Harrington Fire Company Fund Appeal

On December 31, 1972 the annual Harrington Fire Co. annual fund appeal will come to an end. At the time this goes to press we are but several dollars away from our goal of $5,000.00. On behalf of the members of the fire company I say thank you. We have worked hard this year to improve our service to the community and you have rewarded us with your generous response to our appeal accordingly. It would be nice to be able to print the names of each and every contributor because almost everyone likes to see their names in print, but for fear of missing a name we would just like to thank everyone and promise to continue providing the best fire and emergency service we possibly can. For those of you who took the time to drop us a note indicating how you feel about Harrington Fire Co. and apologizing for not being able to give more, believe me, we understand. Everyone today is besieged with mail requesting donations for many various reasons, and it becomes increasingly difficult to give when demands for money in other areas are also great. I think it can be said, without fear of contradiction, that ours is not a finesse organization. However, we do hope that we make up for this shortcoming in our attempt to provide a community service that can be worthy of consideration to an annual fund appeal such as ours. Citizens of Harrington and our fire district we salute you! Thanks!

City Receives First Installment On Federal Revenue Sharing

The City of Harrington, Monday received its first installment of revenue sharing from the federal government according to City Manager Jack Harrington.

Revenue sharing is a process by which units of state, local, and county governments receive part of revenue paid by them to the federal government.

Harrington said Monday he had received a check for $33,761 for Jan. 1 to June 30 of this year. He added a report from the Treasury Department indicated a similar appropriation tion would be received by the City the early part of January for July 1 to the end of this year.

Continuing, Harrington said yearly payments, to continue five years, would be paid quarterly, with the first 1973 payment due in April.

The monies cannot be used to reduce taxes or to match federal grants.

City Council has given no hint as to the use of the money, but it has street, sewer, and water projects where funds are urgently needed.

Meanwhile, other Kent County revenue-sharing appropriations are as follows: Kent County, $269,379; Bowers, $2,596; Camden $7,161; Cheswold, $1,200; Clayton $7,367, and

Dover, $245,293; Farmington, $361; Frederica, $1,665; Hartly, $347; Houston, $2,170; Kenton, $2,875; Leipsic, $898, and Little Creek, $669; Magnolia, $1,436; Smyrna, $39,437; Viola, $2,160; Woodside, $431 and Wyoming, $6,435. Total for Kent County, $625,911.

FENCE TALK

Some friends are seen almost every day. Many have not been seen for years. Yet a seasonal "Fence Talk" note may serve to help bring you all up-to-date.

Please think of this as a personal Christmas and New Year's wish. I've always tried to write or speak publicly as if to a single person. Folks say it seems to filter through this way.

The year of 1972 has been good to the Vapaas, despite the lingering effects of the October 1969 stroke and the November 1971 heart attack.

This year also hatched this self styled Agribusiness Advisor, defined as a worn out county agent now trying to peddle much of what I once gave away. For example, a local businesswoman asked if I knew what a Gynura plant is. I told her no, but it sounds like the Latin genus term for a house plant. Sure enough, Dr. Charles Dunham of the University of Delaware horticultural faculty, came up with the common name: Purple Passion Plant.

An old Cornell University professor, Ken Post, in his 1946 text on "Plants and Flowers in the Home," uses the less flashy term: Velvet Plant. In any case, the lady said, "well, it has not done much for my passions and is kind of ugly." Yet, I find the velvety texture and variety of color to be of interest, even attractive.

Our four and a half acre Christmas tree growing and selling farm--as share-croppers--continues as a part-time activity. This year we are also offering "canned" seedlings along with trees to trim. Our neighbors, the Pat Dyers, make it possible to over-see the tougher jobs. We always seem to have a few customers who want to grow their own trees.

We are grateful that Mother (at 84 years of age) and Mauri (Maurice at 81 years of age) remain in good health and are able to keep up their retirement bungalow on one corner of the Marley Farm north of Elkton, Md. Most of the farm has long since been sold off and seems to be moving into new housing developments.

County Employees In Kent To Get Pay Raises Jan. 1

Kent County government workers will get a 5 per cent raise Jan. 1.

Tuesday the County Levy Court approved increases for all employees but elected officials. It will add about $24,000 to the annual payroll.

The payroll now runs about $480,000, not including salaries for elected officials.

Jack Haggerty, chief custodian of the county courthouse, also got a raise retroactive to Dec. 1. Attempts to raise Haggerty's salary last summer were scrapped after being criticized as unwarranted.

Haggerty will now make about $7,400 a year.

Action on raises for the 100 county employees came after a lengthy session behind closed doors.

The county got two early Christmas presents yesterday checks totaling $282,600.

