

Several Indicate Interest In Democratic Top Post

In the wake of a successful election last November, comes a field of prospects for chairman of the Kent County Democratic Committee.

Secretary of State, Robert Reed, of Dover, current chairman, is scheduled to resign Feb. 20 because of a possible conflict of interest with the Hatch Act.

George F. Turner, of Dover, seeks the post and has made known his intentions in a letter to Bernard (Reds) Bruner, chairman of the 31st District.

Also mentioned in the rumor mill is Joann D. Slights, daughter of former chairman, Vernon B. Derricks, Jr., who held the post from 1949 to 1969.

Interest in the chairmanship is especially keen in the 35th Representative District, in which Harrington is located, because the district is the largest in the county and because of its victories last fall.

Another reason for the interest is the supply of super grass roots politicians, several of whose names have been mentioned for the county post.

None of these have said "yes", and none have said "no" to the press, but the interest is at high pitch.

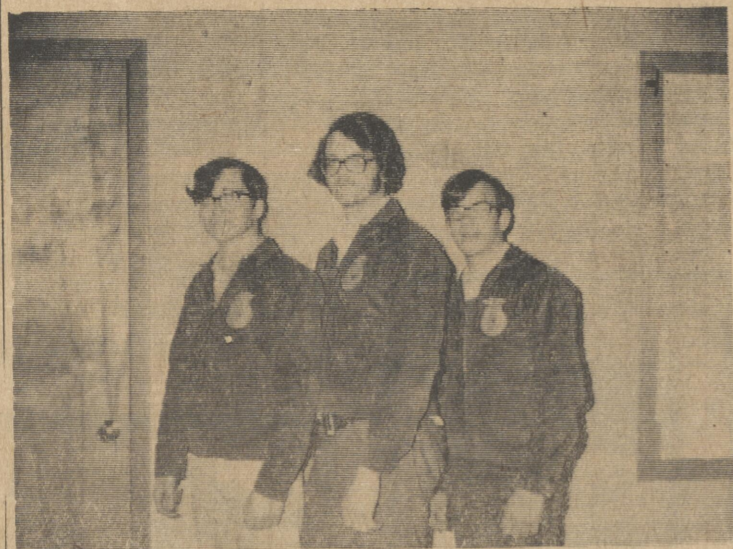

Prospects are Sen. Allen J. Cook, of Kenton, the only county legislator whose term does not expire two years hence.

Levy Court Commissioner William Paskey Jr., chairman of the 35th District and vice president of the Levy Court, Paskey manages to avoid friction but will scrap when he has to.

Benjamin Hughes, vice chairman of the 35th District, chairman of the 5th Election District of the 35th, is a Harrington dairyman who piloted his team to a victory after three successive terms by a Republican representative.

George R. Killen.
Last but not least, is Ernest E. Killen, who has indicated an interest in the post but has not said on what terms. He is a former chairman here, a former member of the state highway commission, and one who served three successive terms as state auditor. His business interests have been provided for and he has indicated he would have time for the post though he has made no formal announcement.

AGRIBUSINESS

The state FFA Association held its annual agribusiness contest at the W. T. Chipman School here Mon., Jan. 22. Seven FFA Chapters throughout the state participated in this event.

The Agribusiness Contest is divided into two parts. The first part is a live interview where the contestant is interviewed 10 minutes by a man working in the field of Agribusiness. The second part of the contest is a written examination that is prepared by an agriculture economics professor at the University of Delaware. The contestants are allowed 90 minutes to complete the exam which covers more than 15 agribusiness skills.

The FFA Chapter from Lake Forest placed third in this event and the team members were Billy Paskey, Tim Sylvester and Ricky Wheatley.

The Lake Forest Chapter of the FFA is sponsored by Neil Brasure.

Embley Named BBB President

Luther M. HeHarn, Chairman of the Board of Better Business Bureau of Delaware, Inc., announced today the appointment of Clifford G. Embley as its new President.

Embley is a graduate of Purdue University and of the BBB Institute at Washington University in St. Louis.

