Five Kent County Democrats are under serious consideration for a slot that only one can fill. When that one Democrat is given the nod, he or she will take on former Magistrate Leonard E. Motley, a Republican seeking a House seat from the 32nd Representative District. Joshua M. Twilley, chairman of the Democratic 32nd District, listed the five as Eugene G. Auen, Frances Ollweiler, Elizabeth Covin, Thos Murray and James McGinnis. According to Twilley, all have been approached and all have expressed an interest in running. Auen is a Dover realtor who has been moderately active in politics. He lives in Woodbrook. Murray was the state's chief custodian in the administration of the late Gov. Charles L. Terry Jr. He now buys army surplus jeeps and turns them

Rehoboth Residents Protest Sewer Rate

An angry citizen has charged that Rehoboth city commissioners are selling the citizens "down a river of effluence" in joining the LeCato Sewer District.

A contract for the sanitary sewer system and Rehoboth was finalized at a special meeting between the commissioners and county officials a week ago Tuesday.

But several irate residents refused to give up the fight against LeCato and appeared at the monthly Board of Commissioners meeting Friday night for a shout-down with city officials.

Rehoboth citizens who now pay no specific sewer charge or use fee in addition to city taxes, firmly objected to a $51 annual charge to each family and the overall cost to Rehoboth.

Objections were also raised against ocean outfall for the sewage. The LeCato system was derided as useless because private systems would continue to operate, dumping raw or slightly treated sewage into canals.

The contract made Tuesday was defended by Commissioner Charles I. Carpenter, who said it was signed under pressure from the state and county.

The annual charge to each family was reduced to $27, Carpenter said, and the overall cost to Rehoboth was brought into line with charges to Dewey Beach and Lewes. An annual review of costs between city and county was also written into the contract, he added.

In addition, private sewer systems will not continue to operate, according to Commissioner Edward V. Lower.

Lower, who fought against LeCato, said he had made sure the deal includes all unincorporated areas. The contract stipulates that within two months after the first 50 houses are hooked to the into dune buggies. Mrs. Ollweiler was active in when she ran for a House seat. Mrs. Twilley was beaten in a primary by Julius Tudor, who was, in turn, defeated by W. Neal Moerschel.

It is Moerschel's House seat one of the five Democrats hopes to win. Mrs. Ollweiler was also active in Emily Womach's campaign for the gubernatorial nomination, and she was an alternate delegate at the Democratic National Convention.

Mrs. Covin also campaigned for Mrs. Womach and she also was a delegate in Miami She has been active as a Young Democrat.

McGinnis is a former state representative and state senator.

A resident of Moore's Lake, he owns the McGinnis grocery stores that dot Kent County.

Twilley said he is not going to call a committee meeting until after the Aug. 19 primary.

Twilley said some committee people now have their minds preoccupied with a primary that pits Bernard "Reds" Bruner against Jacob W. Zimmerman. Both are running for the 17th Senatorial District seat.

system all other developed areas will be compelled to join as the lines go by their property.

The ocean outfall, Carpenter told protesters, is not yet a certainty and the fight against it will go on.

Rehoboth will continue to use its present water and sewer facilities for five years, according to City Manager Bayard V. Coulter. During that time, the city has agreed to service Dewey Beach for $11,000 a year plus expenses, maintenance and a per gallon charge.

Protesting residents at Friday night's meeting continue to insist that the sewer question should have been taken to the people in a referendum, where they could have opted to upgrade their own facilities.

The commission, however, maintained that upgrading is not possible when the state and county have taken a stand in favor of sewer districts.

"You can't win in a game where they make the rules," Carpenter said.

If continued, Rehoboth's system would be required to release effluent that was 97 per cent pure, he said. The city would also be refused state and federal funds for sewer projects.

According to Mayor Lester F. Johnson, the city is already under a requirement to provide tertiary treatment by 1972. But because it has joined the LeCato system and agreed to service Dewey Beach in the meantime, that requirement will be suspended.

The planned LeCato sewage treatment program includes Dewey Beach, Rehoboth, Midway, Lewes and Cape Henlopen State Park. Since negotiations have been underway with these areas, Henlopen Acres has asked to be included. Milton is also currently studying that avenue.

Roth Speaks on Disaster Relief

Senator Bill Roth (R-Del) took the floor in the Senate recently to support legislation introduced by Sen. Robert Taft (R-Ohio), offering equitable standards for disaster relief provisions in the Federal Government.

Using the $5 million crop damage suffered by Delaware farmers as a result of Hurricane Agnes as his example, Roth cited a gross inequity existing in the current law. "Because these good people, and many like them in other states, were on the periphery of the storm's path, they are not eligible for the same protection as the others who live and work within the limits of the Presidentially declared areas." Criticizing the current system as being "two-tiered," Roth said, "A family whose livelihood is severely damaged albeit from only a locally harmful storm, suffers no less than a family several miles away which receives the mantle of government protection under Presidential declaration."

For these reasons, the senator urged that amendments to existing law start with one which will make benefits uniform, regardless of how the disaster is categorized...and provide uniform SBA and FHA grants and loans to anyone who has been injured by a natural disaster which is recognized by an agency of the federal government.

The senator endorsed a provision which provided that all individuals, regardless of their personal wealth, will become eligible for a grant of $5,000 (twice the current amount)...none of which need be repaid if the recipient's $10,000 (for every $1000 income in excess of $10,000) per cent of the money will have to be repaid. This provision carried in the Senate. However, Roth cautioned against arbitrarily distributing dollars without first ascertaining the individual's need and the validity of his claim, saying "It seems totally illogical to me that the committee chose to apply no means test whatsoever to prospective applicants for SBA or FHA loans. I dare say few members here would support a similar clause in Welfare legislation, for example."

