Most Social Security Benefit Checks Increase

Social Security benefit checks to most aged widows and dependent widowers will be increased on Feb. 3, W. J. Bulkeley, District Manager for the Social Security Administration in Dover, announced.

Prior to 1973, a widow's retirement benefit could not have been more than 82 1/2% of the amount her husband would have collected at age 65. Now, however, because of the 1972 changes in the law, a widow who first began to collect widow's benefits at age 65 or later, will receive the same benefit that her husband would have received at his age 65, provided that the husband did not take reduced retirement benefits before he was 65. Approximately 38% of the 3 1/2 million widows on the Social Security rolls will begin receiving 100% of their deceased husband's benefit on Feb. 3, Bulkeley said. This will amount to a 21.2% increase in the benefit the widow was receiving.

If, however, the widow first started collecting widow's benefits before she was 65 years of age, her new benefit will be less than the full amount of her husband's benefit. She will receive a partial increase ranging from a fraction of 1% up to about 21%.

These are the women who became entitled to widow's benefits between the ages of 60 and 64 years, 11 months. Approximately 51% of the widow's now on the rolls will receive a partial increase in their benefit check.

Bulkeley stated that the increases, where due, were being processed automatically and that there would be no need to get in touch with the Social Security Office.

About 11% of the widows will not receive an increase because their benefit rates were being paid under various other provisions of the law and could not be changed.

There is another group of widows who may be due increases and action will be required on their part. These are the widows who are receiving retirement benefits based on their own employment. Because of the increases in the widow's benefit, they may now be eligible for a larger benefit by applying on their deceased spouse's account. Widows who believe they may qualify under this provision should get in touch with the nearest Social Security Office as soon as possible.

Good Management Increases Profits For Dairymen

What does it take to be a successful dairy farmer? Several things contribute, according to W. T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware.

A recent summary of dairy herds in New York state indicates that financial success is determined by a proper balance of milk production, labor costs, equipment costs and herd management. The same factors also apply to dairy herds in Delaware.

One of the most important factors is getting high milk production per cow. This is particularly true on farms with herds large enough to get the multiplier effect of size and the ability to capitalize on the economies of scale in the use of labor and money invested in machinery.

Milk production per cow and per man in the labor force must be high in order to show a profit. However, the study showed that on farms with more than 45 cows per man, milk production tended to be lower.

Dairymen who used their DHIA records as a guide to culling had high herd averages of milk production. To keep income high, it is important that herd size be maintained by replacing the culled cow with one capable of higher production.

The study demonstrated the importance of proper care and feeding of heifers for herd replacements. The weight of a heifer when she enters the milking herd was closely related to the level of milk production. For example, Holstein heifers should weigh 1,110 pounds at calving time if top production is to be expected, McAllister says.

At the same time, dairymen must control their expenses in order to make a profit. Capital investments and machinery costs per cow should be kept moderate. Mechanization can be self-defeating if it forces costs up without resulting in added production or income.

The best way for a dairy farmer to make wise management decisions is to use farm records as a guide. They provide information on what has been done in the past, what has caused profits to rise, and a guide to what may happen in the future.

KENT COUNTY CURRENTS

by
JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
Levy Court President

Last week members of the Levy Court met in Little Creek with the Little Creek Town Council and interested local citizens, to discuss the proposed joint use agreement for joint use of Dover Air Force Base for a county airport.

The residents of the Little Creek area appear unanimously opposed to the idea, even though the joint use agreement clearly does not place any further zoning restrictions on the county. The residents of the area refused to believe this.

The purpose of the joint use agreement is to provide Kent County with a first rate airport at minimum cost. This airport would encourage commerce and industry and would improve air passenger service of Kent County residents, who must now travel to Philadelphia and Baltimore to board airplanes.

Studies indicate that eleven hundred Kent County residents per month, are traveling by air.

