Home Furnishing Tips For Young Families

On-the-move living has become part of our life style since one out of five families move each year. An on-the-go life creates new problems in decorating, especially for newly marrieds on a limited budget, says Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Begin with only the essential home furnishing, she advises. And bedding should top that list of basics. You can buy a good set of standard mattress and springs for $100 to $120. Extra large beds cost more and also necessitate more expensive extra-size linens. A difference of $2 per sheet can strain the limited house furnishings budget.

A headboard is not a must for a good night's sleep; why not buy it at a later date. Or you may wish to economize and design your own headboard.

The dining room is another place to be versatile, says Miss Morris. A sturdy card table is a wise investment—it can serve as a dining table until the budget will permit you to do better. When you buy a dining room table, consider the drop-leaf or expandable type that takes up little space when not in use. Or choose a casual, all-purpose table that is good for many purposes.

When you select furniture for seating, remember that several armless, webbed chairs together can replace a sofa temporarily. Or, fit low-cost, off-season purchases of rattan or other porch furniture into an under-furnished living room. This type of furniture can serve nicely for dining chairs now and be moved later to the patio or yard.

Young families will also have limited storage. Miss Morris suggests using modular units that can be arranged, stacked and added to fit your space. And if you need extra space, consider buying a versatile chest that can be used in the bedroom, den or living room.

Simple colors and designs are best for decorating. Add color with less expensive throw pillows, area rugs and pictures. Or add a touch of the unusual on the walls if possible—paint, paper or fabric one or more walls to harmonize with the accessory colors in the room. And, by all means buy one wonderful item that symbolizes the home of your dreams. It helps to keep your goal of a future home clearly in mind.

EMILY MUST NOT PLAY SECOND FIDDLE: IT WOULD SET A PRECEDENT

If the state Republican administration has its way, it will violate the powers of the sole Democrat elected to a state office last week.

Furthermore, the defeated candidate will be allowed to work in and control the office he lost in the election.

If this piece of skulduggery is unchallenged, be ye sure it will be emulated by every state administration, GOP or Democrat. Then, the rights of the voter will be abolished or tarnished.

Hereby follows a story which would make "Gulliver's Travels" seem like a Sunday School tale.

Secretary of Finance, Joseph Cashman—R, has said he would appoint Daniel J. Ross, who was defeated by Emily Womach-D, for state treasurer last week, to a $14,000-a-year job as director of the Division of the Treasury.

Mrs. Womach's chores, then, would be confined to being a member of the Board of Pardons and the State Budget Commission. In charge of the treasury, this would give Democrat Emily an excellent opportunity to check on the finances of the state's Republican administration.

Heretofore, the director of the division of the treasury and the treasurer's job was one, with Ross dragging down $18,000.

In the new set-up the cost of the same work would be $32,000 per year. That's what you call economy—at the taxpayer's expense.

While the appointment is up to Cashman, as cabinet officer, it is hoped Gov. Peterson will see the light. After all, he appoints the cabinet secretaries. When he says "jump" in Dover, they reply, "How high?"

If Cashman tries to get away with this maneuver, the matter should go all the way to the nation's top court.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

I had a phone call last night from my grandson, Jay Black who, with his wife and family expects to be with us at Thanksgiving time. Jay, now teaching industrial engineering at the University of Vermont after six years in similar capacity at the University of Illinois, has been always been an admirer of Harrington and Milford schools and friends. He submitted the following poem of his own authorship while working for his degree in Industrial Engineering at Morgantown, W. Va.

"THE ENGINEER'S HIGH PRIVILEGE"

Lord, look kindly on the engineer,
 His works have built a nation.
 He can't deny that he did them,
 That they came from his imagination.

He may elevate standards of living,
 He can add to the comforts of life.
 His works are his reputation
 To be judged and measured in strife.

Ideas, through science, emerge into plans,
 And are shaped in metal and stone,
 They may bring jobs and homes to many a man,
 But they stand on their merits alone.

The physician can bury his mistakes in a grave,
 The lawyer can argue his pale,
 And blame his fate on luck and the judge.
 It's his client that goes to jail.

