Board Reaffirms New Rules For Non-public Transportation

The Board reviewed its April, 1973, decision to modify the rules for transportation of non-public students. Dr. Madden said the regulations adopted in April, to take effect in September, 1973, were based on the 1967 law that first permitted for non-public transportation and on Attorney General's opinions of 1970 and this year, all of which allow non-public students to be transported within a public school district according to the same regulations that apply to public students.

This year's regulations were not altogether uniform for public that apply to public students. However, for example, transportation or reimbursement has been provided for some non-public students who lived within the established walking distance from the public school for their area. The revisions adopted in April would correct this and make the regulations uniform, but would disqualify a few non-public students who are now being transported or reimbursed. Until the non-public schools register their pupils for next year, it is impossible to tell how many children are affected, but it is expected to be only a small fraction.

The Board then voted unanimously to reaffirm the revised regulations it adopted in April. By them, a non-public student qualifies for bus service if he attends a school within his resident public school district and if he lives beyond the walking distance from the school he attends -- one mile for K-6 and two miles for Grades 7-12. If he attends school outside his resident public school district, he qualifies for an allowance if he lives beyond the walking distance both from the school he attends and from the public school that serves his area. The allowance is based on the average transportation cost of his resident public school district.

Distance limitations do not apply to handicapped children and public bus rates apply where service is available. A child who attends school outside his resident district can be given or reimbursed for transportation to the public school he qualifies for or to the district line, as long as both points are beyond the walking distance from his home.

Co-ed Competitions Recommended In Six Sports

The Board adopted a set of recommendations approved by the DSSAA and endorsed by the State Superintendent's Advisory Council. By them, the Board encourages districts to give all students an opportunity to play in interscholastic sports, to consider providing funds so that girls can have opportunities that compare to boys' and to expand intramurals for both boys and girls. When a school has both boys' and girls' teams in a sport, it is recommended that they be separated by sex. But when both teams are not organized, both boys and girls should be allowed to try out for the same team in cross-country, golf, gymnastics, swimming, tennis, track, and winter track. Co-ed competitions in these individual, non-contact sports will be permitted for one year on an emergency basis, with advance approval by DSSAA. When competition is mixed, boys' rules will apply.

Transfer Students Allowed To Compete
The Board approved several changes in the constitution and bylaws of the Delaware Secondary School Athletic Association as proposed at the group's May 24th annual meeting. By one change, valid for one year, transfer students may qualify for interscholastic events without a waiting period, as long as there is no evidence that they were unduly influenced to change schools.

Brown's Branch Tax Ditch Still In The Making

The beginning of Brown's Branch tax ditch is a slow and arduous proceeding, enmeshed with state and federal regulations. However, according to U.S. Soil Conservationist Fred Mott, progress is being made.

Mott explained last Thursday the project measure plan was over at Washington being reviewed. He hoped to get it back shortly.

If it doesn't have numerous corrections, he pointed out, it will be ready for the tax ditch officers to sign.

The next step, Mott continued, is to budget federal funds and then let the contract.

The tax ditch will drain the western and northern portions of Harrington and contiguous areas, outside the city, including some land along Brown's Branch to the east.

Police reported the Swiggett car, which they said was speeding, struck two other automobiles, then flipped over and hit a utility pole.

William Swiggett and the three children were treated at Kent General for minor injuries and released.

HUD Housing Development Plans Make Progress

A low-income housing development, most of which is outside the northwestern city limits, should get underway in the fall, Robert S. Moyer, director of the state Division of Housing, told the journal last Tuesday.

The development will comprise 50 houses and a community house on a 10-acre tract on County Road 275. The land is owned by Townsend Masten.

The project is one of five in the county to be sponsored by the Housing and Urban Development of the federal government with the Kent County Levy Court as supervisor.

Moyer told the Journal last Thursday a development advisory committee of the Kent County Regional Planning Commission reviewed site plans Tues., June 26, and approved it subject to conditions, and voted to submit to the KCRP Tues., July 3.

