

City Lets Contract to Improve Peck Avenue

The City of Harrington let a contract Tuesday night to improve a substantial portion of Peck Ave.

City manager Jack Harrington said Tuesday work was expected to begin this week on the $77,743 project by the successful bidder, Warren Brothers, of Dover.

The improvements were sparked by the building of Harrington Meadows, an enterprise of Penn-Del Development Company, of Baltimore. Ten townhouses on Peck Ave. are nearing completion and building permits have been secured for 30 more.

The improvements will encompass the following: 6' crusher run stone and 2" asphalt pavement from Dickerson Street westward to a point between Harrington and Reed Streets extended. Grading from this point, with rough stone, to East Street; storm drainage tile from Dickerson Street to East Street; also curb on south side of Peck Ave.

Levy Court Commissioners Sworn In For Kent

Two new Kent County Commissioners were sworn in Tuesday by Superior Court Judge William B. Bush III.

Bush also swore in re-elected commissioner John T. McKenna from the 31st Levy Court District.

Sworn in as newly-elected commissioners were Frances M. Messina, who had won a special election to fill the 30th District seat last spring when the commissioner Dr. Samuel G. Forester died, and Samuel Thomas who won election to a newly-created 34th District seat.

The Levy Court is now wholly Democratic, with six commissioners and a president.

City Election Tuesday To Have Voting Machine

For the first time the annual municipal election Tuesday will feature the use of a voting machine.

The device has been used in county and state elections for some years and its use in municipal elections has been mandated by the General Assembly.

Because of the machine, the election will be held in the Fire House from noon to 7 p.m., E.S.T.

Councilmen C. Tharp Harrington and John S. Satterfield and Acting Alderman Lawrence Price will be election judges, with Councilman Jack Wyatt as standby.

Killed In Crash

A single-car accident near Harrington Sunday has resulted in the death of one Harrington man and the hospitalization of the driver of the vehicle he was riding in.

State Police said Parnell Lamore Seth, 17, of rural Harrington, was pronounced dead on arrival at Milford Memorial Hospital shortly after midnight Sunday. Police report the car in which Seth was a passenger was headed north on Kent 301 west of Harrington when it went out of control and struck a tree. Authorities say the car was traveling at a high rate of speed when it left the road.

The driver of the vehicle, Curtis Wayne Collick, 20, also of rural Harrington, was hospitalized in Milford for multiple injuries.

Medicines Should Be Used With Care

Medicines of any type must be used with care. The Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act divides medicines into two classes, prescription drugs and over-the-counter drugs. Certain basic information about both types is necessary if they are to be used safely, says Miss Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Prescription drugs can be used safely and effectively only under the supervision of a physician. It is a violation of federal law to obtain such drugs without a prescription. Prescriptions must be written by medical doctors or dentists or phoned in by them. They can be filled only by a registered pharmacist.

Doctors write prescriptions to treat specific illnesses. Drugs are not meant to be passed around the family or given to neighbors, Miss Morris warns. It is not even safe to take a drug prescribed for you during a previous illness unless a physician tells you to do so.

When a physician prescribes a drug for you, there are several things you need to know about it. You should know (Continued on Page 5)

1973 Social Security Taxes

Paychecks in 1973 will reflect higher deductions for Social Security. More than half of the increase is the result of putting the hospital insurance program under Medicare on a sound financial basis and extending the protection of Medicare to disabled people under 65. Prior to the recent changes in the law the hospital insurance program was seriously under-financed and Medicare applied only to people 65 and over.

The social security contribution rates for 1973 for retirement insurance, survivors insurance, disability insurance, and hospital insurance (under Medicare) total 5.85 percent. As in the past, employers will match this contribution dollar for dollar.

Three Fined for Unvented Stoves in House Fire

Three persons were fined $10 and costs each Friday evening and arraigned in Court 6 on charges of maintaining stoves endangering life.

Nelson Mayfield, James Wiggins and Alex Price were accused of having unvented stoves in a blaze that did medium damage to the house in which they resided on the southwest corner of West and West Milby Streets earlier Friday evening. Property was owned by Sarah Robinson.

All were released on the deferred payment plan.

