Chief of Police Replaced; City Manager Plans to Retire

Police Chief Franklin Rogers

Chief of Police Franklin S. Rogers was fired by the City Council Monday night, as was a street employee.

Meanwhile, the Council was told by City Manager Kathryn Derrickson she planned to quit this year "when you get someone qualified to handle the office full time."

The Council's action took place after a heated executive session of more than an hour. When the group resumed regular session, Councilman John Satterfield, Fifth Ward, motioned the chief of police be rehired. The motion was lost for want of a second. James Carroll, Third Ward councilman, then motioned Patrolman Robert Martin be made chief. A Dover resident, he joined the police force in January, 1970. Councilman

Jack Aptt, Sixth Ward, seconded the motion and it passed with the votes of the sponsors and those of Councilman George Vincent, Second Ward, and Incoming Councilman, Jack Wyatt, First Ward. Satterfield voted against the move and Councilman William Minner, Fourth Ward, did not vote.

In other action, the Council rehired Sgt. Robert Darling, at $125 per week, and Patrolman William Thomas at $115.40. The chief of police gets $135 per week. There were no plans made for appointing another patrolman. The Council, in its regular session, gave no reason for the dismissal of Chief Rogers. However, a list of complaints were presented in the executive session the sum of which, according to a councilman, was incompetency.

It is no secret the chief was not popular with some councilmen. In fact, last Oct. 5, the Council voted to relieve the chief of his duties, as of Oct. 22, with his opinion of remaining as patrolman. Inefficiency was advanced as the reason.

An aroused citizens meeting was held Monday night, Oct. 19, attended by Police Commissioner of James Carroll, John Aptt and William Minner, with the citizens advocating retention of the chief.

Rogers, appointed to the force as chief June 10, 1964, kept the position after the October set o when the Council changed its mind.

City employees, the Charter stipulates, are hired on a yearly basis, with employees being rehired, or dismissed, at the first meeting in February. Thus; Rogers and Rifenburg were dismissed without notice.

After a verbal hassle, Monday night, however, it was agreed the duo should draw two-weeks' pay.

No reason was advanced for the firing of Rifenburg, street foreman, who would have in the City's employ five years in May.

Another controversial figure, City Manager Kathryn Derrickson told The Journal her decision to rehire was based on a desire "just to retire."

As a Democratic committeewoman she had been under fire some years from the Frontier Democra's and their followers, some of whom were on the City Council from time to time.

Mrs. Derrickson started working for the City 16 years ago as city clerk, but worked only 15 years; she served in her present position five years but was off a year when her political opponents on the Council gave her the gate in the term of Mayor Luther P. Hatfield.

Rehiring Monday night included the following: Harry Hammond, sewage disposal plant and A. Evans, Earl Thomas and Roger Klapp as helpers of the superintendent of public works, Dale Phillip, who was also rehired.

Police Sgt. Robert Darling was rehired at his salary of $125, and Patrolman William Thomas, employed last fall, at $115.40.

Other appointments were: Heba Baker, city clerk; F. Lawrence Price, alderman; the city manager as acting alderman; Tharp Harrington and Lester Smith as auditors; Grover C. Brown, city solicitor; Fire Chief Robert Wilson as fire marshal, and James Moore and Carrington H. Burgess to the Planning and Zoning Commission.

WYOMING PICKS GARBAGE SERVICE

Norman L. Wilkins Sons of Felton was the low bidder for a contract to pick up and dispose of Wyoming's garbage.

Three sealed bids were opened Friday night at a special meeting of the Wyoming Town Council, and Wilkins' bid, being the lowest, was accepted unanimously.

Miss Virginia M. Lyndall, public relations officer for the council and that service will not change with the new company. It began service with the regular Tuesday pickup and continued collections on Tuesdays and Fridays, as was done before.

Wilkins' bid was $1.50 per unit, and it competed against a bid of $2 per unit by the Wildcat Landfill, Inc., of Lebanon, and one of $2.25 by H R of Dover. Wildcat was the previous collector.

Wyoming has approximately 365 units according to Miss Lyndall.

Milford Memorial Hospital Services Continue To Increase

Milford Memorial Hospital's service to the area continues to increase according to year end figures released February 4 by administrator Joseph B. Ahlschier. During 1970, the hospital admitted a total of 6,014 patients, an increase of 359 over the previous year. The figure includes 769 newborn infants of 1970, 30 more deliveries than 1969.

Stepped-up activity was reflected throughout the entire hospital in the Analysis of Service for 1970. The report shows that patients received a total of 46,628 days of care as compared with 42,648 during 1969. In an effort to control costs, the hospital is concentrating on reducing days of hospitalization whenever feasible.