Roth criticized the current controversial retroactivity clauses, pointing out that the argument for Jan. 1, 1971, has no more logical validity, in his opinion, than any arbitrary date determined by lottery. Chastising committee members who have looked retrospectively for dates which would provide more generous benefits to their constituents, the senator remarked, "If we do not stick to the current disasters and shape our legislation prospectively, then why not go back to Hurricane Celia in Texas during 1970...the Cleveland windstorm of 1969...or the San Francisco earthquake of 1906? Instead, he suggested we could "be compassionate in helping recent victims without being reckless in our largess."

The Delaware senator offered his sponsorship to Sen. Taft's amendment.

Roth Boosts Water Bill

The office of Sen. Bill Roth announced Aug. 3, that the Environmental Financing Act, which the senator recently co-sponsored with Sen. John Cooper, (R-Ky.), was accepted into the Water Quality Bill by the House-Senate Conferees of that bill. The Water Quality Bill was passed by the Senate in 1971; since that time, however, the House version of the bill has incorporated into it the Environmental Financing Act. This provision amends the current Senate legislation, which provides for municipalities to be granted 75 per cent of the cost of waste treatment facilities by the Federal government. If the municipalities are unable to raise the remaining 25 per cent through the sale of bonds at a reasonable rate, this provision will allow EPA to purchase the remaining obligation of the municipalities. The Delaware senator commented, "I feel this provision will go a long way towards making our clean-water goals a reality."

Daniel S. Kuennen, 26, Georgetown, has been named rural community resource development extension agent for Kent and Sussex counties. The appointment was effective Aug. 1, according to Dr. Samuel M. Gwinn, director of the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Delaware.

Troopers to Try 4-Day Week

Troopers at Troop 3, Camden, and Troop 4, Georgetown, will be the first in the state to go on a four-day week, according to Col. George J. Bundick, acting secretary of public safety.

He said the four-day week is being tested in an effort to increase the manpower for patrol during peak traffic hours. He said emphasis by the increased patrols will be given to the strict enforcement of traffic safety laws.

Troopers at Troop 3, who patrol Kent County from Smyrna south to Milford and Felton, will begin working 10 hours a day, four days a week Monday. Those at Troop 4, who patrol central Sussex County from Milford south to Selbyville, will begin the new work week Monday.

"With the number of special programs, such as drug control, auto theft, task forces and preventive action patrols, we have not been able to increase our routine highway patrols as much as we would like," Bundick explained. "By working our troopers 10 hours a day, four days a week, we will be able to have overlapping shifts resulting in double patrols on duty during the peak hours of 7 a.m. to 9 a.m.; 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.; and 11 p.m. to 1 a.m."

"If the patrol advantages are achieved as we expect at these troops, the four-day concept will be implemented at the other troops as manpower and circumstances permit," concluded Bundick.

Calves rustled near Harrington

State police reported a case of cattle rustling near here over the weekend.

Sometime between 8 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. Saturday, police said, someone removed eight one-month-old Holstein calves from a pen at the south edge of Kent 289 two miles north of here.

The animals belonged to John Curtis of near Harrington, and are valued at $50 each.

'Intolerable'

It is a well known phenomenon, dear to trial lawyers, that juries tend to favor individual claims against corporations for damages. It is in this spirit that we express approval of a Maryland Court of Appeals ruling in the case of a loan firm which harassed a woman to collect a $375 loan made to her husband. The court upheld a $9,000 suit on the loan company. This is a gratifying affirmation of the right of privacy.

Some may think that failure to repay the loan should have deprived the family of its normal right to privacy. This notion does not hold up under examination. Firms seeking payment of bad debts have recourse to the law: they can take the matter into the courts, where it can be adjusted in an atmosphere of dignity and relative calm. Nothing justifies the succession of threatening and profane calls which the plaintive testified she received from the loan company. The court properly ruled that this is intolerable.

Pete and Dave Fracas Will Highlight Saturday Primary

By Carrington H. Burgess

A contest for the Republican nomination for governor will foment the most exciting primary election Saturday in the memory of this writer.

Gov. Russell W. Peterson will come to grips with Dave Buckson, former attorney general and former lieutenant governor. In fact, the fighting banty was governor for a short spell when Gov. Boggs resigned to serve as United States senator.

The gubernatorial contest came to a peak when, for the first time, statewide and national candidates had an opportunity to participate in a primary once they secured a certain percentage of delegates at the party conventions. Buckson achieved the honor by getting the votes of 81 delegates.

Otherwise, Saturday's primary, at least as far as Kent County is concerned, will not be particularly exciting.

Other Republican contests in the middle county, are as follows:

The only other countywide contest, other than the tussle for governor, sees Dave Bonar and Fran Cumins vying for prothonotary, one of the most desirable of courthouse plums.

The only battle for representative sees Herbert D. Cluley Jr. pitted against Richard Wright in the 34th Representative District. A similar contest was also slated for the 32nd when the incumbent, W. Neil Moerschel, filed against Leonard Motley, erstwhile magistrate, a member of the Buckson faction. However, Moerschel dropped out of the race when he was appointed an administrative assistant by U.S. Sen. Bill Roth.

There is but one contest for levy court commissioner, with Lawrence C. Ellery Sr. coming to grips with S.D. LaShomb in the 30th Representative District.

The Democrats got most of their ducks in a row, but not quite. They will have no countywide contests. The closest thing to it in a contest for senator in the 17th senatorial district between Jake Zimmerman, potato farmer and former representative and former candidate for U.S. senator, and Bernard A. (Reds) Bruner, ambitious Dover real estate man.

