

Falling Car Kills Local Man

Donald G. Cohee, 23, was killed Saturday when a car which he was repairing fell on him.

State police at Bridgeville said Mr. Cohee had been working on his car's transmission at his home and that he had the rear wheels off and the back of the car supported on cement blocks.

Mr. Cohee had crawled under the car and was working on the transmission when a block on the left side gave way and the car crashed down, pinning Cohee, police said.

Police said his mother, Mrs. Pauline Cohee, rushed from the house and attempted to get the vehicle off her son. Failing, she called another son who was able to remove Cohee about 20 minutes after the accident occurred at 7:20 p.m.

Mr. Cohee was rushed to Milford Memorial Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival of a fractured skull and massive internal injuries.

Mr. Cohee was a mechanic, and had been employed at the Walls Atlantic Station in Milford. He was a native of Delaware.

He was a bachelor.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elijah S. Cohee, of the same address; five brothers, Harold, Robert, and James, all of Felton, Robert of Houston and Charles of Harrington, and three sisters, Mrs. Ruth Anna Wilkerson, of Greenwood, Mrs. Joyce Guessford, of Felton and Mrs. Louise Powell of Milford.

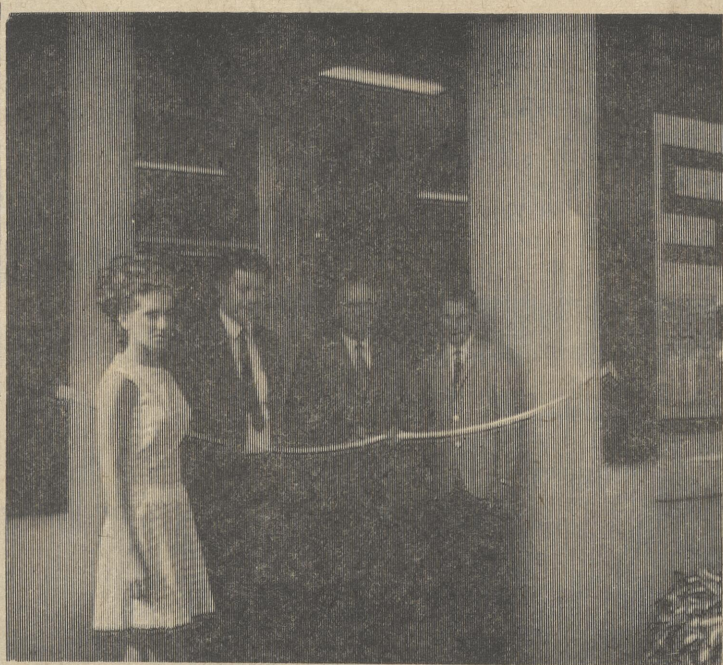

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Berry Funeral Home, Felton. Interment was in the Mt. Olive Cemetery near Sandtown.

Kenton - Ellers Exchange Vows

Are You Willing To Help?

Several weeks ago this paper published an article asking the citizens of Harrington to contribute to the summer program.

The purpose of such a program is to have organized play for children of all ages.

A group of interested volunteers - headed by Mrs. Russell Knaub and Mrs. Terry Johnson will canvas the city starting Mon., June 16.

When asked to donate, please keep in mind the importance of keeping our children off the streets and in able hands of qualified instructors. So please give generously June 16.

Senior Center Will Move From Century Club

Have you taken an honest look at your community to see what human need surrounds you?

Senior Citizens of the Harrington, Houston, Farmington, Bursville, and Felton district have purchased a home on Fleming Street, Harrington to be used as a center for advancement of their activities, and programs.

This area of human need is calling for help in meeting monthly payments. Consider the difference between giving and sharing. Share today for your tomorrows in the Senior Center's Building.

Thanks to this newspaper this is the third week donors have been published. In addition to previously published names, the Senior Citizens wish to thank the following:

Extension Club Of Milford To Study Drug Use

The Milford Homemaker's Home Extension Club is presenting Tuesday night, June 17 at 8:00 at the Milford Junior High School Auditorium an informative current events program on drugs and their abuses.

