James L. Collison, 34, of near Greenwood, shot accidentally early Sunday in a hunting mishap near Farmington, died Monday in Delaware Division from a head wound.

State Police at Bridgeville said Collison apparently had been groundhog hunting off Delaware 61, about 2 miles west of Farmington. When he tossed his .22-caliber rifle in the rear of his car it accidentally discharged. The bullet grazed the rear of his head and became embedded in the car's roof.

After the incident, Collison drove for help to a nearby farmhouse and he was taken by ambulance to Milford Memorial Hospital for emergency treatment before being sent to Wilmington hospital.

George W. Cripps Railroad Bridge Reopens Seeks Kent Levy On Limited Basis Court Post

George W. Cripps, candidate for Kent County Levy Court in the special election to be held this Saturday, has issued the following summarization of his objectives:

Cripps has given much to the argument of municipalities throughout the county, in which they feel an equalization of county and city taxes should be seriously considered by Levy Court. He says, "There is considerable merit in the position of the cities. The long harangue between governments is almost ludicrous. I feel action should be initiated as soon as possible which would equalize taxes in keeping with services rendered."

The Penn Central railroad bridge over the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal reopened to vessel traffic on a limited basis at Midnight Thurs., June 14, Governor Sherman W. Tribbitt announced.

The Governor said he had the word from Lt. Col. Samuel J. Newsom Jr., acting District Engineer for the Army Corps of Engineers in Philadelphia.

According to Newsom, the bridge will be open to vessel traffic from midnight to 6 a.m. daily, and then will be lowered for rail traffic from 6 a.m. to midnight during the third stage of bridge repair.

"This is good news to all Delawarans," Governor Tribbitt said. "We have kept our fingers crossed for the past four months, hoping repairs could be completed swiftly, with minimum delays due to bad weather. I am glad to see the Corps has fulfilled its pledge to work with all deliberate speed to open the bridge as soon as possible," he said.

The lift bridge was rendered inoperable when a freighter struck the span last February 2nd.

The new system of opening the bridge intermittently to vessel traffic will continue until final repairs are completed, Col. Newsom said.

Cripps also said, "Up to now we've been surveyed to death on ways to help older people in our county. It's time now for action, and I propose to give great attention to the immediate needs of senior citizens. Specifically, positive steps toward a transportation system in the county for every day needs, such as getting to shopping areas to secure food. Also, I am planning to get more support for the Modern Maturity Center and other self-help agencies".

On the Bookmobile, which has unfortunately become entangled in politics in recent weeks, Cripps says, "Let's get it straight on the Bookmobile. It is not and should not be a political matter. Let's simply see that the Bookmobile gets the funds and attention it needs to serve its more than 40,000 users in Kent County, period."

Sue Ann Rogers of Georgetown, a 16-year-old cheerleader and ballet dancer, will reign as the 1973 Delmarva Poultry Princess.

The tiny teen-ager won her title over 16 other contestants in the pageant held during the 26th Delmarva Chicken Festival at Wicomico Youth and Civic Center here.

Miss Rogers, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rogers, was sponsored by Kiwanis Club of Georgetown. She danced to "Prairie Shadows" in the talent competition.

After viewing the books of Kent County, Cripps, a former state auditor, says, "It would appear that Kent County is in a position to substantially lower the tax rate by some 5 to 10 cents in the near future. This action would seem especially appropriate in light of the proposed tax increases anticipated by the current state administration".

A junior at Sussex Central Senior High, she hopes for a career in the medical field, either as a nurse or a dental hygienist. Her prizes include a $1,000 scholarship for any education beyond high school or $500 in cash, a $500 scholarship to Wesley College in Dover, and a $300 wardrobe from Benjamins Department Stores.

Kent Enacts Budget, Cuts Realty Tax Rate 6 Cents

In a spirit of exuberance, Kent County Levy Court yesterday enacted a $3.3 million budget and lowered the real estate tax rate to 33 cents per $100 for the coming fiscal year.

The tax reduction, from 39 cents per $100 of assessed valuation had been predicted some time ago.

Included with the budget for the first time is a six-year capital improvements program with $41.6 million in projected expenditures, $396,100 of that is allocated in fiscal 1974 on such items as a computerized tax accounting system, the proposed county air terminal, and mass transportation.

