Twilley Demands Good Information For Levy Court

Joshua M. Twilley took over with a hard line Tuesday morning as new president of Kent County Levy Court.

Twilley demanded that the new county commissioners be "as fully informed as possible" on all matters being considered.

Twilley, in a short speech mentioned several goals, among them the monthly distribution of an "adequate" financial report. I want good information on finances so we can better watch our spending of the taxpayer's dollar."

Twilley said he didn't like the present method of financial information. "It's difficult to see how each individual office is doing on the current reports that we have," he said.

The new president also listed the sewer system, a permanent zoning ordinance and a building code for Kent County as prime targets to be achieved in the coming months.

Following a swearing-in ceremony for all the commissioners (the seven were sworn in Superior Court poinsettias decorated the V.F.W. Home in Felton, where a surprise reception was given by their children, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Kates and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Sherwood on December 26.

In lieu of gifts, a money tree was available to purchase airline tickets to visit their grandson, Lt. John Kates and family, U.S.N. in California, who were unable to attend.

Their granddaughter, Mrs. Peggy Furlong from New York and grandson, Sgt. Bob Sherwood, who recently returned from Thailand were among the guests.

Chambers by Judges William J. Storey and William G. Bush III), outgoing president William C. Torbert, and Commissioner Isaac Thomas made short speeches.

Torbert called it "a real pleasure serving with the court. The people benefited from our deliberations."

Said Thomas: "I was part of a team that did as much or more than any other court before. We found the county in debt and we left it with money."

Torbert did not seek reelection for a new term. Thomas was defeated by Robert Reed in the November election.

Following the speeches a reception was held in the Civil Defense offices for all commissioners, row office holders, wives and fiancées.

Twilley reconvened the commissioners immediately following the reception to embark on his new "non-nonsense policy" of business-like sessions.

First on the new agenda will be a rearranged financial report assignments from comptroller A. Richard Barrows and County Auditor Harold E. Remley.

City Limits Will Be Surveyed West of U. S. Route 13

The limits of that portion of Harrington lying west of U.S. 13 will be surveyed, it was decided Monday night at the January meeting of the City Council.

That portion of Harrington lying east of U.S. 13 was surveyed before it was annexed last year.

Surveying of the City limits has been in the making for years, with the Council favoring the survey "when money was available."

Monday night's decision was culmination of several visits by Alfred G. B. Mann, former city manager, who had complained a stable had been built, against an ordinance, by Carl on A. Billbrough on North Street. Monday night Mann said it was sheltering horses.

He figured it was within city limits and this speeded up the motion to survey the City limits.

The survey will be made by Edward H. Richardson Associates, Inc., at a cost of $3150. The Council insisted, however, City Manager Kathryn Derrickson be sure the price of furnishing the monuments, or markers, as well as the installation, be included.

In other business, the Council: Tabled consideration of four applications for part-time patrolman until the next meeting.

field named Councilman William Minner and George Vincent to be election judges at the city election Tuesday. Councilman John Satterfield will be the alternative. Alderman F. Lawrence Price will also be a judge by virtue of his office.

Monday night's meeting was the last one for the current Council. Tuesday's election will see but one post up for grabs, that of Councilman Wilson G. Bradley, First Ward, who will battle

Mayor Burton E. Satterfield and Jack Wyatt.

24 HOUR SERVICE ICE FRY'S AMERICAN 398-3700 Harrington, Del. Northbound Lane U.S. 13

1971. You've changed. We've changed.

Change. That's what it's all about this year. And that's what we mean by putting you first.

These are uneasy times. There are major concerns. About pollution. About safety. About the economy. About your hard-earned dollar. We know.

For the past 10 years Chevrolet research people have questioned thousands of people on every subject from rising taxes to the size of the glovebox in their cars.

We've found that price and maintenance costs, trade-in value and quality have become tremendously important.