The architects have completed drawings of the development which are under review by the Division of Housing and HUD. HUD site engineers were here last week.

The City of Harrington, at a Council meeting, offered to extend sewer and water to the project if HUD paid the cost.

Moyer believed HUD would first ascertain the cost of sewer and water facilities on the site. He then believed it might check these against the cost of hooking to the municipal lines.

Medicare Medical Insurance Premiums Rolled Back

The monthly premium for Medicare medical insurance scheduled to be increased in July, has been rolled back in keeping with President Nixon's 60-day price freeze policy, according to W.J. Bukley, Social Security district manager in Dover. The higher amount will continue to be charged until the premium record for each beneficiary can be corrected. Refunds in full will be made at a later date. This also applies to railroad retirement beneficiaries and Civil Service annuitants who pay premiums for medical insurance under Medicare.

Medicare medical insurance helps pay for doctor bills and many other medical expenses of almost everyone over 65 or over and disabled people under 65 who have been eligible for monthly, social security disability payments for two years or more.

Opening Night Demolition Derby

The 1973 Delaware State Fair will have a wild opening Friday night, July 20, when George Marshman puts his National Championship Demolition Derby.

The race track in front of the grandstand will be the scene of an almost unbelievable exhibition of motoring madness, beginning at 8 p.m. Up to 80 drivers with a killer instinct will seek to destroy all other cars on the speedway and keep his own running. This is a crash "EM" for cash contest with no rules - the last man running is the winner.

There will be four elimination events limited to 25 cars each, and a grand finale made up of the four elimination heat winners and four more that put on the best show or tried the hardest, as determined by the crowd.

The cars used in the destruction derby, as a matter of safety must have all glass removed except the windshield and be equipped with a seat belt, a crash helmet for the driver is compulsory.

The amazing part of the entire event is how these drivers can survive some of the terrific crashes without serious injury. The engineers tell us that a head-on crash at 50 miles per hour has the same impact violence as driving a car off the roof of a ten story building.

If excitement is your dish and you can stand the thrills, don't miss this one. A thousand thrills and a million laughs.

Youth Volunteers Recruited At Delaware State Hospital

Youth aged 15 and older are being recruited to serve as volunteers in a variety of patient activities this summer at the Delaware State Hospital.

Miss Carol A. Wells, the hospital's co-ordinator of volunteer services, says high school students and college age youth who would like to do volunteer work at the hospital will serve as aides in the recreation program, occupational therapy, music therapy or in the swimming program.

"We've had a great deal of success with youthful volunteers in previous summers and we'd like to interest more young people this summer," says Miss Wells. "Since many youth may still be looking for summer jobs and don't know what free time they will have, we will be accepting volunteers until July 6."

Volunteers in the recreation program will help staff the gym and serve as aides on the tennis courts and softball field. They will also take patients for walks, join in bingo games, assist with picnics and other group activities and accompany patients on mini-bus trips to various park areas.

Youth who have skills in knitting and other arts and crafts will be able to serve as volunteers in the occupational therapy program. Volunteers in this program will help distribute craft materials and aid in the supervision of the craft sessions.

In the music therapy program, volunteers will assist staff with music lessons and with the general music program. Volunteers in this program will be required to have some musical background.

USDA To Aid Resource Conservation

The first state resource conservation and development project, in Delaware, now is eligible for accelerated financial and technical aid from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Soil Conservation Service Administrator Kenneth E. Grant announced today.

The 1,265,920-acre project, with headquarters in Dover, covers all three of Delaware's counties: New Castle, Kent and Sussex.

More than 150 proposed project measures have been developed by local people. They include plans to:

- Assist in the preservation of prime agricultural lands;
 - Improve community facilities;
 - Encourage industrial development;
 - Improve drainage and control flooding;
 - Develop public recreational facilities;
 - Improve fish and wildlife habitat; and
 - Promote better woodland management.
- Sponsors of the First State RC&D are the county government and soil and water conservation districts of Delaware, the Delaware State Planning Office, and the Delaware departments of Community Affairs and Economic Development, Natural Resources and Environmental Control, and Agriculture.
- The soil conservation service has USDA program leadership for the 123 RC&D projects now underway throughout the United States.