Embley recently instituted a consumer arbitration program at the BBB of Central New Jersey. Plans are to institute a similar program later this year at the Delaware Bureau. Embley replaces John E. Babiarz, former Wilmington Mayor, who served as President of the Delaware BBB from 1969 until recently when he resigned to accept the position of secretary of the Department of Administrative Services in the cabinet of Governor Sherman W. Tribbitt.

City Approves Zoning of Land For Apartment Houses

The City Council approved rezoning for apartment houses and light commercial subjects Monday night.

A special meeting, involving two and a half hours, started out primarily to study salaries and raises of city employees. The study was made at an executive session, with outcome which may be learned at the regular February meeting Monday night.

business was concomitant with the growth of Harrington. The council voted to accept the recommendations of its planning and zoning commission to rezone the land the City sold to Garrison Lake Builders, of Dover, last year. The builders sold it to Carlisle Land Company, also of Dover.

This company has sold an option on the land to Command Developers Inc., of Margate, N. J., for $5,000, to be exercised in 90 days.

Realtor Arnold Gilstad, spokesman for Carlisle showed a plat map indicating Command could erect 1,040 one and two-room bedroom apartments on 40 acres, with the remaining 26 acres for light commercial development. The developers would start with garden-type apartments on 18 acres.

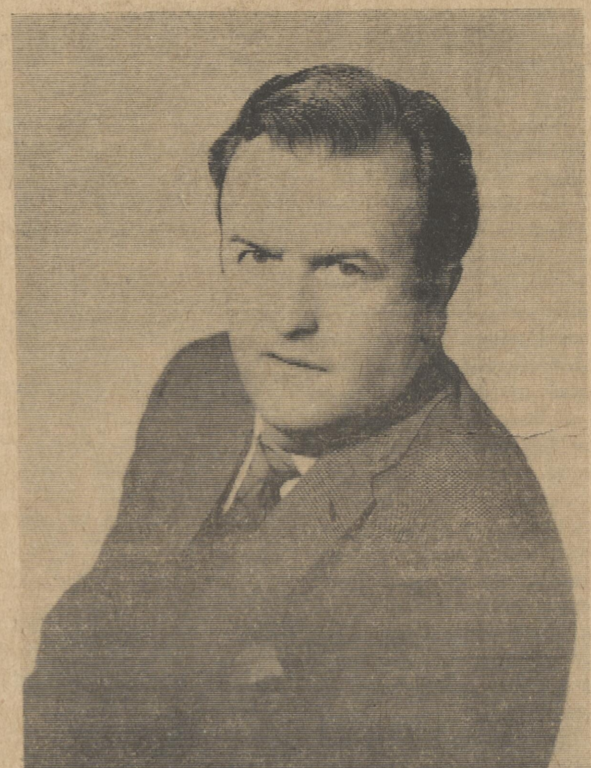

The land is the residue of the Hammond estate on Delaware 14 mainly across from Hollywood Cemetery. Portions, however, a strip extends along the lagoons of the City's sewage disposal plant to within 500 feet of the facility.

A notice of the Council's agreement to the rezoning of the land is published elsewhere in this issue.

With emphasis still on development, John Stevens, manager of industrial development for the state Department of Community Affairs and Economic Development, told of an industry, name unrealized, wishing to locate here. The firm has been checking this area more than a year and its officials are scheduled to appear at the February Council meeting. Stevens told the group the firm was one of national repute.

Representatives of Penn-Del Development Company, of Baltimore, building townhouses on Peck Avenue, Warren Brothers, contractor for work on Peck Avenue, and Dudley Willis, consulting engineer for the City and a member of Edward H. Richardson Associates, met with the Council for a clearing of facts and agreed the street work had been held up by wet weather but work should be going in two weeks.

Women of Moose, Celebrated 22nd Anniversary

Tribbitt's Agriculture, Labor Nominees Approved

The State Senate last Thursday confirmed two more of Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt's cabinet appointments with hardly a murmur. J. Thomas Schranck, Department of Labor, and M. Martin Isaacs, Department of Agriculture, picked up 21 affirmative votes. Both underwent brief public hearings in the morning.