The politician, when caught in a blunder,
 Will send up a flurry of mud
 To smear his opponent and help you and I
 Forget he's a bumbling dud.

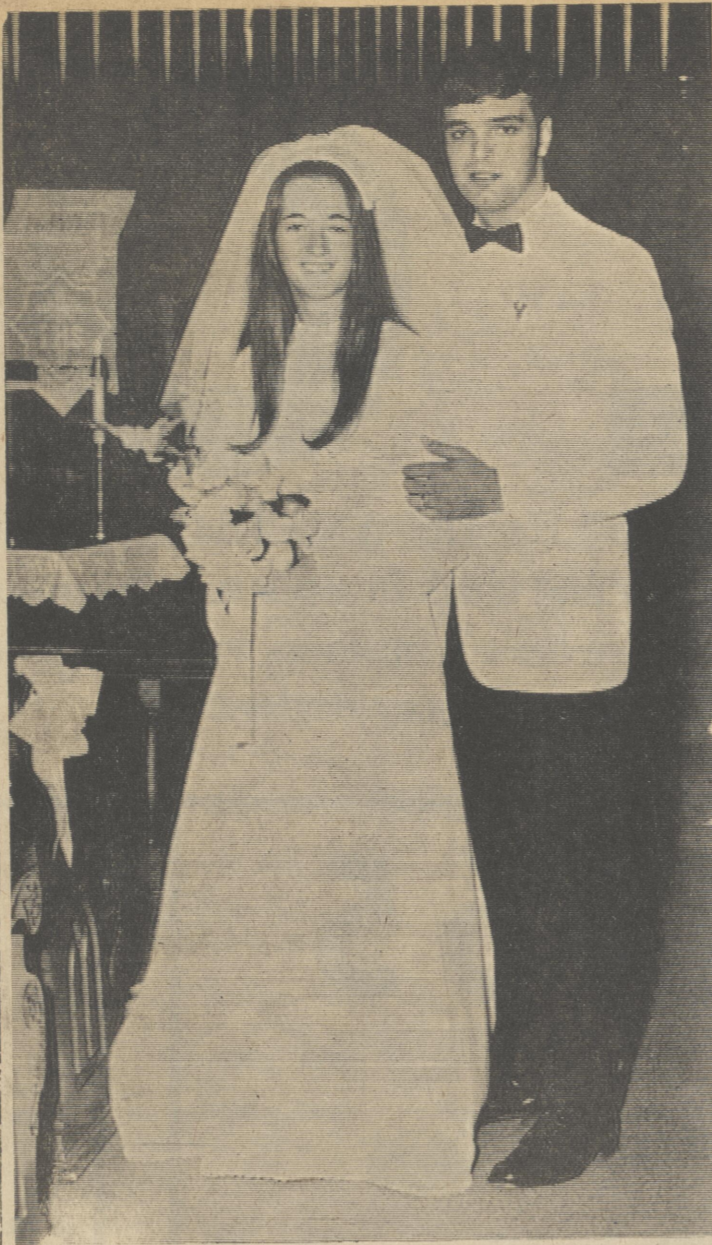

The schoolteacher hides in his cubical cell
 Expounding on theory and truth,
 And nobody knows but the children
 Of his failings, his errors, his goofs.

The architect can always mask his mistakes
 With vines and shrubs and trees.
 The Engineer's work must function well
 So that more than the eye is pleased.

For his works are out in the open
 Where all can see what he planned.
 He can't deny that he did them,
 If his works don't work, he is damned.

His efforts are judged by the people
 Who must use what he has designed.
 This is the Engineer's high privilege.
 That he benefits all mankind.

FENCE TALK
Here's George Vapaa

The search for the good life resumes. The elections seem to have settled the directions we are to move. Bury the speeches and look more closely how things are being done from now on.

We are lucky in a way. Imagine a life where there is not enough food as exists over most of the world. Food surpluses are still a problem. Yet problems beyond the line fence, such as inflation, unemployment, the need for zoning, welfare, littering, and other things cry for public action by each of us if we are to have an improved environment.