During 1970, the study shows that 2,172 operations were undertaken, 152 more surgeries than in 1969.

In a related study that covered only the month of December 1970, it was revealed that the Emergency Room at Milford Hospital treated a total of 940 patients. More than half of this number, 58.6% actually were non-emergency cases. In terms of service, this points up a growing, widespread dependency on the hospital's emergency facilities.

As Mr. Ahlschier explained, the recently completed 1970 Analysis justifies the hospital's administration's projected plans for expanding bed space and augmenting services. Continued population growth in the area is placing an ever-increasing responsibility on the hospital to provide adequate accommodations for community needs. Mr. Ahlschier said the hospital is determined to keep pace with the challenge of future demands.

"Now What?"

This seems to be the question being asked by Walter Horsey, Jr. of near Laurel as he walks through his flock of broilers about ready for processing. Horsey is one of many broiler growers who raise millions of chickens during a year's time for Wilson Laurel Farms. The two Wilson processing plants are currently closed as a result of labor contract dispute.

To Remodel Or Build New?

As modern agricultural production continues to change, farmers must modernize and improve their production systems if they are to remain in a competitive position.

This modernization can often be accomplished by minor changes or additions to existing buildings or systems, says Ernest W. Walpole, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware. But eventually a decision may have to be made whether to remodel the existing system or build a completely new one.

Since no two production systems are exactly alike, a decision to remodel or build new must be based on an individual program. Walpole offers a few general guidelines farmers should consider.

Are your existing buildings structurally sound and properly located? Very little can be done with buildings that have crumbling or sagging foundations or rotted or termite-damaged walls and supports. Of en structurally sound buildings can't be used because they won't fit into the overall design of the new system.

Is the size of your farming enterprise increasing? This may require adding to an existing building or constructing a new larger one. In many cases an older building could be effectively remodeled, but it couldn't be added to.

Will a remodeled building be as efficient as a new one? In some cases it will, says Walpole. In others, a slight decrease in efficiency will enable the use of old buildings and save construction costs. Any decrease in efficiency must be slight, however. Some buildings would increase labor costs substantially if remodeled and thus should be replaced.

Check the costs of remodeling and building new. Farmers will often find it costs more to remodel an existing structure than to start from scratch. This is particularly true if alternate uses can be found for the existing building.

Walpole points out that most farmers are not prepared to make all of the decisions necessary to determine if it is practical to remodel or build. But the county extension agents in Newark, Dover and Georgetown are prepared to help individuals make these decisions and advise them on what changes are most profitable.

Good Records Necessary For Sound Decisions

Good farm records are necessary for filing accurate tax returns, but they are also helpful in making sound management decisions, says W. T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware.

Farm records can be used to measure the rate of growth of the farm business, to help convince a banker the business is worthy of credit, or provide information necessary to evaluate production performance.

For farmers who do not like to keep records or who don't have the time to devote to the job, there are record keeping services available. "Some farm organizations provide record keeping services and many banks and other credit agencies specializing in farm loans offer computerized records for a fee," says McAllister. "The Cooperative Extension Service will also provide a record system. Contact a county agent for a program that will satisfy your individual needs."

Maintaining accurate records is mostly a matter of determination, he adds. "Farmers should develop a procedure to follow, obtain the necessary equipment, and then keep their accounts up to date."

Farm records are of little value unless they are used. But used properly, they can help in analyzing a farm business.

For example, yearly records can reveal the percent of gross income used to pay depreciation expenses or the net return earned on the total farm investment.

A quick look at last year's records may also indicate where a farmer wasted money, says McAllister. For example, are veterinarian bills, gasoline or repair bills too high. And farmers can also determine such information as the per acre cost of producing a crop and the net return to the business from an acre of production.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Holberton

This week it will pay to compare prices and quality carefully before making meat purchases. Beef prices are remaining fairly steady at wholesale but there are fewer "specials" at the store.

When checking, be sure to look for better buys on chuck roast, (both bone in and boneless) chuck steaks, rib steaks and rib roast, particularly the 4th and 5th cuts. Include liver on your shopping list, that is if your family likes it.

The pork market is slightly higher, but there are still a number of good buys. Loin roast, center chops, spare ribs and hams are being offered as special prices and will help you stretch your meat dollar.

Broiler - fryers are excellent buys with specials making these young, tender chickens a must. Many of these chickens are large enough to be used as roasters and are delicious cooked this way.