If Kent County signs the joint use agreement it will have eighteen months to decide the next step. During this time airplane companies would be asked to bid on providing passenger service and schedules and local industries and prospective industries would be contacted for their support and use of the airport. We have already received numerous requests.

However, on an issue this importance support and understanding of the residents of Kent County are vital. The Levy Court plans further public debate on this important project. Information is available at the Levy Court Office for any person who would like to study the project in more detail.

A common cause for dirty hot water is overheating. The higher the temperature to which water is heated, the more likely it is to be dirty because of the precipitate that forms. Water at a temperature of 130 degrees is sufficient for most household purposes. When buying a dishwasher, your best buy may be one with a booster heater for sterilizing purposes. This is the best way to avoid the formation of a precipitate along the piping of your water system.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

PEACE

"Our Individual World"

Each of us has a world to own,
 Though never on a map it's shown,
 Lacking an impressive dome,
 It's capital is known as "home".

This personal world begins and ends,
 Where dwell our loved ones and our friends,
 Though over them no flag's unfurled,
 They are the people of our world.

Once welcomed here as strangers, they,
 Became good citizens to stay.
 Our cares for them will always show
 What harms or pleasures we might know.

When in our capital we are,
 We'll remember all, near and far,
 And because we know them we'll discuss,
 How much their welfare means to us.

Our program this; our world to be,
 A peaceful one, from hatred free.

Acting Dean of U.D. College of Arts And Science Named

Dr. Edward H. Rosenberry, administrative experience of professor of English at the University of Delaware, has been named acting dean of the university's College of Arts and Science, effective Feb. 1, 1973. Dr. L. Leon Campbell, university provost and vice president for academic affairs announced today.

Dr. Rosenberry, who chaired the U. of D. department of English from 1966 to 1969, will succeed Dr. Ray E. Keese, who will chair the university's new department of speech communication.

The university's present department of dramatic arts and speech will split into the departments of dramatic arts and speech communication on Feb. 1, 1973.

The appointment was announced after Provost Campbell held consultations with the Arts and Science Senate Steering Committee and with officers of the Arts and Science College Council.

"We are fortunate to have on our faculty a man with the administrative experience of Dr. Rosenberry to step in and fill this position during a transition period," Dr. Campbell said in making the announcement.

A graduate of Haverford College, Dr. Rosenberry holds his masters degree from Columbia University and his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

While serving in the U. S. Army from 1942 to 1946, he directed the Philippine Institute for the Armed Forces.

He joined the U. of D. faculty in 1952, after having taught at the high school level and on the faculties of Kutztown State College and the University of Pennsylvania.

The author of numerous critical essays on American authors, he wrote an article for the National Council of Teachers of English entitled "Refocusing the English Curriculum." Dr. Rosenberry, who has held a lifetime interest in American novelist Herman Melville, also wrote the book, "Melville and the Comic Spirit."

Wrestlers Beat Falcons, Lose Thriller At Sussex Central

Lake Forest's wrestling Spartans own a 7-4 log and have clinched a fourth place finish in the 13-team Henlopen Wrestling Conference. Their last two starts saw the Spartans trim Dover Air 33-10 and lose 26-21 to Sussex Central.

Dover Air won the first two matches, but had only one more victory the rest of the evening. Lake Forest had pins at the bottom of the slate from Skip O'Neal (182) and Gilbert Currey, the Spartans' 300 pound heavyweight. Currey's opposition was a 174 pound eighth grader. This lamb was slaughtered on the sacrificial altar, in 27 seconds.

Charles Baynard's 5-1 defeat of Ace Green was his 10th in as many starts. We don't know how many times Ace was trumped previously, this campaign.

Sussex Central Coach Herman Bastianelli has never been beaten by a Harrington or Lake Forest team. He's had some close calls, though and this escapes the wily, veteran mentor has ever had with a local team.

The Knights were on their high horses in the first two bouts and racked up ten points.

