

Improve All State Airports, Advises General

Delaware should improve its existing airports in all three counties rather than helping to finance a regional center, a State Development Department study has concluded.

Civilian use of the Dover Air Force base was cited as a possibility.

Retired Air Force Gen. J.B. Wallace discussed the study he made for the department during a press conference Tuesday morning.

Thomas B. Evans, the department director, said that the next step for airport development in the state is "that we must proceed to implement some of these things Gen. Wallace has brought out in his study."

As for a new regional airport, Wallace said that Delaware would give more than it would gain by participating in such an undertaking.

Rather, he recommended improvements at the Greater Wilmington Airport, joint use of Dover Air Force Base in Kent County, and improvements to the Sussex County and Rehoboth Beach airports.

Wallace said he could see no reason why the Greater Wilmington Airport runways would need to be lengthened or why the facility should be made into a regional airport.

"Philadelphia International, which will reach its capacity in operation by 1980, has the runway length required to handle long haul traffic," he said. "What Wilmington needs to do is lure general aviation, which does not need the longer runways, away from Philadelphia."

Wallace said that only 20 per cent of the traffic at Philadelphia needed the long runways and that the other 80 per cent could use Wilmington, or another nearby airport.

Mrs. J. Leon Wix

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Wix, 51, died Saturday at Kent General Hospital, Dover after a long illness.

A native of Bridgeville, Mrs. Wix had lived in Harrington most of her life. She was a member of the Women of Moose Lodge 534 of here. She is survived by her husband, J. Leon Wix; two sons, Allen K. and Roger, both of Lincoln; a daughter, Mrs. Samuel Lyons of here; a half-brother, William Sommers; and two half-sisters, Mrs. Naomi Martin and Mrs. Florence Mitchell, all of Federalsburg, Md.; and five grandchildren.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the J. Millard Cooper Funeral Home, 110 E. Center St. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery.

Thomas L. Wingate

Thomas L. Wingate, formerly of Rehoboth Beach died Monday in Holy Cross Hospital, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., after a long illness.

An owner and trainer of harness racing horses, Mr. Wingate had been active in this field until recent months. He was born in Harrington but had lived in Rehoboth Beach until about 18 years ago when he moved with his wife to Florida.

Survivors include his widow, Mrs. Irene Draper Wingate; a son, Charles B. Wingate of Harrington; and three grandchildren.

Service will be today at 1 p.m. at Adkins Funeral Home, 119 W. 4th St., Lewes. Interment will be in Barratt's Chapel Cemetery.

He said Wilmington's runways, at 7,200 feet, are longer than those at Washington's National Airport, the Newark and LaGuardia airports.

Wallace also said that Wilmington should seek "feeder" service to other airports offering long-haul transportation.

As for Kent County, the retired wing commander of Dover Air Force Base, said that Dover is the only state capital without a decent airport.

There are several alternatives—build a new municipal airport, enlarge and improve an existing airport or secure joint use of Dover Air Force Base.

"The demand for an adequate airport in Dover is here, and joint use of the base with a separate civilian ramp and terminal is the most logical.

Blue Cross To Boost Four Benefits

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware will boost four benefits in its Delaware-65 contracts to absorb higher Medicare charges that went into effect January 1.

H. V. Maybee, managing director, said there will be no change in Delaware-65 rates with the changes in benefits.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware offers the "Delaware-65" programs to supplement Medicare coverage by paying the Part A hospital deductible charges and adding various coverages not included in Medicare.

A total of 27,000 senior citizens have the Delaware-65 contracts.

The U.S. Department of Health Education and Welfare announced that four deductible amounts, payable by the patient, were increased January 1. These deductibles are paid for Delaware-65 subscribers.

Maybee said the higher benefits are these:

Payment of the first $92 of hospital charges due each benefit period for hospital admissions, instead of the previous $44 deductible.

Payment of the $13 daily charge for hospital start from the first through the 90th day, instead of $11.

Payment of the $26 daily charge for each day of the "lifetime reserve" of 60 days used for hospital care from the 91st through the 120th day, instead of $22.

Payment of the daily charge of $6.50 for care from the 21st day through the 100th day of care in a certified extended care facility, instead of $5.50.

Maybee pointed out there are four different Delaware-65 programs, all with the same basic coverage, plus various combinations of additional coverages to meet the various needs of senior citizens who have signed up for Medicare Part B medical benefits. The program do not duplicate any Medicare Benefits, but supplement both Part A and Part B Medical benefits.

Del. Park to Conduct a 61-Day Meet

Delaware Racing Commission Chairman Clifford E. Morris has announced that Delaware Park will conduct a 61-day thoroughbred race meeting from Saturday, May 30, through Saturday August 8.

Morris also disclosed that there will be no "dark" days during the 1970 season at the Stanton (Del.) track.

Baird C. Brittingham, president of the Delaware Park, in commenting on the Commission's announcement said: "Now that we have received official approval of our request to conduct our meeting during the period Delaware Park fans have come to regard as traditional, (General Manager) Ted McLean and (Racing Secretary) Allan Lavin can finish work on our 1970 stakes schedule."

Brittingham indicated that the list of feature events for the 10 Saturdays and two holidays (Memorial Day and the Fourth of July) included in this season's schedule will be announced before Feb. 1.

CITY'S ATTORNEY SHOULD INSTRUCT POLICE PROPERLY ON DUTIES, HINTS JUSTICE DEPT.