First was the federal revenue-sharing money, $269,000. It was deposited in the general

Choose The Right Christmas Tree

Selecting the right tree for Christmas is one of the major projects of the holiday season, says Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Unless the tree lot has an unusually complete selection, you will probably have a choice of Scotch pine, Norway spruce or balsam fir. The Scotch pine has long, sharp needles, is usually quite dense and bushy and holds its needles the best of the three.

Balsam fir has flat, waxy needles arranged in rows of two on the twig and holds its needles well if freshly cut. The Norway spruce has thick, short, sharp needles but holds them poorly.

Choice of a tree may also depend on size, aroma, color, taper and number of defects in the tree, says Stevens. To avoid buying a tree that is too large, he advises measuring the area in which you intend to place it.

Trees are sold by size, by choosing one that will fit the available space rather than one that must be trimmed down, you'll save on the purchase price.

Where you put the tree should also determine the quality of the tree you buy. Premium trees have four good sides and are ideal in picture windows or in the center of the room. However, if the tree is to stand in a corner or against the wall, a three-sided tree of lower quality will cost less and look just as attractive.

Check the density of the tree. When you look at it, you shouldn't see much of the main stem. Make sure the tree has a healthy color--that the foliage isn't yellowish, brownish or off color.

Look at the "handle" or base of the tree. It should be straight and measure as long in inches as the tree is tall in feet. If the base is crooked or too short, your tree may not balance properly in its stand.

When you choose your tree, shake it. If the tree is fresh it will drop very few needles. Trees begin to lose moisture as soon as they are cut. Another test for freshness is to run your finger across the edge of the stump. It will be sticky with resin if the tree is fresh.

To keep your tree fresh, cut the butt at a sharp angle about an inch above the original cut and put it immediately in a stand that can hold water. "To ensure a fresh tree throughout the holiday season, continue to water it regularly--at least once every other day," stresses Stevens.

If you plan to store the tree a few days before putting it up in your house, keep it outdoors in a shaded area free from wind. The garage is a good place, says Stevens.

Those beautiful chimes, pealing at noon and eventide these crisp winter days, emit from the belfry of Trinity Methodist Church.

Editorial by J. Harvey Burgess--One of the side issues that had quite a bit to do with bringing on the Civil War, although it has been neglected by historians, was the custom some Northern cooks had of using sugar in making cornbread. We've never tasted this muffiny insult to an honest bread in the South, but we've had to accept it in the North. That bit of culinary sacrilege can be forgiven, but when they begin to sweeten lima beans, broccoli--and even turnip greens--as cooks in some eating places are doing, "sumpin'" ought to be done about it.

We believe the rich processes of nature know the proper flavor for such vegetables, and we like them in their natural way much better than the sickeningly sweet substitute. The idea of serving the traditional hog jowl--with sugared turnip greens, to the residents of Kent, and especially of Sussex, is enough to bring on a shooting--and if such shooting should occur, and we're called to jury service--we'll vote favor of acquittal, and in a matter of seconds.

New Regulation Already In Effect For Coast Guard

A new Coast Guard regulation, effective immediately, to require better identification of all boats should assist in reducing thefts and recovering stolen craft, according to officials of the Department of Natural Resources.

House Temperatures Controls

You turn it up—your husband turns it down. All winter long.

The thermostat, of course. What else?

But, a thermostat is intended to keep your house at a steady temperature. It's not an off-on switch, says Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware. "You shouldn't need to adjust it very often."

Forget about the numbers on the thermostat dial and set it to the most comfortable temperature. Leave it there. Too-frequent dial changing may overtax the heating system.

To discover the best setting for you, raise or lower the dial temperature by only one mark until you're comfortable during the day.

Sometimes, however, you can save five to eight per cent of your fuel bill by setting the thermostat back 5 to 10 degrees during the night. Williams recommends lowering the house temperature this way if you have warm air or hot water systems. Don't try it with a radiant panel system.

When you want to warm the house up next morning—or after you've been away and the heat's been turned down—just set the dial at a temperature that is usually comfortable—say 75 degrees.

Don't turn the dial all the way to the top of the scale, Williams says. The temperature won't warm up any faster. How fast the house gets warm depends on the way your house is built, how cold it is outside and the efficiency of your heating system.

If you keep forgetting to set the thermostat back at night, you can get an automatic timer that will do the changing job, morning as well as night.

The regulation requires boat builders to cut, burn, or emboss a hull number on the outside of the stern above the waterline which should then become a permanent means of identification. The requirement affects home builders of boats as well as established manufacturers, and penalties are provided for cases of non-compliance.

This new regulation grows out of the Federal Boat Act of 1971, and is an important step toward consumer protection, according to William B. Matthews, Jr., Chief, Boating Administration of the Department, and Commander Roy W. Rafter, Superintendent of the Department's Natural Resources Police. They have worked for many years through the National Association of State Boating Law Administrators to achieve permanent impregnation of hull identification numbers on all vessels.

