

FARMINGTON YOUTH ONE OF 2 FOUND DEAD

The bodies of a young man and woman were found Tuesday night, Jan. 4, in a car that had apparently crashed into a drainage culvert near Clayton.

State police at Odessa said they are still investigating the case, in which Miss Nancy P. Harrah, 18, of near Townsend and James L. Collison, 21, of Farmington, were dead on arrival at General Division about 10 p.m.

A resident of the crash area, "on Delaware 481 about 3 miles northwest of Clayton, said the pair were seen in Clayton about 7:15 p.m. They apparently left town and crashed into the culvert about 7:30 p.m. About that time, the resident said, a woman spotted lights in the ditch, but thought at first it was just "someone with a spotlight."

A few minutes later when the light was still visible, the woman called a neighbor, who found the car with the two bodies inside. There was no sign of physical injury to the couple, witnesses said.

Police initially speculated that the two died of carbon monoxide poisoning as a result of a leaky exhaust system. Police said the couple may have hit the ditch, then left the motor running while they waited for help.

Miss Harrah was a switchboard operator for the Eyer Refrigerator Service of Smyrna.

She is survived by her father, John R. Harrah, of Middletown; her mother, Mrs. Doris A. King, of Townsend; and two sisters, Mrs. Barbara Knox of Clayton, and Miss Diane Harrah of Cheswold.

Services were held Saturday afternoon at the Faris Funeral Chapel, Smyrna. Interment was in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Smyrna.

Highway Fatalities Lower In 1971

Fred W. Vetter Jr., Secretary of Public Safety, today credited the drivers and pedestrians who use Delaware's highways with the remarkable one-fourth reduction in highway fatalities achieved during the past year compared with 1970.

"While the 115 persons who lost their lives as the result of 100 accidents on Delaware roads in 1971 is a tragic reminder that much more remains to be done to make our highways safe, it is a far better record than 1970's when 152 persons died as the result of 122 accidents," Vetter commented. "The credit goes to the thousands of drivers and pedestrians who drove and walked safely through the past year."

The Public Safety Secretary noted that 1971 had the fewest number of persons killed on Delaware highways since 1965 when 113 persons died in accidents. He said this accomplishment should be considered especially noteworthy in view of the fact that the number of vehicles and drivers on the state's roads has increased by about six percent in the past year alone, and out of state travelers have added significantly to the traffic load on Delaware highways.

5 Homeless After Fire

Fire Saturday night destroyed a house in rural Greenwood, leaving a family of five homeless.

The fire, of an as-yet-undetermined origin, brought about 100 firefighters from four engine companies to the home of the Herman R. Dahmers family on the estate of Stanley Ledenham at 5:42 p.m.

Earl T. Obier, radio dispatcher for the Greenwood Fire Company, said Sunday that a 15-year-old boy and 7-year-old twins were alone in the house when the blaze started. They ran next door to a neighbor's house to phone in the alarm.

Dahmers, his wife and two other children were shopping Obier reported.

In addition to five Greenwood Fire Company units, the blaze drew three units from Bridgeville Fire Company and two each from Farmington Fire Company and Denton (Md) Fire Company. Two units from Ellendale Fire Company were standing by.

Assistant Chief John Conway of the Greenwood Company said the house was "totally destroyed." He said the family lost everything but what they had on.

Obier said the house had been unoccupied for a long time until the Dahmers moved in about a week ago. He said the Holiday Motel near Greenwood gave the family a room Saturday night and breakfast Sunday morning. Last night they were to stay with friends.

Dahmers, a trucker, was to go on the road this morning, and his wife and children were to be aided by the American Red Cross, providing them with clothes and other necessities. Hopefully, Obier said, they will soon locate another suitable residence.

Obier said "quite a few offers of donations" for the Dahmers family already had been received, but "we're waiting to see where the money can be best put to use."

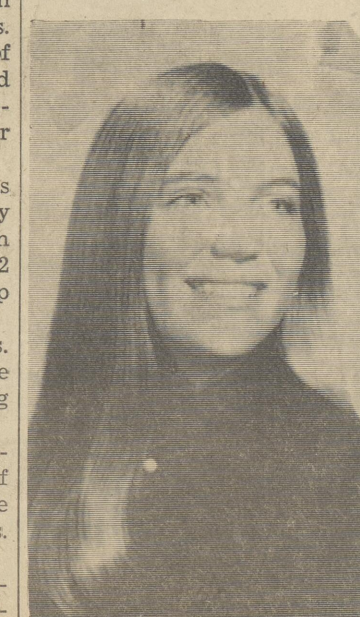

Farm Program Sign-Up Time Changed

Kent County farmers have been notified that they may sign-up in the 1972 set-aside programs between Jan. 17 and Feb. 25. This sign-up period has been changed, according to Russell C. Bowdle, chairman of the Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC Committee).

