RALPH SMITH SELLS LAND FOR INDUSTRIAL PARK

The entrance of additional industry into Harrington appeared promising last week when the Progress Corporation, of Milford, purchased land for an industrial park here.

Ralph Smith, of Harrington, seller of some 15.75 acres, did not disclose the sale price.

The Milford corporation, headed by Garrett Grier and Thomas Draper, plans to erect shell buildings for light industry. Draper said last Friday an architect was drawing up plans for the first building of 35,000 square feet.

There has been a nationwide trend toward shell manufacturing buildings for 12 years. The advantage of such structures is the user can move quickly and have alterations made quickly. The prospective tenant or owner could also see what he is getting rather than wait for a factory to be built.

Letters to The Editor must be signed and must be short. Correspondents are required to have their news in by Monday evening.

Eight or nine applicants will be interviewed tonight for the Harrington police department.

The number to be hired has not been determined, but one might be a part-time employe according to feelings of some councilmen. In fact, one applicant was interested in a part-time job. Another applicant appeared Monday night, at the special meeting, turned in his application and recited rapidly his qualifications.

He was Les Sommerville, former track supervisor for the Penn Central here. He said his job was abolished Sept. 14.

Persons to be hired will take the place of a chief and two policemen. The three turned in letters of resignation Mon., Oct. 4, effective as of Oct. 20, the Chief Robert B. Martin was fired before his letter was read.

He was charged with insubordination. The reasons advanced in the letters of resignation were, in general, that the three, which included Cpl. Theodore D. Higby and Patrolman William Mintzer, were not content with their relations with the City Council.

Getting back to the chief, Jack Wyatt, First Ward, seconded by Councilman John S. Satterfield, Fifth Ward, successfully pursued a motion for an accounting of funds spent by Chief Martin.

Wyatt told the Journal Monday night he wanted the information because the chief, in his letter of resignation, had said grants from the state Agency to Reduce Crime were used for other city expenses, a charge which City Manager Kathryn Derricksor refuted, saying the grants were audited by the state.

The special meeting was called because of the police business which included an agreement to check three bidders on installing a motor in a police car, and a decision to pay Boulevard Electric, Dover, for an air conditioner ordered by Chief Martin, with Councilman William Minner casting a dissenting vote.

KENT COUNTY COMMENTS

by JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
Levy Court President

In May of 1971 the Kent County Levy Court adopted a budget for the year beginning July 1st. In the budget of $1,500,000 was the sum of $35,000 for community services.

These community service items included the children's bureau, 4-H clubs, the F.F.A., the S.P.C.A., Geriatric Service of Delaware, The Golden Opportunity Center, and other community service organizations.

Some of these have been receiving annual appropriations from the Kent County Levy Court for a number of years. We also included an appropriation to Kent General Hospital and Milford Memorial Hospital to help them maintain their emergency department.

Prior to last week, several of these appropriations had already been paid without any problem. One of the checks was listed on the weekly budget report for last week. At that time, the county comptroller told us he would not approve payment of it on the ground that no specific statute authorized Kent County to make these appropriations. The question is open for debate, but the comptroller indicated that court action might be commenced against us and pointed out that his disapproval put us on notice and might result in personal liability against the commissioners if they overruled him.

It was the unanimous opinion of all the Levy Court commissioners that the appropriations were urgently needed, especially the one to the Golden Opportunity Center. This Community Service Agency was in the position of having to curtail its operations within two weeks without financial help.

Therefore, at the request of the Levy Court commissioners, I went to the legislature to appeal for the immediate passage of corrective legislation. The Senate eventually passed a bill for this purpose, but the House of Representatives recessed before it could be acted on.

At this time Kent County is helpless to proceed until the House of Representatives reconvenes. In the meantime, it is most frustrating experience for the Levy Court to be unable to meet its responsibilities to the citizens of Kent County.

The Rev. Bob Kelly of Lincoln brought his choir to Viola Church last Thursday and they sang some special selections - there's nothing like an old fashioned revival meeting with the aroma of coffee in the background, and that's exactly what went on at Viola. The Rev. Kelly brought the message and special guests were the Davis Family of Salisbury, Md.

On Friday the revival continued moving to Manship Church with the Rev. Charles Walz of Greenwood bringing the message. The ladies served refreshments following... Saturday brought the revival to Felton. The Rev. John A. Massimilla, pastor thanks all who have helped to make this a meaningful experience.

Viola WSCS meeting for October was held at the Community Building. The table were beautifully decorated with pumpkins and fall accents. Miss Sherrie Roland presented a musical and she played many religious selections on the piano. Mary R. Friedel shared an original poem with the members which she recently wrote, and worth quoting entitled "Beyond the Help of Human Hands"

When you have reached your journey's end,
You will stand alone, my friend,
Beyond the help of human hands,
Alone, alone, all alone you stand.

The Saviour said "Come unto Me,
I go to prepare a place for thee."

But the call you did not heed;
For Our Saviour you felt no need.

What will you say when you stand alone,
Before the great, white judgment throne?
Sadly, the Saviour will ask of thee,

"What did you do on earth for me?"

"Too late, too late, are awful words of woe,
May you never, their deep sadness know.

Come to the Master while there is time,
Make your peace with our Lord divine.

Then, when you come to journey's end,
You need not be alone my friend.

The Saviour's face you then may see,
He may be waiting there for thee.

Laymen's Day was observed in many area churches. At Viola, Manship and Felton, Richard L. Woodward brought the message Sunday.

W.S.C.S. and families will gather at Manship Thursday for their October meeting. It was postponed to the 14th, instead of the 7th due to revival.

Lake Forest 7, Woodbridge 6, A Study In Frustration

Lake Forest's football Spartans edged Woodbridge's Blue Raiders 7-6 on an extra-point boot by Frank "Mr. Automatic" Daniels, in a penalty filled game, at Woodbridge Friday night.

At Wood's Spartans now own a 3-1 record with six games to play. There are some good teams left on the schedule and one very good eleven, the Laurel Bulldogs. The Spartans can take any of the other five opponents on a good night. To beat Laurel, in Sussex County territory, the locals will have to be at the top of their game and get a couple of breaks.