Harrington firemen were at the scene from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. They were assisted by Houston and Farmington firemen.

U. of D. Water Resources Center Receives Grant To Continue Project

The University of Delaware Water Resources Center has received a $75,756 grant from the U. S. Department of the Interior Office of Water Resources Research to continue the Christina Project for 16 months.

In addition, three local agencies, the New Castle County department of planning, the Greater Wilmington Development Council and the Wilmington Area Planning Co-ordinating Council (WILMAPCO), will be contributing professional services worth $17,710.

Using the compact Christina River basin as a microcosm of larger river basins, the project will study environmental protection measures to be applied in metropolitan development as it occurs.

Urbanization affects water just as much emptying pollutants in it, Joachim Tourbier, director of the project, says. "City and regional planning ought to be more concerned about where urban development is located and the development process itself."

The Water Resources Center is currently at work on a computerized method to evaluate urban development impact and environmental needs. As a practical application of its findings, the center will develop specifications, working drawings and cost estimates for the environmental protection measures.

The center also plans to be working with developers in the homebuilding and construction industries as well as the Urban Land Institute in Washington, D. C. to work out these environmental protection measures.

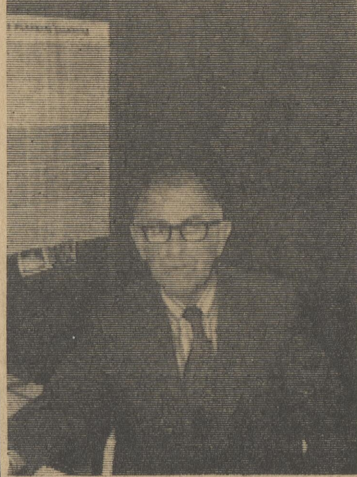

On the local level, the center will investigate the preservation of resources concerns and possible ways of reducing water resources problems.

A public information brochure, a product of the preliminary study, will be published soon.

Two to Vie for Mayor; No Contests For Councilmen in Tuesday Vote

Al Mann

Bill Minner

There will be a contest for mayor in Tuesday's municipal election, but no action in the two wards electing councilmen.

Petitions of the candidates will be read Friday night at 7:30 o'clock at the annual citizens meeting in the Fire House, when Mayor Burton E. Satterfield will tell of the activities of the City.

In the contest for mayor, a two-year post, Alfred G.B. Mann and William Minner will lock grips. Minner told The Journal as late as Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 27, he was interested only in running for re-election for councilman of the Fourth Ward. His changed decision, however, was no startling surprise as he had indicated an interest in the mayor's office on occasions.

Minner is chief enforcement officer for the Delaware Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission. A graduate of Harrington High School, he also attended Goldey Business College, Wilmington, before going into the infantry in World War II. He resides with his family on Weiner Avenue.

Alfred G.B. Mann, his opponent, resides with his wife on Dorman Street at North Street. He is former city manager of Harrington is now special assistant to the superintendent of the Department of Public works of the City of Dover. A graduate of Southwestern College, Winfield, Kan., he served in the Pacific Theatre of Operations in World War II.

There will be no contests for the two councilmanic posts open. William Shaw Jr., of Weiner Avenue, will be unopposed for a three-year term to replace Minner whose term has expired. Shaw attended the University of Delaware and is a teacher in Caesar Rodney Schools. His great-grandfather, William Shaw, is mentioned in the City Charter as one of the first commissioners.

The Rev. William E. Griffin, former pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, will also be unopposed in his bid for councilman in the Second Ward. He will replace the late George Vincent, who died in office last year.

The election will be held Tuesday at the Fire House from noon until 7 p.m., E.S.T.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

What did we do in seventy-two
That might help us to see in seventy-three
The route that is best for you and me?

All of us should assess our positions and plan ahead this bright new year might continue expanding those propositions which have provided the greatest benefits for ourselves and mankind, changing those that have been inefficient and unrewarding.

Our children are largely a result of our teaching. Environment and heredity also play an important part in governing their actions. So let us make sure our own family tree does not need spraying.

We thank you, Lord, for all the gifts
The old year brought to me
The beautiful sunshine on Paradise road,
A few days at the sea.

