

MRS. JOSEPHINE LAWS NOTES 96TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Josephine Laws observed her 96th birthday Saturday at her home in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Laws, a former Harrington resident, is the widow of G. Hearn Laws.

On her birthday she was visited by her sons, Merritt Laws, of Honolulu, G. Hearn Laws of Houston, Tex., and Joseph Laws of Puerto Rico.

She was also visited by her grandson, Joseph Laws Jr., also of Puerto Rico.

Merritt Laws, in town last Friday, said Mrs. Laws was in good health.

Cornish Receives Scholastic Award

Richard Cornish of Pearl River High School has been notified of his advancement to finalist standing in the 1973 National Merit Scholarship Program, an honor shared by less than one-half of one per cent of the nation's graduating secondary school seniors.

As a finalist Cornish remains in competition for one of the 33,000 Merit scholarships to be awarded this year. Winners will be notified between mid-March and mid-May.

He was also awarded a $500 scholarship by the Pearl River Elks Club, which qualifies him for competition for the National Elks Award, and a $6400 New York State Regents Scholarship, which amounts to $6,400. He ranks first in his class at the high school, and will be valedictorian for his graduation ceremonies.

Cornish is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cornish of 190 North Lincoln Ave. in Pearl River. He plans to study medicine and has received notices of acceptance from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, John Hopkins University and Boston University.

He was cited last fall as one of the outstanding high school students of English in the country by the National Council of Teachers of English, and was a winner in the essay contest conducted by the Rockland County Council, Veterans of Foreign Wars in November.

The Merit scholarships are based on a qualifying test given in the student's junior year, upon scores on the national Scholastic Aptitude Test, and upon school recommendation.

The Cornishes are former Harrington residents.

Young Cornish is the grandson of George Cornish.

Besson-Taylor

Col. Robert Besson, U.S.A. (Ret.) and Mrs. Besson of Arlington, Va. announce the engagement of their daughter, Karen, to Capt. John William Taylor, U.S.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Taylor of Harrington.

Miss Besson attended the American College in Paris; Schiller College, Germany; and is a graduate of Indiana University. Capt. Taylor was graduated from the University of North Carolina and is presently stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky.

A July wedding is planned.

Treated Seeds Produce Better Crops

Farmers can gain many benefits from using seed which has been treated to help control disease, according to Dr. Robert Carroll, extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware.

Seed treatments help control disease-producing, seed-borne pathogens, insect problems in the soil and soil-borne fungi. As a result, treated seeds produce stronger stands, bigger yields and better quality crops.

As another benefit, seed treatments give already-weakened seed a better chance to become established. This year, this is particularly important in the case of soybeans, since last year's hot weather damaged seed crops.

There are two types of seed treatment available, Carroll says. Eradicative, including hot water treatment, destroys fungi and bacteria in and on the seed. Protective treatments are a chemical coating on the seed which protects it from disease-producing pathogens in the soil.

No treatment can be both eradicated and protective, so it is best to follow an eradicated treatment with a protective treatment.

Farmers can buy seed which has already been treated, or they can treat their own. The important factor, Carroll stresses, is to be sure to use treated seed.

Three Cabinet Chiefs Take Oath of Office

Three new cabinet secretaries Monday morning were sworn in at the office of Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt by Superior Court Judge William G. Bush, III.

Taking the oath in brief ceremonies were Jack P. White as secretary of Health and Social Services, Lemuel H. Hickman as secretary of Public Safety and John C. Bryson as secretary of Natural Resources and Environmental Control.

The three nominees were confirmed by the State Senate last week. All had been acting secretaries before Tribbitt named them to the top jobs.

Child Support And The Family Court

Annual child support collections of the Delaware Family Court are expected to increase, according to Chief Judge William C. Gordon.

Speaking recently at a meeting of New Castle County home-maker groups sponsored by the cooperative extension service at the University of Delaware, Judge Gordon said present support collections for children under the jurisdiction of the Court now total over $4.5 million.

In answer to questions about the way support obligations are determined, he said that the Court in recent cases has recognized that the needs of a healthy child require at least $25 a week. In an opinion by Judge Elwood F. Melson, Jr., the Court set this amount as a minimal need. The opinion also indicated that the support amount should increase for the child when he reaches age five.

For each additional child beyond the first, the Court assumes an additional minimum of $15 per week needed. This amount would also increase after age five. These figures do not cover the cost of unusual medical or dental expenses or the cost of providing nursery care for a working mother, Gordon explained.

While this standard now exists in the Court, he said, it is important to realize that the amount paid by way of support must be moderated in some cases by the defendant's ability to pay. This requires an assessment of what he earns or has in other assets and what his bare needs are. Sometimes, the man has remarried and has to support obligations to two families. The ability to pay support in each case is a difficult question for the court to determine, the Chief Justice added.

Gordon also said that the Court recognizes that its decisions in this area affect people's lives over a period of many years. Child support accounts are often quite active. There are close to 7,500 such accounts in the state of Delaware.

The Court has asked for some additional help from the Legislature to bolster staff efforts in looking after child support accounts, and with the aid of volunteers, it is working hard to continue to increase its services.

"While the Family Court, statewide, gets about 1,500 new cases per month, we are trying very hard to do all we can in each case, and this as early as possible," said Gordon. "This certainly applies in the support area, which is the subject of considerable planning and effort on the part of the Court."

Some 31,000 students in grades 1, 4, and 8 will take statewide achievement tests April 2 and 6.

Dr. Wilmer E. Wise, director of planning, research, and evaluation at the State Department of Public Instruction, said today that pupils in grade 1 will be tested in mathematics, reading, and listening.

Pupils in grades 4 and 8 will take four-and-a-half hour batteries of achievement tests in reading, English expression, mathematics, and science, together with tests of verbal and quantitative ability.

A 20-minute test in mental and physical health will be given this year to grades 4 and 8 in place of a career knowledge test given last year.

Athletic Boosters Club Meet

Interested in supporting the Leke Forest Spartan teams? The Athletic Boosters' Club will be meeting on Mon. March 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the choral room (A111) of the high school. Come out and support all our student athletes.

Property Assessments Up Sharply in Center

Property assessments for 1973 showed a substantial gain over the previous year, it was revealed recently by the City Tax list.

The gain, attributed largely to increase in building of homes and a factory, was $69,685.72.

Assessment this year is $5,516,347.72, against $5,446,662 for the previous year.

Capitation taxes this year were listed at $12,600, against $11,960 for last year. Capitation taxes are $10 per head.

Property taxes are $1 per $100, with assessment at 60 per cent.

Total property taxes would be approximately $35,098.

At appeal night Monday, the City Council encountered no appellants.

However, the Council did approve the rezoning of the Harrington Motor Co. building, 24 Clark St., from commercial services to manufacturing. Aetna Shirt Co. wants to move its cutting department to the building.

Meanwhile, Gayle Smith, the building's owner, filed an application with the Kent County Regional Planning Commission to rezone a location on the west side of U.S. 13, approximately 850 feet south of Road 289, north of Harrington. The tract of 2.3 acres will front 200 feet on U.S. 13, with 200 feet on Road 405.

A public hearing was held Tuesday night in Dover to rezone the land from agricultural to general business.

Felton Girl Wins Contest

Bonnie J. Dill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Dill of R.D.1, Box 12, Felton, has been designated the winner among high school sophomores and juniors who are members of the Felton United Methodist Church to participate in the 24th Annual Odd Fellows' United Nations Pilgrimage for Youth this summer.

Minutes of Lake Forest School District Board of Education

Minutes of the Board of Education of Lake Forest School District Meeting held Monday evening, March 19, 1973, at 8:00 p.m., in the Library of Lake Forest High School.

Present: Marvin Brown, President; Donald Garey, Vice-President; Members Nyle Callaway, Jr., Joseph Hughes, Virgil Jarrell, James Pizzadili, Albert Price, and E. B. Warrington, Jr.

Also present: Albert W. Adams, Supt.; Dr. Howard E. Henry, Deputy Supt.; Melvin C. Luff, Adm. Asst.; Cynthia Seik, Supv. of Cafeterias; Mrs. Anne T. Minner; Karen Cohee and a group of high school students, and Keith Burgess.

Minutes of the meeting held February 19, 1973 were approved as printed.

Items added to the agenda: 1. Resignation of Daniel Seik of Lake Forest High School.

2. Board representative on a study for department head job analysis.

3. School Health Advisory Committee.

4. Supervisor of cafeterias to be on a 11-month basis.

5. Retirement of Mrs. Anna Holliday, Lake Forest Elementary School cafeteria effective 3/31/73 because of age.

6. Leave for Mrs. Mary Louise Peercy, W. T. Chipman School.

7. Governor's directive on expenditures.

8. Zoning change.

Delegations: Karen Cohee, representative from Lake Forest High School Student Council Student Advisory Council, asked that the group be permitted to attend Board meetings to present students' views and to better understand Board decisions. Mr. Adams commended the group and welcomed them. It was regularly moved, seconded and approved to accept their proposal and keep a spot open for the Student Advisory Committee.