"Feb. 3 thru March 10 is the new sign-up period at all County ASCS offices for the volunteer set-aside program," Bowdle said.

Bowdle pointed out that the change in the sign-up period was necessary because of the possibility of the last minute changes that may need to be made after the farmer planting intentions reports are completed and published on Jan. 27. He cautioned all Kent County farmers the Jan. 14 deadline for appeals and reconsiderations will not be changed even though the sign-up period is now Feb. 3 thru March 10. County farmers may contact the county office at any time for last minute developments.

Mayor Will Serve Out The Year, He Tells Citizens

Mayor Burton E. Satterfield told the annual citizens meeting Friday night in the fire hall he would serve out the year "being as no one else has accepted this job."

He was referring to Tuesday's municipal election for which there were no candidates for his post or for councilman from the 5th Ward. Consequently Councilman John T. Satterfield remains in the saddle.

C. Tharp Harrington was the only candidate and he filed as councilman from the 6th Ward replacing Jack Apt who did not choose to run. Councilman serve three years; the mayor, two.

Returning to the mayor, he continued, "It's been rough leading the last three years. We've cut corners; I don't know how we got by. So far we're making it."

"We have the property (the land purchased for the sewage disposal plant, lagoons and for expansion)."

Part of the land will be up for sale as soon as a referendum passes. "It we can sell it, we'll be in the clear," the mayor explained. Then maybe we can set a budget and make allowances for depreciation."

Industries have been looking here, Satterfield emphasized, and said he thought Harrington would be a different place in the next two or three years.

Alfred G.B. Mann, chairman of the meeting, echoed the mayor's optimism. A Harrington resident, he is former city manager here. He is now in charge of sewers for the City of Dover.

After the meeting Friday night, Mann and Harry Gilmore Farrow Jr., were named by the mayor to the city's zoning and planning commission. Other members are Carrington H. Burgess, Mrs. J. Edward Taylor, Benjamin Hughes, Clarence Rash and George Roe.

In conclusion, Mayor Satterfield thanked Dudley Willis, the City's consulting engineer "for his faith in Harrington."

Willis was instrumental in getting a housing developer, the Penn-Dol Corporation, of Baltimore, to acquire land here for a development, construction of which is to start next month or in March. Don Schumer, president of the corporation, told The Harrington Journal.

Journal Price Upped This Week

The subscription price of The Harrington Journal will be raised, effective as of this week. The change was made with the approval of the Economic Stabilization Agency.

The newspaper will sell for 15c per copy on the newsstands and thru newsboys and newsgirls. In-state subscriptions will be $5 per year and out-of-state subscriptions will be $6 per annum.

KENT COUNTY COMMENTS

by JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
Levy Court President

Dear Fellow Citizens of Kent County:

With 1971 passed and a new year beginning, I felt we should take a moment to review the year and assess the future. It has been my pleasure to serve in the capacity of President of our county government, and I look forward to another year of significant accomplishments for Kent County. Kent County can be proud of these substantial steps forward:

The first suburban trash collection districts in Delaware started in Briar Park, Rodney Village and Kent Acres.

Sewer construction contracts awarded and the projects will get underway with sewer bonds of $6,300,000 sold and expansion started to include Cheswold, Magnolia and Frederica.

First Kent County youth in Government Day inaugurated. Tax mapping contract completed.

First building code completed.

First suburban street light district started.

First parks and recreation commission appointed.

Industrial study completed which was joint with the Dover Chamber of Commerce

Federal emergency employment act implemented.

Additional police protection for Kent County arranged.

First county public housing program started.

First suburban street sign program started.

County flood insurance program started.

First county Pension Trust Fund set up.

Home Rule Bill prepared.

Historical and cultural projects started.

Government efficiency and reorganization studies made and implementation started.