The State Department of Justice, in a reply to Rep. George R. Quillen (R), of Harrington, hinted local police should be properly instructed as to their duties.

A letter from Rep. Quillen to David J. Buckson, attorney general read: "I am confronted by the following questions: 'Why town policemen can not go on private property to investigate a disturbance when called to do so by the owner of said property?' I have run across two circumstances where, the town police were called to investigate a disturbance, the owners of the property were informed that nothing could be done because 'no trespass-

The first municipal election in 11 years will be held at Greenwood Saturday after six minute filings were submitted last night.

Three newcomers to Greenwood government, Mitchell M. Fisher, Elmer G. Fannin, and the Rev. Elijah R. McGee, will be vying for the three vacant commission seats.

Also running for the posts are three incumbents, Harvey M. Dickerson, Floyd McDowell, and Hubert Passwaters. The three would have retained their seats without an election if no one had filed before the 7 p.m. deadline.

The voting will be in the fire hall from 2 to 4 p.m.

The three candidates with the highest vote totals will join commission holdover James F. Anthony and Lawrence Graham. They will meet Monday night and select a commission president and a new secretary-treasurer.

GREENWOOD MAN GUILTY IN THEFTS

A Superior Court jury at Georgetown Wednesday, Jan. 7, found Louis Laws Jr., 24, of near Greenwood, guilty of three of five charges of burglary.

The Sussex County Grand Jury in September indicted Laws on the five burglary charges which involved break-ins the night of Aug. 19 at Harry Smith Buick, Nelson Swain Hardware and the Georgetown Tastee Freez, all located on U.S. 113 west of Georgetown, and July 1 at Carmine's Grocery south-east of Laurel and Tull Brothers, Inc., farm equipment store in Seaford.

The jury returned guilty verdicts on the charges stemming from the three Georgetown burglaries and not-guilty verdicts were returned on the other two charges. Judge John J. McNeilly ordered a presentence

Election Sees 3 Uncontested Posts Filled; Group Reorganized

The municipal election Tuesday saw three unopposed contestants for City Council, the posts affected.

George W. Vincent, a signal tower operator for Penn Central Railroad, secured the post in the Second Ward formerly held by Benjamin Hughes.

William Minner, chief inspector for the Delaware Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission, took over in the Fourth Ward where the former councilman was Grace Wanda Quillen.

Vincent and Minner will serve the usual three-year terms.

James N. Carroll Jr., of Grant St., was unopposed for councilman in the Third Ward. He has been, and will continue, to serve out the unexpired term of his predecessor, Mayor Burton E. Satterfield, who had resigned when he took the city's top post. Incumbent councilmen are as follows: First Ward, Wilson G. Bradley, Fifth Ward, John Satterfield, and Sixth Ward, Jack Apté.

Because there were no contests, the polls remained open only an hour, just long enough for the required token vote.

SHAW REPLACED AS RACING DIRECTOR

William W. Shaw has been replaced as director of racing of Harrington Raceway, a post he had held since 1961. Shaw, secretary-treasurer and general manager of Rosecroft Raceway, told The Harrington Journal yesterday he had been informed Saturday night the track had hired someone else to work the spring and fall meets planned here.

Shaw said he had written Harrington Raceway, that, if there were spring racing here, which the track had requested, it would be impossible for him to work here because of a conflict of racing dates with Rosecroft Raceway. Rosecroft will race May 2 thru June 20. Harrington has requested, Shaw said, racing dates of April 17 to May 9.

Continuing, Shaw said in his letter, if anything was available in the fall (meet) he would be happy to accept it.

In conclusion, Shaw commented he had written the raceway "he would be most happy to assist my replacement in the premeet period."

Kent Woman Injured in Auto Mishap

Margaret Burris, 42, Felton, was admitted to Kent General Hospital, Dover last Thursday morning with multiple fractured ribs, multiple bruises and a slight chest injury following an accident at the intersection of US 13 and Kent 12 about 8 a.m.

According to police, the Burris vehicle was proceeding east on route 12 and had stopped at a blinking red light but proceeded into the intersection without observing a southbound car on US 13, driven by Charles E. Freeman, 18, of E. Peach St., Camden.

The Burris woman was taken to the hospital by the Harrington Volunteer Fire Company ambulance. Freeman was uninjured.

Lesson For Parents

Some ten years ago a British author and psychologist, Dr. R. F. Hertz, conducted a research project of wide interest to parents. He asked 100,000 children between the ages of 8 and 14, from 24 countries to make a list of rules of behavior for parents.

The list is quite an eye opener, and is just as applicable now as it was when first released. Here are the points voted by the majority of the children.

-Do not quarrel in front of your children.

-Never lie to a child.

-Always answer children's questions.

-Treat all your children with equal affection.

-There must be a mutual tolerance between parents.

School Bells For Milford Adult Ed. Program

School bells will ring again for downstate adults on Feb. 23, when the Milford Adult Education Program begins its spring semester. The program continues to have a well deserved reputation for presenting the most unusual and interesting courses in the state.

Classes on such varied subjects as yoga, sculpture, exotic cooking, and oceanography which have attracted great numbers of students in the past will again be included in the program. A wide variety of sewing, business, and athletic courses, which are the staples of an adult education program, are also being offered.

Art appreciation and history, beginning banjo, and flower arranging have been added to the 45 courses listed in this term's brochure. A class in the Occult and Mysterious will cover topics such as ESP, Black Magic, Numerology, and Astrology.

