The Board of Education of the Lake Forest School District intends to clamp down on those persons who have not paid capitation taxes for 1969, 1970 and 1971, it was decided Monday night at the board's August meeting in the library of the high school.

A release from the board declared a list of delinquent payers of capitation tax would be published. Continuing, the release gave notice "that steps will now be taken to request employers of these delinquent taxpayers to attach their wages in behalf of the school district in the amount of capitation taxes past due, together with penalties as provided by Laws of Delaware."

In other business, the board accepted the low bid of Penn Dairies, Harrington, on dozen lots of ice cream sandwiches, Captain Crunch, vanilla and chocolate cones, nut sundaes at $2.80, seven cents below the next lowest bid by Abbott's Dairy.

Adopted budget of $632,237, forwarded by Dr. Howard Henry.

Accepted retirement request of Mrs. Alfred G.B. Mann.

Appointed Albert Lewis industrial art teacher at W.T. Chipman Junior School, and Robert Turner, teacher in the same capacity at the high school.

Appointed Phyllis Barros part-time psychologist; Mrs. Cecil Billings as 4th grade teacher at North Elementary School, Felton, and Gary Annett as vice principal for three years.

Bought two storage trailers for the high school at a total cost of $800.

Agreed to negotiate with area roofers after none appeared Monday in response for an advertisement for bids in replacing the roof of Lake Forest High School.

The first time the project was put up for bids, none appeared because they protested the use of coal tar. Specifications called for asphalt in the second request for bids.

A board member said two area roofers expressed an avid interest in the project, to replace a roof damaged by water, and would be contacted this week. The member said one prospect said he would replace the roof in 36 days.

Appointed Richard Saylor, of Dover, assistant principal at Lake Forest North Elementary School.

Employed personnel work in school cafeterias: Mrs. Gloria Dill, Felton; Mrs. Sharon DeLong, Felton; Mrs. Albert Price, Harrington; Mrs. Evelyn Warren, Felton, and Mrs. Margaret Ware.

Peterson Romps To Victory

Vowing to put his campaign on the offensive, Gov. Russell W. Peterson—with victory over David P. Buckson now behind him—has called for a debate against his Democratic opponent Sherman W. Tribbitt.

Only minutes after being assured by campaign workers that he had defeated Buckson in Saturday's Republican gubernatorial primary, Peterson issued the challenge for debates "whenever we can get together."

Peterson's victory by 4,057 votes was put together by turning out large numbers of Republican voters in the Brandywine-Christiana Hundred areas, where Peterson built up an insurmountable plurality.

Buckson carried Kent and Sussex counties, but by margins too small to give him a chance to beat the incumbent Peterson. He won Kent by 1,200 votes, Sussex by only 488.

Peterson built up a victory margin of nearly 6,000 votes in New Castle County.

Tribbitt, reached at a week end beach retreat, said he is "considering" Peterson's challenge.

"In politics," Tribbitt said, "the underdog always asks to debate. Buckson asked to debate and Peterson wouldn't. Now he wants to debate me. That must mean he thinks I'm ahead."

Tribbitt said that if he does debate the governor, the "format and topics will have to be worked out to our satisfaction."

Throughout the state, voter turnout was heavy with about 48 per cent of the state's 91,000 Republicans going to the polls. High turnout was considered essential for Peterson.

Peterson won 54½ per cent of the vote.

Although the Peterson victory could not be considered a landslide, he did win by a greater margin than many political observers had expected.

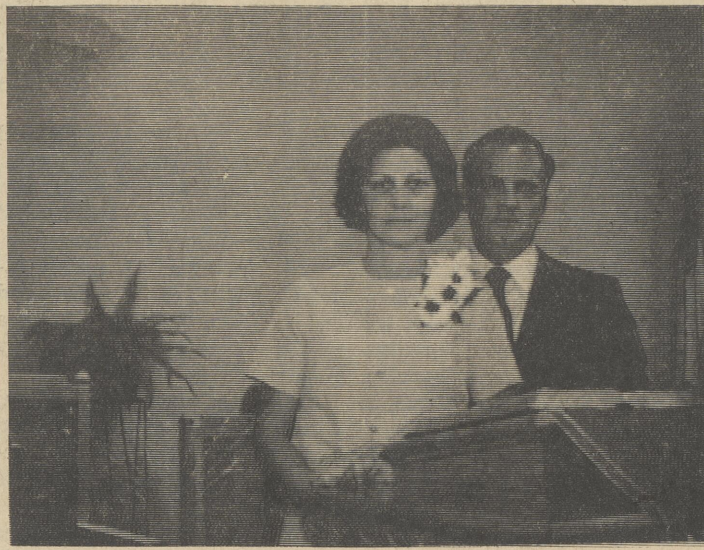

The big pluralities in the northern part of New Castle County, plus the closer-than-expected losses downstate were some indication that Peterson may be able to put the party back together in time for the general election in November.