We should learn the tolerance
Of the shining sun
That shines alike to rich and poor
And heartens everyone.

Strengthen me to do my work
With joy and brotherhood
And may I with each passing day
Know that life is good.

Candlelighting and awards highlighted the activities of Cub Pack 76 for the two closing months of 1972. November saw the Cub Scouts busy with the preparation of their award winning float, the theme of which was "Light One Candle". Getting it ready required the construction of several thousand paper flowers and many evenings of work by the cubs, their families, and their leaders. The finished float netted Pack 76 first prize for non-commercial floats and grand prize in the annual Christmas parade.

In December, the Cub Scouts carried out the float theme at their monthly pack meeting which closed with a candlelighting ceremony. Led by cubmaster Raymond Blanchette, the ceremony emphasized the importance of the light that can be shed by one person. The meeting also featured cubs trimming a tree with decorations they had made and a visit from Santa Claus.

A number of awards were given in both months. In November the following awards were made:

Den 1: Robert Benson - one year pin, Assistant Denner; Steven Fallon - one year pin, Denner. Steven Fallon was recognized for the excellent work he did in making an ecology flag.

Den 2: Douglas Poore - one year pin, Wolf Badge, gold and silver arrow points; Randy Brown - one year pin, Wolf Badge, gold arrow point; Jeffrey Porter - one year pin; David Lekites - one year pin, gold and silver arrow points; Glenn Govatos - Denner, gold arrow point; Joe Draper - Assistant Denner; Mrs. Wayne

Brown - one year pin. Den 2 was awarded the attendance banner for the month. During November these cubs had also made and distributed in Harrington handbills reminding citizens to vote. Douglas Poore was cited as having made the most handbills.

Den 3: Ralph Smith - Assistant Denner; James Faison - Denner.

Webelos: Mike Jones - Naturalist's badge.

Sworn in as new cub scouts were Douglas Beene, William Scott and Thomas Cain.

17th Century House Near Dover And Town Hall In Middletown Placed On National Register of Historic Places

The home of a signer of the Constitution, a seventeenth-century house near Dover, and the town hall in Middletown, have been placed on the National Register of Historic Places, according to Dr. E. Berkeley Tompkins, Director of the Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs.

The Middletown Academy, completed in 1827, served for 101 years as a school building. It was established by a small group of farmers and merchants who raised the construction cost through a lottery. It was originally intended to serve as an academy, an elementary school, and a place of worship. After the present Middletown school was built, the academy stood vacant; proposals to build a post office on the site prompted the establishment of the St. George's Hundred Historical Society, which bought the property and turned it over to the town. Since 1960, the building has served as town office, police station, library, and public meeting place for Middletown.

Lombardy Hall, on route 202 west of Wilmington, was the home of Gunning Bedford, Jr., a signer of the Constitution, delegate of the Continental Congress, Attorney-General of Delaware, and first Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Delaware, AF & AM. The house is currently being restored for use as a museum and Masonic meeting place. Built of dark Brandywine granite, the two-story house stands on a hill that formerly was the center of a large farm. The older part of the house was built, probably before 1750, by George Robinson, the first resident owner. Bedford enlarged and refined the house after he bought it in 1785.

The seventeenth-century house at Town Point has frequently been called Kent County's first court house, although historians have disputed this point. The house probably was built before 1677 by John Briggs; he served as a member of William Penn's colonial legislature and as sheriff of Kent County. The property later is said to have been the temporary home of Judge Samuel Dickinson, who may have lived there while he was building the present Dickinson Mansion. It later was the home of Dr. Nathaniel Luff, who sold it to John Dickinson, whose heirs owned the farm until the present century. Although the house at Town Point has suffered considerable alteration, it survives as one of the purest examples of early Delaware brick architecture. It is now owned by Delaware Wild Lands, Inc., a conservation organization that owns considerable marshland in the coastal zone.

The National Register, which is administered in Delaware by the Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs recognizes those places of national, state or local importance that represent a significant element in our cultural heritage. Once a place has been listed on the National Register, its preservation becomes a matter of public policy. No federal project, or project using federal funds, may encroach upon a National Register property without proper consideration of the historical values involved.

