Houston Fire Claims Two Young Sisters

Two young sisters died in an early morning fire Monday which swept through a mobile home.

Tracy Ann Gardner, 4, and her sister, Barbara, 1, were pronounced dead at Nanticoke Hospital in Seaford. They were the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner.

According to fire officials, the parents were awakened by the smell of smoke. They attempted to enter the girls' bedroom in the mobile home but were driven back by flames.

The parents rushed to a neighbor's home to call the fire department, but the mobile home was completely enveloped in flames when the Houston fire company arrived.

Firemen say the blaze apparently was caused by a heater in the girls' bedroom.

Officials from the Delaware State Police said they have ordered an autopsy performed on the bodies of the Gardner children, but added they suspect no foul play in connection with the fire.

Delmarva Campaigns to Get Rid of Junked Cars

The Delmarva Advisory Council's spring project to rid the Delmarva Peninsula of thousands of abandoned vehicles has gotten underway in 8 counties.

Citizens groups organized in each county by members of the DAC's conservation committee have been in touch with their respective county officials, schools and community organizations. Volunteers from these sectors have been locating, mapping, obtaining releases for and handling enquiries about abandoned vehicles.

The project, instigated as part of "Delmarva-Improve It or Lose It" week, is intended to encourage county and municipal officials to begin disposing of abandoned vehicles as a regular practice.

Donald J. Hickman, manager of outdoor advertising and junk yard control for Delaware's Department of Highways and Transportation, has enlisted the help of Fitzgerald's Auto Salvage Co. of Lincoln, in disposing of the cars once they are collected.

"Cars are at a premium price. Now is the time, if you are going to move them," said Jack Fitzgerald, owner of the company, at a conservation committee meeting recently.

Efforts during "Delmarva-Improve It or Lose It" week will supplement Delaware's own permanent program through which 6,000 cars have been disposed of in the past two years.

Fitzgerald will bring a car crusher mounted on a flatbed truck to any site on the Peninsula where 100 or more junked cars are situated on firm ground.

The portable crusher is preceded by a piece of equipment which will open the hood of each car and yank out the engine before the car is processed through the crusher.

Flattened cars will be hauled to a Philadelphia scrap metal dealer, shredded, and sold, largely to firms abroad, which will process the metal for reuse.

In Kent County, Maryland, local efforts are being spearheaded by KEO, Kent Conservation, Inc.

Arrangements have been made with the 275th Supply and Service Battalion of the 310th FASCOM whereby the 275th, stationed in Seaford, will supply help to the county for 3 full weekends in April. The help supplied will consist of hauling abandoned vehicles (located, mapped, and cleared by volunteers from the community) to central points for pick up by Bennett and Coney junk yard near Chestertown. Ewing Motors of Cordova has also expressed a willingness to cooperate in the project.

A switchboard operator at the Kent county Md. courthouse will take down the location and basic information about any cars anyone wants picked up.

In Worcester county, county agricultural agent Michael Delano reports that the Pocomoke City Kiwanis club and the Snow Hill high school ecology club are assisting in the location, mapping, clearing procedures.

Sandra Cowen of Ocean City college reports that Ocean City college students have been out in force hunting for abandoned vehicles in the northern part of Worcester county. Quite a few have been spotted in the area around Whalesville, Miss Cowen said.

Jesse Long of Crisfield reports that the county commissioners of Somerset have agreed to cooperate in the undertaking. Long noted that Smith Island, the site at hundreds of abandoned vehicles, poses a special problem. The committee will try to find a solution to the problem of transporting these abandoned cars to the mainland.

Wicomico county already has its own junked car disposal program and the committee's efforts there are limited to helping county authorities locate and map abandoned vehicles.

Efforts on the eastern shore of Virginia have been coordinated by the Eastern Shore chamber of commerce, Amine C. Kellam of Belle Haven, chairman of DAC's conservation committee and E. Polk Kellam Jr., chairman of the chamber's conservation committee have worked to get the program underway.

"There is a lot of enthusiasm for the project. People are so grateful that something is being done about these old cars. So far we haven't been able to have the cars we locate hauled to central points, but we are determined to carry through with the program," Mrs. Kellam said.

Michael S. Chappars of Piney Island, Va., reports that the Key club of Chincoteague high school is locating and mapping old cars. The students are using blueprint maps supplied for the purpose by Charles Cooley of Shore Engineering Co. of Melfa. Volunteer adults will handle the process of clearing titles to the cars located by the students.

"We have our hands full assisting the community groups in the 8 counties that have responded to the program, but will be glad to help anyone who wants to get the program going in any other of the counties on the Shore," said K. King Burnett of Salisbury, overall chairman of "Delmarva-Improve It or Lose It" week.

Barnett stressed that the program, planned to coincide with Earth Week, 1973 (the week of April 8), is "not a one shot deal" but an attempt to establish the removal of abandoned vehicles as a permanent procedure in all parts of the Delmarva Peninsula.

Phone Co. To Start Cable Job In Harrington

Diamond State Telephone Co. engineers are now planning a $41,000 cable project in Harrington which is scheduled to get underway in May and be completed in July, reports Jim Strickland, the firm's Kent County manager.

The project requires placing 15,800 feet of underground cable starting at Fleming's Corner and continuing west on the Harrington-Denton Rd. to Prospect Church. This cable will provide additional wire facilities for customers in the Vernon area.

This year the firm plans to invest $65,000 for cable work in the Harrington area, while 1974's investment for cable work will be an additional $250,000.

Statewide, during 1973, the Diamond State Telephone Co. plans to invest $30,500,000 for construction work.

KENT COUNTY CURRENTS

by
JOSHUA M. TWILLEY
Levy Court President

Last Tuesday afternoon Kent County signed the agreement with the Dover Air Force Base to make the Dover air base a joint civilian-military airport. This agreement completes several years of study and negotiation and is one of the most far reaching steps taken by the county government. Now we have the opportunity to establish and develop air transportation as a major local industry and as a major high quality and safe means of travel to and from the county. The taxpayers of this nation paid hundreds of millions of dollars for the Dover Air Base. It is only fair that the local community should have some use of this huge public facility.

