Canterbury-Viola

By Edna Massimilla Mrs. Ruth Stokes and Mrs. Betty Chambers were the hostesses at the Viola United Methodist Women for the April meeting held at the Community Hall. The sermon topic at Viola and Manship Church's Sunday was "Gethsemane" with Scripture readings from John 12. The members of Viola, Manship and Felton Churches are urged to co-operate in combined efforts to make this year's vacation Bible school a meaningful experience for the children of the area. Mrs. Vonna Hobbs, superintendent of the vacation school welcomes volunteers. Sandy Carroll was recently honored at a stork shower given by Cheryl Lyons and Shirley Glenden at Shirley's home in Frederica. Twenty-six persons attended a Pops-and-Pans demonstration at the home of Mildred Biggs. Judy Mormon, Patsy Johnson and Becky Merrell all celebrated their 15th birthday April 5th. Many folks in the area enjoyed a spaghetti dinner at the Kent County Vo-Tech Center in Woodside Friday. The Country Cutups supplied the music at the Saturday night dance at Camden-Wyoming firehall. C.W. Little Leaguers are busy with tryouts. The Round Table Club met Friday at Wyoming Methodist Church. Prayer and study groups meet at the Wyoming Church at the following times: Women - Mon., 7:30 p.m., Tues., 10 a.m., Thurs., 9:15 a.m. Men - Wed., 6 p.m. If you enjoy walking, here is an opportunity to take a nice long walk and help a worthy cause. Sgt. and Mrs. David Dicky, whose telephone number is 736-1106, have been asked to co-operate with the Smyrna Jaycees to get folks to join the Walkathon April 29 to help with the March of Dimes. The starting point will be in Rodney Village.

Sgt. Dickey is the president of the service organization known as RE-ACT, a twenty-member group with eleven mobile units devoted to being available to assist in community needs, such as directing traffic at the scene of an accident, or in the event of fire. They also find lost children, and are on hand for many other emergencies. Right now RE-ACT plans to have a "Wake Break" for Memorial Day drivers. They will serve coffee at two locations on Route 113 - in front of Penneys and also near Mason's Department Store. Mrs. Dickie believes that busy people are happy people; especially when hobbies or extra activities are pointed to public service. The award for outstanding High School Journalist of the Year was given to Marc Seely, a senior at Caesar Rodney and editor-in-chief of the Rider, the school newspaper. The award was presented by the Delaware Scholastic Press Ass'n. at the annual competition at Brandywine High School. Others on the staff who received recognition were Bryan Griffin, the yearbook editor, Julie Sparks, editorials, Colette Chabbot, a feature writer. Pat Jones, faculty advisor, was nominated for president of the Delaware Scholastic Press Association.

Mrs. John W. Webb

Mrs. Mary A. Webb, 75, of near Goldsboro, died Saturday in the Milford Memorial Hospital after a long illness. She was a lifelong resident of Delaware. Mrs. Webb was a member of the Fruitland Grange. She is survived by her husband John Wm. Webb; a son, Jack of Goldsboro; two daughters, Mrs. Betty Palmer, Wyoming, and Mrs. Ellen Cooper of Seaford; two sisters, Miss Ellen Chambers of Dover, and Mrs. Alice Cabbage of Viola; and six grandchildren. Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Berry Funeral Home, Main St., Felton. Interment was in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Camden.

Clarence Leyanna

Clarence Leyanna, 71, of near Harrington, was dead on arrival Saturday at Milford Memorial Hospital after suffering an apparent heart attack at home. Mr. Leyanna was a self-employed mechanic. He was a member of St. Bernadette's Church and an Army veteran of World War I. He was born in Wisconsin and had lived in Delaware since 1946. Survivors include his wife, Florence; five sons, Clarence and John, of Newark, Joseph, of Wilmington, Leonard, of Milford, and George, of Felton; two sisters, Mrs. Florence Hibberd, and Mrs. Ethel Wacker, both of Wisconsin; 17 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Mass of the Resurrection was offered Tuesday morning at St. Bernadette's Church, Harrington, and interment was in Holywood Cemetery. Friends called Monday night at the McKnatt Funeral Home, 50 Commerce St., Harrington.

DAVE WOODWARD
ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

This time of year many baby chicks are being started on family farms to provide meat or eggs for the family. I thought it would be a good idea to review some of the good management practices in caring for baby chicks.

First of all, you should adjust the brooding schedule to the flock you intend to replace. When your old flock's egg production drops to an unprofitable level, the replacement pullets should be ready to lay or already be in early weeks of egg production. To achieve a smooth change in flocks, brooding must take place five to five and one half months before the replacements are needed.

