 20, Rehoboth 29.

Well, someone finally got to McKnatt Funeral Home, causing them to drop a whole game in this third after they had carried an almost perfect record for several weeks. Hamilton Fund was the culprit, winning the first game in good fashion, although they could not keep up the pace the rest of the contest, dropping the remaining two games, barely missing a chance to take total pins. H. Brode led the assault for McKnatt's, rolling a fine 538 series, for an above average performance in a good night's effort. B. Taylor, who bowls only occasionally for McKnatt's, aided the three game win with a nice 503 series, also an above average performance. Not bad, considering the lapse of time in between the time he is called on to bowl as a substitute. H. Melvin bowled very well in defeat as he rolled a real fine 209 game, amassing a great 548 series for Hamilton Fund. B. Case also aided the finance boys in their futile effort to upset the leaders, by rolling a very fine 532 series. Hamilton Fund made a fine accounting of themselves, when one considers the fact that they are on the opposite end of the standings.

K. Outten came on strong in the second game of Taylor & Messick's battle with Penn Central, to lead the Taylor & Messick combine to victory in the remaining games, as he bowled a great 216 game, amassing a real fine 544 series. W. Sapp rolled a real nice 201 game in the onset of the contest to give Penn Central their only game of the night. Taylor & Messick continues their strong showing, remaining in the runner-up spot, acting as a shield to prevent other teams from getting to McKnatt's. Penn Central has shown good improvement, doing very well this third, and are tied for sixth place.

The Spoilers are right in the thick of things, after taking three games from Gerardi Bros. Tuesday night. D. Wilson was late getting there, but made up his tardiness by rolling a grand 221 game to lead The Spoilers to victory in the remaining games. Also rolling a real fine 200 game was C. Wright, who added a real fine series to aid in The Spoilers' scoring punch. Again going in to the contest with three men, Gerardi Bros. put up a real battle against overwhelming odds to eke out a single win. K. Layton's grand 244 game in the onset of the fray was mainly responsible for Gerardi's taking the first game. Layton went on to amass a very fine 570 series for a grand night's work. H. Wheeler also aided the furniture boys with a real fine 544 series, and though F. Dill only rolled a 504 series, he too, made a fine effort by bowling above his average to aid in a real team effort. The Spoilers are now in a tie for second place and are going to be hard to pass if they can keep their momentum. Gerardi Bros. are in a dismal tenth place.

D. Hayman had another good night, bowling a grand 548 series, including a great 224 game to lead Jarrell Fuel to a three game victory Tuesday night over Quillen's Market. M. Jarrell also contributed a real fine 529 series, with a nice 207 game included to help keep Jarrell Fuel up in the standings, who at this writing, are occupying fourth place. Quillen's Market went into the fray with only three men, but did a creditable job against a four man team in defeat. Quillen's are now dueling for the cellar position with Hamilton Fund.

Butler's Fuel came on strong in their duel with People's Restaurant, but could not keep up their momentum after winning the first game and dropped the remaining games to fall into a tie for fourth place in the standings. The defeat was a hard one to take in view of the fact that four men out of five bowled above their averages. S. Lyons was again high man for Butler's with a real fine 526 series. People's Restaurant also had four men to roll above their averages, with A. Young setting the pace with a very fine 542 series, including a grand 221 game. The key to the contest was the degree of how many pins were bowled above the men's individual averages. This was a well matched contest, with People's close to Butler's, in sixth place in the standings.

Wally's Garage and Robbins Hardware battled it out Tuesday night with Robbins Hardware coming out on the short end of a 3-1 verdict. J. Gallo led the assault for Wally's Garage with a real fine 216 game and a good 537 series. C. Gallo also contributed a good 523 series for the garage boys. H. Robbins tried to pull his team out of defeat by rolling a very fine 559 series, though it proved to be a futile attempt, with Robbins Hardware falling into ninth place. Wally's Garage moved up a couple notches in the standings, and are now in eighth place.
