

Kent to Design Sewer Pipeline

Kent County Levy Court last week authorized the drawing of final plans for the first leg of construction on the countywide sewage disposal system.

The commissioners unanimously passed a resolution to allow O'Brien & Gere, Inc., Syracuse, N.Y., consulting engineers, to design a pipeline from the southern boundary of Standard Brands, Inc., to the St. Jones River, south of Dover.

The line will carry the plant's partly treated wastes to the river, and later be connected to another line in the system that will transmit effluent from Smyrna south to the Murderkill River, where the county plans to locate its treatment plant.

Construction of the line will help alleviate pollution problems the company would face should the area suffer a severe drought. Standard Brands currently dumps its wastes, which consist mainly of water with a high salt content, into a ditch which eventually leads to Silver Lake.

While the action poses no current threat to the recreational facility, it is under surveillance from the State Water and Air Resources Commission. The company has agreed to curtail production if a problem arises.

The commission allowed continuation of the arrangement under the stipulation that Standard Brands use county facilities as soon as they exist. Walter L. Fritz, county engineer, said construction of that segment of the line is expected to be completed late this year.

This phase of the project will not be affected with or without Smyrna, Fritz said.

Delaware Crime Rate Down

Crimes reported to Delaware State Police during 1968 were reduced four per cent over the record for the preceding year of 1967 at the same time the national crime record increased 17 per cent.

Delaware state police investigated 19,523 criminal complaints during 1968 and following investigations arrests were made of 9,392 persons involved in the complaints.

Police investigated reports of 752 auto thefts, compared with 745 for 1967 and recovered 656 of the stolen vehicles while 247 were recovered by police in other states.

The amount of property and other valuables reported lost during 1968, due to theft, fraud and embezzlement, amounted to $1,854,673. State police recovered $1,154,497 of this amount for a recovery rate of 62 per cent, compared to the national rate of 51 per cent.

The percentage of crimes reported, investigated and cleared by state police in 1968 was higher than the national average for 1967, with Delaware being ahead in all types of crimes.

New Castle County, with approximately 70 per cent of the state's population, accounted for 74.4 per cent of the crimes, not including those handled by Wilmington and Newark police.

State Mercantile Tax Signed Into Law

Gov. Russell W. Peterson Monday signed the amended mercantile-tax bill into law, thus putting the final touch on his $18.3 million tax-revenue package.

For the Peterson administration, the enactment of the mercantile-tax measure ends a complicated struggle to gain passage of its revenue and spending programs.

Final legislative action came Friday when two senators were persuaded to change their minds and vote for H.B. 426, which eliminates the graduated scale originally set. It also substitutes a flat four-fifths of 1 per cent with the first $25,000 exempted.

Gov. Peterson also signed Monday a bill which will double the penalty against firms which are late in filing their corporation income tax returns.

The measure is one of a series of bills designed to plug tax loopholes.

House Bill 286, the legislation Peterson approved, increases the interest rate from 6 per cent a year to 1 per cent a month for firms which are granted extensions on the tax deadline.

Others signed Monday were bills adding one pretense officer to the Superior Court staff and granting the Department of Public Instruction $4,500 for dues in the Educational Compact of the States.

Blue Cross Holds Off Rate Raise

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware reported that rate increases resulting from spiraling hospital charges would be postponed until at least next November. This decision was announced following the monthly meeting of the board of trustees.

H. V. Maybee, managing director, said the decision of the Wilmington Medical Center to boost room rates about $10 a day on July 1, following closely upon the Milford Memorial Hospital $7 a day raise, forces Blue Cross eventually to increase rates.

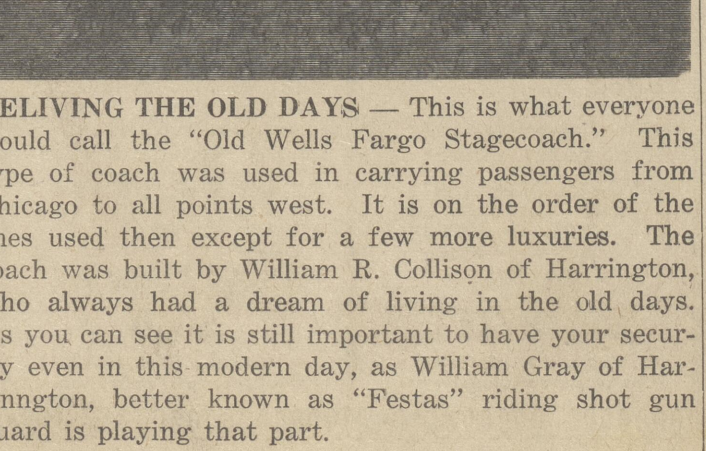

"But despite this decision by two major hospital facilities of immediate and substantial room rate increases, Blue Cross members will be protected though use of reserve funds."

"We are required by the State of Delaware to maintain a minimum reserve fund of two months of claims and operating expenses. When that minimum is endangered, it will be necessary to increase Blue Cross rates. It is hoped that postponement until November will still result in adequate protection of reserves."

Blue Cross, a non-profit community organization, administers a prepayment membership for health care expenses. When subscribers are hospitalized, Blue Cross pays a major part of the hospital charges. More than two-thirds of the population of Delaware belongs to the plan.

Maybe pointed out that aside from the recent room rate increases, other hospital charges have been steadily moving upward. Consequently, net operating losses of Blue Cross for the first five months of 1969 totalled $292,000. For the same period, Blue Shield has shown a $112,5050 operating loss.

RELIVING THE OLD DAYS — This is what everyone would call the "Old Wells Fargo Stagecoach." This type of coach was used in carrying passengers from Chicago to all points west. It is on the order of the ones used then except for a few more luxuries. The coach was built by William R. Collison of Harrington, who always had a dream of living in the old days. As you can see it is still important to have your security even in this modern day, as William Gray of Harrington, better known as "Festas" riding shot gun guard is playing that part.

Troopers Strict In Enforcing Traffic Laws

From: Colonel Charles G. Lamb, Superintendent, Del. State Police —

Annually a massive exodus to resort areas is experienced throughout the nation during the summer months; and this is especially true during holiday periods such as Independence Day.

Delaware is no exception, and it is expected that our highways will be clogged with motorists seeking fun at resorts and other July 4th weekend related events.

We will be making every effort to see that your weekend is fun-filled, rather than filled with tragedy; and you can expect our troopers to be strict in enforcing your traffic laws.

Enforcement, however, is not the sole key to traffic safety, and you, the citizen, also have a job to do; namely, to be acquainted with and comply with your traffic safety laws. For driver attitude is of the utmost importance, if enforcement of any type is to be effective.

At this time I wish to congratulate those members of the motoring public who have quite apparently changed their attitude toward safety. A couple of months ago, it appeared that last year's traffic death toll, a record in itself, was in danger of being surpassed this year; but apparently through the combined forces of enforcement and improved driver attitude, our traffic deaths, thus far, have receded to a point well below the comparable six-month period of last year.

But we cannot afford to be smug with our present record; rather, we should be unprudent that any amount of persons—be it a large or a small number—are expected to die driving any period on our highways.

Dean's List at Appalachian State U.

A total of 901 Appalachian State University students earned academic honors by gaining places on the Dean's List for the spring quarter, according to Dr. Kenneth Webb, Dean of Students.

In order to qualify for the Dean's List, a student must carry a minimum of 15 quarter hours of work, compile a grade-point average of at least 3.00, have no grade below a C, and have no incomplete or conditions in any course.

