

City Looks With Favored Eye On Plan For Mobile Home Park on Trane Land

The way may be paved for the installation of a park for mobile homes on the Trane Foundation land, it was revealed at the June meeting of the City Council Monday evening.

Dudley Willis, who has an option on the Trane land and lands of Kirby & Holloway Transportation and Ernest E. Killen, showed the Council a map of the proposed improvements.

Some Council members thought the plan a good one because "it would bring people into the community."

The territory comprises some 50 acres, more or less, in an area bounded by East Street, South Street, U.S. 13, southbound lane, and Benson and Killen lands to the south.

Some 40 acres of the tract were purchased by the Trane Company, manufacturer of heat transfer and air-conditioning equipment, in 1958. Later, it was transferred to the Trane Foundation from which Willis secured the option.

The Newark resident, a consulting engineer, hopes to sell it to a developer for a mobile-home park. The developer would make all improvements. Willis, with an off-the-cuff estimate, figured it would cost a million dollars to develop.

The City's planning and zoning commission will look over a prospectus for the park shortly and will make its recommendations to the City Council. If approved by the City, a public hearing will be held and an ordinance will have to be passed to permit mobile-home parks in the City limits.

The Council, which had a busy night, but which rapidly dispensed of its business, also looked ahead on how to use the state's Municipal Aid appropriation it usually receives in July. After Mayor Burton E. Satterfield thought Milby and Mispillion Streets, west of West Street, needed improvements, it was also mentioned Weiner Avenue, Harrington Avenue and Liberty Street from Dorman Street to West Street, also could stand a face-lifting. The Mayor then appointed a street committee of Councilmen William Vincent Second Ward, Jack Apt, Sixth Ward, and Wilson G. Bradley, First Ward, to work with Dale Phillippi, superintendent of public works, to consider what work had to be done.

Turning to his clean-up program for May, the Council, on the Mayor's recommendation, approved additional collection of trash on Mondays to June 15.

It was stipulated, however, trash should be in a container which could be

Space Effort To Be Explained At Chicken Festival

Visitors at the 1970 Delmarva Chicken Festival may learn more about the space age in a demonstration presented by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The NASA Spacemobile with accompanying lecture - demonstration will be presented in the library building on the Maryland State College campus in Princess Anne on Thursday, June 11, the first day of the festival. Presentations will be at one hour intervals throughout the day in the air-conditioned library auditorium. There will be no admission charge.

The demonstration will be presented by professional science educators who are authoritatively informed on the space sciences. Models of launch vehicles and spacecraft, mechanical and electronic devices, and other audio-visual materials and experiments are a part of the spacemobile demonstration equipment. These aids will be used in demonstrating basic scientific principles and how these apply to the programs of NASA.

For instance, the lecturer traces the history of rocketry, from the early efforts of the Chinese in the 13th century, liquid fuel rocket research of America's Dr. Robert Goddard, and to the more recent success of the Germans and their V-2 missile. The scientific principles of orbits and propulsion will be discussed along with the men whose discoveries and vision paved the way to our present day exploration of outer space. They will describe the benefits of communications and weather satellites, the scientific derived from current scientific satellites, the hopes for those launched in the future, and the aims of international cooperation through space research.

The mechanics of the flight of projects Gemini and Apollo plus an insight into the biological problems of man in a space environment will be explored.

Unique in the United States, the Longwood program is designed to give scientifically oriented graduates a background of experience and education to suit them for management positions with botanical gardens, parks and beautification programs.

The programs at the University will provide a wide variety of courses in fields related to horticulture and landscaping. Longwood Gardens will serve as a summer workshop where students may develop a perspective of the range of activities of a public garden with experiences in the problem of management as well as in other phases of horticultural science.

County Benefit Statistics

Of the social security beneficiaries living in Kent County, 4716 are retired workers and their dependents. Another 1862 are receiving benefits as the survivors of workers who have died, and 657 are getting benefits as disabled workers or as their dependents.

Although the majority of social security beneficiaries are older people, about one out of every four is under age 60. In the State of Delaware, 13,647 people under age 60 are collecting social security payments each month. The 7890 who are under 18 are receiving payments because a working father or mother has died or is getting social security disability or retirement benefits.

Of the 1133 who are 18 through 21 years of age, most are getting students' benefits under a provision which permits the continuation of a child's benefits past his or her 18th birthday, and up to age 22 if he or she is attending school full time.

A number are the children of retired, disabled, or deceased workers who became disabled before they reached 18 and who will probably never be able to go to work and become self supporting. The benefits of these young people, severely handicapped by physical or mental disabilities, will continue indefinitely and benefits are also payable to their mothers if the disabled son or daughter is in the mother's care.

