

Delaware's Oysters May Grow To $3 Million-a-year Industry

Delaware's oysters are on the way back and may grow into a $3 million-a-year industry, according to the State Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control.

In 1955, the oyster harvest was at 650,000 bushels, and approximately 3,000 Delawareans earned their living from it. Then the mysterious MSX disease struck in 1957 and reduced the industry to no harvest in 1959.

In 1970, with reorganization and the strong encouragement of Gov. Russell W. Peterson, a concerted effort was launched to revive the industry through management and research. One of the management techniques also saved the state $5,000.

The Department's Division of Fish and Wildlife, which took over the responsibilities of the former Commission of Shell Fisheries, started developing a long-range management program incorporating shell planting, cultivating, seed oyster harvesting and the monitoring of the oyster beds. The General Assembly enacted new laws and appropriated funds.

1970 saw the first harvesting of oysters in more than a decade, and up to 50,000 bushels may be harvested this year. Governor Peterson noted in his recent message to the General Assembly that "at least two oystermen are planning new shucking plants to handle the anticipated harvest."

State officials and oystermen feel that by 1975 the yield could reach the 650,000-bushel mark of 1955.

Delaware oysters are of high quality and bring good prices — $4.50 per bushel recently, with shellstock (sold for half shell) selling for $9 to $11 per bushel.

"It's obvious that a healthy oyster industry will help many Delawareans earn an excellent living," the Governor said. The natural seed oyster beds lie between Woodland Beach and Port Mahon, the leased beds between Port Mahon and Big Stone Beach, and a public tonging area is just off Bowers. Most harvesting takes place in the fall and winter months.

State officials said that although nature deserves the greatest share of credit in the resurgence of oysters, new management techniques introduced in the last three years have helped significantly. The University of Delaware Marine Laboratories at Lewes is assisting the Division of Fish and Wildlife by conducting research into management procedures in mariculture (farming of the sea).

When the division started refurbishing the natural seed beds, oyster shells were to be bought from Chesapeake Bay. However, University research indicated that surf clam shells could be a satisfactory substitute.

A telephone call from Department Secretary Austin N. Heller to Secretary Albert L. Ingram, Jr., of the Department of Health and Social Services and a solid waste disposal contract with the Environmental Protection Agency resulted in a contract under which the Dosee Corporation of Lewes has had 340,000 bushels of their surf clam shells transported to the state's natural oyster beds.

This solved a number of problems. It enabled Dosee to get rid of its waste and helped reduce an obnoxious odor. And it saved the state $50,000 it would have cost to use Chesapeake Bay oyster shells.

City Hires 2 Policeman Under Federal Program

The City Council, at a special meeting Monday night, hired a full-time patrolman and a part-time one. The makeup of the force will be an acting chief, two full-time men, and two part-time men.

The force last year was reduced in an economy drive but the Council Monday night, when informed of the benefits of a federal program, thought the offer was too good to pass up.

The Council learned it could, with the Kent County Levy Court acting as go-between, secure federal monies to hire the policemen. The amount would be $5800 per year, per man, for two years, with the City adding $200 per year per man to reach the starting salary. The plan stipulates the jobs are to continue after two years with the City paying the full salaries.

Mayor Burton E. Satterfield felt the City could do this since the police force would still have a need for the recruits after two years.

The full-time patrolman hired was Roland Wayne Hobbs, a former military policeman, recently out of the Air Force, and Eugene Smith, a Negro, who would serve part-time.

In other business, Mayor Satterfield said ordinances prohibiting the use of air rifles and the operation of minibikes on the public streets would be strictly enforced. Numerous complaints on the violations of the ordinances were revealed Monday night.

Accepted regulations for land subdivisions, based on those of Dover, tailored to local needs. The tailoring was done by the Harrington Planning and Zoning Commission. Two hundred copies of the pamphlet will be printed and available for purchase.

