

Everyone Will Pay to Dump Trash at Kent Landfills

Everyone will pay to dump trash at county landfills beginning Fri., Oct. 1, said William Paskey, Levy Court commissioner for the 33rd Representative District, Tuesday night at a covered-dish supper of the Southern 33rd District Democrat Club in the Century Club Building.

Answering a question from the floor, Paskey explained the fee system would be inaugurated at the county landfills in an effort to make the project self-sustaining. The county dumps are at Houston, Sandtown and Kenton. The commissioner said the fee system was supposed to start Sept. 1 but was delayed because of President Nixon's freeze on wages and prices.

He believed the fee would be 50c per car and more for pickups, but was not certain of the extent of the fee or how it would be collected.

He concluded by saying the location of landfills at Vernon and Leipsic was being given serious consideration.

Robert Reed, Kent County Democratic committee chairman and Levy Court commissioner-at-large, brought his listeners up to date on party activities. He thought a countywide dinner would be held in late October and attempts were being made to get a U.S. senator and presidential aspirant to speak.

In the redistricting of election districts which the Democrats want revised, he said, "We have made some progress."

He explained a lot of young people were registering to vote now in Kent County, with Democrats in the lead, followed by the declines.

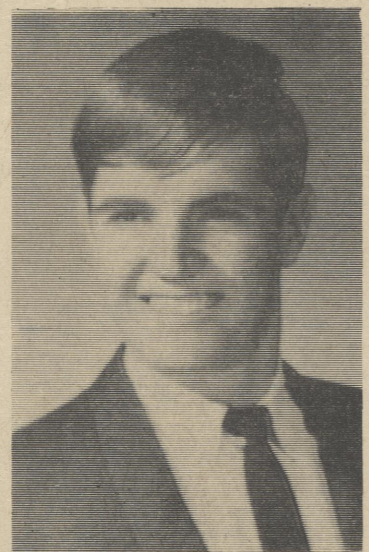

A county Democrat headquarters will open Oct. 1 on State Street, Dover, across from the courthouse. He believed "we stand an awful, awfully good chance of winning" in the next election.

Frank Whitley, of Camden, Kent vice chairman, was present and sold a number of Terry commemorative medals, profits from which will go to the State Federation of Democratic Clubs and the local club.

The meeting night of the local club has been changed to the first Monday of the month, with the next meeting to be held in the Century Club Building Nov. 1.

Parent Of Eagle Scouts Recommends Scouting

It is my hope that every parent recognizes Scouting as an opportunity for all boys in their formative years. Realize too, that many men from all walks of life devote their time and talents freely toward Scouting. Some of the men contribute ideas — some demonstrate their skills, while others present ideals. Scouting is educationally motivated, it creates curiosity to learn and determination to excel and then the fulfillment of satisfaction. What ever the projects these are the dimensions.

A Boy Scout has a place to go and a thing to do. He being an individual will be allowed his own pattern. He will become proud to represent his unit as it is like a big wheel — it covers a lot of ground.

He will learn that there is a time for work. Alone he must accomplish many things to show results and earn his own merits. As part of a group he will learn the value of everyone doing his share.

He will become tolerant of others desires and capabilities. He will acquire self discipline. He will become eager to help, quick to follow, and anxious to become a leader.

He will learn to play and most important, when to and how to. He will experience the thrill of winning and accept the tears of defeat. His attitudes will be as long as he played to the best of his abilities — win or lose — he was on the team.

He will learn to laugh, know of fear, understand dangers. He will become aware of responsibilities. He will learn to live the Scout motto "Be Prepared". Whatever task he undertakes he will be dedicated to do the best he can.

I was asked to write an article to help promote "School Night for Scouting" by the scoutmaster of Troop 76, Harrington. I feel honored to do so as I have two sons, Howard and John, who both earned the Eagle Scout award. The medal is inimitable but it illuminates their lives this far. As time passes by they have brought home many other honors. They have medals for faithful service, personal conduct, and performance in activities.

Framed letters proclaiming devotion to duty, ability to accept responsibility and outstanding teenager. Plaques giving recognition to the possession of courage, honor, leadership, patriotism, athletic awards. Many certificates of competition. I state all this without modesty, I am proud Scouting has been as important to my two sons as their three square meals. Now, no matter what trail they choose I feel sure they will try without hesitation. Literally in their knapsack they have tucked away many happy memories and stored a lot of useful knowledge in preparation for tomorrow, through Scouting.

I encourage every parent to look into Scouting to see what it can offer their son — and if you have talents or time what you can offer other sons, you will be rewarded.

Senior Center News

On Monday, Sept. 20 twenty-three members of the Center enjoyed a hymn sing and fellowship at the New Baptist Church. Special music was rendered by Rev. and Mrs. Norman Ponder of Milford and Mrs. Frank Collins and the choir of the Harrington church. Refreshments were served following the musical program. Rev. William Halliburton, who is pastor of the Baptist Church, serves as a member of the board of directors of the Senior Center. This is the second such program presented for the enjoyment of the senior citizens, the other being given by the 4-H Club. The interest shown for this project by community groups is gratifying.

Our director, Angela Johnston, was presented to the Rotary Club of Milford last Monday evening to explain the function of the Senior Center. She was well-received and congratulated on the program conducted in the interest of the senior citizens in this area. Sam Marshall, a member of the board of the United Fund and Council of Delaware which grants funds to the center to help promote the program, issued the invitation to Mrs. Johnston. Mr. Marshall became interested in the center's activities after a visit to the Fleming Street address. As the United Fund campaign begins, it may be well to remind everyone that contributions may be designated for a specific organization.