Another small but significant group of youthful social security beneficiaries are those

DPI Fund Drive A Huge Success

More than 4000 individuals and businesses invested a total of $169,903 in the 1970 fund drive to carry on the industry improvement and product promotion activities of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, it was announced last week. This was $24,303 over the goal of $145,600 set at the beginning of the fund drive on April 1, said Donald Wilber of Salisbury, Md., general chairman for the annual drive.

Wilber made his report of the successful conclusion to the fund drive at the annual $100-A-Plate Booster Day Dinner held May 19 at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center in Salisbury, Md. A near capacity crowd of more than 1800 people attended.

Of the total number of investors in the fund drive, more than 53 percent were broiler growers, according to a count made following the dinner, said Wilber, a grower himself and chairman of the poultry association's broiler grower committee.

Honored at ceremonies during the banquet last week were 24 of the Peninsula's outstanding broiler growers, a Delmarva poultry company official, and a Salisbury businessman and civic leader.

TELEPHONE COMPANY SEEKS HIGHER RATES

The Diamond State Telephone Company said Tuesday rising costs and the pressures of inflation required the company to seek higher rates for the first time in 12 years to meet "unyielding obligations" to customers, employees and investors.

"We can no longer continue to absorb these increasing costs without increasing our rates," Diamond State general manager Harvey W. Froehlich told the Delaware Public Service Commission on the opening day of hearings on new telephone rates which went into effect under bond May 7.

Froehlich said the increases were needed to offset higher operating costs, and to attain an earnings level which would attract investor dollars.

He urged the PSC to give "full and proper" recognition to the current fair value of the company's plant investment. Froehlich said he believed this to be "one of the most important matters for the commission's consideration in this proceeding — indeed, more important now than ever to offset the adverse effect of today's level of inflation."

The rate changes would add an estimated $2.8 million to the company's gross annual intrastate revenues — an increase of 6.2 percent on total revenues and 9.1 percent on an intrastate basis.

The increases range from 45 to 85 cents a month for basic residence service and from $1.30 to $3 a month for basic business service. Also included are increases for new connections, moves, changes, supplemental services and channels.

Swimming Pool Alert !!

Thing of buying a swimming pool this spring or summer?
 Before taking the plunge, the Better Business Bureau suggests you make sure that plunge will be into pure cool water - not "hot water."
 Advertisements offering pools for $495 or $585 or $798, all using the same illustration - are now appearing. Some are even offering free gifts as well. Another type of advertisement reads "wanted - residential sites for swimming pools" and offers inducements for prime locations.

 Typical experiences of those answering this type of advertisement are:
 1. Advertised pool was not suitable for their home.
 2. Pool was guaranteed for only one year.
 3. Pool had a very cheap pump.
 4. Liner was only 10-gauge vinyl.
 5. Pool would have to be drained every year, the liner removed and the pool painted.
 6. Customer had to do his own excavating.
 7. Lumber was not made from the redwood, which is hard, but from the "outside" of the redwood, which is softer and requires constant maintenance.
 There are many swimming pool construction companies that spend thousands of dollars advertising pools they don't want to sell. In other words, the salesman does everything in his power to discourage the prospective buyer from purchasing the advertised pool.
 The prospective buyer is instead offered a "superior" pool priced at $4,995 which just happens to be last year's model and can be sold for $2,500; $2,690; or $3,100, depending on the salesman's judgement of what the traffic can bear - even going down to $2,000 in some cases.
 Another approach is to claim that the $4,995 pool is fair traded and the price cannot be reduced. However, if the buyer will allow the company to place a sign on his lawn advising people that his pool had been built by this company, then allowances are available at $10 a day for 30 days. An additional $100 would be allowed for each prospective buyer submitted, whether they purchase or not, with a limit of 20. This would bring the price down by $2,300 - an opportunity hard to pass up.

 There are many reputable contractors who do not use "bait and switch" sales tactics of advertising.
 When reading advertisements or listening to a sales pitch, consider:
 1. Are the details clearly stated?
 2. Is the pool pictured the one discussed?
 3. Does it state the exact swimming area?
 4. What are the extras?
 5. Will it meet code requirements?
 6. Is the seller licensed to do business in the area?
 7. Who has to make applications for necessary building permits?
 Before you sign a contract for a swimming pool, the contractor's past performance should be thoroughly checked. Present users of the chosen pool should be contacted.
 Call the Better Business Bureau before you invest in that dream of owning your own private pool in your own back yard.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Helberton
 Moving into summer and the vacation season, June will bring a short but attractive list of foods in plentiful supply.
 Leading the plentiful list for June will be milk and dairy products. Once again you will hear and see "June is Dairy Month." Milk production will be at the seasonal peak in June and prices for milk and dairy products will be more favorable.
 Increased outdoor activities, barbecues, picnics, al fresco entertaining - encourage the use of whole milk, buttermilk, skim milk, yogurt, cheese, ice cream and frozen dessert dishes. When buying these delectable foods be sure to check their "shelf dates." Some of these codes are quite difficult to untangle, so if you cannot read the series of numbers, ask a clerk to unravel the code. This is one way to make sure you are buying fresh food.