Voted to install mercury vapor lights at Franklin and Mispillion Streets, Franklin and Milby Streets and the water system's pumping station in between.

Agreed to install automatic controls at sewer pumping stations on North Street and in an alley running north from Carrow Street and in the rear of Harrington Avenue.

The next regular meeting will be held Mon., Feb. 7, when it is customary for the Council to set wages and re-hire employees.

STATE APPROVES MAR-CLAY BONDS

The State has approved the issuance of $777,219 in industrial revenue bonds to Mar-Clay Mills, Inc., Governor Russell W. Peterson announced today.

Governor Peterson said that the tax-exempt revenue bonds will be used to refinance a building addition and machinery and equipment for the Mar-Clay Mills plant in Milford.

The refinancing arrangement will enable the company to reduce its monthly debt payments, which in turn will allow for the expansion of production capacity and the hiring of more employees. The hosiery firm now employs 300 persons. According to the Governor, "This action under the State's industrial financing program will provide 50 new jobs for Delaware citizens."

The Governor was notified of the bond authorization by Robert L. Halbrook, Jr., Secretary of Community Affairs and Economic Development. Based on recommendations from the Council on Industrial Financing and the Division of Economic Development, Halbrook determines whether revenue bonds or general obligation bonds should be issued to finance companies which wish to locate or expand their operations in Delaware.

Halbrook explained that the Mar-Clay Mills project poses no financial risk for the State since revenue bonds are not backed by the "full faith and credit" of the State.

KENT COUNTY COMMENTS

by JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
Levy Court President

The most important decision now facing the Levy Court is the adoption of a permanent zoning ordinance for Kent County which will apply to all of the lands outside of any incorporated town or city. The primary reason for a zoning ordinance is to establish regulations for the orderly growth of Kent County, and to protect property owners from the results of unrestricted use of land. For example, most people do not want a junkyard next door to an expensive residence, or an industrial plant in their backyard.

For the last two years Kent County has had an interim zoning ordinance which expires on February 15, 1972. During this period, the planning commission developed a comprehensive plan for Kent County, and the zoning commission prepared a zoning ordinance and maps designed to carry out the plan. After the zoning commission presented the completed zoning ordinance to the Levy Court, the Levy Court held a public hearing and then held two additional workshop sessions to study the ordinance further. The purpose of the workshops and the public hearing was to uncover problems and take into consideration public opinion on specific provisions of the ordinance.

Under the state law which set up the Zoning Commission, and the procedure for changing the zoning ordinance, the Levy Court must request the Zoning Commission to consider any changes which might appear needed. The Levy Court Commissioners cannot amend the zoning ordinance, or make changes in the original ordinance, until the Zoning Commission has considered the Levy Court's requests. In the last several weeks, the Levy Court has presented a number of requests for changes in the zoning ordinance, and the Zoning Commission has returned their recommendations to the Levy Court. This means that the Levy Court now has the authority to amend the zoning ordinance from that originally proposed if a majority of the commissioners are in favor of this.

The most important amendments under consideration relate to zoning in the farmland areas. In the east part of the county, some commissioners feel that a requirement of two acres for residential lots should be reduced to one acre; and in the west section of the county, that the requirement of one-half acre should be raised to one acre.

The other change in the ordinance relates to people who have already had rezoning under the interim zoning ordinance. The commissioners feel that these people should not have to reapply. The Levy Court will consider whether or not to adopt the permanent zoning ordinance on Tuesday, Jan. 25, or the following Tuesday in the event a final decision is not reached.

Telephone Talk

from JIM STRICKLAND
Your Telephone Manager in Dover

VANDALS

The vandals are still among us. We are painfully aware of that.

We find public phone booths smeared with scribbling... not all of it from children.

We find wires cut, instruments ripped out, directories mutilated.

And when such vandalism happens, we care. Very much. Not merely because it is our property being damaged, but your telephoning convenience as well. You have a right to swift phone service in pleasant surroundings and that is our goal.