The budget itself has increased from $1.8 million last year, largely because of the addition of income and expenses of the county sewer system and trash collection districts amounting to about $900,000 and $400,000 in federal grants for various programs, according to Levy Court President Joshua M. Twilley Such "special use income" much of which was spent, but not included in the budget last year, is projected at $1.3 million.

Mrs. Mary I. Pierce To Be Honored For 20 Yrs. Service at Health Center

Mrs. Mary I. Pierce was honored for her 20 years of service to the Governor Bacon Health Center Friday afternoon, June 15 in a ceremony in the office of J.D. White, secretary of the Department of Health and Social Services.

Mrs. Pierce, of Kirkwood, has worked as an attendant in the Tilton Building since she joined the Governor Bacon staff. In April, 1969, she was promoted to an Attendant II and in that capacity assists the nurses on the floor.

Employees receiving service recognition pins for fifteen years of service were: Mrs. Helen Green of Wilmington, attendant; Miss Octavia Lea of Delaware City, attendant; Mrs. Jenny Jackson of Port Penn, laundry worker; Mrs. Alice Miller of Delaware City, food service worker, and Mrs. Edna Wright of Delaware City, linen supply clerk.

Honored for ten years of service were: Mrs. Catherine Boyles of Middletown, attendant; Dr. Christobal Granda of Delaware City, medical director; Mrs. Ozie Morehead of Wilmington, attendant; Mrs. Margaret Ponzio of Wilmington, attendant; Arnold Comer of Delaware City, custodial worker; Willie Cooper of Wilmington, custodial worker; Mrs. Elva Neall of Port Penn, attendant, and Miss Jane Sutton of Delaware City, attendant.

Real estate taxes will make up only about a third or $90,595 of the county's income. Fees are estimated at $382,105 and cash on hand, surplus from the current year's budget — was put at $595,049.

In addition to the $3.3 million capital and general fund budget, the county has allocated $686,312 in revenue sharing funds for projects proposed last week by the budget and finance committee.

According to Twilley, the separation of the budget into general fund and special use categories "points up the fact that the county budget is rapidly changing to a user system. "When you stop to consider how far this county has come in the past two years, you can see that the sleeping giant has awakened," he said.

Also on hand for Friday's ceremony was Dr. James E. Carson, director of the Division of Mental Health, and Dr. Cor De Hart, director of the Governor Bacon Health Center.

Earlier this week Mrs. Pierce was among 25 employees of the health center who were honored at a reception for their years of service.

Air Force Reserve Has New Enlistment Program

The 512th Military Airlift Wing, the Air Force Reserve unit at Dover AFB, has just received authority to enlist non-prior service men and women under a new short enlistment program. Qualified men and women who are 17 through 34 can now enlist in the Air Force Reserve and actively participate for four years with pay and then be placed in standby reserve status without pay for two years. In the past non-prior service men and women had to enlist and actively participate for six years.

Individuals enlisting under this program are required to attend basic training at Lackland AFB, Tex., and a technical school to receive training in the job for which they enlisted.

While they are attending the training schools they receive the same pay and training as the regular Air Force airman. After completing the technical school they will return home and participate in reserve training at Dover AFB one weekend a month and 15 days of active duty a year.

There are many openings in the Air Force Reserve units at Dover AFB; they include aircraft mechanics, engine mechanics, aviation electronics technicians, medical technicians, air cargo specialists, and in many more fields. Anyone interested in more information can contact the Air Force Reserve Recruiting Office, 512th Mil Aft Wg, Dover AFB, DE 19901, phone (302) 678-6086.

Women Now Eligible To Enroll In ROTC Program At U.D.

This year for the first time, women will be able to enroll in the Army Reserve Officers Training Corps (ROTC) program at the University of Delaware.

The ruling follows a successful test program conducted by the Army last year at 10 colleges and universities in the United States, and affects more than 290 participating schools.

The four-year Army ROTC program consisted of a basic course during the freshman and sophomore years and an advanced course during the last two years. It is designed to educate a sufficient number of officers for the Army's active duty and reserve forces.

Any high school students planning to attend the U. of D. in the fall who wish to enroll in Army ROTC should register for the military science program when they finalize their schedules during summer freshman enrollment.

For additional information on the program, contact the ROTC instructor group located in Mechanical Hall on the campus, telephone 738-2217.

