

HUD Review Team Checks Local Land

A review team of the U.S. Housing and Urban Development department visited Harrington the middle of September checking on a site for a low-rental housing project.

Robert S. Moyer, of the state Community Affairs and Economic Development Department, said the team, operating out of the Philadelphia office, commented the documentation for the development was progressing smoothly with apparently no obstacles.

There will be six projects, all federally financed in Kent County. Moyer believed work would begin on all sites simultaneously.

Work will be headed by Alcoa, of Pittsburgh, with Leon N. Weiner & Associates, of Wilmington, as the local developer.

The local development calls for 50 houses and a community house just northwest of the city.

Moyer, who heads the state

Division of Housing, thought the project would get underway in the spring, but there was a possibility of its inception in the fall.

He also believed the project was not as active as anticipated because of HUD interest in the flood-ravaged section of Pennsylvania.

Spartan Band Wins 2nd Place in Firemen's Parade

The Lake Forest Spartan Band Saturday afternoon won second place prize in the Delmarva Volunteer Firemen's parade in Laurel. The prize was $75.

Though the skies were overcast and the parade included 220 units, the Spartans marched nearly 100 strong, down the main street of Laurel. Donald Claycomb, band director, expressed his great delight at their fine performance.

The Spartans are performing at the pregame or half-time shows for the football games this fall. Each week sees them with a new routine or a revised one. Other activities this fall will include participation in the Milford Halloween parade and the Harrington Christmas parade.

Support for the band is being continued by the Lake Forest Band Boosters organization. The group, headed by Roland Neeman of Felton, worked with the band to secure funds to purchase new uniforms. A current drive is now on to help supply instruments.

Since there are bands in each of the schools, the Boosters consist of parents of all band members. A fee of $1 enrolls each family in the organization.

"We've planned the scavenger hunt and other events," Park Superintendent Harris Snack explained, "so that the natural features will not be harmed in any way." Coordinator for Fun Day is Ken Raybuck of Clayton. Mrs. Lois J. Woodward of Felton is in charge of physical arrangements.

City's Revenue Share Will Be Substantial

The City of Harrington will receive a substantial grant under the federal government's revenue sharing program.

The Treasury Department announced Friday $15.8 million would go to Delaware.

Jerry Sapienza, administrative assistant to Gov. Russell office of U.S. Senator Boggs believed the figure for Kent County would be $201,332 for cities under 2500 population. Harrington comes in this category with a population of 2407.

The county government, in toto, would receive $423,000; plus $374,585 to Dover, with the county, as a whole, receiving $1,062,417.

There is no figure available for Harrington but something might be derived from estimates. Smyrna, with a population of 4243, would receive $63,000, or $14.62 per person. Milford, population 5314, would receive $84,500, or $15.90 per person, and Middletown, population 2644, would receive $35,000, or $13.24 per person.

It appears, from these tabulations, the larger communities would receive more money per person. No figures were released for communities under 2500 population, but a comparison with Middletown might lead one to believe Harrington would receive less than $35,000.

The five-year revenue program has been passed by the Senate and final Congressional approval is anticipated this week.

Congressional leaders expect final approval of the plan in time for checks to be mailed this month. This appears highly probable in view of election year.

In fine, no municipality can receive more than half of the amount of revenue it raises locally. If it does, the overage will revert to the state.

However, it is highly improbable Harrington will have recourse to this action.

Sapienza said Friday he believed the federal money would have to go to capital improvement programs, at least, in part.

National 4-H Week Oct. 2-7

4-H is alive and well in Delaware. But it isn't like it used to be.

When 4-H started around the turn of the century, it was aimed primarily at young people in rural areas. It was founded by agricultural leaders of the period who felt the best way to have scientific discoveries accepted on the farm and in the home was to introduce them to youth first.

In the 1970's the emphasis of 4-H has changed, says James O. Baker, state 4-H leader. Today only about 16 per cent of Delaware's 4-H members live on farms. The rest live in small towns, suburban areas and large urban centers.

To accommodate these varied backgrounds, the organization has to offer a great variety of programs, says Baker. Some programs are aimed at non-farm members. They include automotive, home economics, clothing, electric, entomology, horse, woodworking, foods and crafts, photography and safety.

Projects aimed primarily at farm members include beef, swine, field crops, sheep, tractor and dairy.

Today there are about 3000 Delawareans between the ages of 9 and 19 who belong to 4-H. They make up 92 separate clubs. Almost 400 adult volunteers serve as local leaders.

4-H is the official youth program of the co-operative extension service. It is run through state Universities and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. In Delaware, county extension offices are in Newark, Georgetown and Dover. State co-operative extension offices are in the agricultural hall of the University of Delaware.

Every year, the national activities of 4-H are displayed during National 4-H Week. It will be Oct. 2-7 this year. (Continued on Page 4)

Delaware Standardbred Development Fund

Hugh Martin, secretary of Administrative Services, was guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Standardbred Development Fund Board. He outlined the impact harness racing has in the state.

Not only does it provide $7 million in revenue, but of greater importance are the 2400 jobs provided by the industry. This, plus the additional revenue provided to school district and local governments, makes it essential the harness horse business continue to improve and expand. Since 80 per cent of the money wagered at parimutuel race tracks in Delaware comes from out of state, it is extremely important to maintain the highest standards of racing. With the neighboring states going to off track betting in the near future, Delaware must do all it can to retain its share of the wagering public's money. With this in mind, Chairman Francis DiMondi, with the approval of the board, established two standing committees to further promote the breeding industry in the state. An advertising and publicity committee, headed by Howard Miller, was created to set up a year round program geared to the needs of the industry. A trophy and awards committee, headed by Russell Kirby, of Milford, was established to provide greater recognition for the horseman. A review of the by-laws and racing conditions sheets was called for and will be the central topic of a Nov. 1 meeting.

The Colonial Cheese Shop of Dover, celebrated its grand opening with an unusual twist, twelve people cut the ribbon representing the nations whose flags fly in front of the building. The shop features the finest foods from around the world.