I would like to take a moment to talk about county finances. I believe we have a fine record for 1971. The county is in good financial shape. We have a fine record for 1971. We have budgeted adequately for all of the projects which are now in progress.

We have also already budgeted for the two most costly projects anticipated for 1972; $120,000.00 was set aside for the airport and an adequate amount for the Emergency Call Board.

If the state legislature does not transfer its welfare burden back to us, we should be able to reduce taxes for the year commencing July 1.

Greenwood

by Pat Hatfield

The regular monthly meeting of the Greenwood Volunteer Fire Co., was held in the Fire Hall Friday night, Jan. 7. The meeting opened with president Edward Smith presiding. He, then, installed the newly elected officers for 1972. They were as follows: President John Conaway; vice president, Walter Warnick; secretary, Ralph Hyson; treasurer, Gary Dickerson, fire recorder, Gary Drummond; fire chief, Robert Collins; chief engineer, Paul Webb, and captain, Larry Cannon.

The gavel was then turned over to our new president John Conaway. Most of the meeting was devoted to the appointing of the various committees, and outlining our goals for the coming year.

Bruce Bowman was presented a certificate for completion of the basic firemanship training course. All new members must complete this 32 hour course within the first year of membership. After they have completed this course they can select future training in advanced firemanship or select from the many other courses offered by the State Fire School, such as rescue or engineering. Our members have spent many hours in these training courses in the past year. When they are totaled up and forwarded to us I will report them in this column so that you may have a better idea of the amount of time spent in formal training, thus enabling them to render more efficient service to the public.

We are extremely proud of our newest piece of fire fighting equipment, which was delivered to us early last year. This new truck is one of the most modern pieces of general fire equipment available and we have added special equipment that had not been developed when the truck was ordered to keep it up to date. It has only been after we have the need to use it under various conditions through the past year that we have fully appreciated its effectiveness in bringing a fire promptly and effectively under control.

It is with these thoughts in mind that last year's officers and all of our members wish to sincerely thank everyone that helped in any way to make the past year such a successful one. Without your devoted support we would not be able to accomplish our goal of offering increasingly efficient service. We are confident that this same support will be extended to this year's officers who pledge to serve you to the best of their ability.

Our plans are to bring you a monthly report of our activities, as well as special reports when special events occur. We will welcome any questions or suggestions that you may wish to make. Sixteen Greenwood Kiwanians were present for the first meeting of the new year. It being director's night, there was no program. President Charles Elliott presided as the directors conducted the routine business of the club. Thursday evening, the Jan. 13 meeting, the program chairman is Roy Rowe. BEATITUDES FOR FRIENDS OF THE AGED
 Blessed—are they that understand my faltering step or palsied hand.
 Blessed—are they that know my ears today must strain to catch what they have to say.
 Blessed—are they that seem to know
 That my eyes are dim and wits are slow.
 Blessed—are they that look away at coffee spilled at table today.
 Blessed—are they with a cheery smile
 Who stop to chat for a little while.
 Blessed—are they who never say,
 You've told that story twice today.
 Blessed—are they who know the ways
 To bring back memories of yesterdays.
 Blessed—are they who make it known
 That I'm loved, respected and not alone.
 Blessed—are they that know I am not at a loss
 To find the strength to carry the cross.
 Blessed—are they who ease the days on my journey home in loving ways.

The Harrington Junior Chamber of Commerce will be host to the Delaware Junior Miss Pageant Sat., Feb. 17, it was announced this week by David Jones, chairman of the pageant.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dennis have returned to Jacksonville, Fla., after spending some time with the latter's parents. Richard is attending B school of the Naval Air Force.

Mrs. Enos Langrell entertained her card club Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moore, of Dover, spent Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Riley Melvin.

Mrs. William L. Cain and son, Kenneth, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Barlow Saturday.

Ernest Wright is a patient in Milford Memorial Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Allen Draper and Mr. and Mrs. David Jones were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Watson Baker Sr.

Mrs. Roy Cain, who has been on the sick list, is much improved.

Twenty Years Ago

Fri., Jan. 11, 1952

A list of house numbers was approved by the City Council Monday night after it had been checked and approved by the Harrington post-office.

Henry Austin, 78 nationally known plant grower, died of a heart Monday night while en route to Milford.

Jerry O'Brien Smith, 60, died early Sunday morning of a heart attack at the home of his sister, Mrs. Frieda Everhard, of Harrington, with whom he resided.

