U. of D. Marine Lab Expands Facilities

University of Delaware maintenance crews are adding classroom and laboratory space at the Cape Henlopen Marine Sciences Laboratory to accommodate an expanding summer program at the Lewes, oceanside campus.
Additions to the converted World War II Army mine repair facility include a laboratory classroom, six research labs, a field gear storeroom, a workshop and an aquarium room.
Opening in 1966 with a single course, two faculty and fewer than 20 students, the program this summer will offer 11 courses taught by 10 faculty to more than 100 students.
In 1966 maintenance crews installed three lecture rooms, and an office in the 100 by 200 foot asbestos-clad building. They have made additions each year.
When this year's work is done, the teaching spaces will include eight laboratory classrooms for lab work and instruction, three lecture rooms, and nine research labs for faculty and graduate student research work.
Two of the research labs will be air conditioned to protect instrumentation sensitive to temperature and humidity changes. The aquarium room, which will house three tanks for live marine animals collected by students for research work, also will be air conditioned to protect the live specimens.

Phone Calls Harass Citizens, Says Chief of Police Rogers

Citizens are being harassed by telephone calls, Chief of Police Franklin Rogers told The Journal Wednesday.
"There have been telephone calls, so far by persons unknown, saying the caller is representing a doctor's office or a business place, and accusing the listener of owning a bill and threatening a lawsuit if the "bills" are not paid, explained Chief Rogers.

Continuing, the chief added: "These callers are not associated with a doctor's office or a business place and are creating harassment of the town's citizens."

Chief Rogers quoted the following statute: "Title II of the Delaware Code provides for a fine or imprisonment, or both, for anyone who uses the telephone as a means of communicating obscene or indecent language, or to telephone anonymously another person repeatedly for the purpose of annoying, molesting, or harassing such person or his family."

Control Crabgrass Now

Now that grass has begun growing again, Delaware lawn enthusiasts will soon be faced with a perennial headache—crabgrass, says Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

But don't despair. Crabgrass can be controlled and now is an ideal time to tackle the problem. Several herbicides available at home and garden centers will control crabgrass, says Mitchell. Pre-emergence herbicides — those applied before crabgrass appears — are usually more effective than post-emergence chemicals, but all approved chemicals are safe for lawn use. In using herbicides, be sure to read and follow the directions on the container, he cautions.

To apply crabgrass treatment, mow the grass, then rake and clean the lawn thoroughly. Apply the herbicide evenly and don't disturb the lawn with further raking. Water and mow the lawn as usual. For best results, apply herbicides sometime after the first of April or before soil temperatures reach 60 degrees.

If your lawn — or your neighbor's — was plagued with crabgrass last year, you will undoubtedly need to use an herbicide, says Mitchell. Millions of seeds fell to the ground and, given a chance, will sprout this year. As soon as the soil warm up, they will germinate and grow wherever there's a tiny patch of bare

The formula for transportation contracts was revised for the 1969-70 school year. The revised formula raises the depreciation allowance approximately $100 per year, the operating allowance 3 cents per mile, and adds $1 to drivers' salaries for maintenance duties. ### Children Need Playmates

Children learn from each other.

That's why it's important for them to have other children to play with as they grow up, says Mrs. Mary Keller, extension home economics agent for New Castle County. From his childhood playmates, a youngster develops his ideas of justice, injustice, loyalties, heroes and ideals.

A child develops both in body and mind from playing games with his friends. A simple game such as leap frog aids in developing muscle coordination. Learning jokes, riddles and tongue twisters can aid in mental development.

Your child and his friends form a "child society" which plays an important part in his life. This society usually excludes adults and is characterized by secrets and sometimes a coded language that only its members can understand.

At first, when the child is two or three years old, he is only a fringe member of this society. At this time he observes the older children and imitates them, but doesn't actively take part in the society.

Members — look at your program — covered-dish luncheon at 12:30 on Mon., April 28. Plan to be present. Your ideas are needed in planning for the Mother's Day celebration to be held in May.

Two members have a birthday this coming week — Bernice Johnson, on April 28 and Reba Smith, on April 29.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Mrs. Nina Smith, who passed away last week. Before she was taken ill, Mrs. Smith was one of our most faithful attenders. She thoroughly enjoyed all the activities of the center. We have missed her during her long illness.