Along these lines our farm agency people were treated to a final report on Cabinets by the Governor's Task Force on Reorganization of the Executive Branch of Government in our state recently.

We suggest that local service clubs may want to hear this story. No one seems to tell it better than Robert Halbrook, Secretary of the Department of Community Affairs and Economic Development. He was one of the architects within the Task Force and uses a large chart to illustrate his points. He needs few notes and enjoys questions from the floor.

Hereford and Angus purebred calves sired by artificial breeding may now be registered with their breed associations. This follows a long hold out which was settled years ago for the dairy breeds.

One of the great benefits of artificial insemination (A.I.) permits a truly superior beef type sire to father thousands more offspring than is possible where natural service is used.

Purebred livestock is looked upon as seed stock. Records prove that the purebred sire with a good history can improve the offspring faster than any other method of matings.

The United States Justice Department vs. Aberdeen Angus Association suit to permit such registrations was settled by a consent decree a few weeks ago. When real breed improving sires are identified, thousands of breeders can reap the benefits through A.I.

Also, it is then possible to handle another brood cow in the herd, rather than be troubled with a bull.

Discussion by Francis Webb. Many homeowners have been calling in about a small flying insect that is coming in from every little crack and crevice. They look something like a knat, but are a little larger.

These small insects are called Phorid Flies and they are usually only a problem in the fall until cold weather arrives. They do not cause damage to clothes or structures, they do not bite animals or humans. They are just annoying pests.

Control of this pest in the home can be obtained by spraying aerosols containing pyrethrin. This is a contact material so occasional spraying will be required. The best means of control is outdoor sprays of Methoxychlor, Malathion, or Diazinon around doors, window screens and shrubs close to the house. In number soon, if you have when cold weather arrives, so they should be decreasing in number soon, if you have been bothered with them.

Protect Roses Against Winter Injury

Home gardeners should winterize their roses, now, according to Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Roses should be winterized after several freezes of 23 degrees Fahrenheit or lower. But the protection should be in place by early December to prevent winter injury. When temperatures fall below 20 degrees Fahrenheit some roses can be destroyed, and below 10 degrees many are killed, he warns.

Since roses continue to absorb moisture through the roots and lose it through the canes during the winter, injury is usually caused by the actual freezing of the plants or excessive loss of moisture by evaporation.

The first step to winterizing these plants is to cut the canes back to reduce wind whipping. Excessive wind whipping can loosen and damage the crown.

This cutting back should not be a complete pruning job, however, says Stevens. Pruning is left to early spring. And you should not fertilize roses as the time of year. Fertilizer stimulates new growth that can be easily damaged.

Many gardeners place soil around the base of their roses for protection against winter injury. Rose cones are also very popular points out Stevens.

When using the soil method don't scrape soil from between the plants. This exposes roots to freezing. Obtain dry soil from other areas in the garden.

A homemade collar can keep this soil in place. They can be constructed of hardware cloth, fiberglass or building paper. The collar should be 8 to 12 inches high and 12 inches in diameter.

When the collar is in place, cover it with film plastic to keep out the rain. But don't place it so tight as to seal out air. For additional protection leaves, hay or straw can be added later, notes Stevens. If this is done too early, however, mice will nest in the material and chew on the canes.

Turn Leaves Into Compost

Now that the trees have started to shed their golden beauty, many homeowners are concerned about how they will dispose of the downed leaves. But if you have a garden, fallen leaves can be an asset rather than a liability, according to David Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

Leaves, grass clippings and garden plants contain many organic compounds that can benefit your garden when decomposed, he explains. For best results, he suggests turning these materials into valuable compost.

A compost pile can be constructed on top of the ground or in a shallow pit. For the average garden, a pot 3 feet wide by 6 feet long and 18 inches deep is recommended, says Tatnall.

If your soil does not drain well, pile the leaves on the surface using chicken wire or boards to hold the compost in place.

Compost should also be built in layers for best results. Start with a six-inch layer of leaves or other plant material and add a pound of 10-10-10 fertilizer for every 10 pounds of dry leaves. Top the fertilizer with a one-inch layer of soil and with more leaves, fertilizer and soil. Most compost piles are three to four feet tall.