The birthday party will be held Monday, Sept. 27, with ten honored guests: Ruth Vincent, Elena Dunn, Herman Ryan, Pearl Derrickson, Catherine Stevens, Ernest Gleason, Edith Massey, Mary Cooper, Ethel Statum, and Mary Stafford.

On October 15 and 16 a group from the center will be displaying arts and crafts for sale at the Blue Hen Mall.

2 Men Linked To 6 Burglaries

Town police stopped a car on a routine traffic check early Saturday morning and found the apparent solution to several burglaries.

The car contained assorted merchandise and police said the two occupants were carrying concealed weapons. Four charges of burglary were placed against each.

Frederick W. May, 22, of Lincoln was committed to Sussex Correctional Institution in lieu of a total of $4000 bail. The other occupant of the car, a 16-year-old Bridgeville boy, was sent to the Stevenson Home near Milford.

Police said May was AWOL from the Marine Corps.

Police added merchandise was found in car and trailer from Dover, Lincoln, Milford and Greenwood.

State police said other charges were pending against the two by Harrington police.

They said the two admitted their involvement in six recent burglaries.

MISSING GIRL BACK HOME

A girl reported missing last week is back home.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Butler, Mrs. Dagny Anderson and Eddie Greenly drove to Pompano Beach, Fla., and returned with Mai-Jeanne Anderson, 16, Sunday evening.

The whereabouts of the girl was unknown until she telephoned Harrington Thursday night from the Florida city.

Further details await action from the local police.

Burning Case Dropped

Charges against Thomas Elwood Davis, 42, of Harrington, for "attempting to burn" were dropped at a preliminary hearing held Monday in Magistrate Court No. 6, Harrington.

Davis was arrested on a warrant signed by Emma C. Howard, also of Harrington, accusing him of throwing kerosene-filled bottles at her home late Sept. 12. One of the bottles ignited, causing minor fire damage to a door. The other two broke out several windows.

Mrs. Howard refused to testify against Davis in Court Monday and charges were dropped due to lack of evidence.

Scout Recruiting Set For Next Week

A recruiting effort to extend the Scouting program will be offered Thurs., Sept. 30, at 3:30 p.m. All boys in ages, 8 to 14, interested in becoming a Cub Scout or Boy Scout, please report to the school that will be open for this program nearest your home.

Schools participating in this program will make announcements to the boys.

Each boy must be accompanied by a parent or legal guardian.

School Enrollment Increases; To Study Building Program

Increased enrollment in Lake Forest District Schools has caused the school board to look again at a building program, it was learned Monday night at a meeting at the high school.

A referendum for a building program was defeated Sat., May 8, to raise $410,000, with the state to provide an additional $615,000 for classrooms at Harrington and Frederica, a multipurpose building here, and an administration building.

The enrollment picture, as revealed by Dr. Howard Henry, deputy superintendent, is as follows:

There are 148 units, of 20 to 25 pupils each, in the Lake Forest School District. This is a greater increase, Dr. Henry explained, than he had anticipated. The greatest increase is in the secondary schools, but it also includes 20 additional kindergarten pupils.

Some students, Henry pointed out, are "still dribbling" into the high school. The increase here is more than 166 which "is far more than I had anticipated." He also said "we didn't have as many dropouts as usual."

Albert W. Adams, superintendent of schools interested the district had the greatest percentage increase in enrollment of schools south of the canal.

He believed that after Sept. 30 three more teachers would be needed.

Largest increase apparently was at Lake Forest North Elementary School at Felton.

Continuing, Adams commented maybe in October the Certificate of Necessity may have to be revised. This is a permit from the State Department of Public Instruction to build. The superintendent said a study would be presented to the board of education 10 days before its next meeting, which will take place Mon., Oct. 18.

The money, $615,000, appropriated by the state for the defunct program proposed in May, is still viable but must be used by 1973, when the certificate expires. Classrooms are needed at Frederica, Felton, and Harrington elementary schools. Adams believes this program, without the administration building proposed in the May referendum, could be sold to the electorate.

Because of the increased enrollment, the board Monday night agreed that the head of the guidance department, be requested to work 12 months a year instead of his usual 11. He also has a half-time counselor. There are 868 students in Lake Forest High School.

Rodeo To Be Held at Dover Downs

Put together a ton of raging, red-eyed Brahma bull and 160 pounds of daredevil cowboy and you've it excitement.

According to Mrs. Gerald Medd of Milford, will have more than that Oct. 2 and 3, it'll also have a means of drawing attention to, and raising money to conquer, cancer.

Mrs. Medd is the Milford-area co-ordinator for a two day rodeo, imported from Cowntown, N.J., to be staged at Dover Downs. The first performance will start at 2 p.m., Sun., Oct. 3. Each show will last two and a half hours.

The Dover rodeo will be presented by Howard Harris III, owner and producer of the Cowntown Championship Rodeo, and the youngest rodeo owner in the United States.

Advance tickets for the Dover rodeo may be obtained from Clendenning Pharmacy, East and Clark Streets, Harrington.

LAKE FOREST SCHOOL BOARD NOTES

Gleaned from the board meeting Monday night

Mrs. Legatha Farrow, retired school nurse, decided she did not desire any employment in the schools this year. At the August meeting, it was indicated she was interested in part-time work.

Board recommended a maximum of $500 to employ substitute teachers for those attending conferences. In-service training calls for $15 to $25 per day.

Miss Cynthia Mobilia, head of cafeteria, reported cafeteria funds for all schools would be deposited in The First National Bank of Harrington instead of three banks as heretofore.

Approved appointment of Mrs. Virginia Ware as cafeteria worker at Lake Forest East Elementary in place of Miss Edwina Abbott who has resigned.