Mrs. Seik discussed the rise in prices of food commodities and how it affects school lunches. It was the consensus of opinion that if the prices continue to rise, the cost of lunches will, of necessity, have to be raised next fiscal year.

Old Business: It was regularly moved, seconded and approved that the following Policy GBAA-Extra Duty Positions be approved: "Assignment to positions calling for a salary supplement for extra duties will be made by the Board of Education for one school year only. The District will advertise such positions in each building whenever a vacancy occurs. The principal of the building housing the activity concerned will recommend personnel for each assignment."

TOWN AND COUNTRY TOPICS

FRANCIS WEBB
KENT COUNTY AGENT

Let's save some of those food dollars you're now spending at the grocery store! This can be done quite simply by having a backyard vegetable garden.

Growing a garden for fresh vegetables is relatively simple, takes a minimum amount of time and can save you from $100 to $200 on your food bill through the summer.

I have made mention about the person living in an urban development that only has a small backyard, but even you can grow much of the fresh vegetables used in family meals during the summer. The principle to use here is to design your garden and minimize vegetable production in the area available.

A garden designed 10 ft. by 15 ft. will provide a family of four with fresh vegetables for about a $3 seed cost, and requires no back-breaking work to care of it. A soil test should be taken so that required amounts of lime and fertilizer are applied to this area. Some of the best and widely used vegetables are radishes, squash, peppers, tomatoes, cucumbers, and if you have a large enough area, even sweet corn and plants such as these.

Delaware Food Market Report

What is to an American as tea is to an Englishman? - Coffee

The history of coffee drinking is just full of picturesque interest from the legendary story of its discovery by an Arabian sheep herder to the unsleeping Balzac who wrote for 14 hours on end on 40 cups of coffee. There are many tales that would completely fascinate you about coffee. Such as how it had to fight its way and still does for acceptance. Here is a curious example of human absurdity. In England, the Women's Petition Against Coffee, published in 1674, said about coffee "that it made men unfruitful as the berry is said to have been brought, that the offspring of our mighty ancestors would dwindle into a succession of apes and pigmies," if they continued drinking it. But, more sensible English people welcomed the use of coffee instead of ale, beer, or wine for the mid day drink since workers were "more fit for business."

Our American coffee is not new either, since it dates back to 1670 when Dorothy Jones took out the first coffee vendor's license in the United States. She then proceeded to push her coffee vending machine around Boston office buildings, disrupting business, thus creating the "coffee break." Today approximately 24 per cent of all coffee is drunk during coffee break time at work.

The "regular" coffee, that which has been ground and then brewed in our homes, is still the favorite of the coffees here in America. However, each year we seem to be making better use of the instant one. Some people seem to be "born" coffee lovers, others have lots to learn. If you feel you need to know more here are a few pointers which will help you toward a better cup of coffee.

Keep your coffee maker immaculate. Coffee oils cling, affecting the flavor of the coffee.

Use fresh coffee. (How do you keep coffee fresh? Keep the coffee tin in the refrigerator after you open the tin. Freshness and full flavor are retained much better this way. The reason is the degree of cold in the refrigerator makes it more difficult for the tiny air bubbles of carbon dioxide gas locked inside the coffee particles to contract and escape.)

Start with fresh cold water. Do not use hot water or water that has been standing in a tea kettle.

Keep a special measuring device for your coffee. Vary proportions to your liking. Once you find the proportions you prefer, use them every time. (A popular ratio is two level tablespoons to three quarters cup of cold water.)

Brew at least three quarters of the coffee pot's capacity. Less never tastes as good.

Keep coffee over low heat. Do not boil.

If you want stronger coffee more coffee will be needed, just continuing to perk after six to eight minutes will not make it stronger only bring about a flavor change that many people do not like.

Since coffee prices have gone up it's so important to make it good to the very last drop.

To maximize vegetable production, plant early crops now, such as peas, cabbage, and carrots. Many of these will be harvested in fifty days and a second crop, such as bush beans, tomatoes, snap beans, cucumbers, etc. can be planted in the same area. Vegetables that require short periods of growth to reach harvest size can be planted three and even four times in the same area.

Those of you that would like information on growing vegetable gardens in Delaware may feel free to call or write the Kent County Extension Office, P. O. Box 340, Dover, Delaware. (2) Starting Early Plants, (3) Recommended Varieties of Vegetables for Home Vegetable Gardens in Delaware, (4) Growing Vegetables in the Home Garden, (5) Insects and Diseases of Vegetables in the Home Garden.

You should be finishing up all of your transplanting and pruning around your home now. That tree or bush you have always wanted to move should either be moved now or put off for another year.

Buying new landscape plants should be done at the present time and by doing it now will help to insure establishment of the plants. After transplanting a tree or shrub, much of the top growth should be pruned back so the plant will not release more water from its leaves than what the reduced root system can supply.

Keep these plants watered throughout the summer and especially during droughty periods. Trees larger than two inches in diameter should be staked with support wires to prevent wind whipping. Turn buckles should be used on the wire so as to maintain taut wires.

Final pruning steps should be made at this time on all shrubs and trees, except for pines and spring flowering shrubs. Pines are pruned in mid-June during the candle growth (new growth), and spring flowering shrubs should be pruned right after blossom.

The many different plants are pruned in different ways. For detailed information on the proper ways and times to prune plants, call for bulletins on pruning: (1) Pruning Evergreens, (2) Pruning Deciduous Shrubs, (3) Pruning Woody Plants, (4) Pruning Ornamental Shrubs and Vines, (5) Pruning Shade Trees and Repairing Their Injuries.

Those of you that run into insect and disease or other problems this summer and need identification, please adhere to the following suggestions on how to submit sample material. If an insect, catch some of them, place in a vial or plastic bag, and bring to our office in a live condition. Do not allow specimens to lay in direct sunlight.

If a disease problem, collect specimens, place in a plastic bag along with a wet paper towel, and send or deliver to our office. Be sure to include your name, complete address, and telephone number. If it happens to be a problem that you cannot identify as to insect or disease, collect plant specimen that show symptoms, but is not completely killed and dried up. Try to send adequate material showing symptoms, so accurate identification can be made. We have publications available on how to send specimens for identification.

It Seems To Me

Everyone sees the collar of your dress. Does it have a professional touch, or does it tell everyone you haven't quite mastered the collar techniques?

The two sides of a collar must appear exactly alike and it isn't easy. If the collar is a rounded one, give yourself a stitching line by marking the seam line with dressmaker's carbon paper and a tracing wheel.

Choose a dressmaker's carbon that leaves marks removable by washing or dry cleaning. Also, stitch just inside the marked line so there is no danger of the carbon showing on the finished collar.

Use a short machine stitch when stitching the collars together. If you shorten the stitch to 15-18 stitches per inch, the stitching line will be smoother and more rounded than when you use a longer stitch. You also can trim away the excess seam allowance much closer to the stitching without the danger of the seam pulling out.

Interfacing in the rounded collar should not be stitched in the collar seam. Trim the seam allowance of interfacing away and stitch the interfacing to the undercollar only. This is a permanent stitching and even though it shows on the undercollar, it will not be seen once the collar is attached. Another advantage of trimming away this seam allowance is that the cut edge of the interfacing provides a stitching line when the top and undercollar are stitched together, and you may not need to use dressmaker's carbon paper to mark the stitching line.

If you prefer to use the fusible type of interfacing, again cut away the seam allowance on the stitching line before pressing the interfacing to the undercollar. After stitching top and undercollars together with a short stitch, trim away as much of the seam allowance as you can if the fabric is heavy, trim one seam slightly wider than the other to "grade" the seam widths. In the rounded portion of the collar, clip out small wedges of fabric, so that when the collar is turned the seam allowance will not "bunch up" in the curve.

However, if both seams are trimmed quite close—about 1/8 inch from the stitching line—the wedges may not be necessary. Some fabrics ease in the extra fullness more readily than others so you will need to adapt the methods to the fabric you are using.

Both points of a pointed collar should appear exactly the same. This is easier to achieve if you again shorten the machine stitch for an inch or so on each side of the point. Instead of stitching a sharp angle at the point, round it off slightly by stitching two or three stitches across the point. This will enable you to trim very close to the stitching and therefore obtain a smoother, sharper point when the collar is turned. Before stitching the point, cut off the interfacing at an angle so none of it is in the collar point and there will be less fabric bulk at this crucial point.

The undercollar should not show once the collar is attached. One way to prevent this is to understitch along the longest length of the collar seam. On heavier fabrics it may be necessary to make the undercollar slightly smaller than the top collar to allow for the extra fabric the top collar needs at the collar roll.

When attaching the collar, stay-stitch the neckline of the garment at the seam line. Then slash the seam allowance of the neckline at right angles to the stay-stitching every inch or so. Match the notches, shoulder point, center back and center front exactly and the collar will fit the curved neckline easily.