When joint use service begins, and civilian airplanes begin scheduled air flight they will be using one of the best runways in the world and will be guided by highly skilled government paid control operators and multi-million dollar electronic and radio guidance systems.

Nearby will be fire and ambulance service and military assistance in emergencies of the same quality as exists in the international airports of New York and Philadelphia. All of this will be free to us. All of this we can offer to prospective new industries and to airline companies who might like to consider Dover not only for a passenger service but also for other needs, it is an exciting new challenge for Kent County.

Five Student Teachers Teaching At Lake Forest High School

Lake Forest was invaded by 5 student teachers full of hopes, plans, and a lot of nerve. They had just undertaken 8 weeks of teaching high school students, and as the pro can tell, it's a tough job! Now we'll get to know them a little better.

Mrs. Mary Jane Stewart, 9th grade English teacher, is living in Dover, and is attending Delaware State College. So far her classes have written plays and autobiographies, and her academic English classes are beginning "Romeo and Juliet."

Mrs. Stewart chose Lake Forest because she said she likes the country better than teaching in the city.

David Wood, a native of Felton, is teaching physical education and health. He is attending Delaware State College. Bowling and basketball have been covered in physical education, and a unit on alcohol, tobacco, and drugs is being covered in health. Wood had several reasons for choosing Lake Forest: it was convenient, the cooperative teacher was young and enthusiastic and also felt if he could

Plans for a steak house are also underway.

Harrington is minority leader in the House of Representatives in the General Assembly.

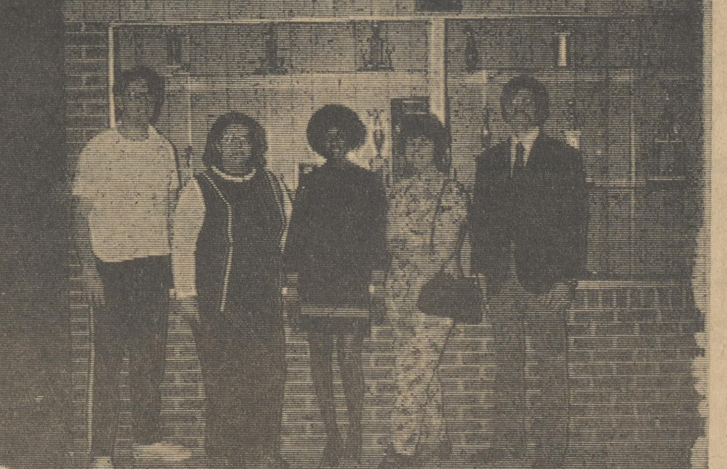

The 3rd annual Agribusiness dinner and dance was held in the Dover Armory Saturday night.

Assisting greatly in the affair were Miss Saralene Oldfield, secretary to Fred Mitchell, publicity man for the State Department of Agriculture, and Mrs. Inez Steen, secretary to Walter Gaebele of the forestry section.

Lake Forest Boys Aid in Vo-Tech Project

Eddie Shockley and Bruce Harmon from Lake Forest Senior High School are members of a class of boys at the Kent County Vo-Tech. Center in Woodside. As members of a building maintenance class, they and other members of their VICA chapter, have donated their time and money to assist a little girl in India and a fire disaster victim in Milford.

Their VICA chapter has also, temporarily adopted a little brother needing food, clothes, and some friendship; and this youngster lives in Wyoming.

ANNUAL REPORT

FOR FISCAL YEAR JANUARY 1972 TO DECEMBER 1972

Report from the Chairman and President

Report in Summary

- Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware, with over 413,000 members, is the number one pre-paid health plan in the state.
- Membership growth over the past 37 years has paralleled the population growth of the state.
- The cost for administering the record $56,375,677 subscription income in 1972 was less than five per cent.
- There were no rate increases in the past two years for direct pay and small group subscribers.
- The Delaware Plan worked with participating hospitals to help stabilize health care costs.
- An important cost control factor would be greater state support of charity patients.
- Needs still to be fulfilled: more readily available health services, more health care personnel, more alternatives to the present health care system and expansion of benefit programs.

As long ago as 1693, William Penn, who owned the three counties now constituting the entire State of Delaware, said, "the public must and will be served." Your Blue Cross and Blue Shield Plan has incorporated that concept into its corporate objectives. That is why in 1972 we realized more than ever before that the success of the Plan lies in our ability to anticipate change and meet it in a positive and beneficial way.

How do you measure the quality of service that the public expects—especially a service as important and sensitive as health care protection?

One indicator may be the public's reaction to that service. If the demand for the service shows a constant growth over a considerable length of time in a competitive market and eventually achieves a major share of that market, it may be assumed that the quality is sufficient to fulfill that need.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware has displayed an unusual growth pattern since its inception 37 years ago. The following chart shows an interesting parallel between population growth and the Plan's membership.

Delaware Population and Plan Membership Growth

By the end of 1972, there were some 413,000 Delawareans holding a Blue Cross membership in a population of approximately 562,000. This represents 73% of the total population, and once more first place for the Delaware Plan among prepaid health care programs in the State.

In addition, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware administers Federal and State programs such as Medicare and Medicaid as well as benefit programs for military retirees and dependents of servicemen. The total number of individuals for whom we underwrote or administered benefits in 1972 was 488,150 or 86% of the State's population.

To provide that quality of service reflected by the number one position, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware over the years has developed plans and programs to enhance the confidence of its members. The year 1972 witnessed many interesting facets of those activities. For example:

Reducing costs continues as one of our major efforts. It is our responsibility to keep the Plan's administrative costs at a minimum and 1972 is a record example of that effort. We maintained administrative costs at less than five per cent thereby returning more than 95 cents of every subscription dollar as benefits.