The program shall cover the complete range of drugs from narcotics to hallucinatory synthetic drugs. The speaker of the evening shall be Sgt. Paul Hudson of the Youth Division of the Del. State Police, who will exhibit over $500,000 worth of confiscated drugs. Sgt. Hudson has vast experience with drug abuse in this area which continues to grow at an alarming rate.

His information will be of vital concern and interest to parents and informed citizens who are concerned with the problems of our youth. The Homemaker's Club of Milford, which is composed primarily of young mothers who realize the moral fiber of our youth is seriously threatened by drug abuse, would like to extend a cordial invitation to all the citizens of this area to attend this vital meeting.

This program is available to all students who next year will be in the fifth to the 12th grade in school and are interested in a band instrument. One of the highlights of the program is the annual trip to Hershey, Pa., where a visit to the Hershey chocolate plant and an afternoon in the park is a part of the day's program. Students who are still interested in registering for this summer's program can still do so by contacting the instructor Melvin L. Brobst, of the Harrington School Music Department.

Fair Exhibit Catalogs Mailed

More than four thousand exhibit catalogs and entry blanks have been mailed to prospective exhibitors at this year's Delaware State Fair, according to George C. Simpson, general manager.

The catalog lists scores of exhibit categories ranging from art to farm animals and includes directions for registering entries.

"This is our fiftieth anniversary fair," Simpson said, "and we are anticipating a record number of exhibitors in all categories. Entry deadline for most exhibits is July 1. To avoid disappointment exhibitors are urged to send in their requests as soon as possible, he added.

This year's fair will open on Fri., July 25 and continue through Saturday, Aug. 2.

Catalogs have been mailed to all persons who exhibited at last year's fair, Simpson said, but anyone else who is interested in exhibiting can obtain a copy by writing or calling the fair office at Harrington.

"The number of fair exhibitors has grown steadily in recent years," the general manager said, "and space limitations have become a problem in some areas. This is especially true in the horse and pony categories."

"While we attempt to accommodate entries in these categories from everyone who wants to exhibit, it has been our policy to give preference to residents of Delaware. That's why it is important that entries be submitted as soon as possible," Simpson said.

Summer Music Classes To Begin

The annual summer music classes sponsored by the Harrington Special School District will begin this Monday, June 16, and continue for six weeks.

The program which has been in progress for the past several years includes instruction in band instruments for beginners as well as for those of intermediate and advanced ability.

The six-week program also includes a rehearsal of each of the bands - elementary, Junior, and Senior bands - each Thursday with a concert scheduled for the evening of Fri., July 18, in front of the main entrance to the high school on Center Street, with refreshments available to the audience.

This program is available to all students who next year will be in the fifth to the 12th grade in school and are interested in a band instrument.

One of the highlights of the program is the annual trip to Hershey, Pa., where a visit to the Hershey chocolate plant and an afternoon in the park is a part of the day's program.

Students who are still interested in registering for this summer's program can still do so by contacting the instructor Melvin L. Brobst, of the Harrington School Music Department.

Three ROTC Cadets Earn Pilots Licenses

Three cadets at the University of Delaware have earned private pilots licenses through the Army's R.O.T.C. flight training program.

The cadets, all seniors, are: James W. Roy, Jr., son of Colonel (Ret.) and Mrs. James W. Roy, 412 Bay Road, Lewes; Kenneth D. Warner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Warner, 1304 North Bancroft Parkway, Wilmington; and Drexel D. Morgan, II, son of Colonel (Ret.) and Mrs. Drexel D. Morgan, Bangkok, Thailand, formerly of Wilmington.

The R.O.T.C. flight program provides 35 hours of ground school and 36 hours of actual flying time to senior cadets who qualify. Training is provided by Delmar Aviation Company, Cecil County Airport, in Maryland.

Licenses were awarded by the Federal Aviation Administration after check rides by each of the cadets.

Cadets who successfully complete the ROTC flight program are required to attend Army flight school upon commissioning and graduation from college.

Felton to Dedicate Post Office Tomorrow

Felton's new post office will be dedicated at 2 p.m. tomorrow, Postmaster Margaret C. Kates announced today.