Approved appointment of Mrs. Eileen Redden as social studies teacher at Lake Forest High School.

Approved appointment of Mrs. W. W. Shaw III as 4th grade teacher at Lake Forest South Elementary. She replaces Mrs. Clyde Perry who teaches in the 6th grade.

Board members James Pizzadilli, Marvin Brown, Donald Garey and E. B. Warrington Jr., said they would attend a state school board meeting at the University of Delaware Oct. 2.

The board decided it would hold an informal reception for the faculty Mon., Oct. 4, at 7:30 p.m., in the high school cafeteria.

Awarded contract to George Hobbs for shuttle bus service.

L.F. Announces Free Lunch Policy

Lake Forest School District has announced its free lunch policy for Lake Forest School children unable to pay.

Local school officials have adopted the following family size income scale to assist them in determining eligibility.

1	$0 - $2040
2	0 - 2680
3	0 - 3310
4	0 - 3940
5	0 - 4330
6	0 - 5110
7	0 - 5640
8	0 - 6170
9	0 - 6650
10	0 - 7120
11	0 - 7600
12	0 - 8080

Families falling within these scales or those suffering from unusual circumstances or hardships are urged to apply for free lunches for their children. They may do so by filling out the application forms sent home with a letter to parents. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. Applications may be submitted any time during the school year. The form itself is simple to complete and requests for information needed to determine economic need and based on the income and number of persons in the family and any unusual circumstances or hardships which affect the family's ability to pay for school lunches. The information provided on the application will be confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility.

Under the provisions of the policy the district supervisor of the school lunch program will review applications and determine eligibility. If a parent is dissatisfied with the ruling of the local official he may make a request either orally or in writing for a hearing to appeal the decision. The deputy superintendent whose address is Lake Forest District Office, Harrington, has been designated as the hearing official. Hearing procedures are outlined in the policy.

The policy also provides that there will be no identification of or discrimination against any student unable to pay the full cost of a lunch.

A complete copy of the policy is on file in each school and in the Lake Forest District office where it may be reviewed by any interested person.

Bicounty United Fund Search Begins Sept.

The 1971 Bicounty United Fund campaign, which includes Harrington, Milford, Greenwood, Houston, Farmington and Lincoln, will begin Monday, according to Dick Johnson, general chairman for the Harrington area. A goal of $21,750 has been set for the Bicounty drive.

Last year the Harrington Senior Center received back from the United Fund $1000 or just $217 less than the total amount collected in Harrington. This means the other ten agencies supported through the Bicounty fund did not receive their fair share from our area.

A goal of $1400 has been set for the Harrington area this year in order to support such agencies as the Salvation Army, American Red Cross, USO, Mental Health Association of Delaware, Delaware Wheels for Handicap, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts of America, Catholic Social Services, Children's Bureau and Delaware Association for Retarded Children.

Children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren with spouses totaled sixty seven. The Kukulkas are in good health and still keep house in their three story house. They have two deceased children. Their son Leon of Harrington attended the celebration with his wife and children.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kukulka celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary last Sunday. The day began with their six living children and families attending Mass. Following, was held a buffet luncheon at a hall reserved for them.

KENT COUNTY COMMENTS

by JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
Levy Court President

Once each month the Zoning Commission reports to the Levy Court on zoning applications and includes with its report a recommendation on whether an application for a zoning change should be approved or denied.

Under the law the Levy Court must then make the final determination.

Last Tuesday the commission considered eleven rezoning applications. In five cases the Levy Court commissioners did not follow the recommendation the Zoning Commission had denied. This does not mean the Levy Court commissioners are in disagreement with the Zoning Commission. What it indicates is, that the commissioners are looking at zoning change requests with a special emphasis on the reasonableness of the application.

Planning defeats its purpose if it becomes so rigid that people cannot use their land in a reasonable way. Since Kent County does not have a permanent Zoning Ordinance, the Zoning Commission is under a handicap. It must often decide close questions without clear guidelines. On these close questions, the Zoning Commissioners are exercising their responsibility in a commendable way when they lean toward tighter zoning controls. In none of the cases where the Levy Court disagreed with the Zoning Commission has the disagreement involved a criticism of the zoning plan, nor of planning in general.

All of these matters have been toward developing more gradual steps toward the comprehensive plan. I believe an example would show what I mean:

One of the zoning requests last Tuesday involved the size of a lot in a rural area. On that road were a number of lots containing 9,000 square feet of land. Under the comprehensive plan proposed for this area but not yet adopted by the Levy Court is the requirement rural lots should have 21,000 square feet of land. In a subdivision plan only 12,000 square feet of land is required. The applicant's lot was 12,000 square feet in size. Therefore, you see, his lot was already 25% larger than the neighboring lots and would meet the requirements of a subdivision if the area in question had been recorded that way. In this case, which is typical, the Levy Court Commission felt the rezoning request was reasonable. From this you can see that the Zoning Commission and the Levy Court Commissioners are both in agreement in their goal of better planning for Kent County.

Veteran's Administration News

Q - Does VA's loan guaranty of $12,500 or 60 per cent of the loan limit the price I may pay for a home?

A - No. The price you pay is limited only by the amount the lender agrees to lend. But as you suggest, VA will guarantee only 60 per cent of the loan not to exceed $12,500.

Q - I am not eligible for VA pension benefits because of my income, but I recently filed for this benefit for my son, based on his deceased father's World War II service (my second husband.) Since I was drawing widow's compensation based on my first husband's death during World War II, I wonder if the compensation I was receiving prior to my second marriage can be reinstated while my son is drawing pension?