The off-year municipal election Tuesday was but a token one; there were only two council posts to be filled and the candidates were unopposed. Charles Peck Sr., was re-elected councilman from the Second Ward, with George Graham elected to the same post from the Fourth Ward.

City Council, at a reorganization meeting Wednesday evening, reappointed the following: Chief of Police John Meyers, Patrolman Walter Voss, Extra Patrolman Hardy Foraker; city manager and city clerk, Grace Wanda Quillen; alderman, L. Gooden Callaway; water plant custodian, Mrs. Francis Rifenburg; janitor, Wilbur Pearson; secretary of City Council, A. Leonard Harrington; superintendent of streets, A. Leonard Harrington.

Dr. E. Gill was relieved Sunday as administrative director of Brandywine and Edgewood Sanitoria. The State Board of Health said he tendered his resignation, effective immediately, because of failing health, and that the resignation was accepted. Dr. Gill, on the other hand, said the action came as a surprise to him.

Common Pleas Court Sentences 2 Locals

On a charge of assault and battery, Thomas Derrickson, Felton, was sentenced to pay a fine of $500, plus costs, imprisoned for 30 months, with 20 months suspended and placed on probation for three years.

Lake Forest Matmen Pin Woodbridge, Cape Henlopen

Woodbridge and Cape Henlopen were the first two victims of Lake Forest's wrestling Spartans. The locals coached by Tom Muehleisen and Elliott Workman, won handily over the Blue Raiders and the Vikings, two of the Henlopen Conference's newest wrestling schools.

Seven Spartans won by falls in the 51-9, verdict over Woodbridge. Freshman Rodney Wyatt's first varsity match saw him pin Rayford in 20 seconds. George Davis (130) and Norman Baynard (141) disposed of their rivals in 36 and 55 seconds, respectively.

Skip O'Neal at 180 and Robin Callahan, in the unlimited class almost got under one minute, also. O'Neal pinned Stevens in 1.04. Callahan took two seconds longer to flatten Brown.

98 Wyatt LF pinned Rayford, 107 Morris WB by forfeit; 115 Parker Ww dec. Bosco 4-2; 123 Clarke LF des. Hopkins 11-9; 130 C. Baynard LF pinned Passwaters 1-24; 136; Davis LF pinned Belcher .36; 141 N.

Spartan JV Lose First, 40-23

Due to the many forfeits for lack of wrestlers against a full roster from the Cape, the JV's found it had to win even if they won in their own weight class.

Look at the weight classes: blank. Do you have a son in this weight who you would like to see become a man, who can stand and win by himself? Send him to see Mr. Workman at 3:30 any day in the Lake Forest gym.

98-T. Jarrell, LF, won by forfeit, 107-R. Shultie, LF, won by forfeit, 115-Bertrand, C.H., won by forfeit, 123-A. Welch, LF drew with Wright, CH 8-8, 130-Bryant, CH pinned M. Moffet, LF, 3:30, 136-S. Osmundson, LF dec. Hazzard, CH 9-4 141-Perice, CH, dec. B. Boyer, LF, 16-2, 148-Hazzard, CH, dec G. Welch LF, 11-0, 157-forfeit to CH, 167-forfeit to CH, 180-Weidmann, CH, pinned Smith, 3:05, hwt-G. Curry pinned Larrey CH, 2:20. Gill tips the scales at 313 and for a big man really moves well. The Cape Henlopen wrestler was flattened in the second period after a game of keepaway in the first.

Come support this week and watch the grapplers in action against Dover at Lake Forest Friday. 6:30 J.V. 7:30 Varsity

Baynard LF pinned Elliott .55 148 Kohland LF pinned Melson 1.26; 157 Baker LF dec. Custer 5-3; 167 Cahall LF dec. Lynch 13-8; 180 O'Neal LF pinned Stevens 1.04; heavyweight - Callahan LF pinned Brown 1.06

Six Cape Henlopen wrestlers lost by falls. Jack Kahl and had the fastest pin of the night, defeating Cottingham in 1.26. Martin Miller eliminated Tingle in 2.18, at 117 pounds.

Rincon Wins 9.14 2-Mile For Maryland

The University of Maryland's Dan Rincon won an all-comers, two mile run, at Essex Community College's indoor track on Saturday.