The new facility, located at High Street and Railroad Avenue, is part of the Post Office Department's lease construction program, the local postmaster explained.

Under this program, investment financing is used to obtain needed facilities which remain under private ownership, pay local taxes to this community, and are leased to the Federal Government.

This gives the Department some flexibility in adapting its building program to changes in mail volume, transportation and population, Postmaster Kates said. At the same time, the need for large outlays of money from the Federal Treasury for construction purposes is eliminated.

The Department is now concentrating on constructing new postal units only where they are most urgently needed. In areas where it is practical to do so, existing buildings are undergoing renovation.

"The fact that Felton has been chosen for a new post office," Postmaster Kates said, "reflects credit on our growing contribution to the economy and life of the nation."

The Postmaster announced that the following are among the guests expected to attend the local postal dedication: U. S. Congressman, the Honorable William V. Roth, Jr. Congressman at Large and Postal Service Officer Charles E. Jackson.

"Our patrons will find doing business here more pleasant. Their mail will be handled more efficiently and this building with its up-to-date equipment will enable our postal employees to work under the best of conditions," the Postmaster commented.

"The new facility," she added, "will be a link with a postal system that today has over 44,000 postal installations. This system serves more than 195 million Americans and handles nearly half of the world's mail. Our nearly 700,000 postal employees are handling over 80 billion pieces of mail a year, including a billion parcels," the Postmaster added.

"Mail business in this area has gone up," the postmaster noted. There are no records of the receipts for the first post office. However in 1879, records were kept showing 64 letters, 34 postal-cards and 4 drop letters were sent in one day. The box rent received between January 1, 1878 to March 31, 1878 was recorded as $2.50.

The Postmaster gave some other facts on the history of the local postal service of particular interest today as this community plans to add to its postal facilities, as follows:

Number of employees today 7; compared with 6 ten years ago.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne Holberton

As you are taking the dollar bill out of your wallet to pay the grocery bill do you ever think "Oh, those middlemen"! If you haven't thought it, I'm sure you have heard someone express an opinion that food would be so much cheaper if there were no middlemen.

This is not true and here's why.

If each farmer had to sell directly to the consumer, he would have to perform all the marketing jobs of packaging, grading, transporting and selling, food costs would really soar because of the cost of small operations and duplication of work. More chances of error would exist since no one person can be expected to know and handle all phases of marketing.

Now let's begin to add middlemen. One trucker can haul several farmers' products, saving hours of labor and lots of expense for trucks, labor, etc. Then add the processing plant where trained people are employed to properly process the farm products. At this point grading and packaging are also done. This one plant can do the job for hundreds of farmers.

Now let's stop and consider the time and expense involved if the farmer had to go to each consumer with his produce. There would never be time left for growing produce. New products would never be born and convenience foods would be only a dream. But — add a retailer who can sell train loads of farm products to thousands of consumers and do it much more efficiently than any individual can. The introduction of a middleman or specialist in each case does lower the marketing cost.

True, food does cost quite a lot today, but when it is considered in proper perspective it doesn't take long to learn that a loaf of bread takes less working time today than it did 25 years ago. We spend less of our take-home pay for food today than we did 20 years ago.

It is thanks to all the people involved in the total marketing system that we in America spend only 18 per cent of our disposable income for food while it takes 29 per cent in France, 42 per cent in Japan and 50 per cent in Russia. It is on the basis of these specializations that our food production and marketing system has reached such a high level of efficiency, and we are now the best fed nation in the world.

THE TWO GROUPS OF CHILDREN IN THE PICTURES ABOVE represent but a small fraction of the pupils of the Harrington High School who during the past year have music instruction under the expert music direction of Mrs. Marie Giltenboth and Mrs. Thelma Miller. Recent musical programs arranged and supervised by these two teachers demonstrated to the community that without doubt music is now a significant part of the elementary school curriculum.

Truth in Lending Law Takes Effect July 1

Beginning July 1, it will be easier to find out exactly how much you're actually paying for credit. The so-called Truth in Lending law becomes effective on that date, according to Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Retailers and other creditors are now required to inform their customers of all the direct and indirect costs plus the terms and conditions of a credit arrangement. The finance charges or total dollar costs and the annual percentage rate (APR) are really the two most important disclosures required. They tell you, at a glance, how much you're paying for the credit and its relative cost in percentage terms.

