Up-To-Date Turkey

Turkey is as American as Thanksgiving. Or vice versa. But the bird has gone modern, according to Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension foods and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. A far cry from the rangy, tough wild turkey of pioneer times is today's well-fleshed, tender bird. And, the modern inspected and graded turkey is available frozen throughout the year, whole or cut-up, as large or as small as you need it—even pre-stuffed, self-basting or rolled and boneless.

The federal inspection seal is your assurance that the turkey was healthy and was carefully watched throughout the packing operation. But the inspection mark only goes as far as the packing plant, says Miss Krackhardt. So be sure the package isn't torn or damaged and that the turkey is hard-frozen when you buy it.

Then, take it home and refrigerate it quickly. Keep frozen turkey hard-frozen until it's time to thaw, then cook promptly after thawing. Turkeys frozen with the neck and giblets inside must be thawed before cooking. Remove the neck and giblets as soon as possible, cook them promptly and refrigerate. The broth and cut-up meat can be used in many stuffing recipes.

You can thaw turkey in the refrigerator, in cold water or at room temperature, depending on how much time you have. In all cases, keep the turkey wrapped. Cold water thawing is the quickest; it takes from three to ten hours, depending on the size. It may take three days to thaw a large turkey in the refrigerator.

Slow cooking is best whether you are preparing a whole turkey or a boneless roast. Roasting is the traditional method, but turkey parts or pieces can be fried or broiled, also.

The length of time it takes to get done depends on many different things, so check your cookbook. To help you tell when it's finally done, there is no substitute for a meat thermometer. Put it in the thick, inside thigh muscle. "But be careful that the bulb doesn't touch the bone," says Miss Krackhardt. When the thermometer reaches 180-185 degrees F., the turkey is done. If it's stuffed, the thermometer should reach 165 degrees F. when the bulb is placed in the center of the stuffing.

Of course, stuffing is almost as traditional as the Thanksgiving bird itself, every cook has a favorite recipe. More and more homemakers are saving labor and cooking time — and taking a cue from professional chefs. They don't stuff the turkey, particularly if it's a large turkey.

Instead, the dressing is baked in a loaf pan during the last hour the turkey is roasting. You can baste this stuffing with turkey pan drippings.

Leftover turkey needs proper care, too, says Miss Krackhardt. As soon as you can after serving, remove every bit of stuffing from the turkey and take the meat from the bones. Cool the stuffing, meat and any gravy promptly and don't wrap until cooled.

Refrigerate leftovers in separate containers. Use the gravy and stuffing within three or four days; heat thoroughly before you serve.

Refrigerated turkey meat should be served within two or three days. However, small packages of meat can be frozen and held up to a month. Cooked poultry slices or pieces covered with gravy will be good six months.

One final precaution—never freeze an uncooked, stuffed turkey or a roasted one, Warns Miss Krackhardt.

the ushers have received the regular Sunday morning collection, everyone is invited to bring to the altar other offerings of food and other items for the poor.

This coming Sunday at the 10:45 service of divine worship the Episcopal churchwomen are invited to put their United Thank Offering boxes in the regular collection plate.

This is being done because this was the only convenient Sunday before the deadline for the UTO boxes to be presented. And since the special Thanksgiving offering of things for the needy is being brought, it was felt that it was best not to have the women bring their boxes forward as is the usual custom at St. Stephen's.

Christmas is less than one month off! It is therefore, time to sign up for Christmas poinsettias. Both at last Easter and last Christmas the offering for flowers was adequate enough for decorating the altar beautifully but a little bit more modestly than in former years. And in addition to providing an offering in each case exceeded $25.00 and which went to the building fund, we shall again follow that custom this year. Those who wish to contribute and to thus memorialize their loved ones through these contributions are asked to get a suitable form from the table in the rear of the nave and to fill it out and get it back no later than Sunday, December 20th.

The Dover Choral Society which is one of the outstanding cultural organizations of our area will present a concert at the Middle School Auditorium in Dover on Sunday, December 6th at 4 p.m. In addition to festive music so suitable to the seasons of Thanksgiving and Christmas, Mozart's immortal "Requiem and Kyrie Elison" will be presented.