Students who qualified for the Dean's List from this area are: Daniel Nance Adams, a freshman (no major) and Sarah K. Moore, a senior elementary education major, both from Harrington.

Wesley Names Assoc. Dean

Miss Shirley Ann Conrad will be the Associate Dean of Students for Women at Wesley College, according to an announcement by William Wright, Dean of Students.

Miss Conrad holds the Bachelor of Science degree in Education from Bridgewater State College, Mass., and the M.S. degree from Salem State College, Mass.

Prior to coming to Wesley, Miss Conrad was on the faculty of Salem State College from 1961. At Salem State she was assistant department chairman and faculty advisor to most women's organizations.

Moose Installs Seaford Chapter Officers

Seventeen women and five men from Harrington Moose Lodge No. 534 went to Seaford Monday, June 23, to install the new officers for Seaford Chapter for the coming year. Mrs. Eleanor Semans was chairwoman for the installation. John Semans was installing officer, Mrs. Ruth Lawton was installing guide and Carlton Carter was installing chaplain.

The next meeting of Chapter 1229 is in charge of the College of Regents, under the direction of Mrs. Iva Banning.

Plans for the family picnic for Moose members and their families are being made for Sunday, July 6th. This affair will be held on the grounds behind the Moose Lodge on Route 13.

City to Vote Tuesday on Additions To Sewer and Water Systems

The City of Harrington will hold a referendum Tuesday on a bond issue, proceeds of which will be used to improve the sanitary-sewer and water mains.

The bond issue will be for $100,000. Election will be held from 1 p.m. to 8 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, at the City Hall, 103 Fleming St.

The bonds are to be issued to provide funds for the further extension and enlargement of the sewer and water systems maintained and operated by the City for the furnishing of water and sewage disposal service in the recently annexed area east of U.S. 13, and also in an area in western Harrington.

Briefly, the improvements, outside of the annexed area, may be explained as follows: Sanitary-sewer mains at three houses on south U.S. 13; sewer mains at the end of Mispillion Street; sewer and water mains on Coleman Street (which extends north from Mispillion Street); a pumping station at the northern end of Coleman Street, and a force main from this point eastward to Mechanic Street.

The U.S. 13 addition was not annexed until after a bond issue was passed last year for sewer improvements. This program is nearing completion. Passage of the bond issue Tuesday will mean sanitary sewers and water mains for the entire city.

2 AIDES LEAVING IN AGRICULTURE BOARD REVAMP

A major reorganization of the State Board of Agriculture, including resignation of two department heads and appointment of an assistant secretary, was announced last Friday by the board's chairman.

W. Cecil Carpenter, the chairman, said the organization change was recommended by the Governor's Economy Committee and would result in savings of $60,000 a year.

Clouing the reorganization picture was the charge—and denial—that the director of one department was pressured to resign his post, and a statement by another resigning department head that disagreement with decisions of his superiors led to his resignation.

Under the reorganization, the directors of five departments of the state board will be replaced by an assistant to G. Wallace (Pat) Caulk, the executive secretary. He is John L. Clough, of Dover, the 30-year-old department supervisor of all divisions of the agency.

Floyd N. Nasser Dies Suddenly

Floyd N. Nasser, of 119 Fleming St., died Sunday at Milford Memorial Hospital after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage earlier at his home. He was 54.

Mr. Nasser was born in Hornell, N. Y., and moved to Harrington about 15 years ago. He taught industrial arts at the Harrington public schools.

He was a veteran of World War II, a member of the Asbury United Methodist Church here, past president of the Men's Booster Church School Class, past president of the Harrington Rotary Club and a member of the Kent County Teachers Association, the American Association of Industrial Arts and the National Education Association.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Ruth B. Nasser; his mother, Mrs. Camelia Nasser of Hornell, N. Y.; a brother, Sheffield T. Nasser, of Nashville, Tenn., and two sisters, Mrs. William McGurk of California, Pa., and Mrs. Frank Sturnem of Hornell.

Services were held Wednesday afternoon at the J. Millard Cooper Funeral Home, 110 E. Center St. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

Slides of Palestine to Be Shown Tomorrow

Mrs. Ernestine Fisher, of Woodland, Pa., will be showing slides of her recent visit to Palestine, Saturday, July 5, at 8 p.m. at Greenwood Wesleyan Church, Greenwood, on Addix Street.

TRABBOLD HEADS STATE LEGION

Raymond H. Trabbold, of Wilmington, during a state American Legion convention at Seaford, moved up to become commander of the Department of Delaware.

Trabbold of 817 N. Lincoln St., is from Durney Post No. 27, Wilmington, and served last year as the state organization's first vice commander. He will be installed in his new post next week.

Active in Legion activities since World War II, Trabbold pledged a year of renewed efforts in the fields of child welfare, community service and the rehabilitation of disabled veterans, their widows and their orphans.

Trabbold has held every office in Post No. 27. He is an employee of the Sun Oil Co. in Chester, Pa.

The commander election concluded a two-day annual convention at Seaford, one which was somewhat like last year's Legion event, including a slap at the Students for a Democratic Society.

Among the resolutions adopted by the Legionnaires, of whom an estimated 400 attended was a motion supporting the conservative Delaware Internal Security Committee, headed by Wilmington real estate man Lloyd W. Ricards.

DISC, reportedly an intended antidote to the SDS followers at the university, received the Legion's endorsement for "attempting to expose and condemn the unlawful activities of organizations such as SDS."

Garland D. Bloodsworth, re-elected to his fifth year as the Legion's adjutant and service office, said the convention also adopted a resolution favoring President Nixon's position on the country's antiballistic missile program.

In addition, he added, the Legionnaires voiced their support.

Kent Landfill Aide Named

Herbert E. Stayton, a Kent County farmer who lives near Williamsville, has been appointed county landfill supervisor.

He replaced William A. McCabe, who quit in early May, for the $6,200-a-year job. A Democrat, Stayton was awarded the post over Representative Glenn W. Busker, former Democratic and Glen A. Richter, former Republican Levy Court president.

In his new job, Stayton is responsible for all county landfill operations, equipment and men. The county presently has three fulltime operators, one attendant and two temporary employees working on its landfills.

Diamond State Expanding Telephone Lines

Diamond State Telephone Company is now making a $53,200 conduit addition to its underground facilities in the Camden-Wyoming area, it was announced this week by Dave Conly, the company's supervising engineer in Kent and Sussex Counties.

WAR Slates Hearings On Water Pollution

The Water and Air Resources (WAR) Commission will hold five hearings July 22 and 23 in Dover directing firms to show cause why they shouldn't comply with commission water pollution regulations.

Three New Castle companies have not complied with previous WAR directive to tie into the New Castle County sewer system.

Sayer Brothers Laundromat Inc., Wilmington, presently dumping effluent into the Brandywine, is scheduled for 9 a.m. July 22; Penn Central Railroad Workshops, Wilmington, also dumping into the Brandywine, set for 1 p.m., July 22; and Royal Car Wash Inc., on the Philadelphia Pike, dumping into Shellpot Creek, set for 10:30 a.m., July 23.

Phoenix Steel Corp. of Claymont, is being charged with failing to meet certain industrial pollution standards. The firm's hearing is scheduled for 10:30 a.m., July 22.

Paramount Poultry of Harbeson, was issued orders to install new waste treatment facilities at its plant, but has not yet complied. The company is set to be heard July 23.

All hearings are to be held in Room 232, State Board of Health Building, Dover.