 Honey will be a co-feature item on the month's list. The 1969 honey crop came to a record 283 million pounds. Grocer's shelves are now well-stocked and many tempting features will lure you on to trying his really good natural sweet in more than one use. Use it as a spread, syrup or sweetener; for baked products, cereals, glazes for vegetables, chicken, or pork, and a host of other delectable dishes.
 Refreshing and tasty, convenient also, canned apple sauce continues in heavy supply. Stocks were recently record large and prices remain attractive. Chilled applesauce makes a fine dessert on a warm day - in fact, have you ever served slightly frozen applesauce that is whipped just before serving with a whipped topping - delicious! Use applesauce also as a garnish for meat and poultry dishes, and as the important ingredient in a variety of cakes and pasties.
 Eggs also continue on the plentiful list, with June production expected to be about three percent above a year ago. Prices are expected to be lower than they were then also.
 Unexpected pleasure awaits as more and more top quality watermelons come to market. Sweet corn will be in good supply too. Heavy shipments from Florida are now rolling into markets all over the East. Both popular favorites will add to the joys of the month's many festivities - whether it be a barbecue or a graduation party, a hot day's refreshment or any meal's component.

The ARMY GREENIE

For children of all ages everywhere, games are a common language. This concept is being put to good use by the men of the 4th Infantry Division in Vietnam. They have been using games to teach American customs to Montagnard children and as a means of getting closer to them and establishing contact. Tag, hopscotch, sing-alongs, swinging on swings and, especially, basketball, have proved big hits. "The kids catch on fast," says Specialist Four Roger Armstrong of Rockford, Ill. "They pick up the rules and in no time are dribbling and faking like old pros." The Montagnard boys take turns showing the Americans their games, too. The international language of games seems to be a sure-fire way of bringing people closer together.

Help For Hogs
 Here's another story on how American ingenuity is helping our Vietnamese friends. Over in Cam Ranh Bay, American Civil affairs officers and veterinarians found the hogs being raised by the local Vietnamese to be of pretty poor quality. Result: American know-how and scientific knowledge were shared with local farmers for an improved product. The vets explain modern methods of hog raising, and they inspect

Twin Anniversaries
 The year 1970 has a significant meaning to members of the Army Nurse Corps. Not only will the Nurse Corps celebrate the 69th anniversary of its founding during 1970, but the Army nurses will also be celebrating the 150th anniversary of the birth of Florence Nightingale. The original "Angel of Mercy" was born on May 12, 1820 and lived to the ripe old age of 90. Today, 5,000 Army nurses continue the tradition started by Florence Nightingale. If, by the way, you are a registered nurse, or are studying nursing or plan to do, why not visit us and find out what the Army has to offer you in the way of pay and scholarship opportunities so that you might further your professional development.

Facts About The Army
 Did you know:
 -That Army engineers built the Washington Monument? They completed the job on December 6, 1884.
 -That you should always include the social security number of servicemen on the envelope when writing them? It speeds mail delivery.
 -That Army Captain Mel Pender, world record holder of the 70-yard dash and 1968

Facts About The Army
 —That the first American medical textbook was authored by a surgeon with the colonial troops in the Revolutionary War? He was Dr. John Jones.
 —That Apollo 11 and 12 astronauts ate meals on the moon that were developed for them by the Army's Natick (Mass.) Laboratories?
 —That the Army's experience in evacuating the wounded by helicopter might lead to the use of helicopters for evacuating highway accident victims in the United States? The Defense Department and other government agencies are studying the possibility.

Inflatable Hospitals
 Inflatable field hospitals have proved so successful in Vietnam that the Army's surgeon General has called for the eventual conversion of all tent field hospitals to this type. Called MUSTS — for Medical Uni, Self-Contained, Transportable — but also known affectionately as "inner tubes" and "rubber quonsets", the units can be packed and transported on standard trucks anywhere they are needed. Each inflatable unit has a total floor space of 206 square feet and has a self-contained air-conditioning and heating system, is well-lighted and has a plastic-like floor, easy to keep clean. In Vietnam, complex and delicate surgical operations have been performed in them. The Army is currently looking into other applications of the MUST idea, such as for field kitchens, and bathroom-shower complexes.

House Passes 4 Amendments To Constitution

A modernized constitution for Delaware was approved Tuesday by the House of Representatives in the first of four legislative tests it must pass before becoming Delaware's fundamental law.

The document, technically an amendment to the existing constitution, required affirmative votes by two-thirds, or 26, of the representatives. It received 35.

Rep. Jerome N. Unruh, R-Oessa, cast the only opposing vote. Three representatives were absent.

The Constitution change, H. B. 711, now goes to the Senate, where it also requires a two-thirds vote. Next year it must pass both houses of the legislature again. If approved in this second leg — and not successfully challenged in court — it would take effect July 1, 1973.