After Rodney Wyatt's win at 117, Tom Clarke and the winning coach's son, Dan Bastianelli, hooked up in a battle royal. Bastianelli scored a hairline 2-1 decision and now has won some thirty straight dual meet matches. A visiting referee, taking a busman's holiday, later stated that the winning grappler was stalling and could have been warned and possibly penalized. This latter action might have meant a draw or a Clarke victory.

Another key match took place at 132 pounds. Sussex

Central's Dale Swain upset undefeated Charles Baynard 12-7.

Chris Mertz (138) and Chris Adamo (143) scored decision victories to put Lake Forest back in the running.

With five bouts left, the Spartans now trailed by only 16-9. Both teams had made some changes in personnel at 150, 159 and 169, in the hope of outsmarting the opposition and picking up crucial points.

At this juncture, Lake Forest needed one victory and had to avoid pins, in the next three bouts. Unfortunately, both Tony Harmon and Tom Baker had to move up a class in order to shore up a weak spot at 169. The Spartan strategy almost worked but all hope was gone when Baker dropped a 3-2 verdict.

Skip O'Neal and Gilbert Currey came through with quick pins, but Lake Forest was just one victory away from an upset triumph.

Harrington Bowling League

Leah S. Wheeler

Brothers Five jumped off to a fine four game victory over Wally's Garage to start the last and final third and was the only team in the league to remain with a clean record after bowling Tuesday night. Ron Kelly scorched the boards as he rolled great games of 203, 212, and 217 for a fantastic 632 series, and the rest of the Brothers team backed him up with great performances as Robert Dennis added a real fine 532 set and Richard Dennis chipped in with a good 208 game. Eugene Wright rolled very well for Wally's in defeat.

Leroy Wheeler paced Fry's American to a three point win over McKnatt Funeral Home as he amassed a superb 609 series with a great 223 game included, and Bill Brode rolled a great 553 set, including a 200 game, with the rest of the team adding real good efforts to hold down the second place spot in the standings. Harold Brode could not quite match his younger brothers' output, but did roll a fine 204 game and 541 series, with Ken and Donald Garey adding a good effort enabling McKnatt's to salvage one point for their efforts.

Sam Lyons rolled a great 549 series and 208 game, and Robert Wright hit a fine 211 game and 542 set, with Dickie Collins coming through with a real fine effort to give Butler's Fuel a three-to-one verdict over the Spoilers. The Spoilers team bowled a little above or very close to their average but still couldn't take more than one point from their opponents with Bill Morris leading the team with a real fine above average effort, and Leonard Outten rolling a good 200 game.

The T & M Rejects started the final third in grand style as they took the measure of People's Restaurant to collect three points for their efforts. The whoe Rejects team bowled real well, with Oscar Bishop setting the pace with a fine above average effort. People's Restaurant could not get off the ground although Phil Shulties rolled a great 531 set and Frank Collins added a good effort enabling the team to salvage one point.

Penn Central swamped Quillen's Market in three games as Paul Baker hit the high game for the night, a 225, and Bill Willoughby and Bernard Coffman added fine above average efforts. Donald Wilson continues to bowl well for Quillen's and Warren Steerman added a good effort to help keep the team from falling into the cellar spot as they salvaged one point for their efforts.

Jarrell Feul and Robbin's Hardware took the opportunity to feel one another out as two champions of thirds this season with the outcome a stalemate as the teams could only manage two points apiece for their efforts. Jarrell's Howard Tibbitt rolled a fine 203 game and 526 effort and Robert Jarrell added a fine effort to help keep things even. For Robbin's Hardware Frank and Jeff Robbins rolled real fine above average efforts.

Taylor & Messick could not match the efforts of their counterparts, the Rejects, and finished the night against Big John's Son in a two-two split to wind up in seventh place in the standings. George Collins rolled a grand 561 series and George Langford added a great 213 game and real fine above average series, with Kenny Paul Outten adding a good effort for the Taylor & Messick squad. William Kohel continues to bowl well and amassed a superb 607 series, with games of 211 and 215 included and John Powell added a real fine above average effort for Big John's Son.