At Woodbridge, Lake Forest had three touchdowns called back, as an extremely alert crew of officials, hit the Spartans for 14 penalties and 148 yards. The Blue Raiders were nailed 8 times for 90 yards. We can't recall seeing that many penalties in one game. It doesn't make for very interesting viewing. Imagine a snowstorm with big, red flakes.

Neal Travis threatened to go all the way on the kick-off. He was finally stopped on the 45. Four plays later, Lawrence Sorden fired a pass for an apparent touchdown, but it was nullified. Sorden then threw behind his intended receiver and a Blue Raider picked it off.

From the Spartan angle, the first half saw lots of good running by Rick Porter, lots of yardage lost in penalties and all three touchdowns called back, voiding at least 18 Spartan points. Lake Forest also had trouble fielding punts, muffing both grounders and fly balls.

Penalties drove the Spartans back toward their own goal. A good kick gave the losers the ball 40 yards out. Doug Vanderwende, a lad with plenty of Harrington antecedents, fired a 35 yard pass to James Hopkins for the six-pointer. The kick for point after missed.

Late in the contest, Sorden fielded a punt and made a nifty runback to Woodbridge's 17. Porter hit to the 13, then drove over for the tying points.

The pressure was on Daniels, who toed the leather through the goalposts. Frank was named "Offensive Player of the Week." Lake Forest is the only team in Delaware, with several touchdowns, to have a perfect conversion record. Daniels, is way ahead of any other kicker with six-out-of-six.

James Minor was designated "Defensive Player of the Week." Jim Dill gets credit for the "Hit of the Week", creaming the quarterback on an option play. We thought George Turner was going to get the "Hit of the Week" when half of Woodbridge's team menaced him at the west end of the field, after a play was over, but George demonstrated his great reverse gear and a few, fancy dance steps.

Woodbridge kicked to the Spartans one yard line but the locals tried two running plays and netted 23 yards to get out of the hole.

Rick Porter gained 81 yards on 13 carries. Herm McBride had 56 yards on 6 efforts. McBride made a hard-nosed run down the left side, to set up the third touchdown, that was called back.

All is well, that ends well. This week Indian River invades Kent County. They have a good team and Norman Empty is still around playing the opposition with his high-scoring antics.

Al Wood, Jim Hogsten and the Spartans are counting on another sizeable, home crowd to help their efforts against the Indians.

Vernon Bowers, Harrier Of The Week

Freshman Vernon Bowers is the choice for "Harrier of the Week" after his sterling performance against Dover Air. The hard-running Falcons had seven men out ahead of Bowers after a half mile. The Spartan picked up the pace and was in third spot with a half mile to go, of the 2.4 miles test. Stone of Dover Air, an 18-year-old senior transfer from California duelled the 14-year-old Bowers over the last 600 yards, with the Felton lad getting the nod in 13.40, 25 seconds under his best previous effort.

Vernon holds the No. 1 varsity ranking on the Lake Forest team. He is not as dedicated as some of Coach McDonald's past greats have been, but he has more natural talent than almost any previous area harrier and there have been several hundred of those. Bowers can be one of Delaware's best in a year or two, if he wants to be.

We couldn't get a photo of him for this issue, but we will run one in the future.

4-H's Active In Sportsmen Clubs

When the Delaware small game season opens next month, some 30 to 40 youths in New Castle and Sussex counties will be anxiously waiting to join the throng of hunters in search of the elusive pheasant, quail and rabbit.

These boys are members of the Sussex and New Castle County 4-H sportsmen clubs.

Organized by New Castle county 4-HH agent Dean Bell and Ted Palmer, 4-H agent in Sussex County, the sportsmen clubs offer 4-H youths who are at least 12 years old an opportunity to participate in special hunting, fishing and conservation programs.

The 4-H sportsmen club in New Castle County was organized in 1968 and the one in Sussex County was started last year. Programs have been designed to teach youths proper hunting practices, how to handle firearms safely, and the value of outdoor activities.

Members of the New Castle sportsmen club have established a 35-acre game farm near Blackbird. On land donated by Paul Roach, a 4-H leader, and with assistance from the Delaware Game and Fish Commission, the 4-H's have set up a farm for pheasant, quail and rabbit.