The adult Education Association gives several courses free of charge each semester and is proud to list a University of Delaware Lecture Series among that group this spring.

Winterthur Museum's expert guide staff will return with a 10 lecture series entitled The American Scene 1640-1840. These will be entirely different from the lectures presented here in the spring of 1968.

The brochure describing all the above mentioned courses and many more will be mailed on Jan. 19 to all residents of communities from Dover to Rehoboth.

Classes will be held on Monday and Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 8:30 for 10 weeks beginning Feb. 23. The fee for most courses is $10 and several are free of charge. Any exceptions to these rules are noted in the brochure.

The program is open to anyone over 18 years of age, and there is no extra fee charged to persons living outside Milford. A minimum of 10 registrants per class is required or the course will be cancelled. Refunds will not be given after the first class.

Registration will take place at Milford Junior High School from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Monday, Feb. 9. Teachers will be present to discuss their course plans with students.

Applicants are encouraged to use the advance mail form in the brochure for early

Lack of Contests Results in Citizens Meeting Flop

The lack of contests for Tuesday's election resulted in the annual citizens meeting Friday evening being a flop.

Present were only City Manager Kathryn Derrickson, Mayor Burton E. Satterfield, Councilman James N. Carroll Jr., a candidate for re-election in the Third Ward, William Minner, candidate for councilman in the Fourth Ward, and Carrington H. Burgess of The Harrington Journal. George W. Vincent, candidate for councilman in the Second Ward, was not present.

However, petitions were read by Chairman Carrington H. Burgess, the only citizen present who was not an official or candidate.

The election was held Tuesday at the City Hall. It started at noon and lasted only long enough for a few necessary votes.

The organization meeting was held Wednesday night.

Senior Center News

Let us hope that all have rung in the New Year on a happy note. The Center is back on a regular schedule. On Jan. 12, Monday, the birthday party for those members born in January was scheduled. The weather and illness played havoc with most of the plans.

Party chairmen were Katie Austin and Ethel Bull. The latter was unable to be present due to illness. Those few members who did brave the weather enjoyed the afternoon. Since those having birthdays were unable to attend, we should like to say Happy Birthday from each of us to all of you. Come help those in February to celebrate and we will call it your party, too.

The following are the members and their respective days: Elsie Barlow begins the list having been born on Jan. 7; Clara Bradley claims Jan. 12; Cornelia Gillette will have celebrated on the 14; Anna Tucker, our newest member, can be wished well on Jan. 15; and

On Jan. 19 there will be two celebrating: Ida Macklin and Elizabeth Wilson; on Jan. 20 Mary Footen will be remembered; Mildred Holliday passes another milestone on Jan. 22; on Jan. 26, Cora Stevens will add another year in her eighth decade; and nearing the month's end is Orpha Taylor who was born on Jan. 27.

We wish you all well in the coming year. Tuesdays now are to be devoted to sewing. A stitch in time saves nine! So bring your work with you. Let us help you with your problems.

Ceramics are still quite the thing on Thursdays. New and interesting pieces are being purchased to give you a good selection from which to choose. So come to the Center where you can do your thing. Don't forget another important date, Jan. 19, when a covered dish luncheon will be held at 12:30 and the members meeting at 2 p.m. You will be served a delicious meal and be able to help plan future activities.

The thrift shop has quite a selection of clothing in excellent condition and numerous other articles of use to any family. Stop in and shop at 102 Fleming Street. If you like a bargain, there is no better place to find one.

Our best wishes go with Leonard and Beatrice Beachy who recently moved from this community to Elizabethtown, Pa.

Mr. Leonard Chaffinch will be speaking this Sunday night, Jan. 18, at the Wesleyan Church, Addix Ave., at 7:30 p.m. The Greenwood Volunteer Fire Company Ladies' Auxiliary meeting has been changed to Jan. 16, due to the fact that we serve the Sussex County Firemen's Association on Tuesday, Jan. 27. All Auxiliary members are urged to attend, as we need your help.

7:00 p.m. - Evening worship, the Chancel choir will sing The Lord is My Shepherd by Erhardt. How does one bring to the stage the portrayal of the perfect man? Such a question has faced a group of over twenty base officers, airmen and dependents of Dover Air Force Base during the rehearsals of a new play, Night of Decisions to be presented Jan. 18, in the sanctuary at 7:00 p.m.

Night of Decisions brings to life the moments of that decisive night in which new hope was given to a discouraged people. Decision after decision is re-lived as Judas decides to betray Christ, Peter decides to deny Christ and Pilate decides to let the people crucify Christ. Relevant? You bet it is! "Peace" and "Love" are by no means new subjects; Christ, himself dwelled on these subjects with his disciples. Christ has a "thing" about love that many have yet to grasp!

Night of Decisions is guaranteed to be an exciting and challenging experience for all present. To God be the glory for such a night! A cordial invitation is extended to everyone.

Delaware Food Market Report

Are you looking for some ways to trim the food budget now that the season of big spending is over? Then give some thought to including satisfying and nourishing bean dishes in your menu plans.

Dry beans and their close cousins, the dry peas and lentils, are food bargains, budget wise and nutrition-wise. All are hearty foods because of their carbohydrates, which the body uses for energy. They contain some B vitamins as well as useful protein. They are also nuggets of mineral value for the iron and calcium the contain.

When buying beans, you no longer have to buy in large quantity and soak for hours. Today the most popular size package is the one pound pack. In this pound there is generally more than two cups which when cooked will yield 7 to 9 servings. They are available also as partially cooked or fully cooked ones (canned). Consider the added convenience, along with cost, when determining which of the bean products to buy.

