

Price Heads L.F. Bd. of Education

Albert C. Price was elected president of the Lake Forest Board of Education Wednesday evening, July 7, in a reorganizational meeting at the high school.

He replaces Everett W. Warrington, whose term has expired. Marvin Brown, Fredericka, was elected vice president.

Other board members are Joseph Hughes, Virgil Jarrell, Nyle Callaway, James Pizzidilli and Donald Garey, the last-named being elected for a five-year term in May.

Outgoing board members were Mrs. Edna Gruwell and Medford Killen.

Albert W. Adams, superintendent of the school district is board secretary by virtue of his office.

While it was predicted the district would lose a number of employes because of the state's financial crisis, the board is playing it by ear.

After an executive session it moved that four secretaries, scheduled to be laid off by the state's budget crisis, be paid from local funds thru July 31.

Since a special session of the General Assembly will be held this month, the board is biding its time before making binding decisions.

Personnel Paul Stubbs, of Harrington, replaced the late Frank Melvin as a minor maintenance man.

Last Thursday afternoon, the board awarded these contracts: Retubing boilers at LF North Elementary School, Felton, Potts Welding & Foundry, $3294.

Awarded contract for student accident insurance for the 1971-72 school year to Moore Insurance Agency, Felton.

The next meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., Monday, July 19.

Ralph Collison Retires After 44 Years

Ralph H. Collison, Wilmington, vice president of J. A. Montgomery, Inc., has retired after 44 years with the company.

Collison was graduated from Greenwood High School in 1926 and from Beacom College in 1927. He entered the employ of J. A. Montgomery Inc., on July 11, 1927.

1st Staters Lose Camp Privilege

Under pressure from the federal government and out-of-staters, Delawareans will no longer enjoy squatter's rights on Indian River Inlet campsites.

Also, daily campsites rates will be increased to $3 on Aug. 6 and the state will begin charging for the use of state parks on the same date.

In June, the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control announced 159 campsites between Scott's Marina Road and reserved for state residents Indian River Inlet would be on a first-come, first-served basis.

On the south side of the road, 350 sites were available for anybody. Residence was decided by auto registration and license.

During the week of July 5, the state turned away out-of-state cars from the south side while the Delaware side was full only on one day, according to William J. Hopkins manager of parks.

Tuesday for example, there were 40 cars parked in the Delaware side while the other side was full.

The U.S. Department of Interior protested the policy, reminding the state in a letter that federal funds had been spent on the area.

Sen. J. Caleb Boggs, R-Del., also questioned the decision. However, the state also received many letters of praise from local campers, according to Austin N. Heller, secretary of natural resources and environmental control.

Hopkins did not say what the new policy would be other than the present one reserving the sites for Delawareans would be thrown out.

He also announced the cost of daily camp fees will be increased from $2 to $3, effective Aug. 6 with an added 50 cents for electricity.

He also announced the park users fee approved by the 1970 legislature would become effective Aug. 6.

A $5 permit would be good for any park all year. A dollar per day would be charged cars not having a permit. Vehicles containing more than 20 persons would be charged $2 per day.

A duplicate permit will be made for those persons with more than one registered car.

Lake Forest Head Takes CR Principalship

James Schoch, principal of the Lake Forest High School, has accepted a similar post at Caesar Rodney High School.

The 39-year-old principal will replace Norman F. Zimmerman who has taken a principalship in Bordentown, N. J.

Schoch, who will assume his duties August 1, is a 1959 graduate of Indiana University in Pennsylvania and has a master's degree from the University of Delaware.

Schoch will be replaced here by Hubert Mock, vice principal. His replacement has not been appointed.

The Lake Forest Board of Education has canceled its Monday meeting and will wait for action of the General Assembly on finances.

Films To Be Shown On Child Care

The dangers of accidental poisoning and the proper methods of feeding young children are featured in two new health filmstrips available from the division of Physical Health Film Library.

"Little Children and Big Poisons" is a 38-frame, color filmstrip (35mm, silent) which shows cases of accidental poisoning and suggests methods of making a home less dangerous for young children.

Another color filmstrip now available from the Division's library, "Feeding Your Young Children" (35mm silent, 60 frames), was produced for parents of children from two to six years of age.

"Feeding Your Young Children" is divided into three sections: proper foods for the child, what to expect when feeding the child, and helping the child learn to feed himself.

These filmstrips—and others dealing with these and related health topics—are available on a free loan basis from the Film Library, Division of Physical Health, State Health Building, Dover, 19901, telephone 678-4754.

Del. Watermen May Hand Tong Oysters

80 Kent Merit Workers Given 5-Per Cent Raises

Kent County's 80 merit-system employes Tuesday received a 5 percent cost-of-living pay increase, retroactive to July 1.

The action was part of a last-minute motion before the Kent County Levy Court which met in closed session for about five minutes prior to the vote to discuss the measure.

According to Levy Court Commissioner James B. McIlvaine, who made the motion, the pay raise will cost the county about $17,000 this year in added salary payments.

The petition was presented by Mrs. Edward J. Bogus Voshell Mill Road, Mrs. Bogus is chairman of the Briar Park Civic Association which pressed for the legislation permitting the collection districts.

A public hearing is scheduled Aug. 3 on the district, which will be similar to street light districts.

The Levy Court also voted to extend use of the St. Jones county landfill for another year. The landfill costs about $10,000 a year to operate according to County Engineer Walter L. Fritz Jr., who has long wanted to close down that landfill and operate from the county's second dump.

