

New York City Pointer Wins Best-In-Show at Fairgrounds

The sixth annual dog show and obedience trial sponsored by the Mispillion Kennel Club, at the Delaware State Fairgrounds Saturday, proved to be the most successful event in club history. More than 700 dogs, representing 90 breeds, were judged from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., under ideal weather conditions.

A liver and white English pointer, Champion Showdowns Celebration, owned by Mr. and Mrs. William A. Hetz of New York City and handled by Erik A. Thomee, became the first dog to win two consecutive best-in-show awards at this event by repeating last year's triumph. Celebration has already won four best-in-shows this year, and 17 groups, making him the number 1 pointer in the country.

Local best-of-breeds winners included:

Ann M. Sullivan's Siberian husky, Champion Sno-Fame Koon's Chuka; Louise D. Kunkle's Cairn terrier, Criclake's Sun Kist Lady, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond E. Palmer's rottweiler, Bruno Vonder Unserheim; Martha R. Krueger's 15-inch beagle, Scruffy's black Diamond, qualified for its championship. He was bred by Martha C. Benson, of Wyoming and Martha Krueger.

Other group winners were:

Non-sportings — Walter and Emily Nealon's Standard poodle, Champion Nealoncock Knave of Hearts. Toy — Merrill and Helen Cohen's Yorkshire terrier, Champion Wildweid Prim N' Proper. Working — Chester and Ann Collier's Bouviers Des Flandres, Champion Naris Du Posty Arlequin. Terrier — Juan L. Huber's miniature schnauzer, Champion Mutiny Upoar. Hound — Mrs. Clark M. Draper and Patricia R. White's 13-inch beagle, Champion Drapers Lemon Drop Daisy Mae.

The highest-scoring dog in obedience award, was a hotly contested duel between David H. Boyer Jr., poodle, My Own Snowflake U.D., and Karin V. and Steven W. Jackson's miniature schnauzer, Dardane Nocturne C.D.X.

In the open "B" class both dogs scored 198 1/2 out of a possible 200 points, but the poodle was awarded first place following a run-off exercise. In the utility class which followed the miniature schnauzer, competing in this class for the very first time, again scored 198 1/2 to win, the poodle placing second, only one point behind. This necessitated another run-off between these two winners, this time to decide which would be highest-scoring dog in trial. This time the honor was awarded to the schnauzer.

Other obedience winners were: Catherine H. Burk's poodle, Kay's Little Cocoa, Novice "A"; Jane E. and Robert J. Squire's poodle, Janies Jingle Bells, Novice "B"; Mary Lou Hughes' German shepherd, Hughes' Black Raven C.D. Open "A".

Cereal Probe

Are you skeptical about the once taken for granted breakfast in a bowl after the recent cereal probe? With school starting soon, mother must decide if cereal and milk should start the day for her child.

The recent cereal investigations and reports leave many questions unanswered. Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, University of Delaware extension food specialist, recommends taking a close look at your family's whole diet and the part breads and cereals play in that diet.

Cereal products furnish energy for work and play. At the same time, they also add vitamins and minerals, in particular B vitamins and iron.

Although cereals do make a many-sided contribution to your diet, perhaps the most important nutrients are iron and the B vitamins, since these nutrients are furnished rather scantily by the other food groups.

Most cereals are enriched to replace the natural nutrients lost in the milling process when the outer surface of the grain is removed.

Don't underestimate the importance of bread and cereal in your family's diet. On the other hand, no single food product can supply all the daily requirement for nutrients, despite the ads.

A balanced diet — a good diet — comes from eating foods from the basic four, breads and cereals, meats, fruits and vegetables, and milk products.

Your decision should not be based on testimony that the cereal in morning is full of empty calories and therefore needs to be eliminated. Instead, ask yourself how this type of breakfast adds to the rest of the daily diet nutritionally.

Only a balanced diet from the basic four goods can give the total nutrition that your family needs. Cereals provide carbohydrates; carbohydrates give energy and they help your child work and play. But, don't expect a serving of cereal to fulfill all the vitamin requirements of the day.

School Schedule Announced

The Lake Forest School District announces the following daily schedules for the coming school year:

Classes will begin on Wednesday, September 9 on a full-day basis. The cafeteria will be in operation.

KENT CANT USE AFB

Kent County Levy Court learned Tuesday that it will not be able to develop a county airport in conjunction with Dover Air Force Base.

William C. Torbert, Levy Court president, received a letter Tuesday from Maj. Gen. Ernest T. Cragg, deputy director of aerospace programs for the Department of the Air Force.

Cragg wrote that, because of the stationing of the C5 Galaxie at Dover Air Force Base, "it would not be possible at this time to respond favorably to your request for joint use of Dover Air Force Base on a limited but continuing basis."

Cragg suggested that any municipal funds for the development of civil aviation facilities be used to improve one of the existing civil air fields near Dover.

The Levy Court has been involved since the beginning of the year in trying to get a county airport for Kent County. The General Assembly appropriated $100,000 for such an airport, to be matched by $100,000 from the county.

Gov. Russell W. Peterson and Brig. Gen. John B. Wallace, retired, a Levy Court consultant on the airport question, both have favored joint use of the base. However, it would have been limited to multi-engine aircraft and instrument rated pilots, and private pilots have objected to this.

The private pilots want to expand one of the three existing fields, or develop a new strip. The cost of a new field has been estimated at at least $500,000 for a 5,000-foot runway.

Exchange Student Arrives From Japan

Shegeto Kurihara of Japan has arrived to spend the coming year with the James Pizadilli family in Felton. His host family with Mr. and Mrs. Harry John Dill, Jr. met Shegeto in Philadelphia two weeks ago and gave him his first look at Delaware.