Editor's note: This week's column was to contain the explanation of the working of this Center, but due to the lack of space, and time involved, this part of the Center's release will have to run in next week's issue.

Standby Electric Power Equipment

Electricity is essential to modern farm operations and comfortable family living, observes Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware. Milk coolers, water pumps, household appliances and other vital equipment require continuous electric power service.

In the event of a power failure, standby power — power provided by your own generator — can keep electrical equipment functioning and avert inconvenience and possible financial loss.

Two types of standby power units are generally available, he says. Tractor driven generators and self contained power plants. Both require installation of a transfer switch between the electric meter and the service entrance.

The tractor driven generator is usually permanently installed at a planned location near the farm service entrance and meter. It can, however, be mounted on a special trailer to facilitate moving it to isolated locations for occasional special use.

The tractor driven generator costs much less than a self contained unit and the tractor used for operation is usually available for emergency duty. However, the time lapse in moving the tractor into position, connecting the generator and starting the unit may be significant.

Self contained power plants consist of a generator and engine connected to function as

And She Can Cook Too!

The National Chicken Cooking Contest is proud to claim this attractive young mother who describes herself as a homemaker-model. She is Mrs. Elaine Lenhardt, of Hubbard, Ore., and she will be representing her state in the Range Division of the national cook-off in Seaford, June 20 and 21.

Mrs. Lenhardt is a graduate of the Bassett Modeling School and has three children, ages 11, 10 and 9. Her husband is an airport manager and also a cooking enthusiast.

Mrs. Lenhardt's recipe entitled, "Philly de Almond Chicken Bake" follows:

- 1 Delmarvalous broiler/fryer chicken 2 1/2 to 3 lbs.
- Combine:
3 oz. pkg. Philadelphia cream cheese
1/2 cup Blue Diamond Almonds (ground and blanched)

- 1/4 cup butter (melted)
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- Mix together:
2/3 cup corn flake crumbs
1 packet Quaker's apple cinnamon instant oatmeal (1 1/8 oz.)

Wash chicken and drain thoroughly on absorbent towel. Cut into serving pieces. Coat chicken with the cheese, almond and butter mixture using a pastry brush. Salt and pepper chicken. Spoon the oatmeal-corn flake mixture over the chicken evenly. Place chicken, skin side up, in a shallow baking pan lined with aluminum foil.

Bake uncovered in over at 350 degrees for 1 hour or until done. Serves 4 to 5.

Farmers Need Pesticide Information

Rapid changes in regulations governing the legal use of pesticides demand that farmers have the latest pesticide information, says John S. McDaniel, agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware.

Labels on leftover pesticides do not necessarily contain current recommendations for the product, he warns. Many changes in pesticide regulations have occurred since last season. Responsibility for proper and acceptable use of agricultural chemicals rests with the individual farmer.

"Just because you used a certain chemical last year does not mean that it may be used the same way this year," says McDaniel. "If you are using pesticides in 1969, make sure you're familiar with 1969 regulations."

Improper use of chemicals may result in unlawful residues, he adds. If forage containing harmful residues is fed to dairy animals, residue could show up later in milk, meat or butterfat.

To avoid unlawful residue, be sure you have the latest information available for proper pesticide use. Be sure that you understand the limitations placed on various chemicals and the restrictions on the use of treated crops and crop residue.

Use of pesticides is a touchy business, says McDaniel. If you are thoroughly familiar with the chemicals you use, you can be sure of a safe harvest next fall.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

A fish, a fowl, and five vegetables make up the list of foods which surveys indicate will be in plentiful supply across the country during May according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The fish is the Maine sardine — "Maine" because that's where they are caught and canned; the fowl is turkey, and the vegetables are onions, canned and frozen green beans and sweet corn, canned beets, and tomatoes and tomato products.

However, when you look at the total food market this is the way it is shaping up for May. Marketings of beef cattle are expected to be greater than a year ago during the May and June period. The current increase of about five per cent over last year should continue into summer. Whether prices will decline from their present level is doubtful. There may be a few opportunities to make real savings on some of the cuts of beef during special sales when meat markets use these cuts as "football" items (name used when food products are sold below normal cost).