Tuesday's votes ended three days of debate and behind-the-scenes compromise in which four amendments were tacked on the bill. Twenty other amendments were proposed, but were defeated or stricken.

The amendments adopted.

—Reduce the voting age from 21 to 19.

—Set limits of 17 to 21 for the Senate's membership (now 19), and 35 to 41 for house membership (now 39).

—Establish the end of the voter registration period at 30 days before election day. It now is 45 days.

—Incorporate a "conservation bill of rights" in the preamble.

House Speaker George C. Herring III, R-Wilmington, sponsored of the bill, urged the defeat of many of the amendments offered on the ground that they would revise, instead of merely change the present constitution. The Delaware Supreme Court in March ruled that constitutional convention must be held if "extensive alterations in the basic plan and substance" of the existing document were made.

The House Tuesday defeated a second attempt to constitutionalize state aid to parochial and other private elementary and secondary schools.

An amendment sponsored by Rep. Joseph H. Murphy, R-Brookside, would have permitted the legislature to "provide by law for the purchase of secular nonreligious educational services from non-profit, nonpublic elementary and secondary schools in compliance with the public attendance law for the benefit of students attending such schools."

Rep. David S. Benson, R-Graylyn Crest, called the amendment "an attempt to get through the back door what could not be brought through the front door with the house amendment H.A. 2, defeated previously, would have allowed the assembly to provide for the "health safety and secular education" of the parochial schools.

Mrs. Joan C. Wright said she thought it unfair to subject representatives to criticism by forcing a vote on the amendment before they had time to consider the issue. She was one of 15 members of the House who abstained from voting when Murphy's amendment was defeated with four favorable votes, 17 nays and three absent.

Debate swirled around this amendment offered by Rep. W. Neal Moerschel, R-Dover. "Every citizen shall have the right to use sufficient force as is necessary to protect his person, property and household from a malicious invasion."

Billingsley's fellow Republican, George Jarvis, said the measure was "obviously and flagrantly directed toward the current vogue of pollution control," and said that the constitution "could easily be struck out because of this one amendment."

The Billingsley measure would have directed the General Assembly to "provide by law for the conservation, enhancement, improvement and protection of the natural environment, natural resources and natural beauty of this state."

Billingsley's fellow Republican, George Jarvis, said the measure was "obviously and flagrantly directed toward the current vogue of pollution control," and said that the constitution "could easily be struck out because of this one amendment."

Moerschel said this would be a simple broadening of constitutional guarantees against unreasonable search and seizure. Rep. Sidney Balick, D-Wilmington, said it would be a revision and consequently could cause the entire constitution to fail in a court test.

The amendment failed with 15 yes, 15 no, 7 not voting and 4 absent.

The conservation bill of rights was to have consisted of two amendments, one introduced by Minority Leader Jacob W. Zimmerman, D-Dover; the other by Rep. John G. S. Billingsley, R-Newark.

Zimmerman's amendment to the preamble passed with 35 favorable votes, Billingsley's amendment failed with only four favorable votes.

FENCE TALK

Hallelujah! Your county agricultural agent at last gets permission to return to his office after being away for seven months because of a serious stroke. The doctors say up and down the long stairs once a day, or in effect, a half day in the office. This means we will keep the Moore's Lake Branch of the Kent County Extension office active for quite awhile yet. A Britisher might say: "Bully!"

We all owe Francis Webb, our assistant agent; Mrs. Marion MacDonald, our Youth agent; Mrs. Jean Cranston and Mrs. Claudia Holden, our home economists, our genuine thanks for their help in driving ahead with the extension program for Kent County.

Now we're all anxious for the Delaware State Fair among other things. The catalogue for exhibits is being mailed out. We hope you soon mail in your entries.

Most news stories seem to report unhappy events. So your county agent feels that he should comment on the sudden death of a local farmer, 4-H leader and parent while he was planting corn near Davis Corner, just east of Hartly.

Wilbur F. Scrutcheff was killed in his pick-up truck when it suddenly burned out because of an apparent fuel or oil leak and a spark. No one else was nearby at the time, so we'll never know for certain all the facts.

We do remind everyone not to carry fuels in an open can on the front seat where they may tip over when tapped. This is a common fault, and who has not been guilty? Some of us may even try to use a glass bottle for the job (but not true in this case).

Safety hints may seem tedious, but I'll risk that if the hints prevent another accident. Paint and label those fuel cans and store them in a safe place away from flammable materials.

Discussion by Francis Webb: Keep an eye out for army worn damage in your small grains and corn fields. These insects have caused some damage already in the county, so be on the outlook for them.

Many times the worms will be found in the field where the plants are the tallest and the most shaded areas. They do not prefer the hot sunny areas, so when checking for them keep this in mind.