Farmers Urged To Help Conserve Fuel Supplies

With a fuel crisis facing the nation, farmers are reminded that they can do a number of things to use fuel more efficiently. Tom Williams, extension agriculture engineer at the University of Delaware, offers these suggestions:

Keep the fuel storage tank painted reflective aluminum and place it in the shade if possible. As much as 3 per cent of the fuel stored above ground in dark colored, unshaded tanks can evaporate. This loss can be reduced to less than 1 per cent if the tank is painted, shaded and equipped with a pressure vent cap.

Tune all engines for peak efficiency. Adjust the carburetor and replace spark plugs, points and condensers. On diesel tractors, have a service man clean the fuel injectors and adjust the fuel injection pump for most efficient power and performance.

Clean or replace air filters. It takes 8,000 to 10,000 gallons of air to burn 1 gallon of gasoline. Plugging air filters act like a choke on gasoline engines and cut power on a diesel.

Watch the exhaust stack on your tractor for excessive black smoke. This is a sign the engine is using excessive fuel.

Operate tractors at 75 per cent or more of their maximum capabilities. Tractors operating at rated engine speeds provide better fuel efficiency at full loads than at light loads. A 45hp tractor will put out 11.2 hp-hours of work for each gallon of gasoline when at a full load of 47hp. If a 100hp tractor were put on the same job, fuel efficiency would drop and only 8.4hp-hours of work would be obtained from each gallon of gasoline.

If possible move large equipment by truck instead of driving it several miles over the highway.

Plan for adequate fuel storage. Recommended gasoline storage capacity is the amount that can be efficiently used in 30 days.

Use clean filters on transfer (nurse) tanks to prevent dirty fuel from entering the engine, causing repairs and needless down time.

Do not let tractors idle for long periods when not in use.

Any cutting tool is only useful when it is kept sharp. A dull tool requires more power to use, does its work more slowly and less accurately. All sharp-edged tools become dull with use, even if used properly and stored carefully. Take the little time needed to sharpen tools, and it will be some a matter of pride. Do not wait until edged tools are dulled before sharpening them, but sharpen lightly once in a while so that they keep their edge.

Roadside Markets Offer Gold Mine Of Flavor

A gold mine of fresh garden fruits and vegetables is available at Delaware roadside markets, according to Roger Ginder, extension crop market specialist at the University of Delaware.

You can get fresh-from-the-garden flavor because roadside markets offer just that, produce only minutes from the field. There's no transportation time from farm to store involved if you buy local produce.

Of course, be sure you are buying local produce. Occasionally, produce is trucked here from other areas and sold at roadside stands. Find a market you believe is reliable and become a regular customer.

In-season vegetables and fruit are the best buy. Sweet corn will be harvested in Delaware starting around the middle of July and lasting throughout the summer until about the second week of September.

Summer squash, cucumbers and cabbage are also good buys at local stands and offer menu variety for many cool summer dishes. Tomatoes are one of the most popular roadside offerings and should be available in large quantities in a few weeks.

The potato harvest will begin in the middle of July. The white round potato is a favorite because it's good for general all-around use.

Blueberries will be at their peak early in July. Some "pick-your-own" blueberry patches will be open in lower Delaware.

A key to satisfactory roadside buying is don't over-buy. Don't buy more than you can use or preserve quickly. Remember, fresh produce spoils much faster than frozen or canned.

It takes more work to get some fresh produce ready for the table than the prepared convenience foods you're used to getting in the store. For in-season produce, preparation time is longer. And sauces and seasonings don't come with fresh produce. If you want them, you'll have to make your own. However, many people prefer fresh vegetables with little additional seasonings.