For levy court commissioner on the 34th district, Mrs. Billie Bogus, of Briar Park, will battle Samuel Thomas.

The biggest battle of interest in this section will be a contest for representative in the 35th district when Marvin Seeney, Whitelysburg farmer and electrician, competes with Ronald L. Darling, Willow Grove farmer on his maiden voyage.

Persons in local election districts can vote in the firehouse or schoolhouse. Voting hours are from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

This does not necessarily indicate a growing "anti-union" bias in America. On the contrary, it could mean that unionism has proved itself and has won its biggest fight and that in a time of inflation coupled with high unemployment and especially in the face of rising foreign competition, more and more people are coming to believe there must be a better way to solve labor disputes and achieve economic gains than through strikes.

Lake Forest Band Boosters Hold Meeting

The Lake Forest Band Boosters got off to a running start Tuesday evening when they met with Donald Claycomb, the new band and music instructor at Lake Forest High School.

Mr. Claycomb outlined his plans to make the Spartan Marching Band the "best high school band in the state". He is counting on the support of the Boosters to help his prediction come true.

Roland Neeman, president of the group introduced Mr. Claycomb to the parents who were present. He expressed the hope that by the first regularly scheduled meeting of the Booster on Monday evening, Sept. 25, there can be a 100 per cent enrollment of band families in the organization. To this end, he appointed Mrs. William Newnom of Harrington, to assist him in the membership drive. Dues for each family are $100.

Claycomb reminded the parents that they are cordially invited to come to the band rehearsals which are being held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evening in the back of the high school to watch their progress. The public is also invited to attend.

His plans for becoming the best in the state will include concentration on precision drill and a re-instrumentation of the band to go with the new marching music which is being written for today's bands. He is very enthusiastic over the prospects of the band and the interest the band members have shown in his ideas. Practices will continue during the month to prepare for the football games and parades which are on the schedule for the fall.

Enrollment of New Students

New students who will attend Lake Forest High School next month are urged to register before Aug. 31 at the high-school office from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m., advises Jack Grimm the guidance counsellor.

Students are requested to call the office (294-9291) prior to coming in to register. New students will not be registered the first school day.

Strikes Losing Support

Most Americans -- including a large majority of union members themselves -- feel that strikes and labor disputes have seriously hurt the country.

This war the major finding of a recent survey by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J. The survey cutting across population subgroups (age, race, region, education, etc.) was one of a continuing series of inquiries into public thinking on unions and labor legislation sponsored by the Labor Law Study Committee.

In this latest survey, a key question was: "In your opinion have recent strikes and labor trouble seriously hurt the country as a whole, or haven't they had that much effect?"

Of the general public, 68 per cent said that strikes have hurt, 20 per cent believed that they have not and 12 per cent had no opinion. Among union members, 61 per cent felt that strikes have hurt.

The Labor Law Study Committee notes that at each interval since this question was first asked in 1967, there been increases in the proportion of people who feel that strikes are harmful. The 68 per cent figure represents a 40 per cent increase since 1970.

This does not necessarily indicate a growing "anti-union" bias in America. On the contrary, it could mean that unionism has proved itself and has won its biggest fight and that in a time of inflation coupled with high unemployment and especially in the face of rising foreign competition, more and more people are coming to believe there must be a better way to solve labor disputes and achieve economic gains than through strikes.

KENT COUNTY CURRENTS

by JOSHUA M. TWILLEY Levy Court President

Joshua M. Twilley, President

Today, I'd like to turn the spotlight in Kent County on the functions and responsibilities of the recorder of deed's office, and the services it provides for the public.

Mr. Joe Rawlins, the recorder of deeds for Kent County is an elected official. Elected by the people at the general election in 1970, for a four year term.

One of the primary functions of this office is indexing and recording all legal documents pertaining to land, for example: deeds; mortgages; contracts for the conveyance of property.

There are also many other documents recorded in this office, for example, certificates of incorporation; amendments to corporate charters of corporations; changes in location of the main office; and certificates dissolving or merging corporations.

Q.—I was separated from active duty several years ago. When will my GI Bill entitlement expire?

A.—Assuming you are otherwise eligible and were released from active duty after Jan. 31, 1955, you have eight years to use your GI Bill benefits or until May 31, 1974, whichever is later.

Q.—Can the lender who gave me my GI home loan legally raise the interest rate on my balance?

No.—VA regulations do not permit interest rates to be increased above the contract rate agreed upon when the loan was made to the veteran.

ments pertaining to sales, partnerships, oaths of office of the elected and appointed Kent County officials and the discharge papers of all military personnel.

All of these papers are lodged in the recorders office and when filed are noted with the day, month and year, and in some cases the hour and minute. Each of these documents are indexed, filed and certified by the recorder, and each document is referenced as to book and page.

With the exception of military discharges, there is a small fee for these recording services, and certified copies of all documents are available at very little cost.

The recorders of deeds office has records dating back as far as 1680. A majority of these old and valuable records are kept in the state archives for safekeeping, and photocopies kept on file here in the courthouse.

I have listed just some of the duties and responsibilities of this office, and as you can see, the recorder of deeds office is one of the busiest in the court house.

Middletown Stable Owner Dies at 77

Guy C. Lockerman Sr., 77, a Maryland sharecropper's son who built a harness racing business on his farming success, died last Thursday at St. Francis Hospital, Wilmington, after a long illness.

Mr. Lockerman lived on Levels Road near Middletown. He was born at Warwick, Md. In an interview several years ago, he told how he borrowed enough money to start a farm.

By the mid-1960s, he owned 720 acres near Middletown.