THE ENVOYS QUARTET, of Rockway, N.J., will present a program of hymns, gospel songs and spirituals at Calvary Wesleyan Church Sunday, Nov. 29 at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. The Rev. Wm. H. Miller cordially invites all to hear the Envoys.

Del. Turfgrass Conference Schedule

The Delaware Turfgrass Association and the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service have scheduled their fourth annual Turfgrass Conference for Monday, December 7, at Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

This year's conference will include reports on student projects and turf and ornamental disease research at the University of Delaware. Dr. James B. Beard, turfgrass specialist at Michigan State University, will report on turfgrass research in Michigan.

Also on the program will be David Paterson, Longwood Gardens, Pa., Richard Valentine, superintendent of Merion Golf Club, Ardmore, Pa., Ron Boydston, superintendent of Rockhill Country Club, Speakhill, N. Y., and Ben Warren, Warren's Turf Nurseries, Palos Park, Ill.

Topics featured at the conference will include tips on rhododendron culture; Kentucky Bluegrass development, shade studies with turfgrass; the gypsy moth in Delaware, and experiences with fertilizer injected into water systems. Preparations for the 1971 National Open Golf Championship will also be discussed.

Highlights of the program will be an evening banquet at The Horseless Carriage, Rts. 95 and 273, Newark. James Flynn, assistant coach at the University of Delaware, will discuss the University's athletic program.

The conference is open to those interested in turf and home lawn care as well as Turfgrass Association members. The program will begin at 8:30 a.m.

Frank H. Searles Jr.

Frank H. Searles Jr., 66, of Harrington, died Wed., Nov. 18, at his home after a long illness.

He was a lifelong resident of Delaware.

He retired from the Dairy Herd Improvement Association earlier this year.

He was a World War II veteran, serving in the Navy. He was a member of the Milford post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

He is survived by his wife, Dorothy; two daughters, Mrs. Jean M. Carey, of Smyrna, and Mrs. Lois M. Brittingham, of Dover; and a grandson.

Services were private. Interment was in Odd Fellows Cemetery in Camden.

The United States Army is offering qualified young men and women a unique and valuable opportunity to prepare for a professional nursing career through the Walter Reed Army Institute of Nursing (WRAIN) program.

"If their application is accepted," said Sergeant James L. Gallagher, local Army recruiter, nearly all educational expenses are met by the Army for four years. In addition, they receive the pay and allowances of an E-3 (PFC) but do not have to attend any military training."

Prerequisites include high class standing in high school and satisfactory performance on the college entrance examination board or the American College Test.

The first two years are spent in an accredited four-year college or university of their own choice, where they complete general educational and pre-professional course. The Army pays tuition and fees to the college and the student receives monthly pay and allowances for room, board and personal expenses.

The candidates enroll in the University of Maryland's School of Nursing for the last two years. The Walter Reed Army Medical Center provides clinical nursing and other educational experiences.

Upon graduation and successful completion of a state licensure examination in professional nursing, the candidate is commissioned a first lieutenant in the United States Army. The obligation for service is three years.

Established in 1901, the Army Nurse Corps is the oldest of all the military services for women and since 1956, has also accepted male nurses.

Nearly 5,000 Army nurses are carrying on the heritage to serve the soldier and his family when and where most needed. If you are interested in being a member of this selfless, elite corps, see Sergeant Gallagher at the Blue Hen Mall. He will be glad to give you further information about registration, admittance deadlines and any other questions you might have concerning this program.

Prerequisites include high class standing in high school and satisfactory performance on the college entrance examination board or the American College Test.

The first two years are spent in an accredited four-year college or university of their own choice, where they complete general educational and pre-professional course. The Army pays tuition and fees to the college and the student receives monthly pay and allowances for room, board and personal expenses.

The candidates enroll in the University of Maryland's School of Nursing for the last two years. The Walter Reed Army Medical Center provides clinical nursing and other educational experiences.