Mrs. Dill, president of the Lake Forest Chapter of the American Field Service, under whose auspices Shegeto was brought to the United States was especially happy to greet him. She has extended an invitation for an Open House in his honor at her home on Raughley Hill Road, Harrington, on Thursday, September 3, from 7 to 9. All officers and members of the AFS Chapter are urged to be present and students at Lake Forest High School and community friends in Felton and Harrington are cordially invited.

As in past years Shegeto will be a member of the Senior Class at Lake Forest and after Christmas will begin a round of speaking engagements with local clubs and organizations. Before he returns to Japan next summer he will have become a friend of many residents of the Lake Forest District.

Woodbridge Bids Double Estimate

Construction bids opened Monday night for an administration building for the Woodbridge School District were more than 100 per cent above the board's estimated cost of construction.

The low bid from the Newton Leasing & Finance Co. was $101,990. The E. S. Adkins and Co. of Salisbury, Md., bid $144,000 for the metal frame structure. The building, to be constructed on a 2-acre plot on Sussex County 588 between Greenwood and Bridgeville, would have 3,300 square feet of floor space.

Action was deferred on the bids by the board, which estimated the building would cost about $50,000. "We ordered a Cadillac and can only afford a Ford", commented William R. Conaway, a board member.

The board will attempt to negotiate with the apparently low bidder to make changes in the type of construction desired to reduce the cost.

FIREMEN GO TO BURRSVILLE FIRE

Harrington firemen were called at 2 a.m., Wednesday by a trash fire in a barn of Emanuel Buarque of near Burrsville. By the time the firemen reached the scene, the family had extinguished the blaze. Cause of the fire was not learned.

Harrington Raceway will shine its light on a quarter century of parimutuel harness racing when the East Coast's pioneer racing strip opens one week from tomorrow night.

The Kent County oval will have begun its Silver Anniversary of harness action Fri., Sept. 4.

Actually, harness racing, matinee style, has been conducted here for as far back as lots of us can remember and the oval has been the harness horse winter training capital of the Delaware, Maryland and Virginia area for more than 35 years.

Back in 1945 U.S. War Bonds were awarded to winning matineers in lieu of purses. In 1946 night parimutuel racing was initiated under the auspices of the Kent & Sussex Racing Association which conducted the events until 1966 when Harrington Racing Inc. was formed.

The original 20-day meeting was expanded to as many as 62 days in 1968.

In 1967 and 68 more than one million dollars was spent to build the beautiful all-weather clubhouse and dining area and to widen and resurface the excellent racing strip. The Quarter-Pole Lounge, available with closed circuit TV for private parties was opened in the spring of 1970. Valet parking was also introduced in the spring.

The first post, six nights a week this year will be 8 p.m. There will be nine races Monday through Thursday and ten races Friday and Saturday. The Big E, Daily Double and Exactas are programmed nightly.

On Thursday nights, ladies nights, a beautiful stainless silver service in the anniversary pattern, will be awarded to some lucky lady. There will be also a fashion show in the clubhouse.

Clubhouse dining, catered by the Harry M. Stevens Company, can be enjoyed every evening.

Train Hits Stalled Truck

A lumber truck was struck by a Penn-Central freight train after it stalled on a grade crossing at Houston about 10 a.m. Friday.

Preston Long of Georgetown, the truck driver, was taken to Milford Memorial Hospital in a private vehicle. Persons at the scene said Long was suffering from facial cuts but did not appear to be seriously injured.

Witnesses to the accident said Long stopped his truck at the crossing and started across in front of the approaching train. The truck stalled on the tracks and was struck on the right side.

Damage to the truck was said to be slight. The vehicle is owned by Johnson and Wimsatt, wholesale lumber and millwork dealers in Georgetown. It was heading for the Houston Lumber Co.

The train, loaded with coal and gravel, was heading east toward Milford.

Sale of Shopping Center To Chain Store Is Planned

Harold Quillen, owner of Quillen Shopping Center, told The Journal Tuesday an agreement had been signed to sell the center at an undisclosed price.

He added the agreement was made with a chain of variety stores, National 5

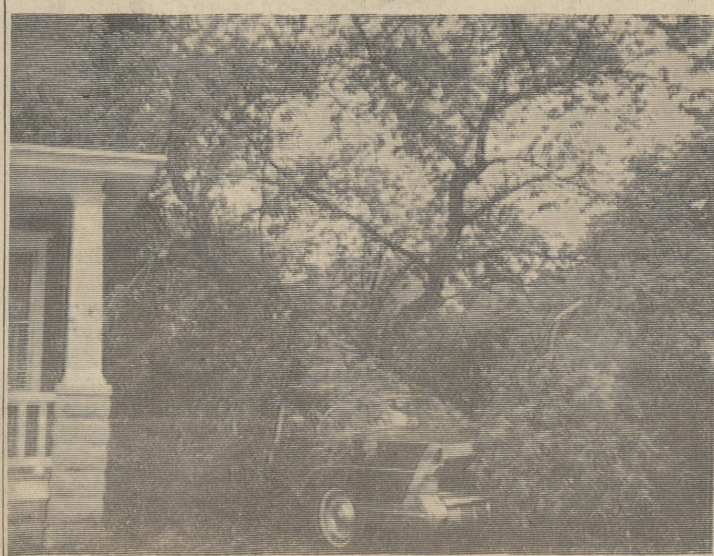

& 10c. Stores, which has an outlet in the center and whose headquarters are in Newark. The final sale is to be consummated Jan. 15, Quillen concluded.