The former Dover Ai High standout now lives in the Caesar Rodney School district. His 9.14 victory was an outstanding effort, since it was achieved with very little competition and was good enough to make him the eighth best indoor, two mile in Maryland's history.

Since he's only a freshman, he has plenty of time to move up that list a few notches, maybe all the way to the top, before graduation in 1975.

ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

Unfortunately, many farmers who do excellent work in the fields and in the barn are not adequate when it comes to record keeping or other work behind the desk. Many of them are saved by wives or relatives who are good with the pencil.

The fact is that many farmers are just too darn tired at the end of the day to be bothered with the "nitty gritty" details of good record keeping. A great many farmers know their farm program and their farm system very well, but when it comes to the financial and the bookkeeping side of their operations, they do not have an adequate understanding of this part of this business.

Our advice is not to underestimate the roll that good records used can play in your future as time goes on. A good accountant who appears to be expensive may save you many times his cost. This is particularly true at tax time, which is fast approaching. Many farmers fail to take advantage of the tax laws as other businessmen do. Tax laws change from year to year and most farmers cannot spend the time it takes to keep abreast of new tax law changes.

Extensive assistance on records and record systems is available from many sources. The University of Delaware Cooperative Extension Service offers its assistance on record keeping systems which you could initiate as the new year begins. No matter how private your finances are, make sure that they are clear and open to yourself. In this day of high capital requirements and high interest rates, you must use all the leverage you can to increase your profits.

Ice skating in Delaware is an excellent winter recreation as the whole family can become involved. Although winter has not set in yet with a firm grip, we are due for a cold snap at any time, and many of our ponds, lakes and streams will be covered with ice.

Each year we read about someone who has either lost their life or has had a close call because they ventured out on thin ice. Frozen ponds are particularly attractive to the young and inexperienced youth who becomes adventurous.

Thickness of ice is not always an accurate measure of its strength. Slush ice is about half as strong as clear ice.

Encourage Birds By Winter Feeding

The presence of birds can bring life and interest to your garden during dreary winter days. And one of the best ways to invite "feathered guests" to the garden is to offer them feed, says David V. Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

A wide selection of bird feeders is available, but the most common feeder is a tray with a hopper from which the seed is dispensed automatically, he explains. All feeders, however, should look natural and have a simple design. Rough, untreated surfaces are best. And the feeders should be protected from marauding cats and squirrels.

A plentiful and well-balanced supply of food is important for birds. Tatnall says beef suet and peanut butter are favorite feeds of chickadees, woodpeckers and other insect-eating birds. Other birds such as sparrows, bluejays and cardinals, enjoy various seeds including sunflowers, hemp and millet. Seed may be obtained in commercially prepared feed or gathered from garden or roadside plants. Drinking water and grit should also be available.

Trees and shrubs can also provide extra bird feed during the winter, says Tatnall. Cottonasters, crabapples, viburnums, hollies and hawthorns are only a few of the plants that supply fruits for wildlife. And large conifers, such as spruce and hemlock, offer both food and shelter.

blue ice and new ice is stronger than old ice. Generally speaking, two inches of ice will support one man on foot, three inches will support a group of people in single file, and at least seven and a half inches are required to support a car or light truck. One should exercise caution with ice covering a stream with fast moving currents, as the thickness of ice may vary considerably.

Protected farm ponds often provide the best ice skating; however, a test of the ice thickness should always be made. One of the best means of protecting the skaters would be to keep a straight ladder and a piece of rope handy for rescue purposes. If someone should fall in, the ladder can be pushed out on the ice; thus, the weight of the rescuer would be spread over a large area, preventing another tragedy.

The annual pork producers meeting will be held Tuesday, Jan. 18, at 7 p.m., at the Asbury United Methodist Church Hall, Harrington. Frank Gordy will show interesting slides of his recent trip to Europe. There also will be reports on the progress of the Delmarva Pork Industry Day to be held Feb. 29 at the Civic Center in Salisbury, Md. We would like to encourage pork producers and their wives to attend this annual dinner meeting. Tickets may be purchased from your County Extension Office. For Kent County call 736-1448.

Thursday, Jan. 20 at 7:30 p.m., a dairy calf and veal management meeting will be held at the Capital Grange Hall in Dover.

House Plants From Groceries

You — or your children — can start an easy and inexpensive kitchen garden from your supermarket produce department.

