1972-Wool Program Marketing Year Ends December 31

Russell C. Bowdle, Chairman Kent County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, today reminded growers that the 1972 marketing year under the wool program ends Dec. 31.

This means that payments for the current year will depend on completing all details of marketing either wool or lambs by that date. Marketings completed after Dec. 31 will become marketings in the 1973 marketing year, and thus not eligible for payments until early 1974.

Chairman Bowdle urges producers to make sure that all details for the 1972 sales are completed by the end of this year. This includes passing title to the buyer and having available all the information needed to determine the buyers total purchase price.

Applications for payments under the National Wool Act may be filed with the Kent County ASCS Office at any time, but the chairman urges that this be done as soon as possible. Incentive payments under the wool program are based on the average national price for marketings during the whole year, and this can be determined more exactly if reports on marketings are complete. ASCS therefore is urging that all 1972-year applications be filed before Jan. 31, 1973.

Payments for the 1972 marketing year will likely begin in April of next year.

Corporations Taxed Less Here

A recently completed study, released today by Governor Russell W. Peterson, shows that corporations doing business in Delaware are taxed less than in Maryland, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.

The Wilmington office of J. K. Lasser & Company, an international accounting firm prepared the study at the direction of Robert L. Halbrook, Secretary of Community Affairs and Economic Development, for the Governor's Committee to Recruit Corporate Headquarters.

The study assumes that a hypothetical corporation presently established outside of the four states wish to relocate a portion of its present operations, or locate a new expansion facility, in one of the four states. Computations were based on the new activity accounting for either 25 or 40 per cent of the company's total operations.

The study examined the amount and type of taxes paid under identical conditions by the company in each of the four states.

In the 25 per cent category, Delaware's tax amounted to $4,635. Maryland and New Jersey were $6,125 and $6,156, respectively while Pennsylvania had the highest tax, $15,063.

The results in the 40 per cent category again showed Delaware lowest with $7,416. Maryland's tax was $9,800, New Jersey's $9,850 and Pennsylvania's $24,100.

"The corporate tax structure in Delaware is attractive and more companies are recognizing this as an incentive to establish operations here," Governor Peterson said. "The result of this means more jobs for more Delawareans."

Halbrook noted that "With this report and other facts already established such as the availability of transportation, utilities, industrial sites and a good work force, we can compete favorably with other states for desirable new industries and corporate offices."

The report will be made available to companies interested in establishing facilities in Delaware.

KENT COUNTY CURRENTS

by

JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
Levy Court President

Kent County Court and facilities are critically over-crowded. The court system is especially handicapped because the number of criminal cases on the court calendar has doubled within two years. Additional courtroom space must be provided.

The Levy Court has the services architect through the help of the Delaware Supreme Court, at no cost to the county. He has presented us with a report on the courthouse expansion costs. The costs were much higher than we had anticipated.

He stated that a new building in a different location would cost three million two hundred thousand dollars, that an addition to the present courthouse would cost two million three hundred thousand dollars, and to purchase

State Charges City With Water Infiltration

The City of Harrington is again having a problem with the Water Resources section of the Division of Environmental Control on water infiltration.

N.C. Vasuki, manager of the Water Resources section informed Dudley Willis, the city's engineer, that steps would have to be taken to curb the infiltration of storm waters into the sewer system.

City Council, after hearing the report read by City Manager, Jack Harrington, Monday night at its regular December meeting, was chagrined, to say the least. To prevent storm waters from infiltrating into the sanitary sewer system, the City had gone to considerable expense sealing manhole covers to prevent surface water infiltrating the sanitary-sewer system.

A Recipe For A Happy Holiday Protect Your Gifts; Lock Your Car

Whether you are a pre-planner and do your Christmas shopping early or a list-minute shopper, who hurries and hopes not to forget anybody, one thing to remember is to put those beautiful packages in the automobile trunk and lock it.

You have put time into selecting the gifts and part of your hard-earned pay as well. Those bicycles and trikes, dolls and special items for spouse or special friend represent too much love to have them stolen from your unlocked car. Don't tempt a burglar.

There are no statistics on the amount of merchandise stolen from unlocked cars and from locked cars in which articles are left in plain view, but it almost certainly runs into the millions of dollars.

