

KENT GOP JOB WON BY CAMDEN MAN

Walter H. Simpson of Camden was elected chairman of the Kent County Republican Party in Dover Monday night.

Simpson, a former state senator defeated Allen Hedgecock of Dover, 84-25, in a secret vote among county committee people.

The new chairman succeeds G. Wallace (Pat) Cault, who resigned earlier this month with 15 months remaining of his two-year term.

Simpson said after the vote that he will serve the rest of the term assuming the committee wants him.

The vote came after a round of speeches during which Hedgecock's supporters attempted to have the election put off a month. The motion was defeated overwhelmingly by voice vote.

Both before and after the votes were counted there were pleas by speakers asking that the week of furious campaigning not be allowed to split the county party permanently.

The election almost was over-shadowed by reports which swept through the crowded meeting room about the political plans of Atty. Gen. David P. Buckson and by hints from several speakers which gave credence to the reports.

Buckson, seeking the U.S. Senate nomination against U.S. Rep. William V. Roth Jr., appeared late in the meeting. He repeated his statement of earlier in the day, when he had said he was backing neither candidate for chairman, and he appealed for party harmony.

Buckson also said, "I hope that in the next few weeks there will be things that will occur that will unite the party before the election."

Another speaker, State Sen. Andy Foltz, Dover in asking

Boggs Talks on Air and Water Pollution

Senator J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del., Monday called for the nation to enter the 1970's with a new awareness of the importance of our environment.

He told 500 delegates at the 1970 Northeast Fish and Wildlife conference that "the groundswell of public interest in nature and environment" would enable them to perform an even more effective job in managing their programs.

Boggs was the keynote speaker at the conference held at the Hotel DePont. Boggs, who is ranking Republican member of the Senate Subcommittee on Air and Water Pollution, offered a detailed examination of the many environment related proposals currently before the Congress, and reviewed legislation already adopted to enhance the environment.

He pointed out, among other proposals, a bill to establish a National Estuarine Policy, which Boggs introduced on behalf of the Nixon Administration. "This bill would go far toward the protection of the national environment by encouraging each coastal zone — including Great Lakes States — to establish shoreline preservation programs," the Delaware Republican said. "With 50 percent grants to assist in the development and operation of shoreline management programs, the bill would seek to preserve the marshlands and estuaries, which are indispensable to the propagation of fish and wildlife."

In a speech that ranged broadly over the environmental issue, Boggs discussed the environmental proposals presented by Governor Russell Peterson recently in his State of the State message. Boggs described Peterson's program as a "landmark for State action in the enhancement of the environment."

In discussing President Nixon's commitment to environment improvement the Senator offered support for the President's clean water programs and for his "innovative financing program for the purchase of open space and park lands."

earlier that the chairman's election be delayed said: "I have reason to believe that one of the major confrontations facing this party will be resolved without the confrontation."

After his election was announced, Simpson pledged to be impartial and "do my best to bind up the wounds."

Blue Cross Membership Has Soared

H. V. Maybee, managing director of Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware since 1935, in his last monthly report to the board of trustees noted that membership has soared to the highest point in the organization's history. Maybee will retire Jan. 31, after 34 years of service with the non-profit community organization.

Maybee reported yesterday that 10,867 members were added in 1969 to reach the all-time high of 382,406. The gain was made, he continued, despite the fact that Blue Cross had to boost its rates substantially in November. The membership is 70 percent of the state's estimated population of 544,500 on Jan. 1.

At the same time, the new broader and more expensive coverages were offered. In the three months, 21.6 of all Blue Cross members have elected the new comprehensive coverage. Similarly, 23.3 percent of all Blue Shield surgical - medical plan members in Delaware have chosen the new "Comprehensive-80" coverage; and 26.7 percent of all members with extended benefits have arranged to have the new comprehensive extended benefits coverage. More than 81,900 members have all three of the new coverages.

In other action at the board of trustees meeting, three trustees were elected to the board. The three new members are Emory Woodard Jr., and Dr. Alfred Lazarus, both of Wilmington, and Rear Admiral Henry D. Sipple of Rehoboth. Woodard and Sipple were named public representatives while Dr. Lazarus was named as a representative of the Medical Society of Delaware.

Woodard is international representative of the United Steelworkers of America. He is a member of the New Castle County Planning Board and served on the state's Constitutional Revision Commission. He is also a member of the Salvation Army Board and of the Governor's Advisory Council for the Placement of Hard Core Unemployed.

Admiral Sipple has lived in Rehoboth since 1961. A graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, he was in the submarine service among other assignments. He retired from active duty in 1957 and entered his family's monument business headquartered in Milford. He continued in that business until 1968.

Dr. Lazarus graduated from New York University and the University of Buffalo School of Medicine. He had a year of residency at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York City, and Kings County Medical Center in Brooklyn, after which he served two years as a Fellow in Gastroenterology at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania. He is a Diplomat of both the American Board of Internal Medicine and the sub-specialty Board of Gastroenterology and is a member of the honorary medical society, Alpha Omega Alpha. He is Chief of the Gastroenterology Section at the Wilmington Medical Center.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. John Seman of Camden had a surprise party Thur. Jan. 22, at the Moose Home in Harrington given by the members of Harrington Lodge #534 and Chapter #1229. They were presented a chafing dish. Buffet refreshments were enjoyed by about 45 members.