Canterbury-Viola

By Edna Massimilla

The Chancel Choir of Whatcoat United Methodist Church, Camden presented a program of slides and song Sunday evening highlighting the choir's recent Caribbean cruise. On shipboard the choir members provided music and participated in a seminar conducted by Dr. Hilbert Berger, director of the Division of Stewardship and Finance of the General Board of Laity. The group also gave a concert at the Inglesia U.M. Church in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

At Faith Community Church, Camden, the Rev. Archie McGilvray's sermon topic Sunday was "Safe In The Shepherd's Fold." In the evening there was a fellowship service.

Commencing Mon., Nov. 9, the American Pictorial Directory, Inc. will take photographs of the members of the Felton Charge for a church directory for Viola, Manship and Felton Churches. Fred and Betty Greenly have been working with other volunteers in order to co-ordinate the appointments. All members and friends of the churches are welcome to be part of this directory, and if you have not been called, come anyway during the following hours: Felton, Oct. 9, 10 and 11; Viola, Oct. 12; Manship, Oct. 13; - all dates between the hours of 4 and 9 p.m.

Sun., Oct. 8 is Lay-persons Sunday, and the pulpits will be supplied by laymen and laywomen. Richard Adams, the layleader is in charge of co-ordinating the worship services.

There was a family style chicken and dumpling supper at Wyoming United Methodist Church Saturday in the Fellowship Hall for the benefit of the Wesley Seminary Scholarship Fund.

Raymond and Ruth Higbie are opening a delightful antique mall, located where St. Paul's Episcopal Church formerly existed. The kitchen of the church has been renovated into a coffee shop. The Higbies have tried to retain as much of the century-old church as possible, even to having two stained glass windows. Antique lovers will find the shop most interesting.

Mr. and Mrs. Domonick Martucci of Camden, are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter Sept. 20th at Kent General Hospital.

The Willing Workers met in Fellowship Hall last Wednesday for a covered dish supper. Greeters for October will be Mr. and Mrs. Fred Greenley, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Hughes and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Stephens. The Willing Workers invite the new church school teachers to become part of this fellowship. A fine program is being planned for the coming holiday seasons. Mr. and Mrs. E.B. Warrington have been welcomed as new members this month.

Lynn Torbert is a patient in Kent General Hospital and his friends extend best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Kates have enjoyed the recent visit of their children, Peggy and Gary, and grandchildren, Curt and Scott, from Island Park, Long Island, N.Y.

A hand painted plate showing the Felton Methodist Church and parsonage in 1860 has been added to the trophy cabinet in the vestibule of the church. It was painted by the Rev. John Diehl, a former pastor, several years ago. Rev. Diehl now serves in the Salisbury District as a retired minister.

In looking through old papers and keepsakes, Mrs. Madeline Bennett of Felton, came across a small book which was printed in the year 1889 showing the history of Felton Church from 1859 through 1889. The Rev. E.C. Macnichol was the minister in 1889. It also listed the names of all contributors for the conference year and the amounts given by each person. From 95 contributing members the amounts listed were from twenty-five cents to $40 each. The pages of the book have been carefully restored with plastics and it will be made part of the trophy case in the Felton Church.

The Wesley choir, a newly formed choir group comprised of "Sunday's Child" and the U.M.Y.F. members will sing during the worship service every third Sunday in Felton Church.

Many area residents enjoy the gospel hymn sing Saturday evening held at the William Henry High School in Dover. Perry, of Perry's Pancake House was instrumental in bringing the Rhoades Family, the Crusaders and the Searchers to be part of this presentation. Some of the singers came from Jacksonville, Fla.

4-H Prepares Youth For The Future

by Bill Winkler

There is a very real need in today's society for increasing interest on the part of every person concerning the future of our youth, and by assisting a 4-H'er with a project, an adult can contribute greatly to the development of our youth.

4-H is not just an organization where young people fill out project records and are awarded ribbons. It stimulates the mind by presenting challenges and a clearer picture of life through ventures that sometimes may succeed and sometimes fail.

It has helped teach me to weigh the good points of an idea against the bad points and come up with a feasible solution.

My project has been beef production but the 4-H program can help a young person in any area of interest. 4-H educates through practical experience, educational training and everyday common sense. With a combination of these three a young person certainly has a head start in his chosen career.

If you are interested in learning more about something that is of interest to you and having fun along with learning, you can find out more about the 4-H program and the many projects offered by calling the County 4-H Office in Dover - 736-1448.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

THE ROAD TO YESTERDAY

I sigh for the songs of my childhood
 If it's only a sweet lullaby
 That mothers used to sing by the cradles,
 In the long happy days now gone by.

I loved those old songs of the woodland,
 The rhyme of the brooks and the birds,
 As they sang through the days of my childhood,
 Music, I can't tell with words.

Often, in day-dreams I travel
 The road these sweet tunes trip along.
 And again do I hear what I love so:
 The music of nature's best song.

The songs that we never can answer,
 The songs that will ever hold sway
 Are the songs of fine-feathered songsters
 That I loved in the sweet yesterday.

And if mortals were granted their wishes,
 The one I would wish from my heart:
 Just to travel on yesterday's roadway
 And in childhood once more play a part.

HOW TIME HAS CHANGED

KENT COUNTY CURRENTS

by JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
 Levy Court President

In the last two years the city of Dover has called for numerous annexation referendums to extend the city limits. The city has a proper interest in extending its boundaries to provide municipal services in an orderly fashion. However, there should also be authority in the county government to check that the area to be annexed meets the requirements of good planning and zoning and represents a sensible extension of the city limits.

In the last few years many residents outside the city limits have objected to annexation of their area. On occasion the majority of the people were opposed to annexation but a large real estate developer could swing the election. This was because the vote was not one person, one vote but by one vote for each hundred dollars per assessed valuation of real estate. In the case of Dover annexation held last Thursday, it appears that several hundred individuals were opposed to it, but 80 percent of the votes were cast by one person because of his large land holdings.