If you are invaded by army worms and need recommendations for their control, just call the Kent County Extension office, 736-1448, and we will send this information to you.

Johnsongrass is a real problem in some areas around the county. Do not be foolish enough to let this plant grow and spread to new locations on your farm. When you first recognize this plant invading your fields, it looks harmless because it will only be one or two plants. But if you allow it to mature you will get double invasion the next year and from then on. What I mean is that Johnsongrass plants spread by two methods, one by rhizomes, secondly by seed. One way is bad enough, but when you have both rhizomes and seeds it makes it much more expensive and time consuming to control it.

Johnsongrass can spread from one plant to form many large infested areas on a farm in only a matter of 2 or 3 years. The best and most inexpensive time to control this pest is when you first see it.

If you would like to have information on how to control and what chemicals to use just write or call your county extension office. Kent County is P.O. Box 340, Dover, 19901, or phone 736-1448.

It Seems To Me

By Janet Reed
If bathing suit prices appall you, why not make your own? Some styles take such a small amount of fabric, you might even be able to use remnants on hand.

Almost any fabric can be used for a bathing suit, depending on the style of pattern you select. Ideal are polyester knits or heavy nylon knits that have body, but dry quickly and do not wrinkle. Colorfast fabrics are important since the suit will see a lot of sun.

may carry a limited supply of these but they are available.

If most of the pattern style appear to be for the young, slender crowd, keep looking. One-piece princess styles or other one-piece dress and pant styles are more becoming to those of us who haven't kept on that diet. You can modify a favorite dress pattern if you can't find the style you want.

Most suits will require a lining. Your choice will depend on the outer fabric, but lighter weight nylon or acetate tricot will work well. Cotten knits also are comfortable next to skin, but will take longer to dry when the suit is wet.

You can buy bra cups to sew into the lining or to pin in if you prefer. The pin in type can be removed to wear with other bathing suits.

Check on the type of elastic you use at waistline and legs of pants. Some are made especially for bathing suit use and are not damaged by chemicals in swimming pools.

If the actual techniques of making a bathing suit puzzle you, take time to look at some of the ready-to-wear ones for ideas. Also, notice prices and see how much you are saving by making your own.

And, why not make a cover-up to go with your bathing suit? You'll find crochet type materials by the yard — or pretty see-through voiles. For a heavier cover-up, try terry cloth or some of the other colorful but colorfast cottons.

You may have so much fun making beach wear you'll end up with several different outfits and dazzle everyone at the beach with the size and variety of your wardrobe.

4-H Club Talk

with Marion MacDonald

State land judging honor was won by Mike Baker, Greenwood, a Peach Blossom 4-H'er. Mike was backed up by fellow members Steve Mesibov, Houston and Junanne Jerread, Farmington. Robin Cahall also a Peach Blossom club member rated as an alternate. The land judging contest is held cooperatively between the University of Delaware's Cooperative Extension Service and the Soil Conservation Service.

Field crop judging recently found Steve Mesibov in first place followed by Joe Gibson second and Cheryl Warren third, both from Woodside Emeralds. In order of placing were also: Donald Hopkins, Peach Blossom; Gary Webb, Country Grove; Greg Worren, Woodside Emeralds; Charles Hudson, Paradise; Kenneth Carlisle, Woodside Emeralds; Mike Baker, Peach Blossom; and Danny Palmer, Fox Hall. These members are eligible to represent Kent County in the state contest held during the Delaware State Fair.

Our Reddy Foods Show will take place June 6 at the Delaware State Fairgrounds from 8 a.m. through noon. Seventy 4-H girls and boys will cook for top awards in petite, junior and senior divisions. A cooperative program provided by the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service, Delmarva Power and Light Company and Delaware Electric Cooperative.

Carpenter Ants Can Damage Homes

Notice small piles of unexplained sawdust around your home? If you do, carpenter ants may be at work, says Fronk E. Boys extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

Carpenter ants are a serious problem for many homeowners. They attack almost any type of wood frame structure, telephone poles or fence posts.

In most cases, carpenter ants enter the wood through small surface cracks and tunnel into the soft interior where they live and breed, points out Boys. Porches, steps, roofs and high moisture areas near kitchens and bathrooms are especially vulnerable.

Carpenter ants are usually black or black with a reddish-brown mid-section and are between one-quarter and one-half inch long. Unlike termites, they do not actually feed on wood. Ants can often be seen traveling to and from the nest, searching for food. The insects usually feed on common household sweets such as sugar, honey and cake crumbs. These ants are most active and usually cause the most damage during the summer months. In heated buildings, however activity may begin in early spring and extend well into the fall.

The first step in controlling carpenter ants is to locate the nests, says Boys. Nests may be outdoors, or in the house, within a wall, partition, under papers. Once a nest is located treat the area with a recommended insecticide.

