

SENATOR COOK WILL RUN AGAIN; BLASTS U. OF D.

Sen. Allen J. Cook (D-Kent) announced re-election last week by taking potshots at the University of Delaware, actress Jane Fonda and prisoners at the Delaware Correctional Center near Smyrna.

Cook called for a legislative investigation of the university, saying he was very disturbed by things that went on at the Newark campus.

"There are some things going on up there I can't talk about now," he said.

Cook was also critical of university professor Dr. Paul

Dolan, who Cook said insulted Democrats by insinuating they weren't smart enough to run the state government.

University president Dr. E. A. Trabant said last Thursday morning the university is the best educational bargain for the state.

He said tuition for Delawareans is among the lowest in state institutions nationwide.

As for outside speakers like Jane Fonda, he said they are permitted on campus as long as they do not advocate violence or the overthrow of the United States government.

Cook was critical of recent attempts by prisoners to form a union at the correctional center.

"It's just like the schools," he said. "If the teachers and the administrators can't run the schools, then we ought to close the schools."

Speaking before the Kent County Democratic Committee, Cook said these past three years have been some of the worst he has ever seen in the General Assembly.

"We're borrowing money to pay for things that should be paid for out of the general fund," he said.

Cook, an accountant for the Delaware Turnpike, said, "I've never seen highways in a more disgraceful condition."

Also on hand at the Democratic meeting were three statewide candidates: Norma Handloff for the U.S. House of Representatives; Earl McGinnis for auditor and Edward Stansky for treasurer.

McGinnis was critical of incumbent auditor George W. Cripps, who he said did not expose the "financial bungling" of Gov. Russell W. Peterson.

Stansky said if he was elected treasurer he would try and get back the duties he said were stripped from the treasurer when the cabinet form of government came into being.

Stansky said if he could do half the job that Treasurer Emily Womach has done he would feel he had accomplished much.

It was Stansky who nominated Mrs. Womach for the treasurer post two years ago. Mrs. Handloff, mayor of Newark, talked of environmental problems.

Caulk Blasts Buckson

Delaware's Secretary of Agriculture today labeled as "political poppycock" a recent statement by David Buckson that Governor Russell W. Peterson has displayed a lack of concern for the welfare of the State's poultry industry.

"On the contrary," said Secretary Pat Caulk, "The Governor has publicly and in private meetings with industry leaders offered the full support of his office and the state department of agriculture.

"Anyone with even a limited knowledge of the poultry industry is aware that its real problem is one of national oversupply and low prices as the result of continuing overproduction in states of the South and Southwest. However, Gov. Peterson did what he could by publicly urging all residents to eat more poultry and requesting all state agencies and institutions to serve chicken frequently," he added.

To disprove Buckson's claim that the state spent no money on the industry during the past fiscal year, Secretary Caulk cited the following expenditures for activities of the department of agriculture:

$28,000 on poultry disease control programs involving hatchery sanitation, pullorum-typhoid testing of laying flocks, and post-mortem examination of diseased birds.

$53,000 budgeted for commodity promotion, of which an estimated 50 per cent was of direct benefit to the broiler industry.

In addition to the above expenditures, he pointed out that the state appropriated $10,000 to the University of Delaware to be used for its diagnostic poultry services.

"It is true that the state has not proposed a subsidy program of price support on broilers nor has it advocated purchasing and storage or local production control. Such state-wide programs could not be said, "because despite its substantial broiler production, Delaware accounts for only a fraction of the nation's total. Such action could only be implemented at the federal level."

He pointed out that the Governor's Council on Poultry Promotion, made up of seven prominent members of the industry in Delaware, has met regularly to discuss industry problems and has expressed its gratitude to Governor Peterson for his continued support.

Finally, he said, Governor Peterson last fall requested and received federal emergency financial assistance through the Farmers Home Administration for Delaware farmers who suffered losses in crop production, including feed grains corn and soybeans, and has done the same thing recently following tropical storm Agnes.

DELAWARE ELECTRIC SEEKS RATE INCREASE

A spokesman for Delaware Electric Cooperative said last week the co-op needs a 13.2 per cent rate increase to pay for electricity it buys from Delmarva Power and Light.

The co-op, a nonprofit organization, serves about 19,500 customers in rural Kent and Sussex Counties.

At a public hearing before the PSC, Richard F. Booth said the rate increase is only going to pay for more costly operating costs.

Booth is a consulting engineer from Raleigh, N.C.