A - Yes. A recent law permits a widow who has lost her pension or compensation because of remarriage to have this benefit restored if that marriage ends in death or divorce, provided she is otherwise eligible. Your son's pension would have no bearing on your compensation based on the death of your first husband.

Q - What is the maximum VA loan available for a mobile home?

A - For the purchase of a mobile home it is only $10,000 payable over 12 years and 32 days.

Q - I withdrew from school under the G.I. Bill at the end of the semester two years ago, and plan to return to the same school to pursue the same program. How do I start my benefits again?

A - You should notify the school to submit a re-enroll-

Wilt Problem In Trees

If the leaves on your trees or shrubs suddenly wilt and die, the problem may be a fungus disease called Verticillium wilt.

It's the same disease that commonly attacks tomatoes, according to Dr. Robert Carroll, extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware. The wilt attacks the part of the plant which carries water.

It can reduce water flow to as little as two percent of normal flow sometimes within a few weeks. However, the disease can also develop slowly over a year or two.

The fungus enters the root and spreads upward. Besides the wilting, a typical sign of the disease is discolored streaks under the bark. The streaks are usually olive green or black but, in some kinds of trees, may be brown or yellow-brown.

If you suspect Verticillium wilt, make a cut in the bark and look for these dark streaks running lengthwise. Once the streaks are in the main tree trunk, the tree cannot be saved, Carroll says.

Many plants can be attacked including maples, ash, black locust, catalpa, elm, red and pin oak, tulip trees, linden, tomatoes and many annuals and perennials.

Since it affects such a wide range of plants, the fungus has no trouble finding a host in which to perpetuate itself, Carroll says. Also, it can survive for a long time in the soil when conditions are unfavorable.

Many factors determine whether or not a plant will be severely infected. High soil nitrogen levels may increase the possibility of infection. Weather affects the disease, too; long spells of hot weather help reduce the fungus.

Obviously, the problem is complex. One thing is clear, though — a badly-infected plant cannot be saved.

Disease control is very difficult, Carroll says. "The two most effective controls are using only healthy plants to begin with and planting varieties that are resistant or immune."

Such trees as apple, beech, birch, fir, Ginkgo, hickory, holly, juniper, white and bur oak, pear, pine, spruce, sweetgum, walnut or willow are resistant or immune.

If the disease has not gone too far in your trees, you may be able to control the wilt by pruning out dead or dying branches.

Make the cut some distance below the wilting part of the branch.

Be sure you sterilize pruning tools between cuts, Carroll urges. Dip them in or swab them with 70 percent alcohol to prevent spreading the fungus. Paint the surface of the cuts with a standard tree wound dressing.

If you aren't positive your plants actually have Verticillium wilt, send a sample of a branch with the dark streaks to Dr. Robert Carroll, 213 Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark 19711

Crickets Soon Invade Del. Homes

Watching crickets fight each other is an ancient oriental sport. In this country, the fight is between the homemaker and the cricket. And it's not a sport, it's war.

A cricket indoors is a noisy, destructive pest, according to Frank Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware. Although they are not likely to chew synthetic fabrics, he says they damage cottons, woollens, silks and other fabrics, especially if the materials are even slightly dirty.

Nature's fiddlers, as they are called, produce their shrill music by rubbing their wings together. A file on one wing rasps against a scraper on the other, creating the sound. Only adult males chirp, according to Boys, while females listen with ears in their knees.

In general, crickets do not chirp at all when it is colder than 55 degrees or at temperatures much higher than 100 degrees.

Delawareans will probably hear a good deal of cricket-chirping this fall; crickets are around in large numbers already; the entomologist reports. Some of them will move into houses as soon as cooler weather arrives. They are attracted by lights and get into houses through cracks, window sills and doors. Boys suggests making your house less inviting to crickets by destroying tall grass, rubbish or plant debris around the foundation.

Indoors, sweeping or vacuuming should be adequate to rid a house of a few invading crickets. Spot treatments with two percent chlordane or an aerosol spray bomb of diazinon or malathion gives good control. For effective control with chemicals, apply them behind and under shelves, cabinets and work benches. Treat around windows, along wall bases and in corners.

Outdoors, a residual insecticide should be applied to foundation walls, window wells, under garbage cans and at door steps. For chemical control, use only one of the following insecticides: two percent chlordane spray made by using five tablespoons of (72-74 percent liquid chlordane) in one gallon of water or one percent malathion made by using five tablespoons of (57 percent liquid malathion) in one gallon of water. Chlordane dust or malathion dust may also be used.

If missed these chemicals are poisonous to humans as well as crickets cautions Boys. Be safe; follow label precautions.

Building a better way to see the U.S.A.

Caprice Coupe illustrated at Mt. Rushmore in South Dakota.

We want your new Chevrolet to be the best car you ever owned.

The best. No qualifications. No reservations. We want it to be the most beautiful, most trouble-free, most comfortable car you ever owned.

So we've given the 1972 Caprice (above) power steering, power front disc brakes, refined power ventilation and an improved front bumper to provide added front-end protection.

Plus a 400-cubic-inch V8 engine and Turbo Hydra-matic automatic transmission.

All standard, as you expect with a luxury car. And Caprice is but one of the new Chevrolets. There are 45 in all: pictured below (left to right) are the 1972 Monte Carlo, Chevelle, Nova, Camaro and Vega.

Altogether, a lot of diversity. So there's bound to be a Chevrolet just right for you, your family, your budget and your kind of driving. Whatever your choice, we want your new Chevrolet to be the best car you ever owned. No less.

