Beginning Teachers In Delaware Outran Demand Last Fall

A study by the State Department of Public Instruction shows that the supply of beginning teachers in Delaware out-ran the demand last fall by more than two to one.

Dr. Robert Boozer, supervisor of research and systems analyst at the department, reported that 678 persons qualified for initial teaching certificates at the University of Delaware and Delaware State College in 1972, but only 320 positions for beginning teachers were open in the state's public schools.

Twenty-seven teaching places were open last fall for beginning industrial arts teachers or teachers of handicapped secondary students, but neither the university nor Delaware State graduated teachers in those fields.

Graduates outnumbered the vacancies in all other teaching fields. The excess was at least three to one in health and physical education, social science, home economics, distributive education, business education, and foreign languages.

First-year elementary teachers held only one job in twenty in the state in 1966, but, as enrollment grew, that figure rose to 12 per cent in 1970. In the past two years, however, it dropped to 4.2 per cent.

Experienced teachers, meanwhile, are changing positions less often, the study reveals.

In 1970, three out of four elementary teachers returned to their previous year's position. But in 1972, nine out of ten elementary teachers returned to the same post.

The number of teachers moving into the state has fallen sharply. In 1966, 7.8 per cent of elementary teachers in Delaware had taught outside the state in the previous year. In 1972, that figure dropped to 1.8 per cent.

The percentage of education graduates from the university or Delaware State who do not teach in their first year out of college has nearly doubled, rising from 34 per cent in 1968 to 59 per cent last year.

Public school enrollment in Delaware decreased last September for the first time since 1943, as it fell to 134,327, one-half of one per cent below the 1971 enrollment. But more and more teachers continue to graduate from the state colleges.

This year, some 842 new teachers are expected to graduate in Delaware, but jobs for them may be even scarcer than last year.

Dr. Boozer compiled the 21-page report from information supplied by the university, Delaware State, and school districts and was assisted by Mrs. Anne Jones, statistician.

Twentieth Welch Reunion

The twentieth annual reunion of Jacob and Ann Killen Welch descendants was held June 24, at Wheeler's Park. There were 98 family and visitors present.

The gifts were presented as follows: The youngest went to Tina Welch, age seven weeks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Welch. The oldest went to Mrs. Lelia Hopkins, age 78. The ones coming the longest distance were Mr. and Mrs. Tony Viggiani and son, John, from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. The one with the largest family went to Mr. and Mrs. Louis Welch, Sr., with six children.

We then elected a new president, Albert Price; and a new vice president, Louis Welch, Jr.

Correction

The community of Andrewville extends its sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Lester Collison and family and to Miss Patty Collison on the death of James Collison. The Journal regrets the error in last week's paper.

Andrewville Ruritan Presents Scholarships

BY: Renee Outten

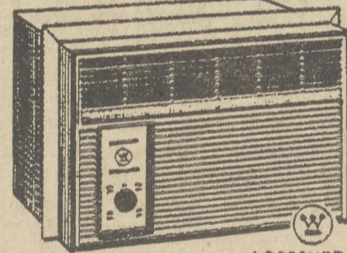

The Andrewville Ruritan Club presented three Harrington Sunshine 4-H Club members with camp scholarships. The members receiving the scholarships were Donna Shultie, Barbara Miller, and Karen Butler. The members were selected from achievement reports they presented to the Ruritan Club.

Two of our members received $5 from the club; they were Becky McKnatt and Renee Outten.

Our Club president, Martin Miller gave a short talk about 4-H camp.

We wish to thank the Ruritan Club for its gifts.

MR. AND MRS. RUSSELL H. JACK

Deborah H. Moore Weds Russell H. Jack

Deborah L. Moore and Russell H. Jack were married May 19, at 7:00 in the evening in a candle light ceremony at People's Church of Dover. The Reverend Edwin J. Horney officiated. A reception at the Capital Grange followed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Moore of Dover, the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jack of Harrington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of embroidered eyelet organza with an empire bodice, mandarin neckline and bishop sleeves. The bodice, neckline and sleeves were trimmed in pink satin ribbon.

Her matching cloche held a shoulder length silk illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and lily of the valley with pink streamers.

Mrs. Connie M. Starkey of Felton was matron of honor for her sister and Mrs. Josephine M. Hufnal was an honor attendant for her sister. Their pink crepe princess line gowns featured a lace ruffle around the neck, long sleeves with a lace ruffle around the wrist and lace across the bodice.