And there are statistics which tell about the number of cars stolen every year. Christmas season is an especially bad time to be without your car! A car thief can find as many errands that need running at this season as you can. Be sure he doesn't use your car.

The Insurance Information Institute warns that a large proportion of the 941,600 autos stolen last year were easy thefts, because the owner either LEFT HIS KEYS IN THE CAR, or left the door unlocked.

If you'd like to have your car throughout the holidays be sure you lock it and pocket the keys. May your car be safe from tigers--and burglars.

The Lockerman family, including three daughters and a son, live at 20 Becker Drive.

Wood has studied at the National Trust School of Northwestern University and Stonier Graduate School of Banking at Rutgers. A member of the Trust Operations Officers Association of Philadelphia, he also belongs to the Estate Planning Council, Church Club of Delaware and the Concord Country Club.

Strep Detection Program Initiated In Sussex County

The Delaware Heart Association is initiating a Strep Detection Program in the Sussex County Schools. Strep infection may pre-dispose to rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease. Rheumatic heart disease is the only type of heart disease that is clearly preventable through early detection and treatment. It primarily affects the school-age child.

It is the goal of the Delaware Heart Association, through the Strep Detection Program to seek out and treat strep infection through early detection.

Home room teachers will be requested to send all students with sore throats to the school nurse for a throat culture. Lab analysis will be accomplished within 24 hours and positive results returned to the school nurse. The family will then be notified and advised to seek immediate treatment through their family physician. If follow-up through the family physician seems unlikely, arrangements will be made for treatment at the Child Health Clinic, Georgetown.

The Strep Detection Program is a continuing service of the Delaware Heart Association and the Delaware Heart Fund. Successive programs will expand to Day-Care Centers, Head Start Programs and eventually to Kent County, Wilmington inner-city schools and eventually to the whole state.

Fertilizer Prices May Rise In '73

Although many farmers have just completed harvesting this year's crop, they should take a close look at next year's fertilizer program. According to Dr. William Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, farmers who use a large amount of phosphorus and potash on their crops may save some money by purchasing next year's supply before January.

Mitchell says that during the recent Delaware-Maryland Plant Food Association meeting, it was pointed out that the favorable export price for phosphorous would cause high-

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

Christopher Columbus didn't find the exotic spices he was looking for when he discovered the "new world" but he shouldn't have been disappointed. He and his shipmates found a golden treasure - the sweet potato. It was mentioned in the records of their fourth voyage, although it is believed that they found them on their early voyages to the West Indies.

The history of the sweet potato before this time is unclear, but it had been used for quite some time on the American continents. The Incas of Peru and the Malays in Central America made extensive use of this vegetable. Some varieties were prepared as food, while other varieties were used by the artists as colorings for their paints.

The sweet potato was the most important single food in bringing the people through such trying periods as the American Revolution, the Civil War and that period after the war called the Reconstruction Era.

Today the sweet potato is just as good and just as versatile for it can be boiled, baked, browned, fried and candied. It can be used to make biscuits, bread, muffins, croquettes, pies, custards cookies or cakes. This is the time of the year to enjoy this vegetable since many are now on the market.

There are two general types of sweet potatoes. One type has soft, moist flesh when cooked and high sugar content (this sweet potato is commonly, but incorrectly called yams). The second type, when cooked, has a firm, dry, somewhat mealy flesh, which is usually light yellow or pale orange in color, as contrasted to the deep orange color flesh of the moist type.

Early fall sweet potatoes are not cured but by mid November all sweet potatoes are cured and will keep much better.

What is curing? It is a heating process that protects the quality, flavor and moisture of the sweet potato. The potatoes are put in large storage warehouses where the temperature and humidity are regulated. For 10-14 days, the sweet potatoes are held at 80°-85°F and 85-90% humidity. After this initial curing period the temperature is lowered to approximately 60°F, but the humidity is kept high. This method of curing keeps the potatoes from drying out.

When you buy sweet potatoes look for those that are smooth and plump. Knobby and indented ones can be just as delicious, but have a high waste percentage. To avoid early decay (because at best sweet potatoes are highly perishable). Choose those that have a fresh appearance and are bright, clean and dry.