The center was opened Thurs., Nov. 10, 1955, and was built by the late Horace E. Quillen, a brother of the present owner.

Several of the present day tenants were in the center when it opened.

It was the first shopping center in Delaware south of Wilmington.

Mrs. Helen Bain, president of the NEA, is expected to address the group. DSEA vice-president, Arthur Domke, Milford, will preside over the two day session.

Full explanations and briefings will be given on legislation (both state and federal) which affects education, the status of negotiations in Delaware, and on national trends in the field of teacher rights.

The leading experts in the fields of negotiations and public relations will be brought into the conference as instructors in addition to the DSEA staff.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Holberton

It's not quite time to put away the bats and balls and swimming togs, but—summer is on the way out. Maybe you are already planning your grocery list for the "back to school" crowd. Now is a good time to check your pantry shelf as well as the freezer, and start to plan ahead.

What about red meats for the month of September? Marketings of beef, pork, lamb and veal will exceed last September by a small margin. Because of the larger numbers of hogs on farms, September pork marketings will be 7 to 10 percent greater than a year earlier. Price declines have already started. Lamb marketings usually increase seasonally in late August and September. As of now the slaughter of lambs is heavier than expected. Thus, the average price for the rest of the year should be lower than was first anticipated. Supplies of beef will be larger but only by a small margin, and demand will probably equalize this. This all adds up to more red meat in September than we had at this time last year, and prices are expected to be down for pork.

Broiler-fryers will remain plentiful and of excellent quality. Whole-sale prices are reported to be holding at present low levels and may remain so during early to mid-September. Look for more turkeys on the market during September since this is the beginning of the big rush to market turkeys for the fall and winter. Production this fall will be up by about 6 percent over a year earlier.

Plenty of fresh fruit and vegetables will be available during the month. Among the items to check will be bananas, peaches, plums, cantaloupes, honeydews, pears, grapes, apples, cabbage, celery, squash, carrots, peppers, tomatoes, potatoes, onions, cucumbers, eggplant and sweet potatoes.

There are only four items on the plentiful foods list for September. They are good items though, ones that are staple foods and that belong on every pantry shelf. Included are canned peaches, canned applesauce, peanuts and peanut products, and dry split peas.

Canned peaches offer a basis for a variety of dishes from tempting salads to the California Clingstone peach atop a grilled hamburger. Applesauce—sometimes a side dish and sometimes a dessert dish—also offers good possibilities for applesauce cake or cookies with the "back to school" group. Supplies of canned freestone peaches are at the highest level since 1965 and stocks of canned applesauce amount to 28 percent more than a year ago.

Dry split peas are great for soup—a hearty meal and a good lunchtime item.

by Your U.S. Army Recruiter

Leave it to the U. S. Army to get out a sticky situation in great form.

It all took place in Korea at the Camp Casey Post Exchange. In the middle of a busy day, the PX ran out of pennies and the cashiers were at their wits end trying to decide how to give change.

Suddenly, a young soldier came up with the perfect solution. He eyed some penny bubble gum and said, "No sweat, I'll take my change in gum."

Latching on to a good idea, the cashiers began doling out the bubble gum in lieu of pennies.

Currently, the favorite song at Camp Casey is, "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles."

Women Generals

By now, I guess all of our readers know that the Army has its first female general. Elizabeth Hoisington, director of the Women's Army Corps, and Anna Mae Hays, chief of the Army Nurse Corps, recently received the stars of a brigadier general from Secretary of the Army, Stanley R. Resor and General William C. Westmoreland, Army chief of staff.

This means that women in the Army now have the opportunity to earn their stars. So, girls, for unlimited opportunities, look into service with the Women's Army Corps or the Army Nurse Corps.

Facts About The Army

Did you know: —That the U.S. Army operates three resorts in Germany for servicemen and their families? Located in the Bavarian Alps, the resorts offer everything from scuba diving to skiing, depending upon the season of the year.

—That as of March 31, there were 1,368,427 men and women in the army? On the same day in 1969, there were 1,508,307 men and women in Army greens.

A Special Medal

Ever hear of being awarded a medal and then having to wait until it's cast? That's what happened to Lieutenant Lionel A. Jackson.

The Virgin Islands Government awarded its newly created Medal of Honor to Lt. Col. Jackson, a Vietnam veteran and the highest ranking Army officer to come from the Islands.

The first recipient of the medal will have to wait until it's cast before appropriate presentation ceremonies can be arranged.

Legal Larceny

It sounds like a case of larceny, but it was all very legal when an "outlaw" and a "crook" took $700 from a "sheriff" at a U. S. Army Finance Office in Vietnam recently.

The occasion was a reenlistment ceremony. When Specialist 4 David L. Outlaw strolled into the 25th Infantry Division Finance Office at Cu Chi to take the oath, Major Louis M. Crook was on hand to assist with the ceremony.

After it was all over Specialist 5 Alan F. Sheriff, unit finance, handed over a $700 reenlistment bonus to Outlaw.

The "outlaw" and the "crook" were last seen "stealing away" from the finance office.

Question of the Week

Do servicemen and women receive free medical care for conditions that might have existed before joining the Army?

Yes, the free medical care for all members of the Army is a "no-strings attached" plan. Providing the service people met the necessary physical qualifications in their pre-enlistment examinations, they will be treated for any pre-existing conditions as well as any they might develop while in uniform.

What They Think

What do consumers think of farmers? This question was asked of about 1100 people in Delaware and Missouri. Of two surveys that were taken, it was shown that consumers have a kindly outlook toward farmers.

