

Veterans Administration News

Q - About two years ago, I received VA outpatient treatment for an injury sustained in service and verified by VA. Can I receive treatment again from VA?

A - Yes, if you have established this service-connection with VA. Suggest you apply for treatment again.

Q - Do Social Security benefits reduce a veteran's compensation from VA?

A - No. VA does not count any income against compensation for service connected disabilities, including Social Security payments. Income is a factor for pensions for non-service connected disabilities, however.

Q - May a veteran pay off a GI loan before date final payment is due?

A - Yes. A VA-guaranteed loan may be partially or fully paid at any time ahead of schedule. However, part payments may not be less than one monthly payment or $100, whichever is less.

Q - How long do I have to convert my National Service Life Insurance policy?

A - NSLI five year term insurance can be converted at any time while in force. Term policies with numbers prefixed by "W" cannot be kept in force if they expire after the insured's 50th birthday, and they must be converted before they expire.

Q - An extra large dividend put me over the income limit this year. Will this cause my VA pension to be discontinued?

A - No. As long as this income could not have been anticipated and was of a non-recurring nature, it will have no effect on your pension.

Q - What should I do if my VA benefit check is not delivered on time?

A - You should wait long enough for the mails to clear, then write the VA regional office which has your file. Include your name if you're a veteran, or the deceased veteran's name if it is a death claim, and your claim number. Do not write to the Treasury Department, as this will result in further delay.

Q - My wife served in the Marine Corps during World War I. She passed away several years ago, but her illness and death had nothing to do with her military service. I hear there is some kind of new law allowing widowers like me to get a VA pension. Is this true?

A - Yes. This is Public Law 92-540. But there is an income limitation for the pension.

Q - My husband was killed in the Army in Vietnam and I would like to enroll in a well known university in Paris, France. Will VA help me do this?

A - Yes. If you are eligible for assistance under the Dependents' Educational Assistance Program, you may now attend approved foreign institutions of higher learning.

Q - My brother is blind from a Vietnam war injury. He's home now but we can't seem to get him interested in living again. Isn't VA doing anything about young men like him?

A - VA recently entered into an agreement with the Blinded Veterans Association for B.V.A. representatives, themselves blind, to augment VA services to blinded veterans.

Q - My husband was totally disabled as the result of an accident while he was in the Air Force. With him and the children to look after, I can't leave home to go to school so I can get a job. Can VA arrange for me to go to school at night or take a correspondence course?

A - Yes. Women in your situation are eligible for education benefits under more liberal rules under the new education law. Please discuss this with the veterans assistance office at the nearest VA regional office.

Teachers Learn Demonstration "Arts"

Getting the attention of the proverbial "mule-head" was no problem for the farming today's young people over One smack did the trick. Hitting today's young people over the head with science, however, is not the most inspirational method for inducing them to learn. Teachers must bring their students to the often difficult task of learning with a display of enthusiasm that they themselves feel for the subject. It is the teacher with the sparkle in her eye that kindles the desire of students to want to know more.

Teachers all vary in the way but they share a common interest in finding the best methods for "turning the student on to science". It is not surprising, then, that nearly fifty Sussex County upper elementary teachers eagerly attended a training session at Delaware Technical and Community College in Georgetown on Dec. 13. Attendance at this training session entitled, "The Art of Science Demonstrations", was made possible by toward paying for substitutes.

It started with a bang and then proceeded to go steadily up, until Mr. James Gussett delighted and amused his audience of fellow teachers with rapid-fire displays techniques they could use in their classrooms. With a kaleidoscope of chemical indicators, glowing tubes in the dark, and exploding powders, Mr. Gussett revealed the history of some of the most significant advances Man has made in piercing the mysteries of the physical world. "As a Del Mod Field Agent, I'm trying to sell enthusiasm for science," Jim said. "I hope that teachers will be able to take back to their students ways to breathe a little life into what often seems a deadening recitation of science facts."

The Del Mod Field Agent program, with James Gussett, serving well over one hun-

2 State Firms Get SBA Loans

Two Delaware small business concerns received approval for loans totaling $41,800.00 from the Small Business Administration, it was announced today by Russell Hamilton Jr., Regional Director of SBA.

Hamilton said that Victor L. Batson, a trucking firm, Seaford received a $28,000 and Francis L. Welch, a masonry contractor from Felton, a $13,800 loan.

The SBA Director reported that this brings to 43 loans valued at $3,548,681 loans approved for the State of Delaware during the past year.

Guide To Community Development Studies Published by U. of D.

A new guide listing sources of information on community and resource development in Delaware has recently been published by the Co-operative Extension Service at the University of Delaware.

The guide is a bibliography of nearly 40 theses and dissertations written by graduate students between 1967 and 1972. It was compiled by David S. Keunen, area agent for community resource development for Kent and Sussex counties, and Gerald F. Vaughn, extension co-ordinator of community resource development in Delaware.