He got into the harness racing in the early fifties when he bought a half-interest in his first horse. His Sunset View Stables was "terrible in the beginning," he said. "I didn't know a good horse from a bad one, and we had a heck of a time. It was only three years ago (1961) that we first broke even."

His wife, Mrs. Minne E. Lockerman, died in January, 1970.

Surviving are four sons, William of Gainesville, Fla.; Guy C. Jr., of Townsend and Willard and Paul, both of Middletown; three daughters, Mrs. Samuel Sahadi of Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. Lawrence Jester and Mrs. Stan Wolinski, both of Middletown; 18 grandchildren, and a brother, Arthur, of Warwick.

Services were held Sunday afternoon at the Mears Funeral Home, Middletown. Burial was in Old St. Anne's Cemetery.

Let's Not Kid Ourselves. The Issue is Oil

The Peterson-Bookhammer Team has accomplished many things, but none as important as protecting our valuable coastline. They have had the courage to stand up against the powerful oil interests and tell them to stay out. Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

SENIOR CITIZENS (Companionship)

He was seventy come next spring they say, And he lived all alone in one room.

He lived in the past, looked back o'er the years When youth in its glory held sway,

Would they ever return, he'd oft say to himself Must I always just sit in such gloom.

But one day while strolling out under the trees He met an old lady he knew,

They talked for a while, "day dreams" they compared And it looked as though God had some say,

Days Of Our Years

Ten Years Ago

Fri., Aug. 17, 1962

Mrs. Nellie J. Smith, 89, widow of William J. Smith, Weiner Avenue, Harrington, died Sunday in Kent General Hospital, Dover.

A defective muffler apparently caused the death Monday of Thornlee Tilghman, a 34-year-old farm worker, of near Harrington.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Moore and son, Doug, attended the Minner family reunion at Trappe Pond last Sunday.

Chuck Peek is the guest of Jack Hopkins at Dewey Beach this week.

The Rev. David Phillips and Mrs. Phillips, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Jackson Esham and son, Bridgeville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hartman Hynson, of Dover, and relatives in Harrington.

Mrs. Gladys Mack, of Dover, visited Mr. and Mrs. Howard Horn Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hill are receiving congratulations on the birth of their first child a boy, Benjamin Malcolm, born Aug. 8 in Milford Memorial Hospital.

The Rev. John R. Symonds Jr., former rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church here, spent several days here.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clendenen spent last weekend with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Subashi, in Staten Island, N.Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Spence Windell, of Lionville, Pa., spent Sunday with Miss Jennie Morris.

Sherry Wisneski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Wisneski, celebrated her first birthday Friday.

Ralph E. Bankert Jr., of Morristown, N. J., was a weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Brown.

William H. Westbrook

William H. Westbrook, 60, a Harrington area race horse owner and trainer, died Sunday at Milford Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Mr. Westbrook was born in Dorchester County, Md. He had been employed as a construction worker in Pennsylvania and as a blacksmith in Harrington.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Charlotte Lanza Westbrook; two sons, W. Donald Marcus Hook, Pa., and Carl W., at home; a daughter, Mrs. Faye Johnson, Wilmington; five stepsons, Glen, Christopher and Carlton, all of New Haven, Conn., Fred Cacace, with the Navy at Norfolk, Va., and David, Harrington; two sisters, Mrs. Lydia J. Nichols, Cambridge, Md., and Miss Grace M. Westbrook, Washington, D.C.; four grandchildren; and a stepgrandchild.

Services were held yesterday afternoon at the LeCompte Funeral Home, Cambridge, Md., with interment in the family plot at Greenlawn Cemetery, near Cambridge.

Cross-Country at Lake Forest Starts August 25th

Cross Country, the most successful sport at Lake Forest on a percentage basis, will start practice at 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 25.

Jim Blades, a former harrier at West Chester State (Pa.) is the new head coach replacing the retired Harold McDonald. The latter was Delaware's dean of cross country coaches, having headed lower Delaware's first team in 1958.

Blades coached cross country at W. T. Chipman School (7th and 8th grades) for three years and was undefeated over that span, knocking off many older teams in the process.

Prospects are bright for another winning season, although the team is a very young one with only one senior and one junior among the probable key performers.

At present it appears that five runners are in contention for the coveted number one ranking.

Benjamin Emory Sr. is ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence Minner. Mr. and Mrs. C.D. Lightcap, of Wilmington, were guests of the latter's mother, Mrs. Lois Derrickson, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Matthews are busy these days buying and preparing food for their 12-foot deep freezer won at the Fireman's Carnival in July.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rapp and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Yoder and son, Terry, spent Sunday at Riverview Beach, N.J.

Miss Pearl Sapp, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Sapp, of Harrington, and Harvey Dill, son of Mrs. Laura Dill and the late Bates Dill, were married Monday evening at Greensboro, Md., by the Rev. Grayson H. Wheatley.

Frank Culver and Mrs. Claude Culver, Mrs. Betty Penniwell and Mrs. Jennie Culver visited Dallas Culver at the Veterans Hospital, Elsmere, Thursday. Culver was injured in an automobile accident.

Mr. and Mrs. John G. Parks returned Sunday from a week visiting Mr. and Mrs. P.B. Parks and E.W. Shackelford, of Durham, N.C.

Marvells-Jackie Reese and Johnnie Hardie spent the weekend with their grandmother, Mrs. Nettie Minner. Eggs are very scarce. What few are available bring 60 cents to 65 cents per dozen.

Ellendale - Miss Jeanette Willey, of Rehoboth, and Franklin Rifenburg, of Norfolk, Va., visited Mr. and Mrs. Horace Willey Saturday and Sunday.