Isaacs, a distant cousin of Senate President Pro Tem J. Donald Isaacs, R-Townsend, told senators he would resign his post as chairman of the Sussex County Democratic Committee upon his confirmation. Isaacs, a Georgetown farmer for the past 20 years, will receive $24,000 a year as secretary of agriculture.

Schranck, of Claymont, president of the Building Construction Trades Council for the past eight years will receive $25,000 a year as secretary of labor. Schranck said 65 per cent of his salary will be paid by the federal government.

Isaacs once served as executive secretary of the board of agriculture, forerunner of the department. He was bumped out of the job by the man he has just replaced G. Wallace Caulk.

Schranck listed memberships in an impressive, lengthy list of labor-oriented civic organizations. He said he will resign as president of the Trades Council, made up of 28 affiliated construction unions.

Both Schranck and Isaacs attended swearing-in ceremonies of three other cabinet secretaries, Clifton E. Morris, secretary of highways and transportation; John E. Babiarz, secretary of administrative services, and John D. Daniello, secretary of community affairs and economic development.

One of the highlights of the ceremonies was a surprise visit to Tribbitt's office by Tex Ritter, in Delaware to promote the Blue Hen Country Network. Ritter, a cowboy movie star, perhaps is most famous for singing the title song of the classic film western, "High Noon."

In other action last Thursday, the Senate passed a resolution creating a five-member committee to look into the fees of lawyers.

Sen. Herman M. Holloway Sr., D-Wilmington, sponsor of S. R. 21, said it is time for public "airing of why these charges are so high. I think we need to look at these fellows since they won't look at themselves."

Holloway said he has taken the Senate floor "to no avail" several times in the past to try to get the Delaware Bar Association "to do a little public relations . . . to let the public know what to expect from lawyers."

Sen. Michael N. Castle, a Republican attorney from Wilmington, said he could not vote on the resolution because it represented a potential conflict. However, he suggested the committee "take a good look at the bar association minimum fee schedule. I think you'll see a lot of your troubles stem from that."

The resolution picked up 18 yeas with Sen. Reynolds du Pont, R-Greenview; Dean C. Steele, R-Windsor Hills, and Castle registering as not voting.

Mrs. Cullen Gets Post of Clerk of Peace

Mrs. Gail Cullen of Dover, wife of the late Kent County Clerk of the Peace, was selected Tuesday night to fill her husband's job.

The selection was made by the Kent County Democratic Executive Committee. Their choice now goes to Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt, who will make the actual appointment to the post.

Mrs. Cullen's husband, Thomas P., died Dec. 21, leaving two unexpired years of his term.

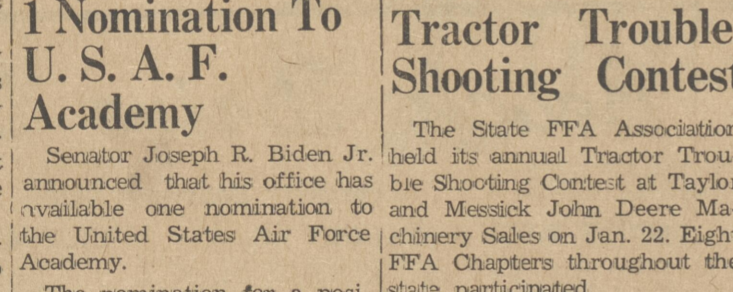

The selection was made by secret ballot since there was strong support for Mrs. Betty Lou Cooper of Camden-Wyoming. The final tally was kept secret, but was said to be fairly close.