Your car has to work. It has to last. And each new model must have more built-in value. At Chevrolet, we understand. You want meaningful change. And our aim is to give that to you, as you'll see in the 1971 Chevrolets.

Caprice. The biggest, most luxurious Chevrolet ever. A complete change.

Bigness in itself is nothing. But if it allows you to lengthen the distance between the front and rear wheels (which we did), then you've got something.

You've got a smoother ride. The idea in the 1971 Caprice was to give you the looks and comfort of a six- or seven-thousand-dollar car, without asking you to pay anywhere near that much for it. And above all, to build in as much dependability and security as possible.

So we changed the body structure for 1971, too. We made it stronger. And we made it quieter by putting a double layer of steel in the roof.

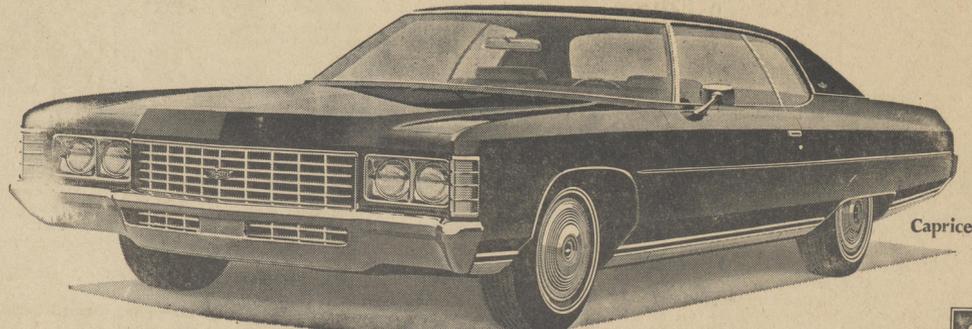

Caprice, as you can see below, is a lot of luxury at a Chevrolet price.

Vega. The littlest Chevy ever. It wasn't changed from anything.

Before building Vega, we read everything we could get our hands on about little cars. We talked to owners. We studied little cars up one side and down the other and, literally, tore them apart. We found out what made them tick, or why they didn't tick.

What ticked were gas economy and dependability. What didn't were underpowered engines, cramped quarters and getting blown around in the wind.

In our little Vega, everything ticks. It's not just another little car. You didn't want that. It's one little car that does everything well.

"THE HALF-TRACK FROM ORAN, Algiers.

Do I appreciate the dead? Yes! Sir! And here goes the story: This guy's initials are A. G., and if you don't think he was tough, ask Kid Mitchell, and Goldie, and Trout Wyatt and perhaps Lieut.-Gen. Joe Scannell of the Delaware National Guard (ret.)

It seems like this cat had everything in mind for himself; but inasmuch as he grew up on the wrong side of the tracks (like W. C. did), he didn't achieve his goal.

This A. G. joined the regular army at Ft. DuPont 35 years ago (or there about) at $9 a month. Oh! my! Back to the story:—"THE HALF-TRACK OF ORAN."—It seems like this cat was whooping it up, in Oran, one night. (No! I was never there!); and closing time came and so the poor guy had to hoof it home. And along came two drunken GI's in a half-track. They stopped the halfie and offered to give AG a ride, but of course, AG was delighted and accepted; they went down the road a little ways and ran into a land mine; AG got a broken leg out of that one; and two and a half years in the stockade—so he told me. It seems like if you have a bad record—no one will believe you!

The halfie, it seems like, was stolen from the MP station in Oran.

