BURTON'S ISLAND PURCHASED BY DEL. FOR STATE PARK

Governor Russell W. Pe-erson announced the signing of an option for the purchase of property known as Burton's Island.

The 235 acre tract is lo- cated in Sussex County adjacent to Delaware Seashores State Park at the Indian River Inlet.

At a news conference held on the island, the Governor said that the property will be acquired by the Department of Natural Resources and En- vironmental Control.

The cost—estimated at $1,942,500—will be split equally between the State and Federal governments.

"Acquisition of the island will provide for a very signif- icant expansion of Delaware Seashores State Park (pro- viding bay and ocean-orient- ed recreation for Delaware- ans," Governor Peterson said.

"Burton's Island is unique due to its location adjacent to both Rehoboth Bay and Indian River Bay and its prox- imity to the Atlantic Ocean. It is also unique in that, with the exception of one small area, the natural ecology of the island has not been disturbed. It is one of the few remaining undeveloped areas on these highly valuable in- land water bodies."

The island contains approx- imately a dozen permanent residents and approximately 315 dwelling units, ranging from cottages and trailers to shacks. Also on the island are some docks, a concession stand, and boat charter and rental operations.

Settlement for purchase of the island is scheduled for June 30. Between now and then, the State must make available the necessary funds, notify all residents of the summer homes of the sale, reach all necessary agree- ments with the yacht basin operators and others for con- tinuation of certain recreat- ional facilities, and prepare the final official documents for transfer of ownership to the State.

A public meeting for all persons affected by the State's acquisition of the is- land will be held at the Re- hoboth Junior High School Stockley Street Extended and Silver Lake, on Friday, May 14, at 7:30 p.m. Purpose of the session is to inform every- one of the State's plans for use of the island and to consider individual problems.

Following settlement will come the start of relocation of residents, clearing of land and development of initial recreation facilities.

Initially, the island will be limited to fishing, picnicking, boating and nature study. While longer range plans are not yet completed, the island's potential will be evaluated and then it will be developed in accordance with the State Recreation Plan, the Governor said.

The Federal funds will come through the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and will include $500,000 in special "contingency reserve" as

Veterans' News

Q—I purchased a home under the GI Bill, and have now been notified that the property is going to be condemned to make way for a Federal highway. Can I have my loan eligibility restored to purchase another home?

A—Yes. The VA may restore the amount of a veteran's entitlement previously used for any loan on a home which has been taken by condemnation or otherwise by the United States, any state, or any local government agency for public use. However, before there can be any restoration of entitlement, the GI loan on the property must have been paid in full, or the VA must other have been relieved of liability under the guaranty.

Q—I have a rather large dividend accumulation on deposit with the VA insurance service. May I withdraw it?

A—Yes. You may withdraw all, or any part of the accumulated dividends.

Q—Several years ago, my "old law" pension was terminated because my annual income exceeded $1,600. I understand that the income limitation for a single veteran has been increased to $1,900. Can I be reinstated under the "old law", since my income is now within this limit?

A—Yes. A change in the law which became effective on Jan. 1, 1971, increased the income limit to $1,900. Any veteran whose pension was terminated after July 1, 1960, because of excessive income may now requalify under the new income limit, provided he has not elected to receive "new law" pension.

LIFE IS WHAT WE MAKE IT

Isn't it strange
 That princes and kings,
 And clowns that caper
 In sawdust rings,
 And common people
 Like you and me
 Are builders for eternity?

Each is given a bag of tools,
 A shapeliness mass,
 And a book or rules;
 And each must make —
 Ere life has flown —
 A stumbling block
 Or a stepping stone.

Editorial Note: Nicht wahr. The Linotype will be manufactured in Europe. John Deere farm machinery is also manufactured in West Germany and assembled here.

Typesetting machines cannot be replaced in their entirety. And, believe it or not, there are still newspapers in this country which compose, or set, their type by hand.—C. H. Burgess.

Almost lost among the pages of Sunday daily newspapers was a small item noting that the Mergenthaler Company planned to discontinue the manufacture of Linotype machines, starting in 1971.