Speaking at his campaign headquarters in Wilmington, Peterson said the Buckson forces "put up a tremendous fight." He said he wants them "on a united Republican team."

Buckson, however, said at his headquarters in Dover, "I will not" work for Peterson. He said his supporters are free to go their own way.

During the primary campaign, Peterson had waged a defensive campaign, relying mostly on his record during the past four years and on

POST OFFICE ANNOUNCES CHANGE IN DELIVERY

All of the area post offices will become part of area mail processing, an innovation of the U.S. postal service Sept. 16. Postmaster Howard Dill said last week.

The program is intended to speed the ultimate delivery of the mail and to gain maximum efficiency through centralization of mail processing activities at Wilmington, the local postmaster said.

Area mail processing is a plan whereby all mail originating at post offices in the Dover area will be consolidated at the Wilmington area mail processing center for complete preparation and processing for outgoing dispatch.

Area mail processing will be applicable primarily to that mail originating at post offices in the program destined for delivery outside the city of origin, in this case Harrington, Felton, Farmington, Houston, Frederica, Greenwood, Milford and many more of the local post offices.

The area mail processing center postmark will read "U.S. Postal Service DE 197," along with the date and AM-PM designation. The city postmark of Harrington, and other post offices in the program will not be changed.

Postmaster Dill urged customers should no longer use the word "City" on mail addressed for local delivery, but should spell out the name. He said because of the high degree of mechanization the use of Zip Code on all mail is extremely important.

City Council Approves Fire Co., Bank Parking Lot

A project for a parking lot, in the mill several months, was approved Monday night at a special meeting of the City Council.

After a spirited argument, Council agreed to accept the parking-lot plan as drawn up by the fire company.

The project will comprise the southwest corner of Mechanic and Fleming Streets and will encompass land between the firehouse and The First National Bank. The lot will be paid for by the fire company and the bank and will be open to the public.

The Council did not motion to pass the firemen's plan until near the end of the meeting of three and a half hours and after it (the Council) had made a trip to the lot formerly occupied by Jerred's Newsstand and Pitlick's Service Station. Originally, the lot was the site of the Clark family burying ground.

The argument over the lot was as follows: William Outten of the fire company committee, said, "We've had safety in mind. The bank and the fire company committees have worked on it."

Councilman John T. Satterfield, Fifth Ward, in which the lot is located, protested the inclusion of a sidewalk inside the lot instead of one at the periphery. He maintained that the backing of vehicles into the street from the lot would be a hazard.

Satterfield said he'd forget it if the state highway department traffic experts approved it. However, after the inspection of the lot, the Council unanimously approved the project.

In other business, Council heard two officials of the Farmers Home Administration of Newark.

William H. Poffenbarger, chief of the communications programs, and Louis Bangma, community program specialist, told the Council federal grants were available for sewer and water programs. The duo also studied the City's financial situation and the possibility of refinancing.

Rejected request of Mrs. Nellie Luff, Delaware Avenue, who wanted to use her well and pay the City's water rate instead of hooking up to the municipal system.

Rejected request for installation of a trailer 12 months on U.S. 13 in Harrington Manor.

Reviewed and approved street program, to begin which calls for blacktopping and curbing of Ward and Mill Streets and Hanley Street from Clark Street to Mispillion Street.

RAPE CHARGE SET AFTER AUTO CHASE

Two Maryland men were arrested in a high-speed chase near here Friday night, and one of them was charged with rape after police questioned a young female occupant of the car.

State and Harrington police said the girl, a 17-year-old from Wilmington, apparently was picked up while hitchhiking near State Road, south of Wilmington, then driven down-state and sexually assaulted on the way.

The girl was treated at Milford Memorial Hospital.

Police said the girl told them she was near the intersection of U.S. 13 and 40 about 6 p.m. Friday when the men offered her a ride. She said she wanted to go to Clement's Bus Stop, a short distance away.

About 10 p.m., Harrington officers said they saw the car on U.S. 13 near Harrington. They said they chased the car about 16 miles south on U.S. 13, finally stopping it with the aid of the state police.

In the car were the teenager, the driver, Joe D. Stewart, 37, and Francis Frederick, 23, both of Perryville Md., police said.

After the girl told police she had been raped the two men were arrested. Stewart was charged with drunk driving, failure to stop at police command, and operating with an invalid license. He was released after posting $7,500 bond.