Sweet potatoes need to be handled with care. They bruise easily and need special attention, so buy only what you will use in a week and keep them in a dry, cool place. Do not refrigerate this vegetable. Cold temperatures cause starch change which alters the flavor considerably.

When you eat this vegetable remember you are getting a nutritious dish. Sweet potatoes rank very high in vitamin A content and give you significant amounts of vitamin C, iron and thiamine.

Flammability Research On Children's Sleepwear

The problems of flammable fabrics and children's sleepwear has been a major source of concern to legislators, clothing manufacturers and parents for several years. It is a problem which comes into clearer focus during the Christmas buying season when many parents are buying gifts of sleepwear for their children.

Research is currently being conducted at the University of Delaware on various aspects of the problem. Mrs. Virginia Ahrens, an assistant professor in the College of Home Economics, is studying the effects of construction techniques on the flammability of sleepwear. Her research is part of a northeast regional research program on fabric flammability.

Mrs. Ahrens' project follows discoveries about clothing flammability which resulted from the Flammable Fabrics Act of 1953. That act removed fabrics which flash burned from the market. It was soon found, however, that many items which passed the test in fabric form were dangerously flammable when the same fabric was sewn into a garment supported by seams and with the addition of zippers and trim.

Mrs. Ahrens is using seven types of fabrics in her study. They are treated and untreated cotton flannel, treated and untreated cotton printcloth, an untreated blend of 65 per cent cotton and 35 per cent polyester, fire-resistant acetate-polyester trikot and nomex baste.

Construction features being evaluated are a self-ruffle of the fabric, merrowed seams

Dr. Jerry C. Beasley Compiles Checklist Of English Prose Fiction

Dr. Jerry C. Beasley, assistant professor of English at the University of Delaware, has compiled "A Checklist of Prose Fiction Published in England, 1740-49," published by the University Press of Virginia.

The book attempts to provide as complete a record as possible of all the novels published in England during the years from 1740-49, including reprints and foreign fiction in translation.

The 1740's in England were marked by the appearance of three new artists: Samuel Richardson, Henry Fielding and Tobias Smollett. These three have received close scholarly attention, but the crowd of lesser fiction-writers of the time have received only the scantiest notice, Dr. Beasley says.

These minor writers may have been neglected justifiably for most of their work is "trash," he adds, but their work makes up a large part of the decade's fiction. No matter what the quality, their work contributed to the climate in which Richardson, Fielding and Smollett achieved their first successes.

The checklist is organized by years, and works are entered by the earliest verifiable date of appearance. Following the title, each entry usually provides such information as the names of booksellers, number of pages, book format, price and location of at least one extant copy, in an American library if possible.

The book also contains two appendices which list unverified editions of authentic works and unauthenticated titles.

However, it is important that consumers realize that this act applies only to garments manufactured after July 29, 1972. Mrs. Ahrens says. Garments in stores now will bear the warning label if they were manufactured after that date and do not pass the flammability test.

However, garments in stores which do not have a label may have been made after that date and not require a label. She adds that this problem will cease in July, 1973. At that time, all sleepwear on the market must comply with the labeling act. The negative label option will not be available. All children's sleepwear up to size 14 will be included at that time.

Fertilizer Pollution Hearings

Environmental groups often accuse agriculture of being a major cause of pollution, particularly pollution caused by fertilizers. An outstanding instance of this took place in 1971 when the Illinois Pollution Control Board held a series of hearings to decide if the state should pass regulations to control the use of fertilizer.

A report on the Illinois hearings and their results was given recently to Donald N. Collins, vice president for communications with the Fertilizer Institute, at the 1972 Lime and Fertilizer Conference held at the University of Delaware.

The proposed Illinois regulations would have controlled the rate and method of applying fertilizers and animal manure. Factors such as soil temperatures, soil type, soil slope, frozen soils and planting dates were included in the regulations.

The regulations were proposed because of a charge that nitrogen and phosphate from agricultural fertilizers were polluting surface and ground waters in the state.

In March, 1972, the Pollution Control Board announced it would not adopt the proposed regulations. Dr. Sam Aldrich, a spokesman for the board, cited reasons for not adopting the regulations: "No one posed credible methods to produce needed food that would result in less nitrate reaching ground and surface waters."

Collins says the hearings are significant for a number of reasons. One of the most important factors is that the proposed regulations were not adopted, despite considerable pressure from several environmental groups.