Before the chicks arrive, the brooder house should be prepared, such as making it rat proof, patching leaks in the roof, covering excessive cracks in the doors and windows, and fixing leaky water spigots. A thorough cleaning and disinfecting is highly recommended, and fresh litter should be provided, such as sawdust or wood shavings. Do not use old litter in brooding replacement chicks. The risk of disease is too great. Keep the litter as dry as possible. Whenever necessary, stir the litter to keep it from packing. As wet spots develop, remove the wet and caked-over litter and add new, dry material. If the litter continues to be wet, apply ten to fifteen pounds of hydrated lime per hundred feet of floor space and stir.

The brooder should be operated at least two days before the chicks are put in it. This includes adjusting the thermostat, making sure it is working properly. The temperature should be set at about 95 degrees and reduced about five degrees each week until the temperature reaches 75 degrees. Check the temperature under the hover twice daily the first week and continue to check it twice a day as long as the chicks need heat. The temperature should be taken about three inches above the floor.

Infrared lamps or other systems of heat can be used; a draft guard should be used with the brooder and infrared lamps. It consists of corrugated cardboard about 12 inches high to keep the chicks near the heat. The draft guard should be placed about two feet from the outer edge of the brooder, and moved further away from the heat every day. Remove it after about a week. Provide heat until chicks are well feathered. The birds are more likely to develop respiratory troubles if the heat is removed too early.

Block the corners of the house with cardboard or wire to prevent the chicks from crowding into them and smothering. Above all, do not crowd the chicks because the birds may pile up and smother if they did not have enough space, or if they become frightened.

If the chicks are to have a roost at maturity, they should have roosts in the brooder house. There is usually less crowding of birds and fewer deaths from piling up in houses with roosts. If the roosts are used, the chicks should be taught to roost as soon as they can get along without the hover protection.

You should allow chicks enough space to grow properly. For the first ten weeks, provide each bird with one square foot of floor space. Of course, clean, fresh water should be provided at all times. Also a constant supply of a chick starter ration should be available. The water and feeder should be placed on a frame made of 2 x 4's covered with rat wire. This will eliminate the caking of manure around the feeders and waterers.

Cannibalism is a constant threat to the poultry raiser. Toe, feather, or body picking may occur in confined flocks even when the birds are properly managed and well fed. Toe picking may be the first sign of cannibalism. You should remove the chicks immediately, paint their toes with a stop-pick preparation, and allow them to heal before returning to the flock.

Debeaking may be done at any age. If previous flocks have been engaged in cannibalism, it is a good idea to order the chicks debeaked at the hatchery.

Farmers Bulletin #2197 on farm poultry management is available upon request from the cooperative extension service; for Kent County call 736-1448.

It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

How much does your family spend for clothing? For what it's worth, the average expenditure for clothing in this country in 1972 was about $296 per person. This figure includes shoes and upkeep. This amount may seem high, but if we keep records of everything we spend, we might be surprised. Those impulse items or the latest fads we wore once upon a time faster than we realize.

Bureau of Labor statistics also tell us that this figure is an increase of about $21 per person over the average expenditure of 1971, and we can expect this figure to be even higher in 1973. No surprise there! Biggest increase this year will be for shoes and by fall, wool garments will be noticeably higher because of wool prices. All import items will be higher, too.

Who gets the biggest share of the clothing dollar in your family? Those youngsters who grow out of everything in a season, or the teenager who bolsters his self-confidence with as many new outfits as he can manage, or the breadwinner who meets the public daily? Mom probably comes out at the small end of the horn unless she, too, must dress for a job away from home.

Does each person's share seem fair? Records can help you answer this too, but this is extremely difficult to weigh fairly because each of us may select clothing for a different purpose. We may choose clothing to attract attention, to be different, or not to be different, to bolster our self-confidence, to give us status, for novelty or change, to try to look like someone we admire, to express our personality, or because we appreciate beautiful fabric or excellent craftsmanship.

The reasons we select what we do are extremely complex and tied in with our own personality. Our clothing dollars do much more for us than merely clothe the body. Each of us must decide if our clothing expenditures are within reason with what we want and what we can afford.

Linseed oil is a must for finishing many pieces of fine furniture and woodworking. It is resistant to all sorts of usage. It becomes more beautiful as the pieces are rubbed and cared for. On raw wood, simply allow linseed oil to soak in; then wipe the surplus off and rub the piece well. This is repeated intervals until no more oil will soak into the wood. Then all the piece needs is frequent rubbing to make the finish glow.