In the Missouri survey, nearly 1,000 state residents were polled by the University of Missouri in the latter part of 1968. In the Delaware survey conducted in February of the same year, 100 consumers were polled.

Both surveys indicated that the great majority of consumers don't blame the farmer for high prices. Other indications from the survey follow.

Two-thirds of large-city Missourians thought farmers had been under-rewarded for their work and investment. In Delaware, 56 percent thought farmers had not received a fair return on their investment, labor and knowledge, but 75 percent said they and their families would not be satisfied with what they believed the farmer's income to be.

Some interesting figures came out of the Delaware survey. Of those polled 81 percent said food prices were too high.

"If you believe food prices are too high, what is responsible?" This question was answered as follows: 59 percent general inflation, 14 percent store profits, 2 percent farmer's prices, 25 percent convenience food costs.

Congratulations to the consumers on this survey. They seem to have a pretty good understanding of the rising food cost problem. It's rewarding to see only 2 percent thought the farmer was causing the prices to soar.

Mr. Farmer knows otherwise. He knows what a struggle it is to get a decent price for his commodities. He has been struggling to get a decent price ever since the first produce was taken to market centuries and worlds ago.

Today is yesterday's future, and today, whether we want to admit it or not, Mr. Farmer is living more comfortably than he did in years past. Many conveniences which were usually thought of as only being available in the city are in common use today in the country, and country living gets better and better.

There is no doubt about it, everyone should get a fair shake in the market, and although everyone in the world complains, including producer, all of the middlemen, and finally the consumer, those good old days aren't really as good as we like to think they were; now are they? —Farmland News, Archbold, Ohio

Q - I am 68 years old, and have been unemployed for the past four years because I am totally disabled. I have just learned that my $10,000 NSLI policy carries a waiver of premium clause for total disability prior to age 65. Can this waiver be granted on my policy now?

A - Yes. However, you must present evidence that your total disability began prior to your 65th birthday, and has existed continuously since then. Refund of premiums cannot be made for the entire period, but only for the period beginning one year prior to your application.

Q - I am a student in a flight school, and would like to assign my VA educational assistance payments to the school to guarantee payment of tuition. Can this be done?

A - No. VA educational assistance payments may not be assigned.

Q - I served three years on active duty from 1958 to 1961, and have become totally disabled. Am I eligible for a pension?

A - No. In order to qualify, you need 90 days of active duty, some part of which must be during wartime. The dates you served are classified as peacetime service. (The ending date for the Korean Conflict was Jan. 31, 1955; the Vietnam Era began Aug. 5, 1964.)

Q - My father was killed in service. Am I eligible for a guaranteed or insured G. I. loan?

A - No. The law does not extend this benefit to the child of a veteran.

Letter to Editor

Editorial Note: Gilbert and Dorothy Rue lived at Denton many years where the former had a newspaper and printing plant and a frozen-food locker. In Gilbert's later years, he worked occasionally as an Intertype operator for The Harrington Journal.

Banyan Lodge 4002 Ave. "N", Ft. Pierce, Fla. 33450

This is the new home of the Rues, Gilbert and Dorothy, and we would like to show it to you as best we can in a letter. We call it Banyan Lodge because of the two big banyan trees, one on the east side and one on the west, that give us wonderful shade as well as much beauty. It also reminds us of our beloved Oak Lodge home in the woods of Connecticut.

Fort Pierce is a city of about 30,000 population on the Indian River which is not actually a river at all but a body of water extending along the east coast of Florida separating it from a chain of coastal islands beyond which is the Atlantic Ocean. Here the "river" is about a mile and a half wide and the island about a half mile wide. We have delightful, cooling breezes from the river and ocean most of the time. Some years ago the National Geographic magazine said that this particular section of Florida has the most enjoyable climate in the United States. Through the inlet good-sized freighters come to the docks; the city maintains a fine, big marina and there are many private ones. Indian River citrus fruit is a great industry with miles of groves, huge packing houses, and fruit juicing plants in the area.

Much of this part of the state is irrigated by canals coming from Lake Okeechobee. There are huge feeder canals and a network of smaller ones leading to the groves and pasture lands. These canals also provide drainage in flood times, so the city has many canals both large and small.

We are just outside the city proper in a section called Sunland Gardens. There are many lovely homes in a setting of pine and palm woods. On our east side is a woody lot that has been partially cleared; on the west and across the road it has not been cleared. As a result, we live in a real bird sanctuary with many blue jays, cardinals, mockingbirds, towhees, flickers, and some varieties I don't know. At night we often hear whippoorwills, and owls deep in the woods. We have a pair of very tame quail, and two little rabbits that cavort around whenever Cricket, our cat, isn't watching. One night we petted a tiny possum that had climbed a low limb of an orange tree in the back yard.