Another point of significance is that criticism of agriculture had become so strong in an important agricultural state like Illinois that pressure for regulation of fertilizer use could be brought to bear.

It is also important that almost all of the farmers testifying at the hearings said their current fertilizer application practices were well within the limits of the proposed regulations, Collins said. The Board tried to find farmers who were consistently fertilizing at higher rates, but none could be found who would testify.

Collins concluded by stressing the importance of co-operation by both state and national fertilizer organizations for the protection of the agricultural community.

Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool Contest

Seventy-three Delaware youngsters will be judged on their sewing skills Dec. 9 at the annual Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool Contest in Agricultural Hall at the University of Delaware in Newark. Judging will begin at 9:30 a.m. and be followed by a fashion show at 11:30 a.m. The fashion show is open to the public.

Contestants are divided into three groups. Preteens, 10-13, are judged on pants, skirts or jumpers. Juniors, 14-16, and seniors 17-21, are judged on a two-piece suit, coat or dress. All garments must be made of 100 percent wool.

Girls will be judged on fashion, fit and poise while wearing the garments. The garments will also be judged on construction. Judges in the contest are Janet Reed, Eileen Aist, Fran Mayhew, Ella Morris, and Frances Smith.

Winners in the junior and senior divisions at the state contest will attend the regional contest at Rutgers University in late December. The national contest will be held in Washington, D.C., in January.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

MOON MEN

Back in early stages of space accomplishments while Russia was trying to be first on the moon, one of their aviators, when asked if he found any trace of God out there replied, "of course, in the negative."

When the same question was put to John Glenn after his memorable first orbit of the earth, his reply was, "I didn't have to go out there to find God." Which brings to mind the following lines from "Praise of His Glory" by Georgia Horn.

I Believe It

Dear Lord I do not understand
Just how this ball on which I stand
Was made by nothing but thy hand—
But I believe it.

Thy holy word, some cast aside
Its righteous precepts oft deride
Its warnings scorn, its judgments chide—
But I believe it.

When we lose the religious concept of freedom we move toward slavery. Christianity shows us man's relationship to God through Jesus Christ.

Catholic Diocese Discloses Financial Report For 1971-1972 Fiscal Year

The Catholic Diocese of Wilmington through its Bishop, the Most Reverend Thomas J. Mardaga, D.D., last Fri., Dec. 1, made public a report of operations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1972. It was the third such report issued by the Diocese and covers the departments and services provided throughout the Delmarva Peninsula. It does not cover the operations of individual churches, parish schools, or the many operations of religious communities of men and women throughout the Peninsula.

In his letter to the people of the Diocese, Bishop Mardaga said, "I publish this summation with the conviction that such reporting is my responsibility and that the people of the Diocese should be informed concerning their contributions and the expenditure of their funds for diocesan programs and services."

Total revenue on the diocesan central office level from all sources amounted to $1,010,105.48. This amount represented parish assessments, diocesan collections, designated trust and agency income, special gifts for specific purposes, and departmental income. The special collections are not retained in the Diocese but are sent to various agencies working in the mission field, poverty, overseas and domestic relief services.

Total expenditures for the fiscal year amounted to $966,683.60. Also included in the report is a balance of $43,421.88, which is to be applied to outstanding financial obligations such as payment of $142,200 within the calendar year of 1972 for debt service and for lay retirement.

Mission work collections produced $175,962.15, but in this category, expenditure was $204,955.56. The disbursement is greater because contributions which arrive after proceeds have been forwarded to respective national or international agencies are carried over to the next fiscal year. Some disbursements for local mission work are made from non-recurring revenue of designated gifts.

Operations of various departments within the Diocese involved an expense of $403,441.37. Revenue received by these agencies amounted to $141,585.19. Included in the group is the work of the Bishop's Office, Chancery, Vicar General Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, Department of Education, and Family Life.

Also involved are the following departments: Finance, Inner-City, Liturgical, Newman Center, Public Relations, General Services, Tribunal, and the phase out period of the Catholic Information Center.

Other expenditures account for $358,286.67. This represented the operation of Catholic Press of Wilmington, Inc. (Delmarva Dialog), various services, retirement programs for clergy and lay employees, miscellaneous trust and agency distribution, and memberships such as the United States Catholic Conference and the Maryland Catholic Conference.