Legislation enacted by the General Assembly and approved by Governor Peterson proposes that $1.5 million be appropriated in support of the joint medical education program. DIMER administers the program.

In addition, the Delaware Academy of Medicine will be allotted funds to provide financial aid, scholarships and loans for individual Delaware residents enrolled in the co-operative program who need additional funds to assist them in meeting their costs for medical education.

Applicants for admission to Jefferson through the co-operative program are required to fill out the regular JMC application form plus a special form that verifies Delaware residency and indicates that the student specifically desires to enroll at the medical college through the co-operative program.

grandstand shows will be such stars as Merle Haggard, voted entertainer of the year by the country music association; and Loretta Lynn, top female country music vocalist.

Also appearing will be Guy and Raina, young man and wife singing duo from the Lawrence Welk show; the Doodletown Pipers, recording and TV stars; and Bread, four young men whose recordings "If" and "Manna" have been among the tops this year.

There will also be such traditional fair favorites as auto racing, motorcycle racing, a demolition derby, harness racing, auto thrill show and midway.

Tuesday, July 27 will be Children's Day with all school kids admitted free. Special afternoon and evening grandstand shows will present Bugs Bunny, Road Runner, Wile Coyote and friends.

Thursday, July 29, will be Governor's Day, Senior Citizens' Day and Armed Forces Day. All persons 60 and over will be admitted to the grounds free that day.

The fair will officially open at 5 p.m., on July 23 with the gates open from 9 a.m. to midnight through July 31.

The Levy Court also voted to extend use of the St. Jones county landfill for another year. The landfill costs about $10,000 a year to operate according to County Engineer Walter L. Fritz Jr., who has long wanted to close down that landfill and operate from the county's second dump.

The Levy Court also postponed action to send a letter to homeowners in the Eberton development north of Dover. The letter would have promised to refuse any bids above $87,000 for suburban roads in the development.

A recent engineering estimate from the state Division of Highways put the cost of laying streets in the development at about $106,000. An earlier estimate put the cost at about $83,000.

According to Commissioner Samuel G. Forester the Eberton residents are angry about the cost increase and have vowed to defeat a bond referendum on the increase when it comes up for a vote Aug. 5.

Forester had requested the Levy Court to assure the homeowners that no bids above $87,000 would be accepted by the Levy Court even if the $106,000 referendum should pass.

Grant Awarded To Wilmington Medical Center

The National Multiple Sclerosis Society has awarded a one-year grant to the Wilmington Medical Center to support preparation and publication of the results of research begun by Dr. Dewey A. Nelson, chief of the Center's section of neurology.

The research, on the effectiveness in multiple sclerosis of intrathecal injections of Methylprednisolone acetate, was conducted by Dr. Nelson with the assistance of Dr. Thomas S. Vates, Jr., a member of the section on neurology, and Dr. Roger Thomas Jr., a third year medical resident at the medical center.

Dr. Thomas will be co-authors of the paper. Because this therapy is already being used in some parts of the country, Dr. Nelson is trying to report his results as soon as possible.

He treated 22 multiple sclerosis patients with methylprednisolone acetate, a steroid which was injected under the membrane that covers the spinal cord, in varying doses, while the patients were suffering acute attacks of exacerbations.

The study is centered around the results of 78 injections in 22 patients who had 54 new attacks during the course of this study.

The grant is supported by a gift received from the estate of Catherine MacGregor.

4 Escape Fire At Owens Station

A family of four escaped injury when a fire nearly destroyed their home at Owens Station near Greenwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hearn and their two children also managed to salvage many of their belongings from the fire, which required the assistance of three fire companies to extinguish.

One fireman, George Johnson of Greenwood, was slightly injured when he cut his hand on broken window glass. He was taken to Milford Memorial Hospital, where six stitches were used to close the wound.

Greenwood Fire Company was called out at 9:33 Thursday night to fight the blaze. According to company chief Robert Collins, the fire was caused by an electrical short.

Fiscal Responsibility

Pierre S. duPont U. S. Representative

Here in Washington, July brings a new year for the Federal government fiscal year 1971 ended on June 30, and we are now in fiscal year 1972. With the beginning of the new spending year, I took a few moments to reflect upon how the Federal government spends your money and whether you are really getting your money's worth. I've concluded that the Federal government just isn't spending your money as wisely as it could and that waste and inefficiency continue. I've found two general problems which are particularly troublesome to me.

First, although every single Federal agency needs an appropriation from Congress to operate in the present fiscal year, only three of fourteen appropriation bills have been passed. This causes confusion, lack of planning, and a waste of your money. Some agencies will not know how much money they will have, and what purposes it can be spent for until the year is nearly one-half over. Congress gives them a special night to pay salaries and meet expenses two weeks at a time. Can you imagine trying to plan your budget not knowing whether or not you'll have any money two weeks from now? And two weeks after that? It would be nearly impossible for most of us, and the Federal government is no exception.

Secondly, and more importantly, the past few months have dramatically demonstrated to me the need to redirect the thinking of government officials toward greater fiscal responsibility. The Federal budget continues to expand endlessly, and I'm convinced that all too often, your dollars are being spent on projects which are unnecessary, too expensive and ineffective. I think that many Federal officials have forgotten that the money to run the Federal government comes from the paychecks and the pocket books of hard working Americans, and they don't want it wasted and mismanaged by government.

Several experiences come to mind from voting on appropriation bills in Congress so far this year that point out just what I'm talking about. Although I voted "No", Congress passed a Sugar Subsidy Bill which cost the American taxpayer over $1 billion per year; nearly half of it to foreign countries such as the Dominican Republic, the Fiji Islands, and the Malagays Republic. The sugar program was supposed to stabilize the price of sugar and provide for an adequate supply, but it has become a political gravy train.