There are several areas not in the city limits which are now surrounded by the city of Dover. They are like islands. It appears that this was an intentional effort to guarantee that a proposed annexation referendum would pass by excluding some of those opposed to it. This is not good planning, nor does it give proper consideration to the citizens who are caught in this sort of dilemma. Therefore the Levy Court at last week's meeting voted to have the county attorneys review existing laws on annexation and draft new laws to give the county a say in future annexations.

Harriers Win Opener At Tower Hill

Lake Forest's varsity cross-country team won its first start of the season, triumphing over Tower Hill 25-33, at Rockford Park in Wilmington, last week.

Coach Jim Blades' first varsity cross-country team is a young one. The first five men are freshmen and sophomores.

Tower Hill had the first two finishers, but the Spartans won their opener on balance, as sophomore Eddie Thompson led five teammates across the line, to fill the next six spots. Harry Benson, David Moore, Vernon Bowers, Barry Doherty and Ron Mosely, helped Thompson give his team the victory. Mosely is a junior, Benson, Moore and Doherty are freshmen, Thompson and Bowers are sophomores. Eddie toured the 2.1 miles Wilmington course in 12:12. Only 2.7 seconds separated the first five Spartans.

Terry Pettyjohn and Tom Clarke led the Spartan jays to a victory over Tower Hill's jayvees. Kit Tilghman's spectacular finish kick gave him a fourth place.

Willard McGinnes, Howard Caskey, Bob Kashner and Terry Jarrell completed the Spartan scoring.

MRS. DELMER R. PHILLIPPI

Miss Karen Allison Cleland Is Bride of Delmer R. Phillippi

Miss Karen Allison Cleland of Burton, S.C., and Delmer R. Phillippi of Port Royal, S.C., were married at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 2, in Port Royal Methodist Church. The Rev. J.R. Gregg officiated the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Veronica Leonard, soloist, and Mrs. Jean Bennett, organist, presented a program of selected wedding music.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Weiteers R. Cleland and the late Mr. Cleland of Ridgeland, S.C. The groom is the son of Joseph R. Phillippi and the late Mrs. Phillippi, of Harrington.

Given in marriage by her brother, Stacy L. Cleland of Beaufort, S.C., the bride wore a white lace A-line wedding dress with empire waist, high neckline and long puffed sleeves. She carried a Prayer Book topped with white miniature carnations.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Linda Lorick, of Columbia, S.C. Her gown of yellow crepe featured a nosegay of yellow and white daisies.

Serving as best man was Robert F. Cleland of Ridgeland, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Cleland was attired in an aqua linen dress and white accessories. Her corsage was of miniature carnations.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stacy Cleland. The bride's table held the bridal cake topped with wedding bells, and a floral arrangement of white glads and yellow daisies flanked by silver candelabras holding white candles. Assisting in serving was Mrs. Ida Lee McCoston, aunt of the bride. Miss Cathy Cleland, of Savannah, Ga., niece of the bride, poured punch and Mrs. Karen O'Quinn of Ridgeland, kept the bride's book.

Mrs. Phillippi is a graduate of Ridgeland High School and Paris Beauty School, Savannah, and is a member of the National Hairdressers Assoc. and is Instructor of Cosmetology at Beaufort Regional Technical Center.

Phillippi is a Staff Sergeant (USMC Retired) and is employed with A&F Food Stores.

The couple will reside in Harrington.

Lake Forest Blanks Sussex Central 14-0

Lake Forest's defense denied the opposition a touchdown for the second straight week and Al Wood's Spartans racked up their third victory in as many tries. Sussex Central bent the knee 14-0, at Georgetown on Friday night.

Many Lake Forest rooters made the trip and saw the Spartans score two quick touchdowns. The rest of the evening, the winners couldn't find the key, or the handle, but they didn't have to.

After holding the home team on the first series, Lake Forest started a march from their own 21. On third and 9, Jim Dill got open on the right side, grabbed a Lawrence Sorden aerial and reached the S.C. 48. A screen pass gained 18 yards, though one lone tackler penetrated several blockers, to hold down the yardage. A penalty, a loss, then Dill received a pass near the right sideline and raced for a six pointer. A defensive back missed a try for an interception, otherwise the completion might only have been a first down. Don Parker went off the right side on a two point conversion run.

Don Parker crashed through the Knights' offensive line to nail a back for a third down loss. After the punt, the Spartans hit paydirt again. Don Parker's hard running plus some will o' the wisp moves by the elusive Neil Travis, carried Lake Forest to the goal line. On the second play of the second quarter, a fumble in the end zone was covered by Lake Forest's giant Bruce Burton, for a six pointer.

Burton doesn't keep his feelings secret on an athletic field. If he's happy, you know it. If he's unhappy, you know that, too. His touchdown was followed by a victory dance of his own invention.

Speedy Albert Reed of the Knights almost got loose with the kickoff but was stopped by the swiftest Spartan, Don Dryant. Sussex Central reached Lake Forest's 11 yard line on runs by Reed, Fidderman, Booth and Collins, but Booth's 4th down fumble, ended their best threat of the evening.

Two ground sorties by Parker, gained 10 yards, then 20 more. A pass try was intercepted.

The rest of the first half saw a pass broken up by Gary "Punky" Harrington, a fine punt by Ricky Wheatley, an interception and a slick, broken-field runback by Travis.

Lake Forest's third quarter surge was started by a five yard pickup by Parker. A twisting, darting Travis run gained good yardage but was ended prematurely as Neil fell over teammate, Robin Callahan. Later Travis, number was called four times in succession and resulted in 26 yards gained on three runs and a pass reception.

Now, eight yards out, the going got tougher. Three efforts by Parker, Sorden and Travis reached to within inches of the wide stripe, Sorden's fumble at that point, saved a third score.

Our play by play notes on the fourth period spotlights these Spartan highlights: Another good punt by Wheatley, an interception by Sorden, two nifty pass receptions by Jim Dill (he has more moves than RAQUEL) and an over-the-shoulder interception by the Viola redhead. This baseball-type grab was followed by a runback on which three, would be tacklers were left with armfuls of ozone.