Enoch S. Richards, 79, a retired ammunition salesman and former state trapshooting champion, died at his home here Tuesday morning.

Ron Mosely, a junior, won last campaign, as a rookie. In track, he came into his own and replaced Bowers, as the Spartans' best in the one mile run. This makes him a contender for the No. 1 ranking.

The fifth harrier with a chance to be No. 1, is the squad's veteran, senior Jackie D. Parker. He was a state junior varsity champion at age 12, had an off year because of injury and sickness, then was a key man on the 1969 taste championship team.

Freshman Howard Parker, Jackie's brother is finally old enough to be on the varsity. This writer has anticipated this campaign for five years since Howard showed great promise as a distance runner at age eight.

It is not at all amazing that when the tomato reached England in 1596, it was immediately planted among the flowers and herbs.

We have named six top Spartans so far. Yet, there are two left, who we fully expect to be in the top seven, meaning one of the first six will have to go.

Rick Wright from Vernon, has speed and endurance. When he makes up his mind to run, he is extremely hard to beat.

Harry Benson reached 14 last week. Harry was 12-13 Delaware Junior Olympic mile champion last summer in record time (5.18) in his first mile ever.

Other really fine distance men, who would be higher ranked on other Delaware teams are Jim Guyton, Barry Doherty, Howard Kaskey, Kit Tillman, Wayne Voshell, Kim O'Toole, Lester Blades, Ron Berry.

Experienced harriers who may or may not return are Dave Williamson, Rudy Bordley and Rick Sullivan. All have shown flashes of brilliance in the past and have enough ability to make heads roll, if they want this to happen bad enough.

Reggie Guinn, a track sprinter, could surprise. Tall basketball player, Randy Clark, a transfer student from Arizona, is an unknown quantity, at present. There are many other candidates who we will mention later. Three bearing mention now are Lake Forest pioneers.

Football Practice Starts At Lake Forest

Al Wood's Lake Forest Spartans will start football practice, on Friday, in preparation for an early September opening, against Coach Bill Muehleisen's Cape Henlopen Vikings.

Wood used to be Muehleisen's assistant coach, when Bill was here. The Spartans upset the Vikings at Lewes in 1971, and will be happy to repeat on the Harrington gridiron.

We are planning to attend the first practice and hope to get a list of candidates at that time.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

Whether used whole or in the form of juice, tomatoes are the easiest of all vegetables to can at home. Buy them in quantity now that they are at the peak of their season.

The Romans had taught all Gaul and Britannia to eat those vegetables known to the ancient world. After the fall of Rome, gardening was just one more of the skills lost during the Dark Ages.

Then America was discovered and with it some of the world's most valuable vegetables. Tomatoes were first mentioned by Matthiolus in 1554, who called them "golden apples."

Today we can buy fresh tomatoes year round but to truly enjoy them at their best use them now. Tomatoes that are vine ripened are now at their peak of supply here in Delaware.

Good quality tomatoes are mature, firm but not over ripe, and fairly well formed. They should be plump and smooth with a good rich color and free from blemishes.

The importance of size and shape depends on how the tomatoes are to be used. Uni-

John Nickle, 11, Leads Locals In Dover Track Meet

John Nickle, a 11-year-old Fleming Street lad, continues to impress as a prospect in the running sports.

At Dover, in the last meet of the summer, age-group program, John swept the 100, 220, and 440 yard dashes.

Fresh tomatoes with a slightly greenish tinge will ripen in a day or two at room temperature (60 - 70 degrees F). Direct light is not needed to produce good red color - the reverse is actually true - sunlight causes uneven and blotchy color.

Besides being delicious tomatoes are a good source of Vitamin C. One good-sized vine ripened tomato will give us about half our day's quota of Vitamin C as well as a generous amount of Vitamin A.

Whether used whole or in the form of juice, tomatoes are the easiest of all vegetables to can at home.

Censorship?

A metropolitan Detroit newspaper has announced that it will no longer carry ads for X-rated movies.

Under Michigan law it is not illegal to show X-rated movies. There are all kinds of people in the world with varied tastes.

In 1919 the United States government tried to make a moral judgment about the consumption of alcoholic beverages.

sumption of alcoholic beverages. Fourteen years later it found that you can't legislate tastes or morals, and Prohibition had made drinkers out of some nondrinkers.

The newspaper is the greatest single source of communication with the public about what the theaters are showing and when it is shown.

If the Detroit paper refused to carry ads that are not in keeping with the other ads in the paper, as many newspapers do, it would not be foreclosing theatre owners from communication with the public.

You might not like X-rated films and I might not like X-rated films, but that is a matter of taste.

If the same newspaper were told by a federal agency that it could not carry X-rated film advertising it would scream about the violation of the First amendment and freedom of the press, as radio and television did about banning cigarette advertising.

But, if the newspaper arbitrarily, without first reviewing each individual picture, refuse to allow a certain classification of advertising to appear in the paper, it should not be allowed the First Amendment defenses if someone else tells them what can go in the paper.

Refusal to carry ads as a matter of policy is a form of censorship.

Censorship is usually practiced by those who don't trust people's judgment.

Proper tree care will help to insure longevity of the trees in your landscape. As I have mentioned before, trees around your home should not be taken for granted. They are living organisms and require a certain amount of maintenance and care to survive the unnatural environment in which many are placed.

We do, in fact, place many of our trees under a stress because of the location of the planting arrangements used around many homesites. Many people wonder why forest trees seem to grow with very few problems, and the few trees they may have around their home seem to do very poorly and have all the problems in the world. Of course, forest trees do quite often have diseases and insect problems; however, the balance of nature seems to fill in.