3 Teens Caught After Car Chase

Three teen-agers including a runaway from Woods-Kruse School for girls at Claymont, were arrested on various charges Friday following a police chase from Millsboro to Georgetown.

The trio — a 17-year-old Harrington boy, his 16-year-old sister of Millsboro, and the 17-year-old runaway, also of Harrington — was turned over to the Youth Services Commission and will be given a hearing in Family Court.

The boy was charged with failing to stop at the command of a police officer and with burglary. The Harrington girl was charged with being a runaway and with burglary, and the boy's sister was charged with burglary and delinquency.

According to state police, the three are accused of breaking into the home of Mrs. Florence Johnson, 29, of near Millsboro, sometime last Thursday night or early Friday morning. Taken were jewelry, clothing and other items, police said.

About 4:15 Friday afternoon, the car containing the three was stopped in Millsboro by police, who wanted to question its driver. The boy, police said, suddenly stepped on the gas and took off on U.S. 113 heading toward Georgetown.

Millsboro police chased the car and radioed state police. Several state police cars pointed the chase.

The car was overtaken in Georgetown, about 9 miles from Millsboro. Police said that the stolen items, valued about $250, were found in the car.

"Sex Education And Parents"

"Sex Education and Parents," the three-part conference for Kent County parents, will hear and discuss the teenage point of view when the series concludes on Thursday evening, Feb. 5, at Dover High School.

The meetings are designed to provide parents with insights into how they can help educate their children.

Governor Russell W. Peterson announced his endorsement of the series prior to its start. "Since it is vital that sex education start in the home if children are to prepare properly for life," said the Governor, "I urge all parents to make every effort to attend these meetings."

Co-sponsors of the 7:30 p.m. sessions are Dover's Blue Hen Hall Ministries, the Mental Health Association of Delaware and the Kent County Mental Hygiene Clinic.

Interviews with teenagers conducted by Paul Glaesman, former Executive Director of the Delaware Chapter, National Conference of Christians and Jews, will highlight the February 5 meeting.

Professionals in mental health and youth will then comment briefly on the interviews, and their review will lead into questions and comments by audience members.

The youngsters will probe the values and beliefs, the fears and fads prevalent among their age group. They will attempt to describe the reasons for disapproved behavior and for youngster's failure to respond to parental guidance.

They will also try to pinpoint some of the ways in which parents could communicate better with their children.

The parent - oriented series opened Jan. 22 with a talk by Dr. Leon Robinson, a family psychiatrist with the Eastern Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute. His presentation outlined the many-sided nature of sex education, and some of the ways in which families can influence the behavior of youngsters.

On Jan. 29, Dr. Priscilla A. Keeler, Superintendent of the Charles L. Terry Children's Psychiatric Center, spoke on "Sex and the Growing Person." She sketched the stages of an individual's physical and emotional growth, and led a discussion of the needs that each age group has for

Episcopal Diocese to Hold Convention

The 185th Annual Convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware will be held Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, at Schraff's Motor Inn, Newark.

In breaking the 184 year-old tradition of meeting in a church on week-days, the Convention will also be trying other "firsts" in an effort to make the yearly gathering and its deliberations more representative of Delaware Episcopalians, as well as more meaningful to them as individuals in a changing society.

The convention, therefore, was set for a Friday and Saturday beginning at 9:30 a.m. so that more working people and students could be free to attend. Participants are being housed in a motel so that a late legislative session will be possible and delegates will have the necessary time to deal with mutual problems and interests. The usual annual banquet has been dispensed with for the same reason.

Special regional representatives have been elected to sit with official delegates in discussion groups which will follow every major proposal requiring action. Some twenty such groups will be balanced in make-up, i.e., students, women, regular voting delegates, both lay and clergy and members of minority groups, all of them from different areas geographically. The purpose of such arrangement is to give delegates and special representatives an opportunity to hear and understand other points of view and regional interests.

Over and above the usual two delegates and alternates plus the clergymen from each parish and mission, 45 special representatives will represent the opinions and needs of women, young people and minority groups; sixteen from Wilmington and Northern New Castle County; fifteen from Western and Southern New Castle County; eight from Kent, and six from Sussex County.

Major business will deal with: lowering the voting age of young people to 16 years for those qualified to vote on congregational issues; approval of a new ecumenical agency proposed by the Council of Churches; establishing minimum Clergy salaries; consideration of a capital funds drive, and elections to fill expired terms of Council, Standing Committee and Trustees.

The Rt. Rev. William H. Mead, Bishop of Delaware, will address the convention

Protection Is Necessary

As a result of the fire death which occurred in Milford, caused by use of an illegal kerosene stove, it is becoming of grave concern to the State Fire Marshal of the evident disregard for laws designed in the public interest.

The State Fire Prevention Rules and Regulations were well studied prior to adoption and they were designed to help protect the citizens of Delaware. They follow the minimum safety requirement as spelled out in Nationally Recognized Standards. William R. Favinger, State Fire Marshal, earnestly urges the citizens of this state to become aware of the requirements as they may pertain to each individual. Contact the office or any Deputy Fire Marshal, should there be any doubts. It is there desire to reduce deaths by fire and loss of property from fire, but lack of respect for the laws designed for their safety, could well place a life in

The latest revised listing of items for which the Department of the Navy needs additional suppliers has been received by the Delaware State Development Department, announced Thomas B. Evans, Jr., Director of the department.