We recently passed part of the Defense Department Appropriations Bill, which eventually will total over $80 billion. Certainly in this $80 billion, there is some room to save the taxpayers lots of money, without jeopardizing our national defense. The recent disclosures about the huge cost overruns on such projects as the C-5A, F-14, and B-1 airplanes which run into billions, should have brought Congress to its senses. But two critical attempts which I supported to cut funds and save you money failed. Fortunately, under increasing pressures, funds for the F-14 project were voluntarily scrapped by the committee at the last moment.

There are many ways to cut costs and save money here in Washington. Those which I mentioned above are just a few. More will be upcoming when new appropriation bills come before the House of Representatives. I'm going to continue to vote to cut many of these expensive budgets which the taxpayers are paying for. I believe that the American taxpayer is as concerned with fiscal responsibility and sound management of his money as he is about any other issue facing our country today. Government officials must begin to listen to the people who are paying the bills, because without their support, many of the truly worthwhile projects will suffer needlessly.

Shifting Beaches and Oyster Farming Subject for Lectures

Delaware's shifting beaches and the possibility of raising oysters away from coastal waters will be discussed by the first two speakers in a series of lectures presented by the University of Delaware this summer in Lewes.

The lectures will be held on Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock at the Cape Henlope School auditorium and will be free and open to the public.

Two U. of D. faculty members will deliver the opening talks in the series.

Dr. John C. Kraft, professor and chairman of the geology department, will present a lecture entitled "How Our Coasts Change" on July 21.

Dr. Kent S. Price, Jr., assistant dean of the college of marine studies and director of the field station at Lewes, will deliver a lecture entitled "Aquaculture: Farming the Edge of the Sea" on July 28.

As part of his lecture on coastal change, Dr. Kraft will discuss the systematic pattern in which Delaware's beaches are moving inland. Dr. Kraft will use geological studies and historical analysis to show how these coastal changes occur.

What science and technology are doing to improve the production of oysters will be reviewed by Dr. Price during his talk. Dr. Price will also offer ideas on recent proposals to raise shellfish in a man-made environment.

Three more Wednesday evening lectures will be presented in August. On Aug. 4, Dr. Gerald Cole of the U. of D.'s agriculture and food economics faculty will discuss population increases and preservation of waterfronts. On Aug. 11, Dr. L. Eugene Cronin of the Chesapeake Biological Laboratory will tell of ocean foods used by man. On Aug. 18, Leo Cotnois, associate professor of plant science at the U. of D., will discuss our coastal wetlands.

The series of five talks on the coasts of Delaware is presented by the college of marine studies through its Sea Grant program with the cooperation of Delaware's Division of Parks, Recreation and Forestry in the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control.

U. of D. Concert Choir Finale Climaxes Eight Country Tour

An evening concert in Luxembourg on July 15 will climax a 40-day tour of eight European countries by members of the University of Delaware concert choir.
The choral congregation has been warmly received by European audiences and captured second place honors in competition with 40 choirs at the International Koorfestival in Holland last month.
While performing at the Koorfestival the U. of D. group was selected as one of the seven most popular choirs in the festival.
Despite a tradition of no encores, the reception and applause for the U. of D. choir was so great festival officials allowed the Americans to sing another song after their regular program was completed.
Individual accolades went to Barbara Sater, a junior from 103 Winterbury Circle, Wilmington, who played an impromptu session with the hotel orchestra in Lausanne, Switzerland. The U. of D. musician was promptly photographed and her picture is now displayed with the hotel's gallery of visiting artists.
The 50 choir members and 12 chaperones will arrive at New York's Kennedy Airport on Friday, July 16, and will board waiting buses for the return trip to the U. of D. campus.

Veterans News

Q—My husband, a WWII veteran, died recently. I applied for the proceeds of his National Service Life Insurance, only to be informed by the VA that I was not the beneficiary. Is this money lost to me?
A—It may be. The VA must pay the proceeds of NSLI policies to the beneficiary last designated by the insured. Many veterans neglect to keep their beneficiary designations up to date. In your case, the situation can be resolved in your favor only if the named beneficiary recognizes the unfairness, and can be persuaded to assign all or part of the proceeds to you.
Q—I am receiving pension under the so called "old law". May I change to the "new law"?
A—Yes. You may change; however, before changing, it is suggested that you discuss it with a VA representative.
Q—I am a patient in a private nursing home who was receiving special monthly pension until the end of the year. My income will go a few dollars over the limit this year. Will I lose all of the benefits, including drugs and medicines that were being furnished by VA?
A—No, if your annual income does not exceed the limit by more than $500, VA will continue to provide drugs and medicines prescribed by your physician, even though your monthly pension benefits will be discontinued.
Q—I plan to purchase a mobile home and place it in a small rural town. I contacted the local lender about a GI loan and was advised that they would not make a loan under a VA guarantee. Is it possible to obtain a direct loan?

A—No. The law governing direct loans provides that such loans may be made only in non-urban areas where private capital is not generally available. Since the VA mobile home loan program has been in effect only a short time, there is insufficient basis for determining the availability of private capital for such loans.
A—I am attending school under the GI Bill and would like to change my program of studies. Is this allowed.
A—Yes. Each veteran may make one change of program. One additional change may be approved if it is found through VA counseling that the program proposed by the veteran is more suitable to his aptitudes, interests, and abilities.