Now that we have established that most trees around the home are not growing in their natural environment, maintenance and care is certainly a necessity to maintain them. The care of your landscape trees may vary somewhat with the individual species, but generally they will be the same. Fertilization should be done once a year, or at least every two years. Fertilization should be done in the months of January, February, or early March.

Pruning out dead limbs and branches should be a part of your regular tree maintenance program. However, the older trees of maples, oaks, etc. may be very difficult to keep maintained. Keeping the dead wood pruned out is extremely important with most maple species. They are subject to verticillium wilt disease, for which there is no cure. But, keeping the dead wood pruned out slows down the spread of the disease in the tree, and with proper maintenance, trees infested with this disease may continue to live for many years.

When pruning dead branches, it is always best to sterilize the pruning tools between each cut, because it can spread the disease throughout the tree. Especially disinfect pruning tools when transferring to another tree.

The symptoms of verticillium wilt are an occasional dying branch or branches of your tree. The leaves on infected branches will wilt; subsequently, the branch will not give any further growth. Generally, the disease does not immediately kill the entire tree. However, over a number of years of branches dying like this, the entire tree will die.

Maples have a few other problems that should be cared for, once detected, and these are foliage diseases such as anthracnose and phylosticta spot, commonly known as "frog eye." These leaf diseases generally will not kill your tree. Control for leaf diseases would have to be started in early spring.

Most maples have an insignificant amount of insect problems. In some cases Japanese beetles, aphids, and leaf hoppers may build up in populations that would warrant control.

Let's just talk a few minutes about another very important tree species in your landscape -- dogwoods. Dogwoods should be fertilized as I have mentioned earlier, with dead and diseased branches pruned out regularly. Generally, dogwoods are disease free however, they are susceptible to some leaf fungus diseases and stem and trunk cankers. One good way to prevent trunk cankers is to keep your lawnmower away from the base of the tree.

The only regular control measure that should be taken with dogwoods is for the dogwood borer. This insect bores into the trunk, usually near the soil line, and the damage can be fatal to the tree.

Your Kent County Cooperative extension Office has bulletins and information on the control of all the diseases and insects infecting your landscape trees. For copies of these bulletins, call 736-1448. Any specific problems will be answered by your County Agent at that time.

Plaids are big fashion news for fall. Some of them are so beautiful that it is easy to buy without fully realizing the problems involved in cutting and matching. Some plaids require much more thought and planning than others.

The easiest plaid to work with is the "even" or balanced plaid. This has the same design on both sides of a center stripe, both crosswise and lengthwise. To determine if the plaid is even or uneven, fold the fabric at the center of any repeat of the design both lengthwise and crosswise. If the spaces and colors overlap exactly, it is a balanced plaid.

An unbalanced plaid may be uneven vertically, horizontally or in both directions. If the unbalanced plaid is the same on the wrong side, it is possible to reverse the fabric for easier matching. Fabrics with a twill weave (most wools), a napped surface, or a printed design will show a definite wrong side.

You may need extra fabric for matching an uneven plaid because all the tops of the pattern pieces must be cut in the same direction. Follow yardage requirements and layout guide for "fabric with nap." If the plaid has a large repeat, extra yardage may be needed for an even plaid, too. This will vary, but one guide is to allow at least one extra repeat for each fabric length you cut.

Choosing the right style for your fabric is most important. Show off the beauty of the fabric with a simple design. Few seam lines mean fewer matching problems. Diagonal darts or diagonal seaming will distort the plaid. Curved or eased seams, or seams which join but are cut on a different slant rarely match exactly.

Match the plaid at the most obvious seams. This usually means matching from the hemline up. Plan for a specific lengthwise line for the center of the body both front and back. This vertical stripe should match through skirt, bodice, collar. A bold crosswise stripe will call attention to that part of the figure. Be careful where you place it! If your pattern has set-in sleeves, the same crosswise stripe should circle the body at the armhole notches.

When pinning paper to fabric, use the notches on the pattern as your matching guides. Line up corresponding notches on the same fabric stripe. However, matching should be planned for stitching lines rather than cutting lines.

Plaids on the bias can be used for interesting effects, but this is usually more satisfactory with an even plaid.

Each plaid problem is different, depending on the fabric, your pattern and your figure. Plaids can be fun if you enjoy the planning required, but if your time and patience are limited, better stick to the small check or a plain fabric.

Agriculture is Working to Improve the Environment

Farmers are ecologists in the truest sense of the word. This is important in light of the growing concern about pollution and its effect on the environment, according to Dr. William E. McDaniel, dean of the College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware.

Speaking at the 16th annual Sussex County Service Club award ceremonies Aug. 8, at the University's Georgetown Substation, he said farmers have to be concerned with maintaining a healthy environment, if their crops and livestock are to produce products of high quality in an efficient manner.

Farmers are also conservationists, said McDaniel. They are interested in preventing soil from being washed or blown away. They want to hold and maintain the soil and preserve water as productive resources.

However, in farming, the possibility does exist that streams may be polluted by animal wastes and runoff which may carry chemicals used for fertilizer or pesticides. Delaware farmers are becoming more aware of this and are increasingly taking steps to prevent pollution, he added.

Scientists at the University of Delaware and other agricultural experiment stations are conducting research that will supply agricultural producers and processors with the necessary information to control pollution. McDaniel said projects at the Georgetown farm in Newark have been designed to improve the method of recycling animal wastes, seek biological means of insect and weed control and to test no-tillage farming.

Farmers and the agricultural realize that in the next few years laws and regulations, developed to clean up the environment, will require adjustments, according to the Dean.