The regulation will make possible registration of stolen vessels in the system established by the National Crime Information Center of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Permanent hull numbers will show the manufacturer, letters or numerals identifying the specific vessel, and a set of symbols for the year and month in which the craft was built.

various distribution centers throughout Lower Delaware or at the box office before the initial performance.

U. of D. Plans Nutrition Program

Speakers from the University of Delaware, the food industry and consumer groups will discuss nutrition and food buying at the University's consumer education day. The program on what's happening to foods today will be January 23 at the University's Clayton Hall in Newark. It is free and open to the public.

The morning session at 10 a.m. will feature a panel discussion on the nutrient value of foods. Speakers from the University, industry and consumer groups will discuss food legislation, consumer awareness and food marketing.

Eileen Taylor, consumer research specialist with the marketing economics division of the USDA will speak on unit pricing and open dating at the afternoon session at 1 p.m. The goal of the program is to make consumers aware of new terms and definitions in the area of food and nutrition, to stress the reasons for enrichment and fortification in today's foods, to consider what federal and state agencies are involved in the area of nutrition and food quality, and to tell consumers how they can make their wishes known to agencies involved in the field.

Emphasize The Value of Ag Land, Says Pen-Hort

The Peninsula Horticultural Society has urged its members to work at promoting the value of agricultural land. During its 86th annual meeting in Delmar, Md., the Society recommended that each member help county governments become more aware of the economic importance of agricultural land to the community by talking an active interest in county planning and zoning.

In a further resolution, the Society urged the state migrant labor committees in Delaware and Maryland to continue and enlarge their activities in explaining the migrant labor story to the public. The Horticultural Society also honored four members for their contributions to Delmarva agriculture.

E. M. Dunton, Jr., former soils scientist in charge of the Eastern Shore Branch of the Virginia Truck and Ornamentals Research Station, Painter, Va., was awarded a plaque recognizing his many years of outstanding service.

Ed Ralph, extension crops specialist and director of the University of Delaware's Georgetown Substation, received a distinguished service award presented by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents. Plaques were also presented to R. E. Nicholas, Cambridge, Md., retiring president, and Kelvin Adkins, farm editor of the Salisbury Daily Times.

Officers elected for the coming year include Martin Isaacs, Georgetown, president; Curtis Jones, Jr., Eastville, Va., vice president; Robert Stevens extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware, secretary; and Herbert A. Richardson, Wyoming, treasurer.

HOMEOWNERS CORNER

There is nothing more frustrating than a lamp which is not functioning perfectly. Most often the cause of the malfunction is a simple one: there is a short circuit in the cord of the plug or perhaps the switch is broken. However, a bad lamp is often not only frustrating, it can also be dangerous as a shock or fire hazard. Always repair frayed electrical cords immediately to keep short circuits from developing. Simply wrap the fray in friction tape. For a longer range improvement, the whole cord should be replaced.

Supplies and equipment for home improvements are available at HARRINGTON LUMBER & SUPPLY, Harrington, 398-3244. Diamond Staters Warned To Be Alert To Home Accident Perils

The "season to be jolly" is also the season for Diamond Staters to be extremely careful around the home, warns the Insurance Information Institute.

The 71 accidental deaths that occurred in Delaware homes last year are proof negative that the home can be a dangerous place year-around, said the Institute.

But the Christmas season is potentially the worst season for accident.

Some of the reasons are obvious.

Cold weather and shorter days keep more people indoors. More flames are present -- the furnace for heating, the stove for cooking, candles and fireplaces for atmosphere and more electric current is used in appliances.

There are special dangers as well -- spark-emitting Christmas tree lights, flammable Yule trees and decorations, and gift wrapping and wrapping debris that accumulates dangerously in closets, attics and garages.

Home Fires Kill 5,700
Fires in the home killed 5,700 people last year. An even worse death toll of 10,000 was attributed to falls, most of the victims over the age of 65.

Many houses tend to be overly cluttered during the holiday period. Christmas toys, gift-wrappings, chairs, footstools, and rugs left haphazardly in walking areas can easily trip and seriously injure a person, says the Institute.

Rugs which "slip" under a person's weight; barely visible bulges caused by extension cords hidden under carpets; unlighted stairways, entrances, and exits, and icy walks are common hazards around the home that invite falls.

The Christmas tree that is the source of joy to the household can also be a source of tragedy.

The Institute advises that you choose a tree that is not dried or shedding needles. Keep it fresh with a sturdy, water-holding stand. Keep it away from heat sources (radiator, hot air duct, fireplace) which may dry it out and contribute to a fire. Spray it with fire resistant solution and decorate it with flame-proof materials such as glass or metal, not cotton or paper.