Eggs remain very reasonable and this is good news. With the weather being so cold, egg production could have fallen and then it would have been quite a different story. At the present time Grade A large eggs are the best buy.

Cold weather has certainly affected the fresh vegetable market. As you look down the price list, many vegetables have increased in price. Broccoli, cabbage, squash, corn, lettuce, onions, peppers and radishes are a few of these. Carrot prices remain fairly low and the quality is good to excellent.

For additional information on pruning, write for University of Delaware fact sheets or pruning deciduous shrubs and woody plants or the USDA's Bulletin 165 "Pruning Ornamental Shrubs and Vines." Copies are available from county extension offices in Newark, Dover or Georgetown or from the Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark.

Pruning Keeps Plants In Shape

Trees and shrubs need annual pruning and training to keep them vigorous and attractive. But don't get carried away with the shears and remove branches that will ruin the plant's natural symmetry, cautions David V. Tatnal, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

Prune dead branches and weak wood such as suckers and water sprouts, he says. And remove branches growing toward the center of the tree or rubbing against other branches. This contact may cause injury resulting in disease or insect attack.

Spring flowering shrubs, such as forsythia, spirea, mockorange and weigela, are best pruned immediately after flowering. Most summer-flowering shrubs, however, should be pruned in late winter or early spring before the plants start new growth.

Tatnal says avoid pruning trees or shrubs in the early fall; it tends to produce late, immature growth. But prune plants at any time of the year to remove dead, diseased or broken limbs.

During extended cold spells a run down battery may also freeze and crack the case, adds the specialist. To keep your car on the go this winter, drive it enough to keep the battery charged or put the battery on a trickle charger, says Williams.

Social Security News

Elderly, disabled and widowed Americans and their families received nearly $32 billion in social security checks in 1970, or $5 billion more than in 1969, W. J. Buckley, social security district manager in Dover said. An estimated $69 million was being paid to social security beneficiaries in Delaware at the end of 1970.

The number of men, women and children on the social security benefit rolls nationally rose to 26 million in 1970. While the majority are older people, about one out of every four is under 60. Some 58,800 residents of Delaware were receiving benefits at the close of 1970.

Nationally 2.7 million people under 65 - disabled workers and their families - received checks amounting to $242 million a month. About 6.5 million widows, children and aged dependent parents of workers who died receive $597 million a month at the close of the year.

This was in addition to the 17.1 million retired workers and dependents who were paid $1.8 billion a month. In Delaware, an estimated 5600 people under 65 - disabled workers and their families - were receiving about $535,000 a month at the end of 1970. About 16,000 widows, children and aged dependent parents of workers who had died were getting about $1.5 million a month. Some 36,000 retired workers and dependents were receiving benefits at the rate of about $4 million a month. Since the first monthly checks were paid to 22,000 people in January 1940, social security has grown not only in the number of people drawing benefits, but in terms of protection provided to families.

Today, 95 out of 100 mothers and children would receive monthly checks in case of the death of the family breadwinner, he said. Four out of five men and women between 21 and 65 can count on monthly benefits under social security if the breadwinner has a disability that keeps him out of work for a year or more. And 93 percent of the people who reached 65 in 1970 are receiving checks or could receive payments if they stopped working, he added.

It takes at least three miles to recharge the average battery after starting on a cold morning. If it's not recharged after each start, the battery will get weaker until it finally quits.

Williams says it's especially important during the winter to keep your battery fully charged. If your engine seems hard to start in the winter, it may be because you're not driving enough.

During extended cold spells a run down battery may also freeze and crack the case, adds the specialist.

On Sunday evening, Feb. 7 at 7 o'clock, Mr. and Mrs. Ivar Johnson, house parents of Bethany Girl's Home, Cordova, Md., will be at the Greenwood Wesleyan Church to sing, speak and show slides of Bethany Homes.

Bethany Homes was started several years ago by Dr. Erickson, well known eye specialist of Easton, Md., and now he with a number of other business people are in the process of building a complex of ten more of these homes, for boys and girls who are without the home life that a child so desperately needs.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have four adopted children of their own. Prior to working with Bethany Homes, Mr. Johnson pastored in the Friends Church.

Keep Your Car On The Go

No one likes to get caught on a cold winter morning with a car that won't start. You can do much to prevent this problem by keeping the car battery properly charged, says Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware.

Cold weather thickens the oil in your car's engine and transmission, making it more difficult to start. And since batteries generate electricity by chemical reaction, they don't produce as much power when cold.

Williams says it's especially important during the winter to keep your battery fully charged. If your engine seems hard to start in the winter, it may be because you're not driving enough.