Disabled Widows Getting Survivors Payments

Widows who have been getting survivors payments from social security but who have been severely disabled for the last two years may be eligible for Medicare starting June 1-- "but they must file a disability claim," according to W.J. Bulkeley, social security district manager in Dover.

Medicare has been available to people 65 or over. Starting in July, the governments health care insurance will be extended automatically to all disabled people under 65 if they've received monthly social security disability payments for two years or more.

But some severely disabled widows 50 and over have never applied for disability payments. Generally they've been getting social security survivor benefits because they're 60 or over or they've been getting benefits as widowed mothers who have young or disabled children in their care.

To get Medicare, these widows must file a claim for disability payments. As soon as possible, they should call, write, or visit the social security office. If a widow is unable to make the contact, a friend or relative may help. If necessary, arrangements can be made for a social security representative to visit her.

The Dover social security office is at 19 Blue Hnn Mall. The phone number is 674-3610.

Veterans Administration News

Q - My husband was a veteran. He passed away recently and I am wondering if he is eligible for a headstone.

A - Yes. Any deceased veteran whose last period of military service was terminated honorably is eligible for this benefit administered by the Army.

Q - If a veteran's widow who draws death pension benefits is a patient in a nursing home and is in need of regular aid and attendance, is she eligible for additional pension?

A - Yes, she is entitled to an additional monthly pension of $55 under the current law. Widows requiring regular aid and attendance are entitled to an additional $50 monthly under the "old" law.

Q - What is this work-study program for veterans I keep hearing about?

A - A program authorized under a recent law which allows the Veterans Administration to advance up to $250 in extra allowances to veterans enrolled in the agency's educational programs. In return, the veteran agrees to work up to 100 hours for the agency.

Q - If a lender turns down a veteran's application for a G.I. loan, what should the veteran do?

A - He should see another lender. The fact that one lender is not interested in making the particular type of loan the veteran wants does not preclude the possibility that another may be interested.

The National Safety Council notes that each year a growing number of persons are injured and killed through improper handling of most common household electrical appliances. On top of that property is often lost through the overloading of circuits and faulty wiring. So if you need repairs or if outlets are inadequate, be sure to call someone who is qualified to do a proper wiring or electrical job.

The staff at HARRINGTON LUMBER & SUPPLY, Harrington, 398-3241 is qualified to give advice and suggestions on the proper equipment to purchase for most home repair jobs. Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

"ANOTHER'S SHOES"

I've often heard someone exclaim
 How they would like to be
 In someone else's job or place,
 Or far across the sea.

To them the grass was greener
 On the other side
 And they would like to go,
 And there in peace abide.

But little do they realize
 That those whose place they'd take,
 Would be so happy if they could
 The change or barter make.

It all amounts to merely this;
 That what we have and are
 Is really good and best for us
 So why reach for a star.

Because if gained, we might find out
 That we are sad and blue
 Because we didn't realize
 How tight the others shoe.

Delaware All-star Football Game

A Blue Squad of 16 players, bulwarked with six players from Salesianum, the 1972 State High School Football Champions, was announced. Two of the members of the squad, who will meet the Gold team Aug. 18 at the 18th renewal of the Delaware All-Star Football game, were members of the 1972 All State team—Robert J. Viscount, a center, and Mark McLane, a back. Both played with the Sallies.

Other schools represented on the squad include Mt. Pleasant and Concord with five each; A.I. DuPont with four; Friends with three; Archmere, Brandywine and Tatnall with two; Claymont, Howard, St. Elizabeth and Wilmington with one each.

Blue Head Coach, Bob Tattersall, of Friends, will be able to call on the 1972 state prep school leading ground gainer in Mark McLane. The Sallies' offensive star registered almost 2,000 yards in a 12-game season, averaging 7.4 yards per carry.

McLane's teammate, Robert Viscount, not only led the school's potent offensive line, but also the defensive signal caller from the linebacker position.

Members of the Blue squad who were picked on last year's second All-State team were John C. Ladd, a tackle from Concord; and Phillip Deldeo, a back from Mt. Pleasant. Squad members are Charles A. Farmer, a guard from Concord; Robert F. Perry, a quarterback from Friends; and Douglas J. Smith, a back from Concord.

This year's game on the 18th of August at the University of Delaware Stadium marks the 18th renewal of the contest, which is played under the auspices of the Delaware Foundation for Retarded Children for the mentally retarded of the state. More than three-quarters of a million dollars has been realized in net income from the games, with all of the money being used to initiate and support a variety of programs for the mentally retarded in the state.

