

House Bill to Lift Welfare Burden Has Bipartisan Support

A Republican legislator told the Democratic-controlled Kent County Levy Court Tuesday that a House bill to lift the burden of welfare payments from the counties has bipartisan support.

Rep. W. Neal Moerschel, R-Dover, said that H.B. 116, introduced by Rep. Jacob W. Zimmerman, D-Dover, was co-sponsored by him and another Republican, Rep. David S. Benson, of Graylyn Crest.

The bill could offer Gov. Russell W. Peterson his first test on party unity, at least in the House. The Republican governor has gone on record as saying he would not ask the state to assume full responsibility of welfare payments.

A similar bill has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Allen J. Cook, D-Kent. However, a source close to the Senate indicated that body, also controlled by Republicans, would comply with the desires of the governor.

At a Kent County budget hearing on welfare, Levy Court President William C. Torbert said, "This is by far the largest expenditure to this government. And, it is spiraling."

Torbert questioned why monthly payments have climbed from $18,000 in May 1968 to a projected $25,000 in May 1969.

Kent County's share of welfare constitutes nearly one-fourth of its 1969-70 budget. If a planned increase in payments is effected, the Levy Court will have to seek legislative action to lift its taxing power ceiling of 50 cents per $100 of assessed property value, commissioners said.

Ronald E. Miller, director of the Department of Welfare, told the Levy Court to expect a "basic figure of 7 to 8 per cent more than last year based on current trends."

This would put the county nearly $10,000 short of its budget total of $248,276 for the fiscal year share of general assistance and aid to dependent children.

It does not include a proposed increase by the governor of about $4 million statewide for welfare, half of which the counties would pay. Kent's share has been estimated at $350,000.

Derrickson Is Feted By Friend, Foe
Vernon B. Derrickson's friends and foes in politics for the past 20 years honored him Tuesday night at a dinner marking his retirement as chairman.

About 100 Democrats, Republicans and friends presented Derrickson with an engraved bowl and praised his leadership during his long term as head of the county party.

Former Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr., who headed a long list of present and former office holders at the dinner, said that Derrickson's record of losing only one county election since he took over as chairman is "one of the most remarkable exhibitions I have ever seen."

Terry, who grew up with Derrickson and has known him for 60 years, traced the former chairman's career as a college athlete, lawyer and businessman, and said he encouraged Derrickson to run for the county chairmanship 20 years ago.

Others who praised Derrickson's record were House Minority Leader Jacob W. Zimmerman of Dover, introduced as "Kent County's candidate for the U.S. Senate;" former Gov. Elbert N. Carvel; Democratic state chairman Alexis I. duPont Bayard, and James G. Smith, Jr., Derrickson's successor.

Still another speaker was Herman C. Brown, who as Republican county chairman has been Derrickson's adversary in Kent County for the last two elections. "He's been a damn good sport," Brown said of Derrickson.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

Easter, spring, and eggs have been closely associated for longer than anyone can remember—so long, in fact, that the true origin of the association has been lost and there are as many tales and legends about the three as anyone could imagine.

At this time of year it's interesting to recall some of the legends. For instance, do you know why so many Easter eggs are colored red? As the story goes, red was the first color used to stain Easter eggs. This color was used in memory of Christ's blood, according to an early account, which goes on to tell of a peasant girl who was carrying a basket of eggs on her head when she heard Mary Magdalene crying, "He is risen. He is risen. The stone is rolled away." Scornfully the girl said, "I'd as soon believe my eggs are red as believe your story." When she looked, the eggs were red. And still today, in the lands at the eastern end of the Mediterranean Sea, Easter eggs are predominantly red.

The custom of rolling colored eggs on grassy slopes is said to have originated in Medieval England, and came officially to Washington in 1810, when Dolly Madison arranged an egg roll for Easter Monday on the Capitol grounds. President Hayes transferred the party to the White House grounds in 1878. Here it has remained and is now a traditional celebration.

Eggs for Easter decorations need to be hard-cooked but not hard-boiled, and there is quite a difference between the two. Remember, eggs should never be overcooked, regardless of the cooking method used. Heat coagulates and sets the protein, and the egg becomes firm. A properly cooked egg has a tender white and a smooth yolk. If the cooking temperature is too high or the egg is cooked too long, the protein shrinks and makes the white tough and the yolk mealy. To be hard-cooked, eggs should be completely covered in the pan with cold water (for drying use white eggs and cook in an enamel pan for best results). The water should be brought to a simmer and kept there for 20 to 25 minutes. Do not boil. When done, the eggs should be plunged at once into cold running water and kept there until they are cold.