County Democratic chairman Robert H. Reed, also secretary of state in the Tribbitt administration, met Monday with the governor to discuss the appointment and

USDA Specialist Discusses Consumerism At Consumer Concerns

Unit pricing and open dat-ing may provide solutions to a lot of consumer problems, but not until consumers and retail stores learn to make the best use of them.
The problems of consumer-ism were discussed recently by Eileen Taylor, consumer re-search specialist in the mar-keting economics division of the U.S. Department of Agri-culture. She spoke at Con-sumer Concerns '73, a pro-gram sponsored by the Co-operative Extension Service at the University of Delaware in Newark.
Both unit pricing and open dating have been developed in the last three years. They are part of a larger move-ment in consumerism which is seeking quality and integ-ity in the market place.
Open dating refers to any date on a package which can be read by the consumer. It replaces a system of coding which had previously been used by most manufacturers. The codes, which contain a variety of information, are al-most impossible for consum-ers to understand. In addi-tion to other information, codes generally include a date.
The date which now appears on many packages may in-dicate one of several things. If it's a date in the past, it may be the date the product was made, packaged, shipped or put on the shelf. Freshness dates indicate the product will be fresh until some future date, assuming it has been handled properly.
Some future dates indicate the last day the product may be sold by the store. Expiration dates, which appear most often on refrigerated dough products, mean the product must not be used after the indicated date.
Unit pricing is widespread in large grocery stores. More than 100 retail chains in the United States are now using it.
Systems of unit pricing vary. Some stores use shelf tags printed by computer, but many shoppers find these dif-ficult to read. Other stores use larger, more colorful shelf tags.
Unit pricing has not been used by many small indepen-dent grocery stores. Unless Varnishing has always been a good way to finish wood floors. And there are certain ways to care for these floors that will always keep them looking like new. Varnish that is scuffed and soiled can be refreshed by washing with soap and water; then rinse, let dry and apply another coat of varnish. If soap and water does not get rid of the dirt, heavy sandpapering or bleaching may be in order.

We keep a full inventory of supplies in order to have them available when you need them. For all your building materials see us at HARRINGTON LUMBER & SUPPLY, HARRINGTON, 398-3241. We are headquarters for contractors as well as do it yourselves and offer quality merchandise at competitive prices. Hours: 7:30 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. thru Fri., 7:30 a.m. - noon Saturdays.

HELPFUL HINT: Varnished floors should never be soaked with water. Spills should be wiped up immediately.

DON'T TAKE THE ENGINE OFF!

One of the greatest examples ever used to illustrate a point is that story concerning William F. Wrigley, the chewing gum magnate. He was riding in the club car of the famous old Broadway Express when one of his two assistants opened the Saturday Evening Post to a two-color, two-page spread advertisement on Wrigley's chewing gum. The assistant figured out how many packages of gum Wrigley had to sell to pay for that one ad and the total was astounding.

With this ammunition in hand, the assistant figured he'd make a big hit with the "boss." Approaching Mr. Wrigley, he asked:

"Why do you keep on making such enormous outlays for telling people about Wrigley's chewing gum? You've got everybody chewing gum now. Things are going fine. Why don't we ease up on this effort?"

Wrigley looked at him for a moment, turned round so everybody could hear, and asked: "How fast is the train going, boys?"

One man answered: "About seventy miles an hour."

Wrigley said, "It's sure going along fine, isn't it. WHY DON'T THEY TAKE THE ENGINE OFF?"

Mr. Wrigley made his point in a very dramatic manner. Momentum is achieved by the diligent application of power. But the laws of nature do not prescribe that momentum continues without continuing effort.

STOPPING BY THE WOODS ON A SNOWING EVENING.

by Robert Frost

Who's woods these are, I think I know,
His house is in the village though,
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods fill up with snow.

My little horse must think it queer
To stop without a farm-house near,
Between the woods and frozen lake
The darkest evening of the year.

He gives his harness bells a shake,
To ask if there is some mistake.
The only other sound, the sweep
Of easy wind and downy flake.

The woods are lovely,
Dark and deep,
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep.

Cagers Drop Two More Close Tilts

Lake Forest's winter sports teams are having luckless seasons. They are plagued by questionable officiating, recalcitrant athletes and one close defeat after another.

Jim Blades' cagers were edged 47-40 by Cape Henlopen and 69-64 at Seaford and are now 4-6 in Henlopen Conference play and 5-7 overall. Two starters sat out the contest with Cape Henlopen, yet the Spartans were closing fast, at the finish and simply ran out of time. Jim Dill captured game honors for Lake Forest by tallying 18 points.