Wildlife Officers Watching For Hawks

A hawk flight watch has been issued to field personnel of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control by Chief Park Naturalist Charles E. Mohr.

"Despite drastic population declines of certain birds of prey like bald eagles, ospreys, and peregrine falcons, others, like broadwings and sparrow hawks had record migratory flights last year and we're hoping for more good news this year," says Mohr.

Staff of the Divisions of Fish and Wildlife, and Parks, Recreation and Forestry, as well as the Department's Environmental protection Officers have been instructed to report any sightings of flocks of hawks during the rest of the month. They would be broadwings, the only eastern hawk that travels in flocks.

Last year a flight of 500 broadwings was reported at Brandywine Creek State Park by Superintendent Ray Armstrong on Sept. 16 and another sizable flock near Milton by Robert Graham, manager of wildlife.

Mohr is especially hopeful that hawk watchers in the coastal area will spot flights crossing the bay from Cape May, N. J., where many birders assemble and where big hawk flights are reported every year. Mohr suspects that the southbound hawks ascend to such heights before crossing the bay that they pass over Delaware unnoticed and continue at high altitudes until they reach the first ridges of the Alleghenies where strong updrafts ease their migratory efforts. The broadwings continue to South America, while other species, flying a more solitary or individual pattern, winter in the southern states, or some stay in Delaware. All birds of prey are protected by Delaware law.

Reports from the general public also are welcome, Mohr says.

A chart illustrating Delaware hawks and their flights is available free from the Department's Office of Information and Education.

THANKS FOR THE TRASH COLLECTION

We wish to thank the City of Harrington for its trash collection service.

We recently cleaned out the basement and it was gratifying to see the city crew pick it up on Monday, the usual day for picking up limbs, etc. Of course, this material must be in short lengths and tied, when necessary in bundles.

The City also picks up small trash on Thursdays and Fridays.

The cost for this service is only 50c per week per household and that is a real bargain.

ALBRIGHT WAS HERE

Dr. William F. Albright, dean of biblical archeologists, whose scholarship did much to reshape study of the Scriptures, died in a nursing home in Baltimore Sunday. He was 80.

He was the first scholar of world repute to confirm the authenticity of the Dead Sea Scrolls.

Dr. Albright spoke on the Hebrew prophets many years ago in the Harrington Fire House. His appearance was sponsored by civic interests.

AIC CHARLES H. HURD has completed his basic Para Rescue training at HILL A. F. B. Utah. The course was a rigorous course and consisted of Survival, Parachutest, Scuba, Medical and Mountain climbing school. He is now attending H H 53 (Jolly Green Giant) helicopter school at Hill. After completion he will report to his new duty station at Pease A.F.B. New Hampshire.

Services will be held Thursday at 2 p.m., at the Trader Funeral Home, 12 Lotus St., Dover, with interment at Lakeside Cemetery, Dover. There will be no viewing.

Letter To The Editor

Editor, For the past few years, the Harrington Jaycees have sponsored the Christmas parade in Harrington with continued success. Each year this parade increases in size with participation not only from Harringtonians but also from all of Kent, Sussex and New Castle Counties along with a few from Maryland.

Prizes consist this year of a lovely group of trophies along with generous prize monies for bands. It is hoped that this year we will have the largest Christmas parade ever to be held in Delaware. In order to do this we would like to have the participation of our neighboring towns. This therefore will create a closer relationship with one another.

We welcome participation including: individuals, ponies, mounted horses, marchers, commercial and non-commercial floats, fire companies and most important of all-bands.

The Harrington Jaycees look forward to seeing you in their Christmas parade on November 20, 1971. Respectfully, Jack V. Wyatt being successfully continued. Each day hot food is served at noon and many of the members who are able to come to the Center are enjoying a hot lunch with their friends. Several who are unable to travel to the center or to prepare their own hot meal are receiving a lunch in their own homes. Again, the staff at the center would appreciate being notified of anyone who would benefit by this part of the center's program. It is necessary that they be members.

Katie Austin is at home and able to move about inside. Most of her day is spent resting but she feels she is making satisfactory progress. Mary Cooper has also been released from the hospital and is, presently, recuperating at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Earl Nelson. Both she and Mrs. Austin have been missed at the center. One way to live happily, just forget your troubles as easily as you do your blessings.

Mrs. Walter D. Honey

Mrs. Mary Jane Honey, 67, died Monday, at the Fletcher Nursing Home, Fetton, after a long illness. She was born in Templeville, Md., but had lived most of her life in the Dover area. She was a retired employe of the Richardson and Robbins Co.

Her husband, Walter D. Honey, died in 1964. Survivors are a son Roy J. Honey of Dover; a sister, Mrs. John Moore, Dover; a granddaughter and five great-grandchildren.

Seaford Gridders Here Friday

Seaford High's Blue Jays come to W. T. Chipman School, Harrington, on Friday night, to play Lake Forest's Spartans. The Blue Jays have never met a team from this area on the gridiron, so Friday night's encounter is a first.

The Sussex Countians were supposed to be the best Henlopen Conference team, but couldn't handle Dover's powerful Senators. Hence, the visitors will be on the rebound and will be trying to prove, that they are the second best squad in the league.

It is rumored that Lake Forest will not be able to field the same team, that beat Cape Henlopen, because of several resignations. If these rumors are true, the Spartans will be hard-pressed to cope with Seaford and Sussex Central, on successive weekends.

The Spartans didn't play either of these teams in 1970, but the schedule makers dropped Dover and Caesar Rodney, for 1971, in order to make room for the two Sussex County teams. Lake Forest will play every team in the conference at least as often, as once every two years.