In addition to these internal cost reduction efforts, the Plan has continued to work with hospitals to control costs. The success of these programs is reflected by the fact that direct pay and small group subscribers, which constitute almost one-third of our entire membership, have not had any change in their rates for the past two years. Adjustments in both directions were made for our large group subscribers as required by our annual contracts with these groups.

Also during 1972, plans were formulated to convince our State legislators that the cost of hospital care for the indigent should be borne by all our citizens rather than just the Blue Cross subscribers and the other "paying sick". State financial participation in this area of charity could result in savings of as much as ten per cent in expenses for hospital care.

Participating hospitals have been asked to work with the Plan to hold the cost line for health services. For example, a new outpatient claim processing system was established for the Wilmington Medical Center that will reduce clerical and processing time while improving service to the patient.

Another major effort involves our emphasis on public affairs and consumerism. As the public's demands became more apparent and specific, and as government and the private sector attempted to meet these demands, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware moved in the direction necessary to strengthen rapport with the public. By the end of 1972, the Board of Trustees had evolved into a group of dedicated individuals truly representative of the public-at-large. In addition, a program was set into motion to help determine the attitude and desires of Delawareans in the area of health services and benefits.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware is proud of its top position in the health protection field. In order to merit that continued support, the administrators are aware of many needs that still must be fulfilled such as:

- More readily available health services to all Delawareans.
- Increase of trained health care personnel.
- Development of alternatives to the present system such as prepaid group practice and free-standing clinics.
- Expansion of benefit programs.

We all—the Board of Trustees, the administrators and the staff—assure our many members that the Delaware Plan intends to maintain its top position by diligently working towards the solution of these problems.

IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS OF 1972

Broader programs of benefits continue to meet with success—many members upgrade: Through mail, telephone, and special reopening campaigns, group and direct-pay subscribers were given an opportunity to upgrade benefits. Over 20,000 responded and changed their Blue Shield surgical-medical benefits from a Standard Program paying indemnity allowances to a program offering greater coverage based on the usual, customary, and reasonable fees of a physician.

General Motors Corporation returns its surgical-medical and prescription drug coverage to Blue Shield: In 1972, after an absence of seven years, General Motors Corporation returned its surgical-medical and prescription drug coverage for over 5,000 Delaware employees from a commercial insurance carrier to Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Delaware, Inc.

Prescription Drug Bank Draft/Claim Form Prompt Payment System: On July 1, 1972, a system of paying prescription drug claims for Medicaid recipients as well as Blue Cross drug program subscribers went into effect. Utilizing a combination bank draft/claim form which permits immediate payment to a pharmacy, the system met with overwhelming acceptance by pharmacists because of the ease and efficiency of administration. On a postpayment basis, the Plan checks the validity of the data and the pharmacy reimburses Blue Cross by check for any amounts paid in error.

Participating Physician's Contract revised and accepted: In November, 1972, an agreement with the Medical Society of Delaware was reached on a revised Participating Physician's Contract. In the contract, the responsibilities of the Plan and the participating physicians, as well as procedural rules, are specifically outlined. This improvement in the Plan's working relationship with physicians will help to provide better service to members.

Membership conversion privileges overwhelmingly accepted: Approximately 97% of all members who reached age 65 during the year converted membership to a Delaware-65 Blue Cross and Blue Shield program to supplement Medicare.

Health education: To help members understand some of today's health problems, the Plan continued its extensive public program by making available films and printed material. High schools, colleges, hospitals, business, and industry took advantage of borrowing 16 mm. color films on alcoholism, narcotics abuse, and air pollution. Over 15,000 printed pieces were distributed, including booklets on drug abuse (Chemical Cop-Out and Happy Valley and the Drug Witch); alcoholism (The Alcoholic American); problems on the generation gap (Adolescence for Adults and Generation In The Middle); and, specific health concerns (Venereal Disease).

 The Rising Sun Community Club had a meeting on March 19 and the speaker was Paul Boswell whose topic was "Wills." There was a program centered on home life.
 In honor of National Children's Dental Health Week, the Dental Assisting Class at the Kent Vo-Tech Center in Woodside demonstrated the proper tooth brushing technique to children in the child care department. The Dental Class also sponsored a bake sale during the school's lunch shifts in order to support the building and grounds class in their project to sponsor a foster child from Calcutta.
 The Sunday sermon topic at Viola and Manship Churches was "Old Time Religion" with Scripture reading from John, Chapter 1.
 Program plans were discussed at the Board of Education meeting for Felton Church last Wednesday, which included a skating party in April, a teacher's dinner and an Easter egg hunt. The committee for the egg hunt includes Diane Hughes, Barbara Jacobs, Jean Biddle (chairman), Doris Greene, Jean Wathers and Millie Warrington. With Easter soon a reality, Mrs. Warrington, the Church school superintendent, read a story which explained that the Easter egg symbolizes new life, and the egg has a rightful place in the Easter celebration.
 Mr. and Mrs. James McBride of Camden, are being congratulated on the birth of a boy on March 19th at Kent General Hospital.
 The Robert Powell family of Magnolia have a new daughter born March 19th. Congratulations.
 On March 26 there was a banquet for the Rev. T.E. Freeman at the Pilgrim Baptist Church, Camden.

MY SECRET BOOK

Each month ends a thirty page chapter,
 Each year means the end of a part.
 And never a word is mis-stated,
 Not even one wish of the heart.

Each day when I awake the book opens,
 Revealing a page - clean and white.
 My words and my thoughts and whatever I do
 Will cover the page by night.

God leaves that to me, I'm the writer.
 And never a word shall grow dim,
 Till the day I write the word, "finis,"
 And give back my life's book to Him.

Gus says folks ought to live like every day was their last because some day it will be.