Atkinson, Jim Dill Make All-Henlopen Baseball Team

Jim Dill and Mike Atkinson made the All-Henlopen baseball team. Dill has a string of honors as long as your arm, in baseball, basketball and football. Swarthmore-bound he's in the Blue-Gold game in August, too. Bill Winkler led the Henlopen Conference in hitting, yet was only a second-team pick. Russell Dill received honorable mention. Many people felt that Lake Forest was essentially a four-man team. The above four players carried a heavy load, this campaign.

Jackie Guyton Wins Middle Atlantic Title

Jackie Guyton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Guyton of Vernon Road, won the baseball throw, in the 10-11 (Midget) division, at the Middle Atlantic Junior Olympics track meet.

Northeast High School in Philadelphia was the scene of Jackie's latest triumph. She had qualified for the event by winning the Delaware Championship in Wilmington, one week earlier.

Jackie threw the horsehide 146 feet in the Delaware test. In Philadelphia she was matched against 11 girls, each of whom had won eliminations at sites in Philadelphia or in the locals in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Every girl was a champion. But the "Champion of Champions" with a throw of 162 feet, 11 inches was the 83-pound, sixth-grader from W.T. Chipman School, Harrington.

Pettyjohn Sizzles To Sixth Modified Win

It's becoming a familiar line but Milton's Eddie Pettyjohn is waiting for the challenge in the upcoming events at Little Lincoln Speedway. A definite asset to the sport of motor racing, Pettyjohn is a perfectionist and has never settled for second best. Finishing second behind the 8-ball was none other than Pettyjohn's uncle, George Harrison, the "Millsboro flash" chaffering the Leisure Point Chevy II, keeping it in the fam-

Big Leaguers Are Off With 1-2 Start

Harrington's Big League entry is composed almost entirely of high school players, plus other youngsters with only Senior League experience. Since the opposition will be using some college players, it could be a rough season.

Dover's Bob Natzinger, a college hurler, pitched four hitless innings, as Dover routed Harrington 18-0.

Russell Dill's homer was Harrington's only hit as Middletown prevailed 5-1, behind Ken Brinkley.

Showing two losses and two hits, Harrington bats awakened to beat Middletown 8-2, behind Rodney Wyatt's three-hitter. Russell Dill had two more circuit clouts, another hit and four RBI's. Big Wayne Erne hit a two-run homer and Bill Winkler added a brace of bingles.

Mosley, Miner Top Locals In Kiwanis Miles

A veteran and a rookie were the top local performers of 11 Lake Forest athletes, who competed in the various Kiwanis Mile runs, held at Tower Hill School, Wilmington, Sunday afternoon.

Ron Mosely, the veteran, is an accomplished middle and long distance runner. He is one of the few local trackmen still in shape after the recent scholastic season.

Ron finished third in the mile run for the 11th graders with his best mile ever (4.48). Mosely added another handsome trophy to his collection.

Louis Minner, the only Lake Forest competitor entered, did well, as he cut his mile time from 5:55 to 5:34. Eddie Thompson, Harry Benson and Terry Pettyjohn had good efforts, also.

Some of the school-age athletes are planning to stay in shape this summer by running various distances every Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Killen's Pond State Park. Starting time is 6:30 p.m.

won many honors and have been eagerly wooed by some of America's top colleges. Last week seventh-grader David Richter burst upon the scene, as a hot, new hope. Add the name of Louis Minner to the list. This area has developed three state champion individual distance runners and has had three state champion cross-country teams. There should be more.

Bill Moore, a seventh-grader, did well, as he cut his mile time from 5:55 to 5:34. Eddie Thompson, Harry Benson and Terry Pettyjohn had good efforts, also.

TOWN AND COUNTRY TOPICS

DAVE WOODWARD
ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

"If I had enough money to own all the resources I need for farming, I wouldn't need to farm."

This remark of one farmer reflects the thinking of many. The growing capital requirements of agriculture have led an increasing number of farmers to ask whether it is feasible or even desirable to own all the assets needed to farm.

Many successful farmers no longer strive for full ownership of the land, machinery, money, and other resources they use. Instead, they rent many of their inputs; custom hire some of their services; and make full use of credit facilities. Some enter into contract farming arrangements, which may reduce capital and labor requirements. Others often incorporate or form partnerships to bring in outside capital.