Dill grabbed 4 passes for 83 yards and gets half our vote for the top Spartan performance of the evening. Travis gets the other half.

Woodbridge comes here Friday night, fresh from an upset tie with Laurel, in which the Bulldogs had to capture two Blue Raider fumbles to pull out the last-minute deadlock.

John Moffett And Chipman Harriers Win

John Moffett, an eighth grader at W. T. Chipman School, led the local seventh and eighth grade Cross-Country team to a 23-32 victory over a Tower Hill of Wilmington team, that used some freshman runners.

Moffett covered the 2.1 miles course in 13:54.8. Jamie Simpson was third, George Gibbs was fourth, Wade Brown was 7th and Delmer Freeman was 8th for Ed Webster's winners.

"Bullet" Cerklefskie, Bill Moore, Mark Miller, Jim Chatham, Gary Kashner and John Nickle covered 10th through 15th positions.

Donna Hermann also ran well, beating several boys. At Dover Air, Monday afternoon, Chipman lost a close one despite fine efforts by Wade Brown, John Moffett and George Gibbs. This marked the first time that someone other than Moffett or Simpson finished as the top Chipman runner.

Asbury W.S.C.S. News

A history of our Bible was presented at the program of the United Methodist Women's meeting on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Morris Willey was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Mark Willey, Mrs. Earle Nelson and Mrs. William Sharp. A description of many Bibles that have been written and printed, were outlined by Mrs. Willey. Mrs. Sharp displayed a collection of Bibles ranging from a Bible belonging to her grandfather and grandmother, copywrited in 1810 to the most current Bibles, the Living Bible and the New English Bible.

Mrs. Edgar Graef gave a devotional message entitled "Pray and Vote".

At the business meeting which followed, Mrs. John Chaffer extended an invitation from the Methodist Men to the United Methodist Women and their husbands to attend a dinner in Collins Hall on Oct. 14. Circle leaders will be calling each member to ascertain if they will be attending. A very special program is planned.

Oct. 26 will be the day of the UNICEF drive. Mrs. Richard Johnson is chairman and will be needing help for that afternoon.

The Priscilla Circle served refreshments following the adjournment.

The November meeting will be held on the first Tuesday evening as scheduled, even tho it will be election day.

Parents Can Help Children Manage Their Resources

Parents can help their children do well in school by teaching them to do a better job of managing their available time and resources, says Miss Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. By improving their management skills, children learn to achieve goals and satisfy their desires and needs.

When children learn management they begin to develop values and standards. They begin to make both short and long term plans.

Parents can begin by helping their children discover what resources they have within themselves, Miss Morris says. These include some very basic resources—a strong, healthy body, an intelligent mind and the ability to learn. Others are required—a good attitude, knowledge, skills and the ability to remain flexible.

In addition, the child should be helped to see resources available outside himself. These include the home, members of the family, available time, school, friends and members of the community.

It is important to remind the child he is learning to manage situations, not people and things, Miss Morris stresses.

A good training-ground for management at this time of year is learning to get to school on time, the child should learn to do it in a pleasant, organized manner, she adds.

The first step in managing the situation is to analyze the problems involved. Ask questions. Would it help to get up five or ten minutes earlier? Should clothes be organized the night before? If each person in the house had his own alarm clock, could everyone get up without being prodded? Would a general change of attitude help?

Help the child see how the situation might change if it were properly managed. Try to remember the adult's solution may not always be the best solution from the child's point of view.

A similar technique can be applied to many common household problems. Just analyze the problem, make a list of possible solutions, then try the solutions to see which works best, she says. The younger the child is when he learns to manage the affairs of his life, the better he will be able to function as an adult, Miss Morris says.

Harrington Bowling League Leah S. Wheeler

Robbin's Hardware moved out to the top of the league on the strength of Frank Robbins' real fine 521 series effort, which included a good 214 game. The Hardware team as a whole performed very well in their shelling of Wally's Big as they took three big points from them.

Norman Woodall gave Wally's enough extra strength needed to salvage one point.

The Spoilers moved up into second place as they waltzed to an easy three point win over Quillen's Market. Bruce Harrington and John Shaffer provided the team with an above average effort as they moved up in the standings.

Donald Wilson, Eddie Kemp, Earl Quillen and Dennis Pense all rolled over their averages for Quillen's and mustered enough strength to capture one game.

McKnat's Funeral Home was knocked out of first place as the Taylor & Messick combine swept over them for three points. Harold Brode rolled a 201 game as he amassed a good 563 set for McKnat's enabling the team to gather one point to its credit. The big gun for Taylor & Messick was Kenny P. Outten, who scattered the pins for a fantastic 651 series, which included grand 223 and 231 games.

George Collins rolled a good 220 game and Bobby Collins also added a real fine effort with a 219 game for the T&M team.

Fry's American is still hanging around the top spot and Tuesday night gave them a big boost as Leroy Wheeler shattered the boards in the final game for a superb 246 game to amass a grand 616 series to lead the team on a four point romp over the T&M Rejects. Bill Brode and John Forbes also bowled good efforts for Fry's. Oscar Bishop and Roy Wright bowled good efforts for the Rejects.

Penn Central gave Jarrell's Fuel a rough time before dropping a 2 1/2 to 1 1/2 decision to them. Harold Melvin rolled a fine 533 set, to help keep Jarrell's up in the top half of the standings. The big asset for the Railroaders was Paul Baker, who hit a great 539 series.

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

If you must make a number of alterations for a commercial pattern to fit you well, you probably are using the wrong pattern. If you can find the correct size, figure type, style and brand, you should need to make only minor adjustments, unless there is an unusual figure problem.

Finding the right pattern is the problem. What size is best? Start with the ready-to-wear size you most often find fits best. You'll probably find this pattern size will fit you best also, even though your body measurements do not correspond to that size on the pattern charts.