Since your main reason for shopping at roadside markets is the added flavor of fresh produce, be sure you get it at the peak of ripeness. The best quality is usually field-ripened, but some varieties will continue to ripen if harvested unripe. Smell and feel are good signs of ripeness in fruits. A visual check of most vegetables can predict ripeness even through a shell. A plump, nice color usually means the produce is properly matured.

Shop with the same care as you would in your supermarket. Prime quality produce will naturally be the most expensive. However, for some uses a less expensive quality will be adequate.

For additional information on peak produce seasons locally contact the county agent's office in Newark, Dover or Georgetown.

When you have all the unwanted items out of the way it will be easier to start the next phase of preparing the house for sale. This is the important job of cleaning. Pay particular attention to shiny bathrooms and kitchens and to a clean basement. Prospective buyers look hard at these areas. Make sure the drains are not clogged and wall tiles are spotless. If range or refrigerator is included in the sale it will be carefully inspected, so be sure it is sparkling and odor free.

Once the house is well cleaned, arrange to keep it tidy so it can be shown to prospective buyers on a moment's notice. A few toys on the floor give a homey, lived-in look, but soiled laundry overflowing the hamper or bunched up towels on a towel rack or dirty dishes left in the sink should be avoided. This is the time to practice the old adage about place for everything and everything in its place.

Outside appearance is also important. The cost of a needed paint job is usually worth it, since even slight shabbiness leaves a bad impression. Be sure the grass is cut, hedges and shrubbery trimmed, the tool shed or garage storage neat, and all debris taken away.

Broilers To Be Displayed At Farm & Home Field Day

Delaware's broilers have changed a lot in the last 50 years, and the broiler industry has changed with them. An exhibit of broilers and the equipment used to raise them in 1923 and 1973 will be on display at Farm & Home Field Day August 8 at the University of Delaware's Georgetown substation.

Barred Plymouth Rocks, a breed of chicken which represents the birds raised when the broiler industry started in 1923, are being raised for the event. They are being fed according to nutritional standards popular at that time. The only difference from the way their ancestors were raised 50 years ago is that these birds are receiving vaccinations and oral medication to protect them from diseases which were not common then.

Under these conditions it will take the birds 15 or 16 weeks to reach the desired market weight of four pounds. Each bird will eat about 20 pounds of feed, or five to six pounds of feed for each pound of weight gain.

Since 1923, poultry breeders have used selection and cross-breeding to increase birds' genetic potential for growth. At the same time, poultry nutritionists have improved the source and combination of ingredients in feed so the energy in the diet is more efficiently available to the birds.

Modern broilers eat eight pounds of computer calculated least-cost ration and reach market weight in only eight weeks. This is a feed conversion of two pounds of feed for each pound of weight gain, a two-and-a-half to three-time improvement over the birds of 50 years ago.

In 1923 one man took care of several hundred or at most several thousand birds. Today poultrymen use highly mechanized equipment and facilities, and one man can care for hundreds of thousands of broilers and still have time to conduct other business.

In addition to the poultry exhibit, other features of Field Day will include tours of the experimental plots on the farm, a diagnostic plant clinic, a men's clothing demonstration and a chicken dinner. Field Day activities will begin at 10 a.m. and conclude at 4 p.m.

convenient as possible for prospective buyers to see the property. Avoid being around when a broker brings a client to see the property. If this isn't possible, at least arrange to keep yourself and your children away from the tour of the house.

Before you put the house on the market, it's a good idea to make your own tour of inspection. Be critical. Note what minor repairs are needed, both indoors and out, and get them taken care of promptly. However, before you undertake major repairs, weigh their cost carefully against what you expect to receive as a purchase price.

The next step is to declutter by selling, donating or throwing away everything that will not be moved or is not being offered as part of the sale. If the house still looks cluttered when you've finished, pack some of the things not being used into cartons, label and stash them neatly in a corner of the attic or basement. Cluttered closets and rooms not only make the rooms look smaller but also give the impression of lack of space for household belongings.