Their A-line dresses also featured a back sash. They wore pink cloche headpieces with pearls scattered across the top and matching veils. They each carried a lighted candle surrounded by pastel colored daisies and miniature carnations.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Pat Garey and Mrs. Michele J. Reed both of Harrington, sisters of the groom, Mrs. Yvonne G. Whitham of Dover, and Mrs. Janet L. Cabbage of Clayton. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Pamela J. More of Dover, niece of the bride. Their dresses were the same style as the matron of honor's, except in pastel shades of lavender, green, apricot, yellow and blue. They also carried lighted candles the color of each of their dresses surrounded by flowers.

Michele R. Hufnal of Dover, and Teresa L. Starkey of Felton, nieces of the bride, were flower girls. Their white eyelet dresses were designed by the bride and featured a stand up collar, puff sleeves and full skirt with a back. The collar, bodice and sleeves were trimmed in pink satin ribbon. They each carried a basket of assorted colored daisies and miniature carnations with pink streamers.

C. Richard Black, of Milford, was the best man. Ushers were Neal Kimmy, Gary Harris and Dennis Simpson, all of Harrington, Kenny Moore, of Dover, brother of the bride and Mike Wamsley of Newark. LeRoy Garey of Harrington, was the junior usher for his uncle.

The bride's mother was attired in a pink gown and the bridegroom's mother wore an aqua gown. Both wore corsages of sweetheart roses.

The bride, a 1968 graduate of Dover High School, is employed as a secretary at the law firm of Schmittenger & Rodriguez in Dover. Her husband is a 1965 graduate of Harrington High School and a veteran of the Army. He graduated in 1971 from Goldey Beacom Junior College.

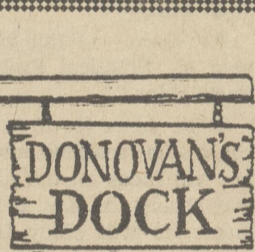

After a honeymoon to Nassau, in the Bahamas, the couple will reside in Camden.

Too hot to sew? Maybe this is the time to give your sewing machine a well deserved rest before you get caught up in the rush of making back-to-school clothes and your own fall wardrobe.

Before you close up the machine, give it a little tender, loving care. It will perform that much better when you're ready to sew again. Periodic cleaning and oiling are necessary if you expect top performance.

Your sewing machine instruction book should be your guide for caring for your particular model. In most machines lint and dust must be removed periodically from beneath the throat and face plates. This is done by removing these covering plates and brushing with a small stiff brush. A brush for this purpose is often included in the box of sewing machine accessories.

Unless your instruction book tells you otherwise, oil the machine after about eight to ten hours of actual use. Oil occasionally, whether the machine is used or not, to keep the oil from drying out and becoming gummy.

Insert a drop of oil into the oil holes and wherever one surface rubs against or turns with another. Run the machine for awhile without thread so that the oil is distributed throughout the moving parts.

When the oiling is completed, wipe away any excess. Excess oil can collect the dust, and if it's on the needle or shuttle, it can cause skipped stitches. When you put the machine away, place a small piece of cloth under the presser foot to absorb any excess oil.

Be very particular about the oil you use. It is best to use the oil suggested by your sewing machine company. Use only a good quality sewing machine oil. General household oil, even though the label states it can be used for sewing machines, can literally gum up the works. When this happens, a complete cleaning with a grease solvent may be necessary.

Many machine troubles clear up with a good cleaning and oiling. You may need to readjust tensions after oiling.

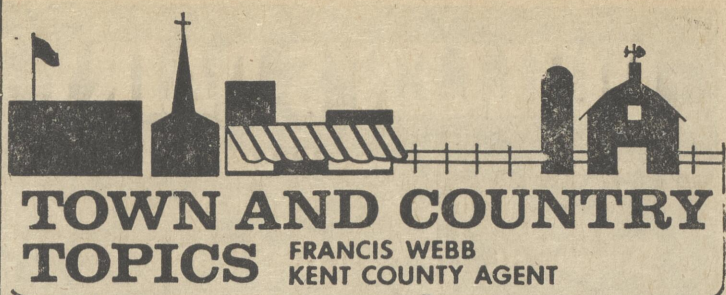

Each machine is different, but they all respond to good care. Study your instruction book and keep it in a place where you can find it readily and follow suggestions for your model.