It takes at least three miles to recharge the average battery after starting on a cold morning. If it's not recharged after each start, the battery will get weaker until it finally quits.

During extended cold spells a run down battery may also freeze and crack the case, adds the specialist.

DO NOT LET THE STATE GET A FOOT IN THE DOOR IN THE PAYMENT OF HOSPITAL BILLS FOR INDIGENTS

Gov. Russell W. Peterson has asked county officials to help the state pay some of the cost for indigent patients in Delaware's private hospitals. The governor said he would like to see the counties finance the hospitals at the same $3-per-citizen rate as used by the state. That rate, he continued, would cost Kent County about $240,000 per year. But if the state got its foot in the door, one can be assured, as surely as the night follows the day, the counties would be in for a constant increase. When the state took over the hospital subsidies, the first-year appropriation was $600,000. It is $1.4 million this year and will increase to $1.6 million for fiscal year 1972. Possible solutions—Could the state have its own hospital, just as some cities have had for decades? Could the state establish a ceiling for hospital and medical charges for the indigent? Could the federal government pass legislation whereby medical and hospital insurance be deducted from welfare and Social Security payments? If successful, however, this would also call for a ceiling on hospital and medical costs and insurance. Richard L. Timmons, president of Sussex County Council, said there are many people on welfare and Social Security who could afford to buy hospitalization insurance. Quite so. They will buy automobiles, Princess telephones, TV sets and booze but not medical insurance unless it is deducted from their payments.

Letter to Editor

Dear Editor,
Would you please publish my letter in the Harrington Journal as to what I have to say about the hunting season. The hunters that go on our farm land never get permission from us, they do as they please no matter how many notices there are, they trespass just the same, or sometimes they will carry them off. Or they will hunt on the farm next to your place and let the dogs run on your property to chase something out. Or if they know you are not around, they will sneak in also. We farmers are getting sore about what goes on, the way you are disturbed or aggravated. This has been going on for years and it's getting worse every year. Our farm land is private just like a home and yet, some body wants to make use of it, even if it isn't a hunting ground. Why do these hunters go on our farm land, if we don't want them, as we want to live a quiet life, and not be disturbed. Why don't these hunters go on hunting ground which the state has for them. One thing we farmers would like, would be to have this hunting on our farm land stopped altogether, that really would be a relief, for us. Citizen of Harrington Many thanks

Letter to Editor

Dear Editor,
Unaccustomed as I am to writing letters to the newspaper, I feel very strongly that I should make some comment on your coverage of girls sports. Many times I have picked up your paper to see an entire page on football, wrestling, or track or J. V. boys sports, junior high boys sports or five year old track whizzers. In the same paper the only comment on girl athletes is in the obituary column, if one of them happens to pass on to the great hockey field in the sky that week. How much has been printed recently about girls sports in this area, but very little has been on the sports pages! There is no doubt that your reporter and member of our sitting school board is prejudicial to boys sports. We aren't asking for much — one line for girls for every fifteen or twenty for boys, will be sufficient for our humble needs. Our girls are fighting hard and doing an excellent job this year. Where could one find more exciting basketball? Counting custodians, there were not enough spectators at the (last) game to empanel a jury. How can we expect to get spectators to these games if the local paper gives them no coverage. Last week I picked up a paper from a neighboring town and saw column after column of Lake Forest School News. Even an action shot of one of the girls games accompanied the article. If this had happened in the local paper it could be sent to the Smithsonian Institute as an original because in all the years I have read this paper I have never seen one. The only female action shots in this paper are of horses crossing the finish line. Is this truly a reflection of how the whole community feels about girls sports or is it confined to our sports reporter, our school board, and our administrators? Here's hoping that in the future and I hope the future is today that there will be complete coverage of all girls sports. Respectively yours, A Lake Forest District Resident

Chipman Streak Ends At Eight

Jim Blades' W. T. Chipman School basketball team lost for the first time, after opening the season with tight victories. The locals lost a highly questionable 41-39 verdict at Millsboro, then were defeated by a fine quintet at Selbyville. Chipman invaded Millsboro with hopes of a ninth straight win and led 20-14 at half-time, though Millsboro was awarded 10 free throws to 5 for the visitors. The last two periods saw the winners parade to the penalty stripe 18 times to only 4 for Chipman. To one who has seen Chipman in action three times, it appears that the local school was on the receiving end of a home-town decision. Blades' charges are a well-coached group. We can't conceive them committing fouls at the rate the officials were calling them at Millsboro. Chipman high scorer, Leon Shockley was in action for only one quarter, as he and Russell Dill fouled out. Nevertheless, the losers managed to equal Millsboro's field goal, total of thirteen. At Selbyville, a giant Rebel five, led all the way to remain unbeaten. Selbyville has two 6 foot, 2 inch cagers and dominated the backboards. The victors usually average 50 or 60 points and racked up 97, in one start.