Upon graduation and successful completion of a state licensure examination in professional nursing, the candidate is commissioned a first lieutenant in the United States Army. The obligation for service is three years.

Established in 1901, the Army Nurse Corps is the oldest of all the military services for women and since 1956, has also accepted male nurses.

Nearly 5,000 Army nurses are carrying on the heritage to serve the soldier and his family when and where most needed. If you are interested in being a member of this selfless, elite corps, see Sergeant Gallagher at the Blue Hen Mall. He will be glad to give you further information about registration, admittance deadlines and any other questions you might have concerning this program.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Holberton
 When Thanksgiving dinner is over and everyone is "stuffed to the gills," the thought of more turkey may be more than you can take. Yet there's lots of meat left to deal with. It's worth the time and energy to pick the bones clean and freeze the meat to be used in all kinds of delicious ways later on. If you can't face it right after dinner, then remove the stuffing from the turkey and store well wrapped separately. Stuffing and gravy should be used within one or two days. The leftover turkey (unless frozen) should be used within three or four days. The important thing to remember is cooked turkey dries out quickly after a meal, so it should be refrigerated as soon as possible.
 Here are a couple of suggestions about freezing. Cut the turkey in slices and freeze in small meal-size packages. Use within a month. The meat that can't be sliced can be cut in bite-size pieces and frozen on a cookie sheet, then broken up and placed in a freezing bag. This way you can get out a cup or one-half cup, or whatever you need. Use the cut up meat within one to two months.
 Now some ideas on how to use, regardless of whether you freeze the leftover turkey or not. A delicious breakfast is waffled turkey—sliced cooked turkey with cranberry relish between two slices of buttered bread, dipped in a beaten egg-milk mixture, and baked in a hot waffle iron until golden brown. Quite good and a real eye opener.
 For a light supper or midnight snack serve turkey burgers—combine ground turkey meat, onion, and a beaten egg and serve with relish in toast buns.
 If you have a taste for the Oriental, serve this dish for dinner—it's delightful. Use three cups of diced turkey in a sweet sour sauce with chunks of pineapple, green pepper and onion added for texture and flavor. Serve over hot rice.
 There are dozens of ways to make tasty turkey salad, and a salad is good at any meal. Try using Julienne strips of turkey, Swiss cheese and ham on crisp dry greens, served with a pitcher of Roquefort dressing. This makes a tempting tossed salad. Other salad suggestions are turkey cranberry salad, turkey avocado salad, anandine, turkey pineapple salad, and hot turkey salad, just to name a few. Of course the easiest way to give turkey its encore is to warm turkey slices in gravy. Turkey, Chowder, hash, chili, curry, and turkey a la king are other suggestions.
 The vegetable and fruit counters continue to look much as they have for the past two weeks with cabbage, broccoli, white and sweet potatoes, onions, cranberries, grapefruit, oranges, and apples being the better buy.
 Look for more good buys on beef next week, since everyone will be anxious for a change.

also add distinctive flavor. Serve cranberry - apple sauce with roast pork or pork chops in place of the more usual applesauce. Combine equal amounts of sliced apples and cranberries; add about a half-cup of cranberry juice or water to prevent scorching. Cook the cranberry - apple mixture until tender, then sweeten to taste. This sauce is also delicious with turkey or chicken.
 Miss Krackhardt also suggests that you add chopped raw cranberries to the prepared herb stuffing for turkey or chicken.
 For a basic cranberry relish, grind washed, fresh cranberries and oranges with rind, quartered and seeded. Stir in sugar to taste, and your relish is ready to serve or freeze.
 For variety, use dark corn syrup for half of the sugar called for — the fragrant caramel flavor goes well with fresh roast pork. You can also use honey for half of the sugar.
 Orange marmalade makes a pleasing sweetener, too. Use a half-cup orange marmalade and a quarter-cup corn syrup for each cup of sugar. The combination of fresh oranges and orange marmalade is exceptionally pleasant.
 Add variety — and pleasure — to fall meals with cranberries.