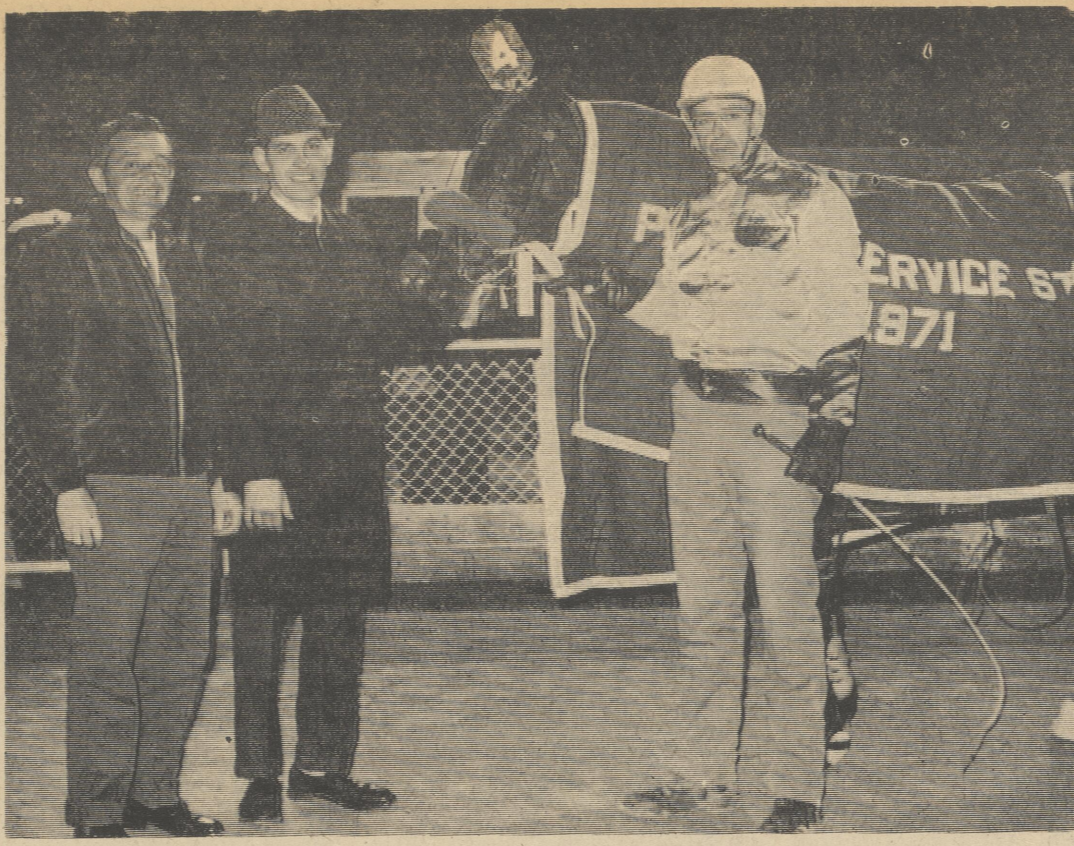

To people who aren't in the printing business the item probably had little meaning. To old-timers in the business it was almost as though General Motors suddenly announced that it would no longer make automobiles.

For more than 80 years the Linotype has produced the type for most of the world's printed matter. Before a German immigrant named Ottmar Mergenthaler patented his first machine in 1866 all type for newspapers was laboriously set by hand, one letter at a time.

The story goes that when the first Linotypes were put in use by the big New York daily newspapers the hand-set printers attacked them with axes, believing the machines would put thousands of tradesmen out of work. Actually the opposite was true. The Linotype revolution enabling newspapers to more than quadruple their size. More books and magazines were published and more people learned to read. The Linotype as much as any other invention, increased the world's literacy.

To this writer, who learned the intricacies of the Linotype at the Mergenthaler School in Chicago as a young man, the machine was one of the most wonderful mechanical devices ever conceived. Installed in newspapers of all sizes around the world, Linotypes have spurred forth an endless stream of shining lead slugs, ready for the printing press, and they are as near to being fool-proof as anything mechanical could ever be.

But the advent of offset printing, which makes it much simpler to reproduce type from a photographic negative than from letters stamped on a metal slug, has spelled doom

EARL BUTLER OF PEOPLES SERVICE STATION, HARRINGTON presents trophy to Don Robertson of Georgetown for winning feature race with Afton Webb last week at Harrington Raceway. for the Linotype. Computerized machines with solid state electronics insides that can set type amazingly fast on a piece of film have just about ended the 80-year reign of the mechanical typesetters.

To be sure there are still batteries of Linotypes in large daily newspapers and many small ones everywhere. But they will eventually be phased out and seen only in printing museums.