Carrots, sweet potatoes, pineapples, avocados and citrus will all start plants easily, according to Robert Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Carrots produce graceful fern-like leaves. Just cut a one-half inch long piece from the carrot top. Plant it in moist sand with just the very top showing above the sand. Small leaves will soon appear.

Sweet potato plants have vines similar to philodendrons, Stevens says. Plant a sweet potato root in a container of water with the top third above the water.

This vine needs warm temperatures and high humidity so they may not start on a cold window sill. However, once started, the vine can be trained on a stake or small trellis.

Handle pineapples somewhat like carrots. Cut the green leaves away from the fruit, but leave about one inch of the fruit attached. Put this bottom inch in water, leaving the leaves exposed.

When roots develop, plant the pineapple in a pot with dirt and cover with a plastic bag for three weeks. Then remove the bag and admire your attractive cactus-like plant.

Keep the plant well-watered and in 6 to 12 months, tiny pineapples should develop, Stevens predicts.

It's also easy to grow a dwarf avocado that resemble a rubber plant, he adds. Plant the seed in a soil-peat moss mixture as soon as you take it from the fruit. Plant the seed pointed-end up, with the tip just above the soil.

Don't worry if nothing seems to happen; the seed will take a month or two to sprout. Then, pinch off the top of the plant, as it grows, to produce a low, bushy form.

Grow your own citrus or apple plants also. Plant grapefruit, orange, lemon or tangerine seeds as soon as you eat the fruit. They need a soil mixture containing about half sphagnum moss. Keep it damp but not too wet, and put the plant in good light but not direct sun.

Any plants raised from seeds need adequate drainage, Stevens warns. Put at least a half-inch of crushed stones in the bottom of each pot for drainage. Do you have an indoor planter? Would you like a neat, hedge-like border of grass? It's easy if you can get hold of corn cobs.

Soak the cobs in water. Sprinkle with grass seed and put the cobs where you want the hedge. Presto—a green hedge.

For a larger mound of green, put lettuce seeds in the holes of a wet sponge. The young plants will form a ball like mass of pale green ruffled foliage. Keep the sponge damp, of course.

It Seems To Me

Salvage the selvage! Once upon a time, the selvage or finished edge of woven fabric neatly trimmed away and discarded.

The reason given was that the edge was more closely woven, or woven with more tension, and therefore was more apt to shrink or pucker when laundered or dry cleaned. This may still be the case with some fabrics but not for all.

If the selvage does not pucker, it can be used for a finished edge for seams. It doesn't make much sense to have to trim it off and then finish the cut edge to keep the fabric from raveling. If the selvage does appear to pucker, clipping it at right angles to the edge every four or six inches will release the tension and still give an acceptable edge finish.

On fabrics with selvage woven of a different color or with careful planning and cutting, this decorative edge can be used for trim on the front of a garment and possibly on collar edges or other parts of the garment.

It can be removed from the fabric and inserted in edges of cuffs, pockets, or parts of the garment which do not have a straight edge. Many wool fabrics are apt to have selvages that can be used this way, provided they don't give too much bulk.

On lighter weight, firmly woven fabrics, the selvage can be trimmed away and used for a stay tape in shoulder or waistline seam.

If you are working with a fabric which is used on the crosswise grain such as a border print, can you use the selvage as a hem finish? There's no reason why this can't be done if it gives you the width hem you want. It will give a flatter, less conspicuous hem than turning under the raw edge or using seam tape.

In sewing, don't overlook the easiest or obvious method. It might turn out to be the best method, too.

Daniel Nieto (left), president of the Future Farmers of Panama, is working six months on the farm of Edward Harcum of Houston as the first exchange student to the U.S. from his country. The visit was arranged by the late Fredric Myer (right), supervisor of agricultural occupations, the State Department of Public Instruction.

Daniel Nieto Visiting FFA Student From Panama

A city boy from Panama, guest of the Delaware Future Farmers of America, is taking a close look at Delaware agriculture in hopes of improving the state of the art back home.

Daniel Nieto, president of the Future Farmers of Panama, is spending six months on the farm of Edward Harcum of Houston.

His visit was arranged by the late Fredric Myer, supervisor of agricultural occupations, the State Department of Public Instruction. Myer, who died Oct. 31 of heart failure, helped Daniel to settle in as one of several hundred students of farming who get practical experience by working as farm laborers abroad.