General Service Committee To Meet Feb. 17

On Saturday, Feb. 17, the regular monthly meeting of the General Service Committee of the Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Delaware will be held in the rooms of Morning Star Lodge No. 6, in Smyrna, with chairman, Virginia Pepper, of Georgetown, presiding and calling the meeting to order at 8 p.m.

Cagers Trounce Delmar 60-30

Henlopen Conference foes use Delmar for practice sessions, when it comes to basketball. The Wildcats are tame kittens, on the hardwood.

The Spartans used every body, but Coach Jim Blades, and waltzed to a 60-30 tune.

Don Bryant led the scoring parade with 22 points followed by Jim Dill with 12 and Mike Atkinson with 10.

The locals are at 7-6 with toughies Laurel and Indian River ahead and a contest with weakie, Dover Air. It looks like at least a 500 campaign for the Spartans, in spite of the hard luck encountered this winter.

Delaware Food Market Report By Anne W. Holberton

There are so many plants known as "greens" and most of these can be cooked. How delicious they are, too, but how many different ones do you eat? What's your score on cooked greens? Let's see how many can be named and described in this space. Here goes, alphabetically.

Collards, closely related to kale, is one of the most primitive and oldest members of the cabbage family. This vegetable is usually boiled with salt pork or hog jowls or fry a few pieces of bacon or salt pork in a frying pan, then add clean shredded collard leaves. Cover and simmer until tender (about 10-15 minutes). Serve with lemon slices or vinegar. Delicious.

The history of cress is obscure in origin but in February and March the plowed fields around us are full of it growing wild. You must know how to pick it to have it sweet and by all means use the young tender plants. If you ask most any farmer he will know this plant as winter cress and know of its delightful flavor. It too is cooked until tender which may be as much as 40 minutes but its well worth it.

Dandelion greens are an excellent source of Vitamin A and make a wonderful vegetable. They should be picked before the bloom since after blooming the greens become very bitter. Pull up, cut roots off and pick the greenest, freshest leaves from the bunch. Wash well and boil until tender. Be sure to salt before cooking is completed. What a delightful way to rid a fat way to rid the lawn of a pest.

Kale is a large, hardy, curly-leaved green also of the cabbage family. It is usually quite plentiful throughout the winter months. The "old times" say kale is always sweeter after the first good frost and how true this is. On the nutritional side kale is full of good things such as Vitamin A and Vitamin C plus very low in calories. Its an excellent addition to any dinner menu.

Mustard greens - have you ever eaten them - if you haven't you are missing a real treat. They are truly superior to many greens in some ways - one instance they do not lose their mineral values (such as calcium) through the presence of the nutrient "stealer," oxalic acid. Be sure to use the young tender leaves, wash well and use only the water that clings to the leaves to cook them in.

Spinach, well it dates back to the Greeks and Romans, as it was then, it is today a real wealth of natural food values. Abundant in Vitamins A and C and it also is a good source of B and G. You won't have to wash it as much as usual if a little salt is dissolved in the first water you use. Be sure to take the large stems off, if there are any, and cook as little water as possible.

There are still other greens, such as beet greens, Swiss chard, turnip greens just to name a few but space is running out.

Regardless of the green you choose to buy or pick look for ones which are fresh, young and tender and have a good healthy color. Avoid any dry or yellowing leaves, greens which seem wilted or those which show any sign of insect damage. Keep them cool and moist and do use right away. The sooner the better. For greener color and better flavor, cook uncovered for the first five minutes or until done - make sure there's enough water to cover the vegetable after it has wilted during the first few minutes of cooking.

Greens are great, make your score a good one and your handicap one hard to beat.