The number of hogs on farms is about four per cent greater than last year and these will be marketed in the next two or three months, although supplies will decline some from the March-April spring peak. Despite these larger supplies of both beef and pork, prices for live animals in the mid-west are higher than a year ago. All indications are that there will be little chance for any reductions in the near future.

Marketing of veal and lamb are not expected to equal year ago levels during the next two months. Broiler marketings for May will be up by five to seven per cent over the same month a year ago. Prices will continue low with frequent specials. Turkeys remain plentiful and are reasonably priced. Egg prices continue well above last year, although they are down some from earlier this year. Producers are building up flocks so that egg production during the latter half of the year will exceed 1968 by a small margin. Because of this, egg prices should go down; but this is in the future by several months.

Fresh fruits and vegetables from nearby growing areas as well as locally will soon be appearing at markets. Locally grown asparagus will soon be available, so if this is a favorite of yours, start making plans to freeze some. Other buys to check will be spinach, lettuce and strawberries. These will soon be coming from nearby farms. Canned and frozen fruits and vegetables are much more abundant than last spring, and prices are lower than a year ago.

Everyone should be planning for and to attend the St. Stephen's auction which will be held at 1 p.m. on May 17. Please notice the change in the date. Since there is another outstanding auction in Harrington May 3, it has been decided to postpone the St. Stephen's auction until May 17. Those who have articles to be sold should get them to Clendening's old pharmacy on Commerce St. on their first opportunity. If this is done the articles can be advertised and the public can be informed what the major items for sale will be. Anyone who cannot get his or her contributions to the old pharmacy should contact Mr. Willard Chew at 398-8721.

If all goes well, Ascension Church, the companion church of St. Stephen's, will be our guests for the service of divine worship on Rogation Sunday, May 11, and for an outdoor dinner which will follow. As has been the custom in the past, on Rogation Sunday, the crops for the coming season are blessed as a reminder of the source from which all blessings come. After a brief opening of the service at the church, the congregation will go in motorcade to one of the farms in the vicinity where the service will continue. This is an occasion of great significance. Visitors are invited.

The spring used clothing appeal comes this year from May 1 through May 10. The emphasis is on blankets and light-weight clothing. Everyone who gives clothes should see that they are clean and in good repair and should try to contribute 10 cents per pound of clothing. This will help with handling and shipping. The clothes should be the serviceable type and should not include toeless shoes and such. All articles should be packed in sturdy cartons and securely tied. This clothing will be used by Church World Service for needy people throughout the world.

BUILDERS ARE PUTTING UP NEW WINDOWLESS BROILER HOUSES like this one of Boyd Lukert, near Laurel, Del., in many Delmarva areas this spring. The latest in housing design, they are almost fully automated and can cut grower's work time by a third as compared to houses built only 10 years ago.

Poultry Industry Builders Busy, Survey Shows

Poultry industry housing construction is enjoying a modest boom on Delmarva this year, a recent survey indicates. By the end of 1969, broiler growers on Delmarva will have built enough new poultry housing to boost production of chickens 12 to 13 million head per year, according to a survey of the major 'shore builders of such housing.

Ray Lloyd of Georgetown, extension poultryman for the University of Delaware, was responsible for the survey. It included a count of new breeder flock housing for chickens that produce hatching eggs as well as the more familiar broiler housing for market chickens. Covered by the survey were the major builders in leading poultry counties of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

Most of the broiler flock housing underway ranges in size from 12 to 30 thousand birds capacity per house, with the breeder house sizes accommodating some 5 to 6 thousand laying hens on the average, the builders reported. Lloyd said that there was a strong trend towards windowless houses and that builders reported these were costing little more if any than the conventional windowed houses despite the heavier investment in ventilating fans and controls required. Reason, said the builders, is that the windowed houses require a lot of expensive and time-consuming framing and fitting of windows and roof ventilators.

Costs for materials are rising, the builders reported, but modern building methods have kept down the increased housing cost over that of five years ago to a fairly modest 10-to-30 cents per birds capacity. The best houses now cost only 30 to 40 cents more per bird capacity than they did a dozen years ago, Lloyd noted, yet they are at least 70 per cent more efficient where demands on growers' time are concerned.

The new windowless houses, he said, were making it possible to grow chickens at a cost of seven-tenths of a cent per pound less than in conventional houses. As a result, some of the windowless houses are netting their owners $30 to $40 more per thousand chickens grown than the conventional houses, Lloyd reported. This is the same figure reported two years ago in a study made by the University of Delaware under the sponsorship of the Delmarva Poultry Industry Association, he said.