The green discoloration that sometimes appears between the yolk and the white of a hard-cooked egg results from a chemical reaction between sulphur in the white and iron in the yolk. This discoloration is unattractive but harmless. Cooking eggs at this recommended low temperature and cooling promptly will help prevent it.

Don't waste your Easter eggs, they are delicious when shelled and pickled, or made into egg salad, or creamed in a rich cheese sauce, used in a congealed aspic, or combined with many other interesting foods into nutritious dishes.

Specialist Offers Hints For Pruning

Prune trees and shrubs regularly to help keep them vigorous and attractive, says University of Delaware garden specialist David V. Tattall. But don't get carried away with the shears and remove branches that will ruin the plant's natural symmetry.

Prune out dead branches and twigs and sprouts that grow along trunks, he advises. And remove branches growing toward the center of the tree or rubbing against other branches. This contact may cause disease. Remember to make clean cuts close to the branch.

Deciduous shrubs, such as forsythia, spirea, mockorange and weigela, should be pruned in late winter, early spring or immediately after flowering. Prune ornamentals and shade trees while the plants are dormant during winter and early spring.

In any case, avoid pruning trees or shrubs in the early fall; it tends to produce late, immature growth. Prune plants at any time of year to remove dead, diseased, broken or injured parts.

For additional information on pruning, write for University of Delaware fact sheets on "Pruning Evergreens," "Pruning Deciduous Shrubs" and "Pruning Woody Plants." Copies are available from county extension offices in Newark, Dover and Georgetown or from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

Watch Out For That Foot In The Door

Warm weather may bring one headache — door-to-door salesmen. Have you already been bothered by persistent door-to-door salesmen trying to wear down your resistance with a sales gimmick?

Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware, says to beware of such gimmicks as "the free gift." Often, the cost of the "free gift" is included in the price of the item being sold.

Salesmen often try appealing to your sympathy, or make such statements as: "it can't be bought in the stores," "so and so bought it," "the supply is limited," or "it's free — just pay the postage." In the first place, probably none of these statements are true; even if they were, they're not a good reason for buying. So, be on guard against the salesman's high-pressure spiel.

Before buying anything, ask to see the salesman's identification and read it carefully. Ask you familiar with the product or the company? Be very cautious if it's a totally unfamiliar product or firm.

Ask the salesman when you get what you bought; if you can return the product and get your money back; how do you replace or repair broken parts; do you have to sign a contract; and how do you pay for it?

That last question may be the most important. Many so-called low cost credit plans are really high cost. Be sure you understand the payment agreement, especially the interest rates, the person to be paid, and the number and date of payments.

If you are going to sign a contract, read it carefully. And, don't sign it until all blank spaces are filled in or crossed out and initialed. Any promises made by the salesman must be spelled out in the contract to be legal, according to Miss Morris.

If you have any questions or doubts about the reputation of the company represented, call the Better Business Bureau in your area. In Wilmington, the telephone number is 652-3833.

Of course, many door-to-door salesmen are reliable, but be ready to deal with the high-pressure, fast-talking door-to-door salesman.

Before you're caught.

Chief of Police Frank Morgan caught an opossum in the outer lobby of the Reese Theatre Friday. It was presumed the marsupial was attempting to get into the movies without buying a ticket to see "The Bribe." Chief Morgan gave the animal to Harry Short to release in the woods.

Samuel Fox, of Leipsic, caught a small muskrat Monday morning which was imprisoned under a grate just outside a basement window of the Kent County Courthouse at Dover. He released it in a marsh.

The residence of Wallace Smith, of Farmington, was destroyed by fire early Wednesday morning when an oil stove exploded. The Harrington Fire Company answered the alarm and also another Wednesday afternoon alarm at the same location when a blaze started in the debris.

The calls were two of 11 answered by the fire company from Thursday a week ago to yesterday morning.

Funeral services for William Henry Stubbs, 61, of near Harrington, husband of Eliza Stubbs and son of the late Charles Stubbs and the former Mary Shockley, were held Wednesday from the Boyer Funeral Home.

Milton Moore, 50, a Felton Livestock dealer, died Monday in Kent General Hospital, Dover.

Robert "Bobby" Greer, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Greer, of Reese Avenue, is convalescing at his home from a fall from the running board of a truck Saturday.

promoted him to first lieutenant and then captain, and then a major! And then! oh! no! not all over again!

Kitty Louise Burgess — to me known as "The Flying Nun"—comes in to the picture! Loud and clear, and in good focus, too.

She came down to visit me a few days before the operation, and in walks Lombardo, the head nurse on Ward No. 4, and she and Kitty Lou start talking about Jefferson Hospital in Philadelphia, and Mrs. Lombardo says to Kitty Lou: "Do you know Dr. Gonzales?" "Why sure, of course."