AG used to come in once in awhile on Saturdays and we would drown a few and talk about the war and then one day we took a ride out to Sandtown; AG got his wife and her son in the car; and took them on into Sandtown. The stepson was driving the Volkswagen at the time. When we left Sandtown the stepson froze at the wheel (or something) and we went right straight into a ditch. Along comes the Hartly ambulance, and the boys kinda knew who I was—but poor AG—"I thought he was dead."—They pulled him out by his broken arm; and took him to Kent General Hospital giving him artificial respiration all the way. Drunk on the highway—"my eye, we wuz out in the middle of a field. They keep poor old AG in the hospital for three or four hours; and then I guess they found he couldn't pay or something; so pretty soon here comes a familiar vice saying, "move over old buddy." It was A G broken arm and all; in the cooler with old W. C. Cooper found who I was in the hospital, it seems like they always give you a checkup after a "hullabaloo," so Cooper out of Troop No. 3. knew my face alright but not my name. He picks up a Harrington Journal, and he knew right away who I was. Oh! Well! No wonder; some of these days if things keep up; perhaps, I'll have my own police force."

Judge Knotts was very nice about the whole thing. "Now you boys brings, $31.50 with you at the trial. At the arraignment, who do you think was Lt. Charles G. Lamb, out of Troop No. 3. He later became Col. Charles G. Lamb—AG knew him all the time, it seems like—otherwise, perhaps Cooper, out of Troop No. 3, would have taken us himself. The Lieut. peeped his head out the door and said that he would take us to the arraignment. "It seems like, once in a while, the cop is a man's best friend!"

A Tribute

Fulton J. Downing, twice Harrington's mayor, twice its president of Rotary, is gone. Liked by some, admired by many, but respected by all, he was Harrington's ambassador at large wherever he went. When his travels took him through Europe, South America, or during the many visits he made in the United States, the introduction was always the same - Fulton Downing, Mayor of Harrington, in state of Delaware, U.S.A. - or, when the occasion demanded during his visits to other Rotary Clubs both here and abroad, it was the same except that it included - president of Harrington Rotary.

Harrington, Delaware, was never far from his mind. During his meetings and visits with Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, John Glenn, Joan Crawford, Ed Sullivan, foreign ambassadors and governors, as well as other dignitaries, he took the name of his adopted town with him and literally wore it on his lapel as proudly as he did his past-president's Rotary pin. His was an inquisitive mind. Never satisfied with knowing why something operated, he would persist, until he understood the details of how it did so. This was borne out while on his many visits outside this country. On one such occasion he spent time in the broiler rooms of a vessel that was taking him to the Bahamas. He questioned the crew as well as its officers, and, incidentally, when at his destination, met with the governor of the islands at Kingston.

Fulton could have lived anywhere and brought the same recognition to whatever town he might have chosen to call home, but - he chose Harrington. He was a plodder, for despite criticisms and questionings, he would pursue his course until accomplishment.

He will be missed, to be sure, but those left behind, we can only be thankful that he chose us as his fellow townspeople for the many years he lived among us.

Complaint from Paradise people

To the Editor,
 You did a wonderful job on the passing of a great civic leader from our midst and I was hopeful of conveying something appropriate in a Paradise Pasture gesture which appeared along side your well worded column, where it would have been possible to clip them out together for mailing to our many friends throughout the railroad system.

This, however was defeated by one little fault in the last verse of the poem; the word "Follow" was left out and "Falt" in its place, destroying the entire thought.

Sorry

Letter to Editor

Dear Carrington,
 Here's check for Harrington Journal. Hope you and yours have a nice holiday. Stop in and see us up here in the mountains where it's just beautiful. 30 inches of snow. Two days 24 below zero but lot of things to do. Skiing and snow mobiles are the biggest.
 In the evenings I've walked up the mountains watching the moon rise over another mountain and the stars so big and bright and trees (white birch) glittering with snow and the spruce and fir ever so green and everything one seems to think of has a melody nature speaking, beautiful. Sorry to hear about Mr. Downing. Sorry I'm late with check. Will fill you in on more life in Maine later.

Sincerely
 Roland Melvin
 Stop in for Suana Bath. We have one at camp.