Holiday Train to Run to Hockessin

The Wilmington and Western Railroad will repeat its very popular holiday special to Hockessin on July 4th. The very picturesque and interesting trip will leave Greenbank station of the railroad at 3:30 p.m. on the holiday afternoon. The train takes two hours for its journey through historic Red Clay valley. En route two covered bridges are passed. Three very deep rock cuts are along the way. The train passes over one of the very few wooden trestles in the U.S. with an "S" curve in it. The train will make its regular runs to Mt. Cuba at 1:00 and 2:15 on the 4th. The Greenbank mill will also be open grinding grain by water power the same as it has since 1790. The Greenbank railroad station is located near the intersections of Del. 2 and 41, on 41.

cuts as beef, chuck, round steak, pork loins and hams. Also check cold cuts as well as hot dogs. These are good choices for picnics regardless of where they are.

Frying chicken and turkeys are excellent choices. Prices on the whole are a bit higher, but good buys are to be found. If you are not interested in the whole bird, check for your favorite parts because both fryers and turkeys are now sold this way.

The bounty of summer is beginning to appear at the market place, as better supplies of snap beans, kale, spinach, beets, cabbage and summer squash are seen. Many stores are letting you select your own snap beans, so choose those that are bright, clean and fresh in appearance, as well as being firm and crisp when they are broken.

When you get them home, store them in the refrigerator in a plastic bag or in the hydrator and use within a day or two. The fresher you eat them the better they are.

The season is just beginning to break for fruit. So look for blueberries, peaches, cantaloupe, watermelons, Bing cherries, and plums. Cantaloupe are plentiful now and very reasonable. The season is expected to be one of the biggest on record. The peach crop is expected to be quite large. But, as yet prices have not come down. Quality is good to excellent, however.

Independence Day, our great national holiday, always seems to be the turning point of summer, an extra excursion day for a special family spree. Mother packs a picnic lunch, and dad digs bait for a day of fishing. Or mindful of long, hot ribbons of cars on crowded highways, the family may decide to have fun at home.

This calls for another bag of charcoal for the barbecue and a laundry tub full of ice for cooling drinks and the watermelon. Don't forget to stretch the badminton net across a shady strip of grass. However, if you don't have a lawn game, why not invest in one? Croquet, shuffleboard for the driveway, lawn bowling, or one of the many other games that are available.

Regardless of what games are on hand, it is necessary to have good food. But with prices remaining higher than usual it will take careful shopping to manage the plentiful food you are accustomed to, yet stay within the budget.

As far as red meat goes, look for better buys on such

Mrs. David Alan Wood

Jean Poynter Becomes Bride Of David A. Wood

The marriage of Miss Daphne Jean Poynter and Mr. David Alan Wood took place on June 28 at 7 p.m. in the Felton Methodist Church, Felton.

The Rev. Parker, uncle of the bride, and Rev. Moyer officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Felton Fire Hall.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a satin empire waist gown of re-embroidered Alencon lace enhanced with seed pearls and crystals. Further enhanced by a panel back and cottillon sweep with a mantilla train designed by George Maurer.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Poynter of Felton.

Play It Cool Beat the Heat

Summer's here—but there are ways to beat the heat. That doesn't necessarily mean making a bee-line for the ocean beach or a cool mountain resort, says Miss Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. It doesn't even mean putting yourself in air conditioned isolation.

Use your head, she says. Get acclimated—literally—to the summer climate. You can keep relatively cool on hot days and protect your health as well.

Adjust your eating habits. Eat smaller meals more often, recommends Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, University extension nutrition specialist.

Replace fluid lost through perspiration; drink three or four extra glasses of water daily. Cool drinks that are low to moderate in calorie content help lower body temperature.

Use a bit of extra salt on your food to replace what you lose through perspiration. It's not necessary to take salt tablets unless you're working or exercising exceptionally hard in the sun. Even then get your doctor's permission.

Slow down, warns Miss Morris. Physical activity should be paced because it places an extra load on your heart. If you can, take short rests during the day.

Don't over-exert on your day off just because it's a fine summer day. Extra rounds of golf or extra tennis matches can be exhausting particularly if you spend the rest of the week sitting down at work.

Dress sensibly. Wear light-colored, loose-fitting clothes. Summertime does pose additional hazards. Highways are often over-crowded; the beach has its own set of problems ranging from sunburn to drowning. Insect stings—at home, picnics or even vacation spots—cause more fatalities each year than snakebite. Bare feet seem to attract cuts and bruises. So be alert to prevent accidents whenever possible and know how to take care of minor problems.

But don't forget: play it cool—enjoy summer fun despite the heat.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid W. Wood of Harrington and the late Mr. Wood.

Kohel-Dukes Exchange Vows

A nuptial mass was performed at St. Edmond's Catholic Church, Rehoboth Beach, on June 18th, uniting Cynthia Kaye Kohel and Donald Martin Dukes in holy matrimony. A reception followed at the Georgetown Inn, Georgetown.

Father Cavanaugh officiated at the double ring ceremony. Music was presented by Bobbie Creadick, of Harrington.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kohel, 115 Grant St., Harrington. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Clarence C. Clogg, 105 Pine St., Berlin, Md., and the late Mr. Clogg, and of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kohel, Haugen, Wis., deceased.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oakley M. Dukes, of Rehoboth Beach.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an empire gown of karate, trimmed with rows of lace forming the bodice. The gown was accented by a chapel-length train of matching lace, the headpiece was of nylon illusion, which fell from a crown of cut crystals and seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses and ivy.

Miss Teresa Ann Kohel, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a floor length gown of sky blue, with a matching veil, and carried a basket of assorted colors of carnations, roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Dukes graduated from Harrington High School and attended Delaware Technical and Community College, Georgetown.

Her husband attended Rehoboth High School and is a recent graduate of Delaware Technical and Community College. He is a foreman at Rehoboth Bay Marina, Rehoboth.

After a wedding trip through the south and the Skyline Drive, the couple will reside in Rehoboth Beach.

Again the people of St. Stephen's are asked to volunteer to work in the food booth at the State Fair this year. At a recent meeting of the Fair Project Committee which is made up of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clending and Granville Hill, with the vicar as an ex officio member, it was pointed out that if the people of St. Stephen's do not volunteer, it will be necessary to take part of the proceeds of the project and pay outsiders; therefore, please do volunteer. This year the fair booth stand must be painted inside and out. This has to be done very soon. Those who can help with the painting are asked to notify Mr. Clending.

Soup containers are on hand and can be picked up in the middle office in the parish house. It has been found that vegetable-beef and bean soup are favorites. However, anyone who prefers to make other kinds of soup is invited to do so.

Ferry Marks Fifth Year Of Operation

When plans were begun to establish ferry service across Delaware Bay between the historic towns of Lewes, Del. and Cape May, N. J., there were those who cited similar plans for decades past which only ended in disappointment.

Now — five years later — there is a change in community attitudes over the ferry operation which joined the states of Delaware and New Jersey on July 1, 1964 at the last open body of water along the East Coast.

Tuesday marked the fifth year the ferry has been in operation. Although it still does so at a deficit to the Delaware River and Bay Authority, its value has been proven. Traffic has increased significantly each year.

It bids fair to help make the coastal town of Lewes another summer playground before many more years. Land is at a premium on the Delaware Coast, but an enterprising real estate firm has found a site not far distant from the ferry terminal where next year a complex of summer residences and high rise apartments are expected to be erected.

The development will be known as "Pilot Point". According to the developer the nearby ferry was a prime consideration in purchasing the land. From this spot purchasers of property will have an excellent view of Delaware Bay, the Cape Henlopen Light-house and the Atlantic Ocean.