Keeping beans is simple. Simply put the unused beans in a tight container, bag or can, that will keep out dust, insects and mice. They should be stored in a cool, dry, dark place. If stored properly, beans will almost keep forever.

The only problem is that they will take a little longer to cook the longer you keep them. Cooked beans should be handled carefully as you handle all cooked food—refrigerate and use in a day or two.

Everyone's heard of Senate Bean Soup, so why not serve the family this Senate favorite soon. Here is the recipe: directions on the package) in a large kettle one pound of dried beans (navy, pea or great northern) in water to cover. (To save time, dry beans may be boiled two minutes and then soaked one hour.) When ready to cook, add water to make 5 quarts. Add a smoked ham bone with some meat on it (a ham hock may be used). Simmer about two hours, or until beans begin to mush. Add three medium potatoes which have been cooked and mashed, one cup each chopped onion, celery and two cloves garlic, minced. Simmer one hour. Remove bone, cut up meat, and return to soup. Season with salt and pepper. Makes 4 1/2 quarts (freezes well too).

Broilers-fryers continue to be exceptional buys and the quality is good to excellent. Turkeys have gone up a bit in price, but there are a number of stores offering good buys on roasting chickens. Beef specials continue on sirloin and porterhouse steak. Though prices are not much lower, they do look attractive. Start to check fresh fruits and vegetables for freeze damage and don't be surprised start to climb due to low temperatures in many of the growing areas.

MISS VIRGINIA ROSE BENDER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Bender, Harrington, was one of nine finalists in the 1970 Delaware Dairy Princess Contest held at the Holiday Inn, Dover, January 2.

U. of D. Coed Named Delaware Dairy Princess

Miss Sharon Lee Ely, Middletown, has been chosen Delaware Dairy Princess for 1970. Dr. Samuel M. Gwinn, director of the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service, presented the award at a noon luncheon January 2, in the Holiday Inn, Dover.

Miss Joy Gooden, Wyoming, was named runner-up in competition with eight other contestants.

Delaware's new princess is 18 years old, 5 feet 4 inches, and has brown hair and brown eyes. A freshman at the University of Delaware majoring in agricultural communications, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Ely. Miss Ely has been active in church organizations and is a member of the Equine Club and the society for Agricultural Women at the University.

As Dairy Princess from Delaware, she received a cash award and all-expense-paid trip for herself and a chaperone to the American Dairy Princess Contest in Chicago next June. There she will compete for a $2,000 scholarship, a complete wardrobe and the title of American Dairy Princess.

Eighteen year old Miss Gooden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel M. Gooden. The brown-haired, blue-eyed coed is also a freshman at the University majoring in home economics. A member of the University 4-H Club, she has been a state 4-H project winner for two years and was recently named a National winner in the Achievement program at the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago.

The contest was sponsored by the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service and a group of Delaware dairy organizations, according to chairman William Kux, Port Penn. It supports the American Dairy Association program to promote dairy products and publicize the dairy industry throughout the country. Judges for this year's event were Mrs. Bette McNear, Women's Editor, Wilmington News Journal; Mrs. Anne Nesbitt, Seaford, Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. home economist; Edward Marzoo, general manager of WJWL, Georgetown; Ed Miller, general manager of WDOV, Dover; and Harvey Smith, general manager of WDEL, Wilmington.

Horse Program Planned For Farm and Home Week

Increased interest in horses by both rural and urban Delawareans has inspired a day-long horse program at the University of Delaware's annual Farm and Home Week, Jan. 27-29.

The morning session, starting at 9 a.m. Thursday, Jan. 29, in the Agricultural Hall Auditorium, will feature discussion of feeding programs, care and management of foals, and the proper use of pastures and forages. Speakers will be Dr. T. L. Merritt, Pennsylvania State University; Dr. H. H. Sutton, Georgetown, Ky.; and Dr. J. R. Justine, Rutgers University.

Sutton is also scheduled to present a talk on "Preparation of the Mare for Breeding and Foaling" the preceding night, Jan. 28, at Harrington Raceway starting at 8 p.m.

During Thursday's afternoon session, specialists will discuss horse buildings and equipment, the physiology of reproduction, and the control of external parasites. Speakers will be available to answer specific questions during a discussion period following the afternoon session. Guests are then invited to attend the Horseman's Get-Together at the Howard Johnson Motor Inn. This will give horse owners and specialists an opportunity to exchange information on the informal basis.

Final session of the program will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the University's Student Center. Dr. D. J. Wade, Remington, Va., and R. E. McDevitt, Philadelphia, will talk on Judging the Western Type Horse and Judging the English Type Horse.

The War

If enough Americans join the already growing sentiment to bring our American soldiers, guns and equipment home from Vietnam, they may get action.

President Richard M. Nixon and his negotiators apparently have used every known and imagined means of settling the war with the many months of hopeless peace talks in Paris.

Sacrificing 200 to 300 American lives a week, plus the fantastic cost in materials and weapons, has not gained the results hoped for in Vietnam.

The belief held by American political and military leaders when Uncle Sam entered the Vietnam conflict that a tiny nation like Vietnam with 16 million people could not in any way be a match for the U.S. with its 200 million certainly was an erroneous idea.

We live and learn, at a terrific cost that money cannot buy peace and protection in a suspicious world and the hopelessness of Vietnam becomes a greater reality every day.