So you'll be doing yourself and your neighbors a favor by calling Repair Service and reporting the number and location of any damaged pay phones. There is, of course, no charge for such a call.

And if by chance you are a witness to telephone vandalism, we'd appreciate any and all information you can give us about that, too.

Vandalism is a crime. That's bad enough. A vandalized phone can interrupt your service in an emergency—a police or hospital call, for instance. That's even worse. That's why we want to catch and stop vandals.

You can help us. Please?

Protection of Wildlife

Topic at 4-H Parent Banquet

by Donna Shultie and Jerrie Draper

Every boy, girl, man and woman must help protect wildlife because, not only are they beautiful, they are helpful in many ways especially to farmers. Without game and wildlife in Delaware or any other state it would be a dismal place to live. These points and many other ideas were brought out by Dawson Sapp of the Division of Fish and Wildlife at the Harrington Sunshine 4-H Club annual Parents Banquet on Jan. 10, held at St. Stephen's Social Hall.

Over 80 parents, guests and 4-H members attended the banquet. Members that helped make the banquet successful were Susan Holloway, Billy Winkler, Gene Gallo, Donna Shultie, Roddy Donovan, Barbara Miller, Bonnie Maloney, lie is cordially invited to come to the Fire House to hear this speaker at 7:15 p.m.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

A wise philosopher has said:

"See'st thou a man, diligent in his business—
 He shall stand before Kings, he shall not stand before mean men".

We have always been impressed by the efforts put forth by able athletic coaches and sports-writers, to insure that we have what is required in the following ad;

BOY WANTED

To fill an important position in any capacity. He must be a boy who treats his mother and sister—And every other boy's mother and sister—with respect and does not refer to the father as the "old man". He need not be especially brilliant at school, but must be studious and persevering, never cheating in his exams or passing a problem until he has mastered it. He must be truthful, prompt, obedient and industrious. He is wanted everywhere—in the law, in medical practice, in the counting room, and to run great public works. The people who pay big salaries are looking for him. They want him for judge in the court, member of Congress, senator and president, and the nicest girl in the world wants him for her husband.

Cold: "what kind of husband should I look for?"
 Grandma: "you let them husbands alone and look for a single man."

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Moore of Dover announce the engagement of their daughter, Deborah L. Moore to Russell H. Jack, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jack of Harrington.

Miss Moore is a graduate of Dover High School and is employed as a secretary with the Law Firm of Schmittinger and Rodriguez.

Mr. Jack is a graduate of Harrington High School and Goldey Beacom Junior College. He served two years in the Army and is presently attending Delaware State College.

Navy Bests Maryland But Can't Handle Rincon

The Naval Academy's track team easily defeated the University of Maryland's thin-clads, at Annapolis, on Saturday night. However, the Mid-dies were unable to capture the two-mile run, as the Terps' rapidly improving freshman distance runner, Dan Rincon, recorded a life-time best of 9:05.3, to win by seven seconds.

The Dover Air High graduate is reflecting credit on the Henlopen Conference, where he received most of his scholastic training. His best high school two-mile clocking was in the 9:30's. This campaign his progression has been 9:23, 9:14 and now 9:05.3, in three starts. He's now No. 5 on the all-time Maryland list and is aiming for 8:59 this season, a clocking which would make him No. 4.

fouls like honey draws flies. Burton had 15 trips to the charity stripe and converted ten free throws. Coupled with three action tosses, those foul shots gave him a team-leading 16 points. Bruce broke a leg playing football and missed last season, which gave his cage career quite a setback. But, he's on the comeback trail now.

Other Spartans in double figures were Frank Daniels, 15; Jim Dill, 12; and Don Bryant, 12.

Lake Forest had a breather against Milford. The state champion Bucs lost heavily by graduation and are having a down year. The visitors fell further behind each period as Coach Blades cleared his bench.