As a result of the recent housing survey, Lloyd expects that from 160 to 175 new poultry houses will be built on the 'shore this year. They will represent an investment by growers and poultry companies of some $4,750,000.

Almost without exception, Lloyd reported, the broiler houses underway or planned are fully insulated, ventilated and automated.

Tent Caterpillars Building Nests

Eastern tent caterpillars are beginning to build their unsightly nests again this spring, reports Frank E. Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

Tent-like pests, composed of layers of silky web spun by a group of caterpillars, can be seen in roadside trees and neglected orchards, he says.

Wild cherry trees are the favorite host for tent caterpillars, explains Boys. But apple trees are also high on the list of favorites. Plum, peach, pear, rose, hawthorne and various shade and forest trees are also susceptible.

The nests of tent caterpillars and the caterpillars themselves are disfiguring to roadside, orchard and yard trees, he adds. And when caterpillars become abundant, they often eat all the leaves on a tree. Although this may weaken the tree, it almost never kills it outright.

Control tent caterpillars with Sevin used at the rate of two pounds of 50 per cent wettable powder per 100 gallons of water or three table-spoons per gallon. Spray to wet the foliage thoroughly, even to the run-off point.

Select Hybrid Rhododendrons

Selecting a proper hybrid rhododendron for your property can result in a lifetime of flowering beauty, according to Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware. Many hybrid rhododendrons are now available to Delaware homeowners, he says. But it's important to select only those varieties that are hardy in this area. Since rhododendrons cannot be pruned like hedges, it's also essential for gardeners to know the maximum size of particular varieties.

Among the red and pink rhododendrons hardy in Delaware, Stevens recommends America, a medium plant three to five feet high; Caroline, a tall variety five to eight feet high; Cynthia, a tall, rose red variety; and Nova Zeilba, a tall rhododendron.

Recommended white varieties include Boule de Neige, a very low rhododendron, and Windbeam, a soft pink variety that changes to white. P.J. M. and Ramapo, both dwarf varieties and Calawbiene Bousault, a medium size rhododendron, are recommended lavender and violet varieties.

Other recommended rhododendrons include Mary Fleming, a low yellow variety, and Blue Peter, a medium blue rhododendron. There are also early flowering dwarf varieties such as Impeditum, Pioneer and Purple Gem. In planting, select a suitable location for your hybrid rhododendron, says Stevens. The site should be protected from strong winter winds, usually northeast or northwest, and from full winter sun. In general, a lightly shaded area is desirable. Dense shade may discourage flowering while full sun causes poor leaf color and winter burn.

Rhododendrons are one of our most striking plants when in flower and have attractive foliage throughout the year, he says. These delightful plants are a splendid addition to any garden.

CLOVER BLOOM

I've thrilled at sunsets golden bright,
And cloudless skies of blue;
At mountain peaks that pierced the sky,
Lagoons that mirrored true.

I've sung the praise of cotton fields,
And blowing sugar cane;
Of flower gardens decked with dew,
Or drenched with gentle rain.

I've trod the country's shady lanes,
And hedged with elm trees;
And listened to the soft breeze vie
With humming birds and bees.

The babbling brook still holds a thrill,
As does the waving corn;
And oft in awe I stop to hear
The Bob-White chirp at morn.

These sights and sounds all hold a thrill
To me the wilde world over,
But back I'll come again to view
A field of full blown clover.

a single unit. These are available as fully automatic systems that start instantly when power fails or as manually operated systems.

Self contained units cost two to three times as much as a tractor driven generator, says Williams. And the unit is permanently installed. Automatic units require the services of a competent electrician in case of trouble and may fail to start because of moisture condensation from infrequent use.

In selecting a standby power system for farm, home or business, determine the most economical and efficient unit for present and future needs. Automatic units must have enough capacity to handle the maximum possible load on the wiring system; if the unit is manually controlled, it should serve only essential functions and must have the capacity to carry all simultaneously operating equipment.

Tractors for powering emergency generators must have a pto rating of at least two horsepower for each kilowatt output of the generator.

Finally, the electrical characteristics of the generator must match those of the load to be served.