Test Tree Lights
Test your tree lights for defects that could cause them to spark. Look for frayed wires and loose or faulty sockets. Turn the tree off before re-wiring. Discard the tree, outside the house, when needles begin to fall.

Certain toys present a special problem at Christmas. The United States Public Health Service estimates that toys injure 700,000 children every year.

The Food and Drug Administration recently banned 30 toys from the consumer market on ground they were hazardous to children because they had sharp points and edges and dangerous removable parts. In a "safe-Christmas" drive last year, the FDA banned 187 toys. But many potentially lethal toys are still on the store shelves, and one FDA official conceded that "no regulatory program can protect a child from all dangers."

Accordingly, the Institute advises that parents recognize:

The "toy" ovens, irons and grills can inflict serious burns; that sheet metal toys such as model gas station kits may have razor-sharp edges; that loud caps used in some toy pistols can impair hearing; that toys with long cords can strangle; that plug-in toys can cause shock and burns, and that sharp removable hair pins, wires, and spikes frequently used to hold together stuffed animals and dolls can cause blindness or death.

Guard Against Suffocation

National Safety Council figures list suffocation as the major cause of accidental death in the home to children less than one year old. The Institute warns that new baby clothes, soft plastic or rubber gifts, such as party balloons and other materials given as Christmas presents, may smother or choke a child.

Parents should match toys with a child's age level and interests. They should look for toys with the Underwriters' Laboratories Inc. (UL) Safety Label. They should supervise the use of toys, and discard or replace those badly damaged.

Data shows that more driving accidents occur during the holidays then during comparable non-holiday periods. Highway deaths are higher during the winter than other seasons. An average of more than 750 Americans have died during the Christmas period each year since 1964 in motor vehicle accidents.

The Institute reminds motorists that drinking is involved in half of the fatal highway accidents. Because visiting is popular during the Christmas season, homeowners are advised to serve non-alcoholic drinks to guests making the rounds. You can still keep in the spirit of things by serving eggnog without spirits. Eggnog never killed anyone.

In a final word of warning, the Institute points out that even the traditional Christmas plants can be dangerous and should be kept away from children.

Certain parts of holly, Jerusalem cherry and Poinsettia can cause illness when ingested.

The berries of the romantic mistletoe can cause acute stomach and intestinal irritation, and people have died from "tea" made from them.

Proper Use of Heating Equipment

Cold weather has arrived and homeowners are once again facing the problem of keeping their houses warm. There are several things you can do to make the job a little easier for your furnace, says Miss Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Keeping heating equipment in good condition and using it wisely are especially important, she says. One particularly vulnerable part of the system is the thermostat. As a precaution, it should be cleaned about once a year. Just remove the cover and gently blow the dust off the mechanism.

Ideally, thermostats should get an average sample of the temperature of the air in the room. Several things can make readings incorrect. To prevent this, don't hang draperies in front of the thermostat and keep any heat-producing or air-treatment equipment away from the thermostat.

If you have followed all of these suggestions and your thermostat still doesn't work well, it may be wired improperly or in some other way defective. In this case, it is a good idea to call an electrician, she says.

Remember that your house may have more than one thermostat. Room air conditioners or window coolers often have separate thermostats. If they are not turned off in the winter, they will sense the warm air from your furnace and turn on the cooling units.

Assuming your equipment is in good order, following a few rules will keep your house warmer. Avoid opening doors and windows more often than necessary. Keep fireplace dampers closed tightly when the fireplace isn't in use. Keeping draperies closed keeps more heat in the house, and especially increases the comfort of people sitting near windows.

A properly insulated home is much easier to keep warm, Miss Morris says. Insulation is basically a thermal blanket around the house which reduces the flow of heat. It helps keep you warm in winter and cool in summer.

Good insulation often saves money. Furnaces use less fuel in insulated houses. They don't have to work as hard to keep your house warm, and so often last longer.

Proper insulation often has some side benefits. Your walls will attract less dust and dirt if they are warm than if they are cold. Insulation cuts down on noise transmission and often reduces fire danger, she adds.

Tax Management Can Save Money

Tax management, like soil management and credit management, is an essential part of profit planning for farmers. Federal income tax laws provide taxpayers with some freedom to manage their income and expenses in such a way as will minimize the tax burden. But it is up to the individual farmer to make these tax management opportunities pay off.

Start early with a preliminary check of taxable income to be reported, suggests W. T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware. Be sure to include capital gains or loss, income from off-farm employment and projected income and expenses for the remainder of the year. Out of net income, subtract all deductions and exemptions and compare taxable income with that of recent years. If it is substantially different from past years, you may want to take some action before the end of the year to adjust it-up or down.