Always keep varnish in a warm place or it will thicken. Apply with a special soft varnish brush. To obtain a dull finish, rub varnished areas with pumice and water. Cover varnish cans immediately and tightly after each use to keep varnish from forming a thick skin. Store varnish brushes in turpentine if you plan to continue the job at another time. Brushes will remain in working order indefinitely -- and it is not necessary to wash after each use.

THE HIGH PRICE OF DEMOCRACY

by Reed Larson

Executive Vice President
National Right to Work Committee

Federal officials and newsmen have hailed the recent United Mine Workers union election as "the fairest in American labor history."

From day number one of the official election campaign through the counting of the last secret ballot, not a single instance of wrongdoing was reportedly uncovered.

But the important point in this forceful show of "Democracy in Action" has been conveniently overlooked. That is—it's taken literally an army of U.S. Department of Labor monitors working around the clock at a cost to the taxpayers of more than $4 million to see to it that the rights of union members were not violated.

Federal overseers were on the job right from the beginning of the officially designated election campaign. They followed the two candidates — incumbent W. A. "Tony" Boyle and "Miners for Democracy" insurgent Arnold Ray Miller — around like super sleuths. The flagrant irregularities that marred the union's 1969 Presidential contest, which ended in the murder of defeated challenger Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, and his wife and daughter, would be prevented at all costs.

Sadly, they could have been prevented more easily, sooner, and more effectively, and at no cost to America's taxpayers, if the mine workers had simply been given the freedom to respond to abusive union "leadership" by showing the heels of their shoes and quitting the union. I'm talking about Right to Work.

Nothing in this world makes a power-hungry union professional step back in line more quickly than the prospect of having no one to rule over.

The UMW special election would not have been necessary in the first place if mine workers — most of whom work in compulsory union states like Kentucky, Pennsylvania, and West Virginia — had been free to vote with their feet — instead of their lives.

Compulsory unionism has allowed union officials to run roughshod over the rights of the members who pay their salaries. Compulsory unionism has denied to American workers their one weapon with which to respond to corrupt or ineffective union leadership. And compulsory unionism has now made it necessary for the people of America to spend $4 million or more in order to assure the "fairness" of an election.

(According to news dispatches, the Labor Department also may soon be called upon to monitor the re-run of the 1971 Masters, Mates and Pilots union's national elections.)

A National Right to Work law, or individual work laws in the 31 states where compulsory union membership is now legal, is the only answer to the present state of affairs — not government intervention in the voting process. Intervention is not a sure, it's a salve. Right to Work protection would eliminate the cancer of corruption and power-mongering and give to all American workers their full rights. As Senator John McClellan (D-Ark.) observed so incisively more than a dozen years ago: "Compulsory unionism and corruption go hand in hand."

Cornpone and Caviar

By J. Harvey Burgess

They're at it again. Beginning in September each year and continuing through April, Baltimore and New Orleans keep jawing about the relative merits of their oysters. I've eaten oysters many times in each of these cities and will go on record as saying that oysters in both cities are fit for an epileptic or an epicure—but the best oysters I ever tasted grew away back in the remote hills of Kentucky.

These were wild oysters, not any of your pampered, pallid, domesticated things. Oysters never reach the peak of perfection until they are four years old. In the Chesapeake, in the Chincoteague, in the Shelter Island, in the Gulf of Mexico, in Maurice River, oysters are exposed to the tongs and dredgers much of the time and they bring up, along with the four-year-olds, many adolescents—lean, lanky, spindly oysters not more than eight months old. These have neither flavor nor substance. In the Kentucky hills the oysters are accessible only one day in each four years—the day they attain perfection.

Since the ordinary oyster is raised in water, it has a large water content, but as these Kentucky hillbilly oysters are raised far from water, they are mostly meat. What little moisture they possess is obtained by sneaking down to the moonshine stills early in the morning before the revenuers arrive and licking the dew off the moonshiners' barrels. This gives their flesh the delectable flavor of bourbon.