Installation of standby equipment and wiring should be in accordance with the National Electrical Code, local ordinances and the requirements of your power supplier, says Williams. Inspection by your power company's representative and a local electrical inspector may also be useful.

Each manufacturer provides complete instructions for installing, operating and maintaining his units, he adds. So read this material carefully and keep manuals where they can be found readily. Unless equipment is properly installed and maintained, it may be useless in an emergency.

For additional information on standby power, ask for USDA leaflet number 480, "Standby Electric Power Equipment" at county extension offices in Newark, Dover and Georgetown or write to the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark 19711.

Finally, the electrical characteristics of the generator must match those of the load to be served.

Installation of standby equipment and wiring should be in accordance with the National Electrical Code, local ordinances and the requirements of your power supplier, says Williams. Inspection by your power company's representative and a local electrical inspector may also be useful.

Each manufacturer provides complete instructions for installing, operating and maintaining his units, he adds. So read this material carefully and keep manuals where they can be found readily. Unless equipment is properly installed and maintained, it may be useless in an emergency.

For additional information on standby power, ask for USDA leaflet number 480, "Standby Electric Power Equipment" at county extension offices in Newark, Dover and Georgetown or write to the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark 19711.

FENCE TALK

with George K. Vapaa

Agriculture is more than farming today. It takes at least three people to supply a farmer with his needs. The commercial farmer has become a specialist and a "big operator" when compared to other industry workers. He has at least $25,000 per worker invested in plant and equipment as compared to the $15,000 average figure for industry.

Jobs are plentiful in farming and related industries. They are the kinds of jobs you "grow into". Rarely does a young man have the $100,000 to $200,000 investment needed to operate a farm. So he usually starts out with someone else. He moves ahead as he gains experience.

The Kent-Sussex Job Fair on April 29-30 is designed to have high school seniors meet employers. Job interests will be explored. The agricultural employer will be glad to see you take additional training that will help on the job. In some cases, he may even offer to help pay part of the costs. I know one who pays variable shares by the grades you earn. All if you earn an A, half if you get a B, and a fourth for a C grade.

Visit the Agricultural booth when you come. Your county agent plans to be there. We will ask you to fill out an interest card. Some potential farm employers cannot be there because of the rush of spring work. Both the Farm Bureau and the Grange are getting the word to their members. Several related industries are also showing interest.

Here are some of the areas of interest you might check: field crops, animal husbandry, farm mechanics, soil conservation, ornamental horticulture, turf care (as for golf courses), food processing, or farm supply sales. Or tell us if you have any other special interest. Our booth will feature a slide series of farm related work areas.

Your county agricultural agent is not in the employment service business. But we get many requests from people who are looking for workers. Check us at our County Extension Service office from time to time. The one for Sussex County is on the Laurel-Georgetown Road, telephone 856-2553. The Kent County office is in the Wesley Church Educational Center (the old Dover Post office), telephone 736-1448.

A tax to breathe? This was one of the day dreams I mull-ed over while setting out Christmas tree seedlings last week. You may wonder why I tie breathing and Christmas tree together with taxes.

Well first of all Uncle Sam and Governor Peterson want their cut of Christmas tree sales profits - as taxes. It just happens that my hobby of growing and selling trees offers more satisfaction than playing golf, for which my son gave me a new set of clubs.

It would be difficult to convince people that plants take carbon dioxide out of the air and clean it up. And that any person who grows plants deserves a tax credit for making living more enjoyable and healthier.

It appeals me when people complain that their car taxes, gasoline taxes, parking meter fees, and road tolls are more of a burden than they should bear. Think of the public services that the private car creates. The worst is air pollution, probably half of all that we have today. (Heating fuels account for most of the rest of it.) Trees do a wonderful job in the process of photosynthesis to change the carbon dioxide back to free oxygen and carbon.

Forget for the moment the demand for roads as super-highways or residential streets, and the need for just parking space.

Except for this short story. I picked up a parking ticket in Newark on a rainy day at noon for a five minute stop. I wrote this note on the ticket. "I gambled and lost, and would like to congratulate the officer who gave me this ticket. He deserves a commendation." The assistant city manager, Phil Sowa, later told me that they use meter maids in pairs, one behind the other and in all kinds of weather.