The dissertations cover a wide range of topics in the areas of institutional resources, community resources, natural resources and engineering technology and human resources. They are intended to be of interest to members of state and local government, civic groups and concerned citizens, Vaughn said.

The guide gives instructions on how to get copies of the theses and dissertations. It can be obtained by contacting the Publications Office, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, and asking for Extension Circular 132.

Export Market Affects Delmarva Farmers

Many grain and soybean farmers in this area feel the problems of the grain export market are not of local importance. However, it is of more value than they realize, says W. T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware.

Delmarva farmers have one of the best grain markets in the country, McAllister says. Prices are higher here than they are in most other major corn-soybean producing areas. In addition, the cost of getting the crop to market is relatively small.

The export market is often thought of as a last resort, not to be used when farmers can sell their crops at home. But foreign market become important when farmers are faced with a choice between price-depressing surpluses or entering the competitive worldwide market, he says.

Often the foreign market is not competitive. If world prices are a few cents below domestic prices, surpluses tend to pile up. To remedy the situation, the government can pay an export subsidy to firms dealing in world trade. This happens most often in the case of wheat.

In the case of corn and soybeans, the situation is slightly different, he adds. Rather than being a "last resort" market, foreign sales have been an important factor in the corn and soybean market for several years. They account for about one quarter of the total market in most years.

Most exported feed grains and soybeans are used to feed animals to produce meat, milk, and eggs. As the economics of other countries improve, there will be an increase in demands for animal products. This is of particular importance in a country like Japan which relies heavily on imported grain, he explains.

Other countries, notably the USSR and China, are buying large quantities of food and feed grains because of very

Dr. Krauss Becomes President Of Delaware State Veterinary Medical Association

Dr. William C. Krauss, chairman of the Department of Animal Science and Agricultural Biochemistry at the University of Delaware, recently assumed the presidency of the Delaware State Veterinary Medical Association at the association's annual meeting in Newark. He will hold office for one year.

Dr. Krauss, formerly a practicing veterinarian, is now involved in teaching and research on avian diseases.

Also at the annual meeting, Dr. James H. Hughes was chosen as president elect. He will assume office next year.

Farmer's Tax Guide Available

Delaware farmers can obtain answers to many of their questions about 1972 income tax returns from the 1973 Farmer's Tax Guide available now from county extension offices. W. T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware, says the guide explains tax regulations important to farmers and contains examples that show how the tax laws apply to actual situations.

This year's edition of the annual publication has been expanded to include a chapter on investment credit. And for the first time, the guide has a separate chapter on sales and other dispositions of depreciable property and certain farm land.

McAllister says farmers will find the tax guide very helpful in supplying information on depreciation, investment credit, and soil and water conservation expenses.

Contact a county extension office in Newark, Dover or Georgetown for your free Farmer's Tax Guide.

Always apply varnish carefully if you do not, your handiwork may be marred with spots, streaks, or smears! Varnish should always be applied in straight strokes with the grain and carried the full length of the piece to be varnished. Never brush in cross strokes since this causes streaking. Two or more thin coats make a better finish than one thick one: thin coats dry more evenly. Usually three thin coats is an adequate finish for vertical surfaces.

Christians Celebrate Holy Day With Prayer and Thanksgiving

For those who celebrate Christmas as a holy day, the holiday is greeted with rejoicing, with prayer and thanksgiving, in church and private devotions.

The word "greeting" has a special significance here, for herald angels singing to shepherds in the fields and a star shining in the heavens truly brought greetings—according to the Revised Standard Version of the Bible, "good news of great joy which will come to all people."

Long before the December 25 birthdate of Christ was celebrated in devotions, it had marked a season set aside for another kind of greeting. In Northern Europe, Teutonic tribes of pagan times greeted the rebirth of the sun, of the winter solstice.

Earliest celebrations of Christmas combined some of the ancient pagan traditions. By association with Christian beliefs, old customs of greeting the sun became symbolic of a recognition—a greeting of faith, hope and life eternal.

Yule Live; In Legend And Lore

Twinkling on trees, glowing from windows, glittering everywhere, Christmas lights reflect today, the candles of earlier time.

A candle in the window can light the Christ Child on his way, says Irish legend.

Nativity scenes in homes churches depict the animals of the Manger—and on Christmas Eve, the cattle, the sheep and all the animals present at the Nativity are given the gift of speech.

So says the lore of Christmas.

Blossoming on the holiday scene, greens and flowers spread their beauty and fragrance, reminding all of the living wonder of Christmas.

In legend, all flowers bloom at midnight on Christmas Eve, just as they did more than 2,000 years ago.

The legend and lore of Christmas expresses the simple faith that lie at the heart of this happy, holy time.