Before adjusting this year's tax, consider what effort such action will have on 1973 taxes, cautions McAllister. What about income, expenses, capital gains, exemptions and off-farm income next year?

Taxpayers should also remember the tax law changes that take effect. Personal exemptions have increased from $675 to $750. The percentage standard deduction is increased to 15 percent of adjusted gross income but not more than $2,000; that compares with 13 percent of $1,500 in 1971. And social security tax on self employed earnings has been increased to a maximum of $675 in 1972, i.e., 7.5 percent of $9,000.

Tax management is only one part of total farm business management. McAllister says the costs involved in adjusting income can easily outweigh the tax benefits. Interest, storage, cost of extra handling, price risks and loss of a good market that may result from attempts to even out income for taxing purposes should be considered.

One way farmers can affect taxable income is to shift income or expenses from one year to the next. For example, if you want to reduce taxable income, but some of next year's supplies before the end of the year or wait until 1973 to sell your crop or livestock. On the other hand, if you want to increase tax income delay paying some of this year's expenses until January, sell a crop in storage or take a capital gain before the end of the year.

McAllister says if you decide to buy some of next year's supplies before January to reduce income, be sure the purchase is final and not just a deposit against future needs. It will be even better if you can show a price break or other economic incentive for your purchase. Claim as exemptions all children under 19 for which you provided over 50 percent of their support even though they may have earned $750 or more during the year. Full-time students (5 months or more) over 19 who received over half of their support from you can also be claimed. McAllister reminds farmers that good records of income, expenses, social security, capital expenditures, sales and a depreciation schedule are essential if an accurate tax report is to be filed. If you do not have the time or knowledge about tax matters to fill out an accurate report, obtain the help of a person trained in tax reporting.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

"LIFE'S GREATEST TRUTH"

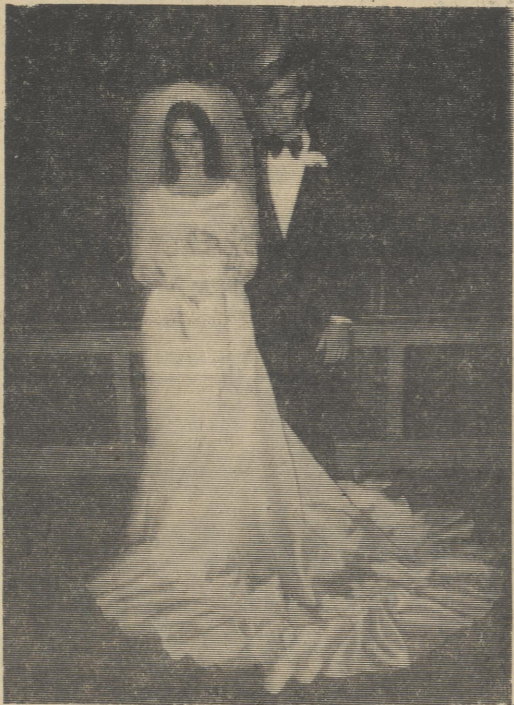

In olden days there lived a good king,
 Who had riches and power untold;
 His three brave sons were keen and strong,
 And would one day possess his gold.
 The King would know what his sons could learn
 So he sent them far on a quest;
 "Go into any land," said he,
 And find out the truth that is best!"

"When you've found the truth you think is best,
 Return home without delay;
 For he who finds the greatest truth,
 Shall be my first choice that day."
 They bade farewell; and a year went by,
 Then the three manly sons returned,
 To tell the king what they found best
 Of all the truth they had learned.

The first son told the story of wealth,
 Of power over life it can hold;
 "This goal charms all mankind," he said,
 "Naught else lures men onward like gold!"
 The second prince came with some tales of Fame,
 Of glory, and honors, and praise;
 "This goal enchants all men," said he,
 "And they seek Fame in many ways!"

The third prince stepped before the throne,
 Then he knelt on bended knee;
 "I found unselfish service, sire—
 To God, mankind, and thee!"
 The king said, "You are my wisest son!"
 He took him in loving hands!
 "You shall wear my royal robe," said he,
 "And be first heir of all my lands!"

College Board

English Honors
 Two Pearl River New York High School seniors, Cathy Burnweit and Richard Cornish, have been cited as outstanding high school students of English in the United States by the National Council of Teachers of English, which has selected them for its 1972 achievement awards competition.

Of 7,200 entrants nationally, only 870 finalists were chosen from the 50 states. The two Pearl River New York students were the only Rockland County teenagers selected. They will be recommended for college scholarships by the council and were honored by the Pearl River school board at a recent meeting.

Miss Burnweit is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Burnweit of 323 Blauvelt Rd. Cornish is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cornish Sr. 190 N. Lincoln Ave., Pearl River, N. Y., and the grandson of George Cornish, formerly of Harrington.