The items listed are not necessarily under current procurement but are examples of items for which the Navy had had limited competition in the past. The primary purpose of this list is to locate additional small business and labor surplus area sources of supply.

The following is a cross-section of items which appear on the list: cleaning compound solvent; unicellular form plastic — tubular and sheet form; hose assemblies; globe, angle and Y valves; automatic regulating pressure valves; solenoid arming units; rotary switches; switchboard transmitters; primary remotely activated (silver zinc) 28-volt batteries.

Interested firms may contact the Delaware State Development Department, 45 The Green, Dover, 19901 for further information regarding the items and their purchasing activities.

Levy Court Balky About Bill to Increase Own Pay

Kent County Levy Court commissioners balked at the idea of setting their own salaries Tuesday under a bill sponsored by state Rep. W. Neal Moerschel, R-Dover.

The measure, which would allow the county's governing body to increase the $4,800 a year paid to commissioners to a ceiling of $7,000, cleared the House of Representatives on Thursday. It is presently pending action in the Senate. By a 6-1 vote, commissioners moved to ask the Senate to table action on the bill, at least until state and county legislators can huddle on the matter.

The lone opposition to stopping the bill came from Commissioner John T. McKenna.

"I am strongly in favor of home rule," he said. "We want the responsibility for setting all salaries."

McKenna added, "As far as the present home rule bill goes, it gives us authority to run a sewer line."

He has been the push behind a University of Delaware study to revamp the home rule bill toward a stronger county government.

"I'll never do it," Commissioner Samuel G. Forester said. "I ran for $4,800 and I'm not going to vote to raise it."

William C. Torbert, Levy Court president, suggested that the issue could be skirted by making any raise effective in 1972. By that time the term of all present commissioners will expire. However, Torbert favored Levy Court salaries being set by the General Assembly.

In other matters, Samuel W. Williams Jr. of O'Brien & Gere, consulting engineers, said Phase I of the County-wide sewer project will be ready for bid by mid-March.

That phase, expected to cost in a vicinity of $800,000, includes 4.5 miles of sewer lines from Cheswold to the St. Jones River and a pumping station. The segment will temporarily serve Standard Brands until the total project is completed.

Williams said actual construction of Phase I is scheduled to begin on May 1 with completion in November. The rest of the project, another 25 miles of line from Smyrna to Cheswold and Dover to Milford, is scheduled for bidding in November.

The project also includes several other pumping stations and a sewage treatment plant on the Murderkill River. It is expected to be operational by March 1972.

The engineer said it is too early to tell if the project cost, estimated at $11 million, will hold. He said reports indicate that construction costs have escalated at a higher rate than forecast.

St. Stephen's Episcopal Church

Calendar of the week of Jan. 29, to Feb. 4.

 Sunday 9:30 a.m. - Church school
 10:45 a.m. - Morning prayer and sermon
 12:00 noon - coffee hour

 Thursday 10:00 a.m. Devotional Day of Episcopal Churchwomen, St. Anne's Middletown

This coming Sunday morning it will be the pleasure of the congregation to have St. Stephen's own licensed lay reader, Clyde Perry, to read morning prayer and deliver the morning sermon. Meantime, St. Stephen's is being represented at convention by Messrs Thomas Clendenning, Robert Nelson and Mrs. Robert Baynard and, of course, the vicar. The convention meets at the Church of the Nativity in Wilmington Manor this year. Since the priests of the diocese are at convention on this Sunday, which is the first Sunday of the month, Bishop Mead has asked that holy communion be celebrated in each church in the evening. St. Stephen's celebration will be at 8:00 p.m.

It is hard to realize that Lent begins with Ash Wednesday on Feb. 11, and so is just around the corner. As one of the features of St. Stephen's observance of Lent this year, there will be family or family-and-friend celebrations of holy communion. These are known as cottage communion services and usually take place before breakfast in the homes of members of the church family. The family involved invites the vicar and can either have just the family members or can include friends as well. After the communion service a breakfast is usually served, though where this is inconvenient the latter can be omitted. Also, where any family prefers it, the cottage communion can be held later in the day. There are blanks on the rear table of the nave of the church for those who desire such a service.

The vicar is asking the members and friends of St. Stephen's to suggest topics about which they would like to have discussed during Lent. It is important that these be gotten to the parish office speedily as it will be necessary to arrange resource persons for each evening involved.

Attention: Women of St. Stephen's: As part of your February Meeting, you should plan to set tables for the annual Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper which comes on Feb. 10, this year.

The Annual Devotional Day of the Episcopal Churchwomen of the Diocese will be held this coming Thursday, Feb. 5th at 1:00 a.m. at St. Anne's Church, Middletown. The newly appointed assistant to the bishop, the Rev. Lester L. Dobyns will speak briefly. The speaker of the day will be Stoddard Smith, organist and choir master of the Cathedral Church in Wilmington. Those who go should take a box lunch. St. Anne's will furnish dessert and beverage.