If enough Americans become convinced of the hopelessness for peace in Vietnam and make a concerted effort to tell every Congressman, Senator and political leader in Washington their sentiments, we may get action.

Time is apparently wearing the public's patience with military leaders to the limit of endurance. The fact that more men are being returned from Vietnam and that draft calls have been reduced is an evidence that public opposition to the Vietnam conflict is getting results. —Archbold (Ohio) Buckeye

Women Cautioned About Molesters

During the past year, several women have been molested after they have stopped their cars at what they thought was a command from a police officer.

The Delaware State Police wishes to caution women against stopping on a roadway, especially after dark, for any male who happens to be blinking his car lights, or blowing his horn, or who gives any other visible or audible signal to pull over, unless she is convinced that it is, indeed, a police officer.

Our personnel are uniformly dressed, and wear a distinctive hat; and on most occasions, either during daylight or darkness, they will overtake your car slightly so that you can readily see that they are policemen - if it is dark, the officer will turn his interior car light on to illuminate himself to you.

If you are still not convinced that it is a police officer, because he may be operating an unmarked car, you should know that all police cars have sirens: make him use it! The last thing that any person with evil intent wants to do is to draw attention to either himself or his intended victim.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

As mentioned in several recent issues requesting antique photos of Harrington, and surroundings of 100 years ago for use in connection with a Centennial issue of The Journal, consideration might be given to a reproduction of a stage scene at the Century Club two weeks ago which inspires:

— THE CHECKERED TABLECLOTH —

Back along in memory's lane,
 There are pictures haunt me still;
 Of things that Mother used to love,
 Things that always hold a thrill.

The coffee grinder on the shelf,
 Where rasping tones at morn,
 Oft called to me in slumberland,
 That just another day was born.

The kitchen lamp with glassy bowl,
 All shined to see the oil within,
 A bright red piece of flannel too,
 Was placed before the wick went in.

And over all a flowered shade,
 Was placed to cast a golden light,
 Around the checkered table cloth,
 Where humble fare was spread at night.

To me this had a homey look,
 With that bright red-checked cover;
 I think another loved it, too,
 I think that one was Mother.

It Seems To Me

By Janet C. Reed

Haste makes waste! Whoever coined that saying must have been trying to finish a dress for a deadline. When we're hurrying, we're most apt to take the short cuts that give sloppy results.

Take time to be accurate; it will save time in the long-run. Cut and mark accurately, and stitch on exact lines. Many errors in assembling pattern parts or in the fit of the garment come from careless and inaccurate work. A pattern should go together with ease if you've been accurate in cutting, marking and stitching. Even stitching 1/16 of an inch off will make the difference between professional and sloppy results.

It also is poor economy to be careless in pressing. Press seams and darts before crossing them with another line of stitching. Plan your work so, with one trip to the ironing board, you can press several seams. Pressing as you go will save time when final pressing is needed, as well as give a more professional appearance.

Planning ahead will save you time. This means having thread, zippers and other supplies on hand when you are ready to sew. Time won't be wasted in looking for substitutes, or you won't lose time waiting until you can shop for needed supplies.

Skipping preliminary fitting means you may need to rip—and we all know ripping is no time saver. Pin baste seams together to obtain a general idea of fit. Develop the practice of using longer machine stitches for lengthwise seams and areas which might need refitting. If you need to rip, it's easier with longer stitches. Shorten the machine stitch for areas where you must be very accurate, such as collar points, buttonholes and curved seams.

If your sewing time is limited, choose patterns with simple lines and few intricate details. Loose fitting styles and knit fabrics make imperfections in fit less obvious.

Read pattern directions before starting to sew. If you plunge ahead without referring to them, it may mean time-consuming ripping.

If you have to rush to complete a dress for that special occasion, it just might be better to wear a dress you already have. Save the sewing job until you have the time to complete it as you want. Then you can wear your new dress with pride.

New Fabrics Subject Of Farm and Home Week

New fabrics with exciting and useful new properties hit the stores every year. But several questions keep coming up—how do you care for them and how can you best use them?

Qiana—a man-made silk look-alike is one of those exciting new fabrics. The Story of Qiana with David Mooberry, market development manager, E. I. DePont de Nemours, will be one of the highlights of the January 27th women's program during the University of Delaware's Farm and Home Week. Fourteen garments made of Qiana from the Parisian designer Givenchy and from French pret-a-porte will be modeled into his presentation.

The program will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the University's Student Center with a discussion on "Today's Fabrics—Fact and Fiction." Dr. Dorothy Siegert Lyle, director of consumer relations at the National Institute of Dry-cleaning, will show what can happen to fabrics that are improperly cared for. She will have garments on display to demonstrate which modern fashions may cause problems to consumers.

The flammability of fabrics—whether they will burn and how rapidly—is causing concern both to consumers and to manufacturers. Dr. William Weaver, professor of textile and fiber science at the University of Delaware, will discuss "The Consumer and Flammable Fabrics" during the Tuesday program. He will include the problems faced in trying to make fabric non-flammable.

How were the new fibers developed? What are their advantages and disadvantages? The afternoon program beginning at 12:30 p.m., will feature the answer to these questions. Fred Fortess, manager of consumer technical relations for Celanese Fibers Marketing Company, will talk about "The New Generation of Fibers."

Luncheon will be served for $1.50 at the Student Center. Reservations should be made before January 19 with University Extension, 79 Amstel Ave., University of Delaware, Newark, 19711.