No one likes to pay taxes. But we all seem to expect public services and they cost money. A tax to breathe might be masked as capitation, income, property, or whatever form used to collect it. It is certainly the price of citizenship.

Too often our technology moves too far ahead of our governmental administrative services. Too many get a free ride, and deficits result. What are you doing as a citizen for better government?

The clover mite, a 8 legged reddish or brownish creature, smaller than a pinhead, is often a household pest. When clover mites invade homes, they overrun floors, walls, furniture and windowpanes, and get into beds and clothing. If crushed, they leave a blood-red spot that is especially noticed on linens, curtains, walls and woodwork.

Clover mites breed and feed in grasses, clovers, and other plants around buildings. Infestations of these mites can be reduced or prevented by thoroughly spraying the lower exterior walls, the foundations, and 10-20 feet of adjacent lawn with Kelthane or Malathion.

For temporary relief indoors, collect and destroy mites on walls, etc. with vacuum cleaner. Kill mites on window sills, around window frames, etc. with a pyrethrum aerosol bomb. Pyrethrum is not a residual insecticide, therefore the mites must be hit by the aerosol spray directly.

Bring out your patchwork quilts — they're the latest fashion. But, if you're not about to cut up great grandmother's quilt for a new outfit, try your creative hand at your own patchwork fashion.

One New York designer is ordering patchwork quilts from Appalachia to make into long evening skirts. Fashion leaders are haunting antique shows and shops for patchwork quilts. One New York society woman is reported to have purchased 25 quilts for use in decorating her home as well as to wear.

A long evening skirt may not fit into your way of life, but you might enjoy making a patchwork fabric for a summer skirt, vest, jacket or for accessories such as a purse or belt. Even bands of patchwork trim could be applied to a dress of plain fabric.

Old-time patchwork made dress-making. They might be fashioned into a crazy quilt design or into a carefully planned pattern. With an artistic combination of textures and colors they were works of art, and it's no wonder they are being snapped up by those who appreciate beautiful things.

Bits of beautiful fabrics which are not washable can be made into a crazy quilt design. Pieces can be any shape and are sewed onto a muslin or percale backing with edges overlapping. Cover raw edges with bits of ribbon or with a featherstitch or other decorative embroidery.

Geometric designs are made by sewing blocks of fabric together in strips, then joining strips to the desired size. Old-time quilt patterns can furnish inspiration and design ideas. If you work with cotton patches, pre-shrink all the fabric before you start.

The beauty of patchwork quilts is further enhanced by the quilting of stitching design. The stitching is at its best when done by hand, but it can be done by machine.

A thin layer of cotton batting between the patchwork fabric and the lining will give a raised or puffed effect to the quilting pattern. You may use a layer of cotton flannel (pre-shrunk) instead. The quilting pattern outlines or emphasizes the patchwork design and can be as elaborate as time, talent and patience allow.

Who would have thought that the patchwork quilt would be revived? But crewel embroidery made a comeback, and it appears that quilting is next.

Horticulture and spring go together. Sixty-three 4-Hers turned out to receive training and judge flowers, vegetables and field crops. Mr. Robert Stevens, extension specialist, presented the horticulture training while Ted Palmer, Sussex 4-H agent, trained our 4-Hers in field crop judging.

Members learned to identify weeds, to select good seeds, to recognize qualities of hay and to recognize healthy house plants. This type of training will educate our future home-makers, and home-owners. Judging teaches one to evaluate and recognize the quality product for the specific need.

Outstanding judges in field crops were: Mike Shae, Whiteoaks; Joseph Gibson, Woodside Emeralds; Robin Cahall, Peach Blossoms; Donna Brown, JoAnn Diogo, Ken Blessing, Richard Rollison, Joel Blessing and Carol Blessing, Houston Cardinals; Mike Baker, Peach Blossoms; Debbie Grier, Woodside Emeralds.

From this list and the other twenty will be participants selected for the county judging team. Members must qualify for the team by carrying a field crop project or one in a related area.

Sewing machines are whirling around Kent County as some 80 4-H gals are putting on the finishing touches to their garments for the 4-H Dress Revue to be produced on May 10th at Caesar Rodney High School auditorium. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Sports Editor
KEITH S. BURGESS

BILLY HAUGHTON has won more races and money than any other driver in North American harness racing. He captured the sport's money-winning championship for the 12th time last year. U. S. Trotting Association's final figures for 1968, certified a new world earning record of $1,654,172 for horses driven by Haughton during the year.