There is one big difference in the Linotype and the new computerized typesetting machines, as anyone who has owned both can tell you. The Linotype we could repair ourselves, with a piece of wire or another part from the company. The tape-operated "new generation" gadget we installed a couple of years ago can only be repaired by an expert from LaCrosse or Madison—at a charge of $15 an hour.

The typesetting industry, once dominated by Mergenthaler's Linotype, has been taken over by the electronic firms, IBM, Honeywell and Singer. And the printing business will never be the same again.

—Boscobel (Wis.) Dial

Delaware Food Market Report
 by Anne Holberton

Vegetables belong to the good things of life, and they do provide many of the finest flavors we know. To get those flavors, you must know how to treat vegetables, for they do take care.

Anyone with a will can learn to properly shop for and care for vegetables; it's the wanting to that makes the difference.

Most fresh vegetables on today's markets are of good quality, thanks to the increased efficiency of marketing. However, there are enough that are of poor quality that it makes it smart to know some shopping tips. Here are the basic buying guides.

Demand freshness. Check characteristic signs of freshness such as bright, lively color and crispness. Vegetables are usually at their best quality and lowest price at the peak of the season.

Handle with care. Use thoughtful care to prevent injury to vegetables when you shop. Some vegetables are more hardy than others, but bruising and damage can be prevented by just being careful.

The consumer, and that includes all of us, pays for carelessness in the long run. Don't buy just because the price is low. It doesn't pay to buy more vegetables than you can properly store in your refrigerator, or than you can use without waste. Most fresh vegetables can be stored for two to five days except for root vegetables, which can be stored from one to several weeks.

Avoid decay. It's a "penny foolish" to buy fresh vegetables affected by decay. Even if you do trim off the decayed area, rapid deterioration is likely to spread to the salvageable area. A few cents extra for vegetables in good condition is usually a good investment.

To insure the best flavor, color, texture and food value in vegetables, cook them only until they are tender. Remember, vegetables cooked whole in their skins retain most nutritive value.

The less water used while cooking the better, so for young tender vegetables use ½ to 1 cup of water for six servings. Water to cover is needed for some root vegetables that require longer cooking.

Spinach and other greens need only the water clinging to their leaves from washing, if cooked over low heat in a pan with a tight-fitting lid. Tomatoes can be cooked in their own juice.

To keep the green color in vegetables do not cover with a lid for the first three minutes of boiling time. To keep down the odor of the cabbage family when cooking, place the "heel" slice of a loaf of bread on top of the vegetable and cook. Remove before serving, or it can be used in the sauce if one is made.

Gerardi Bros. has done it again, having ended in first place in the first two thirds, they now have sewn up the third and final third by crushing Harrington Package in all four games. LeRoy Wheeler scattered the pins for a grand 565 set to lead Gerardi's to victory. Harrington Package had to go into the fray with only a four-man squad as they fell from the seventh spot down to the ninth spot in the standings.

With one week left in this bowling season, there is a possibility that Taylor & Messick, Spoilers, McKnatt Funeral Home and Wally's Garage could end up in a tie for the title as Jarrel Fuel and Gerardi Bros. are eliminated, having each won a third this season.

Jarrel Fuel crushed McKnatt Funeral Home's bid for moving up on top of the teams bidding for the title by capturing three games in a hard fought contest. Dallas Hayman came through in fine form rolling a great 227 game and a 562 series as Preston Carmean chipped in a great 522 series effort and Harold Melvin contributed a grand 545 set for the fuelers fine effort. Bob Taylor rolled a fine 526 series and Don Garey hit a fine 202 game with Donald McKnatt adding a fine 201 game, enabling McKnatt's to stay in the running for the title.

Taylor & Messick moved in to the top spot between the teams veying for the title by overpowering Quillen's Market in three games to hold a pin advantage only over the Spoilers, who hold an identical won and loss record. Ken Outten rolled a great 526 series, and Bobby Collins, Bob Wilson and Tom Brown contributed fine above average efforts for a full team effort by the farm boys. Ralph Kemp and Dennis Pase rolled very well for the Market boys as they fell into the cellar spot.

The Spoilers and Wally's Garage battled to a two-two stalemate as Jack Sapp rolled a great 527 series, and John Shaffer, Billy Morris, and John Wright all added fine efforts for the Spoilers. Balancing the power on the garage boys squad was Wally Ryan, who picked a good night to roll a league leading 264 game, amassing a superb 583 series, with Larry Breeding adding a grand 540 series.