Just a short distance away, Cape Henlopen State Park will offer its Atlantic beach, sailing and boating—already popular—will be available on the bay side.

Lewes Beach has long been known for its safety for children and summer places are in increasing demand, but expansion during the past two decades has been slow.

Now that the area sees several hundred thousand more visitors pass by each year than before the ferry service began, business interests have become more alert.

This summer a new 44-room motel opens on the Canal Bank—first multi-story building in the community. Nearby other builders are erecting more cottages.

The Delaware River and Bay Authority which started the ferry service also operates the twin Delaware Memorial Bridges just 100 miles north—the first connection between the states of Delaware and New Jersey. That service was established in 1951.

The ferry service affords connections with the Garden State Parkway through New Jersey and with the Ocean Hiway (U.S. Route 13) through Delaware. It is on the "Seaward Route" of the Ocean Hiway.

Another important consideration in using pesticides is field size, he cautions. Estimating the acreage to be treated increases the chances of using improper spray rates.

To eliminate the guesswork from your spray program, calibrate spray equipment before applying pesticides, he advises. Measure your fields and mark sizes down in a permanent place.

Prevent trouble before it begins. Know exactly how much material your equipment will deliver when properly calibrated and be sure to accurately measure the correct amount of pesticide and water before spraying. Finally, always remember to read and follow label directions explicitly.

Less than satisfactory weed control, says McDaniel. And an overdose may kill or seriously injure an entire crop. Improper insecticide application may cause unlawful residue which will result in seizure of a crop by government inspectors.

Take Guesswork Out of Spraying

Guesswork is foolish when applying chemical controls for weeds, insects or diseases, according to John S. McDaniel, agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware.

Costs of improper pesticide application are much too high to risk on a guess, even on an educated guess. Too many farmers who think they know exactly how much pesticide they are using are, in fact, only guessing.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

During my 50-year sojourn in the railroad world I often dreamed of some day settling down in a home of my own "by the side of the road" as outlined in Walter Foss' poem. This aim and desire has been forcefully fulfilled since coming to Paradise Pastures and might well be portrayed by the following:

A MAN'S PRAYER

Oh, Lord, give me a place to rest
Where you will be a welcomed guest.
I shall not ask for mansion grand;
A small, white house, a plot of land
Where tall trees grow, and robins sing,
Where crimson tulips bloom in spring;
And when the summer twilights fall,
To see red roses by the wall.

Give me a kind and loving wife,
To share the joys and cares of life;
And our loved ones' laughter ring,
And give each heart a song to sing.
May all its windows gleam with light;
And let a neighbor call at night
Tha others, too, may plainly see
The blessings God has granted me.

East Colds, Vt.—Police were called in to help restore order at the Bide-a-Wee Rest Home, scene of a week-long old militant's revolt.

"Three militant octogenarians were arrested after a scuffle that took place in the main parlor. They were identified as leaders of an activist group that seized control of the parlor three days ago and locked Mrs. Birdie McMush, assistant dietician, in the pantry.

"Two officers suffered minor injuries during the disturbance. One was hit with a runaway wheel chair and the other was jabbed with a knitting needle.

"Quincy Tiredblood, 87-year-old spokesman for the rebellious faction, told reporters the demonstration was staged to enforce demands that old folks be given a greater role in the management of the rest home.

"We've got a bunch of young whiper snappers running things around here," he said, waving his cane indignantly. "We don't trust anybody under 65," said Tiredblood, who had a 'senility power' button pinned on his shirt.

"The revolt began last week when a small group of hard-core superannuates held a 'dodder-in' at which some burned their social security cards. Although peaceable in its early phases, the protest movement took a violent turn when someone hit Clem Snaffle, rest home superintendent, with a bottle of Geritol. Snaffle blamed the trouble on a misunderstanding caused by difficulties in communicating with the militants. 'Some of them turned off their hearing aids,' he said. Snaffle added that the vast majority of the old folks at Bide-a-Wee oppose the use of force in obtaining their objectives."

"But Tiredblood warned the demonstrations will continue until all of their demands are met.

"What's the sense in living a long time if some kid who's only 45 or 50 years old can tell you what to do?"

Speedy Boat
Will Monitor
River Pollution

John C. Bryson, director of the Water and Air Resources Commission, said Monday that his commission has authorized the acceptance of an $82,662.50 bid for the purchase of a 46-foot boat.

Final purchase, he said, hinges on performance. The craft must be able to maintain a speed of 28 miles per hour, traveling both ways over a one-mile measured course.

The successful bidder, Breaux Bay Craft, Inc. Loreauxville, La., has guaranteed performance, Bryson said.

Speed is important so that the boat may navigate the Delaware River.

The commission plans to use the boat primarily to monitor pollution levels of that river, under a contract with the Delaware River Basin Commission to take samples of river water. The boat will be purchased from DRBC contract funds.

The only other bidder, Equitable Equipment Co., New Orleans, with a bid of $82,476, was disqualified because it would not guarantee speed. Bryson said his stipulation eliminated many tentative bidders.

The craft, which has a 15-foot beam, will be used year-around.

"The federal government may get involved in Bay pollution work next year," Bryson said, "and we hope to be able to do some of that. Any state agency can use the boat as long as my crew is provided."

Pesticide Strips Quite Effective

Pesticide strips being sold in supermarkets and gas stations do an excellent job of controlling small flying insects when used according to directions on the label, according to John S. McDonald, agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware.

Effectiveness of these strips depends upon continuous vaporization and outward diffusion of the active ingredient, vapona, he explains. This means that the strips must be placed to allow full circulation of air for greatest effectiveness.

When using pesticide strips, place them so that moisture condensing on the strips does not drip on people, food or food preparation surfaces, says McDonald. And always place pesticide strips well out of children's reach.

Mental Health Program Report

The Department of Mental Health is engaged in rebuilding shattered lives and restoring them to society, Albert L. Ingram, Jr., M.D., state mental health commissioner told his board of trustees on Thursday.

But the department needs more money to accomplish its mission, said the commissioner, listing a number of difficult areas in his first annual review.

In the report, distributed at the monthly meeting of the trustees of the Department of Mental Health at Wesley College, Dover, Dr. Ingram said that one of the problem areas was the mental hygiene clinics. "We continue to have difficulty recruiting professional personnel for clinics. Partly because of this we have not been able to establish the four comprehensive mental health centers which we envision throughout the state," he said.

The Commissioner told the board that "we are not able to provide the services so desperately needed in the geographical areas of the present clinics. We turn people away when we should be serving them. The situation will continue until and unless we are able to hire a sufficient number of people at salaries competitive with industry in this area."

Discussing the Delaware State Hospital, at Farnhurst, the largest of the department's facilities, Dr. Ingram said it "continues to limp along, grossly understaffed and with highly non-competitive salaries. Our request for fifty some positions was reduced to thirty-one positions which was finally reduced to two new positions for the next fiscal year. And we are expected to improve badly-needed services at Delaware State Hospital."

Commissioner Ingram pointed out that "one of the more formidable problems we face at the Delaware State Hospital is the building for the mentally-ill offender, more popularly known as the Comegys building. In this area we are, indeed, sitting on the edge of disaster. There are 558 patients in this building, 33 of which are in the maximum security unit. There are 29 attendant positions, 14 of which are continuously vacant because we cannot even compete with the Department of Correction's classifying of orderly."

Turning to the Governor Bacon Health Center, at Delaware City, Commissioner Ingram said "we find some pluses but also many minuses. Revival of plans for replacement of cottages has resulted in improvement in morale as long-awaited progress is anticipated. However, chronic absenteeism continues to plague the operation of the hospital in a smooth and efficient manner. For far too long, the Center has suffered from being used as a repository for a conglomeration of cases that has made definitive treatment most difficult."