Dear Carrington,
 As I watch the Johnny Cash show next Wednesday evening and see guest star Connie Smith - and learning today of Fulton Downing's passing, I will be reminded of that night at the fair when Mr. Downing introduced me to Connie Smith as a good Christian man. What better introduction could one ever get? I see what Apostle James meant again, when he said "life is but a vapor." Fulton Downing was a good competitor, a man interested in others. Yes a good man. As I think of Mr. Downing I'm reminded:
 Good men must die,
 And some would question, why?
 But Jesus knows what's best,
 And called him home to rest.
 It's appointed unto men, once to die
 And there's no need to question, why?
 God has promised and it must stand
 But, what a view in the promised land.
 A friend and brother gone today
 To a better place, a better way,
 He can't come back to us no more, but
 We can meet him on Heavens shore.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Helberton

Today's slimmer, trimmer ham is a perfect choice for any meal since it's plentiful, economical and delicious.

What is ham? It is a hind leg of pork. Basically, hams fall into two categories: those that need cooking before serving, and those that don't. Hams that you cook yourself can be either fresh or cured. All fresh hams must be cooked thoroughly, as must any other fresh pork. They should be heated to an internal temperature of at least 170°F before serving for best flavor and texture.

Cured hams — the type you'll most often find on the market — should be cooked according to the directions on the label, usually to an internal temperature of 160°F. Cured hams require less cooking time than fresh because in the curing procedure they are injected, during a heating process, with a special solution which maintains normal meat color and flavors the meat.

Some hams which have been cured are also smoked, and their labels say so. Smoking gives ham that distinctive flavor many people associate with "Country style" hams, and involves hanging the cured meat over burning hardwood — often hickory.

Smoking of course involves heating the ham. The temperature the ham is heated to in the smokehouse is sufficient to kill any trichina that may be present. However, cured ham, unless the label says "fully cooked" still require further cooking to assure good texture and flavor.

The term "water added" on the label indicates that the ham retains ten percent or less water in excess of the weight of the ham. This is due to the type of curing. Hams are available in several styles and many sizes. They may be "boneless," "bone in," or sold with part of the bone removed under such names as "semi-boneless" and "shankless" (only the shank bone removed). Any of these may also be "skinless."

Boneless hams may be whole, halves or pieces. Whole rolls averages seven to ten pounds in weight.

Canned hams, another style of convenient ham, range in size from 1 1/2 to 13 pounds and are available unsmoked, smoked or specially flavored and sometimes glazed.

Whole bone-in hams generally weigh from 10 to 18 pounds. These are often sold in half hams or portion labeled "butt" or "shank" end. When so labeled the center cuts of the ham are removed and sold separately. No slices are removed from the "half ham." The shank portion of ham has more bone and costs less than the butt portion, which has a greater proportion of meat.

When buying ham always judge value by price per serving, not price per pound.

When buying a boneless ham, allow 1/4 to 1/3 pound per serving, 1/3 to 1/2 pound for bone-in ham, and 3/4 pound per serving for ham having a higher proportion of bone to lean.

FRANCIS J. WEBB, assistant agricultural agent for Kent County.

DAVID H. WOODWARD, assistant agricultural agent of Kent County.

Name Kent County Agents

The University of Delaware's Cooperative Extension Service has announced two staff changes in Kent County effective January 1, according to Extension Director Dr. Samuel M. Gwinn.

Francis J. Webb, assistant agricultural agent, will assume the duties of former agricultural agent George K. Vapaa who retired December 31. Webb will direct the agricultural extension programs of the University in Kent County.

Assuming the position of assistant agricultural agent is David H. Woodward.

Webb is a graduate of Milford High School and received his Bachelor's and Master's degrees from the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences. He was awarded the Robinson Memorial Grange Scholarship while a student at the University and is a member of Alpha Zeta, national agricultural honorary fraternity and Sigma XI, national honorary research fraternity.

Woodward, who was raised on a dairy farm near Wilmington, received his B. S. degree in animal science from the University's College of Agricultural Sciences. He was manager of the New Castle County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office for three years and assistant district sales manager for Ralston Purina Company.