Double Gaited

"Why don't you tell your readers how horses carry their tails when they're ready to race?" asked a prominent horseman.

It is of interest to anybody who enjoys studying the personality of horses that the stud horse will also "flag" his intentions with his tail at the psychological moment.

More familiar to most people, of course, is the tendency some horses have of pinning their ears back when they decide to balk or are all through raring.

Along those lines, it is sometimes possible to read a thoroughbred's intentions by whether or not he "washes" or copiously sweats, before a race.

"Washing" of course, usually inspired negative thoughts about any racehorse who is guilty of it because it not only betrays an excessive nervousness, it can be extremely debilitating.

With the elaborate amount of preparation that the average harness horse gets before a race it would be almost impossible to tell how much he "washes" or doesn't "wash" by just looking at him.

Spartan Cagers Bow To Milford, Cape Henlopen

Spartan Matmen Lose To Strong Foes

Two strong wrestling teams prevailed over Lake Forest's Spartans in their last two outings. However, the Spartans are essentially a young team, that should be tough to beat when they get that invaluable experience.

Delmar prevailed 23-17 but dropping the last two bouts as streaking Frank O'Neal (180) won a 19-0 decision and big Curt Powell pinned J. Morris of Delmar in 4:45 in the unlimited division.

Fence Talk

Now that we are in the dead of winter and things are cold and dreary, how about bringing in a little color of spring with some decorative house plants. Many attractive types of plants are available for use in the house and most of these are quite attractive.

One technique of growing house plants today that is becoming more and more popular is plants grown under artificial light. With this method you can grow a wider range of plants in the home and most of these have very attractive flower color. This is not an expensive set-up, and most anyone can do it, even your young children.

If you would like to have more information on growing house plants and the many different types of plants adapted for this, call or write your Extension Office; phone number 736-1448. We also have publications on growing house plants under artificial light.

All of you Delaware farmers should get February 10, marked on your calendar for the Plant Nutrition and Irrigation meeting to be held at Delaware State College. Starting at 9:30 a.m., in the Business Administration and Home Economics Building, there will be the latest nutrition and irrigation information given on horticultural and agronomic crops. All of you are welcome to attend, and I am sure you will be able to take some useful information home for your farming enterprise.

We had a very good turnout to the Fifth Del-Mar-Va soybean meeting last week in Salisbury. As some of you realize, this is the largest soybean meeting on the Eastern Shore. If you were not able to attend this meeting, but would be interested in the talks and information covered, I have a few soybean packets that contain this information. If you would like to have one of these packets, call or write right away, because I only have a few left.

Cattle grubs, as all cattlemen know, are in the conspicuous swellings that appear on the backs of cattle in the winter. The swelling contain grubs, which are the maggot stage of the hee-fly. Of all the insects that prey on livestock, hee-flies are among the hardest to control. They are to blame for losses to cattlemen, dairymen, packers, and tanners.

Hee-flies are closely related to other flies commonly found on farms. They look like small bumblebees, hairy, black and striped with yellow, and about three times larger than the house fly. Hee-flies appear during the first warm days of spring. They have no mouth parts and do not bite or sting. They live only a short time, less than two weeks. They lay their eggs above the fetlock, just above the hoof, the name hee-fly.

Hee-flies cause no pain, when disposing their eggs, but the reaction of the cattle to them may be one of great fright. Animals attempting to escape them run with their tails held high and may injure themselves in their wild flight from the flies. Milk production of dairy cattle may drop 10 to 25% when hee-flies are active.

The eggs hatch in three or four days. The tiny maggots crawl down the hair and begin to burrow through the skin, which is the beginning of their journey through the tissues of the body. Most of the larvae of the hee-fly congregate in the tissue of the gullet after about five months. After about three months in the gullet, they begin their migration to the region beneath the skin of the back and establish breathing holes in the skin. In a few days a cyst develops from the tissue of the host and pus-like material surrounds each larvae. The grub will remain in this cyst for about six weeks.

When the grub matures, it works its way out of the hole in the skin, falls from the animal and seek the protection of the soil or trash. In a month or so, the grub changes to a fly. Shortly after emerging from the pupal case, the fly is airborne. A hee-fly can hatch, mate, and begin egg laying on the same day it hatches.