For rapid decomposition, Tatnall says, mix the fertilizer with the leaves thoroughly. A cup of ground limestone added to the fertilizer will also increase decomposition and prevent excessive acidity. But don't use lime if you are going to use the compost around trees and shrubs requiring acid soil.

When building your compost pile, make sure the leaves slope toward the center. This will help trap rain water and speed up the decomposition.

Decomposition of leaves is a relatively slow process, however, points out Tatnall. But after the first year, you can have a continuous supply of organic material for use in flower beds and garden.

Pen-Hort Society Hosts Meeting

Members of the Peninsula Horticultural Society will hold their 84th annual meeting December 8 and 9 at the Centenary Methodist Church, Laurel.

One of the featured speakers on this year's program will be Norman J. Smith, agricultural agent from Cumberland County, New Jersey, announces secretary Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware. Smith will discuss aluminum mulch, trickle irrigation and other new innovations in vegetable production.

Other speakers include Dr. R. E. Wagner, director of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, W. J. Roberts, extension agricultural engineer, Rutgers University; and specialists from the University of Delaware; Virginia Polytechnic Institute, University of Maryland and the Virginia Truck Experiment Station at Painter.

Topics to be discussed include "The Pesticide Situation — Changes in Regulations"; "What is our Production Market Competition?"; "Fertilization — Advantages and Disadvantages" and Bonding Laws."

Separate sessions on greenhouse and bedding plants, cucumbers, cantaloupes and watermelons; tomatoes; and retail marketing will highlight Wednesday's program. The sessions, which begin at 9:30 a.m. each day, are open to the public.

In lightweight competition, steers owned by Greg Warren, Woodside; Doug Townsend; Dana Gooden, Camden; Wyoming; and Dawn Webb, Camden - Wyoming, took second through fifth place.

In the showmanship category, Dana Gooden placed first, earning a $10 prize. Second and third places, consisting of $7 and $6 awards, were presented to Ken Carlisle, Woodside, and Debbie Hearn.

Eighteen Delaware 4-H'ers entered animals in this year's livestock show which was sponsored by the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service. The average steer brought better than $34 per hundredweight at the auction.

Cold Cut And Sausages Are Convenience Foods

If you have children in school, you're probably packing lunches several days a week — or perhaps your husband takes his lunch. In any case, what's a packed lunch without a sandwich?

Sandwiches often mean a meat filling — perhaps sausages or cold cuts. And some luncheon meats can be very economical, says Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension food specialist at the University of Delaware. Each pound is entirely edible without further cooking and will yield at least four servings. So look beyond the price per pound to the price per serving, she advises.

As most package labels state, keep cold cuts refrigerated. A tight wrapping prevents the surface from drying out. Vacuum packaged cold cuts already have most of the air removed, so they'll keep fresh several weeks if the seal is not broken.

To enjoy maximum quality, use the most sliced cold cuts within three days after you open the vacuum-sealed package, says Miss Krackhardt. Unsliced bologna and liver sausage will keep longer — from four to six days. Uncut dry and semi-dry sausages may be refrigerated for two to three weeks.

With such a wide variety of tasty cold cuts and sausages, why buy the same ones time after time? All are delicious and nourishing, and they contain the same protein, B-vitamins and minerals as the meat from which they are made.

Cervelat and salamis are the most familiar groups of "dry" sausage products. Cervelat generally refers to a mildly - seasoned smoked group of semi-dry sausage products. Because of their softer texture and moisture, many people prefer semi-dry sausages for sandwiches. Salami is usually a more highly-seasoned group of dry or hard sausages.

Don't save luncheon meat or sausage just for sandwiches though; you can use them so many other ways. For instance, add cut-up pieces to a vegetable salad; less highly-flavored cold cuts or sausages are usually preferred. You can use a standard chef's salad recipe or your own variation. Another suggestion — add the meat to a macaroni salad.

Try sausage in a cheese omelet for added protein and good taste. Or, add sausage to a casserole. In general, you can substitute sausage or luncheon meat for cooked ham in any casserole or meat pie.