It seems that Dr. Jorge was an instructor at Jefferson Hospital before he came to the Veterans' Hospital. He knew Kitty Lou alright.

Kitty Lou had taken care of Mrs. Gonzales when she had her baby at Jefferson Hospital. Small world!

So Churchill takes a back seat while Kitty Lou and the doctor shoot the breeze.

Back to C. Day: Cut 'em up day! The Green Hornet had come for me and put me on the cart — after all you have to ride in style — the Green Hornet, is the man dressed in light green who comes and gets you and wheels you into the operating room—and you get ready for the bolero—the knife.

Out comes Dr. Raney, and says, "we're having a little trouble with the previous patient; they probably had found more than they had thought when they cut him open; so he asked me if I would wait a little while because they had to stay with this patient."

"So I told him, ok! Then the Green Hornet comes and wheels me back up to the dormitory; and I have to wait until about 2 o'clock before he comes after me again. They gave me a nice needle in the hip and just like Jackie Gleason—away we go!

In the surgery room they tell you to put your knees up to your chin—as close as you can —and here we go! With the needles, I mean. They call it freezing—just like that dance they call "freeze." If the music stops and you move, you might be in a little trouble. They take a piece of skin and pinch it and throw it in a needle. After eight or ten of these you are ready for the bone yard—the knife, I mean!

You are usually awake all the way, but you don't feel anything from your stomach on down. If you want to watch the operation; they might let you do so; but not for me; I dozed off.

After awhile, they told me the operation was over; and I told the doctor if this operation was not a success, my daughter would come back and cut his throat—Of course, I was kidding.

But there he stood, the doctor, with his hands folded. He was all smiles. The operation was a success. He said it was a major operation, too. And I guess he was saying to himself, "oh! well! I helped another gringo, today, and boy, am I proud of myself.

I asked him later, does he know the difference between vocation and avocation. He asked me what was that. Of course he would know what it was in Spanish so I told him what it was in English.

A vocation is what you do for a living; and avocation is when you like the work you are doing.

The doctor told me he was going to send one of these writeups down to his mother in Peru. I certainly hope she likes it. Because she sure has one nice son up here helping us out. "Oh! my!" "Nothing like a little soft soap."

Incidentally, he said when Kitty Lou gets out of school in August, he would have a job waiting for her. She will be a graduate nurse.

After the operation, the Green Hornet comes in and puts you on his little go cart, and takes you up to your ward and then they put you in a bed with bottles of plasma, etc., and they tell you to stay in bed for a few days, but who wants to get up anyway. You feel just like you don't have any legs at all. You can't even move anything from your hips on down.

If you want to go to a playhouse, never go to a hospital; if you are sick enough it is ok. But if you aren't sick; stay away.

The Hungarian commandant was dying, and he sent the Hungarian lieutenant out to get some benzine so he could get to the hospital which was 35 miles away in Augsburg, Germany. The lieutenant came across the German-Asutrian gurad, which was W. C. So we go back to the guardpost which is on the Austrian side, and snatches us a five gallon can of gasoline and takes off. The commandant was tickled to death. No wonder, a guard of American and Hungarian soldiers standing at attention while they escorted him to the car. He had appendicitis, but he was so pleased that I think he might have made it.

The lieutenant was also pleased. He said to us, "you boys come up tonight, we are staging a show."

So that night, up we go to the show. Another "Speedy Gonzales," but Hungarian style. The Hungarians have a name for it; because I have read of it in magazines.

They take a sheet and put a light back of it, and then the surgeon operates. Of course, we couldn't understand what they were saying, but this one-eyed Hungarian lieutenant spoke perfect English, so he translated for us.

The surgeon operated, and lo! and behold! What did he find. An old pair of shoes, then a corset, nuts, bolts, and anything you could think of came out of the patients belly. I wonder, if sometimes when these doctors chop you up—I wonder if they some times don't run into the same thing. However, the X-ray machines do a wonderful job, but they can't pick up everything!

THE HOPE OF THE WORLD

By Helen Steiner Rice

An empty tomb . . .

A stone rolled away

Speak of the Saviour

Who rose Easter Day . . .

But that was centuries and

And centuries ago,

And we ask today

Was it really so?

Did He walk on earth

And live and die

And return to His Father

To dwell on high?

We were not there

To hear or see,

But our hopes and dreams

Of Eternity

Are centered around

The Easter Story

When Christ ascended

And rose in glory . . .

And life on earth

Has not been the same,

Regardless of what

The skeptics claim . . .