The full report is carried in the December 1st issue of the Delmarva Dialog. It covers as well the operation of St. Mark's Diocesan High School, Catholic Youth, Social Services, Seminary Fund, and Catholic Cemeteries, Inc.

Trainer Dunnigan At Dover Downs

Horse trainers are made - not born. It takes years of association with horses to learn all there is to know before a horseman can assume the responsibilities of training race horses. Ambition, dedication, confidence, patience and racing expertise are important attributes that go to make a successful trainer.

Eddie Dunnigan is well known as a driver in Eastern harness circles. At 33 years of age, he felt he was ready to make the move to trainer, and begin building a stable of quality horses capable of competing in Stake events of National importance.

During the past five years, Eddie has been employed by Bill Haughton; together they have campaigned across the country. During those years, Eddie accumulated the required knowledge to qualify him as a first class trainer of harness race horses.

Last Saturday night at Dover Downs, Eddie Dunnigan fielded his first horse (Ione's Dream 2:01 p) as a trainer. It wasn't an auspicious debut, but it was important to Eddie. In the program listings behind the word trainer, the name of E. Dunnigan appeared for the first time.

Eddie Dunnigan's credentials qualified him as a trainer well in advance of his debut at Dover Downs, he explained why he waited till now to become a trainer.

"I grew up around horses," Eddie said. "I even had a public stable on the West Coast for eight years, but I realized I would have to go to work for a top trainer - if I wanted to race good horses. I sold out and went with Bill Haughton." "We've competed in stake races across the country as

Harry Benson Runs Well In Middletown 5-Miler

Harry "Smooth" Benson, the graceful, long-distance-running prospect, from out Brownsville way, did an excellent job, in a five-mile race, at Middletown, Sunday afternoon.

The fourteen-year-old, Lake Forest High freshman, was the youngest of the thirty or more runners, who finished the grind. Benson's ninth place finish was achieved under difficult circumstances. He had never been in a race longer than 2.8 miles, had worked out only in the past three weeks and arrived in Middletown barely in time to run, without warming up.

Benson sprinted to the wire to nip Dwight Hackett, who was the first downstate cross-country runner. Hackett competed in the 1957 Delaware Scholastic cross-country championship wearing the Blue and Gold of Harrington High. H.H. S. started cross-country on a team basis in 1958, closely followed by Greenwood High under Jim Hawpe and Milton High led by Pete Guest. Harold McDonald was the coach of the pioneer Harrington Lions.

Harry Benson narrowly missed the No. 1 spot at Lake Forest High, this past season. With three more seasons in which to compete, he may annex some of the Lake Forest distance running records, which are held by Chris Wetherhold, who was No. 2 harrier at Washington College, Chestertown, Md., this autumn. These records are (approximately):

- Rockford, Wilmington 2.1 miles - 11:24
Lake Forest course 2.4 miles 12 minutes flat.
Track - 1/2 mile 2:01.5 mile - 4:28.4
2 miles - 9:53.3

Thoughts From Roth

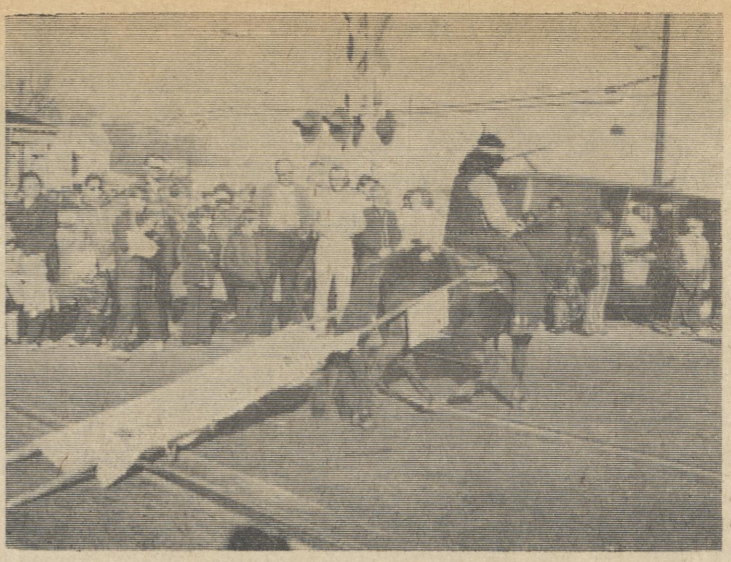

In the closing days of its session, the Congress failed to act on the President's request for a $250 billion spending ceiling. In my opinion, this was a great mistake.