The law applies to all kinds of businesses which extend credit — even doctors and professional people, as well as banks and other financial institutions. The regulation also affects credit advertising, including window displays and billboards.

However, a few transactions are not covered. A retailer who merely honors someone else's credit card is not required to disclose credit terms. He must do so only if he himself extends the credit or arranges for its extension. In addition, loans of $75 or less with $5 or less in finance charges; loans of more than $75 with less than $7.50 in finance charges; and revolving charge accounts with 50 cents or less in service charges per month are also exempt.

The act also restricts the amount of earnings which may be withheld for payment of any debt. The maximum part of earnings subject to garnishment may not be more than 25 per cent of take home pay. In Delaware, only 10 per cent of income is subject to garnishment and then only for certain debts such as for food, home articles, necessities and state taxes.

As of July 1, you will be able to cancel certain credit agreements without penalty for three days, Miss Morris points out. These are home improvement contracts or retail installment contracts that involve a lien on residential property. If you cancel, any down payment must be fully refunded and the seller must come for his merchandise within 10 days or forfeit all claim to it.

The annual percentage rate charges are related to the net amount of credit actually made available. For example, in a $1,000 discount loan where the finance charge of $80 was deducted in advance, the amount financed would be $920. If this loan were repayable in 10 monthly installments of $100 each, the APR would be 18.50.

Many stores and banks offer revolving credit; you have the choice of making additional purchases or getting an additional loan under the original agreement. This is open end credit. Under the new law, you can either pay the balance in full or in installments.

Miss Morris says if you're opening a new such account, you must now be told the conditions under which a finance charge may be imposed, the time you have to pay in full before such charges are made, and the way the charges are calculated, including the method of determining the balance. You must also be told the conditions under which additional charges may be made, the minimum payment on each billing and a description of any lien on your property.

The annual percentage rate on credit other than open end is calculated by a complicated actuarial method. For instance, a bank loan of $100 repayable in equal monthly installments over one year is made with a six per cent add-on finance charge. The add-on percentage rate would be 11 per cent, but this is not the annual percentage rate. The borrower would repay $106 in one year, but he would have use of the full $100 only until he made the first payment, and less and less each month as payments are made. The actual APR would be 11.5 per cent.

Typically, non-open end credit is used to buy large items such as real estate and automobiles; the specified time, number of payments and due dates are agreed upon by lender and borrower. You must be told the amount of finance charges; the date they begin to apply; the annual percentage rate; the number, amounts and due dates of payments; the amount charged for any delinquency; security held by the creditor; and prepayment of principle charges.

The new Truth in Lending regulations will make creditors explain charges more clearly. How wisely you use a credit is still up to you, reminds Miss Morris.

It Seems To Me

By Janet C. Reed Summer is the time when outdoor activities may take precedent over sewing. But before you put the sewing machine aside for the summer, give it a good cleaning and oiling.

Your sewing machine instruction book should be your guide for cleaning and oiling your particular machine. In most machines lint and dust must be removed periodically from beneath the throat and face plate. This is easily done by removing these covering plates and brushing with a small stiff brush.

This simple dusting and an occasional oiling should keep most machines in good condition. Oil the machine after about eight to ten hours of actual use. Oil occasionally, whether the machine is used or not, to keep the oil from drying and gumming.

Follow your instruction book for specific oiling directions. Insert a drop of oil into all oil holes and wherever one surface rubs against or turns within another. Run the machine for a while without thread so that oil is distributed throughout the moving parts.

When oiling is completed, wipe away any excess. Excess oil can collect dust, and if it's on the needle or shuttle, it can cause skipped stitches. When you put the machine away, place a small piece of cloth under the presser foot to absorb any excess oil.

Be choosy about your sewing machine oil. Use only an oil made for this purpose. General household oil, even though it states on the label that it can be used for sewing machines, can harden and gum up the works. When this happens, a complete cleaning of the machine with a grease solvent may be necessary.