For, after the Lord

Was crucified,

Even the ones who had

Scoffed and denied

Knew that something

Had taken place

That nothing could ever remain or erase . . .

For hope was born

In the soul of man,

And faith to believe

In God's master plan

Stirred in the hearts

To dispel doubt and fear

And that faith has grown with each passing year . . .

For the Hope of Man

Is the Easter Story

For life is robbed

Of all meaning and glory

Unless man knows

that he has a "goal"

And a "resting place"

for his searching soul.

SINCERITY

If you'd gather friends and keep them. If you'd have friends always near, Just adopt this simple custom: In all dealings, be sincere.

Put aside all guile and falseness Say your say without a fear, That your words will ne'er be doubted, Let the world know you're sincere.

In your little deals in business Keep your conscience always clear; Be your actions big or little Always try to be sincere.

Let us start today to try it; It will help us year by year, We could love each other better, If we all would be sincere.

You can't judge the modern girl by her clothes; there isn't enough evidence.

My Operation! - Oh! Me! Oh! My Oh! Oh! One More to Go!

James Harvey used to say: "Never blow your own bugle; let somebody else do it for you."

For once he was wrong; if you don't blow your own horn, nobody else will; because they are too busy blowing their own.

"The minimum wage law should be outlawed," says R. I. Nowell, vice president and economist for the Equitable Life Assurance Society. "It causes more unemployment than any other single factor at unskilled levels," he adds. Nowell was one of two speakers at the Delaware Bankers Agricultural Forum.

Most unskilled unemployment is at the late teen age levels. Nowell's solution is "create jobs where there is a surplus of labor and pay what the work is worth." He would supplement the salary with government training subsidy until such time as a young individual develops true earning capacity.

"Our economy cannot afford high rates of unemployment," was his answer to a question raised by Bill Henderson, our Sussex County Agricultural Agent.

The minimum wage scale for farm labor this year is pegged at not under $1.30 per hour - locally and nationally. There are some exceptions spelled out in the Federal Legislation. Our Kent County Extension Service Office has the details all spelled out in written form. It is available on request by simply telephoning 736-1448. Child labor legislation also limits the kinds of farm work for a minor, some even by a farmer's own children. In general, heavy machinery operations are not permitted.

The University of Delaware has four basic charges, Dr. Edward A. Trabant told the Delaware Agricultural Bankers Forum:

- 1) To develop creative competence. Where the student has scientific inclinations, the emphasis might be placed on technical skill or competence. But if his study emphasis is in the arts, his creative capacity must be stretched.
- 2) To give direction within society based on the learning experiences to date.
- 3) To impart a sense of values, especially those of integrity and responsibility that should go with leadership.
- 4) To convey a sense of spirit. The physical energy which will provide a capacity for a full life. The courage to look at, define, work at, and resolve emerging issues with a positive attitude.

Dr. Trabant sees the University as developing educational progress by providing the living environment and the social climate to develop good citizens.

Catfish production worth $10.5 million was achieved by fish farmers in 1968 according to the NACD Newsletter. The sale of bait minnows raised on farms brought in another $8.25 million.

The following Kent County farm pond owners have expressed an interest in the trial production of channel catfish: Andrew Byler, Anton Vodvarka, Edward Siwakosky, William Best, Richard Martin, and Alvin Brown.

Credit Frederick T. Mott, our Soil Conservationist for drumming up this interest.

The walnut husk fly seems to be the culprit responsible for inedible nuts at harvesttime. Frank Boys, our Extension Entomologist recommends three separate sprays of malathion about the end of May, the end of June and the end of July. Use 1 tablespoon per gallon of 25 per cent wettable powder malathion and soak the tree well.

It Seems To Me

By Janet C. Reed

It's a sheer year, so try your skill on the season's beautiful sheer fabrics.

Keep in mind that your workmanship shows right through a sheer garment so this is no place for messy work on the wrong side. If you're using an underlining, you needn't be so concerned about the appearance on the wrong side, but this is the year for the "see through" look, and you'll probably skip the underlining.

If you intend to go all the way with the see-through look, probably no one will notice your sewing. If you're not that bold, you may want to polish up your sewing techniques.

Seams? No uneven seam allowances, or ravelings showing through. At one time we made French seams on sheer fabrics, but instead of going to all that trouble, try this adaptation.

Once you're certain of the fit, stitch both seam allowances together about 3/16 of an inch from the seam stitching. Trim off the extra seam allowance so that the seam is no more than 1/4 inch wide. If you have a zig-zag machine, use a zig-zag stitch instead and trim off the extra fabric. Keep the seam narrow.