Grubs migrating through the tissues of the body can cause injuries that one can appreciate, but very hard to assess. The damage grubs cause to the meat and the hide runs into millions of dollars each year.

To control the hee-fly, you can use these control methods. Ronel (systemic) should be used according to directions around August when the hee-fly disappears. Col-Ral can be used as a spray on the back of the animal as soon as the grubs appear. Rotenone (spray or dust) can be applied during grub season every six weeks. Dairymen should follow directions carefully before applying these treatments to dairy cattle.

What is the test for a good fitting garment? Comfort is probably the final evaluation, but how do you achieve a comfortable fit?

Seams and darts are used to mold a flat piece of fabric to our individual body contours. Seams are placed on the body to allow ease of movement with a close-to-the-body fit.

For example, armhole seams are placed a the armhole joints so that the arm can move freely without binding. If this seam is too far out on the shoulder, it creates the effect of binding because it interferes with arm movement. In fitted styles, the waistline seam is most comfortable at the natural waistline.

Shoulder seams and side seams are shaped to follow body contours and are clues to proper fit. The shoulder seam should follow the highest line of the shoulder and side seams should appear to fall straight down the sides of a garment. If side seams of the skirt swing to the back or to the front, it is an indication that the body of the dress does not fit properly.

Darts take up fabrics so that the garment can be shaped to body curves. Therefore, the dart should be aimed to throw fullness where it is needed. Bustline darts that are too high create bulges of fabric above the bustline.

Fabric wrinkles are clues to improper fit. A horizontal fold of fabric above the hip-line usually is an indication the garment is tight at the hip-line, or a fold of fabric between waist and tummy means that fabric should be released over the tummy. This horizontal fold also is seen above shoulder blades and may indicate that more fabric ease should be allowed at the shoulder blades.

Diagonal folds of fabric are further clues to improper fit. Trace the diagonal fold to its source and you will find that fabric is too tight at one of the other end of the diagonal. Fabric should be smooth on the figure when the body is not in motion.

The amount of garment ease necessary for comfort will vary with the fashion silhouette. But in every fashion cycle, the garment will fit closely as some part of the body.

Don't overlook the importance of correct grain line in proper fit. If the garment is not cut on straight grain, fabric distortions and wrinkles can form as the fabric tries to straighten after washing or cleaning.

Acid Soil Needs Lime

For top yields and the maximum return possible from his land, today's farmer has adapted many improved production practices. He's applying more nitrogen fertilizers, double cropping more intensely and returning more crop residues to the land to get the most out his crop program.

Yet some of these practices have created additional problems. One of the most serious is acid soil, says Dr. William H. Michell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

"In almost every case where farmers are applying high rates of ammonium nitrogen, low soil PH is a major concern," he points out. "And when farmers double their land, soil acidity is becoming an even bigger problem."

Michell says this does not mean growers should reduce the amount of nitrogen they use. But they should test their land more frequently and be ready to counter an acid soil with good lime.

"The old rule-of-thumb that said you could get by with a soil test every three to four years should be discarded. Farmers who are putting down large amounts of nitrogen and working their land intensely should have the soil analyzed on a yearly basis."

An indication of the effect of ammonium fertilizer on soil pH, Mitchell says it takes about two pounds of high quality lime to neutralize a pound of ammonium nitrogen.

Many farmers are also working their soil deeper than in the past, he adds. They're turning up to 10 inches of soil instead of the 6 to 7 inches which was the standard depth for many years. And when more soil is turned up, more lime is required.

"I don't think farmers can afford to neglect their liming practices," cautions Mitchell. "When the soils become too acid, yields will drop off before we know what's happening."

4-H Club Talk

with Marion MacDonald

Kent County 4-H talent tryouts will be held Saturday at Caesar Rodney High School. 4-H members from the twenty-two county 4-H clubs will present their acts before a panel of 4-H leaders. About 24 acts will be selected to perform on Feb. 13, at 8 p.m., at the high school. This show is open to the public. Youths 9 to 18 will present entertainment for a two hour period. The Caesar Rodney Drama Club under the guidance of Mrs. Rankin will present a short program at the conclusion of the 4-H show.

Kathleen Wiebel, Dover and Steve Mesibov, Houston recently presented a slide talk on the Agriculture Institute of Cooperatives National Conference in Kansas City. Their talk, given before the Kent County Junior Council, showed the educational value to youths attending the annual event.