When you have all the unwanted items out of the way it will be easier to start the next phase of preparing the house for sale. This is the important job of cleaning. Pay particular attention to shiny bathrooms and kitchens and to a clean basement. Prospective buyers look hard at these areas. Make sure the drains are not clogged and wall tiles are spotless. Soils Laboratory Serves Rural and Urban Residents

Farmers, homeowners and commercial establishments in Delaware had more than 5000 soil samples analyzed the the University of Delaware soils testing laboratory in Newark during 1972, according to Leo J. Cotnoir, associate professor of plant science. Individual fertility recommendations based on these tests helped increase crop yields, improve home lawns and maintain commercial landscapes.

Over 1500 soil samples came from New Castle County. Cotnoir says 900, or more than 55 per cent, of these were for golf courses, lawns and home gardens.

Approximately 2200 soil samples were forwarded to the soils lab from Sussex County, while another 1500 samples came from Kent County. The majority of these soil tests were for farmers who raise corn, soybeans and vegetable crops.

In addition, the soils lab also analyzed more than 5000 soil and plant samples for research projects at the University of Delaware.

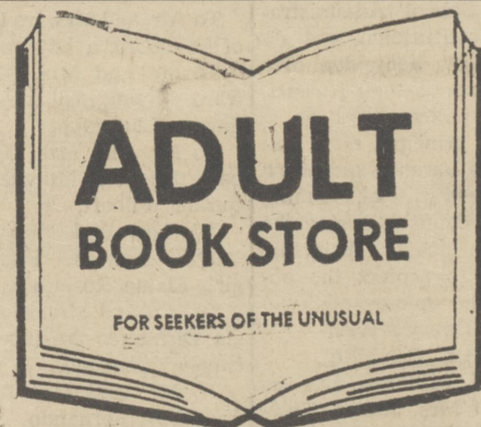

Preparations Can Help Sell House

If you are thinking about selling your house, there are several things you can do to encourage a quick sale at a respectable price. Remember that no house is perfect, says Barbara DeMesse, extension home economist at the University of Delaware, but correcting a few of the defects can make a house more attractive to potential buyers.

Unless you are experienced in showing real estate, it is generally better to turn the actual selling job over to a realtor.

A routine soil test costs one dollar. For that dollar, university technicians determine the soil pH, or degree of acidity, and the phosphorus, potassium and magnesium contents, and then prepare an individual recommendation for fertilization.

The soils laboratory is also equipped to test samples for micro-nutrients, nitrogen, boron and organic matter. However, an additional service fee is charged for these tests.

Will Spartans Be State Champs In Cross-Country?

Will Lake Forest bring a fourth state championship to this area, this autumn? The Spartans have the personnel to do it, if the injuries and bad luck that plagued them in 1972 do not occur again.

The locals finished third behind Archmere and Dover Air with a young team, that included only one junior, Ron Moseley, and no seniors.

The Archers lost three and possibly four of their top five starters. The Airmen return only two of the top seven.

Lake Forest could lose one starter to football, but this possible loss could be offset by Joe Voshell, an excellent prospect, who will be a sophomore in September.

Coach Jim Blades has experience and talent returning in the persons of Ed Thompson, Harry Benson, Dave Moore, Ron Moseley, Vernon Bowers, Terry Pettyjohn, Barry Doherty, Kit

David Richter, 13, Wins 2:21.7 Half In Wilmington

David Richter is showing signs of developing into a stand-out distance runner. The 13-year-old Canterbury carter won the 12-13 half mile run in a new personal best of two minutes, twenty-one and seven-tenths seconds, Wednesday night, on the all-weather oval, at Wilmington's Baynard Stadium.

Richter blazed the first quarter in 65 seconds, opening up a huge lead, then easily held off a late threat from a William Penn runner.