Track Team Opens With St. Elizabeth, April 4th

St. Elizabeth High School of Wilmington, will furnish the opposition, as Lake Forest's track team opens its season at home on April 4th.

Home meets will be contested at Chipman School, Harrington. It has been hoped that this year would finally see construction of a dirt quarter mile track, at the high school. Such a facility has been discussed for three or four years. The summer months, when school is closed would be a good time to get started on this project. We would like to see all of the boy's sports, except football, played at the high school. Football should be played at Harrington to avoid costly duplication of seating and lights.

New track coach, Ed Webster, is still juggling his manpower and girlpower (11) trying to find the right spots for each person and at the same time, be competitive in as many events, as possible. Some of the athletes may be shifted from event to event, depending on the opposing team.

Don Bryant, a powerful performer, can be used in the 100, 220, 120 high hurdles, 440 and 880 relays and triple jump. Of course, he can only vie in three of these events per meet.

Don Parker and Neil Travis are other speedsters, who will run in the 100, 220 and the short relays. Travis is also the school record holder in the low hurdles.

Shelfont Waples and Ron Dunlap can be used in the 220 and 440 yard runs. Kit Tillman, Harry Benson, Ron Mosely are cross-country aces, who can be used in anything from the 440 on up, including the 880, mile and 2 mile, although Mosley is expected to be No. 1 in both the 880 and mile at present.

Eddie Thompson, Joe Voshell, Bob Kashner, Howard Kasky, Jim Hutchinson are milers and 2 milers. None of these 8 lads are seniors. Distance events should again be Lake Forest's strong suit, Thompson should be No. 1 in the 2 mile, as he was in cross-country. Benson, a freshman, is an experienced distance runner despite his youth.

Joe Voshell has burst on the scene completely unannounced. This splendid prospect from Sandtown has no experience, but has been working hard, steadily improving and has won respect and accolades from both head coach Webster, a high school All-America in distance running and from Dave Buck, a top track and cross-country runner, from Delaware State.

Buck has been tutoring the distance men and has them in fine fettle. A strong plus factor exists here. Buck is able to keep up with his charges and give instructions when needed. Most coaches have to watch from afar. Charles Baynard and Lee Dunbar will help Travis with the low hurdles. Baynard will go with Bryant in the highs.

Previously named sprinters will handle the 440's and 880 relays with the 440-880 people in the mile relay. Shot put men are Sam Webber, Greg Osmundsen, Glen Hart, Benny Cohee, Rich Woodward, Robbie Wyatt and Charles Besseliu.

Webber, a tall, rangy lad has the longest throw, but is inconsistent, in the discus. Matt Burgess, No. 2 here, is consistently around 100 feet. As a freshman in 1972, his best was 88 feet. Benny Cohee, a newcomer is pressing 90 feet. Others to spin the platter are Rich Woodward, Jerry Thompson and Robbie Wyatt. Ed Wheatley is tutoring the weight men.

Sam Webber, in addition to the shot and discus will have to be reconed with in the high jump and pole vault, also. Other high jumpers are Kevin Peck, Kevin Wooters, John Starke, Bob Mullane, Sven Osmundsen. The latter is the lone experienced vaulter back. Mullane and Starke are candidates here too.

Lester "Buck-Buck" Fountain is over 19 feet in the long jump. He'll triple jump with Don Bryant.

Eleven girls are members of this track team. These are Lisa Brown, Pam Webber, Adele Kasky, Teresa Smith, Nancy Starke, Chris Brown, Nina Adamo, Barbara Fountain, Lisa Calloway, Ann Scovil and Betty Moore.

If eleven girls come out for a boy's track team, how many would be candidates for a girls' track team? 22? 33? We wouldn't be surprised.

At the March meeting of the Lake Forest Board of Education, this writer stated that we felt 6 boys' sports were enough, that we would rather see a new girls' sport started rather than a 7th one for the boys. A dozen or more people have stated they support our position against expansion of the boys' athletic program at L.F.H.S.

But, of course, the final decision is up to the Board of Education.

Jim Dill, All-Henlopen Cager Again

Jim Dill, Lake Forest's stellar, all-around athlete, gained yet another honor, when he became the lone repeater, on the All-Henlopen Conference basketball team.

Jim averaged 15.4 points a game and was a complete cager for the Spartans.

Don Bryant, a high-scoring center and ace rebounder was a second-team pick. Bryant, a target of college recruiters in basketball and track will play for Spartan coach Jim Blades again in 1974.

Beverly Mack was a third-team choice in the girl's division of the Henlopen Conference

Lake Forest Nine Is Again A Contender

Lake Forest's baseball team, coached by veteran mentor, Bob Young, is rated as the team to beat in the Southern Division of the Henlopen Conference.

The Spartans have been Southern Division kingspins for three seasons and have most of last year's players back.

Eleven players return from a 9-3 club. Jim Dill and his brother, Russell, give the Spartans a strong pitching staff. Jim was 5-0 in 1972, while Russell won 4 out of 6 starts. Jim Dill was all-conference at third base, with a .364 batting average. Russell, the younger of the brothers, is the larger of the pair. It is rumored that his fast ball is even better than Jim's.

Mike Atkinson, a good-hitting, slick fielding shortstop may see mound duty also. Glenn Jarrell, Gerry Steerman and John Knapp are the candidates at second base.

A toll junior, Bob Nored, is leading aspirant at first base, with Neil Smith, a freshman, in the picture also.

Bill Winkler can catch or play first base. Bill Falasco is assistant coach.

Opening date is April 5th at Caesar Rodney.

Six Delaware 4-H members have been chosen to attend the 1973 annual 4-H Conference April 15-20 in Washington.

The six represent a cross section of 4-H membership in Delaware, according to James O. Baker, state 4-H leader. They were selected on the basis of their leadership potential, their activities in 4-H and their service to the community.