Frederick was charged with rape. He was held without bail in Delaware Correctional Center near Smyrna.

Delaware Farm Family Featured on Voice of America
A Delaware farm family is a young farm wife, Sarah Webb says, "We had a wood stove and washed clothes on a washboard. In harvest time I'd have to get up maybe four o'clock in the morning and start preparing. And I had to cook for 27, three meals a day."
And then there was slopping the hogs, milking the cows, bottling the milk, etc.
Grandmother Webb never looks longingly back to a "simpler" day. Her grandson Francis says, "She's just as 'mod' as anyone you've ever seen. Her way of thinking is right up with the times."
The lot of the farmer and his wife seems easier today than when the Webb farm began. But as the Voice of America broadcast brought out, farmers still work hard. Francis Webb says, "I believe mental stress on a farmer is equivalent to the actual physical work required years ago. There are many, many more management decisions to make."
Three generations of Webbs operate their 2200 acre farm. Mrs. Sarah Webb, an 80-year-old matriarch, is, as she puts it, "silent partner." Working with her are her two sons, Tom and Bill, and two out of three grandsons. The third grandson, Francis, is Kent County agricultural agent for future and tries to convey the image of the modern U.S. farmer.
Mrs. Webb's parents began farming on the same site some 70 years ago with 100 acres. As Tom Webb says, "Farmers did things by hand then and couldn't cover as much ground." Those were horse and mule days, a far cry from the giant tractors scattered around the farm.
The life of a farm wife has changed, too. Today's modern farm home has all the conveniences of a suburban homemaker enjoys.
But back when she was

DAVE WOODWARD
ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

Have you ever had a cow that had more "personality" than any others in the herd? Or a horse that seemed to understand when you talked to him? Or a pig that figured out how to open a feed chute?

Such situations are evidence that animals have different degrees of intelligence or mentality, which intrigues animal scientists. And, as a study of the human mind is now a popular science, so is the study of the animal mind or animal psychology.

Animal psychology is not being studied merely for interest sake. It is an important factor for everyone who raises animals, especially in the large groups and under man-made conditions of today's farming. Livestock herds kept in close confinement indoors during a lifetime have new health and nutrition problems, and they also have a different "social" or "psychological" problems than they had under farming conditions of a couple decades ago.

The science of animal psychology is too new to give many answers to practical problems, but it is being approached in several different ways by scientists in all parts of the world.

First, before trying to "psych out" our cattle, hogs, sheep and poultry, we should take a basic look at the wild animals from which our domestic livestock have descended.

The physiological back-

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

The idea behind the creation of any garment is making a flat surface fit a curved object. Flat fabric is darted or seamed so it will fit your particular curves.

Darts in fabric are made to throw fullness where it is needed. If the dart is misplaced, it can create a puff of fabric where there is no need for it, and make the dress seem skimpy where you need the extra fullness. This is commonly even at the bustline when the dart is too high for the figure.

In ready-to-wear you may be able to lower the dart if the manufacturer hasn't slashed the fabric or punched holes in the material to make the stitching lines. Before you change the dart, though, you might try shortening your bra straps or wearing a bra with more uplift.

If you are sewing, it's a simple matter to lower the dart line on the pattern. To make a dart one inch lower, establish the new point of the dart one inch below the original. Then, draw new stitching lines parallel to the old one but one inch lower. Draw new side seam lines by connecting the underarm seam to the center fold line of the new dart, and from the center fold of the new dart to the waistline.

Another common fitting problem easily controlled by darts is the fit of the hipline. A straight hip figure does not need all the fullness provided by the pattern. Make the darts smaller, releasing less fabric fullness. This will make the skirt too large at the waistline as well as the hipline, so trim off the extra amount for the entire length of the side seam.

Darts can easily be moved from one part of a pattern to another. This may be necessary in a plaid fabric to avoid distorting the lines of the plaid. Or you may simply wish to change the design lines of the pattern. For example you might want to remove an underarm dart and add the fabric fullness to the waistline dart.

Fold the underarm dart and pin the pattern together on the stitching lines. Next, slash the pattern through the existing waistline dart from waistline to bust point. Allow the pattern to spread apart flat. You can see that the waistline dart is now much larger. You have transferred the underarm dart to the waistline dart. Darts can be changed to any position in this way. Just be sure the point of the dart is at the place where you want the fullness released.

Darts are for fitting purposes. Don't be afraid to change them from the pattern. Make darts do what you want -- for your figure.

ground of the wild animal is mostly instinct. What we may call love, friendship, fear or hate is probably related to the animal's natural need to survive and to reproduce itself.