Wetherhold's 4.33 Mile Sparks Lions At Bridgeton Relays

Chris Wetherhold's great anchor leg in the medley relay, gave a Harrington High quartet second place in that event, in the 26th annual Bridgeton, N. J. Relays, Saturday.

Harrington High has set records in the Medley relay in the past using such Lion greats as Harry Knotts, Jim Schiff, Dwight Hackett, Clarence Hackett, Bob Smith, Dennis Rogers, Buddy Bonniwell, George Pfeiffer, but none of these units ever ran as fast as the 8.13 turned in by Coach Harold McDonald's lads on Saturday.

Despite a 55.2 quarter mile by John Swain and a fine 220 stint by Ken Tribbett, H.H.S. was in sixth place when Wetherhold got the baton.

Chris started out at a fast, even pace and didn't panic, when Randy Bakewell, of Church Farm School, Pa., who the Lion had beaten twice in two mile runs in Wilmington and Philadelphia, began to open up a lead on the local sophomore. By the third lap, Wetherhold had moved into fourth place and started to gain on the distant and still flying Bakewell. On the backstretch of the last lap, Chris stepped up the pace and gained several yards. He passed Bakewell on the last curve, then exploded into a home-stretch effort, that nipped a Pitman, N. J. runner at the wire.

Wetherhold's 4.33 mile is five seconds under Harry Knott's H.H.S. school record set in 1961, but will not count because it came in a relay race, with a running start. But it would appear that he should get that record before long and then would own all four Lion distance standards.

The Bridgeton cinder track was well chewed up by the hundreds of runners who had used it earlier in the day. This fact probably cost Wetherhold more time than he gained on the flying start.

Harrington's mile relay quartet picked up two points in the event with a fourth-place time of 3.44. 14-year-old John Shulties ran a fine 57.2 quarter mile. Tolbert Harris, four years older, ripped off a 54 second effort, that moved the locals up two or three notches. Senior John Swain's good 55.7 anchor leg enabled the Lions to finish ahead of five other entries.

Eleven school were entered in Harrington's division. Presumably, the Lions were the smallest school entered. Probably, the big schools in Group I were Middle Township, Woodbury, Wildwood and Bishop Eustace of New Jersey and Episcopal Academy of Pennsylvania.

Coach McDonald took only six boys, Roger Jarrell, Ken Tribbett, Chris Wetherhold, John Shulties, Tolbert Harris, and John Swain, entered only two events of the four contested, yet Harrington finished fourth of 11 school competing. Next year's Lake Forest Spartans' track team, ing the bottom of the heap, holding down eleventh place.

Taylor C Messick came out on a short end of a three to one verdict going against a stronger Quillen's Market foursome that not has been seen for a while. Until Tuesday night, Quillen's Market had been going into their contests two men short of a full team. The Taylor & Messick quintet dropped into fourth place on their loss. Quillen's moved up the ladder into ninth place on their fine effort.

Butler's Fuel provided only token resistance against an inspired Wally's Garage team, although Ron. Wright came through for the fuelers with a fine 212 game. L. Breeding, with a very fine 210 game, and N. Woodall, with a nice 202 game, helped erase any threat the fuel boys were able to make. Butler's holds a share of fourth place on a fine night's performance, as each many contributed to the conquest with an above average performance. Wally's Garage, who showed they are better than their standings indicate, are now in a tie for seventh place.

Penn Central poured on the pressure, crushing Robbins Hardware in three games to move into a share of ninth place. P. Baker was the big gun for the spike drivers as he rolled a real fine 201 game, amassing a very good 534 series to pace a team-winning effort. Robbins Hardware could not drop any lower in the standings, as they muffed a chance to get out of the cellar position they fell into last week.

HARRINGTON BOWLING LEAGUE

McKinnitt Funeral Home went into Tuesday night's fray with a good lead to their credit and wound up on a losing end, dropping three games to Gerardi Bros. The contest was interesting for more than one reason, as Gerardi Bros. is one of the contenders to meet for the league championship and it is possible that these two teams will clash in the finals if McKinnitt can hang on to the lead for one more week.