The sewing machine is an expensive piece of equipment. Treat it with care and it will work for you for many years.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne W. Holberton

Everyone is concerned about food prices and so they should be. But there are so many factors that are acting to force food prices upward. Have you ever thought these points: the labor unrest in agriculture; higher wages in farm production and agriculture product processing and marketing systems; greater cost involved in record keeping and form-filling to comply with the ever increasing regulatory activities imposed on the farmer as well as the total industry and more recently and very important from a long run view point, the regulations that are being placed on farm production and food marketing firms to combat pollution in its various forms and to protect the consumer. All of these things added to the weather and the more obvious reasons have

TOWN AND COUNTRY TOPICS
FRANCIS WEBB
KENT COUNTY AGENT

With the coming on of hot weather throughout the summer, many farmers should be thinking of Johnsongrass control again. This is the season when Johnsongrass grows very rapidly and if not controlled in the immature stages is almost impossible to control.

Of course, Johnsongrass is one of those hard to control weeds anyway, so let's not become relaxed because it will get away from you. I can also assure you that the Johnsongrass Control Co-ordinator with the State Department of Agriculture will be reminding you about the requirements to control Johnsongrass.

There are several programs which can be used to control this pest. The most intensive control program for heavily infested areas is clean tillage. The guidelines generally suggested with a 30 per cent or pushed food prices up and will continue to do so.

Meat prices have been under heavy consumer criticism in the past year -- still are. It is in this industry that new regulations attempting to reduce water, air and noise pollution will certainly cause greater increases in the production cost which will of course be passed on to the consumer. This is as it should be.

A similar situation is faced by food processing firms also.

Now look at the consumer protectionists, they are applying quite a lot of pressure on processors and distributors to provide full information concerning each product they sell. All of this results in higher costs of operation which of course will be passed on to the consumer in higher prices for the food they buy.

Therefore, even though many food prices are under control there is no prospect that they will not increase even more. In fact, with the present regulation I would venture to say prices will climb higher. Farmers and processors can not operate without some profit. At times I've wondered how farmers have operated for so long on such small profit. No big industry could or would.

All of us should seriously consider if the benefits that can reasonably be expected from all these regulations on agriculture are sufficient to offset the higher food prices that we are sure to get as a result of what we have demanded.

Vegetarian Diets Can Be Nutritious

Have you ever considered trying a vegetarian diet? Lots of people are, but others are afraid they won't get adequate nutrition if they don't eat meat. It can be done, says Miss Marguerite Krackhardt, extension nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware, but it helps to know about nutrient values and the inter-relationships of nutrients in foods.

Pure vegetarian diets consist of fruits, vegetables, legumes, cereals, and nuts. Lacto-ovo-vegetarian diets make use of those foods plus eggs and milk.

Of the two, the lacto-ovo-vegetarian diets is closer to the typical diet of households in the United States. It makes use of legumes like dried beans, peas, carried by these insects.

Ticks should be removed by grasping with a pair of tweezers and pulling with a slow steady pressure. Generally, if the tick is fastened securely it is best to apply a drop of antiseptic such as iodine or microchrome on the tick. Many times this will cause the insect to release. Be sure to treat the area once the insect is removed.

To protect your pets and prevent the invasion of ticks and fleas in your home, use one of the insecticide materials sold for pets. A commonly available insecticide called Sevin in the 5 per cent formula is a quick and effective control material for your pets. It can be used on dogs and cats with the exception of small kittens. Apply one to three tablespoons of dust (depending on the size of the animal) and thoroughly rub into your pet, making sure a thorough coverage is made of the head, ears, and neck area. This is a very effective control measure for fleas, which do not generally carry diseases that are harmful to humans, but can be a very unwelcome beast if infested in your home.

For more information on ticks and fleas, give us a call.

Throughout the summer, many homeowners who have cats and dogs for pets usually have trouble with ticks and fleas. According to our university entomologists, they believe that tick infestation will be greater this year than in previous years because of the mild winter conditions. Due to this mild winter weather, more ticks survived.

There are two kinds of ticks that are common here in Delaware. The brown dog tick and the American dog tick. We are bothered in the home by both if small pets are allowed to be in and out. It is the American dog tick that we sometimes find on our person if we have been walking outside, especially near a wooded area. The brown dog tick feeds only on dogs.