On May 2 the Federal Power Commission approved increased wholesale electricity rates for DP&L in the amount of 16.9 per cent.

The co-op started paying the increased DP&L rate in November.

The 13.2 per cent increase $460,500 in additional revenue. It means an additional $1.50 to $2 per month for the average co-op customer.

But Co-op general manager this is the first increase the co-op has sought since it was formed in 1936.

He said the co-op's normal growth rate made it unnecessary to ask for an increase before this time.

The PSC made no decision on the rate increase and won't before the hearing transcript comes back.

Unlike other utilities, the co-op has not placed its increase into effect under bond as allowed by law.

James A. Erisman, a Wilmington attorney, was named a special council to the PSC in rate cases.

He replaces Joseph Walsh, who was appointed a Superior Court judge.

Rotarians to Help Vets Find Jobs

A demonstration of how a service group and a business organization can work together is being carried out by the Harrington Rotary Club in helping to find jobs for the returning veterans.

The club is participating with Delmarva Metro, the headquarters of the National Alliance of Businessmen in the project, the first of its kind in the nation.

Organized in 1968, the businessmen's group strives to find jobs for the disadvantaged poor as well as the veterans. It is a major effort by industry and business to work with government to provide jobs and training, says Dick Johnson, president of the Harrington Rotary Club.

Johnson added his group is involved in the Delmarva Peninsula effort of finding jobs for at least 400 veterans, or 10 per cent of the 4000 who will return to the Peninsula this year.

"If this program works out as expected on the Peninsula, we hope it will be copied by other Rotary districts," said Johnson. "It has all the potential of a national project."

The local club is part of District 763 of Rotary International, covering 14 counties on the Peninsula. All 30 Delmarva clubs are participating in the program.

Ray Hecht, a Hescules Inc. employe on a two-year leave, is director of the program while William Buheit is veteran jobs representative for the area.

Cycle Races Here Tomorrow

The second annual First State Gold Cup to be held tomorrow is in final planning stages. The event, which sold out during last year's Delaware State Fair, was the first large scale professional motorcycle race ever held in Delaware.

Several weeks ago, the Governor's Cup professional motorcycle race at Harrington, which was rescheduled because of heavy rains, attracted nationally known racing stars from as far away as California. More than 100 riders including Gary Nixon (twice Grand National Champion), Larry and Denny Palmgren (who both have big wins at the Harrington facility) battled in an exciting finish which placed the Palmgren brothers first and second.

The racing program will consist of a series of qualifying heats, time trials, and three exciting finals. The novice and junior finals will be five miles in length and the experts will race for eight miles.

Time trials begin at 7 p.m.

Slate Announced; Primary Aug. 19

State Sen. George A. Robbins, D-Milford, registered for the 33rd District House seat Monday in perhaps the biggest surprise among last-minute Kent County filings.

"The old horse felt like he needed just half the territory" Robbins said. He said he has been suffering minor illnesses and did not feel he could effectively campaign through the entire 18th Senatorial District.

A former Kent County civil defense director, William M. Murphy Jr. of Rodney Village, filed on the Democratic ticket for Robbins' Senate seat.

Murphy faces Republican John Kramedas. Murphy left his civil defense post to become manager of a new automobile auction in the Felton area. In February he lost an election for Democratic chairman of the 32d Representative District to Joshua M. Twilley, Kent County Levy Court president.

Robbins is 58. He has served in the Senate since 1963 where he has been a member of the Agriculture, Education, Natural Resources and Environmental Control and Finance Committees. He was a member of the House from 1959 to 1963.

In other previously unannounced filings for the General Assembly:

—The Rev. William A. Cathell, a Felton Republican, filed against Sen. Allen J. Cook of Kenton for the 16th Senatorial District seat.

Cathell said he has temporarily retired from the ministry although he remains as the supervising pastor of the Felton Baptist Church. Cathell 42, runs a hearing aid store in Milford.

—Irving H. Garton, owner of I. H. Garton & Co., general contractors, filed on the Democratic ticket against Rep. Robert W. Riddagh, R-Smyrna, in the 30th Representative District.

Garton, 59, served in the House from the old 5th Representative District in Kent County in 1955-56.

—Rep. Hudson E. Gruwell, D-Dover, filed against Rep. Arthur W. Dobberstein, R-Dover, for the seat in the new 31st Representative District.