If you are accustomed to making certain adjustments in ready-to-wear, you will probably need to make similar ones on your pattern. If you look for certain style features in ready-to-wear, look for these in a pattern, too. For example, if you look for skirts with ease in the hipline, look for this in the pattern style. Then, no pattern adjustments may be needed for slightly larger than average hips.

Even pattern companies are changing these old guide about buying pattern size by bust measure. They are suggesting taking a high bust measurement over the fullest part of the bust. The high bust measure is taken around the figure just under the armpit. If the high bust measure is two inches less than the overbust measure, buy pattern size by the high bust measure. Even this may give a pattern too large through the neck and shoulders for some figures.

It is important for the pattern to fit well through the shoulder area. It is easier to make pattern adjustments through the bust line than at neck and shoulders. If you have a small frame but with large bustline and soft flesh you probably can take a smaller pattern than your measurements would indicate. On the other hand, if you have a large frame and little excess flesh, you might need a size larger than the measurements indicate.

Pattern companies have made another change this year. If you compare the measurement charts with those of a year or two ago, you'll notice that an extra inch has been allowed to standard waist measurements. So if your waistline has been an inch larger than the standard, no adjustment is necessary now. If your waistline is more than the present standard measurement, it's still a simple matter to add a little extra at seams or let out the darts a little.

The correct figure type must be considered in relation to size. This will give a better fitting pattern because the pattern will be sized to length proportions. If you're on the short side, try pattern in the shorter types such as misses' petite, junior or junior petite or half-size. Misses' or women's patterns are for the taller figure. If you can't find the style you want in the shorter patterns, you may have to buy a smaller misses size to fit your length proportions, and make additions to width where needed.

The back waist length measurement is a better guide to figure type than total height. Take this measurement from the base of the neck to waistline and compare with the measurement charts.

Some brands of patterns will fit your individual figure

From time to time there are people who take potshots at agriculture as a deliberate polluter and recipient of high food prices. But agriculture is more of a public asset than it is a polluter, and farmers are less able to pass along their costs than other economic groups, nor do they have the economic ability to force higher prices and hold them.

Besides being a source of employment and income, agriculture is valuable because of the importance of open spaces, forests, streams, natural beauty, wildlife cover, and the preservation of the ecology balance. In this respect, agriculture, particularly that part which is dependent upon the land, is really a public asset that must not be permitted to deteriorate or be destroyed.

Farmers are often criticized because they must use pesticides and chemical plant food in order to produce a crop which is profitable. Given time, I believe that a new hope for controlling insects better than others. Differences in dart position, shoulder slope and armhole shape help account for this. The amount of pattern ease also differs from one brand to another, and from one design to another.

The fabric you choose will affect the fit. Knit fabrics have a varying amount of stretch. The more the fabric stretches, the less pattern ease is needed.

And each of us may have an idea of how clothing should fit. Some like a snug fit, others like plenty of room. The problem of a good fit is complex, but once solved, sewing is a breeze.

ies should be under age at the time of your death the court would have to appoint a guardian to receive and administer their shares of your estate until they are of age. This is an expensive arrangement.

2. If any of your beneficiaries, though of age, should be legally incompetent to receive and handle property the court would have to appoint a trustee to manage their affairs.

3. If you should wish to make a distinction in the distribution of your estate among your beneficiaries because of individual differences this could not be accomplished unless you make a will.

4. If you wish to hold your estate intact, at least during the lifetime of your wife or until your children were through school and of age, you could not accomplish this without a will. For example, if you left a wife, two children and four grandchildren, your estate, according to Delaware laws, would be divided into seven different parts. This situation might prevent your estate serving your family to the best advantage. This tragedy could only be averted through a will. Through a will you give your own instructions about the division of your property, and you name your own executor to carry out your wishes.

When the question, "Should I make a will?" is considered from all angles, does it not become a question, "Can I afford not to make a will?"

If you have made your will with the help of an attorney, then your only consideration need be that your will be kept up to date so that the births, marriages, deaths, or other conditions may not make its terms unfair to certain beneficiaries, and that the executor you have named is qualified to perform ably the difficult task of modern estate settlement.

There is an old proverb that says, "He who would look after his family must first look after his will."

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne W. Holberton

This is the time of year when farmers send more cattle to market and a downturn in beef prices comes. This year an unusually large number of cattle from feed lots have moved to market and wholesale meat prices are lower. The seasonal increase in pork supplies has brought about lower wholesale pork prices, too. These declines in the wholesale prices of beef and pork will be temporary, lasting only until November or thereabouts. About the first of November the upward trend will resume because of strong demand coupled with slowly growing supplies.

Veal production this year is expected to fall to 475 million pounds, 70 million pounds less than last year and 50% below output a decade ago. The demand for ordinary veal has steadily declined. However, "fancy" veal, which commands a premium price in gourmet restaurants and the few markets where it is sold, has grown from nothing to nearly 30 million pounds. This fancy veal generally sells at prices ranging up to 20% more than conventional veal. Fancy veal cutlets sell for around $3.75 per pound.

Supplies of broiler-fryers for October will be about the same as a year ago. Broiler marketings typically reach a low point for the year around holiday time, so look for marketing to decline during the last of October. This crop is up 7% this year. Turkey should be the least expensive meat choice this fall.

Egg production during next month will be smaller than last year. Prices for eggs will be increasing, but eggs will still remain a low cost protein choice.

Other foods high in protein are pea beans and pinto beans. Both are in plentiful supply. Pea beans are small, oval and white. They are a favorite for "home-style," baked beans, soups and casseroles for they hold their shape, even when cooked tender. Pinto beans are of the same species as kidney beans and red beans. Beige-colored and speckled, they are used mainly for salads and chili.

The tight fruit situation has continued all summer but now has been relieved by a large apple crop. Harvest of apples will be up 2 per cent this year.

The outlook for processed noncitrus fruit is for smaller packs for most items. Raisins, dried prunes, canned sweet cherries, and apricot products will be in short supply. Canned Clingstone peaches, pears, and fruit cocktail will be in adequate to ample supply. Prices for most processed fruits are expected to be higher than a year ago.

