Days Of Our Years

Ten Years Ago

Miss Vicky Zott and Dwight Hunter Hackett were married Sat., June 2, in Asbury Methodist Church. The Rev. Olin T. Shockey officiated.

Relatives of Frank Xavier Klampfl, who lived around Harrington in 1923, seek him. He came to this country from Dorfen, Germany, about 1911. His brother came over later and joined him in this vicinity. Relatives came into The Journal office with a letter Klampfl had written in 1923, with a Harrington date-line. It was said Klampfl, after his wife had died in Germany, had married one 'Susie Smith' and they had several children. A picture showed picture of father and several children and a Model T Ford.

(Editor's Note): We believe the family lived near or at Ringgold's Green. We also believed, judging from records at the Kent County Department of Records, Kampil assumed his wife's family name. We also believe his second wife died and Smith (formerly Klampfl) moved to and died near Baltimore, probably near Towson. This material we learned after departure of the relatives, naturally.

Nearly $15 million worth of highway construction projects have been initiated by the State Highway Department during the past month, according to William J. Miller Jr., director of operations for the department.

Accepting A New Baby

That new baby has undoubtedly made you very happy—and proud. But what about the baby's older brother or sister?

Is he happy—or afraid of a new rival?

He's been the center of the family all his life. He can't become a second child overnight, says Miss Mary Ann Finch, extension family and child development specialist. "He needs your help."

You know he hasn't been replaced, but most young children feel left out or replaced. Help him realize you still love him—that he's still an important part of the family.

Prepare him for the new arrival ahead of time. But not too far ahead. Young children live in the present and waiting several months is like waiting an eternity. They can't understand.

How soon you tell your youngster depends on how old he is and how mature, says Miss Finch. You know him best of anyone so you'll have to decide how long he can wait. But certainly, don't let the newcomer be a surprise. A new baby is a family event; let his brother or sister help get you ready. As the day draws nearer, he can help with the baby's room, crib or clothing.

Be prepared for a lot of questions. Try to answer them as simply and honestly as you can. If you don't know the answer, admit it. But then, find the answer—together. He'll feel much more comfortable if he understands.

Is the new baby going to mean changes for the older child—a new bed—new room or nursery school? Start these changes before the baby comes, recommends Miss Finch. The more he has got to get used to that's new, the harder it will be for him. Give him a chance to get used to changes one by one.

Telling him, "You're a big boy (or girl) now so you can have a new room," will make him feel a lot better than saying, "The baby needs your room."

Help him understand you'll have to be away for a few days. To him, a few days is a long time; he may be afraid you'll never come back. Be sure he knows and feels comfortable with your substitute.

After the new baby's arrival find time somehow to play with, read to, or just talk to your other children alone. While the baby demands a great deal of your time and attention, don't forget to show love and affection to brother and sister, too.

Visitors often shower attention on the new baby and forget the older one. Don't be surprised if he resents this, and shows it. Try to include him in the visit, says Miss Finch. "Praise him, let him help, make him part of your activities."

The most important thing you can do is give a little extra of yourself to your older child, she adds. Give him a special smile as you pass him playing; give him a real hug when he comes in; give him a big hug and kiss for no reason except that you love him. Let him know he's still important.

William Clayton Chaffinch

William Clayton Chaffinch, 81, of near Greenwood, died Sunday in the Emily P. Bissell Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Chaffinch was born in Federalburg, Md., and had been a resident of Delaware most of his life.

He was employed by Delaware Electric Cooperative, Greenwood, for 14 years, before his retirement in 1961.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eva S. Chaffinch; three brothers, Harry, Thomas and Ernest, all of Seaford; and three sisters, Mrs. Violet Austin, Mrs. Mary Passwaters, all of Seaford.

Services will be Thursday afternoon at 2 at the Watson Funeral Home, Front and King Sts., Seaford.

Interment will be in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Seaford.

Harrington Unbeaten in Big League Play

Earl Everline's Harrington team remained unbeaten in Big League competition by downing Seaford, 3-1, behind the 2-hit pitching of Jim Dill.

Harrington has a 3-0 record to lead the American League division of the ages 16-18 loop.