At Seaford, Lake Forest was cold in the second period and trailed 44-30, at halftime. Immediately after intermission the tide turned as Lake Forest surged 23-9, to draw even at 53-all, entering the final stanza.

Seaford regained the upper hand and managed to pull out the narrow win. Jim Dill had 24 points for Lake Forest. Don Bryant tallied 15 and Neil Travis 14. The Spartans' foul shooting drills are not paying off. In both defeats, the locals missed more than half their free throws. This deficiency was especially glaring at Seaford, since Lake Forest out-pointed the Blue Jays 27-26 in field goals and lost the contest at the charity stripe, since Lake Forest attempted 25 free throws and missed 15.

Spartan Matmen Beat Seaford, Lose To Laurel

Just about everything happened that could happen to enable an inferior Laurel Bulldog wrestling team, to prevail 25-23, over a clearly superior Lake Forest squad.

Lake Forest lost 109-pound starter, Glenn Jarrell, because of an earlier ear injury. 117-pound Martin Miller, is sidelined with illness, but this loss was offset by the return of 1972's 100-pounder, Rodney Wyatt, who won by a pin. A couple of other starters didn't wrestle for various reasons.

Finally, Laurel picked up six points on a disqualification to get a narrow victory, that the Bulldogs probably did not expect to get.

Chris Mertz had Lake Forest's other pin at 138-pounds.

Terry Jarrell started Lake Forest off on the right foot in the 33-21 defeat of Seaford. Rodney Wyatt (117) defeated Taylor of Seaford 2-0. Taylor pinned Wyatt in 1972 when both were two classes lighter.

Tom Clarke, Charles Baynard and Chris Mertz annexed the next three matches. Baynard's victory was by a fall and enabled him to remain in the unbeaten ranks.

Skip O'Neal pin win at 182 pounds wound up Lake Forest's scoring, enroute to the fourth win the seven settees, for the locals.

Benson, Waples Vie In Indoor Track Meet

Lake Forest's new track coach, Ed Webster, had two entries in the Delaware Scholastic track meet, held last week, on the 220 yard indoor track, at the University of Delaware.

Harry Benson, a 14-year-old freshman prospect, ran the mile for the third time in his brief career. His 5:07 clocking came after earlier clocking of 5:18 and 5:10, in Junior Olympic Competition last year. He didn't place in the final standings, but did well considering this youth and inexperience.

He has four, full outdoor track seasons ahead of him and could get the all-time Spartan No. 1 spot some day.

Chplflops "Cliff" Waples was slow to get off by heavy traffic, but still managed a 60 second quarter mile, indicating he could get a spot on the Spartan mile relay team this spring.

Eddie Thompson and Ron Mosley, 1972 cross-country aces, are working out and may join the winter track competition soon.

New Century Club Notes

The Harrington New Century Club held its regular meeting Tues., Jan. 23. Mrs. Joseph L. Brinster presided at the business meeting.

Mrs. Charles L. Peck opened the program by having Mrs. Earl Sylvester play the piano for the club members to sing their club song. Mrs. Peck introduced our exchange student from Brazil, Miss Celia Ribeiro. Miss Ribeiro showed the Brazilian flag and told what the parts of the flag meant to her people. She then showed us a Brazilian map and the city of Fortaleza, where she lives. Brazil covers over half of South America. It is in the Torrid Zone and is anywhere from 80 to 90 degrees all year long. The slides that Miss Ribeiro showed of her city consisted of beaches, water fountains that are lighted at night, air ports, parliament buildings, her church, and pictures of her home and family. There are over 7 million people in Brazil. Sugar Lake Mt. is one of the largest mountains in Fortaleza and one can see all of the city from this mountain.

The favorite sport of Brazil is soccer. Miss Ribeiro told about carnival time in Brazil. They last for 2 days and nights and are like the mardigras here in the states. The people sing and dance in the streets for these 2 days. The city is decorated with lights and decorations.