Vegetables in season during October include cabbage, cauliflower, carrots, onions, broccoli, squash, potatoes, sweet potatoes and brussels sprouts.

The plentiful foods list for October have been released by the USDA. The featured food is the apple. Other foods on the list are wheat products, turkeys, broiler-fryers, eggs, dry beans and canned applesauce and juice.

Poultry Team Places Third

The Delaware 4-H poultry judging team recently placed third at the 41st annual meeting of the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council at Kiamasha Lake, N.Y.

Team members are Miss Kathleen McFarland of Maryland, Miss Brenda Hurd of Clayton, and Charles Hudson of Felton. The team received a plaque for placing in the contest.

Team members also participated in individual judging. Miss McFarland received a blue award, Miss Hurd received a red award and Hudson received a white award for individual efforts.

Middletown Boy Places In Tractor Contest

Paul Feucht, a 17-year-old Middletown boy, placed sixth out of 17 entries in the eastern U.S. 4-H tractor operator's contest Sept. 24-26, in Richmond, Va. Feucht, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Feucht Jr., represented Delaware in the contest.

Feucht has spent eight years in 4-H club work, including four years in the tractor program.

The contest included two and four wheel driving events, a written examination on tractor care and safety, and general tractor handling abilities. Emphasis was placed on operational safety.

The contest was sponsored by the co-operative extension service in the participating states. Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware, accompanied Feucht to the contest and served as his coach.

Dairy Judging Team Places 4th

The Delaware 4-H dairy cattle judging team placed fourth in the Pennsylvania All American International Youth Dairy Cattle Judging Contest. The contest was held in Philadelphia, Sept. 24-25.

Team members were Miss Carol Blessing, Houston; Norman Voss, Clayton; Wayne Pierson, Clayton; and Miss Tricia Williams, Hockessin. They were accompanied by Dr. W.R. Hesselstine, extension dairyman at the University of Delaware.

Higher ranking teams were Maryland, first place; New York, second; and Kentucky, third.

4-H Horse Show Set

The 7th annual 4-H Horse Show will be held Oct. 15 near Odessa. The event will take place at the Carlotta Hampson Stables on Rt. 13 starting at 9 a.m. There will be 17 classes in English and Western divisions.

The show is sponsored by the Delaware co-operative extension Service and the Delaware 4-H Horse Advisory Committee.

Competition is limited to members of Delaware 4-H Clubs. Attendance is open to the public and admission is free. There will be a $2 entry fee for horsemen in each class.

Information on the show is available from Dr. D.C. Melvin Reinour, equine specialist at the University of Delaware, and from county 4-H agents in Newark, Dover and Georgetown.

Horse Field Opening Up

Since 1960, the number of horses in the United States has nearly tripled. Last year, the Department of Agriculture reported U.S. horsemen owned nearly 8 million animals.

This rapidly expanding interest in light horses is resulting in an increasing number of career opportunities, according to Dr. C. Melvin Reinour, assistant professor of animal science, who is an equine specialist at the University of Delaware.

Reinour says more people are needed in the areas of light horse training, horse farm management, teaching of equitation and in the allied fields of sales and technical services of feeds, pharmaceuticals and other supplies and equipment used by horsemen. The rapidly growing field of equine research also offers interesting and challenging career opportunities.

Within the University of Delaware's College of Agricultural Sciences, students interested in light horses can pursue a four-year course of study leading toward a bachelor of science degree. Within the curriculum of the department of animal science and agricultural chemistry, there are beginning, intermediate and advanced courses in horse science where students learn or improve their knowledge of basic husbandry.

This program also covers equine nutrition, physiology, pre-veterinary medicine and overall care of horses.

The University also maintains a small stable of horses to support its teaching and research programs. The animals are used for class demonstrations, breeding studies and nutrition research.

Many of the students enrolled in the light horse program belong to the University's Equestrian Club. The club participates in numerous horse events and sponsors its own equestrian show each spring.

Through the co-operative extension service at the University, educational programs on horse care are provided for both adults and youths. More than 300 Delaware 4-Hers are enrolled in horse projects throughout the state. Highlights of their program is the State Youth Horse Show each October sponsored by the extension service and the Delaware 4-H Horse Advisory Committee.

Take Soil Samples Now For Next Year's Crop

Fall is an excellent time to take soil samples for 1973 corn, soybean and vegetable crop production, according to Leo Cotnoir, soils scientist at the University of Delaware.

Soil conditions in the fall are much better for taking samples than in the spring when it is often too wet.

Soil samples taken now provide results early enough to allow spreading lime and fertilizer. Early application gives adequate time for the fertilizer to react before the next crop season.

A soil test begins with the purchase of a $1 soil sampling bag at your county agent's office. To prepare the sample, follow the instructions printed on the bag. Fill out the enclosed information sheet and send the sample directly to the soil testing laboratory at the university.

Date Set For Soybean Meeting

Soybean growers will want to circle Thurs., Feb. 1, 1973, on their calendars. That's the date of the seventh annual Del-Marva Soybean Meeting at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, Salisbury, Md.

The day-long program will feature sessions on soybean production, research, and marketing. Researchers will discuss the results of tests with new varieties, weed control, and analyze the future of soybeans.

The Del-Marva Soybean Meeting is sponsored by soybean processors, allied agricultural industries and the co-operative extension services of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia.

It is very important that soil samples be taken correctly and that the samples represent the area from which they are taken, says Cotnoir. A good sample involves taking a minimum of 20 cores per field or one core per acre if the field is larger than 20 acres.

Deadline Announced For Sewing Contest

A November 1 entry deadline has been announced for the 1972 Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool contest, according to Mrs. Barbara DeMesse, county home economist.

The contest is open to all Delaware youngsters between the ages of 10 and 21.

Judging of the state contest will be Dec. 9 at the agricultural hall of the University of Delaware. Entries at the state level will be divided into three age levels, seniors from 17 to 21, juniors from 14 to 16 and pre-teen from 10 to 13.