Used properly, these tactics can help a young man get started in farming. They allow for more flexibility in farming operations. They encourage farm growth. They make more resources available to the starting farmer than he could have available by outright purchase.

But they also have their drawbacks. The farmer who now depends on others for land, equipment and market may worry that for one reason or another they may not be available over a long period of time.

The farmer depends on services and resources of others operates at a higher cash level—more cash from all sources flows through his hands. Top-notch management, therefore, is crucial to success.

Appreciation of resource values can be considerable. The farmer who rents instead of owning all his land therefore stands to lose if land values do appreciate. On the other hand, he can hedge this loss by acquiring title to land for investment purposes entirely independent of his farm operation.

Ultimately, each farmer must decide for himself whether the possible gains from the alternatives to full ownership outweigh the drawbacks.

This is the time of year when labor problems on a farm become critical. If you already have satisfactory hired employees, do what you can to keep them. In most cases, you will have to pay as much or more to get replacements and spend a considerable amount of time getting the new workers acquainted with the job, your machinery, and your work habits.

At this time of the year the worker is in a good bargaining position, so before he asks you for more wages, approach him with some proposal. This might include more money; but don't overlook such things as upgrading the job, providing some fringe benefits, or an incentive program. If the present worker likes tractor and field work, put him in charge of equipment maintenance and follow through with a title and some responsibility. If he likes cows, let him have some responsibility such as seeing that heat periods are detected and the cows are bred on time. If he responds and does a good job, tell him so and give him a part of the cost savings. Remember, the person you think of as a "hired hand" is really a human being who responds to ego building, a desire for income, and other job satisfactions just as you do.

Another way to deal with the labor problem is to make those who work for you more productive. This is the responsibility of the employer—don't expect the worker to look for jobs to do in his spare time or for ways to make the farm more income. If he does show a lot of initiative, encourage him—it's the sign of a good worker.

Managing labor is keeping the worker in a frame of mind that he wants to work for you rather than someone else. It is keeping him busy at productive work because out of productive work comes higher wages, and with better wages come reliable, capable workers.

How does your dress look from the back? When we take a look at ourselves in the mirror, it's usually a front or side view. Unless we have a three-way mirror or a frank friend, we may think the back looks as good as the front. Usually it does, but check on these commonly overlooked items.

Many of today's styles have a center back seam into which a zipper is inserted. If the fabric is a figured one the fabric design should match, both crosswise and lengthwise, if at all possible. Matching requires extra thought and planning when you cut out the garment, but the appearance will be more pleasing if the design appears to be the same across the body. The design also should be matched at the center front seam. Depending on the style of the dress and the amount of the fabric, you probably can match the design at other seam lines.

Designs with a large repeat will usually require extra yardage, but with a wide fabric both the front and back pieces of the pattern can be placed on the same crosswise line for easy matching.

If you cannot match designs at all seams, strive for matched areas on the front and back. Side seams are less noticeable if the design is not lined up perfectly.

How does the back zipper appear? If you have used an invisible type zipper, be sure it is invisible. If the fit of the garment is snug, the fabric tends to pull away from a zipper to expose the tape. If the color of the tape is not a perfect match, a line of color is exposed down the back. It's better to use a conventional zipper and a lapped placket application if the color isn't exactly right. Farm Fuel Shortage Procedure Established

Delaware farmers who are having difficulties getting enough fuel to operate their equipment may be able to get relief. A voluntary fuel sharing and priority user program has been established by government agencies to deal with the current fuel crisis. Agricultural producers have been placed on top of the priority list due to their need to get crops planted, cultivated and harvested.

Farmers who experience problems getting needed fuel are being asked to report this to their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

ASCS is an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture which has been monitoring the fuel supply situation for several months through 2800 county ASCS offices. A weekly summary is being prepared and shortages that have not been resolved reported to the Department of Interior's Office of Oil and Gas. This office has the authority to assign distributors to serve priority customers.

Locally, William H. Brady, executive director of the Delaware ASCS, reports no problems getting the shortages that have been reported straightened out. Reports from the three county offices are channeled to him. He can investigate shortages and try to work out local solutions. If this is not possible, he forwards the information to Washington for USDA action. Brady says that where a legitimate shortage existed on a farm, he has experienced no problem getting fuel for that producer.