A lifelong resident of the Milford area, Mr. Maloney was employed at Wharton and Barnard Supply Co., Milford. He was a member of the Carlisle Fire Company.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Locedia Maloney; and two brothers, McKinley of Milford and Leonard of Magnolia.

Silverfish Common Now

Silverfish are actually fairly inoffensive household pests. They don't make noises, have a bad smell or spread disease. And usually, only a few are around at any one time, according to John McDaniel, agricultural chemicals specialist at the University of Delaware. However, they can cause occasional damage when they eat at books, wallpaper and soiled or starched rayon or linen.

Since silverfish are often found around bathroom fixtures, people believe these insects prefer the bathroom. Actually, you may find them anywhere in the house.

Silverfish live and develop in damp, warm places, especially basements. But you'll also find them in bookcases, around closet shelves, behind baseboards and behind window or door frames. In fact, they often seem to live between the walls.

The silvery-colored pests develop slowly under usual house conditions and have few young. They are hardy insects and can survive without food for several months, McDaniel says.

Most people just swat or crush the silverfish whenever they spot one on the wall. However, chemical controls are available if they become too numerous or if you find them objectionable.

To chemically control silverfish, use a commercial spray; aerosol or dust containing malathion, diazinon or Baygon. The sprays or dusts should be applied around baseboards, closets, cracks in doors and other openings where the pests may travel, says McDaniel.

If silverfish are still present two or three weeks following treatment, another thorough application is suggested.

len and Mrs. Arthur Tribbett, both of Felton; four sisters, Mrs. Hattie Wilson of Milton, Mrs. Ann Covey of Felton, Mrs. Hazel Butler of Milford, and Miss Helen Maloney of Greenwood, and 20 grandchildren.

Farmland Assessment Deadline Feb. 1

Delaware landowners who want their property assessed as agricultural land must make application prior to February 1.

The Delaware Farmland Assessment Act of 1968 allows farmland owners the choice of having their land assessed on the basis of its agricultural production capabilities or as it has been in the past, according to W. T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware.

Which method works to the advantage of the landowner varies from farm to farm and county to county. But farmers in counties that have conducted real estate reappraisals in recent years may find the new assessment procedure results in lower values.

To be eligible for the new assessment: (1) land must be actively used for agricultural purposes, (2) at least five acres must be included in the farm besides the area used for farmhouse and yard; and (3) gross sales, including government farm program payments, must amount to $500 or more per year.

Obviously, a landowner will not want to apply for this reassessment unless it will lower his land taxes, according to McAllister.

In order to determine whether or not a reassessment can reduce land taxes, a farmer will need a soil survey map of his land. This available at the office of the assessor in Sussex county. From the soil survey map and information in the University of Delaware's Agricultural Experimental Station Circular 13, the farmland can be classified into soil groups according to its "productivity potential." In addition, the owner classifies the land according to its present use.

He can then refer to the annual report of the State Farmland Evaluation Advisory Committee for the State Farmvalue of the farmland. The report and Circular 13 may be obtained from the county assessor or from the county agent.

Help in applying for reassessment is available at the county assessor's office.

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed
Are you ready to tackle the job of making a man's sport jacket? A number of women and one man did recently in a class sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Delaware. The class was taught by Mrs. Joyce Simpson, a former Home Economics teacher, who is extremely skillful at the sewing machine.

Mrs. Simpson has made jackets for her husband in order to achieve a good fit, and they indeed fit beautifully and look very professional.

Jackets made by class members did, too, and when husbands modeled them at the last class, there was a look of pride in the eyes of both husband and wife.

Class members all agreed that this is no project for a beginner. You should have some tailoring experience before beginning a man's jacket. Time and patience are needed to proceed with the tailoring techniques and the all important pressing techniques.

Some fabrics are easier to handle than others. Polyester and wool knits are easier to sew and have a certain amount of stretch which gives a comfortable fit. A men's wear worsted may be difficult to press but gives a good looking jacket which does not wrinkle. Plaids must be matched and not be the easiest to tackle for your first project. Corduroy has pressing problems, does not handle as easily as wool and is apt to look home-made.