A wild animal lives an orderly life--born usually in spring, nursed by its parents to a certain age, released to find a mate or join a herd, then bred to produce young and continue the cycle. Domestication has disrupted this orderly cycle. A farm animal is bred artificially to give birth at any time of year. Its reproductive cycle is altered with chemicals or hormones. It need not find shelter, food or protection for itself, and man's care may prolong or shorten its life, hasten its maturity and modify its purpose in life.

Your gentle Holstein cow bears little resemblance to her sinewy, long-horned wild ancestor. And your chubby market hog could hardly win a race with its related wild boar. Yet, in their high degree of domestication, some of the basic instinct of survival in the wild make up their "psychology."

There is one consolation for the farmer whose animals seem to have developed a temporary "phychosis." Mental problems and psychological problems do not run as deep as in humans, and most animals will soon forget what caused the problem after the condition is corrected.

Animal psychology is in an infant stage of study. The next few years will certainly give some practical guidelines on dealing with this important area of livestock management.

University Farm Tours Planned

The University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences will provide guided tours of its Newark research farm for kindergarten and elementary school classes this fall. This will mark the 15th consecutive year the university has scheduled these tours.

Kindergarten classes are invited to visit the farm from Sept. 26 through Oct. 6; elementary grades one to three may tour the facilities from Oct. 9 through Nov. 3. Tours, which must be arranged by appointment, are conducted Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Each tour lasts about an hour.

Tours of the farm are designed to give the youngsters, particularly city-dwellers, a first-hand look at a farm in operation. Children will have an opportunity to see cows being milked and animals being fed. They will see chickens, cattle, horses, pigs, sheep and other farm animals as well as farm machinery and field and vegetable crops.

According to Ed Shabinger, New Castle County agricultural agent, "The tour is a worthwhile experience for all youngsters. Particularly for the urban and suburban children who have never been on a farm."

Teachers wishing to have their classes tour the University of Delaware farm may schedule visits by telephoning the New Castle County Extension Office--738-2506 after Sept. 7.

Seafood Topic of Consumer Program

Seafood lovers put their enthusiasm to a real test when they tried unusual food from Delaware waters during the consumer program segment of Farm and Home Field Day. Samples of squid, shark, catfish, crab and lobster were all part of taste testing at the demonstration held recently at the University of Delaware's substation at Georgetown.

Howard Seymour, marine extension specialist for the University, encouraged Delaware cooks to try shark and squid, and showed them the best way to prepare the two delicacies. Allen Lewis, also a marine extension agent, demonstrated methods to remove the web from it's conch shell and talked about its preparation for eating.

Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension foods and nutrition specialist at the University, stressed the fact that most fish and shellfish contain low amounts of fats and high amounts of protein. Tuna and halibut are particularly good amounts of protein. Flounder, mullet, rockfish, carp, crabs, and lobster are also good protein sources found in Delaware. Oysters and clams offer relatively low amounts of fat and protein because they contain so much water.

Miss Krackhardt pointed out that fish are easily digested and also low in calories. You can choose from more than 150 varieties--whether fresh or processed.

Of course, seafood is a delicate food and must be handled with care from the time it is caught until you put it on the table. Fish and shellfish are at their best just after they have been freshly caught. Remember, when you're cooking fish, avoid overcooking to preserve the natural texture and flavor.

For copies of free fish and seafood recipes, write to 139 Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark 19711.

Corn Acreage Down But Yields May Be Up

State farmers will harvest an estimated 176,000 acres of corn, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's August crop report. This is approximately 12 per cent fewer acres than harvested last year.

But corn yields may be significantly higher, says W.T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware. If the weather co-operates, average yield may top 60 bushels per acre compared to 54 bushels per acre in 1971. The higher yields will produce a corn crop of around 10.5 million bushels, only 250,000 bushels less than last year.

Forecasters estimate the total U.S. corn crop at 4.9 billion bushels, 11 per cent smaller than last year. McAllister says a five billion bushel crop is needed to meet domestic requirements and export sales. There will be a carry-over of 1.2 billion bushels but most of this is tightly held under government loan and re-sale programs.

Export sales are up 55 million bushels over last year and domestic use of corn is running about 10 per cent above a year ago. This reflects the big demand for corn by the livestock industry.

McAllister says corn prices for local growers should be strong this fall -- in the $1.20 to $1.30 range for dry corn. Prices may be even higher if local dealers try to fill their storage facilities and supply nearby markets in eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and southern New England.