4-H leaders throughout Delaware have completed a two-day training in leadership techniques. Speakers for the session were: Harley Cut-lip, program leader, 4-H, West Virginia; Jerry Webb, agricultural editor, University of Delaware; Miss Dorothy Emerson, consultant, National 4-H Foundation, Washington, D. C.; Rev. Irvin R. Pusey, Red Lion Methodist Church and recreation training by Mrs. Murry Hertz, Dover.

Fruits For Winter

If you're worrying about winter fruits. They add low-calorie, vitamin-rich zest to winter meals and snacks.

Fruits are always delicious eaten as-is, but don't stop there, advises Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension foods and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. "Serve them as an imaginative part of a meal, too."

Salads and fruits are nearly synonymous in the winter, or they should be, she says. Toss chunks of oranges or tangerines with a bowlful of crisp salad greens; add grapefruit if you like. Allow about one cup of prepared fruit to each quart of greens. Serve with French dressing or your favorite sweet dressing.

Team citrus with cottage cheese to make a quick low-calorie luncheon salad. Serve with French dressing made with lemon juice instead of the usual vinegar.

Oranges, bananas and apple slices on shredded salad greens are another tempting salad. Or, add avocado slices to the combination.

For a sumptuous salad, fold canned or fresh grapefruit sections, diced celery and finely shredded carrots into slightly thickened orange flavored gelatin. Serve on salad greens, topped with sour cream or mayonnaise for the non-dieters in the family.

Here's a novel salad idea: combine grapefruit segments and fresh shredded spinach with a celery-seed French dressing.

The famous luau of Hawaii show how well citrus teams up with pork; try it on a smaller scale with your next pork roast. A citrus glaze goes beautifully with ham, too. Or, serve baked or broiled winter pears with ham or pork. For an attractive garnish, fill the centers with mint jelly or cranberry sauce.

A fresh fruit cup can get any winter meal off to a tingly start, says Miss Krackhardt. Grapefruit sections, orange or tangerine segments and cubed pineapple (fresh or canned) are a favorite combination. Add moist coconut flakes and a dollop of whipped cream or sour cream for an attractive dessert. For fewer calories, use whipped dry milk or a non-dairy whipped topping.

For another colorful fruit compote, combine fresh diced winter pears with fresh grapes, sliced bananas and citrus segments. Add frozen melon balls for a touch of summer color and flavor. The citrus juice will accent the flavor of the pears and bananas and keep them from darkening.

Try stewing fresh pears in cranberry, orange or pineapple juice for a low-calorie dessert. Choose slightly underripe pears. You can serve the stewed pears with a small scoop of sherbet, ice cream or dollop of sour cream — if you're not dieting.

Why wait till spring for shortcake? Simply fold juicy, cut-up orange or tangerine segments into whipped cream and serve between and over biscuit halves for a luscious midwinter dessert. If you're weight-watching, try whipping dry milk mixed with water according to the recipe on the package.

When you're selecting grapefruit, look for firm, well-shaped fruits that are heavy for their size, advises Miss Krackhardt. Thin-skinned fruits have more juice than the coarse-skinned ones. If a grapefruit is pointed at the stem end, it's likely to be thick-skinned. Rough ridged or wrinkled skin also indicates thick skin, pulpiness and lack of juice.

Grapefruit often has skin defects — scale, scars, thorn scratches or discolorations.

These usually don't affect the eating quality.

When you're buying oranges, select firm, heavy fruits with fresh, bright-looking skin that is reasonably smooth. A greenish cast or green spots do not indicate an immature orange. Fully matured oranges will often turn greenish late in the season.

Often Florida and Texas oranges will have a tan, brown or blackish mottling or specking over the skin. This russetting has no effect on quality and often occurs on thin-skinned oranges with superior eating quality.

Anjou, Bosc, Winter Nellis and Comice are winter pears usually available until May. Look for firm pears. Anjou and Comil should be light to yellowish green; Winter Nellis will be medium to light green. Bosc pears are often brownish yellow, a characteristic of this variety.

Avoid wilted or shriveled pears with dull-appearing skin. A slight weakening of the flesh near the stem indicates immaturity; these will not ripen. Spots on the side or blossom end mean that corky tissue may be underneath.

We heard recently about a lovely trip two of our young people had during the Christmas holidays. Robert Passwaters and Delores Jones flew out to Atwater, Calif., during the holidays to visit his sister and her aunt, Reba Bubb.

While there they spent one day at Disneyland, met their aunt, Mrs. Dorothy Collins of Tucson, Ariz., and their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Collins and family of Huntington Beach, Calif. Accompanied by the Bubbys, they went to Pasadena to see the Rose Bowl parade on New Year's Day. The first float was that of Dr. Billy Graham.