The High School in Brazil is a private school, and the colleges are all free. School year begins in March, with Dec., Jan., and Feb. off for vacation. They have rain 6 months of the year.

Their Independence Day is Sept 3 and started in 1822. Miss Ribeiro said that they eat a lot of rice, beans, and beef. One of the things that she found hard to get use to was having sandwiches to eat at lunch time here.

Miss Ribeiro's program was enjoyed by all members of the club.

The next club meeting will be at 1 p.m. on Feb. 13. Topic will be "Surprise". Chairman will be Mrs. Francis J. Winkler. Committee members will be Mrs. T. H. Storius, Mrs. Earl Sylvester, Mrs. Ridgely Vane, Mrs. Horace Johnson, Mrs. Howard Thistlewood and Mrs. Luster H. Rogers.

On March 13 the New Century Club is planning a trip to Drexelside, Drexelside is located on the Potomac River in Alexandria, Va. Cost of the trip is $3.50 per person. Anyone interested in making the trip must contact Mrs. William Stokes 398-8004, no later than March 1.

Leaf Analysis: A New Tool For Diagnosing Plant Deficiencies

Farmers are constantly on the lookout for new ideas that can increase their production efficiency. Even when a good crop is in sight, they ask, "Did I use the right kind of fertilizer? Did I apply nutrients that weren't used? What changes can I make next year to increase yields?"

Recent studies at the University of Delaware indicate that pay closer attention to nutrient balance in their fertility programs. Dr. Merle R. Teel, professor of plant science, says the fertility level as estimated by a soil test is important, but as certain deficiencies are corrected, other elements not considered in the soil test may have an adverse effect on yields. The problem may be a deficiency of some minor element, such as zinc or manganese, or it may be due to an improper ratio of nutrients caused by an excessive build-up of one or more elements.

Teel says scientists have developed chemical tests for analyzing the mineral elements found in the leaf tissue of plants. These tests provide information on the capacity of soil to supply a crop with the essential elements in the proper ratio. They also indicate the presence of toxic elements such as aluminum.

The instrument used for this type of test is called an emission spectrophotometer. As the minerals in leaf tissue are ignited in a burner, each mineral emits a different colored light. Intensity of the light varies with the concentration of the element. The light is then converted into a quantitative measure of 10 or more elements simultaneously. By using a computer, scientists can relate variations in crop yield to the concentration of the minerals found in the leaf tissue.

Studies with corn at the Newark Experiment Station indicate that the mineral content of corn seedlings 8 to 10 inches tall can be useful for diagnosing nutritional problems, according to Teel. Over 47 percent of the variation in grain yield could be explained by examining the relationships between the essential elements. High magnesium levels were associated with depressed yields. Likewise, high phosphorus levels depressed yields. There was evidence of manganese deficiency since higher yields were obtained on soils which promoted manganese uptake by the roots.

A lime experiment at Millsboro, produced similar results. Corn leaves sampled at silking revealed the importance of the phosphorus to zinc ratio. With high phosphorus, there was a tendency for the plants to be deficient in zinc. Further, the mineral content of the leaves indicated that high magnesium depressed yields; increasing the potassium and calcium resulted in increased yields.

Teel is also looking at the use of aerial photography to help farmers locate crops suffering from mineral deficiencies or imbalances.

Last year an attempt was made to identify corn plots with mineral deficiencies or imbalances using infra-red film. The aerial photographs clearly pin pointed problem areas. By comparing the mineral content of corn leaves growing in a problem area with leaves sampled from healthy plants in an adjacent area, Teel hopes farmers will be able to identify areas which need special attention.

Not all newspaper print is digestible. All the news that's fit to print is not always all the newspaper that's fit to eat.

Researchers at Cornell University have been working on paper as a forage substitute for sheep and cattle, but the work has hit a residue snag. Cattle and sheep do accept rations of newspaper as a source of cellulose. However, the omnipresence and toxicity of polychlorinated biphenyls (PCB), which can be used as dye carriers in printer's ink, have caused the Cornell researchers to re-examine the value of using newspaper as a forage substitute in cow rations.