Gruwell was in the 30th and Dobberstein was in the 29th until reapportionment placed them in the 31st. Both are first term representatives.

—Herbert D. Cluley Jr., a Republican, and J. Edward Morris, a Democrat, both of Camden, filed for the 34th Representative District seat.

Morris, a retired employe of the Division of Juvenile Corrections, resigned as superintendent of the Stevenson Detention Center in Milford in October of 1969.

Prior to taking the post, he was a teacher at Caesar Rodney High School. He joined Family Court in 1961. By 1966, Morris, 59, had become the chief probation officer for Kent and Sussex Family Court —before unification of the court.

Cluley, 57, was acting state auditor in 1947. He also once served as executive director of welfare for the state and motor fuel tax administrator. He was the mayor of Camden from 1946 to 1958.

He attended the state Republican convention this year as a delegate for David P. Buckson. He is a delegate to the national Republican convention in Miami next month.

—Mrs. Virginia Winkler, a Republican and Marvin Seeneey and Ronald L. Darling, both Democrats, filed for the 35th Representative District seat. Incumbent Rep. George Robert Quillen, R-Harrington, did not file for re-election.

Mrs. Winkler, 52, is a housewife. She lives just north of Harrington and has been a Republican committeewoman 12 years.

Seeneey, 53, was defeated in a Democratic primary for a House seat in 1970. He is an electrician with Hatzel & Buehler Electric Co., Seaford.

Darling, 39, is a farmer in Willow Grove. He has been a committeeman for the past four years.

Democrats filed no one against incumbent Rep. W. Neal Moerschel, R-Dover, but he faces a primary with former magistrate Leonard E. (Ed) Motley, also of Dover. Both are seeking the 32d Representative District seat.

Robbins faces Republican George (Mickey) Effinger, 40, of Frederica, for the House

QUILLEN DOES NOT SEEK LEGISLATIVE OFFICE

Rep. George Robert Quillen told The Harrington Journal Monday he did not seek reelection to the House and was not running for the Senate.

The Harrington Republican, who has served three terms in a traditionally Democratic district, something of a record, had not filed for office by the deadline Monday.

Quillen did not reveal his plans for the future but unconfirmed sources believe he will be in for a state appointment.

Harry Mayhew Dies

Funeral services were held in Milford Monday for Harry Ennis Mayhew, 66, who died of an apparent heart attack Friday.

A former member of the State House of Representatives and the State Senate, he was pronounced dead on arrival at Kent General Hospital in Dover after being stricken while he and his wife, Frances, were driving to their Milford home from Wilmington.

Allied Chemical Warned by EPA

Allied Chemical Corporation, Claymont, Delaware today was ordered by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to construct a facility to abate its air pollution by September 15, 1973. Failure to comply can result in fines up to $25,000 a day and/or imprisonment up to one year.

Allied, a sulfuric acid manufacturing company, is presently emitting 4.5 times the allowable limit for sulfur dioxide according to Edward W. Furia, administrator of EPA's Middle Atlantic Region.

With the construction of this abatement facility "the plant will be able to meet federal standards by recycling its waste products," Furia said. "In fact, the plant will be even more efficient since waste sulfur dioxide gas will be used to make more sulfuric acid, the plant's principle product."

Furia said that Jacob P. Hart, Director, Enforcement Division, and Marc W. Suffer, EPA Attorney, met with Allied and other concerned parties during the last month. "Hart and Suffer reviewed the records and determined that Allied could in fact comply by mid-September, 1973, by building what is essentially a recycling plant for sulfur wastes."

Allied violates the Clean Air Act of 1970 by emitting 3000 to 4500 parts of sulfur dioxide per one million parts of air.

The State of Delaware has established an Implementation Plan—approved by EPA August 4, 1971—that prohibits the emission of more than 1000 parts of sulfur dioxide per one million parts of air.

Three Bayliners To Be Built

The Delaware River and Bay Authority last Tuesday authorized the construction of three bayliners to replace the vessels currently operating at the Cape May-Lewes Ferry.

Construction of the three vessels was described as a necessary step to reduce the approximately $1.5 million deficit incurred annually with the present four-vessel fleet.

Cost of the new ships was estimated at $12,200,000. While this amount is higher than the naval architect estimated, it is lower than bids received three months ago and rejected by the Authority.

Todd Shipyard of Houston, Tex. was awarded the negotiated contract. Todd has originally bid $13,948,000. Delivery of the first vessel will be made in 18 months, the second in 21 months and the third two years after the contract is signed.