Christmas Seal Drive Continues

More than 50,000 Delawareans still have not replied to their Christmas Seal letter appeal, according to Arthur Vandepoele, executive director of the Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society. Vandepoele said a second reminder mailing is being prepared this week and will be sent to those persons who may have forgotten or delayed sending their contributions during the busy holiday season.

This year the society mailed out 113,000 Christmas seal appeal letters. To date, nearly half of these remain unanswered.

"Our campaign does not close until the end of March," Vandepoele stressed. "There's still plenty of time for everyone to join the fight against tuberculosis, other respiratory diseases and air pollution."

"President Richard Nixon, Governor Russell Peterson of Delaware, and many other state and civic leaders are now calling for greater emphasis on air pollution controls. One of the ways everyone can show their concern is through support of the Christmas Seal campaign," Vandepoele said.

The Delaware Tuberculosis and Health Society is already working with the University of Delaware and civic groups like the Delaware Citizens for Clear Air to establish and enforce air pollution controls for the state.

"We know there is a definite relationship between air pollution and the marked increase in respiratory diseases such as emphysema," Vandepoele remarked. "Realistically, we also know that if we're going to meet this combined health challenge, everyone is going to have to do his part, he concluded."

"The extent of this year's program can only be determined when all the receipts are in," Vandepoele said. "For the benefit of everyone, I hope we'll be able to report this year's campaign is the most successful one we've ever conducted."

This year we would like to expand our health and air pollution services more than ever before, but this will only become possible if everyone shares our concern and does his part.

"There's still time to answer your Christmas Seal letter," Vandepoele said. "Remember, it's a matter of life and breath to everyone in the First State."

University Features Bird Program

Birds of Delaware will be featured in a colored slide presentation at the University of Delaware's annual Farm and Home Week, according to program chairman Dr. Dale F. Bray.

Guest lecturer for the program, which will be Tuesday, Jan. 27, at 7:30 p.m., in the auditorium of Agricultural Hall, is Dr. Lester Greene of Georgetown.

"Dr. Greene has spent considerable time studying and photographing song birds found in Delaware," says Bray. "His slides capture these birds in their natural environment, illustrating their nesting and feeding habits as well as how they raise and protect their young."

In addition to his presentation of Delaware birds, Greene will provide slides of other bird species obtained during travels in Florida and other southern states. Of particular interest to Delaware nature enthusiasts will be a series of slides on the painted bunting, a beautiful colored finch, notes Bray.

"Dr. Greene's presentation is intended for the general public as well as for the devout naturalist," he adds. "All are welcome to attend."

A Senate subcommittee on juvenile delinquency is considering how to deal reasonably and effectively with the problem of drug abuse. The same is true of a subcommittee on alcoholism and narcotics. There is cause to hope that a sound legislative approach will emerge from these deliberations.

The need for reform in this area is evident. Under present law there has been a burgeoning of drug abuse and experimentation. The narcotics control measure offered by the administration has shortcomings. Notably it fails to give enough weight to medical and psychological aspects of the matter. Something more attuned to the real nature of the problem is required.

A different approach is needed, in particular, with regard to marijuana. Though this drug is treated in the statutes as a narcotic, pharmacists classify it as a mild, non-addictive hallucinogen. This is not to say that use of marijuana, especially by the young, does not constitute a problem. It definitely does. And it is a serious problem which must be dealt with more intelligently than merely crack-down with severe penalties.

This was essentially the point made before the alcoholism and narcotics subcommittee by Dr. James L. Goddard, former Food and Drug Administration chief. It is noteworthy that Goddard does not doggedly hold to his controversial 1967 remark that marijuana is less dangerous than alcohol. He now says more research on marijuana is needed before such a comparison can be made.

What Dr. Goddard told the Senate subcommittee was this: "I'm not pleading for legalization of marijuana. I'm pleading for rational handling of a serious national problem." Like numerous others with some expertise in the field, he urges adoption of a national drug abuse policy which relies not only on law enforcement but also on medical and psychological research and treatment. It is a sound view.

Cluttered Workshops Can Cause Accidents

A cluttered workshop usually means lost time and often leads to accidents and injury, reports Oscar R. Harman, assistant professor of agricultural engineering at the University of Delaware. So take an evening or two this winter to put your shop in order—to eliminate safety hazards.

Keep each tool in a definite place when not in use, says Harman. Using the wrong tool because you've misplaced the proper one may cause painful accidents.

Keep flammable liquids in tightly capped, non-breakable containers. Be sure that all containers are plainly labeled and stored in a cool place. Dispose of oily rags or store them in tightly sealed metal containers; carelessly stored liquids and rags invite serious fires.

Inspect power cords on soldering irons, drills and other electrical equipment. If insulation is deteriorating or plugs are cracked, replace them immediately. Replace missing safety guards on grinders, saws and other equipment. And use safety glasses for eye protection.

If your shop contains welding equipment, make sure it is located away from flammable materials. See that welding areas are properly ventilated and always wear the protective face shield and gloves when welding.

Finally, keep a fully charged fire extinguisher in a convenient shop location, advises Harman. These are certainly cheap fire insurance.