The oyster from the river, the bay or the sea can be opened in a jiffy by an experienced man with a knife, but these hill oysters, with their tough limestone shells, cannot be pried open with the sturdiest, keenest knife devised by man. How, then, can mortal man revel in the ecstasy of this ambrosial tidbit? The explanation is quite simple. Oysters are fatalists. Once each night in four years they creep into a salt cave and salt themselves. Then early in the morning on election day, they roll down the hills, lick an unusually large amount of dew from the moonshiners' barrels—and begin to hiccup. That spells their doom, for the hillmen insert their knives between the shells when the oysters hiccup.

Ordinarily you would not believe this story—but you have believed others like it during the recent presidential campaign.

Most people can take over-the-counter drugs safely without the supervision of a doctor. They are labeled with instructions for use and warnings of things to avoid. This labeling should always be read and followed exactly.

Although over-the-counter drugs can be sold without a prescription, they are not meant to be bought and used indiscriminately. They should only be used for minor illnesses that last a short time.

If you ever have a reaction to any drug, discontinue its use and consult a doctor immediately. Miss Morris says.

Robert Jarrell paced the Jarrell Fuel squad as they squashed their opponents in all games to collect four points enabling the team to take full command of the top spot, Robert's 576 series, which included a grand 243 game, combined with Martin Jarrell's and Howard Tibbitt's fine efforts gave the fuelers all the extra strength they needed to overpower a four-man Penn Central squad. Ray Baker bowled a great 542 series in a losing cause for the rail-roads.

Wally's Garage and Robbins' Hardware battled to a two-two stalemate, which caused Wally's Garage to topple from the top spot. Wally Ryan rolled a fine 208 game and 529 series for a little extra effort for the garage boys leader, was second in attendance.

The Esther Circle were hostesses for the Tuesday meeting.

The Martha Circle will have a meeting at the home of Mrs. Cain on Jan. 15 at 7:30 p.m.

and Robbins' Hardware received a good assist from Jeff Robbins.

Snoopy Collins amassed a grand 566 series, including a 203 game as he led Taylor & Messick on a three point jaunt over McKnatt Funeral Home.

Kenny P. Outten also bowled well this week as did Tom Brown to also add a little extra strength to Taylor & Messick output. Harold Brode almost equaled Collins' effort as he rolled a great 561 series which included a 209 game and Donald Garey also rolled a good effort which enabled the McKnatt team to salvage one point.

The Spoilers took three points from Quillens Market on the fine bowling efforts by Jack Sapp, 533; Bruce Harrington, 527 (203); and Leonard Outten. Donald Wilson and Warren Steerman bowled good efforts for Quillens' Market as they captured one game.

Fry's American took the measure of T & M Rejects as they made a clean sweep in all games to get four points for their efforts. John Forbes rolled a great 562 series, including a fine 205 game and Jerry Hayman and Donald Jester added a real good effort for Fry's. Leroy Betts and Bob Wilson bowled very well for the Rejects.

Peoples Restaurant showed good strength in crushing Brothers Five in all games as Bill Manship, Jimmy Fitzhugh and Frank Collins bowled above average efforts. Robert Dennis hit a fine effort for the losing Brothers Five team.

Butler's Fuel and Big John's Son came out all even as they rolled into a two-two split. Both teams were handicapped by having to bowl with four men. Dick Collins bowled well for the fuelers and Mike Kohel gave a good account of himself for Big John.

Spartans Split In Smyrna Xmas Tourney Tilts

Lake Forest's hot-and-cold basketball Spartans, played well and lost to a strong foe, then sputtered to an eyelash triumph, over a weak opponent.

In the opener, the Spartans matched De La Warr's Lions, basketball-for-basketball, then lost 51-47, by recording a miserable .333 percentage at the foul line. The Lions canned 11 of 22 free throws to account for the victory margin, since field goals were even at 20.

It Seems To Me

Jamet Reed

Clothing is one of the most flexible items in the family budget. When we really have to economize, it seems easier to start with clothing.

In the first place, all of us have more clothes than we need merely to protect us from the elements. We buy clothes for many other reasons, but if we really have to economize, we can buy fewer.