Try to eliminate as many seams as possible. Sometimes a center front or back seam can be cut on the fold instead. If the dress style is one with a buttoned front and a facing cut on straight grain, it's possible to cut facing and garment in one piece, eliminating that seam.

Interfacings? Some parts of the garment may need reinforcement, but an interfacing fabric must be lightweight and sheer. You may be able to use a layer of the dress fabric or possibly a sheer nylon or cotton organdy—even some curtain sheers work well. An interfacing must be compatible with the outer fabric and take the same kind of washing and be as crease resistant.

Buttonholes? Machine buttonholes are the neatest, or tiny button loops are ideal. The patch of a bound button hole shows through.

If the skirt is cut on straight grain, try a double hem with the raw edge at the bottom of the hem crease. This eliminates the line you see when the raw edge is turned under at the top of the hem.

A hem can be wider on a straight cut skirt of sheer fabric. If the skirt has much flare, shrink out as much fullness as you can and finish the raw edge with seam tape or by turning it under about 1/8 inch. Use the method that shows least on the right side. Sheer, soft fabrics tend to pucker in stitching, especially on the lengthwise grain. If you have a number of lengthwise seams, you might prefer to cut the pattern on crosswise grain.

In any case, you'll probably need to loosen the machine tensions and use a long machine stitch. You also will have better luck with a fine thread and a fine machine needle. Experiment on a swatch of fabric before stitching your dress.

Trim? Ruffles are popular this year. If you want ruffles, look for fabric that comes with matching ruffles all made for you. If you prefer to make your own for insertion at neckline or in a faced edge, make a double ruffle. Cut a true bias strip twice as wide as the ruffle (plus seam allowances). Fold the strip in half lengthwise and gather up the raw edges the amount you want. The raw edges are inserted between garment and facing. It's much easier than hemming one edge of the ruffle.

Trend Toward Corporate Agriculture

From an economic viewpoint, it is almost impossible to provide an adequate standard of living on farms of less than 360 acres, according to Dr. J. S. Tobey, technical director of agriculture, Chase Manhattan Bank. Speaking at the University of Delaware Bankers Agricultural Forum, Tobey said that current changes in agriculture indicate a return to the system of the early 1800's when joint stock companies were formed to exploit lands west of the Eastern Seaboard.

"Farming is returning to a business-oriented activity which requires large capital inputs, where profitable operations are measured by return on investment and earnings per share rather than by labor income and cash in a jar," he said.

"I think that it's obvious to everyone involved in agricultural development and in food and fiber production that farming will continue toward larger, more efficient and perhaps more corporate operations."

Several factors are pushing agricultural toward corporate structure, he explained.

With farm assets increasing from year to year, it is difficult for individuals to raise to enough equity to participate in new agricultural ventures. Corporate structures provide a method of bringing enough capital to new businesses to satisfy lenders.

Tobey pointed out that over-capitalization of many farms, particularly where input items or equipment remains idle most of the year, is a costly drain on capital.

Corporate agriculture or large farms that can maximize equipment use often show positive returns when individual producers are showing losses.

Large size farm units are also concerned with money costs, he said. And corporate borrowers can usually satisfy credit needs at rates below those available to individuals; corporate farms usually have better records to support their loan requests.

While there does not seem to be a rush toward commercial corporate agriculture, those units that are developing are large enough to be of concern to the agricultural community, said Tobey.

Many of the newer units are rising from lands formerly considered unsuitable for agriculture. New trends in irrigation and drainage are opening vast areas of the Mississippi Delta and in the swamps of the Southeastern Seaboard.

The price per acre of undeveloped land the cost of bringing this acreage into production falls far short of the purchase price of producing farms in the midwest and other areas. Opportunities for capital gains in land appreciation as well as opportunities made available through new farming techniques and large scale cropping indicate that future rewards await these new ventures.

Another factor often overlooked in examining "big farming" is the education level of today's farmer. Better education means that farmers are now more capable of managing larger operations or multiple farm units.

Today's farmer is smart enough to recognize that profits available in marketing often exceed those of production, said Tobey. And many of the changes in agriculture will be in adding non-production units to the farm complex. This of course, is possible because of increasing farm size.

While many farmers are adding processing and marketing facilities to their operation, many marketers and processors are moving backward into agricultural production. This is particularly true in vegetable production.

In spite of this, however, the trend toward marketing agreements and marketing contracts will permit individual producers to expand their operations on a sound basis.

Real estate and production loans to agriculture must be expanded significantly in the coming years to help producers remain up-to-date on their farm loans, concluded Tobey. In the past, credit has probably been one of the most limiting factors in individual agricultural expansion. In the future, funds must be allocated to agricultural businessmen on the same basis as to other manufacturing concerns with the same credit needs.