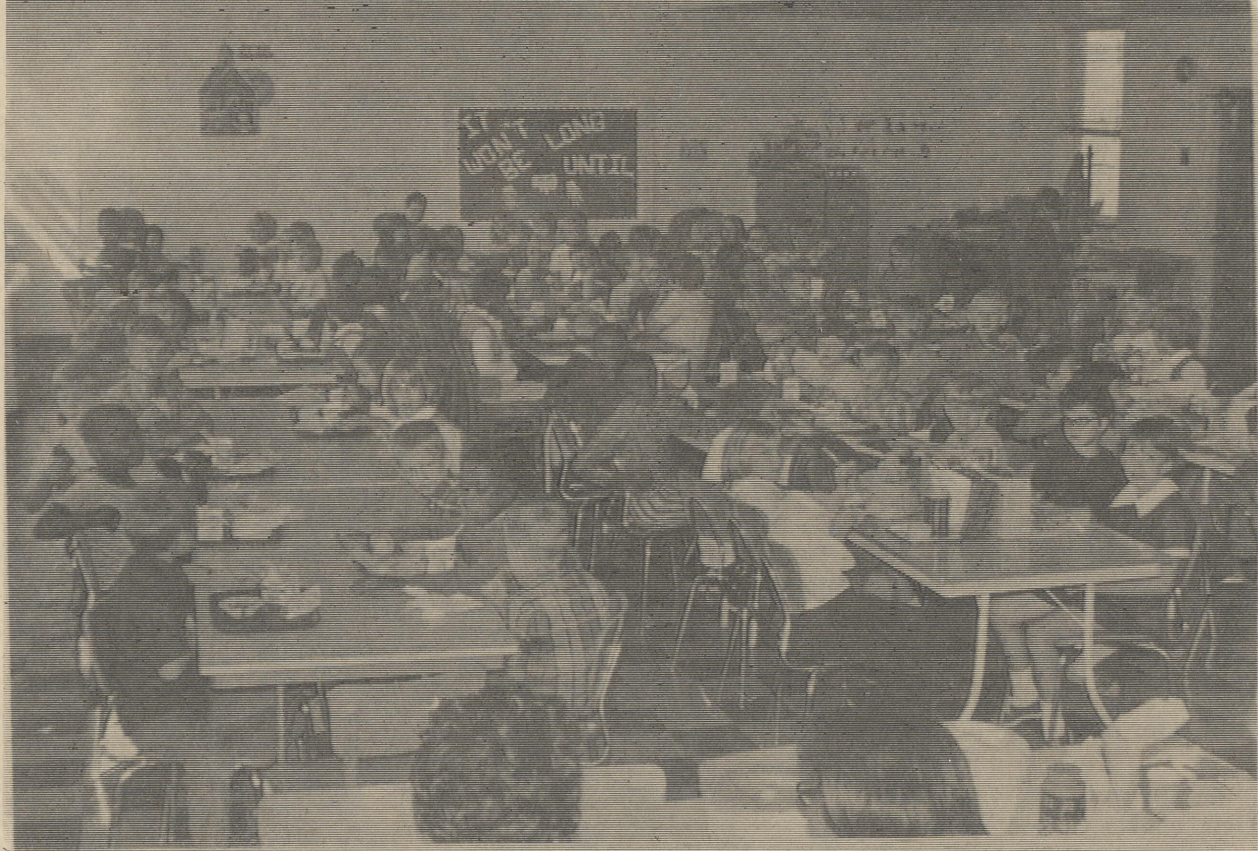

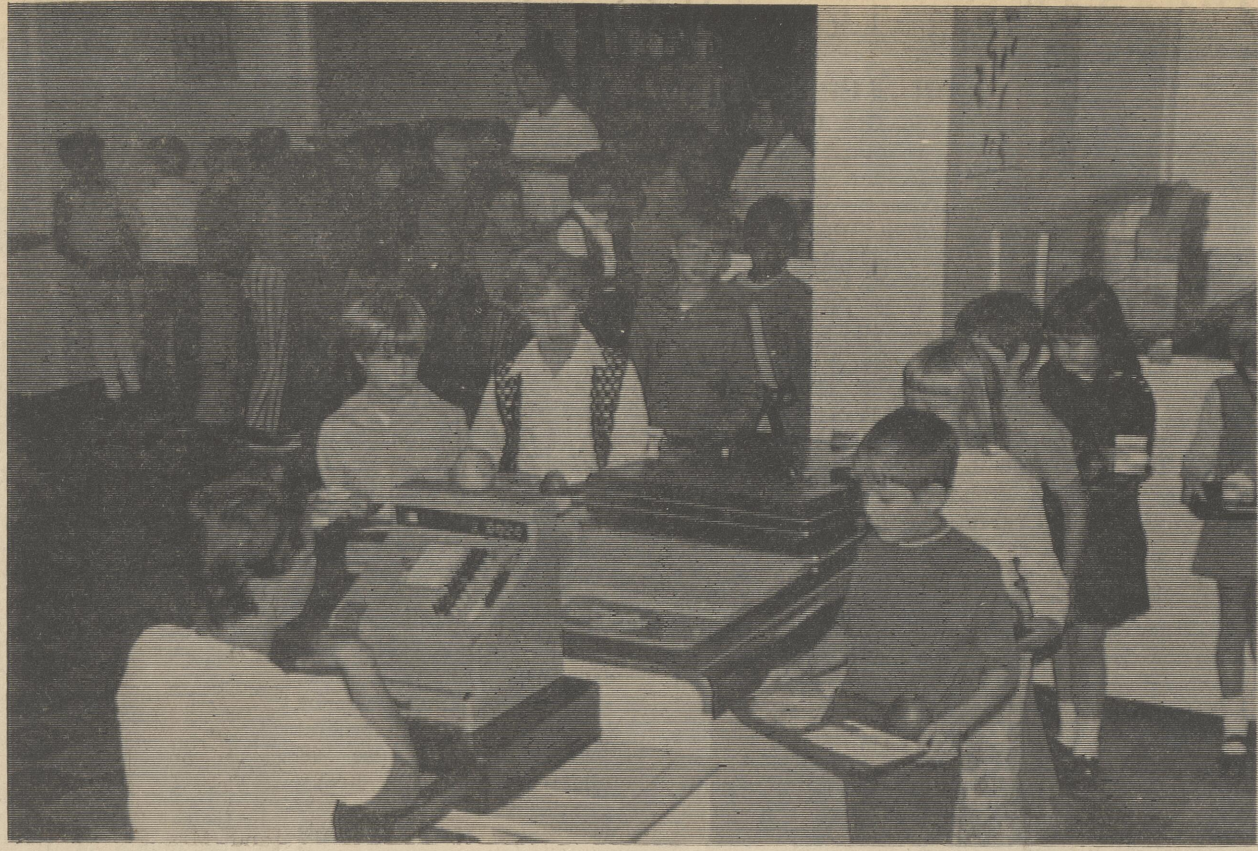

To provide cover and feed for small game and other wildlife on the farm, the youths put in small plantings of soybeans, millet, sorghum, corn and clover. They also constructed numerous brush piles for cover and will plant oats or wheat this fall for additional protection this winter and feed in the spring.

To stock their game farm, club members raised 100 pheasants on the farm. Most of the female birds have already been released, while the males will be placed in the field just before the youths want to hunt.

In Sussex County, 4-H's raised quail for this year's hunting season. These birds will be released in different locations throughout the county for the young hunters as the season progresses.

As part of their sportsmen club program, 4-H's have also participated in various community projects. Club members have helped clean polluted streams and parks, and in one instance, planted 3,000 small pine trees to prevent soil erosion and improve the landscape.

SCHOOL LUNCH AT LAKE FOREST ELEMENTARY SCHOOL NORTH AT FELTON — The crowded cafeteria, the voracious appetites, the beaming faces—all are a far cry from the time when we had to walk to and from school for lunch. Chipman Runners Closing In On Varsity Clockings

Led by the powerful David Moore, tiny, tenacious veteran, Howard Parker, surging newcomer, Barry Doherty, Ricky Wright and Jim Guyton plus improving Wayne Voshell and Kim O'Toole, the W. T. Chipman School cross-country team, coached by Jim Blades, is closing in on varsity-caliber clockings.