Authority Chairman Albert F. Smith of Wilmington said the new vessels were necessary because of the continuing deficit necessitated by constant dredging requirements, higher insurance rates on the old vessels, increased cost of fuel and spare parts and finally, the inability to meet more stringent anti-pollution regulations of both state and federal governments.

The new vessels will burn diesel oil instead of the bunker oil which emits sulphur into the atmosphere. Being of shallow draft construction, the new vessels will reduce considerably the need for dredging to keep the ferry lanes open to the deeper draft vessels now in operation.

For the traveling public the new vessels will mean more convenience, comfort and time saving. It is expected the new vessels will permit a faster crossing than the present 70-minute schedule. Much of the time is consumed in turning the large bayliners for docking and departures. Bow thrusters will be constructed in each of the vessels to facilitate this activity.

Passengers will load directly onto the passenger decks to save time. At present passengers board on the same loading bridge as vehicles, making some confusion and loss of time.

After the bids were rejected in March because they were far in excess of Authority estimates, private inquiries were conducted by a committee of Commissioners. Talks were conducted with half a dozen shipyards for the past three months, with Todd Shipyard receiving the contract based on the best price.

Chairman Smith was particularly laudatory of Vice Chairman Clarence B. McCormick of Bridgeton, N.J. and Commissioner James Julian of Wilmington who contributed many days to the negotiations and traveled countless miles inspecting shipyards.

Authority Director William J. Miller, Jr. said the present bayliners will be sold to the highest bidders for delivery when they are replaced by the newer vessels.

A Peak At the Future

Quite aside from the rights and wrongs of it, the coal miners' strike in Britain affords a chilling preview of what things may be like in the future as fossil fuel reserves dwindle toward the vanishing point. Britons have found themselves subjected to successive restrictions on use of electricity a stockpiles of coal have gone down.

These restrictions extended to both heating and light in many homes, not to mention such other amenities as television and electric toasters and the like. It was done on a staggered basis, with each area throughout the country deprived of power for several hours at a time. Now government authorities are talking of a complete ban on use of electricity in homes should the coal miners' strike not be settled quickly.

Probably it will not come to that. Even if it doesn't, we will have seen how harshly a shortage of fossil fuels can weigh on a modern industrial society. — Warrensburg (Mo.) Daily Star

Interesting Idea

We're tired of the presidential campaign already. Does anyone out there like the idea of leaving the office vacant four years?—Daily Dunklin Democrat, Kennett, Mo.

Six-Year Presidency

Former President Lyndon B. Johnson has made the suggestion a president be elected for a six year term and not be eligible for re-election to succeed himself. This, however, leaves the door open for re-election after another has held the job.

There is an instance in U.S. history where a President was elected for two terms with another man serving a term in the middle. Grover Cleveland was inaugurated in 1885, but was defeated by Harrison in the election of 1888. He ran again four years later and was elected, defeating Harrison by a wide margin. His second vice-president was Adlai E. Stevenson, grandfather of the present U.S. Senator from Illinois of the same name.

Former President Johnson feels the pressure on a President in his first term is to get himself re-elected and therefore his actions often are dictated by political considerations. He feels a President who knows he is not eligible might be better for the country.

There is much to be said for a six-year term. The problem of re-election is indicated by the fact the law now prohibits a President from serving more than two terms in succession. There are several states where governors are barred from succeeding themselves without an interim term.

Mr. Johnson feels if a President knew he had to quit after six years he would have pressure on him to get the work done in the period. He would not be concerned with getting himself re-elected and could devote his energies and time to the immediate problems without political considerations.

It is a debatable proposal and is not new. In fact it was debated when the country was first formed. Only President F. D. Roosevelt broke a two term-and-out tradition established by Washington.—Independence Bulletin - Journal

Business and Ecology Profit

One of the major cities of the nation is scheduled this week to begin the operation of a paper recycling plant as a subsidiary to its sanitation collection services and as a partial answer to ecological preservation.

At the other end of the paper cycle—the raw material out of which comes pulpwood for paper products, Southland Paper Mills, a pioneering Texas corporation in newsprint manufacture, is completing this month the planting of 6 million pine seedlings in half a dozen East and South Texas counties.

Both are laudable projects. In the case of Southland Paper Mills, the primary objective is to help meet, through annual reforestation, projected pulpwood requirements through the year 2000.