Harrington Bowling League

By Leah S. Wheeler Jan. 22 News

With one more week to go in the battle for the title in the second third it appears that four teams are in a position to capture the title. Though McKnatt Funeral Home has managed to hang on to the lead during the past few weeks, they cannot afford to gamble any game in next week's contests. Dropping two games to Taylor and Messick Tuesday night left McKnatt's with just one game advantage over their opponents in the standings. Even though Taylor & Messick stands a good possibility to repeat as titlists in the second third, the second place team after next week would automatically win the title should this occur.

Also considered very strongly in the bid for the title is Gallo & Stevenson who came on strong, thumping Wally's Garage for four games and holding a very good third place in the standings. Jarrell Fuel also made a big move to the top and are also to be considered a threat for the title after crushing Hamilton Fund to move within three games of the lead.

Robert Garey rolled a good 556 series with a fine 202 game included, and Donald Garey came through with a good series effort for McKnatt's two-game win against the farm boys. George Collins hit his old bowling form, amassing a grand 575 set, combined with a great effort from Kenny Outten who rolled a real fine 220 single, included in a 515 series to balance Taylor & Messick's attack.

Ernest Gallo and Carmine Gallo set the pace for victory for Gallo & Stevenson whose move up close to the top has made the leaders take another look at this team's strength. Wally Ryan tried to keep his team in contention for the title race by rolling a good series, though it proved to be a futile effort as Wallys must be content just to maintain a good place in the standings on its loss to fired-up Gallo & Stevenson team.

Jarrell Fuel finally hit a winning streak and looked very impressive in a big victory over the finance boys Tuesday night. Alvin Jarrell paved the way to victory, rolling a 200 and 219 single, amassing a superb 574 set, with Howard Tibbitt contributing a grand 547 series, including a fine 203 game, and Preston Carmean coming thru with a good series effort. Hamilton Funds tried to keep things even, tho they were badly handicapped before the onset of its contest by having only three members present.

Butler's Fuel dropped out of contention for the lead by dropping the games to Quillen's Market, which was able to move up out of the cellar spot on its fine effort. Robert Wright, with a good performance, and Ronald Wright and Sam Lyons contributing good efforts for the fuelers were not enough to offset fine efforts by Edmund Kemp and Earl Quillen (214) for the grocery boys' conquests.

Peoples Restaurant swamped the Spoilers on a very fine 553 series by Alan Young which included a great 223 single, getting fine assist from Norman Clough to put three games in the win column to move a notch up in the standings closer to the bottom of the heap on its loss.

Penn Central trounced Gerardi Brothers as Bernard Coffman and Raymond Baker provided the scoring punch for the railroaders in their three-game win. Don Jester, John Forbes (200) and James Francisco rolled well for the furniture boys, enabling them to capture one game, though it was not good enough to keep from falling into ninth place in the standings.

Local School Receives National Recognition

Last Tuesday, Jan. 20, Governor Russell W. Peterson presented to the Kent County Vocational - Technical Center a plaque from the National Safety Council. The plaque, the National Youth Award, is given each year to some one organization doing outstanding programs in safety. In presenting the plaque from Howard Pyle, Executive Secretary of the National Safety Council, the Governor reminded the Legislators and guests that not only is this the first time the award has been won by a Delaware group, it is also the first time it has been won by a high school.

William C. Pfeifer, Superintendent of the school, to whom the plaque was presented, explained that the school had always been interested in safety but until the students took up the safety program some two years ago, they had little success. Mr. Pfeifer then called on Lynda Ford, State President of the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) organization, which is the youth arm of Kent Center, to receive the plaque.

The National Youth Award was given to Kent Center for their programs on safety, conducted during the school year 1968-69. It included programs on occupational safety, safety emphasis on the highway, as well as special programs on home, fire, and poison control safety. As a part of the safety program the Kent Center students conducted a 50 question survey of 1,000 Kent County residents. The survey quizzed the county residents on their safety practices. The national Safety Council especially praised the group for the survey as there were a number of very interesting statistics developed from the questionnaire. Another interesting aspect of the safety program was the "Hard Hat Program." Each day a different student was assigned to wear a hard hat and write up safety infractions of other students as they pursued their vocational-technical training.

The Governor presented the plaque during the recent Governor's salute to Vocational Education Day and attending program which was held at Kent Center. Representatives and Senators as well as leading State Government officials and educators were present during the festivities. The day included a tour of the facilities and student speaker on Vocational Education. The National Youth Award is not the first recognition that the Kent Center youth has been accorded. For the past two years they have received top honors from the National Vocational Clubs of

Low Humidity Harmful

By merely heating your home during the winter months, you may be creating conditions drier than the desert, according to Oscar R. Harman, assistant professor of agricultural engineering at the University of Delaware.

The problem is low humidity, says Harman. Low winter humidity can cause dry, itchy skin, respiratory difficulties, high heating bills and physical deterioration of furniture, walls, fabrics and home furnishings.

Relative humidity is the amount of water vapor in the air in relation to the maximum it can hold at a given temperature. Since cold air is capable of holding far less moisture than warm air, heating cold air reduces humidity to as low as 5 to 10 percent.

The warmer the air, the thirstier it becomes, sucking moisture from everything—wood, plaster, fabrics, furniture, plants, animals—even you. It removes moisture that insulates the body causing a chill and dries out nose and throat membranes. As you increase the heat to dispel the chill, the air becomes still drier.

The solution to this problem is simple, says Harman. Add enough moisture to the air to raise humidity to a comfortable level.