The locals had five hits, Sam Bostick, Lawrence Sorden, Mike Trotta, Dave Newnom and Jerry Steerman hit safely for the winners.

Delaware Sportsfishing Tournament Continues Receives Funds

The Delaware Sportsfishing Tournament, which is sponsored by the Division of Fish and Wildlife, is once again in full swing. William F. Moore, Tournament Director and manager of the Fisheries Section, predicts another banner year for Delaware and out-of-state anglers alike. The Tournament will continue to be administered as in the past, and will be open year round, May 1 to April 30. Eligible fish size and categories remain unchanged:

Freshwater Division: 1. Largemouth Bass, 5 lbs. 2. White Shad, 4 lbs. 3. Pickerel, 4 lbs. 4. Smallmouth Bass, 2 lbs. 5. White Perch, 1 lb. 6. Yellow Perch, 1 lb. 7. Trout, 1 lb. 8. Crappie, 1 lb. 9. Bluegill, 12 oz.

Saltwater Division: 1. White Marlin, 50 lbs. 2. Shark, 100 lbs. 3. Tuna, 35 lbs. 4. Black Drum, 35 lbs. 5. Channel Bass, 30 lbs. 6. Cod, 20 lbs. 7. Dolphin, 15 lbs. 8. False Albacore, 12 lbs. 9. Striped Bass, 10 lbs. 10. Bluefish, 10 lbs. 11. Flounder, 6 lbs. 12. Tautog, 6 lbs. 13. Seabass, 3 lbs. 14. Sea Trout, 3 lbs. 15. Porgy, 2 lbs. 16. Kingfish, 1 lb. 17. King Mackerel, 5 lbs. 18. Atlantic Mackerel, 1 lb. 8 oz.

Anglers catching fish this size or larger are urged to have them checked at one of the Official Tournament Weighing Stations located throughout the state. Six additional weighing stations have been added this year bringing the total to 34 places where fish may be registered for Tournament entry.

Qualifying anglers will receive a citation along with a distinctive freshwater or saltwater emblem. In addition, trophies will be awarded to those catching the largest fish in each category during the Tournament year. Arrangements are now being made for the presentation of awards to the 1971-72 largest fish winners.

FRANCIS WEBB
KENT COUNTY AGENT

The dairy cow is a wonderful food factory. No other beast or bird, no other manufactured manufacturing machine or plant is more efficient in the production of food for man. She takes the grasses and grains of the fields and converts them into the most perfect single food—milk.

She produces on an average from an acre of crops: 2190 pounds of milk which contains 72 pounds of digestible protein and 712 units (Therms) of energy!

She is the number one soil conservationist, building the fertility and the productivity of the land. Prosperity follows the dairy cow. She appears with man on the stone tablets that record the earliest appearance of the human race. Man has migrated more often in search of green pastures for his cows than for any other cause.

A school boy wrote: "The cow is a mobile, animated machine—housed in unprocessed leather. One end is equipped with a mower, grinder and other standard equipment, including bumpers, headlights, wingflaps and fog horn. At the other end is a milk dispenser and insect repellent.

"Centrally located is a conversion plant consisting of a combination storage and fermentation vat, three converters in series and a complicated arrangement of conveyor tubes. The machine is also equipped with a central heating plant, pumping system and air-conditioning.

"Altho mystic and secret, this plant is unpatented. It is available in various sizes, colors and output ranging from one to 20 tons of milk a year."

Hot weather can bring problems to livestock herd owners. Trees are nature's air-conditioning systems, providing protection from the direct rays of the sun. Also, there is constant movement of water thru the roots up to the leaves where it evaporates and cools the air.

Cattle will spend more time grazing and gain better if adequate shade is available. If the herd is not in a woods pasture, portable pole-type shades should be provided.

A clean fresh supply of water in the pasture is also essential. Water consumption, milk production and daily gains will improve if the water tank is placed in the shade.

Water requirements of beef cattle per pound of dry matter intake increase greatly as temperatures rise. At 60 degrees F, 0.46 gallons of water are required per pound of dry matter consumed; at 90 degrees F, the requirement is nearly doubled.