It is through similar programs not only by Southland but also by other paper mills, and by manufacturers of all kinds of products for whom wood is a basic raw material, that the entire South—between East Texas and the Atlantic Ocean—now has more and better forested areas of pine than at any time since the first woodcutters arrived.

As cut over land has been reforested, as farmed out land has been converted back to forest, not only future wood needs are assured but also there has been a marked increase in wildlife.

The recycling plant and the reforestation program have a lot in common as good business practices and as practical ecology.

—Wichita Falls (Tex.) Times

What Else Is New?

A Michigan State University professor has edited the first textbook in the country to be published entirely from recycled paper.

That's not so new. A lot of professors have been recycling the same old lectures for years.

SKYJACKING

This prosperous pastime has become more popular since the Black Panthers have taken it over. The following appeared in last Saturday's (July 15) Evening News:

ALGIERS—The American Black Panther's International Section says U.S. airplanes should be hijacked "to encourage and fight directly against the exploitative American government."

The article appeared in the party's information bulletin on June 3rd in connection with the hijacking of a Western Airline plane.

To further add to Philadelphia air-travel, a $2 tax has been added to every ticket sold out of Philadelphia International Airport.

The following front-line folly from yesterday's Inquirer should further add to the situation and help bring passenger business back to the good old railroad.

Sky Marshals Grounded: $44 Million Wasted? The sky marshal program, a much-publicized effort to foil airplane hijackers aloft, is now limping toward a landing after two years of fruitless flying at a cost to taxpayers of $44 million. To-date they have failed to capture a single hijacker in the air. Their reputation hit bottom last October when three of them sat ineffectually on an American airline hijacked to Cuba. The hijacker was a five foot Puerto Rican armed with a ball-point pen.

But paved roads, motor cars and such
 And travel through the sky's arched ways
 Can never bedim the glory of
 The good old railroad days.

Harry Benson Stars In Dover Track Meet

Harry Benson's last meet in the age 13 division was a great one. Harry, who will be 14 at the end of July, won an easy mile in 5:30 and beat all the 14-15 age group in that one. He wasn't pressed in winning the 440 in 60.9. Harry took the long jump with 14-7 then just missed in the 100 yard dash, when a rival entered his lane and forced him to run wide. It was quite a swan song but Harry has the ability to make his presence known against older runners.
 Lake Forest runners dominated the 16-17 100 yard dash as Don Bryant and Don Parker tied for first in 10.4 seconds, followed by Neal Travis, a close-up third. This trio then added Bob Smith and captured the 440 relay in 48.5. Smith was first in the 440 yard run in 55.2.

 Jackie Guyton, 10, was unopposed in the 100, 220 and 440 yards events and had to run with the boys, but proved able to beat most of them too.
 John Nickle, 11, won the 100, 220 and 440 yard dashes and looks like a fine track and cross-country prospect. Remember his name, you'll be hearing it again. He has the necessary attributes, speed, dedication, courage, desire, etc.
 Next Monday night at Dover High, another All - Comers meet will be held. Starting time is 6:15.

Booze Okayed For Fair

Directors of the Delaware State Fair, by secret ballot, last week lifted Prohibition to a limited extent during Fair week.

The action by the directors took place after Gov. Russell W. Peterson signed House Bill 900, passed in the final hours of the General Assembly.

Opposition to approving the sale of alcoholic beverages in any form was led by Purnal Friedel, Viola, one of a committee appointed earlier this year by President J. Gordon Smith to study the proposition.

Smith, who called the special meeting, was not present. Robert F. Rider, Bridgeville, first vice-president, presided in Smith's absence.

Purnell's motion that all voting be conducted by secret ballot was approved by a vote of 19-17.

After considerable parliamentary maneuvering, a vote to sell alcoholic beverages of all kinds in the clubhouse in conjunction with food was approved 32-7.

Herman C. Brown, president of Harrington Raceway, which rents the facility from the Fair, charged before the vote this was "discriminatory" in that it denies a drink to a man "who doesn't have $6 to buy a meal." But his plea was in vain.

A subsequent motion to sell beer at the two bars located at the lower and upper level of the clubhouse was approved by 25-14.

However, directors rejected by a 19-18 margin a motion to sell beer from a truck or a beer tent at the western end of the Fair complex.

And, by a vote of 31-8, directors refused to add the sale of hard liquor at the two grandstand bars previously approved for beer sales.

The beer and food concessions will be operated by Nilon Brothers, a catering service employed during the racing season.