And, we can wear clothes longer. It's fairly easy to get another year's wear from most of our clothes before we discard them. We may be tired of them, but that doesn't become so important if we are watching the pennies.

It usually is the homemaker who makes her clothes last longest. Children grow quickly and when everything is outgrown, they are apt to get the big chunk of the clothing dollar. Dad's clothes, too, will come before new ones for mother, if he is the sole breadwinner and must present a business-like image at work.

In affluent times we become somewhat careless and tend to forget some of the shopping skills and care skills that help extend the clothing budget.

Invest in more basic clothes of good fabric. These can be worn for many seasons. Fads and high fashion are likely to be expensive and have a short life as well.

Look for good quality fabric, even if you have to do some minor style changes. Good fabric will clean well, wear well, and look good for the life of the garment.

Since labor is one of the big costs of clothing and you pay for labor regardless of fabric quality, you have a much better investment if you can spend slightly more for good fabric. Of course, if you know fabric quality, it also helps you to pick out the best bargains among the sale merchandise.

Buying at sales may or may not be a money saver. It's easy to buy something you don't really need, or something that doesn't go with anything else you have. Planning ahead so you know what you can use will be a help if you shop at seasonal sales. Sticking to the plan may require a firm will when you see bargains on all sides.

When you keep clothing in good condition, you aren't as tempted to buy new things. Keep clothes mended as needed and learn to do inconspicuous mends.

Wear an apron when preparing food to avoid those troublesome grease spots.

Follow care directions for every garment. Look for care directions before you buy the garment so you will know if you have the proper equipment or if you're going to have to spend extra money for special cleaning. If the care directions are gone and you don't really know the fabric you may be throwing money away.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne W. Holberton

Looking ahead into 1973 brings mixed emotions. For instance, larger supplies of beef and pork have been coming to market and will continue to do so. But, the demand for beef is rising at a rate of 10% annually. This desire for beef just doesn't show any signs of letting up either. Though our supplies are larger, they are climbing by only as much as the demand. Therefore, wholesale and retail prices are not expected to change during January or February. If anything happens they may edge up, this could be caused by bad weather in the growing area making it impossible for farmers to get their stocks to market, or another demand for increased pay by one or more of the many groups who handle these meats. In late winter or early spring prices are expected to climb seasonally.

Veal and lamb prices remain high and from the number of animals raised these prices have little hope of coming down. Each year less veal is butchered making this meat a true luxury item.

Stocks of turkey left over from the large crop marketed during the holiday season are ample. There should be plenty of turkey products available, also. However, prices may be a little bit higher than they were in November. Look for special sales on this meat for better buys. Remember, the over-16 lb. birds are the best values by cost-per-pound and by cost-per-serving.

Although broiler-fryer production in January will probably drop slightly, supplies of this high protein food will be ample. Receipts of eggs at local markets continue above a year ago levels. However, prices have increased during the last 6 to 8 weeks. Egg supplies usually start to increase in January reaching their peak in the spring of the year.

The first two or three months of the year are normally poor months for northern fish because of the weather. Look for fair to good supplies coming from the south. Check such varieties as Spanish Macerel, Sea Bass and Spots. Shell fish to choose from will be shrimp, lobster, mussels and crab meat. All will be fairly expensive.

Harvesting of an exceptionally large orange crop is in full swing in many areas however, recent freezing weather in the west has damaged that crop. How much is yet to be known. The supply of frozen concentrate should be very large with prices reasonable.

During the early part of winter many vegetables come from storage stock. Potatoes, sweet potatoes, onions, turnips, and cabbage. Prices will be higher on most items than a year ago and for a few fresh vegetable prices may well be considerably higher.

Another factor in keeping heating bills low is to keep warm air inside and cold air outside, Walpole says. Your house should have 4-6 inches of insulation between ceiling joists in the attic, under floors which are over unheated basements or crawl spaces, and in the walls of standard wood-frame houses.

Storm windows and weatherstripping can help seal out cold. If you don't have storm windows, fasten clear vinyl or plastic sheeting to the inside or outside of window frames. Strips of cardboard molding are available for this purpose.

Use a caulking compound to fill cracks around windows and doors and in foundations and other places where cold air may get in or heated air escape.