Until recently, the FFA concentrated on exchanges with northern Europe. But emphasis now falls on Latin America, where Myer, a director of the national FFA, worked for several years. Two years ago he addressed a seminar of agriculture teachers in Panama and arranged for students to come to this country.

Daniel landed in Washington, D.C., July 26 as the first Panamanian to participate in the exchange. Accommodations were provided by Donald Harcum, president of the Delaware FFA. A graduate of Lake Forest High School and a student at the University of Delaware, Donald brought Daniel to his home.

The senior Harcum tills 300 acres, 65 of which he rents. He has 20 acres of Sudan grass and 30 acres of barley and soybeans, but his main crop is corn, used to feed his 80 milk cows.

Harcum says Daniel gives him valuable assistance while he learns American machinery and methods. Daniel is a willing and thorough worker, his host says, and he remembers instructions for a job done weeks in the past. He reads English and is eager to discuss articles in Harcum's copy of the "Dairyman" magazine.

Harcum, who speaks no Spanish, says, "I thought I'd like to never get to understand him at first," and found it difficult even with hand signals, to get Daniel to close the door.

Yet Daniel made rapid progress in speaking English and, Harcum says, after planting a field of rye, he would dash to the window every morning to ask, "It it up? It it up?"

Mrs. Harcum says that Daniel soon became a member of the family and, apart from the extra laundry, gave her "not a minute's trouble."

To keep up his 225-pound weight, he longed for the Latin staple, rice, which Mrs. Harcum does not cook. But, as a happy coincidence, Mrs. Harcum prepared one of her favorite dishes, a salad of cucumber, onion, and vinegar which Daniel recognized as pepino, a favorite in Panama, also.

His one spell of homesickness came on his mother's birthday, when Daniel would customarily serenade her.

Daniel hails from Santiago, the capital of Panama's Veraguas province. Now 24, he completed three years' study in agriculture at the Divisa School of Arts and Mechanics. Then he worked for the national Department of Community Development, traveling to remote villages to teach farming techniques to boys.

He explains that only seven schools teach agriculture in Panama, and so teachers must go out to the country people.

Daniel's own roots are not in the soil. His father runs a jewelry store in Santiago. A brother studies medicine in Mexico, and a sister is married to a teacher in Panama City.

Although a city boy, he watched men working on farms and liked what he understood as their leisurely pace and healthy life. Meanwhile, his parents were kept busy cooped up in the store. At 12, when he finished primary school, he chose to study agriculture, although he had never worked on a farm.

Farms in Panama are small, Daniel says, and by the standards of his country Harcum would be rich with 300 acres.

Until he came to Kent County, Daniel had never used a milking machine. He never saw a field of barley, a crop not grown in Panama. Corn in Panama is not used for silage, but only as human food.

Soybeans he knows well, but in Panama, to plant them, the farmer must drill the ground by hand.

The Harcums are kind hosts, Daniel says, and he likes the American people. Still, he is glad Myer introduced him to the International Club of Dover, where he met other Hispanic people, including Mexicans and Cubans.

With Myer, he attended meetings of the Delaware FFA, took part in conferences organized by the Department of Public Instruction, and in October went to the national FFA competitions in Kansas City.

While American harrows and milking machines still fascinate him, Daniel says, that in Kent County as Veraguas Province, you can call in the cow with a friendly voice.

Challenge For Del. Farmers

Delaware farmers have tripled their income per farm in the past 20 years. However, they face great challenges in the next 10, according to Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware.

He told members of the Laurel Lions Club, Jan. 5, that farmers will have to adjust to increasing restrictions on the use of agricultural chemicals. "Such regulations may well cause reduced yields. Certainly costs of production will go up, along with the price of consumers."

McDaniel said a stepped-up research program at the University of Delaware is trying to find acceptable chemical controls for insect and disease problems and, alternatively, biological control methods.

He announced that a U.S. Department of Agricultural biological control laboratory will be located at the university within the next 18 months. "We are looking forward to research results coming from this laboratory that can be applied on the Delmarva peninsula."

Research has also been initiated at the University to deal with the increasingly urgent problem of animal waste pollution. As urbanization spreads in Delaware, farmers will be challenged to deal effectively with any waste pollution, McDaniel said.

Although Delaware has only half as many farms in 1970 as in 1940 and the acreage in farms has dropped 15 percent, the acres of cropland actually harvested has increased 16 percent.