Lake Forest Harriers Open September 28

Harold McDonald's Lake Forest cross-country varsity will journey to Middletown on Sept. 28, to meet Dick Green's Middletown High Cavaliers. Green, a former University of Delaware track and cross-country captain, has had some good runners in the past, but is one of the many coaches, who has never seen his charge beat a Harold McDonald-coached team.

Bill Stubbs, the No. 1 Spartan, is also team captain. For the first time in his career he won't be able to depend on a string of faster teammates to virtually sew up every outing. (Lake Forest has had only one dual meet loss, thus far, that by one point to Seaford in 1969). The pressure is on Stubbs for the first time.

Eddie Thompson and Vernon Bowers, graduates of Jim Blades' stellar program at Chipman, are only freshmen, but one of the other may grab the No. 2 ranking. Veterans Rick Hamm and Jackie D. Parker are solid performers, may push the precocious youngsters and should give the Spartans a dependable quintet of hill and dale men. Rudy Bordley and David Williamson, also freshmen, have shown lots of ability and may oust some of the Spartans currently ranked ahead of them.

Larry Dill, a strong, fleet senior, has no experience, but appears to have great ability. He's a welcome addition and could help Lake Forest maintain its reputation as the winningest harrier team in Delaware scholastic history.

Chris Adamo, Dennis Wright, Wayne Erne, Randy Dill, Bob Kashner, Ron Mosley, Rick Sullivan, Mike Moffett, Mark Urash, James Harris are other improving harriers.

Sullivan stayed near the squad's top runners for three miles recently after only three or four workouts. It was quite an accomplishment for a first-year runner.

Muehleisen's Vikings Nip Milford

Ex-Spartan coach Bill Muehleisen's Cape Henlopen Vikings tripped Milford 12-0 in a Monday game. Since Lake Forest's Spartans beat the Cape 7-0, a week earlier, it appears that Al Wood's Lake Forest eleven has a chance to bring the "Bell" back to its rightful surroundings, come Turkey Day.

Chipman Harriers Ready To Run

Jim Blades has some 43 boys ready to move out against any and all competition. The W.T. Chipman School cross-country team is currently led by David Moore with 15.31 for 2.4 miles and newcomer, Barry Doherty at 15.33. Another first-year performer, Jim Guyton is at 15.48 with veteran, Howard Parker at 15.55.

Charles Scott, (16.09) and Ken O'Toole (16.28) were fifth and sixth in a recent workout, with John Moffett (16.36) checking in as the first seventh-grade finisher, in seventh place.

Wayne Voshell, promising newcomer Ron Berry and Lester Blades, a real hard-worker, rounded out the top ten, in that time trial. Seventh grader, Wade Brown, cut a whopping 1 minute 50 seconds off his previous best time, to miss the top ten by three seconds.

Stanford Smith, Harry Benson, John Morris, Kevin Peck and Arnold Sudler were next to finish.

James Simpson and Eric Hamsher missed that workout, but considering their ages, this pair are two of the best prospects around.

Delmar Freeman, Marty Wright and George Gibbs are the latest recruits. Rehoboth Junior High has booked the young Spartans for home and away contests. They will think they have engaged a buzzsaw, when these local kids start to run.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

JUST LIKE ME I used to think him heathen Just because—well, don't you see He didn't speak God's English, And he didn't look like me.

He had a burnt complexion Which is heathen, we all know! He ate a heathen's rations, And he wore a heathen's clothes.

But there's a s'prising skiful In that man from far away; He fights like any Christian, And I've heard him really pray.

He's kind to little kiddies, And there's written in his eyes The willingness to render all A Christian sacrifice.

Yes, you'd know him for a heathen If you judged him by his skin; But, bless you, he's my brother, For he's just like me—within!

TOWN AND COUNTRY TOPICS

DAVE WOODWARD
ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

Imagine a situation where your child cannot go out and play because of an invasion of grasshoppers, ticks, caterpillars, and mosquitoes, and in the house roaches, mice, ants, bedbugs, and spiders make it rather difficult for them to play inside. Consider more than one million acres of U.S. woodland defoliated and left to die, or think about 20 to 50% less corn throughout the country due to Southern Corn Leaf Blight.

I know this sounds like we are stretching our imagination a bit, but the use of pesticides will determine who survives, the pest or us. The United States Department of Agriculture says that insects left unchecked can cause a 25 to 30% decrease in the annual production of fruit and vegetables. This figure has even greater significance when it is coupled with the fact that the 1969 world production of food showed no increase over that of 1968, even though the population grew.

The reason for such a radical switch from our usually abundant yields lies with those who pursue a hands-off approach to the environment. These people insist that the only purely natural earth is one that man does not try to alter or control. Thus, a slow down in the use of man's most efficient tool has come about in the use of fertilizers and pesticides. We are hearing more and more about the possibility of restricting the use of fertilizers, as they cause pollution of streams, the negative effects of which have not been proven substantial.

The New York Times recently had an article on Long Island's invasion of the gypsy moth caterpillars, which agricultural experts described as the worse in the century. "We are in a state of emergency; our children cannot go out, our pools are finished for the summer, and it is a question of survival, the caterpillar or us."

If survival is the question, is the untouched plan of nature necessarily the wisest course to follow? Should our nation's progress stand still at the mercy of nature? One only has to witness the destructive power of a hurricane or tornado to imagine what abuse man and animals

with Marion MacDonald

The Kent County Junior Council leadership weekend was held recently at The Rocks 4-H Camp, Bel Air, Md. Council members planned this yearly activity themselves. Foods chairman, Sandi Kirk, with her committee selected fun to prepare meals since the group did their own cooking. Recreation was planned by Chris Webb and his committee.