Some of the most delightful legends are told in carols.

From France comes the "Carol of the Birds." Its words recount how the birds flew to Bethlehem to behold the Christ Child. Each bird, as it flew, sang a special song of praise and rejoicing.

There's a "Carol of the Flowers," too. Summoned to the presence of the newborn King, every flower blossomed, and each blossom was a symbol of the Little One's virtues.

Seafaring peoples, in their own way, related nature's wonders to the miracle of the Nativity, through carols.

"I Saw Three Ships Come Sailing" tells of ships crossing the sea on Christmas morn, bearing Jesus, Mary and Joseph.

Living Plants Make Beautiful Gifts

Living plants for the home make lovely gifts at any time of the year. But they're especially nice at the holidays—for Christmas, New Year's, a thoughtful gift.

The only problem might be deciding what kind to buy. The most popular or colorful plant may not necessarily make the best gift, according to Bob Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Your choice of plant will depend on the purpose of the gift. And, of course, you should consider who the plant is intended for, their home, and how they will probably use and treat the plant.

Stevens says if you want a plant to provide a splash of color for a few days or weeks, the poinsettias, azaleas, gloxinia, chrysanthemums, or cyclamen make excellent choices.

But if you are buying for longevity, something to give continued pleasure, select an African violet, kalanchoe or begonia. The Reiger begonia a new type recently introduced from Germany, has brilliantly colored flowers that last well in the home.

Disappointment with flowering plants often comes when conditions in the home make plants drop their leaves or petals. So it is very important to consider the conditions of the home when you select the gift, stresses Stevens.

A potted chrysanthemum in flower is among the most tolerant of unfavorable growing conditions in the home. Select a plant whose flower buds are just opening. Then examine the buds and backs of upper leaves to make sure the plant is free of insects.

Most poinsettias can also tolerate the high temperature, the humidity and low light conditions of the living room. However, they are less tolerant of cold drafts or dry soil and may drop their foliage under these conditions. They also prefer sunlight and a cooler night temperature (60-65 degrees).

Azaleas and cyclamen are much more sensitive to poor growing conditions. Azaleas need an acid soil, lots of moisture and cool temperatures. Constant watering, warm temperatures, poor light, or a dry soil may make plants drop their leaves. Cyclamen prefer a cool, sunny location with a 50 degree night temperature. Leaves will turn yellow and buds will dry up if night temperatures are too high, the soil too dry, or if there is not enough light.

Fibrous rooted begonias and kalanchoe in flower make long lasting gifts if they're well cared for, says Stevens. Both plants need a well-lighted location but not direct sunlight, a uniformly moist soil and moderately warm room.

Kalanchoes normally bloom when a long uninterrupted night (no light) is provided and the old flowers are removed.

Frequent fertilization is also recommended for most house plants. A complete water-soluble fertilizer is best and should be applied once a month along with plenty of water.

Intangible Gifts Are Bringing Best Blessings, in Abundance

Among the treasures and pleasures of Christmas, gifts loom large—as all who greet the Yuletide as a season of laughter and a time to be glad of heart well know.

Tangible gifts, large and small, have their place in the holiday scheme of things. They're the outgoing expression of the generous Christmas spirit.

It's the intangible gifts, though, that seem to shine most radiantly, Christmas after Christmas.

The delighted smiles of children and the wonder in their eyes, the privilege of aiding the less fortunate, the opportunity to cherish and strengthen friendships and family ties, the renewed spirituality, the solid foundations of health, happiness and love, faith and hope—these are the intangible gifts.

Blessed indeed is the Christmas that bring an abundance of such gifts!

Decking Halls Has History

"Christ was born on Christmas day, Wreath the holly, twine the bay."

From England of long ago come the words of this carol, showing the early role of the bay tree and its greens in decorating for Christmas.

Its use harks back to ancient Greece, when both the bay and the laurel bedecked homes and public places in symbol of triumph. As traditional Christmas greens, they reflect the same joyful spirit, say the editors of the Grolier Universal Encyclopedia.

Holly, of course, is still popular as Yuletide greenery. But nowadays, when it's time to deck the halls, bay leaves are more likely to spice holiday cookery, rather than holiday decorating.

Greens Have Meaning

Greens that adorn home, streets and stores at holiday time entered the lore of Christmas from pagan rites of old.

The ancients believed that each green had its own significance, and an ability to do certain good—or evil—things.

Ivy, they thought, was festive. Its convivial nature came from Bacchus.

Yew and cypress had the highest virtues. Theirs was the quality, and the symbol, of eternal life.

Before Turkey

Roast peacock was a Yule delicacy of early England.

West Harrington Communion Service

Sunday evening, 8 p.m., the West Harrington United Methodist Charge, will observe a Christmas Communion Service. All of the West Harrington Charge are invited and any of the public that care to attend will be welcomed. The Communion has been called by many names.