The President has indicated support for legislation which I introduced twice in the last twelve months. Both my bills were designed to clamp a no exceptions ceiling on the Federal government's spending, both in 1972 and 1973. The House Ways and Means Committee adopted and carried my legislation, and the Senate Finance Committee also reported it through.

I simply cannot believe that there is any program in any department that would not benefit from tighter management. We could do more in Washington, on fewer dollars, if Congress would only impose on itself the discipline of an absolute budget ceiling. After all every private enterprise, every household, and every unit of local government must eventually tighten its belt. Why shouldn't the Federal government do the same?

As the author of these spending bills, I am acutely aware of the criticism that they gave away too much authority to the President to cut programs he felt were unnecessary, or at least overfunded. It is true that Congress is authorized to set our spending priorities by the process of appropriating money each year. So why then should the President be able to change these legislative decisions?

Under perfect conditions, if Congress were to set responsible spending guidelines for itself, and stick to them, the Terry Vincent riding her pony depicting an Indian Brave pulling a travois.

Diamond State Telephone Company Float

President should not be given this special privilege. But this Congress has been reckless, I think, authorizing more than $25 billion more in expenses this session than it did last year. By ringing up huge deficits - some $37 billion in FY 1973 - Congress has only added to the pressures of inflation, and someone must suffer for these excesses. Without some control, we all will pay the penalty, with higher taxes, higher prices, or both.

And I felt it was necessary to give the President this extraordinary power to help head off these unwanted outcomes.

This recent experience has convinced me, and some of my Senate colleagues, that we should not wait until we are faced with a spending crisis before acting. We need proactive, not retroactive legislation, and I am now working on a bill for 1973 which will, I hope, bring new budgetary controls to the Congress.

TOWN AND COUNTRY TOPICS

FRANCIS WEBB
KENT COUNTY AGENT

Evolution is constantly changing our environment. The same is happening in the agricultural industry; however, it is not a result of evolution. It is a result of continued research and education to develop new ways, new crops, and new markets.

We at the University of Delaware have been working extensively over the past years to develop many new techniques, crops, and markets that can be used to enhance Delaware's agriculture. To pin one of these down a little further, let's talk about the potential of new crops for Delaware and the Peninsula.

When looking for new crops you have to keep in mind the complexity of such an adventure. Take, for example, the most recent crop development in our area, the soybean. When you speak of new crops, most people envision large scale markets that grow overnight and the kind of crop that many farmers can grow and sell in large quantities on a competitive market. The soybean has done exactly that. However, the growth of the soybean in our area was a result of demand rather than producers' efforts to start a new mass market. As realized today, the soybean market has been growing ever since its introduction, and continues to grow on the Eastern Shore, as well as other production areas in the United States.

Now let's focus on some of the crops that are available to our growers and look at what demand and markets we have for these crops. The first one that comes to mind is malting barley. This product can put things under the table in a hurry, if you don't watch what you are doing! (However, this is only the finished product.) The general demand for beer and malt liquor has grown rapidly the last decade. At the present time, much of the malt barley is brought in from the Mid West to local breweries. It is known that good quality malting barley is desired by these facilities here in the East. This crop is presently being grown in Delaware and Maryland. It has several advantages as a new crop because there are potentially higher profits to be made in comparison to other grain crops, as well as it can be adapted into crop rotations quite easily.

A 50c per bushel premium is being paid by breweries for production here in the East. However, along with this increased price, the grower must produce a crop that meets certain requirements by the breweries. These include low protein content, high germination, and bright seed. These requirements are presently being accomplished by growing the malting variety of barley called Tschermak.