Charles Baker hit a great 525 series and Ralph Butler contributed a great 224 game and a great 524 series, with Sam Lyons adding a fine effort to aid Butler's fuel in squashing Gallo & Stevens in all four games. The construction boys could not get an offensive started, bowling below their capabilities Tuesday night.

Peoples Restaurant had an off night, but managed to eke out a four game victory over a four-man Penn Central squad as they too hit an off night. The railroaders' Bob O'Ber was the only bowler to surpass his average and

Dover High's trackmen evened Lake Forest's track record at 1-1 by rolling up 100 points to 41 by the Spartans. The Senators are a typical, big-school track team. They have a large squad, numerically speaking and possess too much depth and talent, at this time, for the improving Spartans.

The locals had three top men missing and were victimized by bad breaks and mistakes, but Dover figures to beat the Spartans by 90-50, if these schools met a couple more times.

Actually, the Spartans performed better in several events, than they did in the opening win over Milford. Chris Wetherhold led Lake Forest with wins in the mile (4:35.3) and half mile (2:05.4). Dover's strong duo of Carney and Sudler were tough to beat and tried to box Wetherhold in during the 880, but couldn't quite get the job done.

Brad Morris shadowed Winslow of Dover for three or four laps, in the two mile run, then drew steadily away, to win in 10:25.5, the best mark of his career, by ten seconds. Morris has the best two mile time in the conference, this campaign.

Lake Forest's other victory came in the 440 relay. George Turner, Bob Smith, Norman Baynard and Don Parker spun a 48.2 quarter mile.

The 880 relay quartet of Smith, Ray Guinn, Bill Walls and Fred White ran 1:37 flat behind Dover's 1:36.9. Both relay units ran much masterful than in the opener. Smith was the top Spartan in each 500 relay.

Herman McBride was second in the triple jump with a new Lake Forest mark of 40 000 38 feet, 10 inches. George Turner, holder of the old mark was third, but set a Spartan record in the long jump with a leap of 18 feet, 9 3/4 inches, good for second-place.

Dave DeMora, a brand-new pole vaulter, cleared eight feet in his first practice session, then climbed over 9 2 0 0 0 feet, 3 inches against Dover to annex second place behind Dover's Pepper, the Henlopen champion. In 1970, DeMora's brother, Dan, was a late candidate in the high jump but quickly became the No. 1 Spartan. Sometimes a new recruit clicks, immediately.

Robin Callahan ran well in the high hurdles, than spun the discus a new personal record distance of 118-9, just seven feet behind the school standard, held by Mickey Chaffinch.

Allan Parker toured the quarter in 55.8, then turned in a fine, anchor leg in the mile relay, as Lake Forest ran 3:43.4 a big improvement. The Spartans run in the Bridgeton, N. J., relays this Saturday.

Spartans Lose Two In Extra Innings

It took twenty-one innings to accomplish Lake Forest's two recent defeats, leaving the locals with a 1-2 record in the Henlopen Baseball Conference.

Sussex Central edged the Spartans 3-1 in ten innings with Jim Dill pitching very well, in defeat.

Mickey Chaffinch had two of the losers six hits.

David Newnom and Dill handled the mound duties, as Seaford nipped the Spartans 2-1, in eleven frames. Lake Forest outthit the Blue Jays 6-5.

Researchers have found a new use for your stale beer. Research workers from the U.S. Department of Agriculture laboratories in Beltsville, Md., have found that beer is very effective in controlling slugs.

This is a true fact and some of the university researchers have also evaluated this method for slug control around the home and buildings and found it to be more effective than some of the regular slug-killer materials. They recommend using stale beer because they figured no one would place good beer out for the slugs.

At the research station at Beltsville, the researchers placed two shallow pans in a greenhouse, one filled with beer, the other with a common slug killer. The beer attracted 300 slugs and the slug-killer attracted only 28 in a four-day period. According to the researchers, the slugs apparently drowned, once in the pan of beer. Boy what a way to go!

Many home owners call these pests snails, in some cases, they may be. Snails have a hard external shell, whereas, slugs are soft bodied and have no external shell. Of these two creatures, slugs are usually the most abundant and the main pest around homes. So, if you are troubled with slugs, save that last swallow of your favorite brand for the slugs; it is a proven fact that beer is very effective in the control of slugs.

Farmers and home gardeners sometimes become confused with the different types of fertilizers that are available. There are primarily two types of fertilizer materials available, one being the inorganic type and the other organic, or derived from once living materials.