Coming Events

On Saturday, July 17, the regular meeting of the General Service Committee of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Delaware will be held in the rooms of Friendship Lodge No. 22, in Hockessin, with chairman, Jeannette F. Shaw presiding and calling the meeting to order at 8 p.m.
The Harrington Fire Company Ladies Auxiliary is selling the American flag pins. Can be purchased from any member.

USDA to Allocate $15 Million For Child Feeding

The U.S. Department of Agriculture last Friday announced that an additional $15 million will be allocated from Section 32 funds to carry out summer feeding programs for children during the balance of the summer.
These added funds, plus those from earlier allocations make a total of $33.1 million now available to the states for 1971 summer programs. This is six times the $5.8 million used for these same activities during July and August of last summer.
"This added $15 million," assistant secretary Richard Lyng said, "will be sufficient to meet the requests for program assistance from most states."
State-by-state allocations of the additional $15 million will be made from the regional offices of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service within the next few days.

Allison Hall at U. of D. to Be Remodeled

Workmen will begin remodeling Allison Hall on the University of Delaware campus with completion scheduled for July, 1973.
Allison, which houses the College of Home Economics is on Academy Street across from the renovated Penny

Hall and not far from the student center.
The building is being renovated because the department in the college have increased in size and scope necessitating changes in location and dimensions.
No real change will be to the exterior of the building, although the grounds about the hall will be altered.
Inside the building, the child development area in the south wing will be moved to the north wing and doubled in size to keep up with the progress of the department, and the food and nutrition section in the south wing will be enlarged and renovated. The interior of the west wing, where administrative offices are, will be renovated and kept as an administrative area.
Outside, the play yard that exists on the south side of the building will become a lawn, and the play yard will be put on the east side of the building and fenced in. The play yard will then be adjacent to the remodeled child development area. The horseshoe driveway in front of the building will be lengthened and widened to provide greater safety for children entering or leaving automobiles.

The Wilmington construction firm of Ernest DiSabatino and Sons, Inc., was the successful bidder on the remodeling project, with a bid of $1,340,500 to remodel three wings, install an elevator, pave the driveway and parking area, replace the roof and the roof fans, and install an emergency generator system.
Kewaunee Manufacturing Company, Cherry Hill, N. J., was the successful bidder to install built-in laboratory and special scientific equipment at Allison at $33,090.

Del. River And Bay Authority News

Delaware Memorial Bridge traffic continued its volume increase in June, with 72,223 more vehicles recorded than in June 1970. Total traffic for June was 1,594,822 vehicles compared with 1,522,299 for June, 1970, or an increase of 4.8%.

These statistics were reported recently by bridge manager Theodore C. Bright to members of the Delaware River and Bay Authority.
Bridge traffic for the twelve month period ended June, 1971 was 16,933,134 vehicles to 16,258,628 vehicles for the twelve month period ended June 1970, an increase of 730,628 vehicles or 4.5%.
Since its August 16, 1961 opening, 228,585,676 vehicles have crossed the Delaware Memorial Bridge.
The Diamond State Electrical Construction Corp., of Camden - Wyoming has been awarded a contract in the amount of $29,450 to provide and erect floodlights at the Forest Lane recreational area on the University of Delaware campus.

The lighting fixtures will be erected on the north side of the Caesar Rodney residence hall complex between the complex and Main Street, not far from where Main Street, Elkton Road and Delaware Avenue come together.
Work was scheduled to begin on the project Monday, and be completed by Sept. 24.
To be lighted are a picnic area, horseshoe pits, and handball, basketball, volleyball, and tennis courts.

PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS, INC.
 By W.C. Burgess

Are you lonesome, tonight?
 Do you miss me tonight?
 Does your memory stray,
 To that night far away;
 When I kissed you and called you "sweetheart"?

It's a lonesome old town,
 When your're not around;
 I'm lonesome as I can be;
 How I wish you'd come back to me!
 (Instead of being way off in Israel).
 Mrs. L. R. Burgess is off on a tour of the Holy Land!

Confession is good for the soul, so they say!
 You made your bed cat; so now lay in it!
 Calendar for Partners Without Parents for this week:

July 16—Record Dance, 9 P. M. Tally-Ho-Restaurant-9 P. M.-Concord Pike, Wilmington.
 July 17—Trip to Zwaanendael Museum and Cape May Ferry to Lewes. Price, children, 1-6, $1.50, over 6, $2.50 round trip. Meet at Dover YMCA at 10 A. M.

Instead of singing the blues; come out and join us. Contact George Weiner, Tobacco Road, Hartly, Del., for membership blanks.

Boy, what a lot of fun. Four men and twenty women. One girl says to me; we have a shortage of men. "What happened to them. Before I could get straightened out, I told her a half truth. They killed them off." And I meant just that, too. One war and two holding actions—which is worse than a war! 'Nough said.

Another great, big, old beautiful doll—in her late twenties, has eight kleinkinds, German for children, in a row. I asked her is her husband dead. She said, "yes." I said, "What did you do; work him to death?" She just smiled. No answer. (Article printed with her permission.) In her miniskirt, she looks wonderful.

A girl told me she would like to go to Salisbury PWP. I didn't volunteer to take her because I wanted to go to Newark—Howard Johnsons—Saturday night. The next time I saw her—she said, "What do you want me for?" I told her "d'ont you know?" and then her boyfriend drove off.

Oh! Yes! This organization has branches all over the U. S. and Canada. It is an international organization devoted to the welfare and interest of single parents and children.