These seventh and eighth graders are willing to work much harder than older boys do. They don't have the distractions. It is hoped that the best performers will return their dedication, when they get to high school.

David Moore scorched the Lake Forest course in 14.22, the other afternoon. Only two Lake Forest varsity performers have done better this autumn. Moore doesn't hold the Chipman record yet, since Howard Parker had a terrific 14.02 in 1970. Parker's 1971 best was 14.53 done behind a 14.49 by Doherty.

Guyton has a 15.02, Wright a 15.25. The latter was only nine seconds behind Moore at Seaford, however. Voshell has been out with an injury but has a clocking in the low 15's at Killis's Pond State Park. O'Toole has been as low as fourth on the team, at times.

Ken "Bullet" Cerklefskie, a nine-year-old phenom, was clocked in 18.03 for 2.4 miles last week. He did a 17.59 in 1970. He's about ready to shatter that mark.

BBB Warns Against Minority Advertising Solicitations

Since the inception of Equal Opportunity legislation many unscrupulous promoters have entered the advertising solicitation field. They have successfully twisted some advertisers' concern with civil rights to their own private gain by extortion, pure and simple. Passing themselves off as "advertising agencies," when in reality they are "space brokers," such promoters set up telephone "boiler rooms" and employ on a commission basis, many telephone solicitors. These pitchmen start placing both local and long distance calls to the top executives of large and small companies, frequently using the ruse of styling themselves "Doctor" to gain quick access.

Once on the line, the executive is told the caller represents an unheard of Negro newspaper. Sometimes the caller claims national distribution, which is further inferred because the words "national" or "international" may be contained in the paper's name. The caller claims the publication is going to have a "special edition" and he is recruiting advertising. Some recently reported are "Cause", "Back to School" edition, "Jobs for Thousands" edition, "Watts Festival," Martin Luther King" edition, "Equal Opportunity", "Drug Rehabilitation" and "Youth Job Training" edition.

The amount requested for space varies up to $800 for a half-page with the average request falling between $150 to $300. The executive is led to believe he is being quoted the newspaper's bona fide standard published rate when, in fact, the amount has been increased many times. In these solicitations, the caller implies that the proceeds of this employment recruitment advertising will be going to many projects in the community, particularly involving activities of the minority areas, or they imply that unless employers present their advertising in these publications they are not fulfilling requirements of the equal opportunity law in making every effort to reach minority applicants.

The callers frequently claim advertising had run the previous year, which is usually not so. Some executives report having received billings for advertisements which they did not authorize during the phone call. Recent government action against firms allegedly not complying with Equal Opportunity legislation plays right into these promoters' hands.

Should a firm be solicited by such an individual, the BBB recommends that the solicitor's name and phone number be obtained, then check with "Information" for the number of the publication. Make a call directly to the newspaper, question the rate, and determine whether this particular solicitor is actually an employee of the publication. It is also a good idea to demand a sworn circulation statement, an audit bureau circulation report, a verified audit circulation report or requires a sworn postal statement which is issued by the U.S. Post Office when these newspapers are mailed in bulk at one of their stations. To be sure of the facts, also call the Better Business Bureau.

NATION'S SCHOOLS CELEBRATE SCHOOL LUNCH WEEK

Across the country, schools are celebrating National School Lunch Week from Oct. 11 to Oct. 15. Although school lunches are available all the year around, this particular week has been chosen as a special time for added publicity. On Wed., Oct. 13, a universal menu, consisting of Pizza, Green Beans, Cinnamon Applesauce, Home Made Brownies, and 1/2 pint of milk will be served to school children throughout the United States.

Governor Russell Peterson and his wife have been invited to have lunch at one of the schools in the Capital School District, as part of the state's recognition of this National School Lunch Week.

A type A lunch is available to every child every day for just 30¢.

It is a meal designed to meet ONE THIRD of the daily nutritional needs of the body of each growing boy and girl. One would take for granted that the other two thirds are supplied at home during breakfast and dinner. However, for many students, this is the only balanced meal they eat, and for others it is the only meal they eat. A child from any income level can suffer from malnutrition, which is the result of not having a balanced diet over a period of time. Even obesity is a form of malnutrition. To combat this deficiency, you must "eat right".

"Eating right" means that you must have some food from each of the four Basic Food Groups. Not all foods do the same thing for you. Some help you grow, some give you fast energy, some build strong muscles, and some help you to see better. A Type A Lunch is based on the Basic Four and contains at least: 2 ounces of protein (for building muscles and repairing broken bones), 3/4 cup of fruits and vegetables (for better eyesight, healthier skin, and fewer colds), 1 slice of bread and one teaspoon of butter (for fast energy) and 1/2 pint of milk (for strong bones and teeth).

These standards are required by law and are the basis for a government subsidy which enables the schools to sell their lunches at such a low cost.

Miss Cindy Mobilia, Lake Forest School Lunch Supervisor, urges all parents to take advantage of this Type A Lunch platter bargain, which guarantees a balanced lunch for every child at a minimum cost.

Letter To The Editor

5707 Camerford Ave.
 Hollywood, Calif. 90038
 October 3, 1971

Dear Carrington:
 I have been wanting to write to you but have been handicapped since a gall bladder operation over 4 months ago. Don't let anyone tell you an operation of this kind is trivial. I am happy to report, however, that I have regained most of my lost strength but very little of the 23 pounds that I lost. Last Thursday they took a cholangiogram and found everything "normal." Now I am chomping at the bit to get my doctors to let us go down to Palm Springs to open our "little pink home" for fall, winter and spring season.

I noticed in the Journal a couple months ago that your Mayor Satterfield finally succeeding in firing former Police Chief Rogers. I felt sorry for the chief for the way Mr. Mayor humiliated him almost a year ago. It is too bad Mr. Rogers allowed them to re-instate him. Regardless of whether the chief was "incompetent" or not I felt the way the case was handled was "dirty pool." The mayor may have trouble living that down politically.