There are many methods of attaching the collar to the garment, depending on the fabric and the garment style. Check the pattern directions for the appropriate method to use.

Home Vegetables and Fruit Gardening Meeting

Now is your chance to learn all you need to know about growing things to eat in the back garden. This is the basic content of the upcoming Home Vegetable and Fruit Gardening Meeting scheduled for next Tuesday evening, March 20, at 7:30 in Agricultural Hall Auditorium at the University of Delaware.

The concept of organic gardening, nutritional aspects of organically grown foods in comparison with those grown under conventional methods, problems of pest control, new and old techniques of vegetable cultivation, and methods of backyard fruit gardening are the topics which will be discussed.

The program is sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Delaware. Program participants will include Dr. Leroy Syec of the department of plant science, Dr. Carolyn Thoroughgood of the department of home economics, John McDaniel, extension specialist in agricultural chemicals, Frank Boys, extension entomologist, Robert Stevens, extension horticulturist, and Dr. V.J. Fisher of the department of plant science. The public is invited.

The morning session, beginning at 10 a.m., will feature discussions of specialty merchandising techniques. The preparation and sale of green goods and hanging baskets, fancy fruit packs and baskets and salad and vegetable packs will be included.

Problems of building new facilities and expanding existing facilities will be discussed in the afternoon session. Three roadside market operators from Delaware and Maryland will hold a panel discussion of problems they have faced in their operations.

Ken Felton, agricultural engineer at the University of Maryland, will discuss building new facilities and answer questions from operators.

Registration at the door will begin at 9:30. The fee is $4.50. The conference is open to anyone who wishes to attend.

Tuberous Begonia Good For Shady Areas

If you have a shady area in your yard or if you would like to have a hanging basket of flowers in a shady area, consider planting tuberous begonias.

The big, bright flowers of the tuberous begonia resemble roses or camellias, according to David Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

Because begonia plants require 8 to 12 weeks to reach flowering size, they should be started indoors early in the spring. Begonia tubers are available in many garden supply centers now.

The tubers should be planted concave side up and about a half an inch deep in a mixture of leafmold, peat moss and vermiculite or sand. They should be kept moist and warm, preferably at about 75 degrees.

When the second pair of leaves appear on the plants, transplant them into individual pots filled with a mixture of equal parts garden loam, peat moss and coarse sand. Be sure they get a lot of bright light, but don't move them outside until all danger of frost is past.

When the plants are set outside, they should bloom from June until the first frost, Tatnall says.

Charles Edward Bradley

Charles Edward Bradley, 65, of Milford, died Sunday in Milford Memorial Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Bradley had been employed by the Bennett Security Service, Dover, before retiring. He was born near Greenwood and lived in Milford for 22 years.

Survivors include his wife, Lottie; one son, Steve, at home; a stepdaughter, Irene Schornick, of Blades; two brothers, John, of Harrington, and Arley, of Greenwood; four sisters, Ethel Taylor, of Greenwood, Emma Cates, of Felton, Elizabeth Jaggers of Chester, Pa., and Catherine Cannon, of Farmington.

Services were held yesterday morning at the Fleischauer Funeral Home, Greenwood, with interment in Hollywood Cemetery near Harrington.

Walter H. Coverdale

Walter H. Coverdale, 52, of near Ellendale, died Friday, when his estranged wife, Mrs. Katherine M. Coverdale, allegedly fired a bullet into his neck when he reportedly tried to force his way into her home.

He was dead on arrival at the Milford Memorial Hospital.

Mr. Coverdale was a farmer and a Navy veteran of World War II. He was born in Sussex County.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two sons, Edward and James, of near Ellendale; a daughter, Joanne Lemons, of Butler, N.C.; his father, Nelson Coverdale, of Farmington; his mother, Mrs. Marian Russum, of Ellendale; a brother, William, of Bridgeville; and two half-sisters, Susan Passwaters, of Ellendale, and Rebecca Coverdale of Farmington.

Services were held yesterday afternoon at 2 at the Berry Funeral Home, Milford. Interment was in Barratt's Chapel Cemetery, Frederica.

Conservation Districts Have Role In Urban Development

The most pressing need for soil and water conservation programs in Delaware is now in urban and suburban communities, according to Gerald F. Vaughn, extension coordinator for community and resource development at the University of Delaware. Speaking recently at the annual meeting of the Delaware Association of Conservation Districts, he outlined the needs of these communities.

In the past, conservation programs have centered on rural areas. Today more and more of Delaware, including northern New Castle county, the Dover area and the beach communities, are of an urban or suburban nature.

Among the most pressing needs of the conservation districts is to become better known by urban and suburban residents, Vaughn says. Their program are increasingly misunderstood by these people, and often communities don't realize their need for conservation programs.

Some of the needs are urgent. Conservation districts are responsible for sediment control, flood control, suburban drainage, water supply and recreation. They can also help with site planning for schools, hospitals and sanitary landfills, shore erosion control and many other problems.

On both the state and Federal levels, government agencies are becoming increasingly competitive for funds, and on all levels legislatures are

Reitnour Speaks At Equine Symposium

Dr. C. Melvin Reitnour, assistant professor of animal science and equine specialist at the University of Delaware, spoke recently at the third equine nutrition and physiology symposium in Gainesville, Florida.

He presented the results of research on the effect of the protein administration route on equine plasma amino acids. The research was done by Dr. R. L. Salsbury, associate professor of animal science at the University.

Summarizing the research, Reitnour said, "Amino acid concentrations were determined from mature equines receiving soybean meal, linseed meal or fish meal orally or by cecal administration. It appeared that the results of this experiment showed that essential amino acids were absorbed from the small intestine with horses receiving the protein sources through the feed."

However, he added, "There was a decrease in the essential amino acid concentration when the protein supplements were administered into the cecum, indicating that the main route of essential amino acid absorption is in the small intestine."

The research symposium was divided into three sessions dealing with protein nutrition, physiology of exercise and mineral nutrition and growth.

spending more and more in urban areas. Conservation districts must become actively involved in urban areas in order to effectively compete for funds, Vaughn says.

To make themselves better known; districts need to be sure of what they have to offer to all of the people they serve. Then they must make their services known through commitments to action. They must be oriented to the major issues of resource conservation on the local level.

In order to serve a modern society, conservation districts must serve all of the people, no matter whether they live in rural, suburban or urban areas, Vaughn concludes.

Yeast Breads, Nutritious And Therapeutic

Yeast breads are for everyone. There are recipes which are quickly mixed, recipes which can be refrigerated for later baking, Marguerite Krackhardt, extension nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.

You can satisfy family appetites and curiosity with white bread, whole wheat, pumpernickel, rye, oatmeal and many other varieties. Your bread can be eaten warm from the oven, or cooled or even frozen for later use.

With today's techniques and ingredients there is no need to feel yeast breads are too time consuming and difficult.

Everyone is talking about nutrition, and breads, which most people enjoy, can supply many important nutrients. You can get an extra nutritional punch in breads by adding nonfat dry milk. A portion of wheat germ will also increase the nutritive value of your bread.

Years ago, high protein bread recipes were developed at Cornell University. This was long before the current active concern for less refined food stuff. The Cornell recipes made use of wheat germ, extra dry milk solids and soy flour, in addition to enriched white or whole wheat flour. You may want to try such a recipe, Miss Krackhardt says. The bread is delicious and nourishing.

If you are just beginning to make yeast breads, use a recipe from a reliable source and follow it carefully. Accuracy in measuring is important. Every ingredient and its quantity serve a special purpose in the finished product.

Once you have mastered the technique you may be able to modify some ingredients by adding nonfat dry milk solids or wheat germ. Keep track of the quantity used each time so you know when the limits for a good quality yeast bread have been reached.

However, if you fear experimenting, start out with an up-to-date recipe from a reliable source and stay with it. There are many to choose from, and you should be able to find one for the type of bread which interests you.

Yeast breads are not only important for their nutritional

U. D. Students Presented In California During Winterim

A slide-tape program prepared by six University of Delaware students was presented at 12 California universities and colleges during Winterim.

Entitled "Behind Barbed Wire," the program deals with the experience of Japanese Americans confined to concentration camps in the U.S. during World War II.

At the invitation of the California Historical Society, the program was presented at the California State Universities at San Francisco, Sacramento, Long Beach and Northridge, Stanford University, Laney College in Oakland, the University of California at Los Angeles and the University of Southern California, among others.

value, but it's amazing how many frustrations can be eased while you knead and pump the dough into shape, Miss Krackhardt adds. Then, too, nothing quite equals the delicious aroma of baking bread. Do you need any other reasons for starting a batch of yeast bread for your family right now?

In addition, the program was shown at the San Francisco Public Library, the Japanese Cultural Center and the Japanese American Citizens League.

The 25-minute program begins with a description of Japanese Americans society prior to Pearl Harbor. Then it examines the impact of war-induced hysteria and the effect this excitement had in producing the decision to relocate the Japanese Americans.