Our lot is 120'x140' with the house set in the middle thereof, and of concrete block construction which seems to be the favorite here. It is white with medium green trim. In addition to the two banyan trees, we have two tall palm trees with night-blooming cereus climbing up them. This is a form of cactus that blooms about full moon time each month during the summer with huge flowers about eight inches across plus a halo of yellowish petals that add another four inches to their width. In June we sat and watched them open after dark and it was quite fascinating. They bloom only one night and wither as soon as the sun hits them the next day. Right now the vines are full of buds for the July full moon. We have an organ-pipe cactus which is another night-bloomer with flowers almost as big as the cereus but with no halo of petals. Also in the front yard, we have a mango tree, two papayas, a nutmeg tree, and many bushes including sea grape, ixora with red flowers, carissa plum with white flowers, English holly, poinsettias, painted daises, roses, geraniums, many crotons with variegated leaves, periwinkle, philodendron, elephant ears (27"x46"), and others. There are about twenty-five big hibiscus bushes full of big, flat blossoms in red, yellow, pink and white with both single and double blossoms. The east and west sides of our place are bordered with them with others scattered here and there. In the back yard are ten citrus trees, Gib's pride orange trees, two grapefruit, tangerines, lemon, lime, kumquat, avocado pears, persimmons, Barbados cherry, and two banana trees. There are also two gardenia bushes, night-blooming jasmine, some philodendron with HUGE leaves, wandering Jew, ferns, bleeding hearts, geraniums, and many more than I know or can remember to list. The citrus trees are full of fruit that will be ripe this fall or winter. When we bought Banyan Lodge last March, the trees were full of both fruit and blossoms and the whole place was filled with the fragrance. There is also a tremendous century plant and several other types of cacti.

It hardly seems possible that with all the trees and scrubber and flowers, there is room for a house but there is! Come in the screened entrance porch and then into the living room where the piano resides, and note a fireplace with birch logs which will keep us warm when it gets cooler. Two bedrooms and a bath on the left side, and straight ahead a long room which has the kitchen on one end and the dining room on the other. From here, you go into the Florida room where the organ lives, and then, to your right, is a lovely screened porch about 23'x9' where we spend most of our time. Utility rooms both inside and outside and a garage complete the house and it is ALL ONE FLOOR!!

We have just had central air conditioning installed for it does get HOT here at times, and it is just wonderful. The temperature here ranges from the low seventies to over ninety, which is no hotter than it was in Denton. Many times during the month of May it was cooler down here than up there, and warmer here when it was cold in Maryland.

There is no traffic on Avenue "N" other than an occasional car or local delivery truck, and our only sounds are the bird calls and conversations, the wind in the trees, an occasional plane and, when the wind is right, a train whistle. We have joined our Sunland Gardens Community Association; we are enjoying the new and lovely main library and its bookmobile; each Thursday evening there are interesting films shown at the library; we had a most enjoyable picnic with the AARPs (American Association of Retired People) last month and will go to another next week. I have also joined the Welcome Wagon Club, the members of which have been visited by a W. W. hostess. We have a coffee once a month and, beginning in September, will have a luncheon meeting too. Their functions include support of mental health, retarded children, and Red Cross agencies. In the fall, I'll join the Women's Club and Gib will be going to lodge. We are visiting various churches and will decide which one we want to join, then get into the various activities. We have made new friends, renewed friendships with old ones, and of course we are thoroughly enjoying the center of Fort Pierce.

We hope you have enjoyed this letter to Avenue "N", and we hope that sometime in the future you will actually come in our front door and see 4002 for yourself. We'll be very happy to see you! Our telephone number is 1-305-464-2021. We'll tell you just the route to follow to find us. We are only five minutes ride from either U.S. Route 1 or the Florida Turnpike. We'll be looking for you.

Sincerely, Dorothy and Gilbert The Rues

Some sound advice is contained in an article released recently by the trade division of the Wisconsin department of agriculture. Too many consumers, the article laments, find the simplest word in the language the most difficult to utter. Too many people can't say "no" to a salesman.

Seems unbelievable, but you know it's true, and not only where consumers are salesmen are concerned. It's also a fault of politicians, parents, girls, boys and just about every human being.

Read and heed, the trade divisions' lament, printed below:

"In spite of the fact that the word 'no' is a small word, relatively easy to say under most circumstances, many consumers find it difficult to say 'no' to itinerant salesmen who seem to have an answer for every argument.

"In reporting this fact, the trade division of the Wisconsin department of agriculture states that it receives daily complaints from consumers who purchase products they didn't really want. The bulk of these complaints come from persons who 'gave in' to persistent itinerant sales personnel simply because they could not say 'no'.

"If you have troubles saying 'no' when confronted by persistent sales efforts, try to remember these words of advice from the Trade Division."

"Your best protection is an emphatic 'no' when you do not want the product being offered."

"It is much better to say 'no' in the first place, rather than have buyers' remorse later.

"The ability to say 'no' and stick with it can be your greatest asset in the marketplace."

"If you do not say 'no', when this is the way you feel, you may be the recipient of unwanted unnecessary merchandise."

"It is no one's fault but your own if you don't master the art of saying 'no'.

"Additional tip: In the event a salesman is unusually persistent and will not take 'no' for an answer, remind him you can call the police."

Delaware Potatoes On The Market

The local harvest season is in full swing, says extension market specialist Roger Ginder of the University of Delaware. He believes potato quality this season is tops. Also, locally grown potatoes are plentiful this year with 8,000 acres or more planted in the state. Since growers are nearby, you get really fresh potatoes that haven't been reduced in quality by shipping long distances.

You can find local potatoes at many chain supermarkets as well as roadside stands. Many of the larger Delaware growers package their products in convenient five and ten pound weight bags that are clearly marked with the weight and producer. Ginder suggests checking the package for the address of the grower to be sure you're buying top quality Delaware potatoes.

The Delaware fresh potato runs from mid-July until mid-September. It's a great time to treat your family to some potato surprises, suggests Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, University of Delaware extension specialist.

Try a fling with the real thing by testing new ways to prepare the standard potato. Twice-baked potatoes take a little more preparation, but the result is worth it. After the potato is partially baked, split and remove the center. Mix this potato with cheese, meat or creamed vegetables and put it back into the shell. Rebake and combine all the good flavors.