TOWN AND COUNTRY TOPICS

DAVE WOODWARD
ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

Pork production has rapidly changed as reflected in a 1853 government publication quoting William J. Phelps of Peoria, Illinois. "Hogs with us in the spring are turned into a clover field with plenty of salt and a light feeding of corn. They remain there until about the 10th of July when they are turned into a field of oats to keep themselves. These last them a month or six weeks until the feeding of corn starts. It's cut and hauled to them while the stalk is green and juicy. During all this time the animal has been growing thriftily. Hogs properly cared for in this way will weigh at twenty months from 200 to 400 lbs."

With our modern confinement feeding systems today, hogs are brought to 220 lbs. at approximately five months of age.

Farmers generally give too little thought to planning for retirement. The natural way for past generations of farmers to retire has been to cut down on farming activities, but otherwise carry on as was done in the past. But the development of fast moving, highly commercial and highly mechanized agriculture has made it increasingly difficult to "retire" on the farm.

A commercial farm today soon becomes a financial liability if it is not operated at full capacity. Many farmers at retirement age cannot afford to shut down or slow down the plant and see depreciation and overhead eat up the farm investment they have spent a lifetime accumulating.

Farm families find it hard to switch their thinking from saving for the future to living on the principal. But the switch is a logical one, for the family at retirement has reached the point where saving further is really unnecessary. The questions should be: How long will we need an income? How much income will we need? What resources do we have to provide this income?

The Kent County Co-operative Extension Office has Informational Bulletin #5 entitled, "Farmers and Retirement," written by Robert S. Smith, Professor, Farm Finance, at Cornell University. It covers many aspects that farmers should consider when planning for retirement. If you will call 736-1448 or drop us a line at P. O. Box 340, Dover, Delaware, we will be glad to send you a copy of this bulletin.

There will be a beef cattle tour and educational program with emphasis upon practical management and innovations for cow herds, feeding steers and dairy beef. Maryland, Virginia, and Delaware beef producers are invited to attend this tour on Wed., Feb. 28. The tour will start at 9:30 a.m. at the Stuart Groves Farm located one mile south of Kennedysville, Md., on U.S. 218. For tour information, call or write the Kent County Extension Office.

On Feb. 27, the 1973 Delaware Pork Industry Day will be featured at the Civic Center, Salisbury, Md.

Pork Industry Day is sponsored by the Maryland and Delaware Pork Producers Association in co-operation with the Co-operative Extension Services of Delaware, Maryland, and Virginia. The purpose of this Pork Day is to improve promotional practices and to promote consumption of pork products.

Luncheon, featuring barbecued pork chops, will be served; tickets are available at any Co-operative Extension Service Office for $1 each.

It Seams To Me

Janet Reed

The gathered sleeve is making a big fashion come back. It seems strange to see this style promoted as fashion news when you remember when gathered sleeves were in and out of style the last time around.

I remember regretting the gathered sleeves' fall from fashion favor and how we had to relearn the techniques of setting in sleeves by easing the sleeves cap fullness for a smooth shoulder line. That smooth shoulder look has been with us a long time, so I guess it's about time for the fashion pendulum to swing the other way.

The gathered sleeves are really very easy to do—but must be done correctly for a professional look. From results I have observed in judging at recent contests and exhibits it seems we have a teaching job to do. A few of the fine points have been missed.

Don't try to make a gathered sleeve out of one which was meant to be eased into the armhole. It will look skimpy and appear as though you simply did not know how to ease the fullness for a smooth effect.

Sleeve fullness must fall where the pattern indicates so all sleeve markings are as important as ever. It's a temptation to gather up the sleeve and let the gathers fall where they may, but this can give an uneven distribution and cause diagonal pulling because the fullness doesn't fall where it is needed.