FENCE TALK

Here's George Vapaa

Farmers, by tradition, think of themselves as producers. Years ago when we had a rural economy, farmers grew a little bit of most everything as a part of the family farm. They traded off eggs for groceries, raised one hog to butcher and the other to sell, kept a family cow and made their own butter. It was called the good old days.

But now the farm is much larger, more specialized, and highly mechanized. Few farmers rate as good salesmen, because selling too has become a special skill. A man may do a good job of raising a crop, only to wind up giving it away or selling too cheaply. This because he may not understand market trends or cycles.

Yet farmers have learned they can buy such marketing talent through their cooperatives or other sales units. One such local company is the Delaware Produce Growers' Association, set up in 1956 or 1957 to market white potatoes. Not only do the members sell their crop under a brand name, but they also find they can reduce costs with group buying of fertilizers, sprays, and seed.

This is one of the things your county agent likes to reflect on as I prepare to retire on disability at the end of the year.

Here is Francis Webb

Johnsongrass meetings to be held in each county. With the enactment of the new Delaware Johnsongrass law, any person owning land (including a single building lot) that has this weed pest on their property should try to attend one of these meetings. The law states that it will be illegal for any landowner to allow Johnsongrass to go to seed or propagate this pest by any means.

Believe me, this is not a law that is working against anyone. The State Department of Agriculture states that the law will be enforced, but emphasis will be placed on helping the landowners to control and eradicate the pest. Every effort will be made to cooperate and work with any landowner with a Johnsongrass infestation.

The University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service is promoting an educational program this winter to inform landowners on identification, methods of control and finally eradication programs for most infested areas. The first set of meetings will be held the first of December consisting of one program held in each county. The session in New Castle County will be December 8 at Crothers Store in Middletown at 7:30 p.m. Kent County's will be on December 10 in the Capital Grange Hall, Dover at 7:30 p.m. Sussex County's session will be on December 15th at the University of Delaware Substation in Georgetown at 7:30 p.m.

If you are a landowner with Johnsongrass problems, I certainly encourage you to attend one of these meetings. If you have any questions about these meetings call your County Extension Office. Kent County is 736-1448.

Winter is coming and many of you have shrubs that should have winter protection particularly broadleaf evergreens. If you have evergreen plants that had discolored foliage, such as browned edges, yellow color and produced little growth this past summer, many times this can be caused by winter injury.

The best ways to help plants through the winter is, first, by putting a 2 to 4 inch mulch around the plant after cold weather sets in, and second, by placing burlap or some other type of wind break around the plants. Something else that you should keep in mind is watering in the winter if there is an extended period with no rain or snow. Evergreen plants are still living and respiring in the winter despite the cold weather.

If you would like to have a booklet on care of plants and shrubs, just call in to the Extension Office at 736-1448.

Parasites Can Reduce Livestock Profits

Livestock producers lose millions of dollars each year to parasites. And total losses are even higher when diseases to which parasite-weakened animals fall victim are also included, points out Dr. Richard Fowler, extension livestock specialist at the University of Delaware.

The first step to controlling and eliminating parasites is to understand how they infest livestock.

Parasites are organisms that feed off other living organisms, explains Fowler. Fleas, lice, ticks and mites are the most common external parasites. But inside the host, roundworms, hookworms and tapeworms also cause considerable damage.

Horses, cattle, pigs, sheep, goats, dogs, cats and rabbits may serve as hosts. And since these animals often live in close confinement and under insanitary conditions, parasites are often difficult to control.

Young stocks are more susceptible to parasites. Immature animals may die of anemia caused by blood-sucking worms in the intestinal tract or from severe infestations of lice on the outside.

Other young animals die from damage to vital organs caused by immature forms of roundworms and flukes moving through the organs during their life cycle.

As these animals reach maturity they develop some immunity to the effects of internal parasites and certain external ones. The natural defenses will keep parasites under control, except in adverse conditions and times of stress.

The best way to control parasites is to break their life cycle, says Fowler. And this is accomplished by preventing infection of the animal by immature forms of the parasite.

Pasture rotation, cleanliness and good sanitation practices also help. And in areas of intense livestock production, slatted floors for penned animals help prevent reinfection from contaminated wastes.