We have this message from Mrs. Marvil Austin, chairman for the Memorial Heart Fund Drive.

"More and more people are contributing to the Heart Fund in memory of a friend or relative.

Your thoughtful tribute is acknowledged to the family of the person in whose memory the gift is presented, and you, the donor, are given a receipt for your contribution.

Give your contribution to your Heart Fund solicitor along with your name and address, the name and address of the family and the name of the person the gift is in memory of.

The chairman in your town will send this information to Mrs. Marvil Austin, Memorial Fund chairman, 125 Bethel Road, Laurel, 19956, or you may mail your contribution to Mrs. Austin yourself."

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Yeako had a surprise telephone call from their son, Jimmy, this week, telling them that he has been transferred to Travis Air Force Base in California for TDY duty for 69 days. He will be leaving from Montreal, Canada Air Port on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Adams and Mr. and Mrs. Emory Williamson were Monday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Workman.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lynch of Selbyville entertained to a surprise 46th wedding anniversary dinner on Sunday to celebrate the wedding anniversary of Mrs. Lynch's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Meredith Sr. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Ward Meredith of Wyoming, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Meredith of Greenwood, Mrs. Violet Bringhurst of Viola, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Meredith and family of Wilmington and from Bridgeville, Mr. and Mrs. William Ray, Mrs. Virginia C. Ray and Miss Virginia Ray.

The sewing circle met with Mrs. Nelson Meredith on Wednesday. Greenwood Kiwanis Club News:

Lt. Gov. of the 11 Division, Phil Mauck of Georgetown made one of his official visits to the Greenwood Club last Thursday evening. Introduced by president John Dorofee, Lt. Gov. Phil, among other things, congratulated the club on the good meals that always seem assured in Greenwood and the efficient manner in which all club reports are filled. He stressed the need to add new members and to make sure, as a club, we become involved with Kiwanis International's two programs, "Operation Drug Alert" and "Improving the Quality of Our Environment."

The guest speaker of the evening, introduced by William Fleischauer, was Lawrence Hyde of Atlanta, Ga. Mr. Hyde is with the U.S. Department of Health, Bureau of Disease Control. He is on a five-week assignment to the Delaware State Board of Health, Dover. He talked mostly about children's diseases, mostly that can be controlled by vaccination. He demonstrated for the club, the new high-speed vaccination gun.

Appreciated was the supper prepared and served by Mrs. Laura Benner and her daughters. Equally well received was the beef dinner served the preceding Thursday evening by Mrs. Cora Tenneson and her helpers.

We regret to report that two members of our club are confined to the hospital. We sincerely hope for a short time. Ebe Reynolds Sr., is in the Milford Hospital and Clarence Ocheltree in the Seaford Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Medford Calhoun and Mrs. Doris Hudson attended the surprise birthday party and dinner on Saturday given for Mrs. Calhoun's brother, Benjamin West in Laurel. Around 30 guests were present to wish him many more birthdays and to present him with lovely and useful gifts.

Sussex County Tel. Reassurance Program Doubles Its Service

The Sussex County Telephone Reassurance Program sponsored by the mayor and Council of Georgetown will double its services immediately.

The program made available by a grant from the Bureau of Aging of the State of Delaware, is over subscribed according to Mrs. Mabel Lambden, coordinator. After consultation with Dr. Preston Lee, chief of the Bureau of Aging, and Mayor W. Layton of Georgetown, arrangements were made to increase the number of calls made each evening from 60 to 120. The persons making the calls have now become sufficiently proficient to place a call every five minutes, where up until this time, each of the two operators placed a call every ten minutes.

The calls are made from the town of Georgetown offices, between the hours of 5 to 10 p.m., to the elderly throughout Sussex County. Every community in Sussex County has at least one subscriber to the service. The primary purpose of the program is to insure that the elderly who live alone communicate with someone at least once each day. If the subscriber to the telephone checks does not answer the call, an emergency plan goes into effect and a neighbor, doctor, or clergyman as designated by the subscriber will go to the residence. Mrs. Lambden said she has not had to put the emergency procedure into effect. The closest she has been to it has been securing a doctor for a subscriber who was able to answer the phone, but not sufficiently alert to get the help she required.

Many other services are provided for the elderly as they are identified through routine calls. Mrs. Lambden either takes action herself or gets someone in the subscribers area to take action.

Mayor Johnson told Lee he thought it would not be long before the hours of calling would have to be increased.