After prayerful consideration they decided to use part of these contributions to purchase a new Prayer Desk with a matching chair for the Chancel. These were in use on Palm Sunday and will be dedicated today. Also, presented today by the Clendenings is a check for $150 to the building fund, which is the remainder of the amount contributed by their family and friends. This is a fitting way to celebrate a glorious occasion. We pray for the Clendenings many more happy and useful years together.

It will be the pleasure of St. Stephen's this coming Sunday to have as celebrant of the Choral Festival Eucharist, the Rev. Joseph S. Hinks, Vicar Emeritus of this church. Father Hinks is a friend of long standing to the people of St. Stephen's and it is a genuine pleasure to have him. The vicar will read Ante-Communion and will give a short Easter sermon.

Everyone is urged to remain for coffee hour today. Afterward, there will be an Easter Egg hunt for children of nursery age through third grade. Older children and youth help the small ones find the eggs. There will be suitable prizes. This event is sponsored by the youth class of St. Stephen's.

Inflation To Continue In 1969

In spite of a 10 per cent surtax and rapidly rising interest rates, the inflationary spiral of the U.S. economy shows little evidence of slowing, according to R. I. Nowell, vice president and economist, Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States.

Speaking at the University of Delaware Bankers Agricultural Forum, Nowell said that the biggest single problem facing the Nixon administration is how to cool inflation without causing unemployment and recession—how to disinflate with deflating.

"The U.S. economy enjoyed unparalleled growth between 1960 and 1965," he explained. "Employment grew and prices remained stable. But in 1966, a fiscally irresponsible budget and increased spending in Vietnam, led to the current inflation crisis."

After a series of erratic measures which served only to aggravate the problem, the Federal Reserve Board upped the discount rate in 1968. The two-tier gold market and disorders in France also relieved pressure on the dollar.

Following enactment of the surtax, the FRB became fearful of recession and lowered the discount rate. Employment, credit and spending continued to rise—and so did prices.

"In reality, the government expected too much from the surtax," said Nowell. "And the FRB's loosening of economic restraints counteracted whatever effect the surtax may have had."

At the present time, then, the country is in the midst of an inflationary spiral that must be broken. Consumer and business spending continues at record rates.

Acting once and for all to correct the situation, the FRB has raised interest rates three times in recent months, said Nowell. It appears that the Board is determined to squeeze the banking system and reduce inflation.

The demand for bank loans and federal fiscal policy are on a collision course, he said. Banks have been forced to sell government and municipal bonds to pay maturing notes and many banks have drawn heavily on the European dollar market.

At current money prices, however, many borrowers will be forced to postpone spending. Municipal financing has slowed and the treasury is approaching balance.

"I'm encouraged by these signs and a great many more," said Nowell. "The Paris peace talks are encouraging and our balance of payments is approaching temporary surplus. In addition, the value of the dollar is increasing in the international market and the budget promises balance during 1969. In short, U.S. fiscal and monetary policy are now in harmony."

Inflation psychology is deeply imbedded in our system, he added. So extremely tight money policies will be needed for at least another year.

"The key to cooling inflation is to keep money available, but at very high cost," he said.

A Heritage of Life

With one sentence in your will, you can help significantly in the fight to conquer cancer. Over the years, this disease strikes two of three American families. It kills two out of three of its victims.

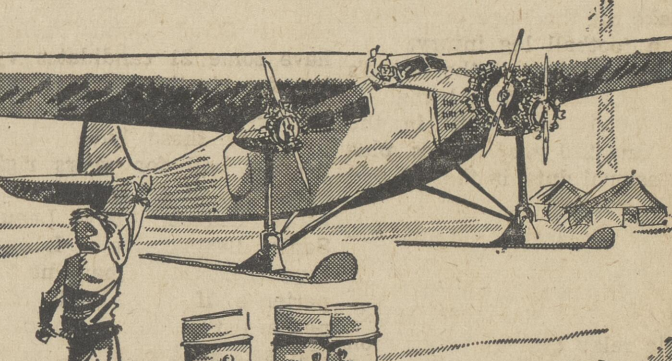

Great strides are being made in controlling cancer. But there can be no let-up until we have the answers to all the unanswered questions.

Today your bequest will be a gift of hope. Tomorrow, it could be a heritage of life. Contact your nearest ACS Unit for more information on the subject.

HOPALONG DISTANCE

Say Happy Easter by telephone. Use your phone to build the crowd for your annual Easter Egg Hunt—or whatever. For friends and relatives far away, here's a suggestion: Call any night or all weekend long. Because from 7 P.M. to 7 A.M. on weekdays—and all day Saturday and Sunday—rates are lowest at any point in the continental U.S.A. A TELEBARGAIN? Eggs-actly.