Casserole dishes with potatoes are a must for creative cooks. Scalloped potatoes made with all sorts of sauces from cream of mushroom soup to tomato paste are a good change from the usual. Original casserole toppings such as crushed potato chips or mashed potatoes sprinkled with paprika will bring demands for seconds.

Potatoes offer a surprise for dieters, says Miss Krackhardt. Actually, potatoes contain fewer calories per serving than many of the foods that are often substituted for them. One medium potato contains fewer calories than an orange, apple or two servings of bread. Potatoes are filling and give that "enough" feeling with fewer calories.

The high calorie reputation of potatoes really comes from the dressings you add. Skip gravy, sour cream or butter, and try tasty potatoes seasoned lightly with salt and pepper. For extra spark, try a sauce made from bouillon cubes and a small amount of water.

You can even cut down on the calories in your favorite delicious, high calorie potato salad. Made with mayonnaise it provides about 320 calories, while low calorie dressing or sour cream provides only about 160 calories. You can make a low calorie dressing from sour dressing, low calorie mayonnaise and vinegar.

Balance your diet by serving foods from the basic four food groups, but don't eliminate potatoes. Potatoes are one of the cheapest sources available of the B vitamins and Vitamin C. Also, the protein found in potatoes is easily and wholly digestible. Make Delaware potatoes part of your diet.

Potato Salad
4 medium size potatoes
1 to 2 Tbs. finely chopped onions
1 teasp. salt
2 tbs. chopped green pepper
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1/4 cup diced cucumber
2 hard cooked eggs (chopped)
1/2 cup mayonnaise (substitute dieter's dressing)
1/2 teasp. prepared mustard

1. Cook potatoes whole in skins to retain maximum vitamin value. Peel and dice.
2. Add onion, salt, green pepper, celery, cucumber and eggs.
3. Mix mayonnaise and mustard thoroughly. Add to other ingredients. Mix carefully and chill 3 to 4 hours.

Low calorie dressing can be made from 1/3 cup sour dressing, 2 tbs. low calorie mayonnaise, and 1 tbs. vinegar.

Some thirty-two dairy herds in Kent County belong to the Dairy Herd Improvement Association. C. Allen Davis of Clayton, president of the local cooperative, invites still more herds to join in this record keeping program, which forms the basis for making decisions to improve farm income.

One member, Woodrow Hass of Wyoming, and others will quickly agree, says, "It would be difficult to show a herd profit without these records. We are always trying to build up our herds, but at the same time are obliged to cull out the boarder or non-paying cows."

B. Lee Currey of Wyoming, has been a herd supervisor in Kent County for 14 years. Thomas Albright of Fargo, N. D., is coming as the second herd tester. Tom is a college graduate in chemistry, and is serving his period of time as a military conscientious objector in Kent County. He replaces Frank Searles of Harrington, who retired after 12 years of service.

Prior to Frank's service, we were blessed with another C. O., Samuel Weaver, who worked and then went to college. He is now Dean of Men at a Mennonite college in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia.

For more information on herd testing call your county agent at 736-1448 or visit us at our office on the second floor of the Wesley Church Educational Center in Dover. Discussion by Francis J. Webb

Every year landowners lose tons of top soil through water erosion. This not only cuts the lands production, but pollutes our local rivers and streams. This is not intentionally done by the operator, but with big equipment and most of it being operated by hired help it's hard for the landowner to regulate this.

I think that in the future our lands will have to be handled in such a way to conserve top soil through conservation practices like sod waterways and filter strips along field edges next to ponds, and creeks.

The Kent County Resource Development committee at a recent meeting proposed to coordinate a sod waterway or a filter strip demonstration area here in Kent County. There is difficulty in finding a landowner to cooperate in such an important project that will benefit him as well as the community.

If any of you landowners with an erosion problem would like to have more information on this demonstration project call me at 736-1448 or write to P. O. Box 340, Dover, 19901. You will be doing yourself, your neighbors and your community a favor by stopping soil erosion; at the same time showing others how it can be done.

There has been considerable concern about the corn leaf blight over the country. I can only speak for Delaware, but it's not as severe as it has been made out to be. I agree that it seems to be a little worse this year than in previous years, but the continuous dry weather is likely adding to this. The only fields that would give a 50% yield reduction would be late planted corn, using a variety susceptible to the leaf blight (Helminthosporium).

I encourage all of you corn producers to make close observation on each variety that you planted this year and see how severe it was infected.

In selecting hybrids for next year use this information along with out 1970 corn hybrid results that you will receive this winter. With careful selection of your hybrids much of the yield reduced from leaf blight can be avoided.

There is a fur for all! For the seamstress it may be a fabric made to look like fur — either a good copy or frankly fake.

The man-made "furs" with a deep pile are used for outer wear, for coat linings, accessories and trims. If you're trying your hand at this fur fabric for the first time, here are some suggestions.

Know the fiber content of the fabric. Most of these fabrics are made from man-made fibers and will stand little or no heat in pressing. Pressing can also flatten the pile. If you are lining the garment, use fabrics which also need no pressing.

Keep the style simple. The fewer details, the fewer problems. Eliminate as many seams as possible; for example, the center back seam or facing seams for front or sleeves. If facings seem too bulky, you may want to finish edges with braid.

When cutting out the coat, lay the pattern pieces so that the pile goes down in the lengthwise direction on all pieces. Pin the pattern on the back, not the pile side. Double thicknesses or fabric are difficult to cut and may not be accurate. Cut single layers of fabric, but be careful not to cut two pieces for the same side of the figure.

If the pattern calls for darts, try to ease in the fabric instead. This will not be possible for large darts. If pile is very thick, large darts may be cut out completely on stitching lines. Bring edges together so they just meet and stitch together by hand.