All entries in the contest must be made of 100% wool. Acceptable materials include mohair, cashmere, alpaca, camel, llama and vicuña. A fabric or yarn may contain five percent or less of another fiber and still be considered 100% wool. Bonded fabrics are acceptable. Interfacings, facings, linings and under linings need not be made of wool.

All contest garments must be made from fabrics or yarns made in the United States. Entry blanks must be signed by a representative of the store where the fabric was purchased. The name of the fabric manufacturer may be necessary if there is any doubt about the fabric being American-made.

The national finals will be in Washington, D.C. on Jan. 23.

Entry blanks may be obtained by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to Mrs. Barbara DeMesse, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark 19711, or by picking them up from her office. They may also be obtained from the state contest director, Mrs. Paul Roach, R.D. 2, Townsend, Del. 19734.

Shield Grain Augers, Save Hands and Feet

Grain augers take a number of hands and feet each year. But the number of accidents with augers can be greatly reduced if proper safety precautions are taken.

Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware, points out that new safety standards require that auger inlets be shielded to protect the operator from accidentally getting a hand or foot caught in the auger. And any farmer who employs a laborer or trades work with a neighbor must shield his augers to comply with the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

Williams says it's important to consider children when constructing auger shields. Each year a number of children lose hands, toes or feet by getting caught in augers. A typical accident involving children begins as they rest

Arthur 71 Winter Wheat Available For Fall Planting

A new high-yielding wheat variety is available for fall planting. Local seedmen have a small quantity of Arthur 71 available, according to Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

A moderately stiff-strawed, plump-kemeled, soft red winter wheat, Arthur 71 was developed by the Purdue (Indiana) Agricultural Experiment Station. Mitchell says the variety is similar to Arthur and Redcoat, with essentially the same resistance to leaf rust and powdery mildew. It may have better loose smut resistance than Redcoat.

Arthur 71 also has excellent resistance to Hessian flies. It is particularly resistant to the race of Hessian fly which attacks Redcoat and Arthur.

their hands or feet on the pile of grain flowing into an auger. The downward movement of the grain carries the hand or foot directly into the auger. The result is traumatic amputation.

A shield with one and one-half inch square openings at least four inches away from the auger and encircling the auger will not interfere with the grain flow and will prevent such accidents, Williams says.

While checking augers, he suggests making sure all PTO and belt shields are properly installed and in good condition.

Mitchell cautions growers, however, against using too much nitrogen on this new variety. Since Arthur 71, as well as Arthur, is not as stiff-strawed as Redcoat, it should not be spring top-dressed with as much nitrogen as Redcoat on fields where lodging is a problem.

Soybean Harvest Losses Expensive

Soybean growers can add as much as $6 per acre to their returns this fall through better harvest management, according to a national report on harvest losses. Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, says the average soybean grower loses as much as three bushels per acre through poor harvest management. That adds up to a national loss of $350 million annually to U.S. agriculture.

In a year when soybeans are in strong demand, there should be a special premium on minimizing harvest losses, according to Mitchell. He's co-operating with the National Soybean Crop Improvement Council to cut this year's harvest losses by two-thirds. This includes a planned program of soybean harvest management.

Neucleus of the program is adjustment and management of the combine. Prime problem areas in every combine are ground speed, reel speed, cutter bar height and separation of soybeans from pods, according to the council.

Here are seven specific steps that Mitchell believes will assure a more profitable soybean harvest:

1. Begin harvesting when soybean seed moisture reaches 13%. Shatter losses increase markedly when moisture level drops below 11.5%.
2. Harvest at an average combine speed between 2.5 and 4.0 miles per hour. Combines operate most efficiently at that range-and the cutter bar is allowed to ride down for maximum cut.
3. Count lost soybeans already on the ground before harvest-so that pre-harvest losses are not charged against combining. This permits accurate checking of harvest loss. Four beans per square foot indicate a bushel lost per acre.
4. Match ground speed to combine reel speed. Best speed ratio is a reel speed of 1.5 times the combine ground speed.

5. Cut soybeans as close to the ground as possible. The goal is to harvest all of the pods-even the very lowest. Tests show a 10% reduction in harvest losses when soybeans are cut at 2 1/2 inches.

6. Measure soybean losses from cutting, gathering and thrashing operation to pinpoint necessary adjustments. Then, go by the book.

7. Continually adjust the combine to changing crop conditions.

Political history lives in Capital

Constitution Avenue, the nation's most famous parade route, used to be a foul, stinking canal, the Capital Mall once sported bawdy houses, the site of the Department of Labor used to be known as "Murder Bay," and President Taft's cow Pauline used to graze behind the White House.

You can't see these things today when you walk down Washington's wide tree-lined boulevards. They've disappeared into the Capital City's unique past.

But the best part of Washington's history remains, is visible: is fascinating, and often is still functional. The Capital itself, for instance, is a priceless historical building dating back to 1800, and so are dozens of other Washington buildings still in use.

That little drug store where you buy a candy bar may be situated on the site of the former home of Peggy Eaton who scandalized Washington during Andrew Jackson's administration. Or that little neighborhood store on H Street might be the infamous Surratt boarding house.

There's history on every street, in every park, in every old building in the Nation's Capital.

As might be expected, Washingtonians are generally oblivious to it. Thousands of government workers trod Constitution Avenue daily, unaware that the broad avenue was once a canal and that Thomas Jefferson helped save a man from drowning at the intersection of Pennsylvania and Constitution Avenues. Or that the backdoor of the Whitehouse once faced the Potomac River and that dozens of cows grazed in the yard.

A leisurely walk through the city's wide streets is a tour of history itself. Start at the most logical place, the U.S. Capitol. The structure was originally occupied in 1800 when the Senate and House forsaked Philadelphia and jammed into the one completed segment, the relatively tiny and insignificant component just to the north of the present dome. It wasn't until 1811 that the corresponding and identical south building was completed and occupied by the House. A wooden runway connected the two houses, traversing the area where the dome now glistens. Americans were proud of their little Capitol, but it was a short-lived emotion: the invading British burned it—and the White House—in 1814.