More important, cables vital to the health and safety of your community could be involved. So before you dig, call our Repair Service and learn where our underground circuits are.

THE FAT ONE

A customer put one of our operators in a touchy situation, recently, by asking her to announce a call for "Mr. Allen, the fat one; not the skinny one." Our operator was reluctant, claiming embarrassment. "That's okay," the customer said, "he won't mind." Just then a third voice cut in with: "It's all right, Operator. I'll take the call. I'm the fat one."

KIDS ARE WONDERFUL

Through the years some of the most delightful observations about the telephone have been written by grade school youngsters. For instance: "Alexander Graham Bell said his first sentence on the phone in 1876. This was really in the 19th century, but for some reason time travels faster than dates." Kids are wonderful. To all of them—and to their nice parents, of course, we wish a very happy holiday season.

H.H.S. Track Team Has Annual Huge Turnout

Harrington High track coach, Harold McDonald, had a turnout of approximately 70 boys until the report came out. A few candidates either flunked out or were withdrawn by parents dissatisfied with the grades brought home by their offspring. In most years late-reporting trackmen will replace the boys who had to take to the sidelines.

Another interesting schedule has been lined up. Some of the top performers will compete in such places as Wilmington, Philadelphia (twice) Bridgetown, New Jersey; University of Delaware and White Plains, N. Y.

As is usual at a small school, Coach McDonald has a few outstanding performers, several weak events and little depth to back up the best boys.

Chris Wetherhold, a 15-year-old sophomore, despite his youth, has already worked himself into the position of being the No. 1 trackman ever developed at Harrington High. He holds the school marks for the half mile and the two mile and was only a second behind the mile mark as a freshman in 1968. Chris has anchored two or three relay teams to school marks, also.

John Swain, a senior, is co-holder of the H.H.S. mark in the 440 of 52.8 seconds and may surpass that, if he can shake off the lingering effects of a football leg injury.

Ken Tribbett is the squad's top sprinter and is being depended on for duty in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, plus occasional duty in the 880 and mile relays.

Tolbert Harris, a tough relay performer, is another key Lion. Harris and Swain formed half of the 1968 H.H.S. mile relay quartet which won the state championship and set a new state record.

Brad Morris, Danny Hitchens, Jackie D. Parker give the Lions a strong corps of two milers with Wetherhold also competing there in the big, invitational meets.

The shot put should be a strong link in the chain with Leonard Donovan, Dale Motter and Mickey Chaffinch showing the way. Chaffinch is new to track but reportedly has come close to the school discus mark of 124 feet. Ricky Porter is another discus threat.

Motter is an accomplished high jumper. Doug Berry was to jump also but may be prevented by scholastic difficulties.

Roger Jarrell, a two-miler in 1968, has been shifted to the mile and 880. Roger can fill in on the mile relay and may vie in the pole vault along with Doug Wilson.

A pair of 14-year-olds, who burst on the scene last spring and summer, at 13, are John Shulties and Olin "Mike" Davis. Although young enough to compete in junior high, both may be used on the varsity because they have the talent to help the big team. Shulties can run any distance from 220 yards on up, can throw the shot (He's six feet, two, at least) and broad jump. John had a 56 second quarter-mile at age 13.

Davis gets out vote as the finest all-around athlete at H.H.S. He quarter-backed the junior high football team, was a part-time starter on the varsity basketball team as a lowly freshman, can pitch, play first base and the outfield and can run any distance from 100 yards on up. Mike may be used on the mile relay unit in dual meets.

Fred White and Bob Smith are fine performers in the 220 and 880 relay events. Smith is eligible for either junior high or varsity service.

H.H.S. Nine Opens April 17

Coach Bob Young and assistant Coach John Phillips have some 21 candidates vying for starting jobs on the Harrington High varsity. Some of these have been playing ball for years right up through the Minor League, Little League, Pony League, Senior League, Major League sequence. Others have no experience if any knid, save perhaps the choose-up sides and sandlot type.

These latter hopefuls will be lucky to get a suit, and if they do they will spend the spring picking up splinters on the bench. But hope springs eternal as the tyros wait for lightning to strike in the form of a miracle bringing instant stardom.

Buddy Sipple, the top Lion basketball player is also a good baseball player and hits the long ball.

Dave Newnom is the leading hurler. He's only a Sophomore and has all the tools to become a really fine moundsman.

Mickey Chaffinch, Chester Scott and Harold Jump are other pitchers. All will probably play other positions when not pitching.