Techniques, too, because any imperfections show up just as readily in the back as in the front. If you have difficulty with the final stitching of the zipper, stitch by hand instead of machine. It's much easier to control the fabric and achieve a smooth placket with hand stitching.

The back of the neckline is extremely visible if someone is seated behind you. Are neckline fasteners neat and invisible? Does the collar come together exactly at center back? Are facings tucked neatly to the underside and not exposed on the surface?

How is the fit in back? If the skirt is snug at the hip line, the fabric will "ride up" with unsightly wrinkles above the hip line and too short a hem line. The skirt should hang evenly all around the body.

Is the back skirt length becoming? Usually we only see the front length. The back of the knee may not be the most attractive part of the leg. How much is showing?

If the dress has a waistline seam, it should hit your natural waistline. We have a tendency to place the belt at the natural waistline, and the seam may show above or below the belt if the fit is not accurate.

As you examine your clothing, I hope you can say that your hindsight is as good as your foresight.

Strawberries Need Care After Fruit Is Harvested

Don't neglect your strawberry plants after the fruit is gone. It may cause a poorer harvest next year if you do, says David Tatnall, extension garden specialist at the University of Delaware.

Strawberry beds should be renovated as soon as possible after the final picking. Start by thinning out the established plants so that newly formed daughter plants can root and grow under uncrowded conditions.

Leave a row of plants about one foot wide by hoeing or plowing away from each side of the bed row toward the center lane. The soil should then be pushed back toward the row and raked smooth to produce an even surface.

Weed and remove weak and diseased plants, leaving about four healthy plants per foot. Frequent weeding is best to keep the bed in shape, because the shallow root system of strawberry plants may be disturbed by pulling larger, well-established weeds.

Runners and daughter plants develop from strawberries at this time of year, so it's important that these young plants be properly placed to avoid overcrowding and reduction of next year's yield. As runners form, daughter plants should be spaced about six to eight inches apart to reduce competition for moisture, nutrients and light.

While renovating your strawberry beds, add a complete fertilizer such as 5-10-10 at the rate of 3/4 pound per 25 feet of row. Apply this to the sides of the row and be careful not to get fertilizer on the leaves, since this may cause burning.

During prolonged dry periods strawberries tend to wilt, especially on light sandy soils. They need about one inch of water per week for adequate growth.

If flower buds appear on plants set out this spring, pinch them off as soon as they form so runners are more easily produced. It is essential that daughter plants be established early since flower buds for next year's crop are initiated in August. Daughter plants that are produced late in summer may not fruit next season.

Blanching Improves Quality Of Frozen Vegetables

In the next few weeks many vegetables from the garden will be ready for harvesting. If you are planning to freeze them, remember that you can improve their quality by blanching them first, says Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware.

The enzymes which make vegetables mature can remain active even after the vegetable is frozen. If they do, the vegetables will become tough, woody and unappetizing. Blanching destroys these enzymes and so halts the aging process.

Blanching should not be confused with cooking. To blanch, bring the water to the boil. Place the prepared vegetables in a wire basket and lower them into the boiling water. Cover and start timing immediately. Do not wait for the water to return to a boil before you start timing.

As soon as the heating time is up, remove the vegetables from the water and cool quickly in cold, icy water. It takes about as long to chill the vegetables as it does to blanch them.

After the vegetables have cooled, drain and package them, leaving the approximate head space, then seal and freeze. The vegetables should be as good next spring as they are now, Miss Krackhardt says.

Mushroom Flies Back Again

Many homes in northern Delaware are being invaded by mushroom flies again this year. The tiny flies breed by the millions in mushroom soil and mushroom houses, according to John McDaniel, extension agricultural chemist specialist at the University of Delaware.

Mushroom flies are no bigger than the head of a pin so they come right through ordinary screens, he says. And they can become so thick it's hard to cook or even read a newspaper.

Fortunately, they don't carry any disease and they don't bite. About the only control for homeowners faced with mushroom flies are vapona insecticide strips hung at the rate of one per 1,000 cubic feet of space. Painting screens with Cygon or diazinon may also help, McDaniel adds.

These flies breed by the millions in mushroom houses in the mushroom soil. While the mushrooms are growing, growers control the flies with pesticides and good management practices. Also flies must be controlled during harvest for a good crop.

Most growers also steam mushroom soil immediately after harvest and move the soil out of the house to dry. This also serves to control flies.