Tom Clarke and Charles Baynard returning letter men.

Wrestling team aides.

Lake Forest Wrestling Team News

This will be a series of articles that will come from Lake Forest High School wrestling team, concerning the returning 'letter men' and the team's manager.
 This year our wrestling team will be assisted by 10 girl managers. They will help in placing mats, selling programs, making posters, writing news articles, and acting as official scorekeepers. The scorekeepers will be Cathy Rash for varsity and Susan Holloway for junior varsity.

On of our first returning 'letter men' is Tom Clarke. He is seventeen years of age and wrestles in the 125 pound weight class. Tom has wrestled for four years and has attended the conference tournament each year. When in the tenth grade, he got fourth place in the conference. The comments that Tom had for this year's season were "That the only team going to give Lake Forest Spartans any trouble was Caesar Rodney". Tom feels that this year there won't be a Big Three, it will be the Big One, which is Lake Forest. He also thinks that this year we'll see the strongest team in Lake Forest's history. "The team, this year, is the most spirited but could work harder," says Tom, "This isn't because of coaches Muehleisen and Workman, the guys aren't pushing themselves to their highest potential."

Charles Baynard is seventeen years of age and is in the 132 pound weight class. Charles has been wrestling for five years and has attended the conference each year. He, too, received fourth place, while in the tenth grade, in the conference tournament. Charles comments were that "There are a lot of new guys out this year; more than the team has seen yet." He thinks that Smyrna and Caesar Rodney will give us the most trouble this year. Charles also agrees with Tom, Lake Forest will be the Big One this year. "Our team is strong this year because they have spirit and work hard," says Charles. "We will not feel the absence of the two seniors who graduated, because we have guys to replace them." Charles also thinks that the team will be strong because the same guys who have had experience on the team are out again and the new inexperienced wrestlers are remarkably good."

Denny Doyle's A Hit At Little League Fete

Denny Doyle, of the Philadelphia Phillies, was a big success, as the featured speaker at the 10th Annual Harrington Little League Banquet, held in the W. T. Chipman School Cafeteria, Saturday night.

Doyle, as lick-fielding second baseman, started off on a serious note warning the audience about the perils of drug addiction, then switched to a lighter vein, as he related two or three humorous baseball stories.
 He really hit his stride in the question and answer session. Several times a routine question brought forth an unexpected and very funny answer.

Outgoing Little League president, Bob Price, lauded everyone who had contributed to the program in 1972.
 Master of Ceremonies, Jim Rash, gave an interesting history of the youth baseball programs in Harrington, covering a period of twenty-two years.
 A talented trio, Aleta, Joan, and Mary Jean Mason sang and played two beautiful numbers. Robin Outten at the Hammond organ, finished the dinner music.

One of the features of the evening was the covered dish supper, which in itself is an all-star affair, since each of the ladies usually prepares something from a time-tested recipe. This writer got lucky and found a great platter of spaghetti and meat balls, along with the other goodies.
 Denny Doyle awarded trophies to the members of the championship teams. Awards of this kind are concrete evidence of success and are displayed prominently in many homes, in the community.

Pat Knight, one of the top Little League officials, in the eastern part of the U. S. and a sportswriter for a Wilmington daily, again praised the local program, as being one of the most comprehensive setups around.

Veteran Spartan Five Opens At Delmar

Lake Forest's 1971 basketball combine, under a new head coach, Jim Blades, had a 10-7 log, finished third in the Southern Division of the Henlopen Conferences and qualified for the state tournament.

Frank Daniels is the only starter from that team, who won't be around this winter. With seven of his top eight performers back, Coach Blades naturally expects an even better record.
 Last year's leading scorer, Jim Dill, heads the returning lettermen. Others are: Neil Travis, Mike Atkinson, Don Bryant, Bruce Burton, Reggie Guinn and Lawrence Sorden.
 Mark Urash is another veteran. Up from the jayvees are: Dave Williamson, Dennis Tolson, Chip Moore, Dave Dunbar and Lee Dunbar.

The Spartans travel to Delmar on Friday and Laurel the following Tuesday.
 Smyrna's Christmas tournament matches Lake Forest and De La Warr on Dec. 29. The following night, the Spartans will play either, Middletown or Smyrna, in the winners' bracket or losers' bracket, depending on the results of the previous nights' contests.

Jim Dill Makes All-State 2nd Team

Lake Forest's most versatile athlete, Jim Dill, was chosen on the second team, on the 1972 All-State football team.
 The wiry, extremely agile Viola redhead, made the squad at end, after winning first-team honors, on the All-Henlopen eleven.
 Dill, a senior, is currently drilling with the basketball team. He's one of the key cagers and stars on the mound and as an infielder on the baseball team. Jim looks like a cinch to win the outstanding senior athlete award if he stays healthy.