I enjoyed your article in the editorial column of the Journal under date of 1/28/71 "Wilbur Jump reminisces" and the professor's letter to you of 2/11/71. Don't you believe he was "strict" and "unpopular." To the contrary, he was reasonable, respected and very accomplished. He was also very handsome and I can still see his lovely auburn hair. Miss Olive will confirm my compliments to him, I am sure. We were very fortunate to have these two brilliant mentors to start us off in the world to make a living 58 years ago. You can see how proud the professor was of his students from his letter you published 2/11/71. It is nice of him to keep a record of all his students that he named and to think, he gave me "top billing" ha! ha! Thank you Professor Jump and Miss Olive.

Carrington, can you explain to me why there are only World War II names on that honor board by the post office? There were quite a few Harringtonians who served our country in World War I including yours truly. I recall that I made a special trip from Bayonne, N.J. to register for the draft in Delaware in 1917. I was inducted at Dover and sent to Annapolis, Ala. Two months later I found myself in the trenches in France where I served on several fronts including the Argonne in the Blue and Gray 29th Division, 113th Infantry, and the Army never knew they drafted me with two fingers and three stumps on my left hand. Came back from France in May 1919 and mustered out 5/27/19 at Ft. Dix, N.J. Here is a climax to my experiences in France — 50 years later or in 1968 I went back to France and toured most of the battleground I had fought on including 2 small towns where we were billeted after the Armistice. Believe it or not I found 3 French people I had made friends with in 1918. They treated me royally and begged me to have dinner with them and stay over night. I couldn't do so because I had a rented car and a chauffeur who was also a big help as an interpreter. I have corresponded with them since and they come visit with them. Isn't that nice of them?

It is getting real late so must say so long for now. Kindest regards to you and your nice wife.

Sincerely,
 John S. Harrington

Robbins Hardware was the first team to draw blood from the Taylor & Messick quintet as they battled them on pretty even ground with an exception of the second game of the match and went on to win the third game by a mere seven pins. The first game of the setio was thriller, with Taylor & Messick squeezing out a single pin advantage over their opponents. Even with the one game loss, Taylor & Messick remains well out in front with a commanding six game lead. Jeff Robbins, who rolled a fine 208 game and Wallace Wooten provided the extra scoring power for Robbins and Bobby Collins and Tom Brown added the extra scoring punch needed by Taylor & Messick. Bobby also rolled a fine 201 game as brother George Collins, hit a fine 203 game.

Jarrell Fuel is on the move with three more games to their credit after schellacing Gallo & Stevenson in Tuesday night's fray. Martin Jarrell rolled a great 540 series, with Preston Carmean chipping in with a very fine 517 series, and getting good assistance from Howard Tibbitt, accounted for the fine showing. It was a bad night for Gallo & Stevenson, but one man emerged well ahead of the game, as Henry Jachimek Jr., scorched the boards for a superb 593 set with grand games of 220 and 222 included. Henry Jachimek Sr., rolled a fine 207 game also. Henry, Jr., moved into second place in the high series category on his fine effort.

Larry Garey seared the boards also as he paced McKnatt Funeral Home in their three game win over the Spoilers. Larry scattered the pins for a fantastic 245 game as he amassed a grand 558 series, to take over the top spot in the high game column for the league. Donald McKnatt also bowled very well as he connected for a fine 204 game and a 526 series. Carl Wright bowled superbly as he set the pace for the Spoilers with a grand 527 series. Leonard Outten also chipped in with a fine 202 game.

The Honey Dippers took the measure of Fry's American as they trounced their opponent in three games. George Elliott, Donald Draper and Dave Martin were the big guns for the Dippers. Martin hit a great 214 game and a 537 series. John Forbes and LeRoy Wheeler had good efforts in a losing battle as Wheeler hit a great 559 series for a little extra boost to help the team to salvage one game.

Wally's Garage remains in the thick of things as they managed to turn back the efforts of T & M Rejects in three games. Norman Woodall and David Ryan (523) provided much of the extra effort needed to help overcome their opponent. The Rejects haven't started to jell, but should improve as the season progresses.

Quillen's Market is doing exceptionally well this season as they battled Butler's Fuel to a two-two stalemate.

Ralph Kemp proved to be the thorn in the fueler's side as he bowled exceptionally well for the market boys. Dickie Collins and Larry Larimore contributed good efforts for the fuelers to keep things even.

Penn Central missed a good chance to move up with the leaders as they dropped three games to People's Restaurant. Ray Baker, Bernard Coffman and Marion Brown rolled very well for the Railroaders, with Brown bowling a fine 522 series. Cloyd Bushey hit a good 200 game and William Manship and Frank Collins (547), added more power to the offensive efforts of Penn Central.

Little League

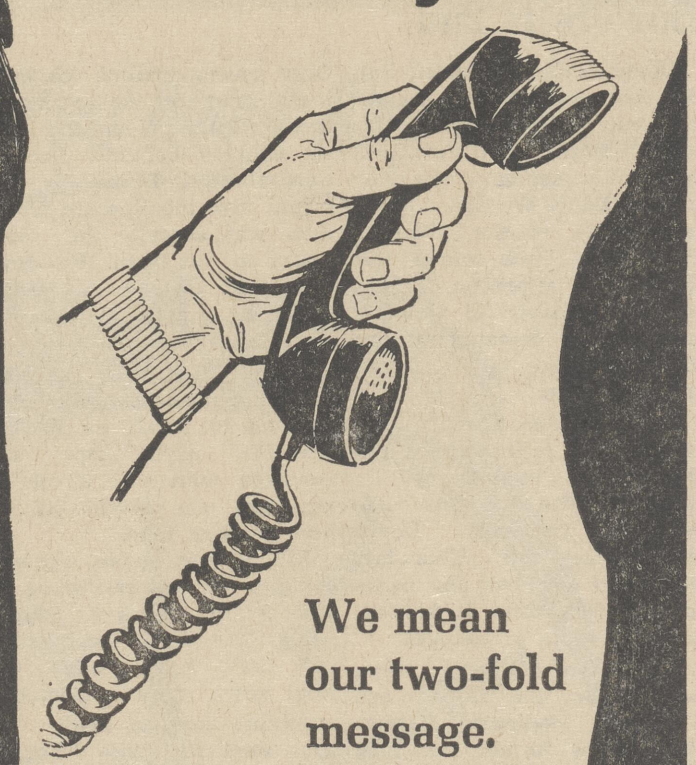

Monday evening a meeting was held by the Harrington Little League Baseball Association in the People's Bank.