Sometimes when machines are giving trouble, a good cleaning is all that is needed. Cleaning your own machine is not too difficult. Completion directions for cleaning most sewing machines are in U.S.D.A. Bulletin No. 1944, "Sewing Machines, Cleaning and Adjusting." You can order it from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402. The cost is 15 cents.

Veterans' News

June 1 is the 3rd anniversary of the Post-Korean GI Bill education and training program.

During the past 3 years more than 1,148,000 veterans and 83,000 servicemen, nationwide, entered training under this program, Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington Regional Office said this week.

In Delaware, more than 2226 veterans and 255 servicemen entered training during the past three years. Some 1283 of the veterans and 59 of the servicemen enrolled in college-level training, the VA Regional Office Manager pointed out.

He said that 799 veterans and 196 servicemen in Delaware entered schools below the college level.

Fields explained that servicemen are not eligible for on-the-job training. Thus, all of the 106 on-the-job trainees since October 1, 1967, when this benefit went into effect, were veterans.

This spring more than 1192 veterans and 139 servicemen in Delaware were enrolled in training. This is an all-time high for the three-year-old Post-Korean GI Bill, he said.

More than 663 of the veterans and 25 of the servicemen were enrolled in institutions of higher learning.

Taking below college-level training this spring were 423 Delaware veterans and 114 servicemen.

Veterans entered this spring in on-the-job training totaled

To be eligible for Post-Korean GI Bill education and training assistance from the VA, a veteran must have had at least 181 days of service, part of which was after January 31, 1955, and have received an other than dishonorable discharge, Fields said.

A recent change in the Post-Korean GI Bill gives a veteran a maximum of 36 months entitlement except for veterans eligible for VA educational aid under two or more VA programs. They have an aggregate entitlement of 48 months. Fields explained that VA educational assistance under the three-year-old Post-Korean GI Bill ranges from a monthly allowance of $130 or more (depending upon the number of dependents) for full-time institutional training to payment of only the actual cost of correspondence courses.

Veterans who have not completed high school may receive full VA educational assistance while earning their high school diploma without having any of this time charged to their maximum entitlement to follow-on college training, Fields emphasized.

He urged all veterans interested in Post-Korean GI Bill education and training to contact the Wilmington VA Regional Office. And he reminded Post-Korean and Vietnam era veterans in Delaware that they must complete their training by May 31, 1974, or eight years after separation from service, whichever is later.

TO DAD

By Father Joseph

There's something in his presence
 That makes you glad he's there
 While he sits and reads the paper
 In his favorite easy chair.

He is quiet - like Mary's Joseph,
 Sometimes stern - like Mary's Son,
 But it's just when he's around the place
 That a house becomes a home.

He's a good man - always will be.
 Best pal mother ever had,
 Works hard, loves his family,
 Means a lot to me - my Dad.

FATHER'S DAY

Tomorrow (Sat. 14th) is the date for the Little League fund drive. The next day (Sun. 15th) is Father's Day and we would be remiss if we didn't call to mind their co-relation.

There just can't be enough said for the credit due the parents of these boys, who are putting so much effort in this real worthwhile move to provide recreation and entertainment for the youth of our community. Maybe the following lines would help express some of the lad's view of:

MY DAD, THE EXPERT

My Dad's a whiz at football,
 You should see him pass and punt,
 And he's just as good at baseball
 With a home-run swing or bunt.

He coaches us kids all the time
 But, golly, I suppose
 He could manage any big-league team
 With all the things he knows.

Dad could be a real golfer, too,
 And somehow I just know
 If he wanted to, why he could be
 The world's top golfing pro.

Oh, he could be a lot of things
 But, golly, I'm sure glad
 He decided that he'd rather be,
 The world's best, nicest Dad.

So when our doorbell rings tomorrow let's greet the two Little Leaguers, in uniform, with a happy smile and a gift worthwhile.

Just a crum from the hand of a worker
 And our boys have lots of fun.
 Just a crum that is never missed,
 Like a smile that precedes laughter
 From the mirth of merry lips.

Just a might from wealthy coffers,
 Where the interest computed is nil;
 As the grain of sand from the seashore,
 Leaves untouched the vast beach still.