Big Leaguers Win Two of Three

Milford edged Harrington's Big League nine 4-3, to extend the locals losing streak to three games. Harrington then snapped back to nip Georgetown 1-0 and crush Woodbridge 10-1.

At this writing Milford is one-half game ahead of Harrington in the American League Division with Seaford in third place.

Milford and Harrington each had five hits with Jim Dill and Sam Bostick getting two safeties each.

Mickey Chaffinch, a big righthander, blanked Georgetown on three hits, while Dave Newnom's home run iced the victory. Chaffinch's pitching skills seem to be overlooked for long periods of time. In both Senior League and high school competition, he spent much time behind the plate, in right field and in other positions. Yet, he took a crack. Georgetown Senior League Club on their collective ears, two or three years ago, when given a rare hill assignment. That Georgetown club won the Delaware State Title, if memory is correct.

Haldeman-Thomas Vows

A very pretty wedding took place at Felton United Methodist Church on July 13th at 7:30 p.m. when Karen Lynn Haldeman became the bride of Edward Wayne Thomas. The Rev. John A. Massimilla performed the double-ring ceremony. Holy Communion was served to the couple and attendants, and the joining of two lighted candles into one was observed during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown which she designed and personally made. It was full-length, candlelight, with appliques of alencon lace. She wore an heirloom, full length mantilla trimmed in the same lace. Her bouquet was of white and ivory anthuriums and cascades of white and purple orchids.

The maid of honor was Betty Louise Myers and bridesmaids were Bonnie Sue Smith and Joanne P. Hudson. Their gowns were full length floral designs with headresses of purple orchid arrangements. They carried long-stemmed anthuriums of ivory, white and pink. All of the flowers were sent by the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William L. Keller, of Hawaii. The best man was George C. Thomas, father of the bridegroom. Ushers were William J. Haldeman, Lawrence F. Haldeman, Bob Thomas and Nicky Thomas. Both mothers wore orchids, which were also sent from Hawaii.

A reception followed at the Den, in Dover. The bride is a graduate of Longwood College. The bridegroom will be attending graduate school. The couple will reside in Cockeysville, Md.

TOWN AND COUNTRY TOPICS

DAVE WOODWARD
ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

BUZZ, SMACK, BUZZ, BUZZ—the mosquito season is here and those pesky things will be around until the first hard freeze this fall!

You, as a homeowner, can help control the mosquito problem by eliminating minor breeding areas. There are many types of water collections around the home that will provide breeding places for mosquitoes. The following is a list of possible mosquito breeding areas in and around the home that should be checked:

Ornamental fish ponds; stock watering tanks; water under houses, crawl spaces and sump pump holes; swimming and wading pool; roof gutters; rot holes in trees; bird baths; storm sewer catch basins; cesspools or septic tanks which have openings where mosquitoes can enter and lay eggs; containers such as paint buckets, tin cans, old tires, rain barrels.

All of these possibilities should be checked and the water removed. Artificial containers should be dumped and overturned. Old tires should also be emptied and placed where they will not collect water.

During the day, the northern house mosquito, the most common offender hereabouts, hides in dark and protected places. Temporary relief from these adult mosquitoes is possible by spraying the surrounding shrubbery, high grass and other vegetation with one of the following pesticides using a pressure-type garden sprayer:

Malathion—6 tablespoons of a 57% formulation in a gallon of water; Naled—1½ tablespoons of a 25% formulation in a gallon of water; or Methoxychlor—1½ cups of a 50% wettable powder in a gallon of water.

To control adult mosquitoes indoors, a commercially prepared aerosol bomb containing pyrethrin is practical. Resin strips impregnated with DDEP (Vapona) will also control mosquitoes in a closed area where there is no great amount of air circulation. These Vapon strips will not work effectively in a screened porch where there are openings on all sides. The room must be closed for the chemical to work.

As far as repellents are concerned, this is probably the most practical way of combating the "skeeters" if you must spend some time working around the yard. Repellents containing DEET (the chemical name is N, N, diethyl metatoluamide) are often very effective in protecting one from being bitten by mosquitoes. The length of effectiveness usually varies from one to five hours. There are many commercial formulations available which can be identified by examination of the label which will give the chemical name as indicated above.

Generally speaking, it is inadvisable for the average property owner to try to control large mosquito breeding areas on his land. For controlling mosquitoes in these areas, the State Mosquito Control Division should be contacted for information on the possibility of assistance.