He said some of those adjustments will be expensive. Agricultural producers and processors will attempt to absorb the costs by increasing the efficiency of production and marketing. However, consumers must be ready to bear a portion of the costs.

Letting Children Help

How many times have you heard, "Mommy, I want to help," or "Let me do that?" Most children enjoy having a chance to help with household chores.

And, if you allow your children to help, you're giving them a sense of importance. You're also helping them realize their responsibilities as a part of the family group, according to Miss Mary Ann Finch, extension family life specialist at the University of Delaware.

But remember, even though they want to help, small children usually try to tackle jobs which are too hard for them. Also, older children often bicker about what job goes to which child, or who has the better job. So your guidance becomes necessary.

When a small fry attempts a job that's too hard for him and fails, he may feel unhappy with himself and not want to try new things again. To avoid this, take the time to help him learn by doing so your child receives a feeling of accomplishment and success. And he learns more, than just the job at hand, says Miss Finch.

For instance, a small one can help sort laundry by learning to match things which are alike. He'll be learning to compare sizes, colors and shapes -- putting green socks together, towels in one place, sorting his shirts and daddy's shirts.

While he's handing you clothes to pin on the line, he can be learning to count -- or learning about numbers. He's helping, and he's also learning -- with a little help from Mom.

Children should learn to set the table with little confusion if you take the time to draw a diagram and put it near the table. Then your youngster can see where the napkin, fork or glass goes when he forgets.

You can help your child learn and grow in self-confidence and satisfaction with just a few minutes spent ahead of time.

You can solve the bickering problem by using "chore cards". Have recipe cards for each major job and let the children draw for their job. And remember, those hard jobs may need help. There'll still be times when things just won't turn out right or one child can't do his job. But these can be learning experiences too, if you can take the time to help.

The most important part of letting children help is giving them genuine praise for a job well done, Miss Finch reminds. Of course, thank them for the extra jobs they do without asking. Praise and thanks can encourage your child to work even harder to learn and also give him a good satisfied feeling within himself.

Condemnations Meeting Program Announced

Members of the program committee for the '72 Meeting On Poultry Condemnations have put together the most varied array of topics in the history of this annual event," said Harry Palmer, president of the Delmarva Poultry Industry, in commenting about the October 17-18 conference dealing with the problems related to the federal inspection of poultry for wholesomeness.

The opening day will focus attention on poultry diseases related to condemnations, including, Asiatic Newcastle, Infectious Bronchitis, Necrotic Dermatitis, Marek's Disease and Mycoplasmosis. Fourteen research workers and other well known authorities from universities, government and the poultry industry will present papers on these diseases so costly to the nation's poultry industry.

During the second day, the program embraces "What's New In Processing" and "Feed Additives and Residues". Dr. Fred J. Fullerton, Acting Operations, Meat and Poultry Inspection Programs, APHIS, will set the stage for new things in processing by talking about "Government Regulations On Condemnations". His presentation will review the AQL Program with suggested guidelines disposition of contaminated carcasses and other matters of concern regarding these latest regulations. Bruises, blisters, new equipment and loading systems are other topics to be explored during this same session.

Representatives from FDA, USDA and the Animal Health Institute will speak at the final session. Dr. G. B. Guest, special assistant to the director, Bureau of Veterinary Medicine of the Food and Drug Administration, will review a recent FDA task force report on the use of drugs in animal feeds, compliance procedures and the use of selenium in poultry feeding. Residue surveillance, including a new sampling program, will be discussed by Dr. John Spaulding with USDA in Washington. The anchor man for the closing session will be A. Malcolm McVie, president-elect of the health institute. He will review industrywide trials on additives in feeds and residues in poultry.

Georgetown Girl Wins Feeder Pig Roundup

Debbie Hearn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hearn, Georgetown, won top honors for her hog in the 4-H Feeder Pig Roundup, July 31, at the Delaware State Fairgrounds, Harrington. Her medium-weight hog was grand champion of the show, and, in addition, she won second place in the fitting and showmanship competition.

Reserve champion feeder hog, which also took first place in the heavyweight division was raised by Mark Gordy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Gordy, Delmar.

Miss Hearn's grand champion hog was a 194-pound Hampshire gilt bred by Glen Jones, Smyrna. The reserve champion feeder hog was a 200-pound crossbred Hampshire-Yorkshire barrow bred by Clyde Bettson & Son, Milford.

First place for fitting and showmanship went to Philip Roach, Townsend. Miss Hearn placed second; Vickey Hearn, Georgetown, third; and Cheryl Keiffer, Wilmington, fourth.

In the lightweight division Miss Hearn placed first and second; Miss Keiffer, third; Jeffery Workman, Delmar, fourth; and Richard Comegys, Hartley, fifth.

Miss Hearn also placed first and second in the medium-weight division. Michael Everline, Harrington, was third; Workman, fourth; and Comegys, fifth.

In the heavyweight division, Mark Gordy's reserve champion hog placed first and Charles Conoway's entry, of Georgetown was second, way, of Georgetown, was third, with that of Rodney Comegys, of Hartley, fourth.

Nearly 60 hogs were entered in this year's round-up. The 4-H members in the project started with feeder pigs in early April and raised them until the animals were sold after the annual roundup.

The reserve champion hog sold for $40 per hundred-weight. The grand champion was not sold. Other hogs sold from $26.75 to $28.50 per cwt.

Science Class at Ferris School

The science class in the Summer school session at the Ferris School for Boys has a new twist this year that allows the students to have some fun while they learn the fundamentals of anatomy and nutrition.

"These boys have to go to class in the summer, so for a summer program, I wanted something they would enjoy," says Mrs. Beverly Howell, the school's science teacher.