The final method for lowering heating bills is simply to keep the thermostat set as low as possible for family comfort. The 70-74 degree range is usually best. Use a humidifier if you have one. People feel more comfortable at lower temperatures if the air is not too dry.

Varying the thermostat a few degrees during the day and at night may save a little money, but don't turn it way down at night and way up again in the morning. It takes more fuel to raise the temperature than to keep it constant, Walpole says.

At various locations in the United States and Canada. Only the top varieties are selected for special recognition.

Peter Pan Scarlet, the silver medal winning zinnia, is a new addition to the Peter Pan series of hybrid zinnias, and only the third color to be introduced. The other two Peter Pans are Plum and Pink-winners of All-America gold medal awards in 1971.

Peter Pan Scarlet Zinnia combines a large flower size with a dwarf plant. Individual flowers are well-doubled and measure three to four inches across. Seldom growing more than a foot high, the first flowers appear when the plants reach six inches. Stevens recommends this flower for use in a landscape or border planting.

Happy Face, a bronze medal winner, is classified a "hedging" marigold because of its neat, uniform habit of growth. This marigold has deep golden yellow fully-double flowers measuring up to four inches across on 26-inch plants. Earlier than the Jubilees, more double than Apollo and Moonshot, Happy Face stays colorful from the end of July until frost, branching and rebranching with fresh blooms. Furnace Care Can Lower Heating Bills

Cold winter weather means higher heating bills. That can't be avoided, but a few preventative measures can keep the bills as low as possible.

The first step, according to Ernest Walpole, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware, is to be sure your furnace is in top condition. It's easy to check a furnace over yourself, then call a repairman if you spot any problems.

If you have an automatic, forced air furnace, check the pilot lighting system first. If the burner lights with an explosive "whoosh," it needs to be adjusted by a repairman.

If the burner of a gas furnace is clean and working properly, the fuel will burn with a blue flame. If there is much yellow in the flame, the furnace needs professional adjustment, Walpole says. Too much yellow in either oil or gas flames wastes fuel and increases heating costs. Next, check the smoke pipe between the furnace and chimney. Be sure it's sound, securely fastened, and that nothing is blocking the smoke passage. Look down the chimney to be sure it's free from obstructions.

The motor-blower area of the furnace should be checked over and lubricated if places for oil are provided. On some newer furnaces, the bearings may not need oiling because they are permanently lubricated.

When you keep clothing in good condition, you aren't as tempted to buy new things. Keep clothes mended as needed and learn to do inconspicuous mends.

Wear an apron when preparing food to avoid those troublesome grease spots.

Follow care directions for every garment. Look for care directions before you buy the garment so you will know if you have the proper equipment or if you're going to have to spend extra money for special cleaning. If the care directions are gone and you don't really know the fabric you may be throwing money away.

Fleas Can Become A Household Problem

Everybody knows that dogs and cats get fleas. What they sometimes forget is that houses and people get them too. You could search and never see a flea, then go on a two-week vacation and return to find your house overrun with them.

The way this happens is simple, says Frank Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware. Eggs can drop off your pet and hatch while you're away. The larvae are fully grown within two weeks. Adult fleas can survive only on blood, but they can live several weeks without food.

Fleas on animals cause rough, irritated skin. One thorough treatment with a flea powder or spray is often sufficient for animals confined to an area which is free of fleas, Boys says.

Dog and cat flea collars also provide excellent control. However, pets can be sensitive to the DDVP in the collars, so check for signs of irritation such as a loss of hair around the neck, Boys says.

Pressurized sprays containing methoxychlor, Malathion, pyrethrum or ronnel provide the best way to control fleas in the home. Apply a five percent methoxychlor spray or two percent malathion spray to floors and baseboards and about one foot up on the walls. Use a light mist on upholstery, rugs and other fabrics to prevent stains. Using a premium grade of either chemical will prevent odors.

Pyrethrum household sprays are used in the same way, but the treatment should be repeated in a week to ten days. Ronnel sprays should be used only if they are labeled for home use.

Regardless of which treatment you use, be sure you read all instructions thoroughly before you start, Boys says.