D. Garey paced McKinnitt's scoring with a fine 210 game and a real fine 546 series, with R. Garey adding a nice 212 game. The furniture boys received a grand 589 series effort from K. Layton, who also had a very grand 231 game included, with F. Dill contributing a fine 214 game, and D. Jones adding a fine 528 series effort for an above average performance to aid in stunning the McKinnitt quintet. Gerardi Bros. showed they still had what it takes to become a champion, as they finally were able to field a full team, having been hurt by absenteeism since the second round.

Jarrell Fuel poured on the heat Tuesday night by winning three games from People's Restaurant, to hold second place, with an eye to overtake the leaders. The best they can hope for is a tie for the last third title, which could happen if McKinnitt's fails to win any games in the final week, and if the fuelers come out unscathed in their contest. D. Hayman rolled a superb 599 series, with 204 and 203 games included; L. Farrow contributed a grand 595 series, including 201 and 216 games, with M. Jarrell adding a fine 200 game in Jarrell Fuel's conquest over the restaurant boys. Going into the fray with a blind, People's received a fine assist from C. Bushey, who rolled a fine 211 game for a total 539 series. A Young also contributed a nice above average effort in a losing cause.

L. Outten sparked The Spoilers to a three game win over Hamilton Fund, rolling a superb 615 series, with grand games of 220 and 235 included. H. Melvin tried to even things up for the financiers by contributing a real fine 550 series, including a nice 202 game in a losing battle. The Spoilers are now up in a very good third place spot. Hamilton Fund is just about scrap-

Buddy Sipple was the winning pitcher as Harrington High's baseball team edged Rehoboth 8-7 Thursday afternoon.

On Monday Sipple took the loss as Dover Air High blanked the Lions 9-0. At Rehoboth, Harrington out-hit the Seahawks 9-5 but had to survive a hectic finish. 11 runs were scored in the last two frames with the Lions getting six of these.

Chester Scott had two safeties. Sipple aided his own cause with two hits and 0 RBI's.

Record Proves Coach's Point

Ernie Gromlich was born to be a public relations man first and track coach, second. It's not his fault, he's equally successful in both ventures.

"I'm a firm believer that you must go out and 'sell' your sport, said Gromlich, coach of Milton High School's powerful track team. "You've got to recruit your talent—and show the kids that sports are worth sacrifices."

Less successful track mentors in Pennsylvania, please take note.

Gromlich's philosophy paid off for him last year when the Black Panthers went through 1968 undefeated in 12 dual meets and won the Susquehanna Valley League title. The team strung together 20 victories in a row over the last three seasons.

Gromlich's high-powered recruitment program has expanded Milton's track team from 25 to 109 athletes in three years. With an army like that, talent must be found.

"It's been our success," says Gromlich. "Some boys don't realize how much talent they have. This is why we try to recruit so many kids."

"You have to show them that sports are worth the sacrifices of not smoking and working extra-hard for good grades. If a youngster has to sacrifice to win, it makes him a better person—and, naturally, the rewards are greater."

Out of this mass of young muscle, Gromlich has molded some stars — including Bill Showers, a sturdy runner who is defending the mile and 880 crown in District 4.

"I think he has more speed than he realizes," Gromlich says of his ace runner. It was a typical Gromlich sales pitch that "sold" Showers on himself last year. Showers was just a miler until the coach convinced him he could run the 880 as well.

Showers heads what Gromlich calls a better squad than last year's undefeated champions.

"I think we're deeper," says

Gromlich and points to the first meet when the Black Panthers demolished Montgomery, 106-21, with Milton runners finishing 1-2-3, in the 60-yard event.

Promotion of track has given Milton an enviable 27-4 record over three years.

"This is why I think the athletes are good here," he says.

"We have boys out for track who never participated in any other sport."

"The next year they seem to develop more interests in other sports, simply because track has built up their confidence. Remember, in this sport, if you can find one thing you can do well, you can be outstanding."

Sports editor's comments:

As a track fan, we would like to see a huge turnout of Felton boys next spring for the new, Lake Forest High School track team. The Milton, Pa., school had the right idea. The more boys try out for the team, the more chances for discovery of "diamonds in the rough". The baseball team can't possibly handle more than 20 boys. That leaves many boys for the track team which, as shown above, can handle more than 100 lads.