Dover Beats Harrington 4-1

Dover's powerful Big League nine outscored Harrington 4-1 last week. Harrington's record shows two victories and five defeats.

All-Starer Renie Martin and Wesley College's Bob Naftzinger held Harrington to three safeties by Wayne Erne, Tommy Clarke and Gerry Steerman.

Rodney Wyatt and Bob Nored pitched for Harrington, which played on even terms with Dover, except for a temporary let-down in the fourth inning.

Delegates Named For West Virginia Science Camp

William Holstein of Brandywine High School and James Huffman of Mount Pleasant High School will represent Delaware at the National Youth Science Camp June 23 to July 17 at Green Bank, W. Va.

Chosen as outstanding students in physics, the youths will join two high school seniors from each state to attend lectures and seminars on science, study nature, visit scientific facilities in the area, and have lunch in Washington with the U.S. senators from their states.

Mr. Holstein is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Holstein, 303 Hampton Road, Sharpley, Wilmington. He ranks in the top sixth of his class and has done research and study in organic chemistry, nuclear fission, and relativity. He plays on the golf team, draws cartoons for the school newspaper, and works on the stage crew. He has won awards from the Philadelphia Science Council, Delaware Science Fair, and the Catholic Youth Organization art contest. His teachers describe him as an enthusiastic student with much initiative.

Huffman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huffman, 32 Shellburne Drive, Wilmington. He has taken part in the Delaware Science and Humanities Symposium and a summer program sponsored by the National Science Foundation and has won awards in math, science German, and Latin. A senior lifeguard, he is also an Eagle Scout and editor of his school yearbook, and plays first trombone in the symphonic band. A straight-A student, his teachers describe him as having high potential.

Police Guidelines Upheld

The Board received Attorney General's Opinion 35-645, which holds that the procedures outlined in Delaware State Police Guide for School Administrators are constitutional and do not threaten to deny due process to students or their parents. Before the police question a student, the principal must call the student's parents and allow them to attend the questioning or seek legal counsel. During the questioning, the principal should help to protect the pupil's rights, the opinion adds.

Judith Howard Withdraws On Disability

The Board withdrew the appointment of Mrs. Judith Howard as secretary in administrative services effective July 1 because of physical disability.

Full Salary Cut For Administrators On Provisional Certificates

Amending its ruling of December 16, 1971, the Board directed that administrators who work on provisional certificates be paid 90 per cent of their total state scheduled salary, so that the ten per cent reduction required with the substandard license be applied to both the basic teacher salary and the administrative supplement. Two administrators now work in the state on substandard certificates.

State Vocational Plan Adopted

The Board approved the state plan for vocational education including provisions for 1974-78 for forwarding to USOE. George McGorman, executive director of the Vocational Advisory Council, praised the plan as an excellent piece of work and commended DPI staff on it.

May Highlights Corrected

At its May 17 meeting, the Board authorized free distribution of one copy per district of the annual supplement to the School Law Book; for additional copies, districts may reproduce the supplement or purchase them at $10 each.

Also approved as a private business and trade school operating or soliciting clients in Delaware is the Lincoln Technical Institute, owned by Ryder Schools, Inc., and located in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Caroline Bauman was appointed secretary in Instructional Services effective May 21.

It Seems To Me

Pucker power! That's what some sewing machines seem to have. The troublesome puckering with certain fabrics is a worry to any seamstress.

Some fabrics seem to pucker regardless of what you do. A very sheer fabric, or a densely woven fabric, or some specially treated fabrics such as permanent press seem to be our worst offenders.

All woven fabrics will pucker more on the lengthwise grain because there is less fabric stretch in this direction. Knit fabrics will pucker more in the direction of least stretch, usually lengthwise. There will be least pucker on a bias seam, slightly more in the crosswise direction, and most on lengthwise grain.