Miss Mary Ann Finch, human relations specialist, University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service, guided the 4-H'ers in a lively discussion on personal relations and current concerns. Leadership guidance was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Hudson, council advisors and Mrs. Marion MacDonald, county 4-H agent.

Those attending were: Richard Gooden, Ronnie Brown, David Webb, Chris Webb, Steve Mesibov, Charlie Hudson, John Harrison, Greg Warren, Ken Carlisle, Gary Webb, Joseph Gibson, Danny Palmer.

The girls attending were: Cindy Melhunek, Charmayne Pierson, Kathleen Wiebel, Nancy Waldbusser, Debbie Grier, Cheryl Warren, Jm-anne Jerread, Sandi Kirk, Carol Lee Blessing, Barbara Leavitt, Teresa Shahan, Diane Salter, Gina Mills, Cheryl Cox, Pat Harrison, Vicki Cahall, Melinda Marvel and Norma Voss, Karen Webb, Kay Willey.

Enrollment is going on in our 4-H clubs this month. New 4-H clubs should be forming now. Contact your 4-H office, 736-1448, for information.

It Seems To Me

by Janet Reed

Suede leather coats and jackets are more popular than ever in the fashion picture. If you want a different sewing experience, try making a suede garment.

Choose a pattern with a minimum of seams, darts and design details, and with an easy fit. Buy your pattern first, then take it with you as you select matched skins of the correct size.

Be sure the pattern fits before you cut it out. If seams or stitching lines must be changed, the marks will show forever. Pinning should be avoided, too, for the same reason.

Place pattern pieces on the wrong side of the skins and trace around them with chalk. Small weights can hold the pattern in place. Place all pattern pieces in the same direction, with the neck of the pattern at the neck of the hide. Transfer any necessary markings with chalk.

Use interfacing reinforcements as you would for any jacket or coat. Bound buttonholes give a tailored appearance.

For stitching, use a long machine stitch. Special wedge-pointed sewing machine needles are available for stitching leather or use needles in a size suitable for the weight of the leather you are using. Heavy duty mercerized cotton thread is satisfactory. Seam tape reinforcements can be sewn in seams which received strain, such as shoulder or armhole.

In many places you will glue instead of sew. Use rubber cement for hems, facings and seam allowances where you want them to lie flat. Gently pound these edges with a book or other object to flatten them. In addition, top stitching may be used to keep the edges in place. Pressing may not be necessary, but if you press, use a warm, dry iron on the wrong side. If you press on the right side, protect the leather with a piece of brown paper.

Additional information on handling leather may be obtained by writing to me or at shops where you purchase the leather skins.

Reduce Soybean Harvest Losses

Soybean harvest losses cost U.S. farmers a staggering $350 million each year!

Most of these losses occur in the combine's gathering mechanism, and more often than not, they're caused by setting the cutter bar too high; low knife speed in relation to forward speed; or improper reel speed and height.

Fortunately, a majority of these losses can be prevented with proper precautions, points out Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware.

He notes that the cutter bar should be set as close to the ground as possible. Or equip the combine with an automatic cutter bar height control. Keep ground speed slow enough to prevent stripping pods from the stalks and keep stalk crowding in the knife mechanism to a minimum.

Reel height should be no lower than is absolutely necessary to draw in cut beans. And reel axis should be approximately 25 percent greater than the ground speed of the machine.

Further losses may be prevented by combining beans at peak maturity, adds Williams. Usually around 13 percent moisture is best. If beans are particularly dry—10 or 11 percent moisture level, combine before the dew lifts or after a light rain. When combining seed, beans should be harvested at the 12 to 16 percent moisture level to minimize mechanical damage.

High cylinder speeds and close clearance are necessary for thorough threshing, says Williams. But they may cause heavy seed damage. Never run the cylinder any faster than necessary to insure proper threshing, and change cylinder speed and clearance conditions change during the day.

To check soybeans losses, construct a wood or light metal frame the width of the combine cut and a foot long; then determine the area of the frame. Lay the frame on the ground behind the combine and count the number of beans within the frame. Now divide the number of beans by the area of the frame to determine bean loss per square foot. Since four beans per square foot are equivalent to one bushel per acre, divide the number of beans per square foot by four. The result equals soybean losses in bushels, and dollars, per acre.

Tiny Wasp May Stop Corn Borer

Within a few years, Delaware farmers may control corn borers by setting out a small jar filled with a million tiny wasps.

But, before this simple biological cure for corn borers can become a reality, some complicated research is needed.

It's being done at the University of Delaware by Dr. Paul P. Burbutis, associate professor and Carl P. Davis, research assistant in the department of entomology and applied ecology. They're working under a three-year $30,000 cooperative agreement with the United States Department of Agriculture aimed at biological control of the corn borer.

Corn borers cause a million dollars damage each year to Delaware corn crops alone. They also damage peppers and Irish potatoes. Spraying with DDT is effective, but the future of this chemical is questionable due to use restrictions.

The wasp under study is extremely small—a barely visible black speck so tiny at least 30 could fit on the head of a pin. Obviously, they could not sting anybody, Davis says.

However, they will attack the egg masses laid by the corn borer. Knowing that fact doesn't mean growers now have a quick and easy substitute for DDT. Much more needs to be known. Burbutis and Davis emphasize.

For instance, how often will the wasps have to be released; Apparently, the wasps cannot increase their numbers sufficiently to control borers from year to year. So large numbers will have to be released to attack each new generation of borers.

Exactly how many wasps will be needed will also be studied. Perhaps one wasp can destroy one egg mass; on the other hand, many might be needed.