In homes with hot air heating systems, an automatic humidifier unit can be attached to furnace air ducts. These units must be cleaned occasionally and hard water may create problems, but the humidifier will provide better health, more comfort and reduced heating costs.

In homes without hot air heating, free-standing humidifiers may be installed. Many of these force water vapor into the air with a heating unit; newer models add moisture by means of a centrifugal atomizing unit or a rotary belt and fan unit.

Poems from Paradise Pastures
 By W. Cliff Miller

Proximity of the new Lake Forest High School afford sports minded natives of Paradise Alley a golden opportunity to look in on the fine young crop of athletes competing in the body-bending, bicep-bulging art of wrestling, a sport that scholastics have kept clean by good management and coaching in the face of the biggest farce that TV and so-called professionals try to make of it.

It is, indeed, a pleasure and a world of satisfaction to note the atmosphere of clean sportsmanship that dominates these contests, prompting:

— THE TEST OF MAN —

The test of man is the fight that he makes
 The grit that he daily shows,
 The way that he stands on his feet and takes
 The biffs and the bumps and the blows.

A coward can cheer when there is nothing to fear,
 And nothing his pathway bars,
 But it takes a man to stand and cheer,
 When the other fellow stares.

It isn't the victory after all,
 It's the fight that the brother makes;
 The man with his back against the wall—
 His head erect and takes—
 The blows still standing, his head held high
 Battered and bleeding and pale,
 Is the man who will win in the bye and bye,
 Because he isn't afraid to fail.

In connection with the above notation on a wrestling score card, the situation is covered very well with following:

"The Conduct of Spectators"

These are high school athletes performing here tonight; they are friendly rivals, as members of opposing teams; they are not enemies.

This basically is the theme of interscholastic athletics—the idea of friendly competition. The visiting team is the guest of the home team. They are expected to be so regarded and so treated.

The officials are men who, by agreement between the competing teams, are assigned to administer the rules of the game. Their experience and integrity qualify them for their part in this friendly contest.

This attitude of friendly sportsmanship should be reflected by all spectators, too, regardless of personal feelings of loyalty to one or the other of the teams competing.

WHAT NEXT?

University of Nevada students "Demonstrated." Some 2,000 gathered on the campus shouting into bullhorns and banging on garbage can lids. When President Edd Miller rushed over, the president of the student body explained they were "demonstrating to show their respect, affection and support."

Days Of Our Years

Ten Years Ago

The schools boards of Harrington, Felton and Frederica met Tuesday night at Felton and approved the idea of a comprehensive high school for the three districts. Each district was in favor of controlling its elementary school and keeping its Board of Education.

er, has a building program underway at his establishment on U. S. 13 between Farmington and Greenwood.

Ellwood Gruwell, president of the Harrington School Board, gave tentative plans for a new elementary school building at a meeting of the local P. T. A. Tuesday evening.

J. Harvey Burgess, who recently spent a week in and near Springfield, Ill., in a study of Abraham Lincoln, told Rotarians Tuesday evening, "Ask anyone to name a self-made man and nine times out of ten, remembering the dire poverty of his childhood and young manhood, his lack of opportunity, his early failures, he will name Abraham Lincoln. He wasn't a self-made man because there is no such thing as a self-made man. In the village of New Salem, where his formative years were spent, there were three men who, in no small degree, helped shape the career of Abraham Lincoln: Mentor Graham, an old schoolmaster; Judge Bowling Green, a lawyer, and Jack Kelso."

Letter to Editor

 R.F.D.
 Greenwood 19950

Dear Sirs:

Good people don't get enough encouragement or publicity these days. That is why I'm writing you this letter.

As I was driving along route 13 on Thursday night I had to stop because of mechanical difficulties. Because of recent events on Route 13, my first reaction was to lock my doors and wait for a policeman to stop. When "Smokey" White of Harrington stopped to offer me help, I declined to roll down my window. In spite of my reticence to talk to him, and the 13 degree weather, he offered to tow my disabled car to Felton.

When we arrived at the gas station, he accepted my apologies for my wariness, saying, "I understand, I have a teen-age daughter."

My thanks to you, Mr. White, and all of the other people in this community who would have done the same.

A native of Seaford, Mr. Goslin had lived in the Blades area most of his life.

He was an Army veteran of World War I, serving in France with the 59th Pioneer Infantry Division. He was a member of Nanticoke Post, American Legion.

Dept. of Mental Health News Release

The Department of Mental Health, seeking to relieve the shortage of professionally-trained social workers in the state, is cooperating with the University of Delaware in a new program to be started in the 1969-1970 spring semester, according to Dr. Albert L. Ingram, Jr., Mental Health Commissioner.

As part of the undergraduate curriculum at the University, a concentration will be offered in the sociology of social welfare. The objective will be to interest students who have majored in the humanities in careers in social work.

"There is a pressing need for trained manpower in the welfare and health agencies of our State. The University," added Dr. Ingram, "through this concentration is endeavoring to help solve this problem. Persons who complete these courses will bring some theoretical and practical experience to future work in the field."

Dr. Ingram said that Sheldon Schweidel, ACSW, director of Program Planning for the Department, had met several times with University officials including Dr. Howard Harlan, Professor of Sociology, to chart the start of the concentration. He said that a three-course program has been developed which will include the sociology of welfare institution, the sociology of the profession of social work, and practical experience in a social agency under the supervision of a professional social worker.