If the nest is indoors, use liquid household insecticides such as two percent chlordane, or two percent malathion. Other materials, such as diazinon and dichlorvos (Vapona) can also be used indoors when formulated in a ready-to-use aerosol space spray. Use these insecticides only in areas where ants are a problem and never contaminate food, water or dishes cautions Boys.

Outdoors, apply a 5 to 10 percent chlordane dust to nest openings and around the foundation of your home. For spot treatments, use a two percent chlordane spray.

Get Beautiful Summer Blooms

For beautiful blooms this summer, give your flowers good care during their first few weeks in the garden, says Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Unless your soil is very rich most annual flowers will need extra fertilizer after they begin active growth. Sprinkle 5-10-10 fertilizer evenly along both sides of each row and work it into the top inch of soil. For quick action, water the garden thoroughly to dissolve nitrogen and move it down into the root zone.

Mulching will help reduce weed growth, keep the soil cooler and reduce water loss, he adds. Mulch your flower planting about the middle of June with grass clippings, licorice root, straw or peat moss. A two inch layer of material is sufficient.

Low, compact flowering plants are more attractive in a flower bed or border than most taller plants, points out Stevens. And tall plants may be broken during wind or rain storms.

To develop low, bushy plants that will produce a large number of flowers, wait until plants are five or six inches tall, then pinch about one inch off the main stem.

Several side branches will then develop. These may be pinched off when they are about four inches long.

Pinching is a particularly useful practice for limiting growth in the taller varieties of snapdragon and zinnia.

If you prefer a smaller number of large flowers over the mass of blooms of the double - pinched compact plant, pinch only once and allow four stems to develop on each plant. As the stems grow taller, remove side buds which develop in the angles of leaves. This will allow the top flower bud to grow large and have a long straight stem. Remove old flowers to allow continuous flowering.

Disbudding is an easy and fairly common technique for producing fine specimen blooms for flower shows and exhibits. Inspect plants every few days and remove side buds as soon as they are a half inch long. Buds will break off easily if they are pulled sideways on the stem. As stems grow taller, stake them for support.

Name Land Judging Winners

Mike Boker, a Kent county 4-H'er received first place honors in the seventh annual Delaware Land Judging Contest at Newark, according to Leo J. Cotnir, associate professor or agronomy at the University of Delaware. Steve Mesibov, a Kent county 4-H'er, and Eugene Henry, an FFA member from Laurel, placed second and third in individual competition.

The top three winners in the 4-H land judging division were Mike Boker, Steve Mesibov and Junanne Jerread, all of Kent county. Winners in the FFA division were Eugene Henry, Laurel, and Tim Evans and Ron Edwards of Newark.

In team competition, the Kent county team ran up 832 points to capture first place in the 4-H division, while New Castle county 4-H'ers had a total of 786 points for second place. In the FFA division, the Laurel team took top honors with 773 points followed by Newark with 737 points and Caesar Rodney with 660.

Contestants judged land on drainage, texture, structure and its ability to support a productive agriculture. Winners received plaques and will be recognized at the annual meeting of the Delaware State Association of Soil Conservation Districts. The land judging contest was sponsored by the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service, Future Farmers of America and the Delaware State Association of Soil Conservation Districts.

Budget-Saving Leftovers

Leftovers can perk up an ailing food budget — and perk up meals, too.

Letovers don't have to be so unappealing you'd rather throw them away than use them, according to Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension nutrition and foods specialist at the University of Delaware. A bit of easy menu magic can add a fresh taste and even appetite -appeal.

For instance, take leftover cooked vegetables. A gloomy prospect, you say? Not so. Mix them with raw fresh ones, such as cucumber or carrot slices, chopped celery, tomatoes, green pepper or shredded cabbage; top with a zesty dressing. One-two-three an eaten up has been.

Did you cook too many potatoes? Simply use the extras in a tasty potato salad, or pan-fry them, or bake them in a cheese sauce for quick and easy potatoes au gratin.

Extra carrots, peas or corn, will help make a delicious mixed vegetable casserole, or add flavor to a meat soup or stew.

Leftover cooked fruits can also be rejuvenated simply, Miss Kaackhardt says. Try them with small cream cheese balls, or grated cheese, or add a banana and sprinkle with plain or toasted coconut. Add a mixture to your next gelatin salad; or thicken the sauce and use the fruit as an ice cream topping or, depending on the fruit, as a topping for hot gingerbread. Meat is too expensive to throw away even a scrap. Top a tossed salad with cut strips of leftover ham, chicken, pork or veal; add some cheese strips or sliced hard-cooked egg and you have a chef's salad fit for the fussiest chef.

And, omelets make a perfect envelope for leftover small amounts of meat or vegetables. Eggs are an especially good food buy right now, so why not take advantage of their low cost and good nutrition?

It's easy to put together a colorful, meal-in-one casserole with leftover meats and vegetables, says Miss Krackhardt. Noodles or macaroni or fried noodles add bulk and for a quick and tasty sauce use a convenient can of tomato, mushroom or celery soup.