Woodward is also a member of Alpha Zeta, national agricultural honorary fraternity.

Fence Talk

Here is George Vapaa

Few people can leave a job in the blaze of glory enjoyed by your county agent as he retires on disability — the end product of the severe stroke suffered fifteen months ago.

Most of you perhaps have read or heard of the retirement dinner on December 17th given by 63 of my extension service co-workers. None of the news stories mentioned the site, Buena Vista, which is along U.S. 13 below State Road. This was once the country home of ex-governor C. Douglas Buck, given to the State on his death. Back in the 1850's, it was the home of John M. Clayton, who served as U.S. Secretary of State as well as Senator in the U.S. Congress and Chief Justice of Delaware.

Years ago, I remember writing a school term paper on Clayton, whose national service is best recalled for the Clayton Bulwer Treaty with England. This treaty provided for the rights of nations interested in building a canal through Central America.

Most of us, including myself, think that 55 years of age is just too young to retire. So, I'll just shift to the more sedentary work that the doctors now ask for. This should be easy after a year of mostly sitting work already.

Fence Talk will live on for awhile, but become more opinion on events of the day. Information on garden problems and the like? Call your County Extension Service at 736-1448. For my sources of farm facts and research will begin to dry up as I get away from them. We can now both call Francis Webb, Marion McDonald, or Jean Cranston for help.

Let's make no bones about it. The control of plant bugs, household pests, fertilizer recommendations or other farm and home problems should have the best thoughts of our research teams. Learn to use them through your county agent.

Here is Francis Webb "More Green From Your Soybean" is the cash-conscious theme of Del-Mar-Va's largest soybean producers' meeting. This is the 5th Del-Mar-Va Soybean meeting to be held at Salisbury, Md., at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center on January 28. This is certainly one meeting you will not want to miss this winter if you are at all interested in soybean production. To give you just a brief run down of the day's program, here are a few highlights that should catch your interest.

Man of you have grown soybeans for years, but have you ever stopped to think how the soybean plant behaves and why? This is the first topic that will be discussed during this meeting, and Joe Newcomer from the University of Maryland will be explaining the soybean plant.

Another highlight for the day will be the recognition of county winners in the Mid-Atlantic Soybean Yield Contest. The recognition and announcement of winners will be handled by our Mid-Atlantic President, Olin Gooden, from Kent County. The regional winner and his wife will receive an all expense trip to Europe.

Since insects, weeds, and other related pests are a problem each year, it is only appropriate to have such topics covered by respective specialists in these fields. This will be partly covered by a panel discussion of both soybean growers and agronomists from Maryland and Delaware. There will also be a separate discussion on insects and weed problems in soybeans.

To highlight the meeting, we have the topic of "Soybean Break-Thru" which will be covered by Robert Judd from the National Soybean Crop Improvement Council. His discussion on soybean utilization, production, and anticipated utilization should be very interesting to our soybean producing audience.

This program is being sponsored by the Soybean Industry of Del-Mar-Va, Eastern Shore Grain and Fertilizer Dealers Association, and the Del-Mar-Va Fertilizer Association in cooperation with extension services of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. I would also like to add that door prizes and a free fried chicken lunch will be provided by the sponsoring organizations.

Everyone is invited to be with us on January 28th starting at 9:00 a.m., to hear the most up-to-date production and marketing information on the crop that is rapidly expanding in its utilization in the world, the soybean.

Free tickets and programs will be available at most all farm supply stores in your local town or community. If you are not able to get tickets, programs, or additional information from these places, you can call or write your nearest county agent's office, and we will be glad to supply you with the information or tickets that you need. The Kent County Office is 736-1448.

It Seams To Me

Janet Reed

A cold winter day is just the time to start on a sewing project. Perhaps you have some yardage put away for such a day. If so, better check to see if you have the other supplies you will need. Have you changed your mind about the style since you bought the fabric? Styles change so quickly that the pattern you intended to use may already be a style on its way out. If you spend time sewing, select a style coming into fashion so you'll get longer wear from your investment of time.