Soybean growers in Delaware will harvest an estimated 168,000 acres of beans this fall -- 6,000 more acres than last year. With average yields expected to reach 24 bushels per acre, the local crop will exceed 4 million bushels, says McAllister. Soybean prices at harvest should average close to $3 per bushel, he adds.

Dover YMCA Swim Try-outs

Try-outs for the Dover YMCA swim team will be held at the "Y" Monday, Wednesday and Friday the week of Sept. 11. Boys and girls up to and including 18 are eligible.

A statement of fact by SHELL OIL COMPANY

Over the past several months Shell Oil Company, much against its wishes, has been injected into the controversies concerning this year's gubernatorial campaign in Delaware. We have not made any statements in Delaware during the recently concluded Primary campaign because we did not want to be put into the position of having our remarks misinterpreted as any part of that campaign.

However, now that the primaries are concluded, we would like to point out that Shell has diligently refrained from playing any role in that campaign. I can say flatly that Shell has not endorsed or supported any candidates, and it has not worked against any candidate. In addition, the Company has not contributed any of its money, or any of its people's time or efforts, in support or opposition to any candidate in these campaigns. I can also say flatly that Shell will follow the same course of action in the upcoming Fall elections. I sincerely hope that this will end once and for all any speculation as to Shell's position with regard to the elections.

With regard to our property in New Castle County, I wish to reiterate that Shell has been blocked from going ahead with any plans for the construction of a refinery by the enactment of the Delaware Coastal Zone Act. Consequently, the Company is not planning to construct a refinery at that location. We continue to hold onto our Blackbird Hundred property because we have invested significant sums of money in purchasing this site over the past 12 years, and we are now engaged in evaluating the best economic uses for that property, compatible with State and county zoning and environmental considerations.

I repeat, Shell Oil Company is not a participant, and hopefully is no longer a purported "issue," in any political campaign in the State of Delaware.

Mental Health Granted Funds

Both government and private industry will benefit from work being done with the help of a three-year federal grant by the Division of Mental Health's Alcoholism Services.

According to Leon E. Petty, director of Alcoholism Services, a $154,575 grant from the National Institute on Alcoholism Abuse and Alcoholism is to be used to develop a program to help government and private industry in Delaware to reduce lost time and improve efficiency who abuse alcohol.

"I hope that over the period of the next three years we will have at least spotlighted significant alcoholism problems that need to be corrected," Petty said.

"We must also educate the individuals who don't have alcoholism problems to the dangers of alcohol abuse," he added.

The federal grant was effective May 1 and will run through April 30, 1975. The first year's grant is $53,607.

Two occupational health consultants have been hired to work in the program and assist private industry in developing programs designed to combat alcoholism. They are Edmund J. Stepnowski, former director of purchasing in the Offices of Administrative Services, and Mrs. Barbara A. Banonis, a former public health nurse in the Division of Public Health.

Basically the program has four goals:

- To develop a program for state, county and municipal employees of private industry who have an alcoholism problem or whose drinking pattern interferes with satisfactory work performance.
- To act as consultants to private industry to develop alcoholism programs.
- To educate individuals who are employed who do not have alcoholic problems to the dangers of alcoholism abuse.
- To aid industry in significant reduction of absenteeism and inefficient performance caused by abuse of alcohol.

GREENWOOD KIWANIS CLUB NEWS

Guests of Kiwanis Club last week were John Mervine and Merle Embleton, president and vice-president respectively of Nanticoke Homes, a local industry which is meeting a need for new homes and is providing employment for about 50 people.

Lawrence Graham, the program chairman, introduced the two guests. Mr. Mervine responded by telling how Nanticoke Homes became a reality and its growth to the present day. He showed some colored slides of the entire operation. After Charles Elliott, president, thanked the guests for their presence and announced that all were invited to a tour of Nanticoke Homes. Everyone was pleased with the interesting way in which John explained the complete operation from the laying of the sills and joists to the placing of the home on the foundation.

Greenwood should indeed be proud to be the home of this successful industry.

Building of Ferry Vessels Starts Soon

Construction of three shallow draft vessels for the Cape May-Lewes Ferry will begin within 10 days, commissioners of the Delaware River and Bay Authority were told last week at their monthly meeting.

Arthur W. Stout Jr., general manager of the Houston Division of the Todd Shipyards Corp., which was awarded the $12,200,000 contract last month said delivery of the vessel will be made on or about March 1, 1974. The second vessel will be delivered June 1 and both vessels will be on the run in time for the heavy summer season traffic.

Stout said the third vessel will be delivered in the late summer of 1974. He explained that the ferries will be delivered to the Delaware Bay under their own power. Each vessel will be sailed from Houston, Tex.