Knowing that fabrics are apt to pucker most on the lengthwise grain can guide you in pattern choice and in cutting out the garment. A straight skirt in a sheer fabric might be cut on crosswise grain instead of lengthwise to avoid seam pucker. Or a bias skirt might be a better choice if puckered seams will be a problem. You may notice that sometimes pockets on men's shirts are cut on the bias. This helps obtain a better appearance as the pockets are top stitched on the skirt.

In general, try to avoid top stitching. Men's shirts are not as apt to have flat fell seams as they did before permanent press fabrics.

Threads should be compatible with the fabric and with expected performance. Polyester and polyester core threads work well on man-made fabrics. In addition, they are strong and somewhat elastic and don't break under moderate stretch of knit and other stretch fabrics.

Your sewing machine may need some adjustment. Loosen the tension. The tighter the tension the greater the pucker.

Lighten the pressure on the feed dog. Use as light a pressure as will feed the fabric through the machine. We don't have much control over the size of the teeth in the feed, but research shows that a fine toothed feed dog reduces pucker slightly.

Use the throat plate with the smallest needle hole opening. With a larger hole, the needle pushes the fabric down further with the possibility of greater puckering.

The fewer stitches per inch, the less pucker. For medium to lightweight fabrics use about 10 to 12 stitches per inch. In heavier fabrics, about 8 to 10 stitches per inch.

Always test stitch your fabrics before sewing and let it rest awhile until the sewing thread relaxes.

You can also help reduce puckering by pulling the fabric slightly as it feeds under the pressure foot. Place one hand ahead and one behind the presser foot and pull slightly to hold fabric taut as it is sewn.

High speed stitching can contribute to puckering and skipped stitches. Strive for a steady moderate speed. Static electricity can develop with man-made threads and fabrics, especially if you sew rapidly.

The needle is very important. It must be a size in relation to thread size and fabric weight. The needle size should be as small as possible to accommodate the thread. Ball point needles cause less damage to fine fabrics, but any needle should be replaced frequently, since it dulls quickly when sewing on man-made fabrics.

Lint can collect in the needle's eye because of static electricity when working with synthetics. If the needle is not kept clean the eye will be reduced in size and cause skipped stitches and thread abrasion.

Most of this information is from research done by one of the large thread companies for their commercial users. So, even the manufacturers of ready-to-wear have a pucker problem, too.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne W. Holberton

July, the month honoring Julius Caesar, usually is the warmest month of the year in most parts of our vast country. It is during this month that there is a great demand for broilers, since they are the perfect meat for quick meals as well as easy meals on a hot summer day. Production of broilers is also greatest during the summer. Naturally, the supply in the next few weeks should reach a peak. There's a however to this statement, and that is; this year's crop is about 2 or 3 per cent below last year's. Here in this state supplies are expected to be larger, but a great percentage of our broilers are shipped to other states. Regardless broiler prices will remain higher than last year due to continued high red meat prices and primarily due to the ever increasing cost of grain that is needed to feed chickens. Don't be surprised to see broilers selling for 69 to 65 cents a pound.

Meat prices have been shading downward but they are likely to stay at or near ceilings all through the summer. Usually the seasonal declines in the prices of pork, chicken and turkey help to bring down the prices of beef but so far it looks like this will not happen this year. Broiler flock expansion has been disappointing and the price of feed is still going up with little hope of any relief until after harvest Japan is buying a lot of pork, 80 million pounds for March-July delivery. It all adds up to high prices but prices that are more in line with other things that we buy.

It's normal for egg prices to go up during the summer months, and this will certainly

Tax-Free Earnings For Summer Jobs

Rural teenagers working on or off their family farms this summer can earn up to $2050 a year without paying income taxes, according to W.T. McAllister, extension farm management specialist at the University of Delaware.

Provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1969 also allow for tax-free paychecks for those who expect to earn less than $2050. If a teenager expects to earn less than this figure, according to McAllister, he certifies to his employer when he is hired that he expects to have no federal income tax liability for the current year and none for the preceding year. He then must file a W-4E form that certifies that there will be no tax deduction.