The delegates are Douglas Vanderwende, 17, son of William Vanderwende of Bridgeville; James Evans Jr., 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Evans of Bridgeville; and Kathleen O'Neill, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A.M. O'Neill Jr., of Newark.

Harrison of Goldsboro, Md., and William F. Winkler, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Winkler of Harrington.

This year's conference theme is "4-H Gets It All Together." Its objectives are to aid in 4-H program development, establish a model for youth-adult interaction, suggest methods of increasing impact of 4-H to additional youth, and develop a greater understanding of national issues and citizenship responsibilities.

3rd Annual Home Improvement Fair Held

Visitors to the recent Third Annual Home Improvement Fair had a chance to pick up valuable ideas on subjects ranging from small kitchen equipment to the care and selection of oriental rugs, growth and propagation of flowers in the home and home cleaning remedies that really work.

The fair was sponsored by the cooperative extension service at the University of Delaware and Delaware State College. As in the past, the fair was held on the campus of Delaware State College in Dover.

Main focus of the fair was a series of lecture-demonstrations which were repeated 3 times during the day and evening.

The wide range of utensils and cookware available to today's homemaker was the theme of extension home management specialist, Carol Morris. She discussed cutlery use and care, and the pros and cons of various types of cookware. Miss Morris had examples of such specialized cooking items as the fondue pot and that newest in cooking fashions, a wok.

The wok, says Miss Morris, is a very traditional oriental cooking pan used in the preparation of certain stir-fried Chinese meat and vegetable dishes. Americans have taken over the wok and made their own variations on the traditional form and its uses-notably the teflon-lined electrical appliance included in her demonstration.

Another popular feature of the fair was the lecture demonstration of extension horticulturist, Robert F. Stevens, on the care and propagation of house plants. One of the most effective methods of propagating house plants is by cuttings, Stevens says. Three kinds of cuttings can be taken: stem, cane, and leaf. Stem cuttings work well for such house plants as the geranium, begonia, coleus, Christmas cactus, patience plant and philodendron. Stevens recommends cane cuttings for dumb cane, chinese evergreen, dracaena and similar plants. African violets, sansevieria, jade plant, rex begonia and many others can be started from leaf cuttings.

It is generally easier to start house plants from cuttings than from seed, he said. Other propagation techniques for house plants include division, grafting and air and soil layering.

How do you clean wood? What gets spots out of upholstery and carpets? What is a good way to polish copper and brass? Visitors got some useful answers to these and other cleaning questions from New Castle county home economics extension specialist, Barbara DeMesse.

An effective way to clean tarnished copper pan bottoms is to make a paste of lemon juice or vinegar and salt, said Miss DeMesse. For high luster, polish with fine scouring powder and a soft cloth. For a dull finish add linseed oil to rottenstone until it looks like thick cream. Rub this on, wipe off the excess, and polish with a soft cloth.

Other demonstrations at this Third Annual Home Improvement Fair included a presentation on kitchen management techniques by Miss Karen Mitchell, home economist for Rubbermaid; a demonstration of the new Corning "counterange," by Miss Becky Jones, Corningware home economist; and a discussion of oriental carpets, their care by Mrs. Norman Woodbury, a Dover homemaker whose family came by Syria and has been in the oriental carpet business for several generations.

Statistics on lime use show that the additional lime needed to compensate for deeper plowing is not being used.

A contrasting situation exists in the case of no-till farming, where lime is applied at the surface and at best only worked into the soil 3 to 4 inches by disking.

Lime moves into the soil by normal leaching at a very slow rate. Some researchers suggest it may move down more than 1 inch per year. It appears much of the surface-applied lime in no-till operations is neutralizer by decaying organic matter and fertilizer nitrogen before it has a chance to move deeply into the soil. The long-term effect is an increase in acidity at the lower soil depths, which in turn can influence rooting depth and nutrient availability.

Occasional use of a moldboard plow seems to be the most practical answer to the problem of lime distribution in no-till farming, Mitchell adds.

Research has shown that most of the cropland in Delaware should receive one ton of ground limestone every three years to maintain the proper range of soil acidity. Since there are about 500,000 acres of cropland in Delaware, this means lime should be increased to about 160,000 tons per year.

Lime needs on corn and soybean farms are being changed in two important ways. Farmers are using heavier tractors and the extra power makes it possible to plant deeper. Although this is a good practice, it has a direct bearing on the amount of lime needed.

Most recommendations for lime use refer to land which is plowed to a depth of 6 inches. If an adequate amount of lime is used for a plow depth of 6 inches, it is only half enough for a plow depth of 12 inches, Mitchell says. The limiting rate should be increased from one ton to one and a half tons per acre if the plow depth is increased from six to nine inches.

Statistics on lime use show that the additional lime needed to compensate for deeper plowing is not being used.

A contrasting situation exists in the case of no-till farming, where lime is applied at the surface and at best only worked into the soil 3 to 4 inches by disking.

Lime moves into the soil by normal leaching at a very slow rate. Some researchers suggest it may move down more than 1 inch per year. It appears much of the surface-applied lime in no-till operations is neutralizer by decaying organic matter and fertilizer nitrogen before it has a chance to move deeply into the soil. The long-term effect is an increase in acidity at the lower soil depths, which in turn can influence rooting depth and nutrient availability.

Occasional use of a moldboard plow seems to be the most practical answer to the problem of lime distribution in no-till farming, Mitchell adds.

Research has shown that most of the cropland in Delaware should receive one ton of ground limestone every three years to maintain the proper range of soil acidity. Since there are about 500,000 acres of cropland in Delaware, this means lime should be increased to about 160,000 tons per year.

Harrington - In memory of my loving husband Garrett Harrington who passed away March 30, 1972.
In tears I watched you suffer
And little could I do
But hold your hand for comfort
And Pray God would help you thru.
The Golden Gates stood open
God saw you needed rest
His garden must be beautiful
He only takes the best.

ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

Personal respirator equipment provides extra protection against dust, chaff, chemicals, and gases produced in silos. Many tasks that have to be performed by farmers are not very healthy, and respirators should be used when performing these hazardous duties.

There are three types of respirator devices. Those that filter and purify the air, those that supply fresh air from a distance, and self-contained oxygen devices such as scuba outfits. Dust filter masks should be used for jobs where dust particles are in the air, such as when combining, tilling dusty fields, cleaning out poultry houses or barns, or applying lime and fertilizers. Using a saw or sander in a shop also creates dust particles. The dust filter masks cover the nose and mouth and the filter contains a fibrous material that traps particles out of the air. It does not protect against chemical vapors, gases or other toxic materials.

Cartridge respirators have a half-face mask that covers the nose and mouth, but does not cover the eyes. One or two cartridges attached to the facepiece contain an absorbent material such as activated charcoal, plus dust filters which purify the air. The respirator does not provide oxygen. It should be used when applying or working with toxic pesticides, chemicals or spray painting.

Cannister respirators or oxygen masks cover the entire face. The facepiece may hold a cannister directly or is connected by a flexible hose to a cannister carried on the chest or hip. This gas mask container has more absorbing material and longer filter life than the cartridge type. However, it does not protect from the lack of oxygen. The cannister respirator can be used for longer jobs and when eye protection as well as lung protection is needed.

The supplied air respirators provide air through a hose from a safe, distant supply. The operator's hood is connected by a hose to usually some sort of air pump. This type respirator should be used where oxygen is lacking or where toxic gas may be present, such as in silos, grain elevators, manure pits, waste storage lagoons and when fumigating.

The self-contained breathing apparatus, such as a scuba system, lets you take your air supply in tanks with you for short term jobs. These are used for entry into any area where the oxygen supply is depleted or in areas where highly toxic gases may be concentrated.

Respirators around the farm are good investments. Also, eye protectors, if available, should be used on dusty jobs. Respirators can be purchased from industrial supply houses, mail order catalogues, drug stores, and waste equipment suppliers. Be sure you select the right respirator for the right job and follow directions.

More beef on the way! A USDA report shows nearly 122 million cattle and calves on the nation's farms as of Jan. 1st, or 4 per cent more than the previous record high of a year ago. The number of beef cows being held for breeding purposes was up 6 per cent for older cows and 7 per cent for younger females. This should expand beef numbers greatly during the next two years.

The recent Food and Drug Administration ban placed on the use of diethylstilbestrol (DES) means it will take 10 per cent longer and 10 per cent more feed to produce a pound of beef.

Another serious threat to beef production, according to John Trotman, president of the American Cattleman's Assoc., is the possibility that the use of antibiotics and sulfonamides in animal feeds will be curtailed sharply. "The American consumer eats the most wholesome beef in the world, primarily due to the availability of these important health products," he said.

Vaccinate Horses Against Encephalitis

Delaware horse owners should have their animals vaccinated against eastern encephalitis before June 1, according to Dr. Melvin Reitnour, equine specialist at the University of Delaware.

Eastern encephalitis is usually fatal to animals infected and is often transmitted by mosquitoes. So it is important to have animals vaccinated before the mosquito season starts. Encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, is a virus-caused infection that effects the animal's brain and central nervous system, Reitnour says. The early stages of the disease are characterized by fever, nervousness or depression. You may also notice your horse walking into objects.

As the disease progresses, an animal becomes greatly depressed and stands in a sleeping position with its head down and,

Carpet Beetles Can Damage Fabrics or Furnishings

A warm home—complete with furs, feathers, wool fabrics, lint, stuffed animals and stored food—is carpet beetle country.

Frequently overlooked because of their small size, carpet beetles can damage home furnishings, fabrics and most clothing, according to Frank Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware. He says the pests may also infest peppers, cereals, cake mixes and stored grains.

The larvae or immatures cause the feeding damage. Larvae may crawl from room to room, becoming widely distributed throughout the home. Boys says you may find larvae behind baseboards, moulding, in floor cracks, in corners, behind radiators, in heating system air ducts, clothing and dresser drawers.

Adult beetles are found sometimes on window sills (on the sunny side of the house). They fly readily. During a warm, spring day adults feed on flower pollen outdoors. They are known to infest wild buckwheat, crepe myrtle and spirea flowers.

Once the larvae have made a meal of your fabric, the damage is done, says Boys. He points out that the home vacuum cleaner is your best control tool. Use a strong suction vacuum cleaner with proper attachments to thoroughly clean upholstered furniture, carpets and carpet pads, especially under and on top of carpet edges. Remove lint that has accumulated in attics, furnace vents, floor cracks, corners and behind baseboards. Destroy the disposable vacuum and its contents.

Have clothing dry-cleaned regularly. Dry cleaners often provide moth-proofing as a service. Clothing and blankets may be protected by using a ready-to-use pressurized container of insecticide recommended for this purpose. Apply the insecticide as a coarse spray. Follow label directions and precautions carefully.

Store your cleaned woollens in an air-tight closet or container and intersperse with crystals of paradichlorobenzene (PDB) or with naphthalene (moth balls), according to label directions. Most cedar chests and cedar closets, without chemicals, are ineffective against carpet beetles.

If you have a heavy infestation, particularly in hard-to-treat places, consult a pest control operator.

Most homeowners can administer spot treatments themselves. In such cases, treat surfaces over which the beetles and larvae are likely to crawl. Recommended materials include two per cent chlordane (72 per cent formulation), 5 per cent diazinon, 5 per cent dichlorvos (Vapona), 3 per cent malathion (premium grade), or 3 per cent methoxychlor.

Do not use these insecticides on clothing or furniture. On rugs and carpets, use only for surface spraying.

Surfaces to treat are along edges of wall-to-wall carpeting, behind radiators, along baseboards, mouldings, corners, cracks and other hard-to-clean areas.