Do you need lining, underlining or interfacing for the style you want to use? Maybe you keep a supply of these fabrics on hand, but check to see if they're what you'll want for your fabric and style, and if you have enough. You won't want to make a trip in the ice or snow for supplies you need. While you're checking, don't forget thread. Even though you can use colors that aren't quite the exact shade for seams and inside work, you'll need a good match for areas where stitching will show.

If you don't have matching seam tape, it's not too serious. You might not get as far as the hem on one snowy day. And even if you do, you may not need to use seam tape. A firmly woven fabric will not ravel and will give a flatter finish without tape.

If you don't have buttons the right color, you could cover your own or devise a fastening that is a real original. Buttons, too, could wait until later, if you're sure you'll be able to find the size to fit the buttonholes.

Is the zipper the right length and color? How is your supply of hooks, eyes and snaps?

Now that you're in the mood for making that dress and have all the supplies, maybe you won't want to wait for a snowy day. If you make the dress now, think of all the other projects you have been saving for that day when you're snowbound. Or you could make another dress — if you have all the supplies you need.

Proper Fire Protection

Having the proper fire equipment available this winter may mean the difference between negligible damage and total destruction of hundreds of homes.

The first few seconds after discovering a fire are the most critical in preventing disaster, points out Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware. But to plan for such emergencies, you should know the common types of fires and how to control them.

Fires involving wood, paper, cloth and other such materials are Class A fires, he explains. These are most effectively handled by the cooling-quenching effects of water.

Class B fires, those involving grease, gases, petroleum products and other flammable liquids, are best controlled by smothering. Electrical, or Class C, fires must be extinguished with a nonconducting material rather than with water or foam.

Knowing what types of fire may occur in a given location will assist in selecting the best extinguisher, says Williams. For example, water is quite effective in controlling Class A fires, but using it on an oil fire in the basement or garage may only spread the fire. In the case of Class A and B fires, a foam or general purpose dry chemical extinguisher may be your best choice.

In areas where gasoline, paint or oil fires may be a problem, select a regular dry chemical, carbon dioxide or foam extinguisher. A soda-acid or water-type extinguisher is best around the fireplace and near the family barbecue.

When selecting a fire extinguisher, check for the Underwriters' Laboratory label which certifies the relative size and type of fire it may be expected to extinguish. For example, one extinguisher may carry a 2-A label and another a 4-A label. The numeral before the letter is the extinguishing unit or the relative effectiveness of the extinguisher in putting out that class of fire. Thus a 4-A extinguisher will put a Class A fire approximately twice as large as that controlled by a 2-A extinguisher.

For Class A fires, all homeowners should consider extinguishers with at least a 2-A or larger rating. For Class B and C fires, Williams suggest a small dry chemical extinguisher with a four to six B-C rating. These may be particularly useful in or near cars, or around farm shops and fuel storage areas, a 10 to 20 B-C rating should be the minimum size.

Looking at a well equipped home and garage, you may find a five pound general purpose dry chemical, foam or carbon dioxide extinguisher in the garage, says Williams. And in case of an outside fire, a garden hose is one of the least expensive and highly effective fire extinguishers available.

Harrington Bowling League

Leah S. Wheeler

Dallas Hayman's superb 610 series effort, with grand 202 and 233 games included, and Martin Jarrell's and Preston Carman's great efforts helped keep Jarrell Fuel out on top of the twelve team Harrington Bowling League. Wally's Garage could only muster enough strength to capture one game from the fuelers, although Norman Woodall, and James Shultie bowled well for the losers.

Gerardi Bros., are keeping close to the front-runners with Don Jester this week leading the team to a smashing four game victory over McKnatt Funeral Home. Jester scorched the boards for a grand 593 series, including a great 211 game, and Stan Johnson chipped in with a great 562 series, with John Forbes adding a great effort to give Gerardi's all the strength they needed to overcome their opponents. Bob Garey bowled well for McKnatt's as they dropped down into a distance sixth place position.