The inorganic fertilizers are those such as 5-10-10 or 10-10-10 you buy at your local garden center or farm supply. These materials are derived from combinations of various chemicals and from minerals mind or dredged from the earth.

Organic fertilizers are materials such as cotton and soybean meals, various types of manure, sludge or tankage, which are derived from plant and/or animal sources. Most of your organic fertilizers are slower to break down because they must go through a decomposition before the plant foods are released; whereas, the inorganic fertilizers are readily available once in contact with soil and moisture.

The organic fertilizers are usually more expensive to acquire the same amount of nutrients as compared to the inorganic fertilizer. Many of the organic fertilizers are recommended primarily for home use because there is less chance of burning plants.

As far as one type of fertilizer being better than another is debatable. These fertilizers must be evaluated for your particular use before one has the advantage over the other. The average farmer could not use the organic-type fertilizer because of the expense, whereas, home owners use small amounts and can safe guard from an overdose by using these materials.

If you would like to have more information on fertilizers and their makeup, call Kent County Extension Office at 736-1448.

The agricultural research service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture is working along with universities to perfect a foam blanket material for frost protection on early crops. By spraying this material on the soil, it acts as an insulating material to hold in the earth's heat to prevent frost damage. Such a material as been developed and proved to be non-toxic to plants and biodegradable in the soil.

This material lasts from 6 to 16 hours and plants that are surrounded by the foam keep an average temperature of 22 degrees Fahrenheit warmer than those left in the open.

One of the main materials used to form this protective foam is gelatin, with which all of us are familiar. Instead of it being put on the table in a Jello form, it may be sprayed on fields to protect our early production of field crops.

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

Do you want your daughter to learn to sew? It's a useful skill she will use all her life, so encourage her as soon as she shows interest.

Her first sewing interest may be making doll clothes. Her results may not be as accomplished as yours, but she'll be proud of her efforts. Her feeling of success will help her decide to continue adding sewing skills.

When it's time for her to learn to use the machine, let her master the speed control without needle or thread. In this way the thread can't tangle and there is no danger of stitching over fingers.

Once she masters the speed, insert the needle for practice "stitching" on ruled paper. Only when she learns to follow lines and control speed should you approach actual stitching with thread and fabric.

First projects should be quick and easy and something that can be "shown off" to family and friends. If it can be worn, it's even better.

Recently I saw some patterns for wonderful first projects that should make any girl feel proud. These are summer play dresses—and toppers—made from pillow slips. I wouldn't have believed it either until I tried one. It was quick and easy and looked very smart.

The hem of the pillow slip becomes the hem of the dress, instant hemmings! The seam at the other end is trimmed off and the pillow slip folded so the side seam is a center back.

Patterns are available for cutting neck and armholes. Each shoulder, front and back, has four quarter-inch tucks (one-half inch of fabric is taken up in each tuck). These tucks give shaping and style.

If a placket is necessary at the back neck to get the dress over her head, open the seam for a couple of inches and stitch down the edges.

Now all that's necessary is sewing shoulder seams together and finishing neck and armholes edges. An easy way to do this—place rick-rack along the edges on the right side and stitch through the center or the rick-rack. Turn the rick-rack over to the back. Stitch a second time along the edge of the material on the right side. There's a raw edge underneath, but it's stitched flat and won't ravel.

The piece left when I cut out the neck was big enough for a pocket. Press-on trim made from colored mending tape is quick and effective.

Printed pillow slips offer many design possibilities. The patterns were developed by clothing specialists of the Cooperative Extension Service of Michigan State University. They are available in sizes 8 through 12 in three neck styles. An adult cover-up is also included. However, it isn't too difficult to cut your own.

If you'd like more information about the patterns, write Home Economics Extension, 128 Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, 19711, or call 738-2537.

Tent Caterpillars Building Nests

Eastern tent caterpillars have started weaving their tiny nests again this spring.

Their tent-like nests, composed of layers of silky web, can be seen in roadside trees and neglected orchards, reports Frank E. Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

Wild cherry trees are the most popular hosts of tent caterpillars, but apple trees are also high on their list. Plum, peach, pear, rose, Hawthorne and various shade and forest trees are also susceptible.

The nests of tent caterpillars and the caterpillars themselves are disfiguring to roadside, orchard and yard trees, notes Boys. And when caterpillars appear in large numbers, they often eat all the leaves on a tree. Although this may weaken the tree, it almost never kills it outright.