So, don't stay home and mope; come along as our guests.

Next Monday, July 19—there will be a discussion at the home of Faye Faust at Sudlersville, Md. The discussion will be led by the Rev. Edward Blevins. In case you get lost in Sudlersville, her phone number is 438-3567.

What does a man want a woman for, anyway! Any old rag, any old hag, or a bag of bones will do. A man wants a woman for companionship; so I have been told. You know, I was asked the same question once before—to my sorrow—I had two children to put through college at the time—so I ran out the door. All this is in confidence—of course.

Arriving at Howard Johnson's where the PWP dances are sometimes held—I encountered a very good dancer—she had four children—three girls and a boy—she told her husband as soon as she got out of bed—this is it. I guess she figured he always wanted a boy—so she stayed long enough to give him one.

The chapter to which I belong is PWP. Chapter 269, Dover, Martie Hankins, membership.

I understand (unofficially, of course) that WKEN is going to tape an article concerning PWP. I hope, my old friend, Al Hitchcock (of El Paso, Ft. Hood, Texas days) is in on the show.

"The birds and the bees aren't everything in human relations; but almost everything."

Letter To The Editor

Members of the League of Women Voters throughout the state of Delaware deplore the recent hasty and drastic measure taken to cut the state budget in the area of public education. We are sure that all concerned citizens feel the same. However, the constitutional requirement that a balanced budget be passed June 30th had to be met, and was met. Now it is time for educators, legislators, and the general public to put aside criticism and accusations and seek more acceptable solutions to this overwhelmingly difficult state-wide problem.

and their parents are depending on their school personnel and their elected officials to ignore personal and political considerations and to work to maintain the high quality of education in Delaware. The League of Women Voters of Delaware urges all Delawareans to work together to find the least detrimental solutions to the state's financial problems.

PWP Program For Week

Editorial by J. Harvey Burgess: Within the past seven years we have not heard one public speaker utter a good word in behalf of America! Seems strange, doesn't it—but the next time you visit a club remember this. We have hundreds of clubs during these seven years, and the chaplain asks the Omnipotent to bless us, the club members sing "God Bless America, Land That I Love" and then some paid propagandist gets up and proceeds to cuss America from Portland to Portland—and all the gum stumps and rabbit runs in between. Cusses America? That is just what he does when attempts to rip our government to shreds. America isn't alone the rocks and rills, the woods and templed hills; America isn't the alabaster heights, the heaven-kissing mountains, the boundless prairies and the glittering strands. Other nations possess these blessings, though not in our abundant measure. But our greatness lies in our freedom of opportunity—not to be confused with that most disorted and abused of phrases, "Free Enterprise"—and the privileges we enjoy here.

MODERN GRANDMA

The old rocking-chair is vacant today,
 And Grandma is no longer in it.
 She is off in her office or shop
 And buzzes around every minute.

No one pushes Grandma back on a shelf,
 She is versatile, forceful, dynamic.
 That's not a pie in the oven, my dear,
 Her baking today is ceramic.

You don't see her scurry off early to bed
 From a spot in a warm chimney nook.
 Her typewriter clickety-clack through the night
 For Grandma is writing a book.

Grandma never looks, from front or back
 As though her age was advancing
 She won't tend the children for you any more
 For Grandma is taking up dancing.

Her thinking today are on thoughts far away
 From old-fashioned, second-hand knowledge.
 Don't bring your mending to Grandma to do
 For Grandma has gone back to college.

Duerr Wins 5, Benson Sets World Mark

The second of four track meets to be sponsored by the Harrington Recreation Association saw Felton's Debbie Duerr win five first place ribbons, in the girls' 12-14 class. Harrington's Dale Benson set a world's record for eight-year-old boys, when he ran 660 yards in 2:10.3. The listed world mark of 2:15.8 was by Mark Zucker of Reseda, Calif.

Ken "Bullet" Cerklefski, 9, pushed Benson to the world mark with a fine 2:12.8 clocking. Ironically, Cerklefski had erased another Zucker mark from the record books in the 440-yard run for boys aged eight.

DAVE WOODWARD
ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

People in the United States are using more red meat than ever before. The consumption rate per capita is increasing every year. With costs of production rising, beef producers have found it necessary to increase the rate of gain for their animals in order to make a profit. Feed additives, such as Stilbestrol, Ralgro, Rapi-gain, and Synovex, have been used on beef animals to improve the rate of gain and feed efficiency.

The most popular feed additive is Stilbestrol, which is a synthetic chemical compound having the properties of the female sex hormone, estrogen. By feeding Stilbestrol to steers on full feed of grain, a farmer can expect 15 to 20% faster gains with a 10 to 12% saving in feed per pound of gain.

The current regulations of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for Stilbestrol allow feeding at a rate varying from 5 to 20 milligrams per head. Because indiscriminate use of Stilbestrol is dangerous to both cattle and man, its use in a cattle feed has been approved only for when it has been incorporated in a carefully regulated pre-mix and sold to commercial feed companies to be mixed with normal supplements for beef cattle finishing rations.

Like many other feed additives, Stilbestrol is subject to regulations by FDA. Only authorized manufacturers with proper mixing facilities are permitted to add such materials to feeds. The use of Stilbestrol in a feed must be discontinued forty-eight hours prior to slaughter.

Then how does a consumer know that he is getting the highest quality product free of contamination? Recent state law require meat inspection practices to be equal to federal standards. These laws guarantee consumers that meats processed in slaughter plants are wholesome and that all plants use sanitary procedures.