Taste treats are waiting at the cold meat counter. Why not take advantage of these convenience foods?

Delaware Clean Earth Committee

Governor Russell W. Peterson and his Cabinet are out to back the theme "Every Day is Earth Day" in Delaware. At last Thursday's Cabinet session, members agreed to set aside Saturday as a second clean-up day patterned on the successful effort of last April.

Richard L. Murchison, chairman of the Delaware Clean Earth Committee and co-ordinator for the drive, briefed the cabinet on the current campaign, which is aimed at clearing up some of the state's worst litter spots and educating the public on the litter problem. Thirteen districts have been laid out covering Delaware's three counties. Each department secretary will co-ordinate team efforts in a specified district. The Governor's executive office, the department of public instruction, and Delaware Technical and Community College will also participate.

The governor and his staff plan to take on the Little Creek, Lafferty's Corner area. Other area allocations to be undertaken by the secretaries include:

G. Wallace Caulk, agriculture, Harrington area.
Robert L. Halbrook, Jr., community affairs and economic development, Farmington area.

Holiday parties call for special clothes; save money—make your own. It's easy if you buy a glamorous fabric and choose the simplest style you can find.
Brocades and matelasses are among the most beautiful fabrics for party clothes. You'll lace and chiffons. In fact, also find metallics, velvets, your main problem may be making a choice.
Even if you choose a pattern with few seam lines and details, be careful about placement of the fabric design. If the large designs in some brocades are placed over your most prominent curves, the effect may not be the most pleasing.
The center back seam should be planned so the design matches. The distortion of fabric design by poorly planned seam lines can destroy the effect of the fabric. Brocades may show a slight color difference if pattern pieces are not all cut in the same direction.
Also, brocades are apt to ravel so use a zig-zag stitch along the fabric edge. If you don't have a zig-zag machine, a line of stitching along the cut edge can retard raveling.
Baste the garment together to test the fit before machine stitching. Marks left from ripping seams may show forever.
Experiment with pressing on a scrap of your fabric to test fabric reaction to steam, heat and pressure.
Metallic fabrics look like glamour itself if you have the figure for them. If a glittery candidate must meet are as follows:

1. Be a Kent County farmer resident.
2. Receive the written endorsement of ten other landowners or farm operators in the county and present this endorsement to the Kent County Soil Conservation District, Dover by November 26.
3. Reside in the Southwest quadrant of Kent County (that area of the county east of Route 13, north to Rt. 10, west to Delaware-Maryland state line, and south to the Kent and Sussex County line.
Merritt Camper, Harrington, is the present supervisor whose term expires December 31. Mr. Camper was re-nominated by the board as a candidate for the election. This procedure is in keeping with the rules as presented by the State Soil Conservation Commission in conducting the annual election of a supervisor.

Election For Soil and Conservation District Supervisors To Be Held

The Kent County Soil and Water Conservation District Board of Supervisors announced that nominations may be made for a supervisor to serve on the District Board. The term will start January 1, and continue for a four year period. The election will be held in December. The date and time will be announced later.
Any interested farmer or landowner who desires to be a candidate for election to the Board may be nominated by ten or more farmers or landowners of the county. Three requirements that a the options available to each grower. Producers receiving amounts of less than $3 will not receive a notice, but should contact their local office for additional information.

Lester states that producer's share of the export certificate pool will amount to about 66 cents for each $100 of 1968 domestic certificated earned. A producer may choose to receive his share of the export certificate pool or he may leave it in the pool to finance the research and promotion program under the newly formed National Wheat Institute.

The institute is a non-profit organization representing a cooperative effort among wheat producers groups to increase domestic wheat use.
The national 1968 wheat export certificate pool of about $4.2 million is the result of legislation passed several years ago providing for excess collections of export certificates to be distributed pro-rata among wheat growers.
Contributions not claimed by producers prior to December 25, will automatically be retained to finance wheat research and market promotion programs.

Wheat export certificate payments are being distributed to producers who received a 1968 domestic certificate, according to Richard Lester, chairman of the Delaware Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee.
Wheat growers whose share of the export certificate pool amounts to $3 or more will receive notice directly from their county ASC office telling them what their share of the pool is and explaining

THANK YOU!