The exact timing of releasing the wasps is an important factor to be studied, Davis reports. Timing may well be so critical that this method won't be useful for home gardeners.

Borer eggs are usually laid only on the underside of leaves. So a vital question still to be answered is, "Will the parasites search them out or will they stay mostly on the top of leaves?"

Will the wasps alone be effective enough in controlling borers or will they have to be combined with an occasional chemical spray? In that case, how will the chemical affect the wasps? The researchers hope to find out.

Will the wasps concentrate on corn borers or will they also attack other insect egg masses? Another important question.

If the research proves successful—if the tiny wasp is a good borer control method—Davis says obtaining the wasp in large quantities should not be difficult for growers.

Who knows? Three years from now farmers may routinely reach for their handy-dandy wasp jar instead of a spray gun.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne Robertson

In the days of the old general store, we didn't have the choices that confront us today. If our grandmothers wanted crackers, the storekeeper would get the amount wanted from the cracker barrel and weight them out on the swing scale. They didn't have to make the decision as to which brand to buy or whether to buy onion-flavored with sesame seeds or rye crackers, etc. They would simply buy soda crackers or none at all.

Great-grandmothers didn't need her eye glasses for grocery shopping either because there were few, if any, labels to read. Today, it's another story. Without labels, we would have a difficult time trying to choose which items to buy among 6 to 8 thousand now available in most supermarkets.

The label for many years has given us basic information such as the name of the product, weight, and name and address of the manufacturer. Also the list of ingredients in decreasing order of amount in the product is given on the label. If this information is not listed, then you know the product conforms to a legal definition of ingredients called the standard of identity. Over 200 foods have this established standard (ice cream, mayonnaise, etc.).

Now something new is being added on a test basis. It's nutritional information. This type of information has been used for special dietary foods for several years, but it will soon appear on everyday products.

The Food and Drug Administration has the legal responsibility for food label information, so they are now developing this new nutritional information. Each label will inform us of the nutritional value of the food per serving according to the Recommended Dietary Allowance of nutrients established by the National Research Council. What constitutes a serving will also be included.

Still to be worked out is the best way to present this information, so do not be surprised if you see various ways in which it is given. During this testing period the FDA will study our reactions and will hopefully come up with information which will help each of us in food buying.

Nutrient labeling is still in the beginning stage, but from the looks of things, it will soon be as much a part of a label as the product's name. Many, many people are requesting this type of information in hopes it will lead to better nutrition for their families. Label reading has always been important to a good shopper, but soon it will be even more important than ever before.

This Week In The Garden

Don't neglect your houseplants, if they spent the summer outdoors. Bring them indoors before they're injured by early frost and report them, says Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

When selecting a new pot, pick one that matches the size of the plant. Pots should be as small as possible to hold the roots and still support the plant. Clay pots allow for better soil aeration than glazed or plastic pots, but any pot with a drainage hole in the bottom will do.

Potting soil must be porous enough to drain and aerate well, adds Stevens. A good mixture is one part each of good garden soil, peat moss or humus, and coarse sand. Cover the drainage hole with broken crock or clay pot to prevent soil loss and allow for drainage.

If you grew tuberous begonias and caladiums this season, it is time to dig them before the first frost and prepare them for storage, says Stevens.

Dig the bulbs carefully, clean the tops and dry them 10 days to two weeks before storing.

To store, put two to three bulbs in a cardboard box and alternate with single layers of roots or bulbs until the box is filled. Close the top and store in dry room where the temperature remains above 50 degrees Fahrenheit. If the temperature is too low, next year's plants and blooms may be affected.

Gardeners sometimes get the urge to transplant strawberries and raspberries in the fall. But it is better to wait until early spring to do this job. The plants you transplant now will not have an opportunity to become established before cold weather.

If your strawberries are being crowded by weeds, now is a good time to apply a preemergence herbicide. Check with your county extension agent for a recommended treatment.

It is still too early to mulch strawberry beds with grain straw or pine needles, but you can begin preparation for it. Place bales of straw beside the plant rows and break the ties to permit the straw to loosen up. Water the bales and cover them with an old tarpaulin or piece of plastic. The heat and moisture under the cover will germinate most of the grain and weeds in the straw. It will be clean when it is spread over the berry plants in early December.

Horse Vaccination Clinics This Week

A state-wide horse vaccination program is in its final week with a goal of 90 percent of Delaware's more than 5000 equines vaccinated against Venezuelan Equine Encephalomyelitis.

Free shots are being administered at clinics throughout the state until Sept. 25. County extension agents have a list of clinics operating this week.

According to Dr. H. Wesley Towers, state veterinarian, the shots provide protection for at least one year and may last three years or more.

Horse owners who do not get their animals vaccinated during the free period will be able to utilize a commercial vaccine that will be available after October 1. However, there will be normal veterinary charge. Total cost of the free clinics is being absorbed by the Federal Government as part of a national effort to stamp out the disease.

Ag Careers Day November 6th

Careers Day in the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware will be held Saturday, Nov. 6. The half-day program is planned for agricultural hall on the university campus. Dr. Ralph P. Barwick assistant dean of the college, is in charge of arrangements.

You don't have to live on a farm, or even near one, to have a rewarding career in agriculture, according to Barwick. The careers day program will point this out along with the many career choices. Admission policies, curriculum and financial aid will also be discussed.

Careers Day is aimed especially at high school juniors and seniors, Barwick adds. But all high school students are welcome to attend. School administrators, agricultural instructors and parents are also invited.

Deadline for Careers Day counselors, science teachers, registration is November 1. Send all inquiries to Dr.

Ralph P. Barwick, College of Agricultural Sciences, University of Delaware, Newark 19711.