Main item on the agenda of action to be taken was the selection of officers for the up-coming 1972 baseball season. The new officers are as follows: President, Robert Price; first vice president, LeRoy Calhoun; secretary, Leah Wheeler, and treasurer, Sandy Ryan. Re-elected to fill the job as player agent was Jane Everline.

Also discussed was the banquet, which will be held in the W. T. Chipman cafeteria on Saturday, Nov. 20. Exact time to be announced at a later date, as will more detailed facts concerning the guest speaker, price, etc.

Harrington produced the 1971 State Senior League champions, but it may be the last championship team from Harrington if the community does not get behind the community baseball project. Of all the boys that played ball (Little Senior, Big League and Minor) this past year, only 17 people saw fit to attend Monday night's meeting. It takes more than just a mere handful of people to keep the ball rolling. If you don't know what has to be done, ask! Don't wait to be called, volunteer! Remember these are your boys; help them.

There has been a lot of talk about organic gardening and in the past few years it seems to be getting even more attention from the public. Of course, organic gardening is certainly not a new term or even a new practice. Using organic sources of plant nutrients has been utilized since man's beginning.

The truth in organic gardening is basic and very important. Agronomists agree that organic matter is, indeed, an indispensable or at least a very valuable ingredient in most soils. It improves soil tilth through granulation of the soil particles, increasing water holding capacity, slows erosion, and through its decay, releases nitrogen and other nutrients to growing crops.

However, it is misleading to think that compost material without using chemical fertilizers is an adequate way to build up the organic matter in soils over large areas or to solve the problems of crop nutrition under present conditions. It can be truthfully said at the present time that without the use of chemical fertilizers even an agriculturally rich country like the United States would soon find itself in a position of food shortage.

Composting to supply adequate plant nutrients could possibly be achieved on very small garden areas, but would be in no way practical or even feasible to do so in our vast agricultural area. Even the nutrients released by composts can be over emphasized. In a composting process, much of the nutrient and roughage value of organic materials is lost. To get maximum value from the roughage, it should be incorporated in the soil with the composting process.

It is worth noting that composted material will not contain mineral nutrients that were not in the original roughage. Therefore, materials used for nutrients may vary greatly. One of the most outstanding concepts that have been released in organic gardening information is that these foods are better tasting and more nutritious than the same crops grown inorganically. At the present time, there is no basis in the results of well conducted experiments for statements that crops grown with organic fertilizers are nutritionally superior to those fertilized with inorganic forms of nutrients. This statement was taken from W. H. Allaway's technical paper entitled "Fertilizer Use and Technology" presented at the American Society of Agronomy's meeting in 1971.

Another misleading statement in many organic gardening discussions is that the use of organic materials will control plant disease and insect pests. It is true that under some conditions, crops which are grown rapidly as a result of adequate fertilization, either organic or inorganic, appear to be freer from insect and disease damage. On the other hand, with many diseases the exact opposite is true; namely, that a plant growing rapidly is likely to be much more susceptible to

Corn Blight Meetings Set

The 1972 corn blight outlook for Delaware will be discussed in two meetings scheduled for early November.

The sessions are sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Delaware and will feature a report on the 1972 seed corn situation, results of corn hybrid variety trials conducted by university plant scientists, the corn and soybean marketing outlook and a forecast on the future of Southern Corn Leaf Blight in Delaware.

The meetings will be held November 3 at 7:30 p.m. in the Clayton Fire Hall and November 4 at 7:30 p.m. at the university's Georgetown substation. The same information will be covered at both sessions.

disease because of its tenderness and rapid metabolism. The position on pesticide use is valid up to a point, in that it calls attention to the limits and dangers of pesticide use and demands that materials and methods be changed to minimize damage to the environment. To say that no pesticides should be used under any condition, however, is wholly unrealistic in the light of the tremendous volume of food that must be produced to feed the world population.

There is much attention and experimentation being directed towards biological controls to replace chemical pesticide use. But, of course, this has its limits as well. It seems that without biological control methods, a high degree of pest controls is not always obtainable.

Of course, there are many aspects of organic gardening that have not been brought out in this discussion. Obviously though, there is much going on in the production and handling of food that is questionable or wrong as related to conservation and human health and nutrition. In so far as organic gardeners call attention to these and propose workable solutions, the movement is to be commended. When, however, it fails to face its own inadequacies and promotes false hopes as to the value and effects of the products it produces, its activities become a disservice. (Information was taken from paper printed by the Department of Floriculture and Ornamental Horticulture, Cornell University).

4-H Judging Team NEPPCO Conference

The Delaware 4-H judging team placed third at the 33rd annual Northeastern Poultry Producers Council exposition at Kiamasha Lake, N.Y.

Team member Harold Goff, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Goff, Newark, has been a member of the Bear 4-H Club for three years. His teammate Hugh Carroll, 14, has completed his fifth year with the Dublin Hill 4-H club. Hugh's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carroll, Greenwood.

The third participant placed tenth in the individual ratings; Cheryl Warren, 16, a Woodside Emeralds 4-H club member for six years, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gooden Warren, Woodside.

The team judged laying hens for egg production, dressed market birds, and eggs, interior and exterior.

Raymond W. Lloyd, University of Delaware extension poultryman, accompanied the group.

Record Crop Cuts Corn Price

A record corn crop nationally combined with dry weather and corn blight locally has caused a serious economic problem for Delaware corn growers. Not only will many local growers harvest a short crop but they will also get a short price for it, according to W. T. McAllister, agricultural economist with the University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service.