McDaniel explained this seeming paradox is due to the drainage of farm wetlands in Sussex County, and the conversion of woodland to cropland within the farms. Also there are now half the number of cows in pasture.

He added that the size of farms has changed dramatically. Only 18 farms had 500 or more acres in 1945; now 97 farms are that size. Also, nearly three times as many farms are in the 200-499 acre range.

Although corn yields have increased in Delaware from 26 bushels per acre in 1940 to 74 bushels per acre in 1970, farmers will be challenged to even greater production. McDaniel pointed out that 150 bushels per acre yields are feasible right now with the use of existing techniques such as irrigation.

Increases in soybean yields are just as necessary. The acreage devoted to soybeans has gone from 25,000 in 1940 to 162,000 in 1970. However, the average yield per acre in 1970 in Delaware was still only 21 bushels per acre.

The national average production is about 27 bushels per acre. Delaware farmers should produce at least an average of 30 bushels per acre, McDaniel emphasized. Some Delaware farmers have already produced as much as 60 bushels per acre.

The value of milk production in Delaware has tripled in the past 30 years. Although cow numbers have been cut in half, the production per cow has doubled to a present level of 9,400 pounds.

But, McDaniel said, this must continue to increase. "After all, a production of 18,000 pounds per cow is not unusual and one University of Delaware registered Holstein is now producing 28,000 pounds.

Of course, Sussex County is justly famous for its broiler production, McDaniel stated. The cash value of Delaware's broiler production has gone from $17 million in 1940 to $77 million in 1970 and is largely responsible for the fact that Sussex County receives nearly three-fourths of the cash farm income in Delaware.

Here too, the industry is challenged, particularly since the average price received per pound has actually gone from 17 cents in 1940 to 15 cents in 1970.

Delaware agricultural has seen dramatic changes in the past 30 years; the challenges of the future may well produce equally drastic ones, McDaniel concluded.

That Country Ham Touch

Once you've tasted the salty tang and masterful flavor of a genuine country cured ham, all other hams fade into pale, watery insignificance.

Home curing hams is still a much prized and popular skill in Delaware. Many people have an entire hog butchered; others buy fresh hams for curing, according to Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension foods and nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.

Curing a ham does take skill, she says. But you can avoid spoilage and off-flavors if you're careful to get a uniform cure.

The preferred "sugar cure" uses salt, sugar and saltpeter. The dry cure is faster and more often used where warm weather makes spoilage a potential problem, advises Miss Krackhardt.

Apply the first half of the curing mix as soon as the ham is cut following chilling, Miss Krackhardt recommends.

Then resalt with the second half of the mixture six to eight days after the meat is put in cure.

Weigh the meat and the right amount of curing material. For 100 pounds of ham, use 8 pounds of salt, two pounds of sugar and two ounces of saltpeter. Of course, one pound of ham would take one-tenth pound of the mix. Mix the curing ingredients thoroughly; be especially careful to mix the finely powered saltpeter through the salt.

"A lot of rubbing isn't required when applying the curing mix," Miss Krackhardt adds, "just enough to cover the surface." Be sure to pack some curing mix into the shank end at each application.

Ideal temperatures for shelf-curing hams are from 36-40 degrees. When temperatures go above 50 degrees for any length of time, there is some chance of spoilage. And, for each day the temperature averages below freezing during curing, add an extra day to the schedule.

Don't let the hams cure too long. One of the main objections to country hams is that many of them are too salty. You can reduce the amount of salt from 10 pounds if you're careful to get all the mixture packed into the shanks and patted on the faces of the ham, explains Miss Krackhardt.

Best curing time has been found to be two days per pound for a 15-pound ham; one and three-fourths day per pound for a 20-pound ham; one and a half days per pound for a 25-pound ham.

Cover the meat with parchment paper and put into muslin bags to hang for aging. Use a paper wrapping that is heavy enough to keep the grease from soaking the bottom of the bag. Tie the top of the bag closed and hang it with a string around the entire ham not just to the bag, Miss Krackhardt emphasizes.

Aging is required to give the ham good flavor; about six months is a good aging period. If possible, plan the date for killing and curing so that the meat can be bagged and put in an insect-proof places before flies appear in the spring.

Other information on curing country-styles hams is available in a USDA Farmer's Bulletin No. 2138. It can be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.