Because of the flight habits of many mosquitoes, the elimination of breeding sources around the home does not necessarily relieve all mosquito annoyance, but temporary relief from the long distance flyers is possible by using one of the insecticides I have just discussed.

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

The computer can do anything. Now it can even give you a perfect fitting pattern.

Several companies are competing for the computer pattern business. They may have latched onto a good thing, too, because getting a good fit continues to plague many women who sew for themselves.

Almost all of us have figure irregularities which differ from standard measurements. Many of these are comparatively easy to fit with only slight adjustments in the pattern. Of course, this assumes that you have found the correct figure type, nearest size and best style for you. But there are women who have difficulty getting a good fit regardless of adjustments made. They might want to try a computer pattern.

As with everything, there are advantages and disadvantages. Since these patterns are expensive, weigh the advantages before you invest.

The computer pattern is only as accurate as your measurements are taken. One of the companies claims it's impossible for a woman to take her own measurements accurately, so they employ trained saleswomen who take all the necessary measurements. Naturally, this adds to the cost, and you pay about twice as much for your pattern.

It is true that it's difficult to take all your own measurements, but you can enlist the help of a friend who sews and knows the importance of accurate and truthful measurements. Companies claim that we don't like to think of ourselves as the tape measure tells us we are, so we may cheat a little.

But if you're going to invest the necessary money for a good fit, that doesn't seem very likely. However, inaccuracies can come from variations in posture, differences in measuring tapes, and measuring points.

Trained saleswomen to take measurements for the computer pattern aren't available everywhere, whereas you can order by mail if you send in your own measurements. By measuring at home, you can take measurements over the shoulder to be more accurate than measurements taken over clothing in the store.

None of the companies claim their patterns will necessarily fit figures with a visible difference between the right and left sides of the body.

Once the measurements are received, they are fed into a computer and stored on magnetic tape. Then a special digital plotter draws the pattern. Since the measurements are on tape, you can order other patterns later. It may take anywhere from two to four or more weeks for delivery, so obviously you must plan ahead.

Some companies send you a basic pattern from which you develop your own styles. This takes some knowledge of pattern design, as well as considerable time, unless you always want to wear the same basic style. But for items such as pants, there isn't much style variation anyway so a

Preserve Flowers For Colorful Arrangements

If you are interested in flower arranging, preserve your own blooms and foliage this summer.

The dried leaves and flowers of many plants can be used to create colorful arrangements when flowers are no longer available from the garden, points out Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

One of the easiest methods of preserving flowers is to let them dry naturally. Tie your flowers together in small bunches and hang them with their heads down in a dark, well ventilated area (basements are too dark, however). Stevens says this process works best with flowers such as delphiniums, globe thistle, celosia and hydrangea.

gives you a guide to compare with present commercial pattern styles so you can determine exactly where to adjust.

Other companies offer only individual styles, complete with all the necessary pattern pieces. The choice of styles is not very great at the present time, but probably will increase rapidly.

Each person must decide if this individual service is worth the cost. For some, it will be a great bargain; for others, money poorly spent. In any case, it's an interesting development to watch. Maybe someday we'll all be buying patterns this way.

Land of Promise

The more you listen to political speeches, the more you realize why America is called the Land of Promise.

—Holt County Independent, O'Neill, Neb.

Borax can also be used to dry flowers. Cover the bottom basic pattern is a practical solution. The basic pattern also of a large box (a suit box is ideal) with a thin layer of borax and cornmeal mixed in flowers face up in the borax-cornmeal mixture and sift on more of the material until the flowers are lightly covered. Place the box in a dark, dry room until the blooms are completely dehydrated.

Zinnia, marigold, chrysanthemum, dahlia, Shasta daisy and many other flowers can be easily preserved with the borax treatment.

Foliage can be preserved with glycerin, adds Stevens. All you do is stand the stems or leaves in a mixture of glycerin and water.

Many types of leaves can be preserved by the glycerin process. Leaves from the beech, birch, peach, plum and poplar trees are easy to preserve, while barberry, forsythia, blueberry, rhododendron and rose foliage can also be used in interesting arrangements. The leaves of many perennial herbaceous plants may be used such as canna, coral bells, geraniums, iris, ivy and lily-of-the-valley.

If the leaves have woody stems, cut off the lower inch before starting the treatment. Stand the stems or leaves upright in the glycerin-water solution. The leaves will change color as the solution is absorbed, thus leaves the stems in the glycerin until the color is the same throughout the leaf. This indicates that absorption is complete.