'Tis only these crumbs we are asking

Fence Talk

The water pollution forum at Delaware State College had one speaker on the role of a technical consultant. He might just as well have been describing a county extension agent - with one difference. Agents charge no fee, and dawgont, because of this some people think we may not be "sharp" enough. This, in spite of the fact that professional and technical consultants often use our technical information in making their own recommendations.

Dudley Willis, a local consulting engineer, gave a fine description of a consultant's services. He is called in on a specific problem. This often means making sure what the problem is. There may be several problems and they are isolated and related to others.

Then a feasibility study is made as to the technical and economic problems. Costs are weighed against design benefits. At this point management and organization factors are thrown in and the whole project reworked to accepted design standards. The final design is made and a decision to build or not build. In general, the technical consultants set up contract specifications and follows construction until plant operations get underway.

The following speaker from Connecticut felt far enough from home base to add a few sour notes. Those who need help most do not seek it. The problems may exist beyond the fence lines. Frictions with regulatory agencies may be severe, but tend to disappear as problems are isolated and solved. And finally, if you can't believe in your consultant, fire him.

The point I'm trying to make is that good businessmen, including good farmers, should make decisions on the best ideas available. You may be amazed at the huge warehouse of information available from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the University of Delaware through your county extension agent. We're as close as your telephone - 736-1448 in Kent County.

Visitors are welcome to our county extension offices from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, Monday through Friday. Our secretaries, Mrs. Rollison and Mrs. Portney, make it seem like a showroom for our many extension service activities.

Currently we have a seasonal exhibit on home garden and farm crop information.

U. of D. Board Of Trustees Holds Meeting

Dr. Luna I. Mishoe was elected for a six-year term to the Board of Trustees of the University of Delaware at the annual spring meeting of the University's Board of Trustees on June 7. He succeeds Arthur F. Walker, of Woodside, who resigned.

Dr. Mishoe, president of Delaware State College, becomes the second Negro named to the board. He joins Mrs. Arva Jean Jackson, who was appointed to the board by Governor Peterson.

A graduate of Allen College, in Columbia, S. C., Dr. Mishoe received his master's degree from the University of Michigan and his Ph. D. in mathematics from New York University. He did a year of post-doctoral research at Oxford University.

He began his career as a professor of mathematics and physics at Kittrell College in North Carolina and after service as an intelligence officer with the Air Force during World War II, taught mathematics and physics at Delaware State College from 1946 to 1948 and at Morgan State from 1948 to 1960. From 1956 to 1960 he also served as chairman of the division of natural sciences at Morgan State. He was named president of Delaware State in 1960.

Elected officers of the Board for the coming academic year were: James M. Tunnell, Jr., president; Warren C. Newton, Vice-President; and Harold W. Horsey, secretary-treasurer.

Dr. E. A. Trabant, President of the University, in an oral report to the Board re-emphasized that, in withdrawing recognition from the local Chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society, the University acted in a completely independent manner. In arriving at the decision to

Downing Fuel Nine Upsets Legion, 6-4

The members of the expansion Downing Fuel team of the Harrington Little League will remember for many years the thrill they experienced at the Moose Home on Wednesday night.

This team, coached by George Fortney and Bob Price, is the most inexperienced team in local Little League history. They have only played Little League ball. The other 14 are boys who were in the minor league last year or are playing for the first time this year. It was thought these kids might be able to beat Tastee-Freeze, the other expansion club, but in two tries against Tom Peck's boys, they failed. It appeared that their only hope for a victory would be in some future game with Tastee-Freeze.

But, Wednesday night the worm turned. Danny Halliburton, a former member of the Lions entry, was getting his fast ball over the plate. Danny fanned several rivals as Downing Fuel upset the Legion by a score of 6-4.

It's difficult to say when this club with their 9-year-old shortstop, Mike Price, will win another contest. But they will long remember that first win.

Bob Cerklewski had a perfect game going Monday night until Tastee-Freeze's Bill Leonard singled. Rotary's Cerklewski ended up with a one-hit, 13-1 victory.