After finding that the hospital for the mentally retarded, at Stockley, "has made many observable and significant strides in recent years," Dr. Ingram said "the overall plan to increase the ratio of employee to patient over a period of years, was interrupted this year by our failure to obtain these positions. This sets our program back at least a year, resulting in less intensive care for the residents. Hopefully, our position requests will be granted for 1970-71.

"The HMR waiting list has not been appreciably reduced. We are constantly besieged with requests to admit emergency cases for which we are ill-equipped and for which we have no room—four—in the last 12 days. Our efforts to return eligible residents to their homes for community participation as a substitute for institutionalization are frequently met by the protests of uncaring parents. This tends to negate the quality of morale noted previously."

Concluding, Commissioner Ingram said "the prognosis for the department of mental health over the next decade must be predicated upon securing additional funds, upon educating both the public and those in positions of influence, and upon top-notch performance from all segments of employees of the department."

Copies of the complete review, described by the Reverend James R. Hughes, president of the department as "a fine report," will be sent to Governor Russell W. Peterson and members of the General Assembly.

Picnic Food Safety

If picnics, barbecues, cookouts and camping are part of your summer plans, safeguard the food you'll eat. Don't let careless handling of perishable foods ruin your fun.

Bacteria, yeast and molds can grow rapidly in hot, humid Delaware weather, warns Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension foods and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. These can cause food spoilage unless you take some precautions. Fortunately, it's easier to keep foods safe these days; the new thermal containers help keep hot food hot and cold food cold.

Estimate the amount of food you'll need; allow for hearty appetites from out-door exercise. Try to take along just about enough so there won't be leftovers.

Don't take foods that spoil easily, cautions Miss Krackhardt. Meat and fish salads, sandwich fillings with mayonnaise, creamed dishes, cream-filled pies, cakes and pastries are meant to be eaten and enjoyed at home. That old picnic standby, potato salad, needs careful handling; the salad should be thoroughly chilled before you leave home and make sure that it stays that way.

It's a good idea to keep all perishable foods in the refrigerator until just before you leave for the cookout. Hamburgers, hot dogs and other meats may be chilled thoroughly in the freezer section. Don't transfer them to the insulated cooler until the last moment.

Pre-cool containers with ice, but not with dry ice. It's expensive, dangerous to handle and could freeze foods solid. You can also increase food safety by arranging them carefully in the cooler, Miss Krackhardt points out. Pack the foods that must be kept coldest — meat, for instance — right next to the ice. Bread can go in last.

If possible, plan to serve the meal soon after you arrive at the picnic spot, while foods are at their best and safest. With the right combinations of warm temperatures and food, spoilage can start quickly.

For safe and enjoyable picnics, always handle food with care.

Proper Lawn Watering Important

Proper watering is a major factor in keeping your lawn green and healthy during the hot summer, according to Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

If water runs off your lawn, over the sidewalk and into the road, chances are you are watering too fast. Give the water time to wet and sink into the soil.

The average home lawn contains about 6,000 square feet of turf, says Mitchell. To apply one inch of water over that area requires about 4,000 gallons.

One inch of water per week will usually satisfy the needs of most grasses, he adds. This should keep turf green and attractive throughout the summer. When watering, apply a minimum of one inch of water to the lawn. Less than this causes shallow rooting and may damage turf.

Generally speaking, lawn watering costs average about $1.85 a week or $7.4 per month. This would amount to a little over $22 during June, July and August—the time of year when lawns need frequent watering.

Since natural rainfall will usually supply at least 50 percent of a lawn's water requirements, watering costs seldom exceed $10 to $12 for the summer.

Excessive watering can be just as harmful to grass as lack of water, cautions Mitchell. Too much water limits rooting and may weaken the turf stand.

Rehoboth Art League

Nestled in a woodland of tall pines, ancient oaks, and dogwood rest the buildings and grounds of the Rehoboth Art League, a mainstay of the Rehoboth Beach community.

Discovering the Art League studios can be a supremely rewarding experience. Situated in Henlopen Acres overlooking the yacht basin, the two-acre plot is criss-crossed with paths winding between the pines and through patches of native wildflowers. Adding to the rustic beauty of the setting are art objects—various pieces of sculpture, ships' timbers, and sections of broken columns scavenged from the razing of the Old Lewes Bank—placed at unexpected locations thus conveying feeling of continuity.

The creator and genius of the Art League is Mrs. Louise Chambers Corkran, a delightfully energetic woman with twinkling eyes and a quick sense of humor. Because she does the landscaping—and a masterpiece it is—Mrs. Corkran refers to herself as "the yard cooie" and said that it probably one reason the new teaching studio was named for her.

The new studio, dedicated this past May, was built for the express purpose of conducting art classes without interruption. The art league is becoming so popular with visitors to the community that people walking through the studios to view the exhibitions continually interrupted the classes, thereby threatening this vital part of the Art League's program.

Founded 31 years ago with eight members, the League now has a membership of nearly 1,000, half of which are local residents. The remainder are from perhaps a dozen states and Washington, D.C., who summer at Rehoboth. The Art League does much for the community and the fact that Rehoboth Beach has maintained its quiet charm and beauty over the years is due, in part, to the influence of this group. Drawing, painting and sculpture classes are held during the summer for adults and children, and the faculty is an outstanding one.

Once the wing of a 200-year old farmhouse, Paynter Studio was moved from a site five miles away and restored to serve as the first studio for the League. Because of the rapid growth in membership, the Paynter Studio soon became too small for classes and exhibitions, and now serves as a sales gallery for members who may hang two paintings at a time to be sold.

No visit to Paynter Studio is complete without reading the "Doors of Fame"—one door is signed by those members elected annually as having rendered outstanding services to the League; the second door bears the signatures of the chairman and theme of the annual Artists' Costume Balls.

The Corkran Studio, dedicated to Mrs. Corkran and her husband over ensuing years, has had several additions. The Seaward Wind is used for junior art classes. The Tubbs studio, a new wing dedicated in 1964, and the original Corkran studio are used to house current exhibits.

There are several noteworthy items in these studios—the murals above the doors created by Mrs. Corkran are sea shells set in concrete; the wrought iron gates especially created by John R. Baerens to divide the two studios; and the Corkran studio, a Member's Portfolio which contains unframed (but matted) works done by members and offered for sale. By browsing through these works—done in all mediums—a visitor may find the perfect purchase, either for himself or for a friend.

One should not leave the Rehoboth Art League grounds without first visiting "The Homestead"—Mrs. Corkran's home, the original structure of which is over 200 years old, making this the oldest house on its own foundation in the area—an dthe Boxwood Gardens she has developed over the years.

These gardens—laid out in intimate little sections — abound with a wide variety of rare plants and trees. Here, again, are many objects d'art—such as old grindstones used as halos" for pieces of sculpture—preserving a homey atmosphere. A small herb garden containing numerous aromatic spices and a model of "The Homestead" are to be noted on a walk through the gardens.

Science Study Program Started

The DuPont Company has announced a new fellowship program to expose Delaware high school science teachers to innovative approaches to the teaching science for 1969-70.

The American Chemical Society Education Committee is cooperating with the State Department of Public Instruction and the University of Delaware chemistry department in coordinating the program with DuPont.

Recipients will receive grants totalling $25,000 for a summer semester or academic year of study at the Lawrence Hall of Science, of the University of California at Berkeley, or any other institute the applicant may submit for consideration.