Trucking Lobby
The trucking interests have plenty of money these days. They have well financed offices at Washington, as well as in every state of the union, whose main duty is the promoting of legislation beneficial to their sponsors. By sponsors, we mean those companies operating the truck lines, as well as those making the equipment—all of whom stand to profit every time they can get beneficial legislation.
The latest attacks on Capitol Hill by trucking interests are the demands that present laws be changed to allow longer, wider and heavier trucks to operate on our highways. Supposedly, the super trucks would run only on super highways, but if such a favorable law could be obtained, there would doubtless be some strings attached, whereby the super trucks could legally stray out onto the smaller highways.
Picture a truck taking up every inch of its land on a two-lane highway - and longer than before too. What chance would you have passing such a monster-even meeting one would be bad enough.
Automobile associations, engineering firms, safety groups, and law enforcement groups all say "NO" to bigger trucks. They would be too great a traffic hazard; they would cause even more speedy deterioration of highways - which are built and supported largely by money from average taxpayers. There are many other reasons too against them. The main reason for changing the present law is just one - Profit!
It's going to be an interesting battle.

Science

We may all soon be driving on glass highways and building homes on tin lots.
Man, whose scientific discoveries are bringing pollution of water and air to the danger point of humans, is devising a means of keeping both pure in the future.
A new machine is grinding glass discards into fine segments that are successfully used as part of a mixture for building highways.
It is even said to outlast the usual rock ingredients. A new machine is also shredding tins and iron refuse to such small particles that they are being used for filling lots on which buildings are going up. There is said to be no smoke, no odor, no food left for rats and other vermin such as are drawn to our city dumps.
A civilization that can make it possible for men to go to the moon, at last seems to be directing its abilities and efforts toward making it possible for man to continue to live healthily on earth, with pure water and pure air.

Balance or Imbalance Government

Farmers this fall have been fighting army worms, also cut worms. Most say the invasion of army worms is the worst ever. Recently farmers were fighting green bugs, and before that it was virus in the wheat. And to be real old-timers there was time when farmers were fighting Hessian Fly.
It seems that when farmers learn to control or live with one kind of varmit another equally as bad or worse, crops up and they must learn how to combat the newer enemy.
This may be balance in Nature, or it may be imbalance. When one set of insects is up the other is down. Perhaps in the long run we will again be fighting the Hessian Fly in the years to come.
If, as nature is wanted to do, things run in cycles, there is no doubt that farmers will work through all of the cycles and back to the ones which first plagued them.
Airplane sprays control insects quickly and these battles are easily won. However, newer insect infestations are cropping up from time to time to either balance nature or to throw nature off balance, from which she bounces back with newer problems.
Too, irrigation brings on an imbalance that must be corrected. Irrigation takes out a great amount of food nourishment that must be restored by adding fertilizers. This is all to the good to keep nature in balance. Man is learning to balance most of the natural resources.

Spartans Trounce Laurel and Delmar

Art Refosco's Lake Forest High basketball Spartans remained unbeaten in four games, after trouncing Delmar and Laurel, last week. Both victories were scored at home.

Delmar fell 81-35 as Lake Forest spurred to a 26-3 edge in the second period and prevailed 21-6 in the final stanza. Chris Moore tallied 27 points for the winners. Whirling dervish Ken Copper played another complete game. His rebounding, dribbling, passing and defensive work, keeps the Spartans moving. Copper added 15 points, while sophomore Mike Davis hit for 11, to become the sixth Spartan to score in double figures this campaign.

Laurel's Bulldogs fell steadily behind in the first half, then were outscored 24-8 in the third period to trail 57-29. The visitors made the final score a more respectable 74-53, by closing the gap a little, against Spartan reserves.

Chris Moore's game - high 25 points gives him 1,152 in varsity competition since his first start four years ago. He needs 263 points to tie the all-time Delaware scholastic best of 1,415 points set by Bernard "Bunny" Blaney of Newark, almost 20 years ago.

With at least 15 games, remaining on the Spartans schedule, he should easily take over the No. 1 spot, if he stays healthy.

Dan DeMora canned 19 points, Ken Copper sank 12 and John McCloskey had 10.

The Spartans starting five of Moore, Copper, DeMora, McCloskey and Mike Fisher, is a potent group. Anyone of them is capable of thirty points on a hot night. The locals are the only unbeaten team in the Southern Division, at this writing. If they should prevail, as expected, at Dover Air on Tuesday night, they will have triumphed over every southern team except Indian River, a team beaten by Laurel.

Lake Forest now steps up a notch in class. Larger schools will furnish the opposition for the next few games. Sussex Central will host the Spartans on Jan. 16th. Smyrna comes here on the 20th. After away games at Dover on the 23rd and Caesar Rodney on the 27th, the Spartans will face Milford at home on the 30th. By then it will be possible to have a better idea, as to just how good are the Spartans chances in the Henlopen Conference race.

Personally, we feel that Lake Forest can defeat any Henlopen team on a given night. Chances are, however, that the Spartans will drop a few games before the final curtain, although a winning season seems assured.

Harrington Bowling League

Gerardi Bros. almost knocked the league leaders out of that spot by swamping McKnatt's in three games, just narrowly missing making a clean sweep, losing the second game by just one pin. Kenny Layton paved the way for Gerardi's with a real fine 540 series and getting a good assist from Stan Johnson, Jim Fransisco and John Forbes. Donny Garey and Harry Jack rolled well for McKnatt's enabling them to take out one game to remain on top of the heap.

Taylor & Messick continues to bowl well, this week crushing Hamilton Funds to remain close to the leaders, just one game out of the top spot. Kenny Outten set the pace with a fine 536 series effort for the farm boy's quintet. Hamilton had to go into the fray with a four man team and received a very good assist from Jon Chapman and Bob Creadick, but it was not good enough to keep them from dropping all four games.