This week I am visiting many of the places where I campaigned to thank the voters for their confidence in electing me to the U.S. House of Representatives.

If I missed seeing you, I hope that those of you who can will visit me in Washington after the first of the year. If you do not have the opportunity to come to the capital, Congressional offices will be available in Delaware where I can meet with Delawareans on a regular basis.

Again, Elise and I thank you for your support.

Spartans Beat Delmar, 28-12

Lake Forest's football Spartans downed winless Delmar 28-12 in the railroad town on Friday night, to even their season's log at four victories and as many defeats.

The locals scored in every period, while giving up two, long, scoring strikes to the losers.

Lawrence Sorden, the sophomore quarterback, who is Lake Forest's top scorer, put the Spartans on the scoreboard early, with a 70 yard punt return. Sorden then passed to Mickey Chaffinch for the two extra points.

Dale Motter tallied from eleven yards out in the second period and Frank Daniels caught a Sorden extra-point toss to send the Spartans into the intermission with a 16-0 bulge.

Elzey of Delmar thrilled the hometown fans with a 90-yard return of the second-half kickoff, to give the Wildcats a six-pointer. A pass try for two extra points failed.

Lake Forest widened its lead when Rick Porter intercepted a Wildcat aerial and returned it 40 yards. The extra points pass didn't connect.

The Spartans' final touchdown came as Frank Daniels snared a 15-yarder from Sorden.

Delmar closed out the scoring on a 47 yard bomb from Hearn to Pedersen.

Dover Air's Falcons bring their 2-6 record to the W. T. Chipman School stadium on Friday night. This contest is the annual homecoming game and is one the Spartans want to put in the win column in order to enter the Thanksgiving Day finale at Milford with a 5-4 log.

An upset victory over Milford on Turkey Day would enable the Spartans to keep "The Bell" for another 12 months.

Spartan Harriers Are Second in State Title Run

Lake Forest's 1969 state champions were upset by P.S. DuPont of Wilmington, in their bid to become one of the few schools to rack up back-to-back titles. The locals finished second in the field of 14 schools.

Chris Wetherhold was third behind Dover Air's fantastic Dan Rincon, last year's champion also and Cape Henlopen's Aaron Price. Rincon's great 12:55.4 clocking missed the course record of 12:55.1 established earlier in the day by John Greenplate of Newark. Wetherhold covered the rugged 2.6 miles, Polly Drummons Hill course in 13:33 approximately 20 seconds faster than his 1969 effort.

Brad Morris was tenth for the Spartans in 14:22 compared to a 14:54, last year, when he was seventh. Allen Parker, the Spartans No. 3 harrier this campaign, became ill and finished in 64th place. This was the knockout blow to the Spartan's title hope.

Billy Stubbs, who had never done well in three previous workouts at the University of Delaware, did a fine job this time. Stubbs came in 19th in 14:57, some 70 seconds faster than his previous best. Sam Bostick was 21st, one second behind Stubbs.

Jackie D. Parker, a slender sophomore, is a "money runner." He always runs a great race in the state meet. He's done it four times, to date. Once, he did a fine job with not one but two separate ailments. This time he battled a cold and ran the equivalent of 40 seconds faster, than his fine effort of 1969.

J. D. Parker, Stubbs and Jim Dill are the only Spartan starters, who do not graduate.

A fouled-up, junior varsity race saw many runners go off the course and run many yards less than the rest of the field.

Top Spartans were Bob Smith (3rd) Rick Hamm (5th). Both received trophies along with Wetherhold and Morris.

Dennis Wright and Bill Erne ran very well in their first state meet, getting 13th and 20th spots.

Chris Adamo was 21st, the improving Martin Miller was 26th and Don Woods was 31st.

Dover Air's Matt Rincon was 20th in the varsity race. After alternating good and poor efforts, in his first full season, he scored his greatest performance for the most important test.