Recipients to date include: Merritt Marshall Littrell, of Bridgeville High School, at tending University of California at Berkeley for the summer; Leland O'Brien, Dover High School, attending Florida State University for the summer; John Reiber, science supervisor of the Diocese of Wilmington, will attend the University of Maryland for a year.

Also Vincent Remcho, Mt. Pleasant High School, attending the University of California at Berkeley for nine months; and Claude Tisinger, Caesar Rodney High School, attending Florida State University for the summer. Earlier program participants include James Gussett, Milford High School, who attended the University of California at Berkeley last year, and Mrs. Charlotte Purnell, state science supervisor, attending the University of California at Berkeley in the summer of 1968.

To be eligible for the fellowships, applicants must be currently teaching in a Delaware secondary school and be recommended by their principal.

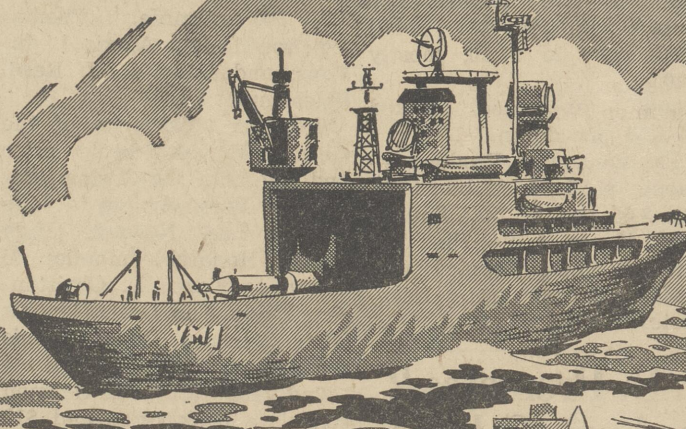

The selection committee included: Dr. Peter Strilko, ACS Delaware Section education committee; Mrs. Purnell, and Dr. Seymour Yolles, professor of chemistry at the University of Delaware, who is committee chairman.

FENCE TALK

Three conservation tours of Kent and Sussex Counties will highlight the Northeast area meeting of soil conservation districts on August 5. They will be followed by a chicken fry and entertainment program at the Delaware State Fairgrounds. But advance reservations will be needed.

If anyone in Kent County would like to go, the Kent County ASCS Committee will provide a free bus ride for the first 40 applicants who apply. The catch is you will need to put up $2 for the chicken fry to be served by the Delaware State Grange. Reservations can be made at the Kent County ASCS office (697-3601) or at the County Extension Office (736-1449). The Kent County group will meet at 1 p.m. at the ASCS office north of the Camden traffic light.

The Kent tour will feature the effects or urban growth on our natural resources, tax ditch work and maintenance, watershed construction, Agricultural Conservation Program practices, a ride through the Amish country, a watermelon break on the John Thomas farm, irrigation demonstrations for low unit cost crop production, and several farm and public recreation projects.

There are two Sussex tours. One will be in the eastern part of the county to see dune stabilization work, the marine research laboratory and campsite recreation spots. The second tour in Sussex will look at forestry work. Both of these tours will stop at the Georgetown station farm and again will look at watershed and tax ditch drainage work.

Call now if you think you want to go. If the number goes over 40 and you register late, you can pay an extra $2 for the bus ride. Sounds complicated, but everyone can choose which tour he likes. It just means we shuffle the ASCS bus load a bit with the other groups.

There is a right way to prune shade trees and to repair their injuries. It's all explained in a newly issued bulletin which you can have free by phoning 736-1448.

Broad leaved trees are handled differently from evergreens. And then there are special problems with newly planted trees, and for those grown for their bloom or fruiting qualities.

There is a special section on repairing injuries, which are taken care of as soon as possible. These include injuries to bark, lightning damage, split trunks, and uprooted trees.

Do you know how to properly saw off and treat heavy limbs? You can make a bad problem worse unless you do the job properly—and safely.

The search for the gypsy moth continues this year. This will explain the orange tapes you may notice along our state roads to mark the location of the tan colored tubes to attract the male. The traps are lined with tanglefoot, a sticky substance to hold any moth drawn into the trap. This is a change from the paper cups used in previous years.

Land owners are told about the trap placement if they are home. But technicians miss some and 3000 of the traps must be scattered all over the state. We hope you will cooperate. The traps offer no hazards at all to any wildlife or anything else.

The Gypsy Moth strips the leaves of woodland trees. None have ever been found in Delaware, but they are directly across the Bay in New Jersey. If they are found, we will have to do an intensive control spray program somewhat like what is underway in New Castle County to get rid of the Golden Nematode on the only farm where these are known to be present.

Another dairy tour on Thursday, July 10. Bill Henderson, Sussex County agent, is starting things off at the Howard Wilkins farm at 8:30 a.m. He has a map which shows the farm east of Lincoln and slightly to the north.

Most Kent County farmers will probably want to tag on at the Fred Stites farm at 10 a.m. This is a loose housing system for 60 Holstein cows located just south of Little Creek on Route 9.

From there to the University of Delaware for a picnic lunch, inspect the two Holstein and Guernsey herds and the soils lab. We wind up at the Bill Kux farm near Port Penn and you will be home by 4 p.m.

Md. and Del. Broiler Research

Coordination of broiler research is being emphasized by the University of Delaware and the University of Maryland.

In a meeting held recently in Centerville, Mr., agricultural administrators from both universities reviewed broiler research currently underway in their experiment stations. They also studied requests for new research from various segments of the broiler industry.

A spokesman for the group said that through continual planning and coordination between the two research units it is possible to prevent duplication of research efforts and to insure that new research will yield the greatest benefit to Delaware broilermen.

University of Maryland participants in the session included Dr. Frank L. Bentz, Jr., vice president for agricultural affairs; Dr. H. C. Haut, director of the Agricultural Experiment Station; Dr. C. S. Shaffner, chairman of the poultry science department and Dr. John A. Newman, director of Avian research in the veterinary science department. Those participating from the University of Delaware were Dr. W. E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agriculture and Dr. William J. Benton, chairman of the animal science department.

It Seems To Me

By Janet C. Reed

How do you feel about back zipper closures? Do you have a struggle to zip up the dress? When you sew, it's a simple matter to move the closure to the front or a more accessible seam.

You can't do much about ready to wear, except look for another style or someone to zip you up. Manufacturers find the back closure is quick and easy so it probably will be with us for awhile. The home seamstress also finds this placket easier to construct because the zipper can be inserted at an early stage of the construction process when the garment is flat.

The underarm placket lost favor as hair-dos became more elaborate and women didn't want to pull dresses over head and shoulders. Also, it's easier to fit a dress at the underarm seam when there's no placket there. Dress styles became looser at the waistline so it was easier to manage that back zipper. But we do hear about some problems.

One homemaker called my attention to a pattern for a child's pants dress with a zipper up the back. The child could not manage the back zipper and asked what she would do when she has to go to the bathroom. Whatever happened to children's "self-help" clothes? Fortunately, this homemaker was able to change the zipper to a front opening.

It's a simple matter to change the opening to the front if the style will not be distorted by a front seam. Use an invisible zipper for a less conspicuous opening. To change the zipper from back to front, plan the cutting layout so that the center back of the garment is on a fold of a seam. Add the seam allowance and the zipper to the center front instead.

You may be able to use a shorter zipper than the pattern suggests. A short gal will find that a zipper two inches shorter may appear to be in better proportion in a very loose fitting dress, the zipper only needs to be long enough so the dress will slip easily over the head and shoulders, or over hips.