The Todd representative said that the trip from Houston to Cape May will require approximately 8 days, depending upon the sea weather. He added that the trip would be a real test for the new craft, with final acceptance tests to be conducted on the actual Cape May-Lewes run.

KENT COUNTY CURRENTS

by JOSHUA M. TWILLEY Levy Court President

Today I'd like to turn the spotlight in Kent County on the functions and responsibilities of the Board of Assessment and the services it provides for the public.

The Board of Assessment is composed of three assessors, appointed by the levy court for a four year term, three assistant assessors and an executive secretary who is responsible for the functions of the office of thirteen employees.

The Board of Assessment lists the residents of Kent County, and assesses all new additions, buildings, or improvements to real estate in the county.

The Board of Assessment notifies property owners in cases of change or new assessments, and at any time during the year before the fifteenth of April, anyone upon proper notice to the Board of Assessment office, may appeal any assessment. Any change in assessment would become effective for the tax bill sent out in June of that year.

Should any one feel that this decision is not fair, he may appeal the decision of the Board of Assessment to the Superior Court.

The records of property kept in the office of the Board of Assessment are open to inspection any time during the week. These parcels of real estate, totaling 3,000 in number, are listed and divided into nine geographical districts, known as hundreds. The records also list the school district in which each parcel is located and the assessed valuation, which is based on 60% of the actual value.

The Board of Assessment is now involved in mailing and sorting applications for elderly real estate tax exemptions. This exemption is determined by gross income, which must be under $3,000.00 a year, and the elderly applicant must be a resident of the State of Delaware for three years and live in the house for which he is claiming exemption, and be 65 years of age by September one of this year.

As you can see the responsibilities of this office are significant because these are the records which determine the tax rate needed to meet the county budget.

Senate Committee Approves Boggs' Bicycle Bill

Washington, D.C.—The proposal by Sen. J. Caleb Boggs (R., Del.) to create a national system of bicycle and pedestrian trails was approved today (Aug. 17) by the Senate Committee on Public Works.

The Committee voted unanimously to send the Boggs bikepath proposal to the Senate floor as a part of major new transportation legislation. "This entire bill will accelerate Federal support for programs that relieve urban traffic congestion and improve traffic safety," Boggs explained. "My bikepath proposal is essential to both of these goals. By building separate trails or routes for bicyclists and pedestrian, it will make travel safer and more convenient for everyone," Boggs added.

Under the Boggs proposal, $10,000,000 each year would be allocated out of the Highway Trust Fund for use in building bicycle and pedestrian paths. This money will be appropriated among the States, with no State to receive less than $100,000 a year.

"Everyone who drives a car, or has ridden a bike or walked along the shoulder of a highway knows the potential danger that exists when bicyclists, pedestrians, and cars use the same highway space," Boggs said. "My proposal should create a permanent solution to that problem in many sections of the nation."

Boggs says he anticipates that the bill will be considered next month by the full Senate.

In addition to the bikepath provision, the bill contains a number of other significant provisions to meet national transportation needs. One provision sets aside $800,000,000 yearly for programs to relieve urban highway congestion, a sharp increase over present spending levels. Out of that sum, a minimum of $300,000,000 must be spent by the States to improve bus-related mass transit systems, Boggs noted.

"These dollars—out of the Highway Trust Fund—can be spent to buy commuter buses and to build commuter bus lanes, fringe parking lots, bus terminals, or other facilities meeting our urban transit needs," Boggs said.

"I consider this a major step toward making our highways more productive, thus helping computers get to and from work more rapidly."

Another significant new feature of the highway legislation, which was added on the suggestion of Boggs, is a guarantee that each State receives no less than 1/2 of 1 percent of the funds available for the urban program.

"In the past, many smaller States—including Delaware—have received insufficient funds to effectively meet our transportation needs," Boggs noted. "This bill will end that discrimination. Small States will receive an effective minimum of all programs, a fact that will mean several million dollars more a year to Delaware. This also means that many additional dollars will be available to support our excellent highway safety program in Delaware."

While the bill accelerates programs for the cities, it scales down the spending level on the Interstate Highway effort. "I am assured, however, that sufficient funds are available for continued work on I-495 east of downtown Wilmington," Boggs added.

The Committee also voted approval of a Boggs proposal to allow Federal financing for the reconstruction of the overburdened interchange where I-95 turns north from the Delaware Turnpike.

Further, the bill allows the Federal Government to share in the cost of proposed new toll roads out of regular road funds, if the tolls will be removed as soon as the full Federal share is paid.