Use a long machine stitch — about 8 to 10 stitches per inch and heavy duty thread. Loosening tensions, as well as the pressure on the pressure foot, may give a better stitch. Stitch in the direction of the pile forcing as much of the pile as possible away from the seam as you sew. When the seam is finished, use a needle or fine comb to gently pull out any pile which may have been wedged into the seam. This will make the seam line disappear.

You may want to eliminate some of the bulk in seams. With scissors, clip away the pile close to the base fabric within the seam allowance. Take note of care directions when you buy the fabric. The man-made furs differ widely in construction and fiber content. After carefully making your new fur coat, you won't want to ruin it with improper care.

4-H Story

4-H offers an opportunity to learn and lead to more than two and a quarter million American boys and girls between the ages of 9 and 19. This year, 2311 Delaware youths are participating in the program.

For more than 60 years the 4-H program has been an important educational force in rural America, but now that influence is broadening. Only 707 Delaware 4-H'ers live on farms while 1604 youths live on nonfarms in rural, suburban or urban areas. There are 73 members participating this year from the center city areas, says James O. Baker, state 4-H leader.

These boys and girls belong to 83 community clubs, with 129 organizational leaders, 195 project leaders and 189 older 4-H members serving as junior leaders, according to figures just released.

The range of projects and activities being offered is one reason cited for the spread of 4-H into almost all areas of the state. Nonfarm members can choose from automotive, home economics, clothing, electric, entomology, horse, woodworking, foods and crafts, photography and safety programs. Projects aimed mainly at farm youths include beef, swine, field crops, sheep tractor and dairy.

Baker says that many 4-H activities are designed to offer leadership opportunities including citizenship, community service, public speaking and junior leadership programs.

The 4-H program is the youth phase of an educational program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service, working with state land grant universities. It began in the early 1900's when agricultural extension agents organized corn and pig clubs for farm youngsters as a way to introduce new farming practices to their fathers. These informal groups were organized into 4-H clubs in 1914.

Boys and girls in Delaware between the ages of 9 and 19 who are interested in 4-H club work should contact a local 4-H club leader or the county 4-H club agent in Georgetown, Dover or Newark.

Farmland Vital To Environment

The value of North Atlantic farmland may soon depend on the contributions it makes to environmental quality rather than its capacity to produce.

Farmland should be viewed as a resource with many uses beyond mere production, according to Dr. Ervin Zube, head of the department of landscape architecture and regional planning at the University of Massachusetts. He spoke at the 46th annual North Atlantic Regional meeting of American Society of Agricultural Engineers held recently on the University of Delaware campus.

Zube believes diversity in the landscape is vitally important to a desirable quality of living. North Atlantic landscape ranges from totally manmade in the city to one completely untouched by man — or wildlands — with farmland in between.

As agriculture decreases, the North Atlantic landscape is concentrated more on the two extremes of that range. Zube stated the landscape is continuously becoming more homogeneous. "Two primary factors behind this process are increasing urbanization and decreasing agricultural activity."

Livestock Producers Can Use Wet Corn

Delaware farmers who market their corn through livestock usually followed one of two practices at harvesttime. They either harvest the crop on the ear and dry it in cribs or shell it in the field and dry the wet corn with artificial heat.

Today's farmer has a third choice. He can place his wet shelled corn in airtight storage foregoing the drying step, points out W. T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware.

When wet corn is placed in sealed storage, the crop will start to ferment. But once the oxygen trapped in the storage unit is used, the fermenting process stops and the corn will remain in good condition until it is removed.

Corn can be placed in airtight storage as whole shelled corn, coarsely ground, or as corn and cob meal, explains McAllister. And stored in this manner, the crop will retain the same feed value on a dry weight basis as dried shelled corn.

Glass-lined silos that are gastight are excellent for storing wet corn, he says. Farmers can unload from the bottom of these units and spoilage is kept to a minimum. However, this type of silo is expensive and unless it is used intensively over a long period, it may be too costly for most livestock farmers.

All that is required for successful storage of wet corn is that the storage unit be airtight, stresses McAllister. Many producers have small silos that can be inexpensive storage.

A silo that has a smooth wall can usually be made airtight by coating the interior walls with an epoxy paint, sealing the doors with plastic and covering the top with a tight lid once the unit has been filled.

Because wet shelled corn is heavier than silage, McAllister suggests strengthening the side walls of these silos with extra hoops. Silos with a 10 to 12 foot diameter are best, since 2 to 4 inches of silage should be removed each day in cool weather. For additional information on storing wet corn, contact a county extension office in Newark, Dover or Georgetown.

University To Offer Environmental Lecture Series

Four lecture series will be offered at the University of Delaware beginning this fall by the university's extension division as part of an overall program on the environment entitled "Man and His Earth."

The series and the individual lectures within the series will be open to the public without charge.

Two of the lecture series, "Marine Environment," and "Man and His Planet" will meet 14 times, another series will meet eight times, still another, six.

"Marine Environment" will feature lecture-seminars covering the ocean basins and their contents and the utilization that may be made in the future of sea resources.

"Man and His Planet" will take an interdisciplinary approach to the interactions of population growth, human life styles, and the environment. Emphasis will be placed during the sessions on planning for the future through democratic decision-making processes.

The first meeting of the course in "Marine Environment" will be held on Sept. 8 in the Hall Building beginning at 7 p.m. The first meeting of "Man and His Planet" is scheduled a day later, Sept. 9, in Hall, also at 7 p.m.