You can insert a zipper in any seam. Some designer fashions show zippers in the side back or side front seams. Or a zipper can be used instead of a button closure; it will save time and fabric.

You don't have to follow a pattern blindly. Adapt it to your needs and use your good common sense to figure out the best technique.

Bulldozer Stolen

A huge bulldozer, valued at nearly $60,000, was found by police last week at the Petersburg recreation area, near Woodside. It was discovered a short time after it was reported stolen from a construction site near Felton.

The dozer is owned by the George and Lynch Construction Company, Dover.

Summer Program Curtailed

The contributions for the "Summer Program" were way below our expectation—due to the insurance cost on each child and the bare necessities of supplies—we are unable to have the program this year.

The money collected is in savings account under "Summer Program"—which will be (we hope) applied to next year's efforts. We are still working on this worthwhile project and hope next year to have assistance from the city and state. We wish to thank each individual who gave their time to canvas the city.

Also the interested contributors.

Keep watching this paper for the progress we are making, which we will publish periodically.

Seashore Gardening Challenge

Delaware flower enthusiasts still have plenty of time to raise attractive summer flowers at their seashore homes and cottages, reports Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Poor growing condition at the shore may be difficult to overcome, he explains. But a careful selection of varieties, soil improvement and proper plant care will produce a colorful flower display for many weeks.

For a quick splash of color, annuals are an excellent choice. Among those annuals suited to seashore conditions are petunias, marigolds, portulaca, cosmos and calendilla. Many of the tougher perennials such as day lily, chrysanthemum, iris and gaillardia will also thrive year after year with relative little care.

Soil improvement is an all important factor in seashore plant culture, says Stevens. In many areas, seashore soils are almost pure sand which dries quickly and does not hold fertilizer materials.

To help overcome this difficulty, dig in as much organic matter as possible. Mix peat moss, leaf mold, well rotted manure or other vegetable material into the top six or eight inches of soil. Then spread two or three inches of organic material onto the soil and dig in. Applying five pounds of limestone and three pounds of 5-10-10 fertilizer per 100 square feet of soil area is also helpful.

When planting seashore flowers, it is best to transplant established annual or perennial plants when possible. However, there is still time to grow annuals from seed using large seeded, easy to grow types such as marigold.

Protecting seashore plants from wind is also an important consideration, says Stevens. Long term planning in selection and placement of trees and shrubs will provide the necessary wind shelter.

Japanese black pine is certainly the hardiest—and probably the best—of the seashore evergreens. But other trees such as Russian Olive, Red Cedar, American Holly and Black Locust are valuable additions to seashore property.

Bayberry, beach plum, rugosa rose, Junipers and many other shrubs will also stand the rigors of seashore planting if provided with proper soils and frequent watering.

Seashore gardening is rewarding if you simply heed the rules of success, he said. Choose adaptable plants, improve the soil and water and feed. A colorful garden will usually follow.

Locals Excel In Newark, New Castle Track Tests

Harrington youths did very well in track meets held at Newark High on Thurs., June 26 and at Wm. Penn High, New Castle, June 30.

At Newark, 10-year-old Mike Smith, got the jump on his brother, Tony, 12, and led most of the way in the age 10-12 50-yard dash. Tony managed to nip Mike at the tape in seven seconds flat. Two other heats were held but the Smith's good clockings held up for first and second places. Tony later leaped 12 feet, 7 inches to miss first place in the long jump by 5 inches.

Hard working Brad Morris, a 5:15 miler, shadowed Dickinson High's Bob Spencer for four laps before finishing second to the upstater in an excellent 4:57.4. Breaking the five minute barrier has put the fifteen year old local boy in sixth place on the all-time list of scholastic milers from this community. Morris is also No. 2 on the two mile list. Third place finisher, Danny Hitchens, ran his best mile ever in 5:15.8.

Don Bryant, 14, was on his way to victory in the 13-14-15 100 yard dash when he pulled a muscle at 60 yards. Despite his injury, he gamely hung on to get second in the heat and third place overall. Bryant then threw the shot for the first time ever and picked up another third place award.

William Penn High's brand new, all-weather, rubber-asphalt track was the first such oval some of the Harringtonians had seen. These tracks are designed to be competed with short one-quarter inch spikes in the track shoes. For some reason the athletes had to use sneakers this time.

George Turner, 14, won his heat of the 13-14-15 100 yard dash in 11.5 running bare-footed. Bob Smith took the second heat in 11.7 to give Harrington a 1-2 finish.

Chris Wetherhold easily won the mile in 4:48 with Brad Morris third and Danny Hitchens fourth in a lifetime best of 5:11.

Donna Wetherhold captured the girls 13-15 100 in 13.4, then romped to victory in the 440 in 70 seconds.

Tony Smith blazed 50 yards in 6.7 seconds to win that event. Tiny brother, Mike, was second in his heat in 6.9. These boys are excellent sprint prospects.

Phil Thomas tossed the 12 pound shot 35 feet, 7 inches for first place. The second place finisher Ed Mongan of Tower Hill is 6 feet, 6 inches, about a foot taller than Phil.

George Turner leaped 16 feet, 10 inches for second in the long jump, then teamed with Bob Smith and two Wilmingtonians, Darrel Sanders and Vince Hyland, to annex the 440 relay in 52.2.

Distance runners, Brad Morris, Danny Hitchens and Chris Wetherhold surprised by clicking off the unfamiliar 440 yard run in 59, 57 and 53.3 seconds, respectively. That's mighty good time for two milers.

Symington specifically referred to the board's refusal to give 5 per cent annual raises to four inspectors and a chemist who work for him.

"This was the straw that broke the camel's back," he said. "These men have done a wonderful job and deserve the raise. But the board didn't have the courtesy to call me in and discuss the issue. I learned about the failure to approve the raises second hand."

Caulk explained that the inspectors had not been given the raises because they still had the overnight use of their state cars or mileage privileges.

Caulk said the annual raise was given to Symington, the chief inspector, and the veterinarians.

Carpenter said it was not the board's policy to consult department heads directly on salary increases, but the executive secretary does that and then makes his recommendations to the board.

"I'm surprised and shocked that Doc would make comments like that," said Carpenter. "There was no dissent between him and the board that I knew of."

"In fact, since we are a new board, we've been setting aside a part of each meeting for department heads to explain their jobs. When he spoke, he made no mention of many problems and gave the impression everything was going along fine."

Shirey said last week that his resignation was not prompted by reorganization or board action.

"In my case it's a matter of better job opportunity, including better pay," Shirey said. "I have no other motivations." He said he could understand Symington's reasons for leaving, however.

Earlier last Friday, Caulk responded to the charges of Naudain that he (Naudain) was pressured to resign his post.

Caulk said that Naudain, 62, had suffered a heart attack, and was granted the 60-day customary leave of absence without pay in February. The leave was honored when the new board was appointed in March, Caulk said, but failed to come in and talk with the board about his position, as requested.

Caulk said that Naudain sent a letter of resignation effective June 15 and it was adopted June 12.

"If a man is absent for a long time, are we supposed to hold his job?" Caulk asked.

On Naudain's charge of having his state car taken, Caulk said he had no other choice but to take the car because the board needed one and Naudain had not been in his office since January.

On the matter of retroactive pay, Caulk said since Naudain's salary is a specific "line item" in the state budget passed by the legislature, no changes in his salary could be made without legislative approval.

There is a bill in the General Assembly now to provide for merit-pay increases for all in all directions in search of cash to keep this worthwhile program in operation. 1969's total donations amounted to $244. This is the most money ever collected on Tag Day.

group of 30 experts in various areas loaned by Delaware businesses to study efficiency in state government.