The most important part of the program deals with life inside the various concentration camps, surveying the problems faced by both the inmates and the civilian administrators of the camps. It concludes by suggesting the effect this experience had on the American character.

Originally completed as part of an experiment in teaching history through media held during the 1972 spring semester, the project was under the direction of Dr. James C. Curtis, associate professor of history at the U. of D. and Dr. Stanley Schwartz, senior instructional technologist in the Instrutional Resources Center at the university.

The six U. of D. students chose 300 slides for the program from approximately 1,500 copies they made from War Relocation Authority photographs at the National Archives in Washington, D.C. Involved in nearly every phase of historical research and media production, the students selected the photographs, copied them, developed their own film, obtained appropriate background music, wrote the script and produced their own narration.

Three students and Dr. Curtis traveled to California with the program as a Winterim project. The students are: Steve Schoenherr, a graduate student from Newark; Peter MacGaffin, a senior from Wilmington; and Mrs. Joan Christine Young, a part-time student from Kensington, Md.

Other students who prepared the program are: John Young, a junior from Kensington, Md.; and Miss Geraldine O'Donnell and Pete Booker, both seniors from Wilmington.

Filling Your Child's Leisure Time

"Mommy, there's nothing to do." What do you do when you hear this? Or, for that matter, what can you do?

First, take a look at yourself, says Miss Mary Ann Finch, extension family and child development specialist at the University of Delaware. Think about what kind of day it's been, especially if everything has gone wrong or you aren't feeling well.

Accept your day for what it's worth. Take into account your own feelings as well as your capabilities. How you feel about a project or activity will very quickly be transferred to the child. If you are bored or bothered, the child will probably not enjoy the activity either.

At times you may not feel like doing anything at all. Don't worry about. Maybe you should try just turning on the television. With your help, it can be a companion as well as a teacher. A wise selection of programs can benefit your child. But don't fall into the habit of relying on the television, Miss Finch warns. Children need and like variety and activity.

Consider too how your child is feeling. Your child's body and state of mind are clues to the kind of play he needs. If he is sick or tired, he'll probably be happier in simple types of play. If he is bored he may need a new or more complex toy or game to keep his attention.

It helps to alternate quiet and active play periods. After requires concentration and control of hand and eye muscles, a child might enjoy an active game like a potato race or playing ball with crumpled newspapers.

Almost every child needs help getting started to play, even when he is playing with something familiar. After you set out the materials, you could play with him for a few minutes. Your enjoyment can stimulate his interest.

Be generous with praise; it helps a child develop a good self image. It doesn't really matter that the bike wobbles, or that the mud pie is runny; you can always find something that deserves praise.

Try to keep in mind what play is all about, Miss Finch adds. It is not just "busy work" to fill up time. Through play, a child learns what the work world is. He experiments with everything he does. Play is an outlet for troubled feelings and overflowing energy. It teaches the basic techniques of problem solving and belonging to a group. Putting play in its proper setting may help you find creative answers to those days when "there's nothing to do."

Vegetables

Consumers often feel it is difficult to do a good job of buying fresh vegetables. They have to try to get good quality produce that members of the family will enjoy and also get it at the best possible price.

As a general rule, the fresher the produce, the better it is, says Miss Marguerite Kraackhardt, extension nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. Fresh vegetables are usually crisp and brightly-colored.

Best prices are available when vegetables are in season. As they become less plentiful in the off season, their prices tend to rise. But to save money, don't buy large quantities just because the price is low. But only what you can store and use. Remember that most produce deteriorates fairly quickly.

Here are some suggestions for buying a few common types of vegetables.

Celery should be fresh, crisp and should have a solid, rigid feel. The leaves should be fresh and mostly green. The surface should be glossy and light to medium green.

Select carrots which are well-formed, smooth and firm. They should not be flabby or wilted.

Sweet corn in the markets now is brought in from other areas and is likely to be fairly expensive. Locally-grown sweet corn is available in the summer. It must be quite fresh to have a good flavor. Good corn has been succulent husks, silk ends that are free from injury and decay, and is covered with plump, medium-sized kernels. Avoid corn with very large, dark yellow kernels.

The most common type of lettuce is the Iceberg variety. It has a large, round, solid head with medium green outer leaves and lighter green inner leaves. Its leaves should be crisp. Other popular lettuce types are butter head, Romaine and leaf lettuce. Avoid lettuce with discolored leaves.

One of the most common vegetables is the potato. The most familiar in grocery stores are general purpose potatoes which can be used for most types of cooking, but are not considered best for baking. Several varieties of baking potatoes are available, with Russet Burbank being most common.

Potatoes should be well-shaped and firm, and free from injuries and sunburn, a green discoloration under the skin. Avoid potatoes with large cuts or bruises, as these cause waste in peeling.

Tomatoes have their best flavor when they are allowed to completely ripen on the vine. As a result, the best tomatoes are usually grown locally and sold almost immediately after picking. However, most tomatoes are picked and shipped after they have begun to change from green to pink. These must be ripened in the store or at home.

All tomatoes should be well-formed, smooth and fairly free from blemishes. Fully-ripened fruit should have an overall red color and be slightly soft. Tomatoes which are not fully ripe should be firm and range in color from pink to light red.

Avoid tomatoes which are overripe or bruised. Sunburn, a green or yellow area near the stem, and growth cracks,

Evaluation Of Tomatoes For Processing

A revision of the 1964 U. S. Standards for Grade Evaluation of Tomatoes for processing, effective March 1, has been announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

According to officials of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS), the revision is intended to provide criteria in one set of standards for the grading of tomatoes going into all major tomato products. The revised standards will be titled U. S. Standards for Grades of Tomatoes for Processing and will include provisions that were formerly part of two older standards. These older standards, for tomatoes for canning and for manufacture of strained products, will be terminated.

Proposed in February 1972 the revision provides for inspection procedures for determining quality on the basis of color measurement and classification of defects. The method of color measurement will be optional, either by use of USDA's tomato colorimeter or by subjective visual evaluation. Under the proposal, classification of tomatoes was to be in three categories, A, B, and Culls. As a result of comment received from growers and processors, a fourth category, C, has been incorporated into the standards. Classification of the tomatoes will be on the basis of color, firmness, and degree of freedom from freezing injury, mold, decay, or other defects.

For the first time, the standards provide for a specific color index based on a composite raw juice sample. The index required, when determined by colorimeter, will be not less than 63.0, unless otherwise specified. Completely green tomatoes in the color sample will be classified as Culls.

The change in the standards is being made to keep pace with changing methods of product handling and processing. The revision has been under study for two years and the revised standards have been tested by growers and processors in Midwest and Eastern tomato growing states.

Grading of firm and food product is a voluntary service and is provided to growers, shippers, and processors who request it on a fee-for-service basis. Copies of the standards may be obtained from the Fruit and Vegetable Division, Agricultural Marketing Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

deep cracks around the stem, should also be avoided. Success in buying produce is primarily a matter of practice. Following the guidelines helps, but only learning to recognize quality in produce can assure regular success.

Old Union Methodist Church, Near Blackbird, On National Register of Historic Places

Dr. E. Berkeley Tompkins, Director of the Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs, announced today that Old Union Methodist Church, near Blackbird, has been named to the National Register of Historic Places. Old Union was built in 1847 by a congregation that was organized in 1789; it is best known as the home church and burial site of Bishop Levi Scott, an early leader of the Methodist Church in Delaware.

The small (40' by 60') brick church is one of the best preserved specimens of an early Delaware country church; its interior has remained unchanged since 1877, when the present gothic-revival furnishings were installed. Although the church is no longer used for regular services, it is maintained by the Old Union Society for summer meetings.

Under the provisions of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, the National Register of Historic Places projects selected properties against adverse influences. Planners at all levels of government throughout the country recognize the National Register as the most authoritative list of historic places worthy of preservation. Once a property is added to the National Register, its preservation becomes a matter of public policy. In Delaware, the Register is administered by the Director of the Division of Historical and Cultural Affairs.

Dutch Elm Disease Control

Dutch elm disease continues to strike at one of America's most popular shade trees. Unfortunately, very little can be done to control this disease once it has hit an elm, according to Dr. Robert Carroll, extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware.

Speaking at the recent Delaware Nursery and Landscape Short Course sponsored by the Co-operative Extension Service, Carroll said a new fungicide, benomyl (Benlate), has received a great deal of publicity as the answer to Dutch elm disease. But it's not a magic cure-all, he cautioned. Benomyl simply shows promise as an aid to prevent and control the disease. Severely infected trees cannot be saved even with the fungicide. And Carroll said infections must be spotted very early—before more than five percent of the foliage displays signs of the disease. Even then, only 25 percent of the trees are likely to be saved by treatment.

But Benlate is a new way to attack Dutch elm disease since it's aimed at the fungus itself, not the elm bark beetle which spreads the disease. Most of the previous chemical treatments were designed to destroy the beetles. They weren't successful because some beetles always survived—and it only takes one beetle feeding on a twig to introduce the fungus into a tree and start an infection.