The Department of Mental Health will cooperate by making four of its facilities available as field placements for students. Social work directors at the Delaware State Hospital, the Governor Bacon Health Center, the Fernhook Mental Hygiene Clinic, and the Wilmington Mental Hygiene Clinic, joined Dr. Harlan and Mr. Schweidel in conference and agreed to provide practical experience and supervision for students. Other state and voluntary resources will be involved as the concentration develops.

Dr. Ingram pointed out that the Department of Mental Health offers "a wide range of diagnostic and treatment services to the mentally ill in the State. Each year, the number of persons using our facilities increases. Social work is an integral part of the services offered. Personnel in social service divisions work directly with patients and their relatives, as well as providing liaison and consultation to many community agencies."

"There has always been a shortage of qualified personnel in social service divisions and the Department of Mental Health looks upon this new program, developed by the University of Delaware, as a beginning step in solving this problem."

Veterans' News

The Veterans Administration in Delaware today urged veterans and dependents receiving VA pension checks to return their income questionnaires immediately if they have not done so, to shorten any delay in receipt of their checks.

The income questionnaire was mailed to pensioners with their October checks. Leon Fields, manager of the Wilmington regional office, pointed out approximately 200 questionnaires had not been returned by the January 15 deadline.

The deadline applies to veterans who are totally and permanently disabled by disease or injuries not associated with their military service, and wartime veterans' widows who draw pensions from the VA, if they have limited incomes.

In addition, parents of deceased veterans who receive compensation checks are required to return income and dependency questionnaires. Since the amount of payment is related to income, the law requires beneficiaries to report their income so VA can determine the amount to be paid in 1970.

If they are disabled vets, widows and dependent parents they may receive information and assistance in completing their questionnaires from their nearest VA office.

February 12, is the day, yes, that is when the 4th Annual Delmarva Soybean Meeting is going to be held. You won't want to miss this one. "Soybeans for the Seventies" will be the theme of Delmarva's largest soybean growers meeting. The meeting will be held at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, Salisbury, Md. Beginning at 9:00 a.m., nationally known soybean experts will share their views and experiences.

The latest soybean research in weed control, fertility, new varieties, row spacings and others will be covered by Dr. William Mitchell, University of Delaware; Dr. James Parochetti, and John Schillinger from University of Maryland.

Better money management to improve the farm income will be discussed by Harold Walker of Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Concluding the program will be a grower panel made up of four outstanding soybean producers. We will hear why these growers lean on the soybean for their farming operation.

If you would like a program and tickets to the meeting your local coop and other farm suppliers will have these on hand. Also your nearest County Extension Office can supply you with information and tickets.

The Kent County Extension Office now has a supply of the 1970-71 Field Crop Variety recommendations for distribution. If you would like a copy, please stop by the office or call or write and we will send you a copy. (Telephone: 736-1448, or write: P. O. Box 340, Dover, 19901.)

It Seems To Me

By Janet C. Reed

Sewing classes for men? No, we're not off our rocker; it's the latest trend in the phenomenal growth of interest in home sewing.

One national chain of fabric shops is including special classes for men, taught by men. Although present plans are for classes which teach basic sewing techniques, the stores hope to work up to advanced tailoring classes where men can learn to make their own suits and coats.

One pattern company is organizing sewing centers in stores and has enrolled men in special work shops on such individual topics as pattern adjustment, bound button holes or zipper insertion.

When you stop to think about it, the idea doesn't seem so strange. Most of the famous Parisian and American designers are men. Tailoring of men's suits is a manly profession, and good tailors are becoming scarce.

Men have always been fascinated by the sewing device and they can understand its intricacies better than most women. Many women tell me they learned to sew because their husbands became interested in a sewing machine and bought an expensive model for them.

Patterns for men's jackets, slacks and shirts are becoming more easily available. Many women report great satisfaction from being able to make these garments for the men in their family. And, men have been pleased with the results.

Apparently, more boys than ever are enrolling in home economics classes in schools where projects on clothing selection, buying and clothes care are included. Some classes include simple sewing projects such as making a chef's apron, jiffy robes, ponchos and vests; in addition, boys are taught sewing machine care and repair.

With men's fashions becoming more individual and colorful, we're on the threshold of a whole new sewing wave.

Try Pork - It's Gone Modern

Don't accept any old wives tales about pork; it has a new image.

To begin with, pork is not a plies only about 250 calories, fat meat. However, even calorie counters can now enjoy pork with a clear conscience, says Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension food and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.

The pork on meat counters today comes from a new meat-type hog that has more of the lean, meaty, tender cuts of diet-conscious shoppers want. In fact, an average serving of lean pork—for example a pork chop—supplies only about 250 calories, approximately the same as a serving of any other meat.

Other old wives tales have been disproved, too.

Contrary to some beliefs, pork is high in food value, and it is easily digested. A serving of lean pork supplies about a third of the protein needed daily by a moderately active man or average woman. And, pork is an excellent source of vitamins and minerals. It's rich in thiamine, which is lacking in one-fifth of American diets, plus has substantial amounts of riboflavin, niacin and iron, all necessary to good health.