During the spring, cattle can synthesize and store large amounts of Vitamin A from carotene in lush pastures. But during long, hot and dry periods the stored Vitamin A may be depleted since very little of it can be synthesized from dry pasture. Then Vitamin A is required by mixing it with concentrates or by providing protein blocks containing this vitamin.

When pastures dry up, creep feeding calves will result in additional pounds at weaning. If pastures are dry during the breeding season, beef cows will need supplemental energy to maintain weight and conceive readily. Feeding three or four pounds ground corn daily per cow will help.

Check For Bagworms

Those tiny bags attached to the leaves and needles of four shrubs and trees may mean you have a problem with bagworms.

Bagworms, the larval or worm stage of a moth, feed on a wide variety of plants, reports Frank E. Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware. But evergreens such as arborvitae, southern white cedar, juniper, spruce and pine suffer the most. These trees cannot recover from severe defoliation. Full-grown larvae live in cocoon-like cases approximately two inches long and half an inch wide; young bagworms are only 1/25-inch long at egg hatch. When mature, the male bagworms develop into small, black, hairy-bodied moths which soon come out of the bags. Females have no wings and stay in the bags.

Bagworms overwinter in the egg stage inside the old cases or bags, says Boys. When the eggs hatch in late May or early June, the young larvae crawl about the bush or tree, spinning long threads of silk. Many are suspended on these threads and are eventually spread to other trees by the wind.

To control bagworms, Boys suggests picking off and destroying all bags before egg hatch. Once eggs start hatching, spray trees and shrubs with Sevin (50 per cent wettable powder) at the rate of two tablespoons per gallon of water or a combination of one and one-half tablespoons of Sevin plus two tablespoons of malathion per gallon of water.

Apply the sprays when you first notice the young bagworms, but no later than the end of June. Make sure you cover both the upper and lower surfaces of the foliage.

It Seems To Me

By Janet Reed

Velour once was a heavy, elegant pile fabric used mainly for winter coats and upholstery. Today it's still a beautiful fabric, but it's a soft, easy-care, easy-sew stretchy knit used for casual clothes.

Both stretch cotton velour and stretch terry cloth are among the popular choices for summer sportswear.

These fabrics have a great deal of crosswise stretch so they can be cut to fit close to the body with a minimum of fitting darts. Your body will not ravel, so leave a raw edge and attach to the garment by the tailor's hem method.

Writing about terry cloth made me wonder why it has that name. I looked it up, and it comes from a French verb, "tirer", which means "to pull out."

Gypsy Moth Won't Attack This Year

Damage from gypsy moth caterpillars is not expected to occur in Delaware this year, according to insect specialists at the University of Delaware.

Altho several hundred male moths have been trapped and a few egg masses have been found, Delaware's gypsy moth program for 1972 involves surveillance and census activity. No spraying will be done this season.

The situation is much more grim in the northeastern states. Frank Boys, extension entomologist with the cooperative extension service, says gypsy moth caterpillars defoliated nearly two million acres of trees in that area last year. In the Newark, New Jersey watershed, more than a million trees were killed by repeated defoliation over a three-year period. Extensive control spraying has been completed in New Jersey using Sevin. Early reports indicate the sprays were effective in destroying emerging caterpillars.

The first male gypsy moth was trapped in Delaware four years ago. Last year 700-800 males were caught in traps throughout the state. But no females have been found even though four egg masses were discovered in northern New Castle County this spring.

An extensive trapping program is in operation this summer as part of a monitoring program. It's part of a joint effort involving the United States Department of Agriculture, the State Department of Agriculture, and the department of entomology and applied ecology at the University. Entomologists expect to be able to predict possible trouble spots or areas where an infestation might occur by keeping track of male activity. Traps are located every square mile throughout the state. They are yellow-brown cardboard tubes about four inches long. A concave clear plastic disc with a hole in it is positioned in each end. These permit the moths to fly in but prevent escape. Trap sites are marked by a strip of orange tape to warn people of their location. They are not dangerous and should not be disturbed. The traps are baited with an artificial sex attractant that lures only male gypsy moths.