Cold roast beef is a familiar standby for sandwiches or a cold salad plate, but don't overlook leftover pork roast either. It's excellent for chop suey, sweet and sour pork or sandwiches. Grandmother used to "frizzle" or fry leftover ham slices for breakfast; it's still a delightful accompaniment for breakfast eggs or pancakes. In fact, ham goes so well with such a variety of vegetables or salads, you may want to bake a large one just for the leftovers.

Why not take a look through your cookbook to discover new uses for leftovers, asks Miss Krackhardt? They can really cut cooking chores, save on the food bill and, just as important, be a flavor treat.

Who said there's nothing duller than yesterday's dinner warmed over today?

Senior Center News

June, with its pleasant weather, is the ideal month to get back into the regular activities of the Center. A picnic is planned for Thursday, June 4, at Killen's Pond. Food will be furnished by the Center. If interested, contact 398-3908 by 10:30 a.m. In case of rain, the festivities will be held at the home on Fleming Street.

On June 9, Tuesday, Lillie Sullivan will act as chairman for the monthly birthday celebration. There will be seven birthday "girls" this month so plan to come out and make sure they enjoy their party.

Time of look at the thermometer again! The one at the Senior Center, that is! It continues to climb, the slowly donations are still being received and very much appreciated. We are somewhat ahead on the mortgage payments, thanks to the generosity of the community, and the hard work of the members themselves who have contributed $1300 thru their own efforts. The door is open to all every Monday, Tuesday, and Thursday. Pay us a visit.

The membership was saddened by the news of the passing of two of our members. Mrs. Blanche Bell was the oldest senior citizen of our group and one of the first to join after the Center opened in July 1967. Mrs. Alice Langrell had added much to the enrichment of our program being very talented in arts and crafts. She particularly enjoyed ceramics and produced many lovely pieces. Our sympathy is extended to the families of these two members.

Mrs. Bernice Johnson, and Mrs. Emmett Baker are at present, patients in the Millford Hospital. We wish them a speedy recovery.

Our director, Angela Johnston, will be attending the first annual conference of the Council of Aging of Delaware from June 4 thru June 6 at the Beach House in Rehoboth. Hot lunches are being served each regular meeting day at 12 noon. Come and enjoy the hospitality even though you may not be interested in the rest of the program.

There is a man's workshop open also with Sam Short as chairman of its activities.

There is something for everyone — yes — even you.

AN OPEN LETTER TO KENT & SUSSEX AREA RESIDENTS

Dear Kent and Sussex Area Resident:

The Kent and Sussex area has always been a fine place to live; but it is up to all of us to help it grow and become an even better home for ourselves and for our children. It is accepted that orderly industrial growth is one of the best ways to make an area grow and prosper. New jobs mean a better life for everyone.

In order to plan our industrial growth and to assist companies who are actively seeking new plant locations in the area, we are conducting an employment registration drive. We need to know how many people are presently available for manufacturing employment. Therefore, certain categories of Kent and Sussex area residents are asked to complete the form below. The four types of people are:

- (1) Unemployed persons desiring full-time work.
- (2) Part-time employed persons desiring full-time work.
- (3) Full-time employed persons who want to change jobs.
- (4) Full-time employed persons who now have to drive over 25 miles one way to work.

If you are one of these four classes of people, please take the very few minutes necessary to fill out the form below and mail it to:

Labor Study
Box 555
Georgetown, Delaware 19947

The information which you provide will be kept confidential, but will be summarized and made available to companies seeking plant locations in the area.

PLEASE REMEMBER THIS IS NOT AN EMPLOYMENT APPLICATION. It could, however, result in your being contacted in the future by new industries and, therefore, could mean a job for you. You can see why it is so very important for you to fill out and return the form. We urge your fullest cooperation in this most important project. It could well be the one thing which will get us new industry.

Sincerely,
Paul K. Weatherly, President
Delaware Technical & Community College

LET'S TALK BUSINESS
As a businessman myself, I'm aware of how vital good communications is to good business. And my point today is simple: If you are a businessman, it is quite possible we can be of help in ways you didn't even know about.

Three helpful services
We make available, as part of our service, the advice of a Communications Consultant. He'll diagnose your communications set-up to see if it has kept pace with your firm's growth. If you need present equipment removed, he'll not hesitate to tell you that either.

Sometimes, we might recommend the services of a Phone-Power specialist. (Phone-Power — that's our name for planned, profitable use of the phone for business needs.) This specialist's recommendations could lead to an improved approach to your marketing problems. One thing you can be sure of is that his suggestions will be practical... and profitable.

Finally, I'm inviting you to share the know-how of our Data Communications specialists. An intensive survey is just the beginning of our service here. By the way, don't make the mistake of assuming your business is too small to enter the Computer Age. Among other things, we're experts in small data communications systems for small businesses.