Like all meat, pork is virtually completely digestible, says Miss Krackhardt. In fact, it's one of the most completely digestible foods.

The belief that pork must be overcooked to be edible is also incorrect. It came from a fear that underdone pork might be infected with trichina organisms. However, these are destroyed at a temperature of less than 140-degrees F.

Of course, cook pork to the well done stage for a better flavor, but don't overcook it; a meat thermometer is your best guide. An internal temperature of 170-185 degrees F. indicates the roast is done to perfection, according to Miss Krackhardt. "Cook small roasts at an oven-temperature of 350-degrees F., but larger roasts at 325-degrees for better browning."

To give your meals some variety, select pork, a truly versatile meat, she adds. If pork chops are a family favorite, give them a real treat with inch thick pork chops. If you stuff them, make the incision from the bone side so you won't need to use skewers. For a lower calorie count, pan broil thin-cut pork chops; brown them uncovered without adding fat.

Easy to prepare and to carve, a fresh ham roast is a treat fit for guests or a special family occasion. It's practically boneless and has a coating of fat to make it self-basting. Try sprinkling herbs such as rosemary or sage over it for a delightfully different taste.

Many boned and rolled cuts are available that can be treated like a fresh roast ham. You can stuff them with a bread dressing or—for fewer calories—with sauerkraut or apples.

If you like stuffed pork, ask your butcher for a pork cushion. It's a square, flat piece, made by removing the bones from a pork shoulder; this provides a pocket for stuffing.

So-called country spare ribs are cut from the back rib-end of the loin; they're meatier than the spare ribs—and they have a delicious flavor. Try cooking them with your favorite barbecue sauce in the pressure cooker for quick, good eating.

In fact, whatever cut of pork you buy—fresh or smoked—you'll have good eating. And good nutrition.

Don't Neglect Lime

Maintaining a well limed soil is one of the least expensive jobs on the farm, according to Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware. But when lime is neglected, crops don't receive the value of other plant nutrients, and the cost of neglect can be high.

Of course, there is no such thing as instant soil fertility, he explains. If soil is not well limed, it is almost impossible to make it so in a single year. Lime can be applied quickly, but it may require three or more years to mix the soil and make desirable chemical changes.

Concern over losing some of the benefits of lime, because of short-term leases, often causes farmers to ignore the lime needs of their crops, adds Mitchell. Actually, growers seldom recover more than 50 to 70 percent of the nitrogen or 30 percent of the phosphorus in the year they are applied. Yet many farmers continue to apply more nitrogen and phosphorus. The same philosophy should be applied to the use of lime.

In addition, improved cultural practices, larger farming units and lower profit margins have resulted in growers applying more nitrogen, planting earlier and using little or no fertilizer in the planter. All of these practices require the additional use of lime. Phosphorus is relatively unavailable in cold, acid soils and the release of nitrogen in the soil to crops is slowed down. For every 100 pounds of nitrogen applied as urea, ammonia nitrate or anhydrous ammonia about 200 pounds of lime are needed to balance the added acidity.

Field tests conducted last year near Millsboro reveal the value of lime. In one plot no lime or fertilizer was applied and the corn yield was 104 bushels per acre. The second plot received 200 pounds of nitrogen, 30 pounds of phosphorus and 60 pounds of potash per acre; the corn averaged 112 bushels per acre. And a third plot received the same amount of fertilizer plus half a ton of lime—corn averaged 135 bushels per acre.

Good soil fertility remains the key to top economic yields, Mitchell points out. And lime plays an important role in developing this fertility.

Honey Bee 4-H Club

The Honey Bee 4-H Club had their first meeting of the new year. It was held Jan. 15, at the home of Ella Teed, our co-leader. Two adults and eleven members attended the meeting. Roll was called and dues were taken. New and old business were discussed.

The club discussed the coming of the talent show and the Reddi Foods Contest. We plan to enter both. We also talked about the coming events of the new year. Such as junior broiler, strawberry plant distribution, dress review and other demonstrations.

Refreshments were served by Susan Holloway.

Dairy Farm Management Short Course Planned

Decision making, land use, investments and management progress will be examined at a dairy farm management short course Feb. 16-18, according to Dr. W.R. Hasseltine, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware.

The purpose of the course is to help Delaware dairymen increase their profit potential says Hasseltine. Students will receive 12 hours of classroom work devoted to the economics of production and marketing of milk.

Dr. Irving F. Fellows, professor of agricultural economics at the University of Connecticut, will be in charge of the program. He will be assisted by W. T. McAllister, extension economist and Hasseltine.

Classes will be held from 10:15 a.m. to 2:45 p.m., in the Highway Adm. Building, Dover. Fee for a three-day program, limited to 20 students, is $20.

mist at the University of Delaware. Under the Farmland Assessment Act of 1968, landowners can have agricultural land assessed on the basis of its income producing capacity rather than its current market value.

But in many instances, Delaware farmland is already assessed at fairly reasonable rates, notes McAllister. Where this is the case, the farmer probably will not find it advantageous to have his land assessed under the 1968 act.