Steve O'Neal is an experienced receiver. So is John Brown, who may not play because of an injured leg.

Dale Motter and Bob Thompson saw lots of action in 1968. Wayne Coulbourne came into his own last summer, as a player for the Harrington entry in the Major League. This is an off-shot of the Little-League-Senior League program and is considered to be a step above high school ball since older playres are used.

Larry Larimore, a junior, is out for baseball the first time but played softball in a strong adult league last summer. Larimore should win one of the starting spots with ease.

Bob Everline, Tony Burton, Jim Deputy and Mike Trotta are possibilities to see action for the Lions.

Other candidates are Frank Daniels, Bill Walls, Durand Dennis, Gene Cain, Glenn Layton, Roger Hicks and Doug Kemp.

The schedule:

April 17—Harrington at Rehoboth.
April 21—Harrington at Dover Air.
April 24—Bridgeville at Harrington.
April 28—Delmar at Harrington.
May 1—Harrington at Millsboro.

Supple, Warrington Make All-Henlopen Team

Buddy Sipple, Harrington High senior, was picked on the All-Henlopen Conference basketball second team.

Sipple was the conference's third-leading scorer with 309 points, had Delaware's best single-game effort this season by hitting for 46 points against Delmar and had one of the highest averages in the state.

Unsung Jack Warrington, a good scorer and a scrappy rebounder made the Honorable Mention list.

Felton's Chris Moore was second in Delaware scoring this year. Moore was a first-team All-Henlopen pick.

Another Green Devil choice was Roger Bradley named to the second team.

Bob Perdue, of Greenwood, received Honorable Mention, also.

F.H.S. Holds Annual Athletic Awards Banquet

Leah S. Wheeler

McKnett Funeral Home and Jarrell Fuel met head on in a clash for the top spot. With McKnett's in a position to gamble a game or two, it was now or never for their opponents, who were in a tie for the second spot. D. McKnett came through for his team to lead them to a three game win over the fuel boys, by rolling a real fine 545 series. A balanced attack was the decisive factor in McKnett's conquest of their closest threat. R. Garey also aided McKnett's with a fine 203 game. Oddy enough, Jarrell Fuel had three men to roll 200 plus games, but still could not overcome the handicap of a man shortage and dropped into fourth place. L. Farrow led the attack for the fuel boys with a superb 568 series, with a nice 209 game included, with M. Jarrell adding a real fine 211 game, and D. Ryan adding with a fine 205 game.

J. Shaffer led the Spoilers to victory over Wally's Garage as they solidified their hold on the second spot. There's time for the Spoilers to overtake the leaders if they continue their winning ways and if McKnett's continues to drop a game a week. Shaffer's grand 227 game, amassing a real fine 550 series, and G. Hobbs chipping in a fine 209 game, gave The Spoilers the scoring punch they needed. L. Breedling rolled a nice 528 series for a fine effort for the garage boys.

G. Collins again paced Taylor & Messick to victory, this time against Butler's Fuel. Collins, who won the Milford Lanes Bowler of the Month title for March with a fantastic 661 series, continues to show grand form, this time amassing a very fine 557 series, with grand games of 205 and 211 included. K. P. Outten also put on a grand performance, with a great 556 series, to combine with Collins' fine effort to take three games from Butler's. S. Lyons showing a late season spurge, again paced the fuel boys with a very fine 212 game. People's Restaurant moved up in the standings with three more games to their credit by defeating Penn - Central in Tuesday night's competition. The railroaders, going into the fray one man short, received a great assist from M. Brown who rolled a grand 554 series with a 201 game included. Brown continues to improve in the waning weeks of the season, coming up with a fine series effort week after week.

Gerardi Bros., again handicapped by lack of men, went into Tuesday night's contest with only three men. In spite of tremendous odds, the furniture boys came through in fine fettle, making a clean sweep of all four games against Robbins Hardware quintet. K. Layton paced the way with a fine 205 game, amassing a nice 533 series for Gerardi's. It was a night-marish night for the hardware boys, as not one man could hit their average as they saw themselves tied for the cellar spot.

Quillen's Market didn't fare as well as Gerardi's, as they too went into the battle with only three men, and came out with only one game to their credit. B. Wilson came through for Hamilton Fund in their three-game win, rolling a nice 200 game. Another good week or two may pull the finance boys out of the cellar spot to a more respectable standing.

Also attending the shoot were members from Dover Bow Benders and Naticoke Bowmen of Seaford. Second place was presented to Thomas Teed, with scratch score of 229, totaling with handicap 519. Top shooter with scratch score was Ted Mariner, of Naticoke Bowmen with a score of 415, totaling 514 with handicap.