Meat inspection also helps producers by spotting potential disease outbreaks before they occur in a herd. The quality control staff of a packing plant include veterinarians and other qualified inspectors who have received special training in inspection and sanitation of meat and meat products. These inspectors are paid by the state or federal government, and are not employed by the plant.

Before slaughtering takes place, these inspectors examine live poultry, cattle, hogs, goats and sheep that will be processed. They reject or contain any sick or unsuitable animals. If an animal is found with a fever, it cannot be slaughtered. After animals

4-H Club Talk

with Marion MacDonald

All Kent 4-H'ers have now returned to their homes from state 4-H camp. Camp is held each year at Camp Barnes in lower Sussex County. Those receiving leadership roles at camp were: John Webb, Chris Webb and Pat Harrison.

At the high council ceremony John Webb was chosen to represent the head ideal; Charmayne Pierson, the heart ideal; and Chris Webb the spirit of state 4-H camp 1971.

While all Kent 4-H'ers are busy preparing their Delaware State Fair exhibits, some cooks are busy perfecting their favorite dishes for the state Reddy Foods contest.

The contest will be held in the clubhouse at the state fairgrounds on July 14. Awards will be presented at 2 p.m.

Those cooking from Kent County in the breads division are: Martha Obier, Janet Cahall, and Susan Holloway.

Cooking in the main dish division are: Laura Newnom, Karen Newnom, Sharon O'Bier, Barbara Moulton and Dana Gooden.

Dessert dishes will be prepared by: Barbara Schepens, Tamara Wolpert, Dawn Doughty, Judy Gibson, Karen Knight, Pat Holleger, and Terry Gallo.

Other cooks will use small appliances. Entered in this division are: Brenda Clark, Robert Cooper, and Rebecca Stiers.

are humanely killed, a post-mortem examination takes place. During this examination, inspectors cut into and examine the glands, head, heart, spleen, and other internal organs. The body cavities are also examined. Every effort is made to see that only healthy animals are passed for use as food. If an inspector is not satisfied with a particular carcass, samples are submitted to a laboratory. The carcass is not processed until the results of the tests are known, and if a positive diagnosis is found by the inspector, the animal is traced to the original herd. Other carcasses receive chemical tests to detect the residues of drugs that may have been used on the live animals.

These federal and state inspectors make sure that the packing plants are managed and operated in a satisfactory manner. Buildings and equipment must be clean. Plant personnel must wear clean clothing; flies and other pests must be kept under control.

Indirectly, meat inspection helps producers maintain a clean, healthy herd or flock of animals, besides guaranteeing the housewife she is buying the best for her family.

It Seems To Me

by Janet Reed

A good pressing job is as essential as your sewing if you aiming for a professional appearance. And, good tools are essential for the pressing job.

The seamstress has a much larger choice of pressing equipment available than she did a few years ago. You no longer have to make pressing hams and other tools; you can buy them if you wish. In fact, so many pressing tools are appearing you may begin to wonder how many you really need.

If you have enough space to store them, there are many good tools. For most seamstresses, the most useful equipment will be a pressing ham, a seam roll and a point presser.

The pressing ham is firm pad shaped like a ham and used for pressing curved areas. It is especially useful in working with wool and other fabrics which need careful pressing to shape the fabric over darts and curved seams. It must be firmly packed so it gives a hard surface to press against. If the pad is covered with wool-on at least one side-it will be helpful in preventing shine when pressing wool fabrics.

A seam roll can be easily made at home with a new rolling pin or a firmly rolled magazine. Either should be covered with several layers of muslin or old sheeting for a pressing surface. Use the seam roll to press seams where you want pressure at the stitching line but not at the seam edge. The curved surface of the roll allows you to press firmly on the seam without leaving an imprint of the seam edge on the garment.

The rolling pin gives a

Farm Workers Can Have Income Tax Withheld

Farm workers are reminded that under the new federal tax law, they can have part of their wages withheld for taxes.

Until this law went into effect January 1, there were no provisions for withholding income taxes from the paychecks of farm employees, notes W. T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware. This resulted in serious financial problems for some farm workers when their taxes were due.

The new tax regulations permit, but do not require, withholding taxes from the wages of farm employees, McAllister emphasizes. Taxes can be withheld only if the employer and employee both agree to the arrangement.

Farm workers can initiate the withholding practice by obtaining a W-4 form from the nearest office of the Internal Revenue Service.

This form is used to indicate the number of exemptions claimed by the employee. Once a W-4 form has been filed, the employer will be authorized to make deductions from the employee's paycheck, just as he does for social security taxes. Income taxes withheld from employees can be included with the social security taxes and deposited in one payment.

Farmers must deposit this money whenever the amount withheld for social security, the employer's contribution to social security, and the income tax being withheld equals $200.

Farmers who are to withhold employees' income taxes should obtain a copy of the Internal Revenue's Circular E, "Employer's Tax Guide." The circular outlines how to determine tax deductions.

Preserve Flowers For Colorful Arrangements

If you are interested in flower arranging, preserve your own blooms and foliage this summer.

The dried leaves and flowers of many plants can be used to create colorful arrangements when flowers are no longer available from the garden, points out Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

One of the easiest methods of preserving flowers is to let them dry naturally. Tie your flowers together in small bunches and hang them with their heads down in a dark, well ventilated area. (Bunches are too dark however), Stevens says this process works best with flowers such as delphiniums, globe thistle, celosia and hydrangea. Borax can also be used to dry flowers. Cover the bottom of a large box (a suit box is ideal) with a thin layer of borax and cornmeal mixed in equal amounts. Place the flowers face up in the borax-cornmeal mixture and sift on more of the material until the flowers are lightly covered. Place the box in a dark, dry room until the blooms are completely dehydrated.