The workers collected 10-pound samples of each of about 100 popular newspaper and magazines, and surveyed them for organic compounds. They were looking for such compounds as PCB. Their results indicate that you should be cautious about feeding certain dailies to animals, while other journals showed little danger of carrying the compounds. Most of the magazines surveyed have the potential for containing significant amounts of these hazardous chemicals.

The variety of inks and papers used accounts for the varied results. Recycled paper usually contains more PCB.

The researchers also studied selected newspapers, a magazine, gray cardboard, brown cardboard, and computer paper for certain heavy metals. The significant amounts of boron, lead, barium, and antimony found in these papers led them to question recycling these materials into animal feeds.

Believe it or not, funny papers proved to be less digestible than the straight news- because of the quantity of heavy metals carried in colored printing inks of the comics.

The trend to organic food is growing, according to USDA's Office of Information. More consumers are interested in and are buying organic foods. There is no federal law or regulation defining what is or is not organic food, but the general assumption is that such food is free from preservatives, emulsifiers, and arti-

Dates Set For Chicken Cooking Contest

The Delmarva chicken cooking contest will be held June 15 and 16 at the Wicomico Civic Center in Salisbury, Md. The contest is a preliminary cook-off of the national chicken cooking contest to be held this summer.

The contest is open to residents of Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia.

First prize will be $300 plus an all-expense paid trip to the national contest, a winner's trophy and additional gifts of merchandise. Second prize is $200 plus gifts of merchandise. Third prize is $100 plus merchandise.

Additional information and entry blanks are available from the Delmarva Poultry Industry and from your county home economics extension agent.

Home Gardeners Short Course To Be Conducted

Starting Feb. 8th, the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Delaware will conduct a series of 6 weekly home gardening sessions. In addition to informative lectures and slide programs, the course will include actual work sessions involving seedlings, grafting, propagation of cuttings, etc.

The course will cover such things as: shrub, tree and flower identification, insect and disease control, perennials, house plants, fruits and vegetables, and lawn care.

The course will be limited to 35 persons. There is an enrollment fee of $7.00 per couple or $5.00 per single individual. If you are interested in enrolling, call 736-1448 and we will send you a registration form. Remember, the course is limited to 35 persons, so call today for a registration form.

official ingredients and produced without pesticides and artificial fertilizer.

Dr. Ruth Leverton, Agricultural Department Science Adviser, says food labeled as "organic" is not likely to contain more vitamins than similar food not considered organic or not labeled organic.

A survey by the Agricultural Department in the Washington area has made one point about organic food. A market basket of 29 standard foods bought in a supermarket cost $11. A basket of 29 organic labeled counterparts cost $20.30 in a supermarket's organic section, $21.90 in a health food store, and $17.80 in a natural food store.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

Do you realize that if you are an average American you spend only 16.3% of your income for food (25 years ago it was 25%) and about one-fourth of that is spent on meat. That is probably why when meat prices go up so does your temper. So let's take a clear look at a steer beef as we follow it from range (western) to range (kitchen).

A steer on a farm in the mid-west will not do anyone in Delaware a bit of good until it is in the right place, in the form we want, at the time we want it. This is food marketing - getting food to us in the forms we want and need. This is expensive.

Our beef calf probably saw the light of day on a cattle range of the west or south-west. After the farmer feeds it for six months on grass, the calf or yearling steer probably was sold to a mid-western farmer who fattened the animal for market on corn or other grain. This grain feeding gives the meat the fine marbling that makes tender and juicy.

No the steer is sold and transported to a meat packer, slaughtered, prepared for shipment, refrigerated, sliced, delivered to the store, fabricated into retail cuts, packaged, weighed and priced. All of these steps cost money. The more money it takes to do these jobs the more we pay at the meat counter for our favorite cut of beef.