Benlate is very toxic to the disease-causing fungus, yet it is safe to use, Carroll emphasized.

Most scientists recommend injecting Benlate directly into the circulatory system of infected trees. Benlate in solution is put in a small cup; it is taken up by the tree through a feeder tube. The fungicide goes to all parts of the tree; it helps protect against future infection and, to some extent, stops the spread of already existing infections.

One of the major problems of controlling Dutch elm disease is that most people don't recognize early signs. If you have elm trees, watch them very carefully during June, July and August, said Carroll. Look for leaves on individual branches that are wilting early.

Only trained tree experts can tell the difference between wilting from Dutch elm disease and wilting from some other cause. A laboratory test is also often necessary. But, timing is so vital that experts usually treat first and confirm their diagnosis later. Otherwise, it may be too late for the tree.

Properly injecting Benlate into the tree trunk requires some training and skill, pointed out Carroll.

But present methods of using Benlate are not the "last word" in Dutch elm disease control. Research goes on. Scientists are trying to come up with a root injection method to allow better distribution of the fungicide throughout the tree. A method of pressure injection is also being studied. And, some very long-term breeding research is being conducted to develop disease-resistant elms. Disappointingly, today's resistant varieties are not as desirable as the American elm.

Arlie T. Bright

Arlie T. Bright, 74, of near Felton, died Friday in the Milford Memorial Hospital, Milford, after a short illness.

Mr. Bright, a lifelong resident of Felton, had worked as a mason for the Harrington Lumber and Supply Co., until his retirement in 1965.

Survivors include his wife, Mary, two sons, Reynolds and Wayne, both of Harrington; four stepsons, James and Morris Wyatt, both of Felton, and Theodore and Robert Thompson, both of Georgetown; two daughters, Mrs. Lottie Green, of Felton, and Mrs. Eloise Hurd, of Smyrna; four stepdaughters, Mrs. Betty Kemp, of Harrington, Mrs. Mary Sumner and Mrs. Barbara Reed, both of Felton, and Mrs. Frances Clark, of Dover; two brothers, Archie, of Harrington, and William of Felton; a sister, Mrs. Mary Jester, of Felton; 12 grandchildren, 27 great-grandchildren; 3 great-great-grandchildren, and 33 step-grandchildren.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the McKnatt Funeral Home, Harrington. Interment was in the Hollywood Cemetery.

Waterfowl Growers Warned Of Duck Viral Enteritis Disease

State aviculturists and commercial waterfowl growers are warned by the Department of Agriculture to protect their waterfowl from contact with migrating wild birds.

Duck viral enteritis, a contagious disease which is often fatal to ducks, geese and swan, can be passed on to domestic fowl by exposure to these free flying flocks in the spring and fall.

Infection can be prevented by penning domestic or captive waterfowl away from areas visited by migrating flocks.

Secretary of Agriculture M. Martin Isaacs said while many individuals will find it difficult to isolate their flocks from migrating waterfowl, they should observe their waterfowl for signs of sickness. Losses should be reported to the state veterinarian at the department and sick or dead fowl should be submitted to the poultry and animal health laboratory there for examination and testing.

He pointed out that duck virus enteritis does not affect humans.

Canterbury-Viola

By Edna Massimilla

"Lent" was the title of the sermon at Viola and Manship United Methodist Churches on Sunday morning, with Scripture reading from the Gospel of John, Chapter 21, the 15th, 16th and 17th verses. The Rev. Massimilla stressed in his sermon the importance of Lenten observance as a time for inner spiritual renewal, leading to the poignant message of Good Friday and the glorious message of Easter.

The Jester Family singing group was featured at the Church of God hymn sing on Sunday at 2 p.m.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bill McHone of Magnolia, on the birth of a son on March 12th at Kent General Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lipsky of Camden, have a new daughter born at Kent on March 10th.

March 16th was Open House at Kent County Vo-Tech Center in Woodside.

On Saturday the Zion AME Church had a lunchbox dinner featuring "all you can eat" for the benefit of Women's Day.

Many area residents enjoyed the musical Finian's Rainbow presented at Caesar Rodney on Friday and Saturday.

Meadow Brook Acres Civic Assoc. met Sunday from 4 to 6 p.m. at Kent Vo-Tech.

On March 10th Mr. and Mrs. Ramon Colon were congratulated on the birth of a son.

GOSPEL CONCERT

Many area residents attended the Gospel-Sing on Saturday night at the Dover Central Middle School promoted by Walter Perry, a Dover business man, who reports that approximately 1200 attended. Singing groups included the Eastmen Quartet of Pennsylvania, The Florida Boys of Pensacola, Fla., The Archers of California, and Danny Lee and the Children of Truth of California, who were featured at Expo '72 with Billy Graham.

For the past two years Perry has called this promotion of Gospel concerts his personal witness and hobby. His family, too, enjoy it. His daughter, a junior at Caesar Rodney likes to sing, and was invited by one of the groups to join them; but that may come at a later date.

The next concert will be on April 7th at 7:30 p.m. at the Dover Central School, and among other singers will be the Rhoades Family of Wilmington. Attending a Gospel Sing is by no means just a listening experience, because all the groups invite audience participation.

Vaccinate Your Horse

Delaware horse owners are advised to have their horses vaccinated against eastern and western encephalitis before June 1. The recommendation comes from Dr. H. Wesley Towers, State Veterinarian, Delaware Department of Agriculture.

Eastern encephalitis, which is usually fatal to horses which contract it, is transmitted by mosquitoes and it is important to have animals immunized before the beginning of the mosquito season, Dr. Towers said.

Last year, there were no cases of encephalitis in Delaware. However, there was one confirmed case in a horse owned by a Delaware resident but pastured just across the state line in Maryland. There were twelve cases in New Jersey last year.

The state veterinarian advised horse and pony owners to contact their local veterinarians to make arrangements to have their horses receive the necessary two injections at seven to ten day intervals. The vaccine is good for only one year and must be repeated annually.

No cases of Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis (VEE) were reported in the United States in 1972. The vaccination program carried out in the emergency of 1971 helped to control the disease. However, it did recur in Mexico last year and could cause trouble in this country at some future date.

As a special precaution, authorities in the Animal Plant and Health Inspection Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are urging vaccinations of horses, mules and other equines in Southern California, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas. There is also recommending that horses traveling interstate to shows, races and similar events or those coming into contact with horses from other areas of the country be vaccinated.

The duration of immunity created by the vaccine against VEE is not known. Dr. Towers advises Delaware horse owners whose animals were not vaccinated before six months of age should be revaccinated to insure a longer immunity.

Holstein Project

Delaware members of 4-H and FFA who are interested in raising cattle can learn more about it by participating in the state's fourth annual Holstein heifer project.

The program, sponsored by the Delaware Holstein-Friesian Association, assists and encourages 4-H and FFA members in raising Holstein heifers for a profit. The project is designed to develop knowledge and ability in successfully raising dairy animals and to help the participants make money and gain experience with an investment. Holstein calves for the project will be bought from local breeders in Harrington on August 15. The calves, which will be priced by the Holstein Assoc., will be numbered and participants will draw lots for their calf.

Contestants will raise and show their calves for two years. Then the animals are to be sold at the annual state Holstein sale at the Delaware State Fair. The Holstein Assoc. will appoint a member-breeder to help oversee the raising and development of the calf. This breeder must visit and talk with the buyer within a week of the purchase and then every three months until the sale date.

The Agricultural Extension Service or a vocational agriculture teacher will also visit each participant regularly and help get additional professional service and assistance as needed.

A one-hour educational meeting on calf-raising methods for the participants and their parents will also be presented.

Parents and buyers agree to provide adequate quarters for the calf, follow approved feeding and breeding practices, vaccinate as recommended, report monthly on the animal's progress and the investment. These data will be used in evaluating future programs and in assisting others in making decisions about the project.

Each heifer should be bred to calve shortly after the final sale. This will normally bring the highest possible price for the animal and increase the owner's profit.

For more information about the Holstein heifer project, contact Dr. W.R. Hasseltine at the University of Delaware, a county 4-H agent or vocational agriculture instructor.

Mrs. James Conquest

Mrs. Blanche Conquest, 39, of 123 Mispillion St., died Wed., March 14, in Milford Memorial Hospital after a long illness.

Mrs. Conquest was born in Delaware and had lived in the Harrington area all her life.

She is survived by her husband, James Conquest; her mother, Mrs. Margaret Smith of Harrington; two brothers, Ernest and Irving Smith, both of Harrington; and three sisters, Mrs. Viola Scott, Mrs. Clara Hicks and Mrs. Glenna Thompson, all of Harrington.

Services were held Monday afternoon at St. Paul's AME Church, Harrington. Interment was in Williamsville Cemetery.

HOW TO SOLVE ONE MOVING PROBLEM

Moving to a new address is excitement and adventure... the sadness of leaving old friends, the pleasure of meeting new ones.