Zinnia, marigold, chrysanthemum, dahlia, Shasta daisy and many other flowers can be easily preserved with the borax treatment. Foliage can be preserved with glycerin, adds Stevens. All you do is stand the stems or leaves in a mixture of glycerin and water.

Many types of leaves can be preserved by the glycerin process. Leaves from beech, birch, peach, plum and poplar trees are easy to preserve, while barberry, forsythia, blueberry, rhododendron and rose foliage can also be used in interesting arrangements.

The leaves of many perennial herbaceous plants may be used such as canna, coral bells, geraniums, iris, ivy and lily-of-the-valley. If the leaves have woody stems, cut off the lower inch before starting the treatment. Stand the stems or leaves upright in the glycerin-water solution.

The leaves will change color as the solution is absorbed, thus leave the stems in the glycerin until the color is the same throughout the leaf. This indicates that absorption is complete. Some of the small, hardy flowers such as dwarf zinnias, marigolds, pansies and pom-pom chrysanthemums can be dried with sand. Remove all the foliage from the flowers before placing the blooms face down on a thin layer of fine, dry sand. When the flowers are in place, cover the blooms with additional sand; the stems do not have to be covered. Place in the sun to bake. The flowers should be dry in one to two days.

Silica gel can also be used to dry flowers, but it is more expensive than the other treatments, says Stevens. This material looks like sugar and has the capacity to absorb up to 40 percent of its weight in water. Remove the foliage from your flowers and if the stems are fragile, it is best to cut them off and dry only the flower head. Later a false stem can be wired on. Cover the bottom of a fruit cake tin or similar container that has a tight cover with 1 1/2 inches of the silica gel. Place the flowers face up in the material making sure the petals do not touch. Cover the blooms with the material and then put the lid on the container and seal with masking tape.

In five to seven days the flowers will be dry. The silica gel will turn from blue to pink when all the moisture has been absorbed. Once the flowers have been removed, you can re-use the material by placing it in a warm oven at about 250 degrees for about an hour. Stevens says silica gel can be used to dry Ageratum, snapdragon, aster, calendula, cosmos, daisies, dahlia, salvia, candytuft, bells of Ireland and a host of other flowers.

High Temperatures May Affect Fruit Set
Home gardeners may wonder why their tomato plants bloom but the fruits fail to set. The problem could be high temperatures.

Tomato blossoms set their fruits within a narrow temperature range, notes Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the university of Delaware. If the temperature drops too low, below about 54 degrees, the blossoms will fail to set. If the temperature is too high, in the upper 80's and low 90's this will also prevent the fruits from setting.

High and low temperatures will also affect the fruit set on snap beans, lima beans, peppers, eggplants and other garden vegetables.

It is difficult to correct this problem unless you can irrigate the plants regularly, says Stevens. Light irrigation in the form of a fine mist will keep the air cooler around the plants. Even irrigation with a garden hose will help to some extent since the evaporating moisture will have a cooling effect and prevent some blossom-drop.

When the temperatures drop again, the plants will begin to set fruit. It is not too late to plant some vegetables, adds Stevens. If you have an area where garden peas were growing, or where lettuce was planted, you can plant cucumbers for a late summer or early fall crop. The variety Poinsett is particularly well suited to fall production since is it disease resistant.

Cucumbers develop quickly with high soil and air temperatures, but it is necessary to provide an adequate supply of water if the weather is dry. Remember when ready for harvest, cucumbers should be picked every other day. Chinese cabbage is another fall crop that can be planted now. Stevens says the plants should be spaced 10 to 12 inches apart and irrigated often.

In late July, you seed turnips and winter radishes. In early September, there is still time to plant kale, radishes, lettuce and spinach.

When seeding vegetables during the summer, remember to make the furrow slightly deeper than you would for spring planting. If the soil is dry, put water in the furrow before seeding. Dried grass clippings or clean straw will help encourage germination, but as soon as the seedlings start breaking through the soil, remove part of the covering to avoid competition.

KENT COUNTY COMMENTS

by JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
Levy Court President

One of the hardships for residents of Kent County who live outside of cities is a higher cost for garbage collection. The Kent County Levy Court, in order to lower these costs, submitted a bill to the Delaware legislature to create garbage collection districts. The bill was passed and became law on July 5, 1971. This new method will lower costs by approximately one-third because the garbage collection company will serve the entire area just as if it were in a town, and the county will be responsible to collect the charge.

Kent County suburban residents will find their garbage collection fees greatly reduced if they follow these procedures:

At least 25 property owners of an area in Kent County which is outside of a city may present a petition to the clerk of the peace to create the garbage collection district.

Upon receipt of the signed petition, the Levy Court will schedule a public hearing to decide whether or not a majority of the property owners want the proposed district. If a majority want the district, the Levy Court will advertise for bids for garbage collection and assess the collection cost to the property tax bill. Each year the contract shall be re-bid.

The Kent County Levy Court feels that county residents should not be burdened with paying a higher price than city residents for gar-

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Holberton

There seems to be some bad news in store for food buyers of the nation. As it stands now, predictions are that retail prices for food in 1971 will average around 2 percent above 1970. This is the opinion of Marketing and Transportation Situation. However, The Wall Street Journal concludes that this is likely to be a low estimate.