McAllister reports the national prediction of a crop one billion bushels larger than last year is forcing mid-West prices to near 90 cents a bushel this fall. Delaware corn is selling slightly above $1 a bushel — the midwest price plus transportation costs.

McAllister believes a lot of the excess corn will go under government loan as midwest prices dip below the loan rate. Even so, there will still be enough free corn to depress prices for the first half of the marketing year.

Nationally, seasonal price advances will be slight, according to the economist, leaving little room for profit through storage. However, the situation may be more favorable in Delaware because of the small local crop. A bumper corn crop will affect other agricultural prices, according to McAllister. Hogs and cattle will be fed to heavier weights and a rapid build-up in swine numbers will occur.

Lake Forest FFA Members Win Trip To Richmond

Ed Gearrdi, Lester Tucker, and Bryon Stubbs attended the Atlantic Rural Exposition in Richmond, Va., Sept. 26-27. These three Lake Forest FFA members won the trip by taking 3rd place in Poultry Judging at the Delaware State Fair.

While in Richmond the boys had a busy and interesting schedule. After checking into the Jefferson Hotel, they went on a tour of the city and took pictures of buildings and sights. During their free time they attended a rock concert. In the evenings they were guests at a banquet in the Jefferson Hotel Ballroom.

The main attraction was the fair, where the boys served as judges in the regional poultry judging contest and where they also had an opportunity to examine the various exhibits.

It Seams To Me

Janet Reed

Wrap yourself in warmth for this winter — in a new frankly fake fur made for fun — by you!

For your first try with fake furs, keep the style simple. The fewer details, the fewer problems. Eliminate as many seams as possible — for front or sleeves. Of if facings seem too bulky, you may want to finish the edges with braid.

Know the fiber content of the fabric. Most of these fabrics are made from man-made fibers and will stand little or no heat in pressing. Pressing can also flatten the pile. If you're lining the garment, use fabrics which also need no pressing.

When cutting out the coat, lay the pattern pieces so that the pile goes down in the lengthwise direction on all pieces. Pin the pattern on the back, not the pile side. Double thicknesses of fabric are difficult to cut and may not be accurate. Cut single layers of fabric, but be careful not to cut two pieces for the same side of the figure.

If the pattern calls for darts, try to ease in the fabric instead. This will not be possible for large darts. If pile is very thick, large darts may be cut out completely on stitching lines. Bring edges together so they just meet and stitch together by hand.

Use a long machine stitch — about 8 to 10 stitches per inch and heavy duty thread. Loosening tensions, as well as the pressure on the pressure foot, may give a better stitch.

Stitch in the direction of the pile, forcing as much of the pile as possible away from the seam as you sew. When the seam is finished, use a needle or fine comb to gently pull out any pile which may have been wedged into the seam. This will make the seam line disappear.

Fence Talk

with George K. Vapaa

Christmas tree growers, and those who would like to be tree farmers, will another meeting on Thursday October 28, at the State Department of Agriculture, located just north of the Camden traffic light on U.S. 13, on the west side of the dual highway. The program will start at 8 p.m.

Austin N. Lentz, extension forester at Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J., will be the main speaker. He will discuss New Jersey experiences with their Christmas tree growers association and also give hints for Delaware tree farmers. Everyone with an interest in tree culture is invited to attend.

Those wishing to eat and chat with Mr. Lentz prior to the meeting are invited to a Dutch treat dinner at the Dinner Bell Inn in Dover at 6 p.m. on the same date.

Others on the program include Timothy Kaden, service forester with the Department of Agriculture, and Roger Ginder, crops marketing specialist at the University of Delaware. Martin Isaacs, president of the newly forming Delaware Christmas Tree Growers Association, will preside.

We hope you have been attending the Kent County Planning and Zoning Information Meetings and Hearings. If adopted, the zoning regulations will set the pattern the growth in the next few years. Public interest is vital if the plans are to meet with success.

Another short squib. Our agribusiness course at the Kent Vo-Tech center starts on Wednesday evening, Oct. 20. We're looking for adult students with an interest in farming and farm related businesses. For a descriptive folder and more information phone 697-3255 or George Vapaa, 734-3625.

Never Too Many Tomatoes

Red ripe tomatoes. They're plentiful everywhere you look this time of year. In grocery stores. At roadside stands. Maybe in your own garden. "Take advantage of the surplus," advises Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension foods and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. "They're delicious, economical and good for you."

Salads are one way to use tomatoes, but not the only way. Try cooking them with zucchini and onion, or garnish a pot roast with plump red wedges and pop it under the broiler for a few minutes just before serving.

To make peeling easier, dip the tomato into boiling water for one minute, then immediately into cold water.

Don't forget your favorite curried meat dish or a meat creole as a good way to use tomatoes. Tomatoes can add extra flavor and moistness to ground beef patties. Add uncooked, quick-cooking oats as the binder. This combination has a "different" flavor and helps stretch that pound of meat.

"And, of course, shish kabob is a favorite that just wouldn't be complete without tomatoes on the skewer," Miss Krackhardt adds.

Tomatoes not only add taste to your meals, but nutrition to your diet. They're rich in vitamins, especially important vitamin C. They're low in calories too, she says.

Even with all these suggestions, if you have a garden full of tomatoes, you may think you have too much of a good thing. The calendar tells you that frost is on the way, and you still have lots of tomatoes. But you haven't exhausted their possibilities yet.

Make up batches of spaghetti sauce to freeze in one-meal-sized containers. Tomato juice can be frozen, too, if you prefer it to canned.

You might want to can ripe, green or yellow tomato preserves, marmalade or tomato-apple butter for good winter eating.

And why not some homemade tomato soup? Or a green tomato pie for dessert? However, you don't have to process all the green tomatoes. Ripen some indoors after you've rescued them from the frost. Spread them out in a cool room with a temperature range of 60-70 degrees.

Light isn't necessary to produce good color in harvested tomatoes. In fact, you should avoid ripening them on a sunny window sill. Too much sun prevents a nice, even color and can promote rapid spoilage.

So, don't let even the green tomatoes left on the vine go to waste. Pick them before frost and use them as they ripen.