Wetherhold, Chaffinch, Set Junior Olympic Marks

Harrington High sophomores, Mickey Chaffinch and Chris Wetherhold, set meet records in the Junior Olympic Track Championships held Saturday afternoon in Wilmington's Baynard Stadium.

Chaffinch competed in the Intermediate (14-15) Division. Mickey threw the discus 119 feet, 3 inches to out class the opposition in that event.

Wetherhold ran the mile in 4:43.7 as he defeated Dickinson High's Larry Tomsic, who, like Wetherhold, is one of Delaware's rising young scholastic track stars. Tomsic led all the way until passed by Wetherhold in the home stretch. This race was in the Senior (16-17) class.

Harrington had a third winner in the Intermediate 440 relay. George Turner, Bill Walls, John Shulties and Bob Smith won by several yards in an excellent 49.3 seconds.

These six lads, as Delaware State titlists, qualify for the Middle Atlantic region championship meet which will be held at Albright College, Reading, Pa. on June 21st. At that meet, the opposition will consist of event winners in other tests held throughout the Middle Atlantic area.

Eight Harrington youths made the trip in this writer's ten-passenger wagon and brought home a grand total of 12 medals. This is an excellent showing but is only a drop in the bucket compared to what could have been done if enough transportation had been available.

Junior Olympics competition is held in five age groups for boys and five for girls. Harrington competed in only two of these ten groups and yet won 12 awards. If every boy and girl in this area interested in track could have made the trip, the result would have been even more gratifying because we know several more winning athletes, male and female, who had to be left home because of lack of space.

Ken Tribbett was runnerup in the 220 yard dash. Tribbett ran with three Wilmington boys in the Senior 880 relay. This team finished third after one of Ken's teammates came up lame.

Bill Walls and Bob Smith apparently were 1-2 in the 220 yard dash but a possible error in timing shunted them back to second and third. Walls edged Smith in winning the second heat. Unofficial timing had Smith and Walls in 25.4 and the first heat winner in 25.7. Official results eventually credited the Harrington boys with 25.7 and the first heat victor in 25.4, just the reverse of what had been supposed.

John Shulties was given a grassy lane in the 440 but managed a fine 56.8 second-place finish. Since he's only 14, he can compete in the Intermediate class again next year.

George Turner ran a 11.4 100 yard dash for third place. Phil Thomas was the only local entrant who did not win a medal. However, this could be attributed to the fact that a thief purloined Harrington High's eight pound shot at the Milford Invitational and Thomas was unable to practice properly. Phil is capable of 50 feet or better and may eventually be the best shot put produced here.

Motter, Sipple, McCloskey, Make All-Henlopen Nine

Harrington High's Buddy Sipple was chosen at the second base position on the All-Henlopen Conference baseball team.

Harrington's Dale Motter and Felton's John McCloskey made the team as outfielders.

Andy Walls Is ALL-Henlopen Pick

Andrea "Andy" Walls is the center-fielder on the recently-announced All-Henlopen Conference softball team.

Open Fish, Game Office at U. of D.

The Delaware State Game and Fish Commission has opened a newly established office in the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Biologist Frederick C. Bonner will coordinate the Commission's fish and wildlife programs in the area north of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal.

He will be responsible for the Shad Restoration Project on Brandywine Creek, stocking area trout streams and will provide technical assistance on problems involving wildlife.

In announcing the new service, Game and Fish Director Norman Wilder pointed out that encouragement of nature in Delaware's urban and suburban areas is of increasing importance to the Commission.

Land use planners and building contractors are also seeking more advice from wildlife specialists before creating additional living units, he said.

In his new position, Bonner will be working closely with the University's department of entomology and applied ecology, which deals with conservation of wildlife.

Grads Participate In Tropical Studies Tour

The first M. S. graduates of the University of Delaware's Longwood Program in Ornamental Horticulture will participate in a three week tropical study tour this month, according to Longwood coordinator Dr. Richard Lighty.

William Massey, Newark; Ronald Bauman, Kennett Square, Pa., and Gary Gerlock, Louisville, Ky., will examine tropical agriculture in Florida and Costa Rica. Accompanying the students will be Dr. Donald Huttleson, Longwood Gardens, and Dr. Donald F. Crossan, professor of plant science at the University.