Be cautious when using battery chargers and booster cables. With winter coming on, auto and tractor battery chargers will be used more frequently than at any other time of the year.

Batteries can explode, especially during cold weather. In addition to the danger from the battery acid, the battery casing can shatter and send pieces of debris flying through the air. What causes this? A fully charged battery or one being charged generates hydrogen gas; if a spark ignites the hydrogen, "POW."

Elwyn S. Holmes, Extension Agricultural Engineer at Kansas State University, says that it takes as little as 4% hydrogen in the air to form an explosive mixture. It is important to prevent sparking near the cell caps where the hydrogen gas is present.

Based on actual cases, the following are some reasons why battery explosions occur: Connecting or removing the terminal cables while the battery charger is in the "ON" position. Creating a spark in connecting the cable to the improper pole. Using a match or other potential source of ignition for lighting the work area. Fastening cables to a battery post which is internally damaged. Installing a fully charged battery, with some switches on the vehicle in the "ON" position.

The danger of battery explosion can be minimized by following certain procedures. Make booster cable connections on the charged battery first. In this way there will be no path to ground and no spark will occur. Making the connection on the motor or frame away from the discharged battery, instead of on the terminal grounds the charge.

We hope these hints on how to prevent a battery explosion will make you more safely conscious the next time you charge your battery or use booster cables.

Corn growers may soon be able to produce corn of such significant higher nutrient value that it would demand a premium price from livestock feeders.

A single cross and a double cross hybrid are being grown by Asgrow Seed Company. The two varieties will be produced under various climates and management conditions to establish their effect on nutrient value. The stations at which the corn will be grown are in Iowa, Texas, Indiana, Florida, Spain, Mexico, and Argentina.

As well as measuring the difference in the nutrition performance of the hybrids the study will compare the effect on digestibility of geographic locations, irrigation versus dry land conditions, soil types, natural rainfall, fertilizer, yield, and days from planting till harvest.

"Most large cattle feeders would no doubt, pay additional dollars for cattle feed if they were assured that it was nutritionally superior," commented Dr. J. K. Riggs, Animal Scientist at Texas A&M. "The day the grain will be sold by feed value instead of weight is closer than we think," was one of the comments by Dr. Riggs.

Livestockmen and plant breeders are communicating more than they have in the past now that the co-operative effort toward improvement of feed grains has begun. "It is only a matter of time until feed grains may be planted with quality aspects, as well as yield, becoming a significant harvest goal," commented Asgrow Seed Company's J. C. Smith, as he talked on the tests now under way.

Livestock producers who work with animals every day are sometimes surprised by the great strength of frightened or angered animals, so when handling livestock, leave the "cowboying" to the rodeo performers.

Play it safe with cattle and make sure you have proper restraint in handling facilities. A dilapidated or inadequate chute or headstall for treating cattle means trouble. Corals should be designed for animal and human safety.

Herd bulls, particularly dairy breeds, can be very dangerous. Children or inexperienced persons should be told to give the herd bulls plenty of clearance to avoid becoming another accident statistic.

Certificate of Appreciation Presented For Aid To Coast Guard

For their assistance to the Coast Guard in promoting boating safety, William B. Mattheys, Jr., Chief, Boating Administration, and Commander Roy W. Rafter, Superintendent, Natural Resources Police, have received citations from the Commander of the Fifth Coast Guard District.

The CERTIFICATE OF APPRECIATION presented by Admiral Ross P. Bullard, USCG, states that it was awarded "in recognition of notable services which have assisted greatly in furthering the aims and functions of the Coast Guard. A covering letter to Secretary James B. Coulter from Admiral Bullard said: "The interest and expertise they have shown in their respected activities have added considerably to our program. Their readiness and able assistance in all respect is appreciated for without their wholehearted co-operation and support, I don't believe we would have met with the success we now enjoy."

Sweaters make wonderful gifts for every family member from toddler to great grandmother. With the layered look and the fashion popularity of all knits, we have never had a better selection of sweaters.

Before you get carried away with color and style, check the care directions. Most of us like the easy-care features of the man-made fibers, sweaters that can be tossed in the washing machine. Some wool sweaters can be machine washed with care. Include the care directions with the gift if they aren't permanently attached. Check the label for colorfastness, too, especially in multi-color styles.

Luxury sweaters are back on the fashion scene. Cashmere is expensive, it is soft but not especially durable or resilient. There is great difference in the quality of cashmere and you will pay more for the better qualities.

Mohair and Angora are soft to the touch, but Angora has a tendency to shed. Lamb's wool is softer than Shetland and is a more comfortable choice for sweaters worn next to the skin.