Call on us
Call on us not just for these personal services, but also for a wide variety of communications equipment. Equipment ranging from a Dataspeed® printer that prints out information at 1200 words a minute, all the way down to an automatic Card Dialer—very simple, and very practical if you call certain numbers often.

Whatever your needs and whatever the size of your business, it just makes good sense to call on your phone company for communications advice. After all, communications is what we're all about.

Moore One-Hits Concord In Tourney Play

Chris Moore and Lake Forest's Spartans blanked Concord High 6-0 in the Delaware Interscholastic Baseball Tournament, on Saturday.

The upstate Raiders didn't do any raiding in the contest played on the University of Delaware's south field. Moore gave up only a last-inning single after his mates had scored all their runs in the second and third innings.

The Spartans seven-hit attack was led by Jim Dill and Mike Fisher with two hits each. Catcher Mickey Chaffinch laced a long, run-scoring riple.

Tournament favorite, McKean High survived a rocky contest with St. Elizabeth's and will probably throw their ace, Steve Kendall, at the Spartans in the semi-final round this Saturday.

We hope it's Dover since Sussex Central has already been eliminated from the state tournament and would have all its hurlers rested for the Spartans. Dover, like Lake Forest, is still in the state title play.

The association's 1970 award as Delmarva's Distinguished Citizen of the Year went to John Edward Burris of Milford. He is vice president of the processing department for Bayshore Foods, a division of Kane-Miller.

The association's Medal of Achievement for distinguished service to the Peninsula's poultry industry was awarded to Jerry Valliant of Salisbury, former mayor and president of City Council of Salisbury, and formerly head of a truck sales and supply firm here.

At the dinner, also, Otis Esham of Salisbury, a former poultry association president, reported that a second industry award was being made the next day at a luncheon in Ocean View, in honor of Irving B. Hudson of Selbyville, a pioneer in establishing the auction system of marketing poultry which helped the Peninsula become the nation's broiler area. Mr. Hudson was unable to attend the Salisbury dinner. Edgar Quillen of Berlin, Md., poultry association vice president, paid tribute at the banquet to the 24 Peninsula broiler growers who were honored as outstanding this past year among Delmarva's 4000 growers. They included six men, two women, seven husband and wife teams and one partnership of two women. Each grower or grower team received an engraved silver tray.

1970's outstanding broiler growers are: from Delaware - Richard Culver, Laurel; Mrs. Ray Dukes, Seaford; Mrs. Merrill Evans, Selbyville; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Henry, Laurel; L. Boyd Lukert, Laurel; Wayne Pepper, Georgetown; and Mr. and Mrs. Colvin Scott, Millsboro.

Prior to the awards, William O. Hudgins, of Federalburg, Md., president of the Delmarva Poultry Industry association, made a brief report of association activities for the dinner guests, and noted that the work of the association is being restructured "so that it will be of even greater service to the Peninsula's broiler industry during the important decade of the 1970's when the nation's broiler-fryer industry is officially predicted to expand by 50 percent."

Final speaker for the evening was Dr. Frank Goodwin, of Gainesville, Fla., a widely traveled marketing consultant, lecturer, humorist, and educator who has spoken before audiences totaling more than two million people. He was introduced to the group by Frank Schubert of Salisbury. Speaker Goodwin's services provided by Vantress Farms. Earlier in the evening, Carroll Long of Salisbury, Md., led the dinner guests in group singing.

site and pond are two features which will have to be approved by a federal inspector before the final payment of a federal grant and state grant are made. The engineer believed the payment, figured at $33,000, should come in the fall.

In other business, the Council acted as follows:

Agreed to hire Frank Rifenburg on a full-time basis at $80 per week on the street gang.

Authorized Police Commission to iron out police salaries.

Authorized City Manager Kathryn Derrickson to investigate, and report at next meeting, a complaint, filed by Harry G. Farrow Sr., on sidewalk repairs at the home of Alice Font. He said the sidewalk was torn up several years ago when West Street was blacktopped. He said the cost of patching was $35.

Heard Chief of Police Franklin Rogers say $230 was owed the City by Magistrate Court 6 for May fines. With back figures, he estimated it would come to $1200. Under state law, defendants are allowed to pay their fines on time in certain cases.

Authorized the city manager to write owners of property adjoining Quillen's Dairy Market on the east and south the owner, Earl Quillen was willing to pay half the cost of construction of a proposed line fence, plus one-half the surveying cost.

The motion was made on Quillen's recommendation. The merchant appeared at Monday night's meeting after receiving a letter from the city manager claiming trash was blowing from the Quillen lot to theirs.

He added the fence would be first-class, would have no gates, and would cost about $850 for the complainants' share.

Authorized city manager to make a survey of business places to see if they were interested in having the City pick up their trash for a price. The action came after Acme Markets had asked the City to pick up garbage, estimated at a load a week.