The three day Florida tour will include visits to the U. S. Department of Agriculture tropical plant introduction center, Fairchild Botanical Garden and several ornamental nurseries in the Miami area.

Upon arriving in Costa Rica, the group will be met by representatives of the Organization for Tropical Studies, an organization offering formal and informal training for American institutions dealing in tropical agriculture.

While in Costa Rica, the group will study at the OTS teaching center at Palomer Sur, visit a United Fruit Company plantation at Golfito and study at a U. S. Agency for International Development research and teaching center at Turrialba.

The tropical studies tour is sponsored by the Longwood Foundation.

Vaccinate Horses Specialist Warns

Delaware horse enthusiasts should act immediately to protect their animals against a possible outbreak of equine encephalomyelitis, reports Dr. C. Melvin Reintour, equine specialist at the University of Delaware.

Equine encephalomyelitis, commonly called sleeping sickness, is a virus-caused infection that affects the animal's brain and central nervous system, he explains.

Early stages are characterized by fever, nervousness or depression, walking into objects and reduced reflexes.

As the disease progresses, an animal becomes greatly depressed and stands in a sleeping position with its head down and, frequently, with its front legs crossed. Grinding of the teeth, inability to swallow, paralysis of the lips and throat and blindness may also develop.

The encephalomyelitis virus occurs frequently in several species of wild and domesticated birds, says Reintour. Certain mosquito species then transmit the infection from birds to horses and, often, to man.

Eastern encephalomyelitis, the common strain in the Delaware area, may produce a mortality rate as high as 90 per cent, he adds. Infected animals seldom, if ever, make full recovery. Virtually all will retain effects of brain damage throughout life.

To protect your horse against the suffering of equine encephalomyelitis, consult your veterinarian about a vaccination program, suggests Reintour. He will undoubtedly recommend an injection program to provide immunity to the eastern and less common western encephalomyelitis strains.

Two intradermal injections, seven to ten days apart, are necessary for protection each year. This will protect the animal throughout the season.

First session classes will begin June 17 with examinations set for July 22.

The division of university extension will offer a program of evening classes of eight-week duration from June 16 to Aug. 7, twice a week. The classes will meet from 7 - 9:45 p.m. in Wilmington, Newark, Dover and Georgetown.

Education courses, formerly offered in a three-week Rehoboth session, will be added to the eight-week schedule of courses at the Delaware technical and Community College at Georgetown.

University-wide attention is being given this summer to the problems of urban America. A number of courses offered by various disciplines will study this relevant contemporary American problem.

Summer school officials report that enrollment has more than tripled in the seven years that two summer sessions have been held at the University. Last year, some 5,166 students attended summer courses.

For further information regarding summer school offerings contact the Summer School Office, 221 Willard Hall Education Building, or the division of university extension, 79 Amstel Avenue.

Select Chrysanthemums For Flower Show

If you're looking for entry ideas for the Delaware State Flower Show next October, why not consider chrysanthemums, suggests David V. Tattall, University of Delaware garden specialist and flower show chairman.

Hardy garden chrysanthemum cuttings will produce beautiful blooms for the fall show, he explains. But cuttings should be rooted and potted before the end of June.

In making cuttings, remove three or four inches from the ends of the plant and place in a rooting medium such as vermiculite, sand or sphagnum moss. When choosing varieties, however, bear in mind the early October date for showing flowers.

In planting chrysanthemums out-or-doors, choose a sunny spot with well-drained soil. Feed with a 5-10-10 inorganic fertilizer and water regularly. Control insect and disease problems when necessary.

Chrysanthemums often tend to grow too high for their own strength, says Tattall. You may wish to pinch off the terminal growth causing the plant to bush out instead of growing taller.

To produce larger, more perfect blooms, remove smaller side buds, he adds. This will cause the remaining buds to grow larger. Stake and tie disbudded chrysanthemums to insure proper growth.

Many chrysanthemum varieties, including anemone, pompons, and disbudded potted plants, are suitable for showing in October.

In selecting entries for the Delaware State Flower Show, choose blooms with even regular petals, typical varietal characteristics, and firm undamaged foliage.