The White House had been labeled the Presidential Palace when John Adams, grumbling and reluctant, first moved in in 1800. The aristocratic second president preferred the elegant confines of the former capital, Philadelphia.

Following the British withdrawal, only the exterior walls of the palace remained. The famed Gilbert Stuart painting of George Washington, saved by President James Madison's wife Dolly, still hangs in the White House East Room. It's not usually remembered, but Dolly saved one other portrait from the White House: her own, and it still hangs there for visitors to see.

The Capitol evolved slowly following its restoration in 1819. By 1829 there was a small dome in lieu of the wooden passageway; by 1851 the present wings for the Senate and House had been added to either end. And in 1835, following the surrender of the Confederacy, the present dome was completed.

Pierre l'Enfant, the French-born architect provided for a grand avenue connecting the Capitol and the Presidential Palace in his original design for the city. The avenue, of, course, turned out to be Pennsylvania Avenue, a wide, flood-prone mudhole for many years. Leaving Capitol Hill, today you can walk down Pennsylvania Avenue without seeing a single 100-year-old building. But knowledgeable residents know that Center Market, where slaves were auctioned until 1853, had been replaced by the National Archives, that the National Gallery of Art property was once part of the infamous canal, that the District's unemployment office has replaced the National Hotel (where John Wilkes Booth and other southern sympathizers lived), and that grassy expanse of the Mall across from the U.S. Court House was once the bawdy-house area.

At 14th and Pennsylvania stands the empty Willard Hotel, once the epitome of Washington Society.

Julia Ward Howe wrote the Battle Hymn of the Republic in the Willard after watching a parade of Union Troops.

Nearby at 15th and Constitution, stands the colossal U.S. Department of Commerce. Upon these grounds, Washington's first baseball game was played in 1860. The huge U.S. Department of Labor rises on Constitution between the 12th and 14th; during the Civil War, the area was known as Murder Bay, for appropriate reasons, and was the city's worst slum.

Several presidents, including Jefferson who installed sidewalks and planted trees, took special interest in renovating Pennsylvania Avenue; hence none of the original structures remain. Nearby, however, is historic Ford's Theatre, scene of the tragic April 14, 1865 shooting of President Lincoln. Ford's has been completely restored to its appearance that fateful night, and in 1968 resumed theatrical performances under the auspices of the National Park Service. The murder pistol is among the Lincoln memorabilia in the fine Lincoln Museum in the theater's basement. Just across the street is the Petersen House, where Lincoln died the following morning.

About five blocks away is Mrs. Surratt's boarding house, frequented by actor Booth and other probable conspirators. Mrs. Surratt was among those hanged at Washington's Ft. McNair and her son was apparently the only conspirator to survive (he fled to England and to Rome, was later arrested, returned, and freed). The house is now a neighborhood market in Washington's Chinatown.

The old Patent Office, known as Washington's most exquisite example of bureaucratic architecture, has survived as the home of the National Portrait Gallery and the National Collection of Fine Arts.

Across the Mall, the Smithsonian Institution's famed redbrick castle still stands, just as it did in 1846. Only the grounds outside and the exhibits inside have changed. (Who, a century ago could have imagined that a Lunar Landing Module, or even the Wright Brothers' plane, would one day be exhibited?)

Today's Tidal Basin and Lincoln Memorial site were once nothing more than part of the Potomac River. Then suitable for swimming, the big river, and its flanking swamps, once extended nearly to the present site of the Washington Monument. The monument was started in 1848 but work stopped in 1854, leaving a 152-foot stump which stood in disgrace for a quarter-century. The monument committee was traditionally short of funds, but the most ignominious blow came the night of March 6, 1854, when thieves stole Pope Pius IX's marble slab gift, overpowering the monument watchman and rowing away with the booty. It was never recovered.

Work on the monument was resumed in 1880 and was completed in 1884 without the loss of a single life. Another daring thief struck in 1935; he scaled a scaffold erected during a monument-cleaning operation, and made off with the platinum-tipped lightning rods, an after-dark climb of 555 feet!

The White House area contains many old and restored houses, including those occupied by Commodore Stephen Decatur, Presidents Munroe and Madison (during the White House restoration following the War of 1812).

Probably in no other city in America has history been better preserved than in Washington. For intents and purposes, the original White House is today little more than a museum. Add to that the thriving, living Smithsonian's four museums—the swiftest museums in the world—the National Gallery of Art, Corcoran Art Gallery, the Archives and the National Portrait Gallery, Washington becomes truly the historian's dream.

But if one building must be singled out as the most important stop in Washington for the history buff, it must be the Archives, the site of the old slave market. The original Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and the Bill of Rights are displayed there.

America wasn't always so conscious of its unique heritage: the Declaration of Independence hung on the wall of the War Department for many years, bleached and scorched by the sun from a nearby window.

Archivists didn't have an easy time saving the document. Today, although not in as good a condition as the other documents, the Declaration is displayed in a helium-filled case and is seen by thousands of the ancestors of its authors.

This was once the White House! President James Madison lived in the red-brick home after invading Britishers burned the real White House in 1814. Local folklore has it that the house is haunted.—Photo by the Washington Convention and Visitors Bureau.

Veterans Administration News

Q -- My husband was a World War II veteran. He passed away recently, and I am wondering if he is eligible for a headstone?

A -- Yes. Any deceased veteran whose last period of military service was terminated honorably is eligible for this benefit administered by the Army.

Q -- Can I be released from liability for a home I bought with a GI loan if my job requires transfer to another location?

A -- Yes, if the loan is current, the buyer agrees to assume your liability, and VA accepts him as a good credit risk. A release from liability does not automatically restore your GI home loan entitlement, however. A separate application must be submitted to VA or that.

Q -- After serving in the Army from 1959 to 1961, I was permanently and totally disabled in an automobile accident. Am I eligible for a non-service connected pension from the Veterans Administration?

A -- No. To be eligible, a veteran must have served during a period of war. Service after Jan. 31, 1955, and before Aug. 5, 1964, is peacetime service.