If any time after this form is filed the employee does earn the maximum amount, then a regular tax form may be filed and standard deductions will begin, McAllister says.

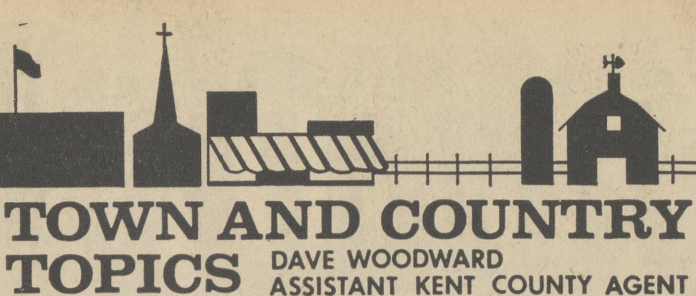

A teenager may have the standard tax reduction made at the time he's hired if he wishes. This money will be returned after he files for a tax refund after January 1.

Although he won't have the federal tax taken from his pay, other deductions such as social security and state tax, will remain the same.

The role of parents has remained the same in spite of some of these changes in tax rules. The child may be claimed as a dependent as long as he is under 19 or a full time student. For the student, the double dependency factor is a benefit since it allows both the student and the parent to claim a deduction.

For parents that act as employers, McAllister suggests that all payments for work be made by check and not in the form of gasoline or a calf. This allows the teenager to learn how to manage money and makes record-keeping easier for the parents.

Tractors can be safe! Farm tractors are potentially hazardous; however, most tractor fatalities can be prevented, according to the National Safety Council.

The Safety Council estimates there are from 800 to 1000 deaths resulting annually from tractor accidents. In addition, thousands of people are injured and millions of dollars are lost in property damage, medical costs, work time lost, lost earning power and insurance costs. Competent tractor operators could have prevented most of these accidents. Proper maintenance is also helpful, and protective equipment, such as shields and roll bars, are necessary.

The Safety Council reports that more than half of all tractor accident fatalities involve overturning. This is unnecessary because equipment to protect the driver in a roll-over is available for new tractors and also many older models. The Safety Council is convinced that 90 per cent of roll-over fatalities could be prevented through the use of roll-over protective cabs and frames. The problem is that many farmers are reluctant to invest in roll-over protective systems for their equipment.

Tractor operations can be safe if the operators are familiar with potential accident hazards. The Safety Council offers the following tips for safer operation of a tractor on the farm:

--Stay clear of ditches, embankments and holes.
--Don't permit others to ride.
--Cut speed when turning, crossing slopes, on rough, slick or muddy surfaces.

--Watch where you are going at row ends, on roads, or near trees. Always watch out for obstacles and be sure everyone is clear before moving.
--Stay off of hills and slopes too steep for safe operation.
--Don't overload the tractor. Move the clutch slowly with a heavy load to avoid a backward tip.

--Hitch loads only to drawbar. (If drawbar is on the three point hitch, set it no higher than fixed drawbar.) Use front weights to balance the tractor.
--Keep all PTO shields in place. Shut off the PTO before unclogging, adjusting or servicing equipment.

--Set the wheels as wide as possible for better stability.

--When the tractor is stopped, put it out of gear, firmly set the brakes, and/or use the park lock, and remove the key.

The nation's farm labor force shrunk by nearly 20,000 workers during the past year. A recent survey showed a total of 3,481,900 farm workers in the United States. Of this number, 2,738,300 were farm operators, and the others were hired workers.

Wage rates for hired workers are $2.13 an hour in general as compared with $1.96 per hour earlier.

The Delaware Dairy Princess Contest will again be held at the Delaware State Fair on Dairy Day, Wed., July 25.

The Dairy Princess Committee has made arrangements to give away free milk on Tuesday and Wednesday of Fair Week. Miss Linda Wells, the 1973 Dairy Princess, will crown the new "Princess" at approximately 11 a.m. in the Dairy Pavilion.