Harrington Package put a crimp in the Spoilers plans for taking over the lead by sending them crashing into fifth place, winning all four games of their setto. Harry Brown helped the Package Store team move up into the third place spot by rolling a great 202 game and a great 541 series, and Al Hickman chipped in with a good effort for a little extra scoring punch. Carl Wright and John Shaffer bowled for the Spoilers in defeat.

Taylor & Messick started back up the ladder, winning three games from Butler's Fuel, getting grand efforts from Kenny P. Outten, who rolled a grand 591 series and great two 215 games, and George Collins who bowled a grand 234 game and a 550 set. Also giving good assists from Tom Brown and Bobby Collins, Ralph Butler seared the boards for a grand 222 game, amassing a great 566 series, Larry Larimore and Bob Wright to give Butler's Fuel enough incentive to take one game from their opponents.

People's Restaurant could only take one game from Gallo & Stevenson, but remained in the eighth spot in the standings. Cloyd Bushy rolled a great 521 series and Bob Keller rolled well for People's. Aiding considerably with their win over People's, the construction boys received great efforts from Ernest Gallo, Jr., and George Hobbs though remaining the same spot in the standings.

Penn Central squashed Quillen's Market in all four games as Paul Baker rolled a great 521 series, including a very good 200 game and Ray Baker chipped in with a great effort. Earl Quillen, Don Pase and Ralph Kemp bowled well for the market boys in defeat.

Asbury W.S.C.S. News

Mrs. Mark Willey presented the January 5 program of the Women's Society of Christian Service at Asbury United Church Tuesday evening. Using the annual pledge service for her basic theme, she asked each member to make a personal pledge in her Christian life for the coming year. These pledges were written down and placed in an envelope and addressed. Later in the year they will be mailed to each member who was present as a reminder of the promise she made.

Pointing up the differences in the life of a middle income family and those people who are less fortunate because of low income, lack of education and who are aged and lonely, was a play before the pledge service. Those taking part were Mrs. Herbert Cain, Mrs. Charles Rapp, Miss Debbie Winnebrenner, Mrs. Oscar Gillette and Mrs. William A. Minner.

Miss Kathy Nelson, accompanied by Mrs. David Dill, gave a solo most appropriate to the service.

Mrs. Wayne Brown presented the devotional part of the program.

Deborah Circle with Mrs. Earle Nelson, leader, served refreshments.

In the business meeting, Mrs. Norman Toadvine, president, announced that $60.25 had been sent to the Neighborhood House in Wilmington. This money had been collected at the December meeting on the Christmas money tree. A letter from Mrs. O. E. Mangum, conference president, commended the society for their gift.

On January 25, a night of world vision, the second annual dinner meeting of the Peninsula Conference Board of Missions will be held at Wesley United Methodist Church in Dover. The time is 7 p.m. Tickets may be ordered from Mrs. Gary Homewood before January 15. Mrs. Charles W. Hauser will be the guest speaker.

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 19, the society will serve the swine breeders dinner at 7 p.m. Mrs. Frank Derricks and Mrs. Francis Winkler will be co-chairmen. Circle leaders have been asked to supply help for the kitchen and dining room. Anyone who can help is requested to call their leader.

On Monday evening, January 11, the Priscilla Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. Hayward Quillen for a meeting. Mrs. Charles Greenhaugh is co-leader of the circle. This is a changed date from the 18. All members are invited to attend.

Mrs. Edward Taylor, leader of Lydia Circle will have a Wednesday afternoon meeting at her home on January 13 at 2 o'clock. Members are also invited to attend.

Quick action by Harrington firemen, who were at the scene for about two-and-a-half hours in sub-freezing temperatures saved the house from total destruction.

Fire damage was confined to the bedroom and attic.