Most livestock also need regular vermifuge treatments to destroy internal parasites until the animal is old enough to establish immunity. Even then, periodic worming is necessary.

External parasites are best controlled with recommended sprays and powders.

If you have a serious parasite problem with livestock, consult a veterinarian for a complete control program, adds Fowler.

Del. Farm Income Sets New Record In '69

Delaware's cash farm income broke all records in 1969 reaching $153 million. This is more than $10 million above the previous high set in 1967, according to Dr. Raymond Smith, chairman of the department of agricultural economics at the University of Delaware. Smith provides an economic analysis of Delaware's crop and livestock production for 1969 in a new publication, "Delaware Farm Income."

Several factors including an increase in production for almost every major crop produced in the state, slightly higher prices for most crops and a substantial increase in the number of broilers produced for the increase in cash farm income, says Smith. Cash income from crops was $43.8 million — an increase of $3.3 million from 1968 — and cash income from livestock and livestock products was $107 million, up $21.1 million from the previous year.

Although acreage devoted to the production of vegetables decreased substantially, broiler production increased by 18.6 million birds in 1969.

Farm production costs also continued to rise. Expenses increased by $10.8 million to an all-time high of $107.3 million. But the value of inventories on Delaware farms also increased by $6.2 million.

As a result of these changes, Smith points out that net farm income increased from $35.6 million in 1968 to $59.9 million in 1969. And net income per farm increased by 72.4 percent to a record $15,767.

The number of acres planted in corn decreased by 7,000 in 1969. But an average yield of 78 bushels per acre increased the total production of corn by 52.9 percent. Indications are that corn acreages were increased by 20,000 acres this year.

Soybean acreage remained constant at 162,000 acres in 1969 and 1970, says Smith. With an average yield of 29 bushels per acre — substantially above the average total soybean production increased by 58.3 percent.

Broilers continued as the number one farm commodity in Delaware producing $86.4 million (56.5 percent) of the state's cash farm income. Corn sales totaled $11.3 million, soybeans $10.2 million, vegetable crops $8.9 million, fluid milk $8.6 million, eggs $5.3 million, cattle $1.8 million and hogs $3.3 million.

Copies of the pamphlet, "Delaware's Farm Income," published by the Agricultural Experiment Station, are available from the Mailing Room, Agriculture Hall, University of Delaware, Newark 19711.

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

If you sew, you might as well aim for copies of expensive clothes rather than inexpensive ones. You get a better return for the time you invest in sewing projects.

Recently, Charles Kleibacker, famous New York designer, was in Wilmington and gave seamstresses the opportunity to see the construction techniques he uses on his expensive custom made clothing. Mr. Kleibacker is a master of the soft, fluid line and bias cuts and adapts techniques to achieve the effect he wants—a smooth unstructured appearance.

All of his garments are underlined, but the underlining fabric must be soft so he won't lose the fluid line of the crepes and soft knits he uses. He prefers a very soft silk shantung for underlinings. This fabric takes the place of interfacing, too, and the interfacing as such, is eliminated.

He may use a piece of seam binding as a stay at neckline edges, however, to help keep the neckline shape. In some styles, even a separate facing is eliminated and he cuts the garment edge slightly wider to fold over as a flat hem rather than a facing. This appears on dresses with a V neck on curved grain of fabric. A straight neckline would necessitate a shaped facing.

Edges of hems and facings are left flat and may be hand overcast if the fabric ravel. In fact, all seams were overcast by hand—one of the contributing factors to the high cost. Shirt hems also were left with raw edges to contribute to the smooth look.

Mr. Kleibacker said that any bias seams should be stretched as much as possible when stitched to eliminate the uneven hemlines often seen on bias cuts.

It's impressive—the way designers adapt techniques to the fabrics and to the style of garment. This emphasizes the fact that there are many sewing techniques—all of them correct in their place if you know the effect you want. Fashions change and necessarily techniques change. No one technique is appropriate at all times.