Men have fitting problems, too, so achieving a good fit is an important part of the process. The fit should be tested by making the jacket in muslin first, fitting the muslin to the man, then making necessary adjustments in the pattern before cutting the jacket fabric. The fabric will make some difference in the fit, so refinements can be made after the jacket pieces are assembled.

The inner construction is extremely important to give the jacket the shaping and body necessary for it to keep its shape. If the jacket is to be washable, all components must be washable and pre-shrunk.

For a jacket which will be dry cleaned, a good quality hair canvas is used for the front and collar. It is impos-

ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

The Civic Center in Salisbury will be the site for the first Delmarva Pork Industry Day Program to be held on Tuesday, Feb. 29. Sponsored by the Maryland and Delaware Pork Producers Association in cooperation with the Cooperative Extension Services of the two states, the program will feature exhibits, speakers, demonstrations, a pork barbecue luncheon and other activities aimed at improving the pork industry on the peninsula.

The program is scheduled to start at 9 a.m. and continue throughout the day and evening with a schedule of events designed to provide information of value to all segments of the industry as well as to consumers. During the day producers will have an opportunity to view the latest commercial equipment and supplies available along with hearing speakers reporting on the latest research in pork production and marketing. A pork barbecue luncheon will be served at noon. The evening program will be designed for consumers with special emphasis on the merits of pork in the diet, new ways of preparing pork products and a fashion show featuring items of clothing and accessories made from pig skin.

An overall committee is heading up the arrangements for organizing the day's program and naming sub-committees to assist with many details involved. Members of this committee are: J. Quinton Johnson, Salisbury, President, Maryland Pork Producers Association; Henry C. Johnson, III, Selbyville, President, Delaware Pork Producers Association; James A. Silver, Dover, Industry Representative; George Brinsfield, Salisbury, Industry Representative; Ted Heslop, Salisbury, Industry Representative; Thurman G. Adams, Jr., Bridgeville, Industry Representative; Howard Abbott, Bridgeville, producer; James Agnew, Salisbury, producer; John Curtis, Harrington, producer; Robert C. Miller, Salisbury, Wicomico County Agent; William H. Henderson, Georgetown, Sussex County Agent; David H. Woodward, Kent County Agent.

For those of you who did not attend our Farm Property Ownership and Estate Planning Meeting on Jan. 11, 1972, we feel that you missed an excellent program. Many subjects of interest were covered and questions were asked from the audience.

One item of particular interest was that if everything you own, including your automobile, has a value over $1500, you have an estate which the law requires to be settled by an executor or administrator. Without a will, you will have no way of directing who shall settle your estate.

Of course, if you are satisfied to permit the Delaware laws to divide everything you own among your heirs and distributees without consideration of their special needs, then leave it to the Register of Wills to appoint an administrator of your estate and you will need no will.

Another item of interest was that although it may seem to you that without a will your estate would be divided satisfactorily, your beneficiaries would be subject to several disadvantages. If any of your beneficiaries, such as children, grandchildren, nephews, or nieces should be under age at the time of your death, the court would have to appoint a guardian to receive and administer their shares of your estate until they were of age. This is an unnecessarily expensive arrangement.

If any of your beneficiaries, although of age, should be legally incompetent to receive and handle property, the court would have to appoint a trustee to manage their shares. This arrangement is also expensive and could be troublesome.

If you wish to make any distinction of age, sex, capacity or interest in other estates, this could not be accomplished unless you made a will.

If you wish certain of your beneficiaries not to have to pay proportionate shares of inheritance or estate taxes, you could not relieve them of this obligation without a will in which you so direct. So, you can see there are several disadvantages that could occur if you did not have a will.

If you do not have a will, you should contact a competent lawyer and divide your estate among your heirs as you see fit. I have been told that depending on the circumstances, this would cost less than $100.