Wally's Garage is making a good showing this third, and remain in third place again this week winning all four games against Quillens Market. With the league tightening more each week, we may see a new team on top before the third comes to a close. James Shultie continues to well, leading the team to victory this week with a very good 512 series effort, with the rest of the team coming through with one average or above performance. The Quillens' dropped all four games. Earl Quillen rolled well in defeat.

Gallo & Stevenson is also bowling well this third and remain right in the thick of things by handing the Spoilers a four game loss Tuesday night. Carmin Gallo set the pace for the whole league by rolling two 200 games and amassing a superb 568 series, providing the big scoring punch for the construction boys. Ernest Gallo, Jr., only rolled two games but put on a good performance by rolling a fine 208 game and another good game, and Jesse Gallo also contributed a good effort to help balance out the attack.

Martin Jarrell provided a big boost for Jarrell Fuel with a real fine 532 series as they set down a Penn Central attack, winning all four games.

Alvin's Jarrell's real fine 207 game and a real good effort by Preston Carmean made it possible for the fuel boy's victory tho they went into the contest with a four-man team, Paul Baker, Kenny Baker and Marion Brown rolled well in defeat.

Robert Wright with a good 519 series and a good effort by Larry Larimore enabled Butler's Fuel, which went into the contest one man short came out with three games to their credit against People's Restaurant. Norman Clough bowled well for the restaurant boys, enabling them to capture one game. The People's Restaurant quintet has not been able to gather any momentum after losing the first third title to Taylor & Messick in a roll-off, but should not be considered lightly by the top teams as they can still pose a threat.

Chipman Cagers Have 1-1 Record

Jim Blades' Chipman School basketball team is progressing nicely. In it's first game, Chipman met a Laurel team with three previous contests already played. Nevertheless, Laurel barely squeaked through with a 27-24 win.

At Caesar Rodney, Chipman was outscored 34-33 in a thrilling overtime test. However, 21 of the Rider's points were scored by ineligible players so Chipman gets the victory. It appears that Chipman wouldn't have worked up a good sweat if the ineligible pair had not suited up.

Sussex Central

The W.T. Chipman wrestling team opened its season Jan. 8 with a stunning 73-21 victory over Sussex Central at Millsboro. The high-scoring contest was the result of 25 matches, 19 of which were captured by Chipman.

Coach Gary Rogers said his boys showed much skill and desire in registering the most decisive victory. Since Chipman only had 17 wrestlers to Sussex Central's 25, several of the locals had to wrestle more than once.

Victories were registered as follows: Rodney Wyatt, pin; Greg Taylor, Pin; Vernon Wyatt, 2 decisions; Chris Adamo, 2 decisions; Mark

"Double Gaited"

When our heating system at Georgetown Raceway went Bolshevik on us during Delaware's introduction to life in an Arctic climate, so many of our heating systems did, it took me back to almost the first story I ever wrote about horse racing. That was almost forty years ago when I interviewed the late Judge Martin Nathanson and he recalled that he got his start as a racing official after a row with his boss at the Chicago Inter-Ocean where he was the sports editor.

"I went out to Roby, Ind.," Nathanson recalled, "and took a job as the presiding steward at the outlaw track out there. There was no racing in Chicago at that time and we raced all winter, the people making the trip out from Chicago by train."

Asked how they kept the people warm, since the climate around Chicago gets a little rugged, Nathanson described how they burned tar barrels in the betting rings for the fans to gather around between races. There were no pari-mutuel machines, the betting being done with bookmakers.

Marylanders who have been around long enough must have been reminded that in the early days of racing at Charles Town Race Track, across the line in W. Va., Panhandle, wood fires were lit in back of the stands to keep the fans warm. Obsolete railroad ties were used for fuel.

It wasn't that bad at Georgetown, but seeing the fans gather around our auxiliary heaters reminded me of the tales of racing at Roby, Charles Town, and other spots on the racing circuit. The nearest thing to that type of racing offered harness horse fans was the racing on ice which was so popular at one time in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Canada.

Contrary to what you might think, racing on the ice was done in sulkeys rather than cutters or sleighs. Usually, a straight-away was cleared on a pond, but occasionally an oval was cleared. The horses were shod with elongated caulks which enabled them to get a good grip on the ice. Bettings, of course was on the information auction pool basis, and usually was done at one of those down-town hotels which rural communities boasted in those days.

Of course, clearing the ice was sometimes a problem. As for example, when Judge George Grinnell, Derry, New Hampshire's municipal judge and chairman of that state's racing commission borrowed a tractor and attempted to clear the pond. The good judge was also an amateur harness racing driver and enthusiast and helped promote the races at one of the many ponds which surround Derry, ten miles north of Rockingham Park, and he over-estimated the depth of the ice and its ability to support a heavy piece of equipment like a tractor and wound up taking an involuntary bath in the pond under sub-arctic conditions. Bailed out and hustled home to bed, he escaped without pneumonia, but it was some time before the tractor was hauled out of the drink and put back into running order.

While, generally speaking, racing fans now have the ultimate in comfort at places like Dover Downs, the recent experience at Georgetown Raceway, when more than 1,000 fans turned up for an than miss out on a racing evening of racing under sub-arctic conditions both inside and outside of the stand, on account of the breakdown in the heating system, reveals when they have to, rather than miss out on a racing program being offered. No wonder the sport continues to grow and prosper when we have such hardy fans.