Some call this meal a Memorial and so it is. It is a memorial of Jesus Christ. A we come to this communion service we are called upon to remember him. As we partake of these elements we are called upon to remember another service more than nineteen hundred years ago in an Upper Room — a last supper on the night in which he was betrayed.

Some call this meal a Sacrament and so it is. A sacrament is "an outward and visible sign of an inward and spiritual grace". In this service we have the reality of God's nearness to us. His presence stirs in us the realization of His love.

Some call this meal the Lord's Supper and so it is. This table not only commemorates Jesus Christ; it also has him as its Host. This is not our table; it is the Christ's table. The invitation is His. This communion will be observed at Trinity United Methodist Church in Harrington, 8 p.m., Dec. 24.

Make Your Own Christmas Candy

Does Christmas bring visions of "sugar plums dancing in your head?" Why not make your own candy--it will delight the whole family and make a thoughtful gift.

Fudge requires a little more time and skill, but it's well worth the effort, says Miss Krackhardt. Fudge should be smooth, creamy, soft and pliable--never sugary.

E. I. Du Pont's 1803 Home At Hagley Museum, To Be Open To The Public

Wilmington Dec. 13 - "Eleutherian Mills," the home built by E. I. du Pont on Brandywine Creek in 1803 and now part of the Hagley Museum, will be open to the public for a holiday visit from Dec. 28-31.

Seasonal decorations in the three-story Georgian country house will reflect both 18th and 19th century tastes. The dining room table will be set for a Twelfth Night celebration with French porcelain and a Twelfth Night cake. The recently opened family library will have a Victorian flavor. Traditional greens, fresh fruit, pine cones, magnolia leaves and poinsettias will be illuminated by candlelight throughout the house, and a fireplace will glow in the morning room.

Visitors to "Eleutherian Mills" must board a jitney at the Hagley Museum for a 10-minute ride through the museum grounds to reach the du Pont home.

A second seasonal exhibit at the museum entitled "Holiday Gifts for the Children and the Home, 1870-1890" may currently be seen in the main museum building. On display are trade catalogs from the Eleutherian Mills Historical Library picturing buttonhooks, bicycles and bridgears as well as the "Improved Iron City Dishwasher," the "Enterprise Smoked Beef Shaver," and the "American Family Fruit Drier" plus other 19th-century gift items.

The indoor-outdoor museum devoted to American industrial history is open year-round on Tuesdays through Saturdays from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Sundays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. It will be closed on Christmas and New Year's Day. Admission is free.

U. D. Comments On Contract Talks With AAUP

The University of Delaware today commented on negotiations with the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) in bargaining for a 1973-74 contract with some 650 faculty employees. Through William D. Jones, Vice President for Employee Relations, the University indicated it will continue to bargain in good faith on matters of employment.

"Progress is slow principally because the faculty bargaining team is inexperienced in matters of collective bargaining. There is failure to recognize the distinction between management and labor. Under its charter, the University's Board of Trustees has full responsibility for the University," Vice President Jones said.

Substantial progress has been made on grievance procedures and association rights and privileges. University officials have proposed salary increases for 1973-74 commensurate with the salary increases received in 1972-73, which average 6.7 percent. In order to grant this level of salary increase and meet other essential obligations, it is necessary to raise tuition for Delawareans at least $50 per year ($150 per year for non-Delawareans) and receive a 12 percent increase in State funds for the University's operating budget.

The AAUP bargaining team has insisted on additional salary increases which alone would require an increase in resident tuition of $120 instead of $50 or an increase of operating funds from the State of 22 percent rather than 12 percent. Moreover, to finance comparable salary increases for the University's more than 1,700 non-faculty employees would require a further increase of nearly a million dollars in State appropriations for 1973-74.

The administration feels that the AAUP demands are unrealistic and would place an unwarranted burden on students, parents and taxpayers. For the past two years, faculty salaries at the University have gone up significantly faster than has been the case on the average at other colleges and universities, and this would be true next year as well. Compared with other small states, the University pays its faculty well. If it were not for the combined effect of the private resources of the University and the willingness of Delaware taxpayers to contribute significantly to higher education, it is likely that salaries at the University of Delaware would fall to levels of other small state universities.

The University has taken the position that it will not subject basic academic rights to a collective bargaining agreement. The principles of academic freedom and of tenure are not short-term kinds of things that can be written into contracts one year and written out the next. It is the administration's position that once the union settles down to bargain just for the things provided in the collective bargaining law such as salaries, fringe benefits and conditions of employment, a contract can be signed. However, the AAUP continues to demand both a doubling of the salary offer and negotiation on everything but what the law provides.

University officials are hopeful that the bargaining process in an atmosphere of realism and seriousness resulting in a signed contract so that the University can move forward in meeting its obligation to the people of Delaware.