There are also other things that enter into this picture. Not all the steer is steak by a long stretch of the imagination. Let's take a 1,000 lb. steer and see what happens. The farmer receives for this fine animal about 36 cents a lb. or $360.00. When the steer is slaughtered and dressed it becomes an approximate 590 lb. carcass. Now the value of this beef has risen from 36 cents to about 65 cents a lb. This is when the retailer gets it. But so far we haven't considered the costs of labor, transportation or equipment and supplies that also must be included in the final cost of the beef. As these services go up, grain costs go up, etc. so will the price we pay for beef.

Another problem with this carcass is that there are a limited number of pounds of each of our favorite cuts. Though most of us like beef we do have our favorite pieces and so far, we are willing to pay the price. So let's break this 1,000 lb. steer down and see how many pounds of which cuts it will produce. There are approximately 31 pounds of Porterhouse, T-Bone and Club Steaks, 50 pounds of Sirloin, 68 pounds of Round Steak, 38 pounds of Rib Roast, 20 pounds of Boneless Rump, 90 pounds of Chuck Roast, 98 pounds of Hamburger and 49 pounds of Stew Beef.

Now that we know how much one 1,000 lb. steer will yield we have the problem of supply and demand. Meat prices are determined by this for the retailer must sell the beef he has bought and get enough money for all the cuts combined to cover his purchase cost and the labor of preparing the cuts for sale and a small profit to keep open with. We Americans like meat and especially beef and we are willing to pay the price for it. Every year we eat more beef regardless of price which proves we do like it.

Even though prices continue to rise, people have more disposable income and there is a larger population each year, so the competition for meat gets tighter and it costs more. We like beef.

Humidity--How Much Is Enough?

Humidity is a contrary condition. It surrounds us in great amounts during the summer, a time when we'd just as soon it would go away. Then in cold weather when it's needed, what happens? It disappears, leaving the inside of the house drier than a desert.

Without humidity indoors in winter, shocking things may happen due to static electricity build-up. Without moisture in the air, floors creak, tiles come loose and crack, and wooden furniture joints become loose. Pianos won't stay in tune. Houseplants get limp and may even die—except cacti which thrive in desert climates.

Lack of humidity causes home heating bills to be higher than need be. We don't feel warm in heat-dried air—even when the thermostat works near 80 degrees. Nasal passages get dry and irritated; skin and hair are dry and brittle.

To keep things comfortable and healthy around the house in winter, you may need to add humidity. But don't go too far with the moisture, cautions Ernest W. Walpole, agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware.

He says too much humidity can cause moisture to condense inside walls and ceilings, leading to damp insulation and peeling paint and wallpaper. Wood cupboards and paneling may warp; carpets and draperies may develop mold.

Tightly-built homes, especially those with electric heating and vapor barriers in the walls, may not need any humidity at all. Sometimes a dehumidifier is needed instead.

How much humidity is enough? Walpole says there are two simple tests to tell whether more or less humidity is needed. First, look at the windows. If they are "sweating" from moisture condensation, you've got too much humidity in the air.

A second method is the ice cube test. Drop three ice cubes in a glass, add water and stir. If moisture does not form on the outside of the glass within three minutes, the home air is too dry. (Do not make this test in the kitchen, as cooking vapors may affect the humidity level.) You should find a happy medium between the two tests—keeping home humidity somewhere between the sweat of the glass and the sweat on the windows.

If you don't want to guess, buy a humidity gauge, available at most hardware stores. The gauge is calibrated to give "relative humidity" as a percent of the amount of water vapor in the air compared to the total amount of moisture the air can hold at a specific temperature.

To keep home humidity at recommended levels during cold weather, two to four gallons of water should be added to the air every 24 hours, says Walpole. If a home has a forced air heating system, the most effective way to humidify is with a humidifier mounted on the furnace. There are two types: the less expensive kind has evaporator plates set in a water tray located in the hot air stream. The big problem with this type is that the evaporator plates tend to collect lime deposits and must be cleaned frequently. A second furnace-mounted type is the power humidifier; it is more expensive, but more effective and needs less attention than the water-tray type.

Portable water-wheel humidifiers also can be used. The disadvantage of portable humidifiers is that humidity is not distributed evenly throughout the home, but tends to stay in the area of the humidifier.