Always ask yourself the reason for the technique you are templating. Then, experiment with your fabric to see if it gives the effect you want. You might even discover an entirely new technique. Then you'll be on your way to creating couture fashions for yourself.

Seed Corn Outlook For '71 Examined

Corn seed producers turn to old-fashion production methods to avoid problems with Southern corn blight in 1971.

Seed corn produced by hand detasseling is less susceptible to serious infections of Southern corn blight than seed now widely used, according to John N. Weidman, Eastern division sales manager of Pioneer Corn Company.

Speaking at a recent meeting on corn blight at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation, he advised farmers to examine eth tags on seed they buy for next year's crop carefully.

Most seed companies are identifying seed corn according to its method of production — or source of cytoplasm — thereby identifying its probable resistance to Southern corn leaf blight.

Seed from foundation stock hand detasseled will be designated by an "N" for normal cytoplasm which is resistant to the disease. This does not mean all seed tagged with an "N" will produce top yields, cautions Weidman. Some varieties of this seed will not be suited to local soil and weather conditions. Thus, farmers should remember to select varieties that have been tested for their area.

Corn produced from non-detasseled Texas male sterile lines will be marked with a "T". Last year, 70 to 80 percent of all corn was produced from these lines.

Unfortunately, this corn is susceptible to Helminthosporium maydis the fungus producing Southern corn leaf blight. Corn producers are advised to stay clear of these hybrids unless they are yielding varieties and they have demonstrated some genetic tolerance to the disease.

Blends identified with a "B" will contain a mixture of blight-resistant "N" seed and blight-susceptible "T" seed. This type of seed corn will be the most popular because of supply and price.

Although the American Association and the U. S. Department of Agriculture have reported there will be closed to 15 million bushels of seed corn available for U. S. producers in 1971, only 20 percent of this is expected to be "N" seed, says Weidman. Over 37 percent of the seed corn will be of the "T" type and the remainder "B" type.

Weidman says farmers should plant nonresistant (T) seed and blends as early as possible (but not earlier than recommended) to minimize blight damage.

Some farmers have considered planting F2, or second generation seed corn, that has not been affected by the blight. This practice is not recommended, cautions Weidman. Tests have shown that single-cross F2 seed yield 30 percent less than parent stock, double-crossed F2 seed 10 percent less and triple-crossed F2 seed between 10 and 30 percent less.

Chipman Harriers Were Tops In Peregrinating

Probably the most-travelled scholastic sports team in local history was this year's W. T. Chipman School cross-country team. Ably coached by Jim Blades, these youngsters completed in Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

They ran several times after the school season was over and at one time or another this campaign were in action at Dover Air, Middletown, Wilmington, the University of Delaware at Newark, at North Caroline High, Denton, Md. Washington College at Chestertown, Md., Dover, Milford, Caesar Rodney, Pennsville, N. J., and New York City, in addition to several home meets at Killen's Pond State Park.

In the Pennsville, N. J., outing, the locals entered races in three age groups and almost scored a clean sweep. Philadelphia's Somerdale Boys Club and the host South Jersey Track Club were on the scene, when the twenty-five lads from Viola, Frederica, Felton and Harrington arrived.

In the first test, Ken "Bullet" Cerklefskie, age 8 had a lot of rivals in the 8-9 test, but only one, a talented lad from Philadelphia, was better than the locals fourth grader. Afterwards, we found that the race winner was 13 months older, than "Bullet."

In the 11-and-under race, Howard Parker, who has since passed his 12th birthday, had another tough race with his archrival, Gordon Thompson, of Newark. This pair drew steadily away from the field and delighted Dave Romansky of Pennsville, the meet organizer. Romansky represented this country in the Olympic Games at Mexico City and holds several American and world records. Parker and Thompson are two of America's finest young trackmen, prompting Romansky to arrange this confrontation.

Parker drew away from Thompson in the homestretch, to win the 1 1/4 miles test in 7.51. Meanwhile, Eric Hamscher was running a Philadelphia lad into the ground to get third place. John Moffett and another Philadelphia rival were duelling for fifth place, with Moffett becoming an easy victor in the race's late stages.