However, flies do continue to breed in those houses in which growers don't steam the soil, where the houses stand idle. After a while, swarms leave the mushroom houses and invade homes and offices.

In general, these flies can't breed in large numbers outside mushroom soil, although they can breed in compost piles, grass clippings, mulches and other decaying vegetation.

For some unknown reason, the flies seem to seek out individual buildings, McDaniel says. One or two houses on a block may be singled out for invasion while others are left alone.

And, people with a fly problem may be miles from the nearest mushroom house. Evidently, these insects are capable of flying great distances, or someone nearby may be using large

Agricultural College Offers Garden Tours

New Castle homeowners have an excellent opportunity close at hand to pick up some new landscaping ideas for their gardens. The place to visit is the new Emily Clark Garden in front of Agricultural Hall at the University of Delaware. The garden is a gift of Mrs. Emily Deffenback and is used in the university's program in ornamental horticulture.

The Clark garden is really a miniature arboretum, explains Charles W. Dunham, professor of plant science at the university. Dunham was one of the planners of the garden, along with Professor Richard W. Lighty, co-ordinator of the Longwood program at the university. They have managed to assemble a fine display of flowering shrubs and trees, small evergreens, perennial flowers, ground covers and rock garden plants.

Special plant collections in the Clark Garden include heathers, dwarf conifers, hollies, azaleas and rhododendrons. These collections stress the newer and better varieties of each plant group, says Dunham. This means home gardeners can see many plants just beginning to make their way into the commercial nursery collections. A number of U.S. Department of Agriculture Plant Introduction releases are included in the plantings.

To make it easy for visitors to know what they are looking at, a series of self-guiding tours are being arranged. These will be changed every two weeks as various features in the garden reach their peaks.

The tours will also include a visit to another garden complex at the rear of Agricultural Hall. This is the Detjen Gardens, which include a rose garden and plantings of new varieties of trees and shrubs. A new feature of the Detjen Gardens is a group of four model patio gardens.

amounts of mushroom soil in the yard or garden.

Homeowners may find useful ideas here for landscaping outdoor living areas with plantings suited to the Delaware climate.

Free self-guiding tours of both the Clark and Detjen Gardens are available any time from June 1 to November 1. Guide sheets are available in the lobby of Agricultural Hall.

Special garden groups that would like conducted tours of these gardens on weekdays or evenings should contact the department of plant science at the University of Delaware (738-2531). Two weeks in advance notice is requested, and groups should be of not less than 10 people or not more than 35.

Ticks Active In Delaware

Ticks are a problem every summer, but they may be worse than usual in Delaware this year. The mild winter and spring allowed more ticks than usual to survive and breed, says Frank Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

There are two kinds of ticks common in Delaware, the brown dog tick and the American dog tick. The American dog tick is brown with a white shield on its back. It feeds on mice during its early life cycle and then transfers to dogs or people during its adult stage. The brown dog tick is uniformly brown and feeds only on dogs.

As a result, brown dog ticks are most often found in kennels and in homes with dogs. American dog ticks are most often found in underbrush, tall grasses and weed patches.

You usually can't feel ticks either crawling or feeding, so it's a good idea to check yourself and your clothing carefully after you have been outdoors. You should also check your pets frequently paying particular attention to the neck, ears and the area between the toes. Ticks can transmit diseases,

Delaware 4-H Members To Attend West Virginia Conference

Two Delaware 4-H members have been selected to participate in the annual West Virginia Older 4-H Members' Conference June 25 - 30 at Jackson's Mill, W. Va. They are Ned Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Williams, 175 Limestone Road, Hockessin, and Lu Wanna Schutz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Schultz, 719 Harmony Road, Newark.

Williams has been a member of the Hill 'n Dale 4-H club for seven years. His current projects are leadership and automotive.

Miss Schutz is a member of the Meadow Larks 4-H club. She has been active in 4-H for six years. Her current projects are leadership, breads and health.

The trip to West Virginia is part of a two-state exchange designed to broaden membership understanding of 4-H goals and programs. During the conference the delegates will participate in discussion groups, music and recreation leadership training courses and creative workshops.

particularly Rocky Mountain spotted fever, tick fever and tularemia. So, if you find one on yourself or your pet, it should be removed immediately. Grasp the tick with a pair of tweezers and pull with a slow steady pressure. It should come off easily. To prevent infection, treat the wound with an antiseptic.