Moving is also compounded of one thousand and one details—all very necessary.

While we can't do too much about those never ending details of moving, we can help you with one important item. It's your telephone.

Here's how. Plan ahead for your telephone needs before you move in. Be sure you've got the right number of telephones and the right colors, in the right locations, ahead of time.

Because if you've got what you want the first time, you won't have to call us back a second time. So you save time and a second installation charge.

If you are moving, call on us... just as soon as you can. We want to make the telephone as efficient and as attractive in your new home as possible.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

LIFTER OR LEANER?

There are two kinds of people on earth today,
 Just two kinds of people, no more, I say,
 Not the good and the bad, for 'tis well understood,
 The good are half bad and the bad are half good.

Not the happy and sad, for the swiftly flying years,
 Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.
 Not the rich and poor, for to count a man's wealth
 You must first know the state of his conscience and health.

Not the humble and proud, for in life's busy span,
 Who puts on vain airs is not counted a man.
 No! The two kinds of people on earth I mean
 Are the people who lift and the people who lean.

Wherever you go you will find the world's masses,
 Are ever divided in just these two classes.
 And strangely enough, you will find, too, I ween,
 There is only one Lifter to twenty who lean.

In which class are you? Are you easing the load,
 Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?
 Or are you a leaner who lets others bear,
 Your portion of worry and labour and care?

Letter To The Editor

Gentlemen:

A small group of interested individuals has organized a youth activities center which is presently located at 25 Commerce Street in Harrington. It is our hope that this center will provide your youth with a place to socialize and to direct the use of their idle time to activities which will benefit them and the community. However, we cannot do this alone. We must have the help of our city, churches, schools, businesses, social organizations, and individuals. We ask that you give favorable consideration to assisting us with this effort.

A list is being compiled of organizations and individuals who contribute to the Center in any of the ways listed below. We consider them to be sponsors and will publicize their support.

First, we need financial support. The initial costs of this project are high. We estimate that we will need over five thousand dollars in outside support before the Center will be able to sustain itself. Yes, on a going basis, the Center will not need financial support. We just need your help to get started.

We need equipment tables, chairs, an ice cream freezer, a T. V. set, movie projector and screen, games (monopoly, scrabble, chess, checkerboards, etc.)

We need adults' time. The dances and general activities of the Center must have adult supervision.

We need adult skills. Maintaining and improving the Center will be done by the teenagers with adult supervision. We need adults with plumbing and carpentry skills and adults willing to give instruction in dozens of areas. What's your specialty?

We need positive attitudes. Baseless criticisms of the Center will be harmful to the Center and to the people of Harrington.

An expression of your support for this effort will go a long way in its success and it will be an everlasting credit to you as an individual or organization interested in the betterment of your community. Please give us your support.

Financial contributions can be made to "We the People", addressed to Miss Dawn Matlack, treasurer, Rt. 1, Box 596, Felton 19943. Contributions of time or materials can be made by contacting Ray Gagne at 398-3602.

An Open Letter To Little League Fathers:

Yes, this is directed to fathers of boys who play Minor League, Little League, Senior League and Big League. You are the ones who make or break a league.

Whether you know it or not, our Harrington Little League Association is crumbling. Yes crumbling. Crumbling from the lack of support. We are short four managers and four coaches. It is impossible for the boys to have a team to play on if we have no managers or coaches. (We do have excellent sponsors, for which we are very grateful.) We need an official scorekeeper, umpires, and we need someone to manage the concession stand. We need your help, men. We need help with the maintenance of the diamonds and the new building we are trying to get up.

At the registration it was very discouraging and frustrating to have so few fathers appear with their sons. It was mostly the mothers, as usual, who went to the trouble of accompanying their sons. Only a few fathers came. At the games, it's mostly the mothers who are in the stands giving their sons moral support.

Fathers, where are you? I always thought fathers and sons went together; like bread and butter, love and understanding, flowers and April showers, fathers and sons? Won't you please help our league and your sons?

Please call our League president, Alan Baker, 398-8421. He will welcome your offer of help, no matter what it is.

Mrs. David Ryan

Breakfast Starts The Day Right

Just about everybody has been told they need a good breakfast. But not everybody knows why that is true, says Mrs. C. Gwendolyn Colvin, extension home economist at the University of Delaware, and certainly not everybody follows that rule.

The reason is implied by the word itself. It comes from the Anglo-Saxon words becan and faestan which means to break fast. Breakfast for most of us ends a fast of 12 hours or more. After that length of time, our bodies need food to function well.

Many people, including children in school, do a large part of their work during the morning. Bodies and minds work better when they are fed regularly. People who skip breakfast often don't work to full capacity, don't feel well or become irritable before lunch.

But what about people who can't stand cereal, eggs, toast or sausage, the traditional breakfast foods? That's no excuse for not eating breakfast, Mrs. Colvin says. She says that people who don't eat those things for breakfast doesn't mean you have to.

For example, if you really like hamburgers, bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwiches or pizza, there's no reason you can't eat them for breakfast. Or how about an orange milk shake or eggnog? This could be your big chance to be creative.

Breakfast offers another advantage to people who are concerned about weight. Your appetite at lunch is easier to control if you've eaten a good breakfast. It will be easier to avoid snacks during the morning, too.

So why not try a good breakfast tomorrow? You might be pleasantly surprised by the results.

Denise Wittbold is practicing for her role in "Dames at Sea."

Senior Class Play "Dames at Sea" To Be Held March 28-30

"O.K. girlie. Do you know the music?"
 "Well, L..."
 "Do you know the numbers?"
 "Well, L.L..."
 "Can you do it?"
 "I'll try..."
 "You're hired!"

And thus marks the exciting career of young starlet Ruby (played by Joan Mason) and the 1973 Senior class play, "Dames at Sea," a musical set in the 1930's.

Also starring are Bill Hart as the formerly unsuccessful Hennessey, producer-manager of "Dames at Sea," and Donna Wetherhold as Joan, the typical brassy blond showgirl with a big heart. Newcomer Denise Wittbold portrays Mona Kent, a temperamental, tough-as-nails Broadway star, while Junior Jim Hutchinson makes his debut as Lucky, a sailor and old beau of Joan's. As seaman Dick, Gary "Charlie Brown" Harrington leaves the little red-haired girl in time to fall in love with Ruby, who, incidentally, is from his old home town. Meanwhile, Larry Callahan, in the role of the Captain, discovers that Mona is his old flame. He agrees to let the troupe use his battleship for a floating theatre. These events, coupled with orchestra, special effects, and a singing, swinging chorus make this play one worth seeing.

"Dames at Sea" is under the direction of Mr. Bill Comer, whom you remember as having directed last year's hit, "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown".

At date, the play will run for three nights, beginning March 28 through March 30. As in other years, proceeds from the play will go to the Senior class.

Jim Dill Is 3rd Team All-State In Basketball

Jim Dill the best all-round athlete in Lake Forest's history, followed up his second-team selection on the all-state football team, with a spot on the third team in basketball.

Laurel's Ron Hitchens was a second-team pick. Renie Martin of Dover, joined Dill on the third team. Since no other Henlopen Conference cagers made the three squads, it's obvious that Dill should easily make the All-Henlopen first team.

This writer thinks that Dill is even better in baseball than he is in the other two sports. Jim also won a varsity letter in cross-country before he grew large enough to play football.

Dr. Max Raffert, well-known educator and columnist, says that America's greatness has always been based on successful competition. We agree. Some feel that success, in high school sports is not important, that to get more kids involved should have top priority.

This is true only to a certain degree. A high school athletic program can't be all things to all people. We would rather see good teams in a few sports, than attempt to spread the available talent too thin by starting even more sports. Let's face it, Jim Dills don't come along every year, or even every decade.

If involvement is the only criteria, let's start intramural competition for those kids who can't make any of the six varsity teams, in boys' sports and three teams in girls' sports. This isn't even taking into consideration the many athletes already competing on freshman and junior varsity teams.

Lake Forest High kids like to see their teams rank high in athletic competition. We hope they won't see their program diluted by adding more sports, which could lead to mediocrity. This has happened in other school districts.

If more sports are needed, at Lake Forest, the emphasis should be on added programs for the girls. They have three teams to the boys' six and have only one each in fall, winter and spring, while boys have two choices each time. Then too, there are more girls in school. The untapped pool of potential girl athletes is probably several times as large as the number of boys not competing in anything.

L. F. South Elementary Gym News

Recently in Lake Forest South Elementary gym, these things were done:

The 2nd. grades did rhythms with the parachute, heel toe polka, gymnastics, and creative play.

The 3rd. grades did rhythms with the parachute.

Mrs. Connors' classroom did uno-dos-tres gymnastics and creative play.