It Seams To Me

Janet Reed

Are you ready for a new sewing adventure? Now you can buy in Delaware, that wonderful man-made suede that looks exactly like the real thing. It has been much in demand by fashion designers that it has been difficult to buy by the yard.

This material is easy care and can be tossed in the washer or dryer or dry cleaned if you prefer. The manufacturer says it will not shrink, stretch, fray, crack, wrinkle, pill, water-spot or stiffen, and it is colorfast. Sounds almost perfect, doesn't it? There is one drawback, though, it's expensive.

If you plan to try your hand with this material, do some planning before you buy to avoid waste and make the best use of the fabric. It's easier to use than real suede which must be planned around the shape and size of the skin, but Ultrasuede is only 36 inches wide, so it, too, requires careful planning. Ultrasuede has a definite nap, and pattern pieces must be laid out in one direction only, as you do for other napped fabrics such as corduroy. You can fold this material for cutting double, which you cannot do with real suede.

Pin only in seam allowances or use cellophane tape to hold the pattern in place. Do not use pins on the body of the garment as pin holes will show forever, as they do in real leather.

You will need to experiment before stitching or pressing, as you do for any new fabric. Use polyester or silk thread and a fairly long stitch, about 10 stitches per inch. Use a new ball point needle. The presser foot may need adjustment so the fabric will not shift as you sew.

Sine Ultrasuede is made from polyester and non fibrous polyurethane, it can be damaged by high heat. So experiment with your iron on a scrap of fabric before pressing the garment.

One of the major differences in sewing with Ultrasuede is the use of fusing materials and webs to hold seams and edges in place. A number of different brands are on the market, but not all fusing materials are compatible with Ultrasuede. You will have best results with one of the polyester types since polyester has a natural affinity for itself. Strips of fusing material can be placed under seams to keep them flat and to give the appearance of a sharp press. The fusing agent will also hold facings and hems in place without any hand stitching. Do not use rubber cement as you do for real leather.

Top stitching also can be used to give a tailored appearance and to keep seams and edges flat.

Before stitching the dart, fuse a small square of non-woven interfacing at the point, then stitch dart as usual. The interfacing will keep the end of the dart from bubbling. Do not shorten stitch at end of dart or back stitch, but tie thread ends instead. Slash darts open to about one-half inch from the point and press open. Hold down edges with a strip of fusing agent under the seam edges. Since Ultrasuede is expensive, you may want to try your luck with a small item such as a vest or handbag before trying a jacket or dress. But if you want to be in the high fashion class, make a shirtwaist dress of man-made suede.

Many Home Repairs Are Easy To Do Yourself

Long, cold winters and stormy springs often cause sticking windows and squeaky hinges. It's often easy to prevent large repair bills by fixing them yourself, says Miss Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware.

A squeaky door probably needs a lubricating job. For squeaky hinges, simply tap out the hinge pin with a hammer and screwdriver and apply a drop of oil. Rub the oil over the inside of the hinge and wipe off any excess. Use powdered graphite if the hinge pin cannot be removed.

Hinged doors that refuse to close are another problem. Weather stripping is one possible cause. Carefully straighten bent weather stripping with small-nose pliers and re-nail the strip in place if it's loose.

Of course, doors may also stick because they're sagging at the hinges or swelling from moisture. Tighten the hinge screw or plug the old screw hole and drill new ones. If the screws are worn, replace them with new ones a half inch longer and one size larger.

Sliding doors that stick need a drop of oil on the bearings or a thin film of petroleum jelly on the metal track. However, lubrication will not help if the sticking is due to warping or if the track and doors are out of line. Sticking windows may also need some lubrication. Open the window and rub paraffin or soap on the side grooves where the window slides. If the problem is caused by excess paint simply scrape or sandpaper the problem areas. Swelling caused by moisture requires refitting the window by a carpenter, however.

Drawers which swell with dampness are easier to repair. Sand or plane the binding edges, depending on the amount of wood to be smoothed down. After the drawer has been smoothed, use paraffin, past wax or soap on the runners. Lubrication may also help drawers which stick slightly.

If drawers stick because the joints are loose, reinforce them by regluing or use small metal corner plates to add strength. If the bottom of the drawer has slipped from the groove, fit it back in place and secure it with small brads.

Door locks often need simple repairs too. If a lock is hard to turn, puff powdered graphite into the lock and around the latch. Don't use oil because dust will stick to it in the lock and make it difficult to clean.

Remember, taking care of little repairs yourself can save large bills from a serviceman.

Planting Soybeans

This year for the first time it will cost farmers more to plant an acre of row soybeans than an acre of corn. With soybean seeds at $10 to $12 per bushel, farmers will no doubt make various sorts of adjustments to control their costs, says Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware.

A natural reaction on the part of growers will be to reduce the seeding rate as low as possible, an idea suggested by research results. It has been shown that with good weed control plants spaced 6 inches apart will yield about as well as plants one inch apart.

Growers should keep in mind, however, that if a heavy rain follows planting and crusting of the soil results, it may be very difficult for the germinating beans to break through the soil surface and a poor stand may result.

This problem is usually less severe when heavier seeding rates are used. The closely-spaced seedlings help each other to lift and penetrate the sealed surface of the soil.

If a lighter seeding rate is used and the soil has a history of crusting, plans should be made to use a rotary hoe to loosen the soil, Mitchell says.

Other precautions involve proper seeding depth and planting in moist soil so germination and emergence is as rapid as possible.

Seed treatment, which can be done either by seed cleaner or by using a seed box treatment at the time of planting, can make the difference between success and failure, he adds. Either method costs a few cents per acre and is another way to get the most out of soybean seed.

between corn yield and leaf minerals has shown grain yields on heavily limed plots to be significantly depressed due chiefly to a wide phosphorus-zinc ratio. Mitchell says the findings of Professor Merle Teel, Leroy Svec and William Liebhardt, of the department of plant science, indicate that soil fertility is determined less by soil phosphorus levels and more by this phosphorus-zinc ratio. The higher the soil phosphorus, the lower the available zinc.