In the 1 1/4 miles race for 13-and-under, Vernon Bowers and Rudy Bordley of W.T. Chipman School were first and second holding off another Somerdale Boys Club athlete in the homestretch. Bowers had a fine 7.55 clocking. Bordley did 7.56.

Frederica's Dave Moore was a close fourth in 8.04. Eddie Thompson (8.10) Charles Scott (8.17) Kim O'Toole (8.21) Russell Dill (8.25) were close in contention all the way. Others to run well were: Terry Pettyjohn, Wayne Vosshell, Kevin Wooters, Lester Blades and Ron Woods.

With a first, third and fifth in the 11-and-under race; a first, second and fourth in the 13-and-under and a runnerup spot for the only local entry in the 8-9 event, it's easy to see how complete was the domination of the kids from this area. One Philadelphia runner, said to a Feltonian, "Where are your guys from? You've really got a good team."

Jim Blade's boys won a flock of ribbons, medals, plaques and trophies by dint of their fast running. Practically every local got a prize or two. Next year should see an even larger turnout, than this year's 25-man squad.

Five Mile Race At Killen's Pond Park On Nov. 29

At 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, November 29, a five mile race will be held at Killen's Pond State Park cross-country course, next to Lake Forest High School.

The first race of the winter series was held at Rockford Park, Wilmington last Sunday, with Dover Air High's Dan Rincon, defeating Newark High's John Greenplate, in a battle of scholastic state champions. Although the race was open to college runners, the first finishers were high schoooy harriers. Caesar Rodney's Jim Waldbusser was third.

Some of Delaware's finest long distance runners will compete here in Sunday's test. The following week's race will be at the University of Delaware's course, Polly Drummond Hill, Newark.

December 13th the runners will vie at Middletown and close with a December 20th, grind at Banning Park, near Newport.

"Bullet" Is Of World-Record Caliber, Too

Earlier this autumn, Ken "Bullet" Cerklefskie, established his second American record, when he ran two miles in 14.41 at Washington College, Chestertown, Md. That same day, Howard Parker set a world mark for age 11, three mile run.

Cerklefskie's mark was in the age 8 class. The younger lad had averaged a very good 7.20.5 per mile. The world record for one mile in the age eight group is 6.50, which seemed to be beyond the Chipman School fourth grader.

A few days before the lad's 9th birthday in November, it was discovered that he had run his first mile, that, U.S. record-setting day, in 7.42 and had covered the second mile in 7.02.1. This would indicate, that he could easily eclipse 6.50 for one mile.

Arrangements were made to get that world mark, but he came down with a virus on the scheduled day and became nine a day or two later. Cerklefskie, we predict, will be a great runner some day. He has great, natural ability and has had a tremendous, first season.

Well, it looks as though McKnatt Funeral Home picked up where they left off after losing the first third by a near 1/2 game, moving to the top of the league by swamping Penn Central in all four games. Harry Jack was the only one able to surpass his average for the McKnatt quintet as the team bowled their capabilities. Penn Central also had trouble putting together a strong showing although Bob Murphy rolled well for the rail-roads in defeat.

Snooky Collins hit a great 223 game, amassed a grand 561 series, George Collins bowled a very fine 222 game; Bobby Collins rolled a fine 221 game, and Kenny P. Outten hit a good 208 game to put Taylor & Messick in second place with the same standings as the leaders. Tom Brown also aided the farm boys attack with an above average performance. John Shaffer bowled well in a losing cause for the Spoilers as they dropped all four of their games.

John Forbes also rolled very well with a fine 531 series for the furniture boys. The entire Quillen's Market squad bowled very well, enabling them to capture one game.

Robert Jarrell made a gallant effort at trying to win lane money from the respective sponsors by rolling a superb 247 game, collecting a grand 578 game in a 564 series as Jarrell Fuel took three games from People's Restaurant. Cloyd Bushy, Norman Clough and Robert Keller bowled very well for the restaurant boys. Martin Jarrell, though only bowling two games, made his presence felt by rolling two identical games, well above his average for a grand effort for Jarrell's.