Several insecticides can be used to protect pets. Be sure to treat the animal's bed, too.

Outdoors, ticks can be controlled by mowing the tall grasses and weeds where they live. Chemical treatments are also effective.

A fact sheet on ticks is available from the university's cooperative extension service by writing Mailing Room, Agricultural Hall, University of Delaware, Newark, De. 19711.

New Nature Programs In State Parks

What's the sense? A personalized approach to environmental awareness.

To enhance the visitor's enjoyment of park experiences, Delaware State Parks are providing opportunities to recognize a great variety of sensory clues can greatly increase one's enjoyment of the out-of-doors, possibly making him a better pollution detective as well.

Nature center programs include demonstrations, exhibits, and slide shows correlated to "show-me tours" in the State Parks.

The expanded naturalist programs got underway June 16 at Brandywine Creek, Lums Pond, and Cape Henlopen State Parks.

The sensation of touch is explored in the park program by using some of the techniques familiar to blind or poorly sighted persons. Sighted persons are given an opportunity to explore by touch alone, using collections of natural specimens including bark, rocks, moss, leaves, and stems.

Hearing is sharpened in games such as "sound scouting". To play, everyone sits down, shuts their eyes, and their mouths, opens their ears, and raises a finger each time a new sound is heard. The sounds need not be identified on the first round. Skill at recognition increases each time the game is played. Bird songs, hooting of owls, calls of frogs and toads, and other wild sounds from the Delaware marshes are played from recordings.

Smell provides many surprises in the park program. Odors of various pleasant, and a few questionable natural materials are uncorked momentarily. A few man-made, industry derived odors are also sampled.

Even taste is tested as mints and other less familiar natural flavors are sampled. Many persons are surprised to find that their sense of taste is often overpowered by the odor of a substance. Audiences are warned against possible dangerous plants.

Multisensory perception is the way park naturalists describe their environmental awareness program. They believe that skill in recognizing a great variety of sensory clues can greatly increase one's enjoyment of the out-of-doors, possibly making him a better pollution detective as well.

4-H Members to Compete In Delaware Electric Day

Delaware 4-H members will compete in both cooking and lampmaking contests at the annual Delaware Electric Day at the Delaware State Fairgrounds July 11 in Harrington.

The Reddy's Food contest and lamp contest are sponsored by Delmarva Power, the Delmarva Electric Co-operative and the Delaware co-operative extension service. Participants in both contests are between the ages of 9 and 19.

The Reddy's Food contest is divided into four cooking areas: bread, desserts, main dishes and small appliances. Each area has three age divisions, senior for members 14 and older, junior for es new or continued employment for 33 persons.

The loans were approved under the SBA's Financial Assistance Program, and for information on other SBA programs, write SBA, Market Tower Building, Room 818, 901 Market Street, Wilmington, Delaware, 19801, or call 302-658-6911, extensions 518/519.

11-13 year olds, and petite for ages 9-10.

Contestants in the state contest have already been named winners in county contests. They are judged on the adequacy of their menu, appearance of their table setting and the creativity and quality of the food they prepare. The program strives to create interest in improving food standards and stresses the importance of adequate nutrition. Winners will receive U.S. Savings Bonds.

Lamp kits for the lamp contest were provided by the three groups sponsoring the contest, with 4-H members contributing part of the cost of the kits. The kits contain the electrical portions of the lamp and the shade. Bases are made by the contestants and are divided into several categories including ceramic bases and bases containing growing plants.

The lamps are judged by the quality of the workmanship, correct wiring and the overall aesthetic value of the finished lamp. Winners will receive ribbons and cash awards.

You're going to like the change!!

At your New Milford Acme, you're going to notice a lot of little things that make a big difference to shoppers...the things that bring them back week after week. Little things, like our Super friendly Service...Price Per unit pricing...freshness dating and of course, our Super Saving Prices in aisle after well-stocked aisle! You may not notice the price difference on individual items, but one thing is for sure...You'll like the change you'll get back at the Cash register! You're going to like it here at Acme!

Unit Pricing

Unit Pricing is a system of computer printed shelf pricing tags which not only tell you the price of the individual item, but also the price of that item per unit measure! What this means is that, at a glance, you can determine which brand and size gives you the most value for your money. Now you can compare for yourself and determine which size and brand is best suited to your individual needs!