Ticks are potential carriers of some diseases; therefore, should be checked for regularly if you or your children are outdoors much. Rocky Mountain spotted fever; tick paralysis, and tularemia are the common diseases and lentils, some meat analogs, cereals, nuts, eggs and a liberal use of milk and milk products.

It is not difficult to get enough high quality protein from this type of diet. Milk, milk products and eggs supply high quality protein. Grain products, fruit and vegetables supply a lower quality protein, but when they are eaten with even small amounts of milk and eggs, the total level is satisfactory.

It can be more difficult to get adequate nutrition from a pure vegetarian diet. Calories are low in most plant foods, so large quantities of food must be eaten to meet caloric needs. If the calorie level isn't sufficient, the body will use protein as a source of energy and it won't be available to fill its normal functions of growth and repair.

In addition, there is no known source of vitamin B12 in plants. Nutritionists aren't sure what effect a deficiency has on the body, but a vitamin B12 supplement is a good idea for anyone on a pure vegetarian diet.

Understanding nutrients is especially important in a pure vegetarian diet. It's important, for example, to know that green leafy vegetables are a good source of calcium and riboflavin. Nutrients which would ordinarily be supplied by milk are available in fortified soybean milk.

As with any type of diet, it is essential to be reasonable about the foods you eat. Limit your intake of "empty" calories in snacks and be sure you are getting enough of everything your body needs to function properly.

Sunshine 4-H Club News

By: Renee Outten

The June meeting of the Sunshine 4-H Club was called to order by our president, Martin Miller. Following the flag salute and 4-H pledge the club recited the Lord's Prayer and a poem was read by Becky Collins.

Beth Jarrell and Karen Butler led the group in a song entitled: "Three Little Angels." Rhonda Messick gave a safety report concerning ladder safety. Many helpful suggestions were given.

Barbara Miller and Rhonda Messick passed out First Aid Manuals to our members. They were donated by George Von-Goerres.

We were pleased by having three visitors attend our meeting, they were Shelly Barthlow, Abby Betts and Kelly Ryan. Gene Gallo gave a report on the Junior Broiler Contest, Mike Everline was the grand champion of Delaware.

Donna Shultie gave a report on the Bake our club held. We made $135.48. We wish to thank everyone for their co-operation.

We were reminded that add fair entries must be mailed by July 1st.

Our club will have its annual 4-H tour July 9. It will be to Lewes.

Susy Buckley gave a demonstration on her feeder lamb.

Our meeting was adjourned at 9 p.m. and refreshments were served by Becky Collins, Donna Shultie and Mike Everline.

Our hearing evaluation test day was a real success and we wish to thank all who participated.

Farmers Gearing Up For Big Crop Year

It looks like farmers will plant a record number of corn and soybean acres this year, according to W.T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware.

He says exactly how much of each crop will be produced will not be known for a while but officials are predicting at least a six billion bushel corn crop. This should be enough corn to satisfy domestic needs, provide the same amount of corn to be exported as last year, and leave about a billion bushels of grain in reserve.

Record prices are having a substantial impact on soybean plantings. McAllister says it's impossible to estimate the size of this year's crop but it should be at least 20 percent larger than 1972 and it could be much larger. There has been a big rush to double crop soybeans following wheat, barley, peas and early hay crops. But even with a potentially large crop, most economists feel soybean prices at harvesttime will settle in the $4 per bushel range.

Large export sales of wheat to countries that suffered from poor wheat seasons last year reduced our historically high wheat stocks to what some thought was an unsafe level. However, a wheat crop of 1.8 billion bushels--some 12 to 16 per cent above last year--is now being harvested. Export sales look promising but they may not meet last year's level. Also, the wheat crop in other countries looks larger. Thus, the market prices that sent wheat prices skyrocketing just after harvest last year won't be as strong this year, but prices still should be better than average.

McAllister says that this year's oat crop is also slightly larger than in 1972 and the barley crop is 10 per cent larger. A cool, wet spring has led to lush pastures and heavy hay crops for livestock producers.

McAllister adds that with good growing conditions during the summer, farmers could harvest the greatest total output of feed and food grains in history. And with the government practically out of the grain storage business, mill and farm stocks down, and promises of big foreign market sales again, it appears that all of this output can be sold at good prices for farmers.