Harriers Outrun Laurel 16-44

Chris Wetherhold is only one race away from a perfect, four-year, dual meet record, after easily finishing first in a meet with Laurel, at the Killen's Pond State Park Course, on Friday afternoon. Wetherhold's 49th straight, dual meet win, helped Harold McDonald's Lake Forest Spartans remain unbeaten by a score of 16-44.

Brad Morris, Sam Bostick and Billy Stubbs, also finished ahead of Patchett, Laurel's first runner. Allen Parker, the No. 3 Spartan, was ill but still managed to get sixth place, with sophomore Jackie D. Parker in seventh. Jim Blades' W. T. Chipman School team turned in some very fine clockings recently over the 2.4 miles course.

Eighth grader, Vernon Bowers, had a 14:08 with seventh grader Howard Parker, one second back. Rudy Bordley, grade eight and David Moore, grade seven were third and fourth. Moore, like Bowers, had his best workout ever.

John Pickett's 15:23 was sensational when compared to his former record of 17:19. Kim O'Toole, Eddie Thompson, Dave Williamson and Charles Scott came across the line in fine style, followed by Terry Pettyjohn who sliced off seventeen seconds and Lester Blades, who improved by 67 seconds. Blades, a chunky seventh grader, works very hard and beats many runners with more slender physiques.

Harrington Bowling League

Jarrell Fuel gave McKnatt Funeral Home a good scare before bowling in the final two games and total wood, as they trounced their opponents in the first match of their setto. Harold Melvin provided the extra scoring punch needed with a 529 series for the fuelers. Robert Garey rolled a superb 552 series, with a great 233 game included to help set the pace for the frontrunners. Donald McKnatt also had a fine 203 game, and Larry Garey, came through in fine form to add a very fine performance to help McKnatt's overcome the always strong Jarrell Fuel quintet.

Ken Layton again showed superb bowling skill, as he hit a grand 587 series, with games of 200 and 225 included to lead Gerardi Bros., to a four game victory over the Harrington Package squad. Donald Jester and LeRoy Wheeler also hit good scores, with Jester coming through with a great 200 game, amassing a grand 557 series, and Wheeler hitting a great 567 series with a good 201 game included for the furniture boys. The Gerardi Bros. squad also moved way out on top of the team series category with a grand 2675 effort recorded Tuesday night. Herb Robbins was the big gun for the Package team with a great 204 game and a fine 525 series. Jeff Robbins and Harry Brown also bowled well in defeat.

People's Restaurant was not up for their setto with Penn Central, and as a result, dropped three games to the railroaders. Ken Baker hit a very fine 521 series to lead the spike drivers to victory, and Marion Brown also chipped in with a very good 200 game and a fine 519 series to also contribute heavily toward the conquest. The rest of the Central's squad had above average performances or very close to it, to make the victory a full team effort.

George Collins, scorched the boards for a superb 244 game while amassing a grand 584 series, and Tom Brown and Bobby Collins came through in grand form to give Taylor & Messick the extra power they needed to overcome Quillen's Market. Don Wilson and Robert Silbereisen rolled well for the grocery boys tho they dropped all four games to the farm boys quintet.

Dave Ryan hit a very fine 546 series, and Norman Woodall, James Shultie and Larry Breeding gave very good efforts in a winning cause as Wally's Garage swamped the Spoilers in all four games. George Sapp bowled well for the losers. John Shaffer, although on the losing side, made it a night to remember as he hit three consecutive 152 games to earn himself a triplicate patch.

Meanwhile, just a few lanes down, Ralph Butler, of the Butler's Fuel squad was matching Shaffer's performance with three above-average games of 155 to also get coveted triplicate patch. Nice going, John and Ralph.

Butler's fine performance was about all there was to cheer about though, as the fuelers dropped all four games to the Gallo & Stevenson quintet. The entire construction boy's squad came through with above average performances to carry the team to victory. Leading the way was Carmine Gallo with a great 539 series with Ed Hobbs and Bob Stevenson also figuring very heavily in the scoring. Robert Wright, besides Ralph Butler's good effort, was the only other squad member to hit above his average for the fuelers, as they dropped down into the cellar spot on their loss.