Caulk said the change is in line with Peterson's goal of obtaining "$1 worth of service for every $1 paid" in state government.

He said the top person in each of the divisions serving under Clough will be a "working person," either in the field or laboratories.

The change would bring about a "smoother-running, coordinated department and would save additional monies by improved purchasing methods, an efficient car-pool arrangement and a better utilization of the entire staff," he said.

The department has 52 regular employees, 20 more in the program to eliminate the potato pest found in a field near Middletown and about 50 inspectors hired through the federal government during the summer.

Caulk said the Agriculture Department would have six sections once the reorganization is carried out — meat inspection, weights and measures, an animal and poultry laboratory, state laboratory, seed laboratory and plant pathology.

All but the meat inspection division will be headed, under Clough, by current employees, he said. A veterinarian will be hired to head the meat inspection division, created after a strong state meat inspection law was passed by the legislature last year.

loss.

"The problem of rate increases is not unique to Delaware," said Maybee. "Nearby states already have announced Blue Cross increases of as much as fifty per cent."

Projections of hospital charges indicate that by 1970, the daily average will be $90.37 compared to the current $68.33.

Maybee said the rate plans of other hospitals will be reviewed, and the future impact of minimum wage legislation will be evaluated before new Blue Cross rates can be determined. Rates for Blue Shield and Extended Benefits also will be reviewed. An attempt is made to establish rates that will hold for a minimum of a year. The last Blue Cross rate occurred in March, 1968.

Senior Center News

On Monday, June 30, Mrs. Angela Johnston, Mrs. Pearl Derrickson, and Jennie Morris attended the meeting of the Commission for the Aging, held at the Smyrna Home. It was a very informative meeting. The citizens of Delaware are fortunate to have seven different agencies supplying help to the aged, the poor, and the handicapped.

On Tues., July 8, a bus will leave the center at 10 a.m. carrying members to visit the Senior Center in Wilmington. There will be a charge of $2 per member and each person is asked to bring a lunch, Tea, coffee, and dessert will be furnished by the Wilmington Center.

Several of our members will be observing a birthday this month. Mrs. Linda Layton will be one year older on July 10 and Mrs. Leila Hopkins will celebrate on July 18.

Mrs. Mary Stafford is now recuperating at the home of Mrs. Edna Outten on Dorman Street.

Problems Of Old Told at Conf. On Aging

It's not easy to be old, a downstate senior center director said Monday.

Joseph G. Zieber, director of the Cape Henlopen Social Center in Rehoboth, explained his reasoning while addressing a group gathered by the State Commission for the Aging to review the commission's activities and purpose.

Meeting at the State Home for the Aged at Smyrna, the investigating group, commission members and many interested persons, most of whom are active with the problems of the aging throughout the state, were told that loneliness, inflation and even transportation to the doctor are pressing problems for the elderly.

Zieber, implying that senior centers were a possible answer said the centers too have problems.

To convince the senior citizen that the center is "a place to bring your problems, this is a place to get help," is not easy he said.

Contrary to the opinions shared by many, loneliness is not only the plague of the poor oldster, but also strikes the financially secure senior citizen, he said.

But he added that money problems magnify all other problems.

Making ends meet on a pension which remains the same as inflation drives prices upward is a constant problem for the people who visit the centers, he told the group.

The money problem carries over to make the transportation problem even worse, he said.

Many of the elderly do not drive, yet must visit doctors' offices and shopping areas. The cost of public transportation is often not within their means, it is difficult for them to take advantage of it sometimes, and in most cases in Delaware no public transportation is available, he said.

Many older citizens have never had driver's licenses, others have given up driving, and yet they must get from place to place.

A possible solution to the transportation question was suggested by Zieber.

A "mini walk-in bus", is one answer according to the center director. The bus would have a side door opening at curb level.

But the centers must generally find more space for their activities and find and train people in aging problems, before they can really solve the problems of the aging, he said.

He also stressed the need for more centers, to cope with the growing number of senior citizens.

Another center executive, Miss Kay Wilson, director of the East Side Senior Service Bureau on Wilmington, echoed Ziebers' thoughts.

She said workers must be trained not to be "too sophisticated" in their language or actions if they are to establish and maintain a good rapport with the elderly people they are trying to help.

Her center, which is connected with People Settlement Association and United Neighbors for Progress, is already working with the transportation problem. They are busing elderly clients to supermarkets.

Earlier Monday the gathering head Miss Eleanor Morris, regional director of the Administration on Aging for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, praised Delaware's aging commission for its state-wide approach to providing needed programs for the elderly.

The institute was arranged in a few weeks, according to Mrs. Herbert E. Dobbs, chairman of the state commission board.

The commission has been under heavy fire for over two months, since the unexplained firing of Dr. Hector J. LeMaire as director.

LeMaire's firing was reportedly the result of his inability to work with Mrs. Dobbs. LeMaire's assistant, William Kramedas of Dover, was appointed acting director, but resigned a few weeks later, charging undue interference by Mrs. Dobbs.

Commission members recently gave Mrs. Dobbs a vote of confidence by re-electing her chairman.

Mrs. Dobbs said the purpose of the institute was to familiarize officials of the many agencies which are carrying out programs funded by the commission with the commission's operations.

The State Commission on the Aging, which had its organizational plan approved by the federal government in March 1966 will this year expend about $250,000 in state and federal money for programs and administration.

Miss Morris praised the commission for its administration of the federal Older Americans Act.

She also praised the Delaware General Assembly for its financial contributions to commission programs which totaled about $125,000 this year and will be nearly $150,000 next fiscal year.

Crop and Weather Report

Harvest of hay and grain crops progressed rapidly during a dry week over the two-State area, according to the Maryland-Delaware Crop Reporting Service. Carry over of moisture from the previous week's rain kept growing crops in good condition until late in the week when the effects of hot, drying winds slowed the plant growth; especially in the drier areas of north central and western Maryland. By week's end moisture shortages were reported by more than half of the respondents.

Corn growth continued rapid over the two-State area but moisture shortages began to slow growth toward the end of the week in some areas.

Seeding of soybeans moved ahead with seeding after barley and other crops moving along rapidly.

Barley combining (76 per cent complete) is well ahead of normal. Wheat harvest (25 per cent complete) also is ahead of normal. Combining of rye and winter oats is well under way. Grain lodged by storms has slowed combining in several local areas.

Transplanting of tobacco is about complete. Early planted fields are in good condition and being cultivated.

Harvesting of early vegetables moved ahead with most of the peas for processing harvested by the end of the week. Harvest of snap beans for processing got underway on the Eastern Shore and about 3/5 of the fresh market snap beans have been picked in this area. Tomato "pinks" are starting to move with volume expected to increase by July 5. Cantaloupes will be available by July 10 and watermelons by July 25. Harvest of Irish potatoes is expected to start about July 5 in Maryland's southern Shore area and about July 20 in Delaware's commercial potato area.

Fruit prospects continue to look good but timely rains will be needed to give fruit normal size. Some Lodi and transparent apples were picked during the last days of June. Volume picking of these varieties is not expected until about July 5. Harvest of early varieties of peaches is underway in southern areas. In the important peach areas of Washington county variety of the Early-Red-Fire variety is expected to start about July 15; July 25 for the Redhaven variety.

Second cuttings of alfalfa are nearly completed on the Eastern Shore and well along in other areas. First cuttings of clover and mixtures moved into the windup stage.

Pastures declined during the week and were supplying below normal amounts of feed by the end of the week.