Butler's Fuel is right in the thick of things as they took three games from Harrington Package in Tuesday nights clash. Sam Lyons scattered the pins for a superb 232 game, and Ronald Wright hit a fine 209 game, with Ralph Butler chipping in a fine above average effort to help offset the Package Store's grand performance received from Harry Brown. Brown's superb 601 series, including grand 214 and 219 games, coupled with Herb Robbins' fine effort, enabled the Package Store squad to put one game in their win column.

Every bowler on the Gallo & Stevenson squad bowled either their average or above it to give them a three to one verdict over Wally's Garage. This fine team effort put them in very good position in their battle for the title. Norman Woodall and James Shultie rolled well for the garage boys as they started the second third in ninth place.

Archers Hold Turkey Shoot

The Mid-Del Archers ended another season with its annual turkey shoot. The unseasonably warm weather, falling autumn leaves, and members from Dover Bowhunters and Nanticoke Bowmen helped make the final shoot a success.

Turkeys were given in place of trophies and top-scratch score went to Ted Mariner of Nanticoke Bowmen.

Turkeys were also presented to the six high-handicap scores:
1. - Beth Teed, Mid-Del; 2. - Charles Dill, Mid-Del; 3. Tom Teed, Mid-Del; 4. - Allen Maneval, Mid-Del; 5. - Joe Rymysza Sr., Dover Bowhunters; 6. - Charles Pearson, Mid-Del.

Hunting Dogs Need Extra Energy

Part of the joy of hunting is working with a well-trained eager dog. Keep him in top condition if you want your dog to do a good job, advises Dr. William C. Krauss, associate professor of animal science at the University of Delaware.

All dogs which hunt vigorously require plenty of food and water, he says. Some hunters believe their dogs will hunt better if they are not fed before being taken afield. But after a few hours of strenuous work the dogs may quit, show a weak woggling gait they may collapse. Their blood sugar levels fall below normal as a result of the exercise and lack of food.

Krauss says hunting dogs need a light meal before they go out for the day. They should also be fed a snack and water after two or three hours of vigorous activity.

Some hunters make the mistake of feeding their dogs, or simply allowing them to eat—from the hunter's kill. It's not a good idea if you want a healthy dog, says Krauss.

"When dogs eat uncooked game there is the danger of tapeworms or other parasites gaining access to the animal. If the meat scraps are thoroughly cooked, there is far less chance of problems," he points out.

Game meat is also much higher in protein than the dog's normal ration. And too much protein isn't good in a dog's diet, cautions Krauss.

DEER SEASON (Continued From Page 1)

As a result of these efforts, there were forty-eight convictions and four cases are pending for trial at a later date. These violations included loaded guns in vehicles, night hunting with spot lights, hunting from a motor vehicle, untagged deer, and hunting deer with dogs. Illegal hunting such as this diminishes the number of deer that can be taken by the hunters - the real sportsmen - that endeavor to hunt by legal means.

examine the conical spacecraft and a moon rock at close range, observing through the spacecraft hatches the technical equipment and the astronauts' living quarters. "Columbia," is the crew cabin portion of the Apollo spacecraft and the only part which returned to Earth. The lunar module, "Eagle," in which the actual moon landing was made, is still in lunar orbit.

The exhibit will be open to the public 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. The last day of the exhibit, Dec. 7, coincides with Delaware Day, the date in 1787 when Delaware earned the right to be called the State that started a Nation by becoming the first state to ratify the Constitution of the United States. In keeping with tradition, ceremonies recalling Delaware's historic past will take place on that day in Dover, Wilmington and Georgetown.

Turkeys were also presented to the six high-handicap scores:

1. - Beth Teed, Mid-Del; 2. - Charles Dill, Mid-Del; 3. Tom Teed, Mid-Del; 4. - Allen Maneval, Mid-Del; 5. - Joe Rymysza Sr., Dover Bowhunters; 6. - Charles Pearson, Mid-Del.
Dec. 2 marks the Mid-Del. club elections of officers for 1971.