Tent caterpillars can be controlled with Sevin used at the rate of two pounds of 50 percent wettable power per 100 gallons of water or three tablepoons per gallon. Spray to wet the foliage thoroughly, even to the run-off point.

4-H Leadership Program Helps Train America's Youth

Some 4-million young people now participate in 4-H. And before the decade of the 70's ends it's estimated that membership will double to 8-million, according to the figures projected by the Cooperative Extension Service which supervises 4-H.

"Volunteer leadership requirements for such a greatly expanded 4-H program are awesome," says Norman C. Mindrum, director of the National 4-H Service Committee.

He feels, however, that 4-H itself may furnish much of its needed leadership. Mindrum notes that in 1970 there were 150,040 young people active in the 4-H leadership program. These boys and girls, proficient in their own 4-H activities, assumed the responsibility of working with younger, less experienced members in various programs and projects. Often their work was performed with the guidance of adult local volunteer leaders, but just as often their work was with 4-H Clubs which they helped organize.

The leadership program is a vital, viable activity in every state. As 4-H continues its move into urban areas, much of the responsibility to organize and lead the new groups has fallen to older 4-H members. One of the young leaders singled out to receive a national scholarship given by the Sears - Roebuck Foundation at the 1970 National 4-H Congress was Clayton Taylor, 18, of Rt. 1, Okaha, Okla. Now in his freshman year at Oklahoma State University, the national winner is an example of the young leadership being developed in 4-H.

Taylor and his friends attempted to organize a 4-H Club in his elementary school. The matter was decided with a debate. The advisor and officers of the competing organizations had a chance to present their cases.

"I was the only person with any 4-H background, so it was four of them versus me before more than 100 students," Taylor remembers. In the end, the advisor conceded that 4-H was worthwhile, "and 57 students joined the junior and senior 4-H Clubs within an hour," the young man proudly admits. Leadership is an integral part of every 4-H activity. And within the next nine years there will be about 8-million more potential and actual leaders ready to take up their roles as mature, responsible adults and citizens. They will have received their training by participating in the 4-H leadership program. Sponsored by the Sears - Roebuck Foundation of Chic-

Dispose Of Excess Pesticides Safely

Attempts to ban or restrict the use of certain pesticides have created a problem for many farmers and home gardeners—"What should we do with these chemicals now in storage?"

The easiest way to dispose of excess pesticide is to use it up, says John S. McDaniel, extension agricultural chemical specialist at the University of Delaware. Most chemicals will cause fewer problems when carefully applied to a particular area than when disposed of carelessly.

If you can't dispose of excess chemicals safely, keep the material locked in storage until proper disposal is possible.

When disposing of small quantities of pesticides, contact your local garbage collection service, says McDaniel. They may accept pesticides, burying them in an area remote from water supplies. Do not remove the chemical from the container. Wrap the container in several layers of newspapers and put it in a tightly covered garbage can.

Where proper dump facilities are not available, you may be able to bury the chemicals safely by following certain procedures. Select a dry area which has a low water table and is away from wells. Clay soils are usually much safer than lighter sandy soils for burying pesticides, points out McDaniel.

Dig a hole large enough for the container as well as the pesticide in a single layer of soil. This layer should be at least 18 inches below the surface. You will also need some calcium hydroxide (hydrated lime) equal in volume to the pesticide. Pour one-half of the lime in the bottom of the hole. Place the pesticide and container on top of the lime—making sure the container is open—and cover it with the remaining lime. Next, fill the hole with dirt rounding it off on top so water will run off to the sides.

When handling pesticides, always use the same precautions that would be taken if you were applying the material, stresses McDaniel. And follow the directions on the label.

When emptied, glass and metal containers should be rinsed at least twice with water and the rinse water run through the sprayer. This will remove most of the pesticides remaining in the container and it is one of the safest means of disposal.

Puncture and destroy metal containers, if possible. But do not puncture or burn pressurized cans, cautions McDaniel. When properly rinsed, punctured or broken glass and metal containers should not create a problem if left for regular garbage pickup.

The contest, open to the public will be held May 1, 8:00 p.m., at the Caesar Rodney Junior High School, Camden.

Brandywine 4-H Club Receives Citizenship In Action Grant

A suburban Wilmington 4-H club has received a 1971 4-H Citizenship in Action grant to expand its work with inner city youngsters.