Boggs praised language in the bill designed to encourage greater public participation in decisions on a State's highway program. The Committee-approved bill requires annual public hearings to review the transportation planning process, with a discussion of alternative modes of transportation. Boggs noted that such language seeks to resolve controversies, such as the one surrounding the path of Route 141 west of Wilmington.

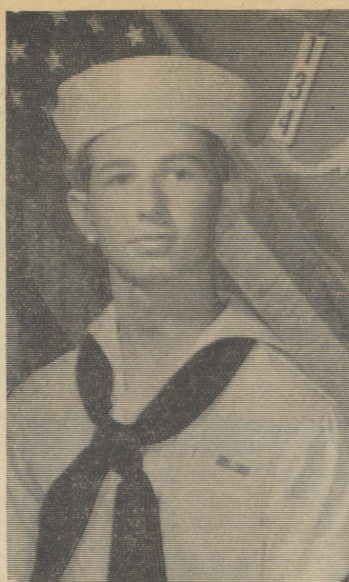

"While it is important to build to meet future transportation needs, our greatest need is to make our highways safer. This bill, for example, places new stress on safety program related to drug abuse and bicycle safety," Boggs explained. "It sharply increases the safety program and creates a special fund to award States—such as Delaware—that have attained a high rating in implementing Federal highway safety standards."

State grants augmenting the highway safety effort would be increased about 300 percent, under the Boggs-supported bill.

Spartans Look Strong in Football

Coach Al Wood has the nucleus of a fine football team at Lake Forest High. This reporter spent Friday morning at the school and watched two grueling workouts. Wood is assisted by hold-over coaches Jim Hogsten and Russ Knaub and newcomer, Bill Falasco. The latter is a well known scholastic and college athlete from the Dover area.

Working at backfield spots were Lawrence Sorden, Neal Travis, Russell Hill, John Knapp, Leon Shockley, Don Parker, Benny Coleman, Keith Layton and Jerry Johnson. Sorden is an experienced quarterback with a rifle for an arm. Travis and Parker have the speed of track sprinters with the former a threat in a broken field.

James L. Larimore, son of Mrs. DeWeese Moore of Rt. 2, Greenwood, graduated from recruit training at the Naval Training Center in Great Lakes.

Shockley has exciting potential. We first heard of this lad while he was in the sixth grade at Frederica. As a freshman, he is five feet nine inches by 215 solid pounds. He has the strength to set records in the shot put and enough speed to win 50 yard dashes and run an undefeated 440 relay team. It would be a crime to have a prospect of this magnitude wasting a season on a freshman or jayvee team. At a small school such as Lake Forest, the exceptional athlete should be on the varsity as soon as possible. Apparently, Wood has the foresight to realize this fact. Don Bryant was still at basketball camp, at Bucknell University on Friday. Bryant is the team's fastest player and is larger than all the backs, except Shockley. A tall, well-proportioned lad, he ought to see lots of action, this campaign.

The line is in good shape with size and experience, although, both factors are not always present, in some cases. Frank O'Neal, Robin Callahan, Greg Osmundson and Gary "Punky" Harrington are solid performers. Callahan and plus, while O'Neal is close to the mark. Harrington is a chunky, fire-plug type, with a low center of gravity. Sven Osmundson is a scrapper with a possible chance to start.

Bruce Burton, the Spartans holler guy, is another veteran lineman. Jim Dill, one of the Henlopen Conference's most versatile athletes, was a glue-fingered pass receiver, in 1971 and can be expected to snag a few in '72.

Jim Minor, who reportedly scaled 240 last year, hasn't lost much weight, if any. Gilbert Curry, a 300-plus lineman could team with Minor to shore up a couple of line spots.

Others working with the linemen on Friday were: Charles Bayard, Calvin Burris, Sam Webber, Wayne Erne, Mike Pettyjohn, Victor Scarborough, George Davis, Bob Hudson, Terry Thomas, Harry Wilson, Bob Nored Charles Bessellie, Glen Hart and Charles Hudson.

The last three named are huge lads who must scale from 230 to 250 pounds. Webber, Erne, Bob Hudson and Wilson are solid lads between 130 and 200. This septet lacks experience but might someday be known as Lake Forest's "Magnificent Seven." We have missed some late comers but, hopefully, have named all the key men, if not, we'll get them later.

The 1972 Spartan combine has size, speed and some experience and could shape up as one of the top Henlopen clubs.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

Are you looking for menu ideas with cool refreshing foods? What about trying yogurt?

Yogurt is a "cultured" dairy product. The tangy taste is not a familiar one to many people in this country, but the thick smooth pudding like texture is one most of us really do enjoy.

Though this food may be fairly new to us here in America, it has been a staple for hundreds of years in Europe, especially in the Balkan countries. The consumption level in the United States is however, increasing rapidly.