On the other hand, some farmland close to cities and industrial developments may be assessed at a high rate based on the land's value for nonfarm use. In this case, it would be worthwhile for the owner to determine if he can benefit from a reassessment under provisions of the new law. Landowners can do this by requesting an application form from the county assessor. Since the assessment rate is based on how this land is used and its quality, a landowner should locate his land on soils maps in the county map and the suggested assessment rates for each qual-

Lake Forest Trims Smyrna And Dover

Art Refosco's Lake Forest High basketball Spartans easily defeated Smyrna at home but barely got by Dover High's Senators in an away contest. The Spartans have an 8-0 record, as of this writing. If they can beat Caesar Rodney at Camden - Wyoming on Tuesday, Jan. 27, they will enter the second half of the regular season with a 9-0 log and will have all of the top teams behind them except Milford and Seaford.

Milford, 9-0 at this writing, will be at Lake Forest this Friday night. It should be a barn-burner with the nod going to Lake Forest, if both teams are in top form. We hope Milford doesn't catch the locals on an off night, since we feel Lake Forest has the best material in the Henlopen Conference.

Smyrna arrived at the Lake Forest gym with two "name" cagers, Emerson Johnson and "Bobby Taylor" and a multi-colored warmup basketball. They regaled the watchers with a few Harlem Globetrotter tricks, but once the contest started Lake Forest's Ken Copper was the smoothest player on the coast. Copper blocked shots, rebounded, dribbled, passed off for baskets in a another do-everything performance.

Chris Moore thoroughly outplayed Smyrna's Johnson and led all scorers with 25 points. Lake Forest has two all-star prospects in Moore and Copper, but don't expect two players from the same, small downstate school on a first-team all-Delaware unit, no matter how much they might deserve the honor.

John McCloskey banked in ten buckets, while compiling 22 points. Mike Fisher had 11 points and Dan DeMora 10. Lake Forest's starting five missed only two free throws of eighteen attempted. The pros don't shoot that well.

AT DOVER

Dan DeMora was in foul trouble early and the Spartans weren't playing up to their potential in the first half. But the second half was all Lake Forest, as the Spartans outclassed the Senators 35-21, to overcome a 10-point halftime deficit and go on to win 61-37.

Dover has a good team but with three losers already is obviously not in the Spartans' class. It seems that Lake Forest does not play nearly as well on the road as they do at home. For instance, the Spartans' tough games, thus far, have been against Dover, Sussex Central and Woodbridge, all road games. Only 1-6 Dover Air was handled easily in an away tilt.

Ken Copper took game honors at Dover pouring in 25 points. Chris Moore tallied 12 and Mike Fisher added 10.

Chipman Cagers Do Well Against Tough Foes

Jim Blades' W. T. Chipman School basketball team continues to do a fine job against very tough opposition. The locals have a record of two victories and three defeats, at this writing.

Woodbridge downed Chipman 52-20 but had eight players taller than Blades' biggest boy, five feet, eight inch, Paul Scott. The Sussex Countians had one cager, who was 16 years old and stood six feet, one inch.

At Easton, Chipman stayed close most of the way before bowing to a taller, classier aggregation, that had not lost in two years.

Chipman gave away a height advantage to Dover Air, also, especially since Scott didn't play, but prevailed by a 39-25 score.

Dunbar, Teat and Pruitt are leading Chipman in scoring often getting into double figures.

Grappers Beat CapeHenlopen, Lose to Sussex Central

Cape Henlopen High's wrestlers, in their first season of competition, had no chance against Lake Forest's High's Spartans and went down to a 43-10 defeat.

Sussex Central downed Lake Forest 33-13 to leave the Spartans with a 3-1 log.

Georgetown High, under Coach Herman Bastianelli, was practically unbeatable.

Now, bolstered by talent from another wrestling school, Millsboro, we see a little hope for most of the Henlopen Conference schools for years to come, as far as championship chances are 2 concerned. Sussex Central and Bastianelli will be tough as long as they are together. Against Cape Henlopen's tyros, the Spartans of Elliott Workman (a former state champ under Bastianelli) and Tom Muchleisen, were in command all the way.

After Tommy Clarke's pin victory in the first period, the locals never trailed. Other falls were scored by Chuck Hurd, John Brown, Roger Klapp, Roger Jarrell, Robin Callahan and Lenny Donovan.

Sussex Central was a nag of another hue. The Spartans did well to take three bouts from that perennial powerhouse. Coach Bastianelli grows his own grapplers. SC was represented in two of the first three classes by sons of the wily mentor.

Clarke and Patten, Lake Forest's first two matmen, showed a lot of courage in lasting the distance. Both are first-year performers.

Sach was pitted against a vastly more experienced foe. Clarke met D. Bastianelli and Patten met Roger Bennum, a veteran of several years, who was either a state champ or close to it, on one of his annual trips to Newark.

Mark Bastianelli pinned Charley Baynard in the third bout, in the first period, before Chuck Hurd swamped Besche, 18-2, for Lake Forest's first victory of the evening.

Roger Klapp and Louis Kemp gave Spartans fans a few happy minutes by racking up back-to-back pins, before Sussex Central closed out the evening with two pins and a decision.

McKnett Funeral Home waltzed to the second third championship by downing a four-man Penn Central team Tuesday night. The McKnett quintet put together a real team effort in taking the title, with Don Garey leading the way with a grand 560 series, including a great 224 single game. Bernard Coffman and Paul Baker made good offensive efforts but could not dent the fine defensive output by McKnett's, and saw Penn Central drop into ninth place