Three days a week the 20 boys in Mrs. Howell's classes lift weights and the other two days are spent on the more academic side of the course in physiology.

"Actually, it all ties together. Weight lifting helps build a strong body but you must also get the proper food, the proper exercise and the proper rest. In nutrition we talk about the foods the body needs and what the body uses these foods for," says Mrs. Howell.

"The program is working out perfectly, too. When a person starts weight lifting, he's told to practice every other day instead of every day. This way we use the day in between for academic work," she adds.

The 8-week summer school session which started July 5 and runs until Aug. 24 is part of the total education program, both academic and vocational, offered to boys at the juvenile corrections residential facility.

As part of the physiology course, 16 boys will travel to York, Pa., Aug. 19 to watch the U. S. Olympic team weight lifting trials.

Then on Aug. 22, the boys enrolled in the course will compete in a weight lifting tournament at the school. Trophies will be awarded to the five division winners and the student who shows the most progress in the course will be named "Mr. Excelsior."

Two volunteers are helping Mrs. Howell with the weight lifting part of the course. Mrs. Howell's husband, Richard, and Detective Felix Poppit of the New Castle Police Force have visited the weight lifting sessions several times to demonstrate different lifts and to help the boys improve their skills.

Local Producers Will Benefit from U.S.-Russian Grain Sales

Feed grain and wheat producers in Delaware should benefit from the sale of $750 million worth of grain by the U.S. to Russia over the next three years, says Richard H. Lester, a leading farm official.

"The feed grain and wheat sales of our farmers make up a substantial part of the financial lifeblood of Delaware," said Lester. "And a sale of this magnitude will benefit every grain-producing area across the U.S."

The new grain sale to Russia will add substantially to U.S. farm exports which have been running at record levels. "In fact," adds Lester, chairman of the State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, "this sale alone will increase our grain exports about 17 per cent for each of the next three years."

The Soviet Union will have the option of purchasing wheat, corn, barley, grain sorghum, rye and oats from the U.S.

The State ASC Chairman emphasized that the export agreement will not be a giveaway program to Russia.

The grain purchase will be made through private U.S. grain traders. The U.S. Department of Agriculture will make available credit terms to the Soviets through the Commodity Credit Corp., at regular interest rates and terms. The total outstanding credit, not to exceed $500 million, is to be repaid in three annual installments.

This three-year trade agreement is the culmination of year-long negotiations by President Richard M. Nixon, Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, and other USDA officials with leaders in the USSR.

Lester explained that the agreement is part of the continuing goal of the U.S. Department of Agriculture to expand export opportunities for the U.S. farmers.

Lester stated he agreed with Secretary Butz when the Secretary said, "We want to at home and abroad and bring farmers more income from the marketplace."

The Soviet Union needs an increased feed supply in order to meet its commitment to increase the animal protein diets for the Russian people. Secretary Butz seemed to agree when he said, "The grain sale is mutually beneficial to both sides. The Soviet citizens will be able to eat better -- it will aid the U.S. balance of payments. And this will lay the groundwork for enlarging our over-all trade with the Soviet Union in peaceful commercial cooperation."

Canal to Have Fishing Piers

Nine new fishing piers will be constructed along the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal for the use of fishermen, according to Sen. J. Caleb Boggs (R., Del.). The Army Corps of Engineers will begin construction on the piers early next month. The piers will have wooden decks supported on timber piles and provide new fishing opportunities in the region.

At the same time, the Corps has agreed to construct a fire hydrant system in the vicinity of St. Georges.

Since St. Georges lacks a public water system, the community must rely on the canal water. The recent widening of as a source of fire-fighting the canal made pumping water far more difficult than before.

The new hydrant system -- a pipe leading into the canal through which water can be suctioned out -- should answer this need, providing greater fire protection to the citizens of the St. Georges area.

"This will give the Delaware City Fire Co. No. 1 the system it needs to continue its fine record of service," Boggs said in praise of the Corps decision to go forward with the construction of the hydrant system.

Completion of the two projects will take approximately seven months and cost more than $100,000. Only self-owned small business concerns, whose average annual receipts for the past three years have been less than $7.5 million, are eligible to bid.

Dairy Cattle Study Topic at Athens Conference

Dairymen may someday breed cattle to produce milk especially tailored for high-protein milk, cheese production or a low-fat content. In the future, breeding cattle according to their blood and milk type may produce herds that produce milk with selected desirable characteristics.

Cattle breeding by biochemical analysis appears to be the only sound approach to animal selection, according to Dr. John Zikakis, assistant professor of animal science at the University of Delaware. In a report to be delivered during a conference of the National Council of Scientific Research and Development, Aug. 27-Sept. 5, in Athens, Greece, Zikakis says blood and milk typing is the preferred approach to animal breeding because it is faster and more economical than the methods now used.

Zikakis and Dr. George Haenlein, assistant professor in the department of animal science and agricultural biochemistry, have typed the blood and milk of approximately 6000 first lactation Guernseys. These cows represented some 420 sires and 73 dairy herds in nine states.

The researchers have found there are significant differences in protein and fat content of milk produced by cows with different milk types. This characteristic may enable the dairy industry to select cows for either high protein or fat content in the milk without reducing production per cow.

The researchers also feel they may be able to predict the overall milk producing ability of calves by blood analysis. Thus, dairymen will no longer have to keep an animal at least three years to see if she will be an economical producer.

In his conference report, Zikakis concludes, "The biochemical genetics report to dairy cattle selection should not be limited to the dairy industry only. Equipped with this technology, we can select animals or plants with genetic make-up for high yields, resistance to disease, or other desirable characteristics."