The $150 grant, made available by the Reader's Digest Foundation through the National 4-H Club Foundation, was presented to the Brandywine 4-H Club.

For the past three years the Brandywine club has sponsored a 4-H club at the Neighborhood House, 1220 B Street, for inner city Wilmington youth. With support of the Brandywine club members, the Neighborhood House 4-H'ers have participated in such activities as the Delaware State Fair, the Delaware Flower Show, the Reddy Foods Contest and 4-H talent shows and dress reviews. With the Citizenship in Action Grant, the Brandywine 4-H'ers hope to expand and improve this inner city 4-H program. The grant will be used to buy supplies and materials for a special arts and crafts project designed to develop the creative abilities of inner city youngsters. Teenage members of the suburban club will demonstrate various crafts programs for inner city youths, while younger 4-H members will help prepare the materials. Staff of the Delaware Cooperative Extension Service and volunteer 4-H leaders will help supervise the project.

Encyclopedias - Good Buy Or Fraud

Will owning a new encyclopedia really improve your child's mind or help him do better in school?

Certainly, buying a 20-volume set will put a large dent in your budget, says Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. Is it worth it?

Yes, encyclopedias do contain a lot of information, but even experts argue about how much is ever transferred from the book to a child. Few adults would read an encyclopedia for pleasure; most children won't either.

However, an encyclopedia is a good reference—if it's used correctly. But just copying from it word for word, as many children do, is hardly a learning experience, according to educators.

Just because you have a handsome, new encyclopedia, your child is not automatically on his way to becoming a cultured genius. A weekly trip to the local library for books he'll enjoy—and read—is much more beneficial than owning a little-used encyclopedia. And much cheaper.

Encyclopedias are costly—even the so-called "free" sets many salesmen try to promote, warns Miss Morris. One company quotes its set as free; all you need to pay is a dime a day to "keep it up to date." Add in the carrying charges and that "free" set will cost you nearly $66. That's an expensive encyclopedia, especially since the list price is less than $300.

Another gimmick unfortunately typical of many door to door encyclopedia salesmen is this statement, "You've won a free set." How could you win? You never even heard of the contest before.

Or, maybe he says, "You've been selected as a model family because of your education and background. You can have the set free if you'll let us use your name for advertising."

Watch out; there is always a catch when an expensive item is offered free, says Miss Morris. "At least one well-known company offers its encyclopedias free—with a membership fee of $44.95 per year for ten years. But the fee has to be paid within three years; with finance charges, the free "book" cost $571.

Don't buy anything at cost as an encyclopedia on impulse, she warns. Are you really sure you need a 20-volume set?

Why not start with a one-volume desk reference encyclopedia for about $10. That may be all your child needs for most of his homework. Encyclopedias are useful certainly, but they're free at the library, including most school libraries.

Whatever your decision, greet a door to door encyclopedia salesman with complete skepticism, advises Miss Morris. Tell him to leave at once if he offers a free encyclopedia in exchange for an advertising testimonial. Show him the door if he says you've been especially selected.

Some salesmen hope to wear you down with their sheer persistence; they stay and stay, argue and argue. Tell them to leave after a reasonable time; if they persist, get impolite. Call the police if necessary.

Don't sign anything unless you really want to buy; even the most innocent-looking statement can turn out to be a binding installment contract. Instead, ask the salesman to come back in a week, after you've had time to think the deal over. If he refuses and says you must buy immediately or lose the bargain, beware. Most likely, it's no bargain.

To get the facts on encyclopedias, go to your local library. The American Library Association rated children's encyclopedias in The Booklist, June, 1970. General Encyclopedias in Print, published by the Bowker Co., rates, describes and prices 37 works. Both ratings should be in your library. Ask your child's teacher or school librarian for recommendations, too.

A lot of work? Yes, but it will help you make a decision involving several hundred dollars.

4-H Automotive Programs Accomplish Astonishing Results

How much can be accomplished by young people when they pool their talents on the countywide basis in the 4-H automotive program. An astonishing amount, the Cooperative Extension Service reports.

In Mecklenburg County, North Carolina, 35 clubs and groups got together. With the help of 57 adult automotive leaders, more than 3,000 young people in 19 towns and rural communities worked on automotive care and safety projects.

The countywide automotive activities included two Charlotte Motor Speedway events, field trips to law enforcement centers and Citizens Safety Association to drive Link Trainers. They held an automotive camp at the Betsy-Jeff Penn 4-H Center attended by 60 teenagers.