In the 4th. grade the following persons did special things; Kathleen Poore and Shella White did the balance beam routines; Johnny Hicks worked on the horizontal bar; Allen Butler worked on the ropes; Maurice Coverdale worked on the rings; Theresa Valdesere and Valerie Porter worked on the parallel bars; Todd Wise, Elaine Home-wood, Herchel Harmon, Marty McGinty, John Bower, Reginald Davis, Johnny Hicks, dived through headstands, did duel stunts, and dived over 4 people.

Mrs. Perry's boys did combatives, while her girls worked with the wands.

Mrs. Myers classroom worked on squash pyramids.

Mrs. Ellingsworth's classroom worked on tripods, headstands, and groove loops.

Mrs. Gibson's room did squash pyramids.

The 5th and 6th grades had wrestling and volleyball tournaments. Listed below are the results of these tournaments:

In 5th grade volleyball, Miss Myer's girls won over Mrs. Minner's girls, but were defeated by Miss Lynch's girls.

In 5th grade wrestling, Miss Lynch's boys took 8 matches over 6 to defeat Mrs. Minner's boys. Miss Myer's boys downed Miss Lynch's boys 10 matches over 6.

Veterans Administration News

Q - With no more space in the national cemeteries, I have been wondering whether I might be buried in a VA cemetery. Can the money VA pays for burial expenses be used this way?

A - VA does not have a cemetery system of its own. It has a few small plots near VA hospitals and domiciliarys where veterans who have died in these facilities have been buried, but most of this space is now full. Chances are you could not be buried anywhere near your home if you chose one of the few available plots. The VA burial expense payment can be made regardless of the burial place.

Q - I am to be discharged from the service soon, and am interested in applying for a GI home loan. Where do I obtain the necessary information and forms, and how can I prepare for it now?

A - Upon separation you will receive your DD Form 214. Send a copy of this separation form with a letter stating your intention to buy a house to the nearest VA office. You will receive a certificate of eligibility for a VA insured loan. The lending institution which finances your home will require a copy of the certificate.

Q - Who approves schools for enrollment under the GI Bill?

A - The state-approving agency in the state where the school is located. However, the Veterans Administration is the approving agency for courses offered by schools in foreign countries, agencies of the Federal Government, and for apprenticeship programs administered by interstate carriers.

Q - Can a service-disabled veteran who received a VA automobile allowance receive reimbursement for the necessary special adaptive equipment more than once?

A - Yes, but reimbursement is made to the seller of the equipment, not the veteran.

Q - I was recently discharged from the service and am now working for a tile setter, learning the business. Is there any way that I can qualify for on-the-job training under the GI Bill?

A - From your nearest VA office obtain application 21E-1990. Fill it out completely and return it to that VA office along with copies of your separation papers from the service (DD 214), and birth and marriage certificates (if the latter apply). Your state approving agency (usually the Department of Education) for such training will take it from there and determine whether or not your job qualifies. If it does, VA will send you benefit checks allotted for such training.

Q - I am a veteran, aged 46, and I have cancer. I am unable to work and must stay in bed 100 percent of the time. Can I get any financial assistance from the Veterans Administration?

A - You may apply for a pension which is allowed to qualified war time veterans whose annual income does not exceed $3,800. For further information contact your nearest VA office, or the VA office where you know your records are located.

Q - If a veteran sells his home and his GI loan is assumed by the buyer, can his eligibility be restored so he can buy another house on a GI loan?

A - No. Entitlement can be restored only if both the following conditions are met: (1) The original GI loan has been paid in full; and (2) the home was disposed of due to compelling reasons such as health, destruction by hazard, condemnation and under certain conditions of transfer for employment.

Ground Covers Solve Lawn Problems

Many homeowners have bare spots in their yards or other areas where it is difficult to grow grass. Steep banks, small areas that are hard to get into with a lawn mower and shaded spots are areas where it is good lawn grass.

Ground cover plants can often solve this problem, says David V. Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware. But it's important to select the right plants for difficult locations.

Some ground covers, such as Japanese spurge (pachysandra), grow well in dense shade but are not suited to sunny locations.

Others, like honeysuckle, are such rampant growing vines they may become obnoxious.

Tatnall says that some standard ground covers that are well adapted to sunny locations include bugieweed (ajuga), English ivy, myrtle, often called periwinkle or vinca, and thyme. Others suitable for a sunny area include heath and heather, creeping lily turf and mondo grass.

In deep shade, Japanese spurge is perhaps the best ground cover. But, lily-of-the-valley, myrtle and English ivy will do well in partial shade.

The list of acceptable ground covers is long and includes many unusual plants such as hardy cactus, sedums and plumbago. Several low growing shrubs, such as Arnold dwarf forsythia, dwarf willow, prostrate junipers, rockspray cotton-aster, wintercreeper and Memorial rose, are also used for ground covers. And various perennials including daylilies and candytuft are excellent in certain areas.

It was regularly moved, seconded and approved that Mrs. Seik, Supervisor of Cafeterias, be paid on a 11-month basis.
Mr. Adams presented information received from the State Department asking that a school health advisory committee from the district be named. It was then moved, seconded and approved that this matter be tabled for further study.
It was regularly moved, seconded and approved that Mrs. Anna Holliday, Lake Forest East Elementary School Cafeteria, effective March 31, 1973 because of age.
It was regularly moved, seconded and approved that Mrs. Mary Louise Percy, teacher at W. T. Chipman Junior School, be granted leave of absence from 9/1/73 through 11/30/73.
Mr. Adams reported on the Governor's directive cutting off Capital Outlay funds for the remainder of the year, and reducing operational expenses by 50%.
It was regularly moved, seconded and approved that the Board write the Kent County Planning Commission stating they unanimously supported the Planning Commission in refusing to change the zoning category on the land at the southeast corner of U.S. 13 and County Road 384 to General Business. This action was taken because the Board considered a store at that location to be a serious safety hazard to the boys and girls who must travel County Route 384 in going to and coming from Lake Forest High School.
The Board discussed the revised Policy CGA, Administrative Salary Supplements. It was

Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act Protects Growers

Frut and vegetable growers who intend their crop for sale and shipment can take some of the risk out of selling their crop by taking advantage of a code of good business practices called the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act, or PACA.

It is wise for the grower and buyer to have a contract to protect against loss. A brief statement showing the quality and amount of produce the grower has agreed to deliver, and when, is basically all that is required. Include other important details like time and price, too.

The grower should also keep a complete record of the produce shipped, when it was delivered and the buyer who received it. Keep all papers concerning the transaction for evidence if a claim must be made under PACA.

As a precaution, USDA officials recommend having the produce examined by federal-state inspectors to provide proof of the quality and condition of the produce before it is shipped.

More information on PACA is available by writing PACA, PA-1021, Office of Communication, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

THE DOVER RESTAURANT

Doris Shulties - Owner

For a meal that is delicious and a place that is friendly, go to the Dover Restaurant located at 821 South Governor's Avenue in Dover. Here you will find a home-like atmosphere together with courteous service that you will like.

They feature home style cooking to suit you perfectly. They offer delicious steaks cooked to order and served in your favorite manner. If it's just a snack you want, you will find sandwiches, salads, and soups here that are just the thing to take away that hungry feeling.

If you are a person who wants the best in home cooked food when you eat out, you'll find that this is the place to go.

In this Town and Country Review, we the designers, suggest that you take your family out to the Dover Restaurant the next time you are in town shopping, and judge for yourself. You'll be glad you did.

CALL NORM, INC.

Norman Kalar, President

Every year more and more people are buying new cars equipped with air conditioning or are having an air unit installed in their present car. They have found that not only does it make driving more enjoyable on hot days but adds greatly to the value of their car when selling or trading it in.

In this locale people have come to recognize Call Norm, Inc. at 1630 S. DuPont Highway in Dover; phone 736-6445 (if no answer call 736-6596) as headquarters for all auto air conditioning needs.

They employ only fully qualified men who know their job thoroughly and can handle any job large or small from little adjustments to installation on any car or truck.

They are dealers for the popular Clardy Customatic air conditioning units and carry a complete line adaptable to any car or truck. The new slim line appearance of these air conditioning units not only adds to the beauty and enjoyment of your car, but is designed to take up as little space as possible. They also are authorized dealers for A.M.C. air conditioners for automotive, over the road, and all farm equipment.

The authors of this 1973 Town and Country Review suggest to our readers who need their present air unit repaired or recharged, or are contemplating having a unit installed in their car that they see Call Norm, Inc. for friendly service and a job well done.

SCOTT NURSING HOME

Their patient's comfort and health is the most important effort of the fine staff of the Scott Nursing Home at Main & Mount Vernon in Smyrna, phone 653-8045.

Each of their employees, including their registered nurses who supervise 24 hours a day, were hand picked for their job at this respected convalescent hospital. The management here realizes that their patients must be attended to both day and night, and that good mental therapy is sometimes just as important as the drugs and remedies prescribed by their doctor.

Each of the rooms here are well lighted and have been equipped and decorated with the patient's comfort and good attitude in mind.

All meals provided are under the watchful supervision of persons well schooled in preparing the special foods required for each patient.