After talking with people in the field of agriculture (producers, processors, shippers, etc.) the reporter concluded that the increase in prices may reach the 5 percent level of last year. The increases are expected for pork, chicken, eggs, fish and fruit and vegetables, both fresh and canned. Rising costs of producing and distributing foods will underlie the increased prices. In fact, approximately 60 percent of the food price increase can be attributed to labor and marketing costs. These costs are rising because of recent and forthcoming increases in wages all over the country.

Beef prices should remain at current levels through most of July with seasonal weakness showing in August and September. Don't expect much of a price decline since the demand is keeping pace with the supply. True, more cattle are being marketed but at lighter weights, so the total supply is only slightly higher than last year at this time. What happens this winter will depend in part on this season's grain crop. So far observers seem to be saying that a near normal crop is much more possible than was predicted. The weather has helped to hold down the corn blight which played havoc with last year's crop.

Pork prices are expected to remain steady to slightly higher through the rest of this month and then will decline seasonally during the last of August. Then by October, prices will be back up to levels of last year. September is the month to enjoy this meat at economical levels.

Supplies of broiler-fryers are down from a year ago levels; however, this delicious meat is still plentiful and when on special sale is an outstanding buy. There are more turkeys on hand than last year. This plus the ### sharply larger supplies of pork have held turkey prices below those of a year ago.

Fresh vegetable supplies are increasing and they are expected to be generally ample. There should be plentiful supplies of tomatoes, cucumbers, sweet corn, squash, cabbage, and carrots. Canned vegetable supplies will be slightly larger this year. However, increases in shopping costs are expected to push up retail prices anyway.

Now's the time to enjoy fresh blueberries, watermelon, and cantaloupe. All are in fair to good supply and priced reasonably. Heavy supplies of top quality watermelon will be on local market by the middle of this month. This sweet and juicy melon, served ice-cold is a sure way to beat the heat and chase away summer meal-time doldrums.

Md. State Senator To Speak at U. of D.

Clarence M. Mitchell III, the youngest person ever elected to the Maryland State Senate, will speak at the University of Delaware on Tuesday, July 20, at 8 p.m.

Mitchell's lecture is free and open to the public. A graduate of Morgan State College in Baltimore, the senator was one of the original organizers of the Morgan sit-in movement which helped to open a large number of Baltimore department stores, restaurants, and hotels to those of all races.

In 1960, he was one of the founders of the Student Nonviolent Co-ordinating Committee (SNCC) in Atlantic where he was associated briefly with the late Dr. Martin Luther King.

That same year, he was one of four student leaders who directed the Baltimore NAACP's mass "register and vote" campaign which resulted in the registration of more than 32,000 Negro voters over a six-day period.

At the age of 22, Mitchell ran for elective office in the 1962 state election and won in the spring primary on a strong civil rights platform.

Later, that fall, he won in the general election, leading the Democratic ticket as the top vote getter of the six house seat winners from his district.

During his membership in the Maryland General Assembly, he fought actively to enact the first public accommodations law of Maryland and to prevent drastic reductions in state aid to public schools. He also began a struggle to raise minimum wage payments and to include domestic workers in legislation covering minimum wages. He labored also to encourage dropouts to stay in school and to outlaw slot machines in the Free State.

In 1964, he served as one of the national honorary chairmen for the Young Citizens for Johnson-Humphrey organization and campaigned nationally for the Democratic ticket. In 1968, he was national co-chairman of the Young Citizens for Humphrey-Muskie group and served as a campaign advisor to the former vice-president during a 42,000 mile, 38-state campaign tour.

Mitchell has been awarded the Civil Rights Achievement Award and the North Carolina Conference of NAACP Branches Award and is listed in "Who's Who in American Politics." He has been a participant in White House conferences and served as one of the advisors to President Johnson during the civil disorders that were prevalent after the death of Dr. King in 1968.

His lecture on July 20 will be delivered in the Rodney Room of the Student Center.

Safety Hints

by Steven Mesibov

Now that lawn mowing season is in full swing, let us review the important rules for safety.

Know your machine's control and safety devices and its potential hazards as explained in owners manual.

Clear the lawn of sticks, stones and other debris.

Make sure all children and pets are a safe distance away. Never add fuel with the motor running.

Always push mower, never pull it. Keep hands and feet clear under mower.

Remember power equipment is a time saver, but when used improperly can lead to tragedy.

Students Claim Honors at VICA Meeting

Three Kent County Vo-Tech students claimed honors at the national competitions of Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA), held June 27-30 in Indianapolis, Ind. Seventy-eight Delaware students, with seven advisors, attended. Represented were Delcastle Technical High School, Wilmington; Sussex County Vocational - Technical School, Georgetown; and Kent County Vocational - Technical School, Woodside. VICA's membership from 41 states, Puerto Rico and Guam, tallies more than 100,000; a figure which makes the small number chosen as award-winners, all the more impressive.

First place in the national - mechanical drawing, was awarded to John Mears, 1456 Clayton Road, Dover. John is a student of Jerome Zaback. Sandi Warren, Felton, who is current president of Delaware's chapter of VICA, won first place in the first national safety contest. Her competition involved presentation of a safety manual covering safety procedures at Kent Vo-Tech, occupational safety, community safety, and other areas.

For the fourth year running Kent Vo-Tech received the special national safety council award, which is presented in recognition of the school's safety record. Debbie Eaton, Dover, accepted the award.

Delaware's programs for vocational education were further complimented in a speech during the opening session by Indiana's Governor Whitcomb and again when Robert Worthington, commissioner-elect of vocational education, addressed the awards banquet on June 30.