At the kickoff banquet Gov. Robert Scott was the principal speaker with many special guests. The 4-Hers participated in the Labor Day picnic with the Mecklenburg Jaycees. Over 45,000 people attended and the young people had an automotive display and helped with the Miss Traffic Safety Contest, parking and crowd control.

Some 60 clubs in Fayette County, Kentucky, cooperated in the automotive program where 61 adults and 18 junior leaders helped carry out the program. Over 850 young people took advantage of the training.

The group conducted 41 classes which included an auto rally and "mock trial" for second- and third-year students. They also toured an automobile plant in Detroit.

In St. Landry Parish, Louisiana, 14 groups enrolled 283 young people in the program which enlisted the help of local businessmen to conduct safety clinics and various automotive contests and driving events.

The same story is repeated again and again in counties throughout the country. For these accomplishments, each county earned a plaque and a $25 cash award from the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, national 4-H automotive program donor.

The cash award recognized the most outstanding automotive program in the state and provided funds for further work on the 4-H automotive program. Firestone also offers others recognition and incentives for 4-Hers in the automotive program and provides two-color certificates to a maximum of the upper 10 per cent of counties in each state conducting outstanding 4-H automotive programs.

The company also provides recognition to individuals including an all-expense trip to the 50th National 4-H Congress in Chicago for a winner from each state.

Eight educational scholarships of $700 each will be presented at 4-H Congress to members selected from the state trip winners.

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company assists in the development of work manuals, program guidelines, visual aids and special publication designed to promote and implement the program. The company also provides funding for innovative automotive programming and leader training in about 20 states.

Awards and related program assistance are arranged by the National 4-H Service Committee.

For more information about the 4-H automotive program contact the county extension office.

Environmental Planning Topic of U Of D Lectures

The importance of environmental planning in regional development will be discussed in lectures at the University of Delaware April 22 and 29.

Richard Toth, professor of landscape architecture in the Graduate School of Design, Harvard University, will discuss "Resource Inventory and Environmental Planning" April 22, in Agricultural Hall starting at 1 p.m.

A noted authority in the field of regional planning and development, Toth is a consultant to Steinitz-Rogers and Associates, Boston, and is involved in environmental planning projects sponsored by the Laboratory for Computer Graphics and the Harvard Research Office. His presentation, which is sponsored by the Visiting Scholar Committee and is open to the public, will center on man's impact on the environment and the methods used to select the areas best suited for urban development.

John C. Keene, associate professor of city planning at the University of Pennsylvania and member of the Research Council, Institute for Environmental Studies, will discuss implementing large-scale environmental plans, April 29, at 1 p.m. in Agricultural Hall.

Organizer and coordinator of four years joint program in law and city planning at the University of Pennsylvania ia, Keens also worked on development of the Brandywine Plan — a regional development plan for the Brandywine Valley. His presentation will touch on some of the problems associated with trying to get a regional plan implemented.

Keene's appearance at the University of Delaware is being sponsored by the department of plant science of the college of Agricultural Sciences.

Easter Lilies Make A Lasting Gift

A carefully chosen Easter lily will not only brighten the home of a friend during the holiday season, but it can serve as a lasting reminder of your thoughtfulness, according to an assistant professor of horticulture at the University of Delaware.

Although Easter lilies are inferior to lilies bred specifically for the home garden, many people have been successful in transplanting the plants outdoors, says Dr. Richard W. Lighty.

He suggests that if you buying an Easter lily as a gift, select one that has the bottom blooms fully open and the uppermost buds still green. If you receive a lily, place it in a cool, sunny location. Don't leave an Easter lily in a dark corner or in an exceptionally warm room for more than a day.

Lilies need proper drainage, adds Lighty. Don't let water stand in foil wrapped pots. Water the plant only when the soil appears dry, then add enough water to wet all the soil in the pot. Let excess moisture drain into a plate or saucer.

If you care for your lily properly, it should still be green when all danger of frost has passed, usually in early May. Then, pick a sunny, well-drained spot in the garden and plant your lily.

Place the contents of the pot so the top is about two inches below the soil surface. Fill the hole and water well. Chances are the lily will naturally turn brown and lose its leaves in approximately a month.

Occasionally in the fall, the plant will send up new shoots in an effort to bloom again before frost sets in. While this is somewhat undesirable, it will not harm the plant. Don't dig up your lily in the fall, cautions Lighty. These plants are hardy and will overwinter nicely.