A third series of lectures will be devoted to the interrelationship of man and resources of the earth. Entitled "Man and Earth: Geology's Impact", the six-lecture series will delve into the nature of geologic knowledge and conflicts inherent between natural processes and man's utilization of the land and sea.

The first meeting of "Man and Earth: Geology's Impact" will be held on Sept. 16 beginning at 7 p.m. in Sharp Laboratory.

The fourth series, a seminar in environmental resources, scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. on Oct. 8 in Evans Hall, will be comprised of eight monthly seminars concerned with the engineering, economic, political, and managerial aspects of environmental pollution control. During the eight programs, information will be presented that will depict the impact of man-created pollution on the environment and his efforts to influence and control environmental changes.

Additional information on the four lecture series can be obtained from the Division of University Extension at the university, 79 Amstel Ave., Newark, 19711. The telephone number is 302-738-2211.

Veterans' News

Veterans who attended classes during the spring and summer sessions under the G.I. Bill should make sure their Certification of Attendance cards are returned to the Veterans Administration immediately.

Leon Fields, director of the Wilmington VA Regional Office, explained that unless the cards are returned, veterans cannot be paid the educational money for their last month of training when they return to school this fall. A veteran attending college should fill out and sign the card he received with his next to final check, and mail it to his Regional VA Office, Mr. Fields explained.

A veteran training below college level should fill out and sign the card he received with his monthly check, and return it each month to his regional VA office. The card also must be signed by a school official.

The veteran who has lost his attendance certification card should request another from his nearest VA office. He should then return the completed card to his Regional Office, Mr. Fields advised.

Veterans intending to go to school this fall who do not have a VA certificate of eligibility are urged to contact their nearest VA office immediately.

Good Investment

Americans have probably become the travelingest people on earth, but even this may not be saying much. A lot of travel that goes on is pretty hum-drum — commuting to work, for example.

For every person who really travels — takes trips to see and learn — there are thousands who stay at home. And many of them stay at home because they feel it is in extravagance to spend money traveling, or they think the best way to rest during a vacation is to "do nothing."

These and other common shibboleths concerning travel are blown into the far beyond by a promotional feature story advertisement sponsored in the Reader's Digest by a half dozen major airlines and an aircraft manufacturer.

Promotional or not, the Digest has some good answers to the question of "should you travel more?"

It cites one researcher who notes that just doing the same thing in the same place day after day can be a threat to health. It quotes the president of the Life Extension Foundation, who says, "Vacations are essential to health. But sitting around home is not enough. Health deteriorates when leisure time is marked by decreased physical activity, by social isolation or lack of mental stimulation."

The Digest story goes on to show how travel broadens opportunities in business and gives the opinions of personnel managers of a number of major companies, men who feel that travel gives an extra dimension that adds to an individual's ability to make decisions and advance faster.

Travel can be a good investment, at times, in saving a shaky marriage. It can also change the outlook and improve the scholastic abilities of children.

The Digest does a good job of giving a positive answer, in a highly authoritative manner, to the stay-at-homes who never travel, mainly because they have been inculcated with the old wives tale that it is wasteful and extravagant or that there are better things to do at home.

Travel is the antidote to routine, and routine can be deadly. Properly done, travel can contribute to good health and to learning.

In short, travel is a good investment. —Bennet County Booster, II, Marten, S. D.

On Election Day

The ballot is being handed to young people who have reached 18 years of age and we hold that any expectation that the United States Supreme Court will find the measure unconstitutional is something less than wishful thinking.

Congressmen employed a political ploy in tagging the 18-year old vote provision on to the extension of a civil rights measure that gives the vote to those who are unable to read or write.

That civil rights measure does not apply to blacks in New York state, Michigan, the Midwest, or even in California. To any fair-minded jurist, the civil rights clause violates the constitution because it is restricted specifically to the Southeastern corner of the United States, that area that is pridefully called "Dixie."

In approving the 18-year old vote provision, U. S. Senators and Congressmen "passed the buck" to President Nixon. In this era, when youths reaching 19 are subject to the draft it is not logical to assume that the kids must shoulder rifles without having some say at the ballot box.

Now, President Nixon has indicated he expects the U.S. Supreme Court to rule this law in violation to the U.S. Constitution. A panel of judges who upholds a civil rights law, that is applicable only to one section of this nation, cannot be trusted to survey the 18-year old vote provision from an enlightened viewpoint.

Our conclusion is that justice has been done. If our youth are to be subject to the draft, requiring military service, we think they should be provided with the right to express their opinions on election day. —Andalusia Star-News, Andalusia, Ala.

Air Pollution Detection Devices Being Placed

Kent County will shortly have its own air pollution detection stations, reports Joseph J. Kliment, staff member of the Air Pollution Control section of Delaware's Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control.

"These inexpensive stations will be located on telephone poles in 18 Delaware communities within the next 60 days," Kliment explained.

The Telephone Company has built the stations and has volunteered free use of its poles for the project, according to Sam Fisher, of the Diamond State Telephone Company, who is the telephone engineer who coordinated the project with the utility's construction forces.

At each pole location, there will be two devices. One is a white plastic container which will collect deposits of airborne dust. The second device, which looks like a bee hive, contains a peroxide material core that absorbs sulfur-dioxide pollutants. Periodically personnel from the Air Pollution Control Department will collect the devices at each pole location to detect and record the air quality.

The poles that will hold the detection devices are located in: Montchanin, Yorklyn, Mermaid, Christiana, Glassgow, St. Georges, Camden, Frederica, Harrington, Greenwood, Milton, Bridgeville, Lewes, Rehoboth Beach, Laurel, Millsboro, Delmar, and Selbyville.