The editing staff of this 1973 Town and Country Review suggest this convalescent hospital to our readers, we know that you will be extremely pleased with the care procedures and modern facilities.

STEVENSON FUNERAL HOME

Howard C. Stevenson - Director

Time and service have honored the name Stevenson Funeral Home located in Dover at 403 West Division Street, phone 736-1839 and in Smyrna at 48 East Commerce Street, phone 736-1839.

For years this reputable firm has served the people of this section reliably and well. They relieve you of all worry and responsibility and by sympathetic cooperation bring comfort in the hour of distress. Their service supplies the consoling thought that the final tribute to your loved one has been both beautiful and fitting.

When a funeral director must be called, may we suggest that you place this firm in charge. They will relieve you of all the many details that must be taken care of and at the same time do everything according to your desires.

In this 1973 Review we, the editors, unhesitatingly refer our readers to this reliable concern and suggest that you call them when in need of a funeral director.

CAPITAL BODY SHOP

Harold J. Shockley - Owner

The personnel at this firm are specialists in body and fender work as well as auto painting. The place to have your car body rebuilt or painted is at the Capital Body Shop located on South Street in Dover, Phone 734-7057.

The owner of this firm fully understands auto body and fender repair work. Whether it is a small or a large job, you will receive the same courteous treatment and professional workmanship.

This is one of the best known auto body repair shops in this section because of its excellent workmanship and service.

Most insurance companies now permit you to choose the repair shop you like best. Select them to do your work. Their body work as well as auto painting is among the best done in this section. They have the 'Know How' that puts their work in a class by itself.

The narrators of this 1973 Review recommend you see the Capital Body Shop for all work of this type.

HOLIDAY INN

Ron Randall - Innkeeper

Good motels are indispensable to the progress and development of a growing city. The Holiday Inn at 348 North DuPont Hwy. in Dover phone 734-5701 has accommodated a great many tourists and business men in a manner that assures them of the continued patronage and good will of the traveling public.

The management here has maintained an ideal service which is thoroughly exemplified by the manner in which every employee attends to his or her duties. Nothing is taken for granted, nothing is forgotten. Hospitality and service are always their first and last consideration.

Much of the credit for the splendid reputation of this motel is due to the executive ability of the management, whose untiring efforts, foresightedness and careful attention to detail has maintained a standard of hospitality and service which is difficult to surpass.

It is a pleasure for the editors of this 1973 Town and Country Review to recommend the Holiday Inn and its friendly manager. Stop in and enjoy fine entertainment in their cocktail lounge. We know you will return.

They have supervised, bonded and insured employees and do only professional work. Phone 734-8706 for free estimates and further information.

In this 1973 Town and Country Review, we, the composers, are happy to endorse them on their fair policies and suggest the cleaning professionals.

Overhead Door Company of Dover

Division of M. A. Hartnett, Inc.

Overhead Door Company, of Dover, a division of M. A. Hartnett, Inc. is conveniently located at Railroad Avenue and Forrest in Dover, phone 674-0300.

A review of the businesses of interest in this area would not be complete without a praiseworthy mention of this firm. One of the world's largest manufacturers of sectional upward acting doors is the original "Overhead Door" company. They offer manual, electrically-operated or radio-controlled doors for many purposes.

How nice it is to drive up to your home knowing that there will be no need to get out of the car to open the garage door - a safety factor normally not thought of. These doors can be obtained made of fiberglass, steel, aluminum, or wood, and they are finished to match the exterior of your home.

supplies. Their long experience in this work has qualified them as the 'One-Stop' hardware store in this area.

The management is courteous and accommodating and believes that the best way to keep you coming back year after year is to give you the highest quality merchandise at reasonable prices. This aim has developed for them a long and lasting friendship with the people in this entire trade territory. Now you can park for free in their parking lot behind the store on North Street.

The compilers of this 1973 Review take pleasure in referring our readers to the Dover Hardware Co. as one of the friendliest stores in town.

Blue Hen Glass Co.

The Blue Hen Glass Co. located at 2077 N. DuPont Highway in Dover phone 674-3390, offers the people of this community glass for every occasion. They feature a full line of glass for windows, store fronts, desk tops, coffee tables, pictures, mirrors, and auto glass. Regardless of what item you have that needs glass all you have to do is take the measurements to them and they will cut it to your exact specifications.

Take an inventory in your home today and see what furniture you have that needs a glass top, or what broken windows need replacing. Take the measurements and on your next trip to town, let them cut into size while you wait.

The Blue Hen Glass Co. carries a complete auto and truck glass for most makes and models and will install it while you wait. Your complete satisfaction is guaranteed on all work and they specialize in insurance claims.

If you are considering some remodeling or building, let them give you an estimate on the job. They also carry a wide selection of Plexiglass in colors or clear, with a wide variety of uses. Beside the item that the Blue Hen Glass Co. is noted for the making of boat windshields. The writers of this 1973 Review recommend this concern.

COURTLAND MANOR

Nursing & Convalescent Home

Courtland Manor is located at 1175 McKee Road in Dover. Here they offer complete care of the aged, sick, and convalescent. They have a physical therapist on the staff, and a full recreational program, under the supervision of a recreational director. Courtland Manor even has a barber shop and a beauty parlor, so that their guests will look their best at their "monthly cocktail parties."

This nursing home is well located, has plenty of sunshine, never enough noise to bother the sick, yet near enough to town so friends and relatives of the guests can call without inconvenience.

Heating, ventilation and sanitary arrangements are most completely planned for the comfort of each guest and all methods are approved by the supervising medical authorities.

All rooms are light and cheerfully decorated, and have that home atmosphere which has a good psychological effect. Their food is prepared by a specialist on diets under the most sanitary conditions, giving the guests well balanced meals, nourishing and appetizing, for rebuilding the health and strength so necessary for the inactive person.

This and the surrounding territory is very fortunate in having a nursing home. 'So like a home.' The authors of this 1973 Review are proud to make a particular mention of this well-nursing home who open their doors to all.

A. R. DERVAES CO., INC.

Paul Duphily - Manager

Located at 1011 North State Street in Dover, phone 678-0400, A.R. Dervaes Co. is one of the more well respected and liked businesses in this area. They feature an outstanding selection of the finest electric motors and pumps on the market today, made by such well-known companies as Allis-Chalmers, U.S. Motors, and Viking Rotary Gear.

Whenever you stop in you will receive friendly and courteous assistance in selecting the things you need. Their helpful personnel can often times help you make just the right choice, because they know this line of work well and they know their products.

The merchandise they carry is of the highest quality and has been selected to give you the best value for your dollar.

The management of A.R. Dervaes Co., Inc. has made it a point to offer their customers the best of service and products available, which is the reason they have become such a popular store in this area. They offer an excellent repair and maintenance service on electric motors and pumps and are members of EASA. This company was formerly known as Electrical Equipment and Maintenance.

The narrators of this 1973 Town and Country Review commend A.R. Dervaes Co., Inc. for their fine business practices, and high quality products. We recommend to our readers that they stop by to take advantage of the outstanding products and service offered by this company.

ALFRED J. GILLIS - PLUMBING HEATING & COOLING

Complete Bathroom Specialist

Alfred J. Gillis, located at 222 South Railroad Ave. in Dover, phone 736-1898, knows the plumbing, heating and cooling business thoroughly. New Century Club Notes

The Harrington New Century Club and their guests, left People's Service Station at 8 a.m., March 13, for a trip to "Docksides". Docksides is located in Arlington, Va., on the banks of the Potomac.

Docksides itself is composed of many "Treasure houses" and shops in which items imported from all over the world are sold. One of the most interesting shops was called Baycraft. This shop carried rustic furniture and all types of woodcrafts. Scented candles seemed to catch the eye of quite a few of the ladies from the club. Caravelle Imports quite an extensive line of imported jewelry. The many shops at Docksides carried items such as crystal, porcelain, ceramics, cuckoo and antique clocks, and items made from pewter, brass and copper. One shop specializes in beer steins from Germany and Denmark. Another carries imported scarves, belts, ties and handbags.

Also available were several restaurants. "The Seaport Inn" was one of the restaurants where the ladies rested and had lunch.

It is safe to say that many tired and broke ladies of the club were more than glad to board the bus and start the trip back home.

The bus arrived home around 6 p.m.

All the ladies felt that it was a most impressive, informative, and interesting trip.

All members are urged to attend a business and planning meeting to be held March 27.

Stored roots and bulbs are subject to excess drying, diseases and rot. Now is a good time to check for all these problems if you haven't already done it, says David V. Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

If stored plant parts show any signs of decay, the storage area is probably too humid. To treat the bulbs, cut away any soft spots and dust them with sulfur or other suitable fungicide. Allow the cuts to dry before returning the plants to storage.

If possible, it's a good idea to provide better ventilation in area for the bulbs.

If stored plant parts show signs of shriveling, they have probably become too dry. This can be just as harmful as rotting. Moisten the material they're stored in, but be careful not to get it too wet, since that causes rot.