This Week In The Garden

Now that the trees have started to shed their leaves, many homeowners are concerned about how they will dispose of the downed foliage. For those who have a garden, however, fallen leaves can be an asset rather than a liability, says Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Leaves, grass clippings and garden plants contain many organic compounds that can benefit your garden when decomposed, he explains. And for best results, Stevens suggests turning these materials into valuable compost.

A compost pile can be constructed on top of the ground or in a shallow pit 3 feet wide by 6 feet long and 18 inches deep is recommended. If your soil does not drain well, pile the leaves on the surface using chicken wire or boards to hold the compost in place.

Compost should be layered. Start with a six-inch layer of leaves or other plant material and add a pound of 10-10-10 fertilizer for every 10 pounds of dry leaves. Top the fertilizer with a one-inch layer of soil and continue building the pile with leaves, fertilizer and soil. Most compost piles are three to four feet tall.

Your compost pile should also slope toward the center of the pit or bin. This will help rain water and increase the decomposition process.

Gardeners with gourds still to be harvested should make sure the fruit is picked before the first frost, says Stevens.

Gourds should be picked when fully mature, and before a hard frost, to reduce spoilage during and after curing, he explains.

When a gourd is ripe, its stem will turn brown and start to shrivel. The rind should begin to harden but the skin will remain soft. Remove the fruit from the vines with pruning shears or a sharp knife, leaving a short piece of stem attached.

Handle gourds with care to prevent bruising and scratching. Each piece of fruit should be wiped with a damp cloth and alcohol to remove dirt and disease organisms. Afterwards, dry the gourds carefully with a soft cloth.

Stevens says gourds should be cured for about a week in a well-ventilated porch, garage or shed. Place the fruit on shallow slatted trays or on an open shelf. Check the fruit daily, discarding those that shrivel or develop spot spots.

During the first 7 to 10 days of curing, the skin will become hard and tough. An additional three weeks will be necessary for complete drying.

Gourds should not be stored in a damp basement, a closed heated room, or in tight, unventilated containers. Such conditions will encourage the development of mold and rot.

Well cured decorative gourds usually retain their attractive color for at least three or four months. A protective coating of white shellac, floor wax or furniture wax will help prolong their life.

If you find brown, dead patches of grass in your lawn this fall, check for insect damage, says Frank Boys, extension entomologist.

These dead patches of grass that roll back easily like a carpet or feel spongy when stepped on are most likely infested with white grubs, he explains.

White grubs are the larvae of several species of beetles such as the Japanese and June beetles. Two or more of the small, C-shaped worms per square foot of lawn will result in serious damage or eventually kill the grass.

To control these lawn pests, treat the soil with chlordane, suggests Boys. He recommends applying eight table-spoons of 72 percent chlordane in three to five gallons of water for 1,000 square feet of lawn. One treatment will control the grubs for three to five years.

Storage Planning

You can't just "let it all happen" when it comes to storage in your home, careful planning makes work easier and home life more pleasant.

Whether you're designing new storage or want to improve present storage, careful planning can save time and energy, says Miss Coral K. Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Often, step shelves can cut down on wasted space in deep cupboards built too deep, too long or too wide. If you're planning cupboard space in a new home, decide exactly what you wish to store there and plan the space specifically for those articles. Include files for large trays, platters or plates that won't fit on kitchen shelves.

Keep your storage flexible. Plan space for items you hope to own so there'll be room for them later.

Organize your storage space. Store items you use frequently so they're easily seen, easily reached and aren't overcrowded. In your planning, remember right-handed people usually work right to left.

Always store equipment near the place it will be used first. Store the bread knife near the bread box; put the coffee pot with measuring spoon and coffee close to water source; cooking pans go near the range and laundry supplies near the washing machine.

Miss Morris suggests marking all utensils that go in one drawer or shelf with one color of fingernail polish. Mark the drawer with the same color in an inconspicuous spot where you can still see it. Then, when others help you, colors can be matched easily. A small dab of polish is sufficient; it will last through heating in ovens and the dishwasher.

You can speed up and lighten your housework by storing duplicate items in different places. Keep measuring spoons and paring knives in both preparation and cooking areas.

Have household cleansers in both kitchen and bathroom, both upstairs and down. If you store a vacuum cleaner, dust mop, sponge and pail on the floor of your house, you won't have to move them as far.

Ask yourself where you're going to use what you're storing. All linens don't need to be in the linen closet. Bath towels are logically stored in the bedrooms and table linens near the dining room.

Remember, storage areas need a good source of light easily reached.

Closets for children's clothing need an adjustable rod so that it can be kept at about eye-level as they grow. Hang robes and night clothes near the front of the closet since they're used so often. Plan storage areas for dirty laundry and clothes you will send to the dry cleaners.

Store supplies and equipment that are used in one process or activity together. For example, stamps, envelopes, paper and pens belong together. Provide a chest or cabinet, near a work table if possible, where you can keep gifts, gift wrapping materials and mailing supplies.

Just a little planning will help you become an efficient homemaker with more time to do the things you enjoy.

Broiler Feather Infection Study

The percentage of caged-reared broilers which have a feather follicle infection (FFI) depends, at least partly, on the breed.

In research at the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation, Ray Lloyd, extension poultryman, found that broilers with the Hubbard strain were more likely to have FFI than those with the Vantress — Arbor Acres cross. Lloyd reported to the 10th annual Broiler Housing Seminar held September 29 at the substation.

The change in frequency of FFI with the different breeds was not merely due to the heavier weights of the Hubbard broilers. Lloyd said the average FFI rate was 3.9 times greater for heavier than average Hubbards and 1.6 times greater for Hubbard-Arbor crosses, compared to Vantress crosses.

However, comparing the amount of FFI by breed shows Hubbards have 9.2 times as much as Vantress-Arbor crosses. Hubbard-Arbor crosses have 7.9 times as much FFI as Vantress-Arbor birds. The much greater incidence when breeds are compared means infection rates cannot be explained only as a matter of weight.

The high percentage broilers with this type of infection has been a problem ever since research into raising birds in plastic coops began at the substation, Lloyd stated.

The infection is important economically because, even if healed, the affected area will be trimmed by poultry inspectors in the same way as breast blisters.