The acrylics are the most popular of the man-made fibers used in sweaters because they resemble wool in appearance and warmth. Nylon and polyester sweaters have a smoother surface. In synthetics, textured yarns are less apt to pill.

Some sweaters come in numbered sizes. Buy a size larger than your usual garment size to allow for an easy fit.

The best sweaters are full-fashioned, or knit to shape. Cut and sewn sweaters have pieces cut out and sewed together as for woven goods. They are most likely to run unless well sewed. Seams should have plenty of stretch.

You can recognize full-fashioned sweaters by the fashion marks or tiny dots around the armholes and other shaped areas, and by the difference in the direction of the knit at the shoulder area. Sometimes cut and sewn sweaters have mock fashion marks but they are purely decorative.

This is the year for sweater gifts. There are choices for everyone at all price levels.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

Christmas carols, hanging stockings, smiles and children's wide-eyed joy, the mirth and festivities of the yuletide are most often enjoyed around a Christmas tree. And now is the time to buy that exact right tree.

When selecting your tree, most people look for a tree that is healthy looking, free from too much damage, and well-trimmed. The tree that's most sought after is the one that tapers gently from a full bottom and has an ample number of branches for hanging ornaments.

Like buying meat if you let the U. S. grade standards help you half of your worry is over. Did you realize that over a decade ago the U.S.D.A. established grades for Christmas trees? When you buy a tree that has so been graded the standard requires that a tree be:

Fresh - with pliable needles that are firmly attached to the branches (test by gently tapping the butt of the tree on the concrete, if needles fall in quantity it's too old and dry).

Clean - at least moderately free from moss, lichen, vines and other foreign matter.

Healthy - fresh, natural appearance for particular species. Well-trimmed - free from all barren branches below the first top branches and smoothly cut at the butt.

In addition, the specific requirements of each grade are: U. S. Premium: not less than medium density; normal taper; all four faces (sides) free from any type of damage.

not less than medium density, normal taper; and three damage free faces.

U. S. No. 2 or U. S. Standard: light or better density, "candlelight," normal, or flaring taper, and at least two adjacent damage free sides.

Although these voluntary standards are used mainly by the wholesale trade, they can be used by anyone to help them determine the worth of the trees they are looking at. If you are placing your tree in a corner then why buy a Premium or U. S. No. 1 tree, a U. S. No. 2 tree with its "good face" toward the room can be just as attractive, perhaps even more so.

Here are a few other things to consider as you select your tree. Remember, the height of your room, the size of your tree, the size of your room, when you are outside the tree looks much smaller and when you cut large portions off the end of the tree it will alter the natural taper of the tree. Select a tree that smells fresh (has a strong fragrance) and has a good green color for the species.

Now after you have bought your tree and brought it home it is up to you to care for it properly.

Buy your tree in advance so you can cut the butt of the tree at a diagonal (about 1 inch above original cut) - this opens the pores and aids in the absorption of water. Place the butt end in a container of water and store outside. Every so often sprinkle the whole tree with water, this will help each branch to stay fresh.

When you bring the tree in the house, saw off the butt again, squaring it this time. This facilitates placing the tree in a stand. Make sure the stand is in water, because it is necessary to keep the butt end of the tree in water the entire time it is in the house. You may have to refill the container every day because trees do take lots of water. Do not place trees near fire places, radiators, electric heaters, T. V. or any other sources of heat. Never leave your home with the Christmas tree lights on. Last but not least check all electrical cords carefully before ever placing on the tree and do not overload the electric circuits.

Following these care and precaution measures should ensure an attractive tree that stays fresh for more than a week and a Holiday Season free from Christmas tree mishaps.

Product Seals Protect Buyers

Product seals can often be used to help consumers get more for their money, says Miss Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

There are a number of seals and symbols which indicate products are of good quality. Among them are Good Housekeeping Magazine, Underwriters' Laboratories, the American Gas Association and the United States Pharmacopoeia. When shopping, you should always read labels on products, Miss Morris says. Then see if it has a seal of a testing agency to guarantee its quality.

The Good Housekeeping Seal is given to products tested in the Good Housekeeping Institute. The institute tests all products advertised in the magazine. It guarantees that any product which bears the seal and is defective will be replaced or money refunded upon request of the buyer.

The Underwriters' Laboratories (UL) symbol appears on electrical appliances. It indicates the product has been tested and is considered to be safe in use and is free from shock and fire hazards.

The American Gas Association safety standards seal indicates the product meets the association's minimum requirements for performance, construction and safety. After the association certifies a product, it makes periodic re-checks of it.

The United States Pharmacopoeia (U.S.P.) tests drugs and medicinal products. Its seal indicates a product has "well established usefulness and essentiality." Other groups issuing seals of approval are the American Dental Association, the Canadian Standards Association and the Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers.