Some of the small, hardy flowers such as dwarf zinnias, marigolds, pansies and pom-pom chrysanthemums can be dried with sand. Remove all the folage from the flowers before placing the blooms face down on a layer of fine dry, sand. When the flowers are in place cover the blooms with additional sand; the stems do not have to be covered. Place in the sun to bake. The flowers should be dry in one to two days.

Silica gel can also be used to dry flowers, but it is more expensive than the other treatments; says Stevens. This material looks like sugar and has the capacity to absorb up to 40 percent of its weight in water.

Remove the foliage from your flowers and if the stems are fragile, it is best to cut them off and dry only the flower head. Later, a false stem can be wired on.

Cover the bottom of a fruit cake tin or similar container that has a tight cover with 1 and one half inches of the silica jell. Place the flowers face up in the material making sure the petals do not touch. Cover the blooms with the material and then put the lid on the container and seal with masking tape.

In five to seven days the flowers will be dry. The silica gel will turn from blue to pink when all the moisture has been absorbed. Once the flowers have been removed, you can re-use the material by placing it in a warm oven at about 250 degrees for about half an hour.

Stevens says silica gel can be used to dry ageratum, snap-dargon, aster, calendula, cosmos, daisies, dahlia, salvia, candytuft, bells of Ireland and a host of other flowers.

Veteran's Administration News

Questions and Answers

Q - Does VA pay dividends on "RH" insurance issued to veterans separated from service because of service-connected disabilities?

A - No. By law, VA is not permitted to pay dividends on "RH" insurance policies.

Q - If I decided to go to school under the GI Bill, what can I do to speed up the arrival of educational allowance checks?

A - As soon as you receive your certificate of eligibility from VA, submit it to the proper school officials for completion and make certain the school returns it to VA as soon as possible. As soon as VA receives the certificate, your checks will be started.

Q - I am a veteran in prison drawing VA compensation. Since I am 65 and eligible for pension will VA pay me a pension if it is a greater benefit?

A - No. VA pension benefits are terminated on the 61st day of imprisonment in a penal institution. However, compensation payments can continue.

Q - I am attending school under the GI Bill and receive $205 monthly educational allowance for myself and wife. Will my wife be dropped as my dependent if she works and earns a certain amount of money?

A - No. Your wife's income has no bearing on the amount of educational assistance you receive.

Q - I receive compensation based on a 100 percent disability. May I obtain employment without a reduction in compensation?

A - Yes, if your condition is rated 100 per cent. However, if your condition is rated less than 100 per cent and you are receiving temporary compensation at 100 per cent based on unemployability, your compensation would be reduced if you became employed.

Q - I am a World War II veteran who never used his GI loan benefits. Is it true that I can still use this benefit?
A - Yes. The Veterans Housing Act of 1970 restored unused, expired loan benefits to all veterans who were previously eligible. These benefits are now available until used.

Hat Snatcher

Every now and again a wild animal discombobulates an entire community. A mountain lion is observed slinking through a southwest city, say, or a moose or bear appears on the snowy streets of some town near the Canadian border. Generally there's more alarm than harm.

This seems to be the case thus far with regard to the hat-snatching hawk of Highland Park, Ill. This enterprising bird, a red-tail which apparently covers a wide area of Chicago's North Shore, likes to dive bomb people.

In at least one authenticated case it snatched a leather cap from the noggin of no less than the Highland Park animal warden and dropped it a block away. On another occasion it hit the head of a morning jogger—who, not deterred, did his stint the next day wearing a hard hat.

The predictable demand that the bird be done away with has encountered some opposition. Some people have fed the harrying hawk at their doorsteps and plead that it's really doing no harm. Capturing such an elusive creature would prove difficult, even more so than shooting it in flight. It's a big problem in Highland Park—whose residents may have to adopt hard hats as standard gear.

Wooing the Savers

The lengths to which some New York savings banks are going to attract customers verges on the ridiculous. Some banks have been advertising that they will compound interest daily instead of quarterly. A few now are saying they will compound interest "continuously" or "every second." Wow! At a bank paying 5 percent on a regular savings account, "continuous" compounding returns $512.71 in annual interest on a $10,000 account. How much does a customer get from "continuous" compounding over daily compounding? Four cents a year. --Charleston S.C.) News and Courier