Sod production is another potential crop for our area. We have limited acreage in our state now, but with the activity in urbanization in Eastern Shore areas, this is a potential ball of fire. The technology in growing and handling this product is constantly changing and making sod more and more competitive with the seed industries. In many cases, there is no substitute for this commodity when talking about ditch banks, waterways, and in many housing developments. There is a very favorable return to the grower if properly managed. I would predict that there will be a sizable increase in total acres grown in Delaware over the next ten years.

You have heard a little bit about the crop for the birds. This is talking about sunflower and millet production. More and more Americans are feeding birds. It has been estimated that there is some three thousand tons of bird seed sold here in the metropolitan areas of the Northeast. At the present time, the University is working with such crops as to their suitability for production and profits for growers in our state. These crops and markets will be explored in the future and possibly limited commercial acreage will be planted in 1973.

Nursery crops and greenhouse crops are being looked at in the same light as our sod production. With increased population, there will be a greater demand for these products in and around the home. Especially now that much of our public is even more environmental conscious, it is making these enterprises even more attractive. Many of these new or potential crops for this area take more and better management to grow the quality product the market demands. I believe with such a stable agricultural industry that we have here in Delaware that many of our growers will fill these new crop and production demands as they are made available. By doing this, they will be better able to compete for land and labor as a result of increased profits.

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

Are you buying gifts of clothing this year? Probably so, if you are a typical family. Studies show that many family clothing items are acquired as gifts. The supply of gift items is plentiful at the holiday season and we have choices (good and bad) not available at any other time. It's also a way of trying to meet high living costs by combining gift and clothing items on the family budget. But before you start looking in the stores for ideas, do some pre-planning at home give some thought to the type of things the recipients like, the styles they wear and the colors they like. Do tastes run to conservative clothes or extreme fashions? Some people can't wait to wear the latest craze, others would be embarrassed to wear it in public.

If you are buying clothing gifts, you probably know the individuals personality and preferences pretty well. It's easy to be swayed by the attractive displays in stores and to make choices you would not make at a less hurried time. Some gifts are made to attract your attention in the store and they look great under the Christmas tree, but are they appropriate for the one who will receive them?

Go shopping with a list of specific sizes for all items of clothing apparel. Size are easier to buy today with stretch items and "one size fits all" gloves and hoes. But even if you do know sizes, it's no insurance that clothing will fit because there are variations in brands and styles. Many items simply must be tried on for accurate fit. If you suspect your Santa might give clothing gifts, give him a list of your sizes, and even list some of the brands you know fit you reasonably well. It may save returns after Christmas when the choice is not as great.

If you are considering expensive items such as coats and outer wear, maybe this is not the time for a surprise. If people have definite ideas about their clothing, they might prefer to choose their own. Part of the fun of a new outfit is making the selection. A gift certificate may be a happy compromise. Choices might not be as great after Christmas, but after Christmas sales will give more for the money.

Look for quality when you buy. The holiday season seems to be a good time to trap the unknowing and the impulse buyer and there is much shoddy merchandise with eye-catching gimmicks to lead even the astute shopper astray. Fancy packaged items look great, too, but you may find either poorer quality or that you are paying extra for the fancy package.

The new care directions mean that everyone who receives a clothing gift will have care directions attached this year. But include all hang tags anyway. They often give specific information about the product which will be useful in giving it the best care.

Winter Dairy Series Set

A series of winter dairy meetings sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Delaware will be held January 10, 17, 24, and 31. The programs will be presented at three different locations in the state each day. The series will start at 10 a.m. at the University's Georgetown substation. Each program will be repeated at 1:15 p.m. at the University of Delaware Teaching Center, 602 Fairview Ave., Dover, and at 8 p.m. in Crothers Brothers store at Mount Pleasant.

At the January 10 meeting, University specialists will discuss the milk, price and farm outlook for 1973. There will also be a discussion of the optimum size of dairy farms and various management practices.

On January 17, Dr. Harry Ainslie, professor of dairy husbandry at Cornell University, will discuss the DHIA record system and the value of records to dairymen. William Wells, president of the Dairy Herd Improvement Association in Delaware, will explain some of the changes that are taking place in DHIA.

The January 24 program will focus on the problems of animal waste disposal. Delaware specialists will discuss new approaches to handling animal wastes and Lister V. Hall, Jr., ASCS executive director in Kent county, will outline cost sharing plans. The final meeting in January 31 will feature discussion of ways to cut feed costs.