There is a build-up of phosphate level in many Delaware soils, Mitchell explains. Liming these soils raises the pH level, which increases the availability of phosphorus. Under these conditions, phosphorus has a tendency to combine with zinc in the soil to form an insoluble compound and a zinc deficiency results.

Some farmers can cut phosphate applications by 50 per cent without reducing crop yields, Mitchell says. This applies especially to agronomic crops such as corn and soybeans.

Recently pea fertility field trials conducted by Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist, suggest that fertilizer recommendations for this crop are also higher than they need to be. In this case, it is the nitrogen application which is higher than necessary. Research indicates that reductions in nitrogen application could result in a considerable saving in fertilizer costs for pea growers without affecting crop productivity.

Mitchell advises farmers to reevaluate their present fertilizing practices. The supply of phosphorus is expected to be tight for the next year or two. The fertilizer industry may be faced with the need to modify nitrogen production-methods since at present a large percentage of fertilizer nitrogen is dependent on a process utilizing natural gas, which is likely to be in limited supply in the future.

Mitchell sees three main factors contributing to present shortages: (1) a very strong export market in active competition with American farmers for an already limited supply, particularly of phosphate fertilizers; (2) under production of phosphate fertilizers due to the phas-

Some Grasses Require Vegetative Planting

Several varieties of grass commonly available cannot be started from seed and must be established by vegetative means. There are 4 methods of vegetative planting commonly used. All of them involve planting grass which is already growing.

According to Dr. William H. Mitchell, extension agronomist at the University of Delaware, some grasses of this type are hybrid bermudas, soysgrass, centipedegrass and St. Augustine grass. To establish a lawn of one of these types usually requires more trouble and expense than to establish a lawn from seed.

Sprigging is the most common method of vegetative planting. Separate plants, runners, cuttings or stolons of the grass are planted at regular intervals. The exact distance depends on how fast the grass will spread, how fast you want the ground to be covered and how much planting material is available.

Sprigs are usually broken into 2 to 4-inch pieces and planted on 1-foot centers. This way, 1 square yard of sod will plant from 1000 to 6000 square feet of yard.

Another common method is stoloning. Individual stolons are broadcast when hand planting is not possible or practical. The method requires large quantities of planting stock. After the stolons are broadcast, they must be disked in and rolled to ensure good soil contact. Three to five bushels of planting material will plant about 1000 square feet of lawn.

Plugging involves planting individual plugs or pieces of sod about 2 inches across. These spread slowly, so they should be planted close together for quick coverage.

Plugging is often done in old lawns to replace old grass by crowding it out.

The final method, sodding, is ing out of old plants using a highly polluting process to extract phosphorus from rock phosphate; and (3) the withdrawal of lands from government programs to boost acreage in wheat and feed grains, thus increasing the overall demand for fertilizer. Even where it has problems have caused local shortages just at the time farmers need fertilizer the most for spring application. Applications of phosphorus and potassium during the fall and winter months is one way to take the pressure off the transportation system, which is always under great pressure during the spring planting season, Mitchell adds.

He hopes the present shortage can set the stage for more thoughtful fertilizing practices. Some farmers may discover they could be saving considerable money where they've been over-fertilizing. He cites the example of downstate farmers whose modified fertilizing programs after soil-testing netted them a savings of $7 an acre. Though this is an extreme example, Mitchell says many Delaware farmers could cut costs through a reevaluation of their fertilizer programs.

It is important, though, that decisions on how much to fertilize their land this spring be based on up-to-date soil tests. If farmers have any questions on this, they should consult their county extension agent.

Publications On Lawns Available

Publications outlining common Delaware lawn problems are available from the cooperative extension service at the University of Delaware.

Your lawn may not look right for any number of reasons, according to David V. Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the university. Wrong seed, poor soil, unfavorable weather, insects and diseases all can result in a poor looking lawn.

It's not always easy to recognize the cause of your lawn problems. However, many of the lawn problems found in Delaware are discussed in "The Art of Lawn Care" and "What's Wrong With My Lawn?"

The publications provide information on selecting the best grass varieties for Delaware conditions, how to recognize and control insects and diseases that damage lawns, soil problems, controlling weeds and general lawn maintenance.

Copies of "The Art of Lawn Care" and "What's Wrong With My Lawn?" are available from county extension offices in Newark, Dover and Georgetown, or by writing to Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware Newark, 19711.

Small Fruits for Home Garden

Small fruits are becoming more and more expensive and difficult to find in many grocery stores, so many people are growing them in home gardens.

Blackberries, blueberries, raspberries, strawberries and grapes are easily grown, and take up only a small amount of space, says Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware.

Blueberry plants are expensive, but they last a lifetime. To grow well they need good drainage and much. To get adequate pollination, you need to plant at least 3 varieties. They produce only small crops their first year or two after planting.

Blueberries are usually spaced about 4-5 feet apart. The crop can be protected from bird damage by covering with plastic netting. Six to ten plants will provide enough blueberries for a family of 4 over a period of 5-6 weeks in early summer, with enough left over for freezing or canning.

Raspberries are now available in virus-free stock, so your chances of getting disease-free production are much better than ever before, Stevens says. Some varieties produce both spring and fall crops. The bushes require pruning and staking but little other care. About 10 bushes are required to provide enough berries for a family of 4 for about 6 weeks.

Strawberries are about the easiest home fruit to grow, but they don't produce a crop their first year. Plant them early in the spring, remove the blossoms for the first year, and keep them weeded. If you plant several varieties, you can spread out the harvest season. Plan on about a quart of berries from each plant you set out.

Grapes also start producing in their second year. Many good varieties for fresh eating and wine making are available.