Gathers must be even and evenly spaced. To control this fullness, use two or three rows of gathering stitching along the seam line. A few fine points for this gathering stitching will give the results you want. (1) Always stitch with the fabric right side up so the bobbin thread which lies on the underside is one pulled. (2) Loosen the needle thread tension slightly to allow the bobbin thread to pull more easily. (3) Polyester or nylon thread is stronger than cotton and pulls more easily without breaking. (4) Use the stitch length best for your fabric, usually the stitch length you use for the fabric seams. Short stitches divide the fullness into small segments and tend to give more uniform results than long stitches. Very small stitches may be difficult to pull up, however. It's best to try a test stitch on your fabric before gathering the sleeve cap.

Place the first row of gathering stitching only a thread's width away from the seam line within the seam allowance. Place a second row within the seam allowance one-fourth from the first. For extra control, place a third row one-fourth inch from the first stitching, within the garment. This stitching is removed after the seam is joined but tends to keep the fullness from being caught in small pleats under the needle when the seam is stitched.

Draw all three of the bobbin threads up to form gathers. Work from each end of the gathering to sleeves top so you won't have such a long line of stitching to pull.

Insert the gathered sleeve cap into the armhole, matching seams, notches and other markings. Distribute fullness evenly and place pin perpendicular to the seam. Place the point of the pin nearest the gathering thread at the seam line, taking only a small bite of the fabric.

Stitch with the gathered side next to the needle so you can further control the gathers as you stitch. Stitch so the gathering thread falls just within the seam allowance. For extra strength, place a second row of stitching one-fourth inch away from the seam. Trim away excess fabric. The gathered sleeve is an easy technique but one must be exacting to achieve good results.

Start Planning Your Garden Now

Late winter is a good time to start planning this year's vegetable garden. According to Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware, planning ahead is an important step toward having a successful garden.

The first step is to find a garden site. It should be well-drained and have good, deep soil.

Next, draw a sketch of the garden plot. When you choose which vegetables to plant, consider the likes and dislikes of members of the family. Also think about which vegetables you'll use fresh, canned or frozen.

You may want to sketch a plan for your garden plot and have a double or triple crop rotation for parts of the garden. Start with cool season crops that are resistant to light frost and follow these with early crops to be planted after frost. As the early seeds and seedlings from certain soil-borne organisms. Check the seed package to see if the seed has been treated. It should be clearly marked.

Many weeds harbor vegetable and ornamental diseases and can spread them to nearby gardens, so keeping your garden weed free can eliminate one source of disease. Disease-causing organisms also thrive in old diseased plant material, so rake up and remove all plant debris before planting this year's garden.

When you have your plans on paper and know the amount of each vegetable you plan to grow, then order the seed. You can purchase seed locally or order from seed catalogs. Just be sure the variety is adapted to Delaware.

Start working the garden plot as soon as weather permits, but don't work wet soil.

The preparation period is also a good time to get an early start in combating garden diseases. Being sure the soil is limed, fertilized and well drained is a good way to start. Root diseases are more likely to take hold in poorly drained soils.

Buy seed which has been treated with a fungicide to kill disease-producing organisms in or on the seed. The fungicide also protects the with ways to make simple musical instruments and some new songs. Sharon Warren and Robin Dill learned how to make paper charts and the reason why these charts can be a big help. Shelly Chandler is our Juliette Low girl and she joined the group learning more about her. The girls had a two hour study period and then had lunch.

Girl Scout News

Eight members of Troop 829 attended a Patrol Leaders meeting Feb. 5th, at Christ Memorial Baptist Church, in Camden. The girls went into different rooms to work with girls from other troops, Marsha Moore joined other scribes to learn more about her job. Chris Welch attended a treasurer's meeting and then joined an idea group. Delane Breeding was in this group also and the girls worked with scrap bag items to turn out some very pretty pictures and collages. Lea Ann Sylvester went to the drama room and helped put on a shadow program later in the afternoon. Kay Sylvester went to the music class and came out of the day. The final thing was the awarding of diplomas. Each girl received one and everyone seemed to have had a nice time.