Yogurt is usually made from fresh, partially skimmed milk, enriched with additional nonfat dry milk. However, there are other types and the label will tell you the story, for example Low Calorie Yogurt, Low Fat Yogurt or Dietetic Yogurt. If the label simply says Yogurt, then it is made with whole milk.

The processing for yogurt is much like that of dairy sour cream. The milk used is first pasteurized and homogenized. After that it is prepared to a specific degree of acidity by using a mixed culture. This develops the tangy flavor and the plain yogurt has been created. For the various fruit flavors, artificial fruit flavors, sugar, pureed fruit or otherwise processed fruit is then added.

Most yogurt bought today is used as snacks, a dessert or as a complete noon meal. However, it is delicious when used in cooking. If you have a recipe calling for dairy sour cream, you can substitute the same amount of plain yogurt in place of the cream. Here's good news for calorie counters—plain yogurt has about 1/3 the calories of dairy sour cream.

When cooking with yogurt, use low temperatures. High temperatures may cause curdling. Another way to help prevent curdling is to stabilize the yogurt by adding 1/2 teaspoon of baking soda or a small amount of flour or cornstarch to the product.

In making, treat yogurt gently. Fold it into the mixture. Beating will usually thin yogurt and change the consistency of the finished product.

For a unique flavor in salads, try mixing yogurt in as a dressing or as one of the ingredients of a dressing. Or use it as a topping for fresh fruit. With plain yogurt you might like to change the taste by adding powdered sugar. Experiment and you will come up with many wonderful ideas.

Just remember as you use yogurt that it is a fresh dairy product. Keep it cold and covered an use within three to four days after purchase. After this time, the acidity is likely to increase and may produce a sharper taste in the product. Freezing is not recommended.

HARRY BINDER TALKS CARPET

That's Consumerism

Jim Fife is the founder and owner of Monterey County Linoleum & Carpet in Salinas, Calif., which he formed 15 years ago in the heart of a major agricultural area a hundred miles south of San Francisco. Last year his sales topped a million dollars and he's looking to do better this year, but says he's going to have to try harder to make it.

"I'm convinced the seventies will be critical marketing years in our industry," he says, "and in the economy as a whole. The public is calling for fair play, although nobody can define what this means." He adds that "The politicians are beginning to put a lot of muscle behind what's called 'consumer protection' and he comments thusly:

"It's our industry that has the responsibility at this stage for equipping consumers with the information they need to become more discriminating shoppers when in the market for carpeting and hard surface flooring."

Well said, Mr. Fife. Your sage remarks only serve to make us wonder how so many cheating and unscrupulous characters can still get away with their deceptive and deceitful retail advertising of carpet, in newspapers, television and radio. And just to make it clear to you, Mr. Fife, as to what the public means by calling for fair play, it is exactly this, as brought out at a recent meeting by a member of the advertising profession:

"Consumerism is nothing more or less than the cry of 'fair play'. No fair is the cry that comes from the owner of a car that is missing an important bolt; the buyer of the giant economy size who doesn't save any money; the owner of a toaster that lasts only six months; the man taken by a TV repairman, and the person who has bought a product because of a misleading ad."

There are many sound and valid reasons for consumerism. And the chief reasons are the business cheats, the business swindlers, the business schemers and tricksters who have little or no conscience, who charge the public for shoddy, inferior merchandise at highly inflated prices; the companies and people in the vices are disgraceful, shameful and just plain abominable, who charge inflated rates for their services which they fail to deliver.

Yup, Mr. Fife, consumerism is here, and business has asked for it, in spades.

We have had—and still have—far too many people in the carpet industry, who certainly do NOT enhance the image of our industry in the eyes of the public. But just as long as there are people who think they can outsmart the seller, just as long as there are people who think they can buy anything they want or need at "wholesale," that's how long we'll have greedy business cheats and swindlers with us, ready, willing and able to roll out the red carpet while humming "Hello, sucker, here's our regular $12.95 carpet for $4.98 including thick padding and expert installation, along with a free 9 x 12 rug, a vacuum cleaner and all expense paid weekend for two in the Barbadoes."

Because it is so well expressed and so appropos, we are reprinting an editorial from the Floor Covering Weekly of August 14, 1972.

All this weekend and next week, a Philadelphia Carpet Company Nylon Shag we sell regularly for $7.95 will be sold, in one color only, SNOWDRIFT... for $4.95 a square yard. You can't beat the price.

THE COLOR OF THE $5.95 501 NYLON TO BE SOLD FOR $3.95 THIS WEEKEND IS CELADON.
