

Rides Galore Crowd Fair Midway

The James E. Strates Shows, opening a nine-day stand at the Delaware State Fair Friday, July 20, is not only the biggest carnival in the world, it has also the greatest variety of rides for kids of all ages.

E. James Strates, president and general manager of the show, has amassed five million dollars worth of rides, shows and unusual attractions, many of them acquired from Denmark's Tivoli Gardens and other leading Continental amusement centers.

A great number of the rides are of a nature that the passengers can control the motion of the car. This may account for the tremendous popularity of big carnivals like the Strates Shows — the fact that the individual customer participates in the action. He doesn't just sit and watch others perform; he performs himself.

Take, for instance, the Sky Diver, a ferris wheel type of ride, in which the individual gondolas swing around in a circle on their own while the wheel itself is turning.

The bar in each gondola determines the action of the car, and if the rider feels inclined to somersault while making the big circle he does so by pressing on the bar.

Most of the rides at the James E. Strates Shows have at least double action. While the car is going around in large circles either parallel to the ground (as in the Whip) or through the air (as in the Ferris Wheel) it is also involved in shorter, frenzied movements. Variations of the Whip include the Scrambler, the Twister, the Para-trooper, the Tilt-a-whirl and the Tip Top.

LYNN ANDERSON, one of the prettiest as well as most talented stars in the country-western field, will appear in two grandstand shows at the 1973 Delaware State Fair. She will perform at 7:30 and 9 p.m. shows on Saturday, July 28, final night of the fair. One of the long-time favorites of the Lawrence Welk Show, Lynn hit the top with her record "Rose Garden" which sold over a million copies in the USA and topped the charts in a dozen foreign countries. Advance tickets to all shows can be arranged for by calling the fair office at 398-3269.

Arts & Crafts Show Aug. 11-12

The Harrington Volunteer Fire Company will sponsor an Arts & Crafts Show Aug. 11 and 12 to be held at the Delaware State Fairgrounds. Sat., Aug. 11, 10 to 10 and Sun., Aug. 12, 1 to 8 p.m.

Some 800 Attend Republican Picnic

Some 800 persons turned out Sunday to feast on roast pig and barbecued chicken at the horse farm of state Republican Chairman Herman C. Brown.

Although heavy rain-storms delayed the feast which was scheduled to begin at 4 p.m., by 6 the banjo players were strumming and the patrons munching.

Brown estimated ticket sales at $1,000, which at $25 per head, would work out to a $25,000 gross for the annual "July Jubilee".

Noticeably missing from the yearly extravaganza were Sen. Reynolds du Pont, industrialist John W. Rollins Sr., and former Wilmington Mayor Harry G. Haskell.

All have in the past bought large blocks of tickets which were then passed out to party workers, but this year Brown told them they could only buy two each.

Chesapeake Utilities Declare Dividend

The Board of Directors of Chesapeake Utilities Corporation on July 10, 1973, declared a quarterly dividend of twenty-two and one half cents (22½¢) per share of common stock of this corporation, payable Oct. 5, 1973, to stockholders of record at the close of business Aug. 16, 1973.

Clark is recognized as one of the most versatile entertainers in country music today and has twice been voted top comedian by the Country Music Association in Nashville.

Top TV stars, prize livestock and thousands of farm, home and craft exhibits await visitors to the 54th annual Delaware State Fair which opens at Harrington July 20 and continues through July 28.

Lynn Anderson, whose record "Rose Garden" rocketed her to national recognition, and Roy Clark, singer-musician of "Hee Haw" fame, will headline grandstand shows on the two Saturday night programs.

Other headliners will include Kenny Rogers and the First Edition, outstanding pop-rock group, and Guy and Raina, young husband and wife singers from the Lawrence Welk Show.

Miss Madalyn Tharp and her collection of fair premium catalogs dating to 1920. Photos by Lee Kukulka.

In the 20's the advertisements in the Fair Book showed interesting things like Hudson and Essex cars, Willys Knight and Overland Dealers; Victrolas and Player Pianos. Strap watches were rapidly becoming an indispensable article for men's wear. Vacuum cleaners were fast replacing carpet sweepers. The discomforts of hot, sultry summer weather were being banished in the home that had a reliable electric fan.

Memoirs of past Fair Days, collected by Miss Madalyn Tharp, Books and Ribbons for all the years.

According to the "Premium List and Order of Arrangements" for the First Annual Fair in 1920. Admissions: children $.25 plus War Tax .03; Single Admission .50 War Tax .05; Rigs, automobiles and motorcycles .25 War Tax .03.

The first book states, "One of the features of our Fair will be our Grand Midway."

One of the features of our Fair will be our GRAND MIDWAY. Realizing that most of our visitors enjoy good MIDWAY shows, we have spared no effort to get the best available and have booked THE KRAUSE GREATER SHOWS for their complete MIDWAY. They will bring twelve BIG SHOWS, three RIDING DEVICES, thirty CONCESSION SHOWS, and three FREE ACTS. THE KRAUSE GREATER SHOW COMPANY has a wonderful reputation from Maine to Florida. They show nothing but high class amusements, barring all immoral shows. Bennie Krause who is their manager does not believe in any kind of rough stuff for CARNIVALS and he will personally be with us during the four days of our Fair.

There will be music everywhere.

Big Motorcycle Races were held. A five mile race with First purse $50, Second purse $25, and Third $15, and every rider $5. These races were to be the most thrilling and exciting races ever put on a Fair Ground.

Exhibitors in all the departments received a narrow red ribbon for 1st Premium, yellow for Second, and Blue for third as pictured here.

Levy Court Seeks News on Housing

Kent County Levy Court Tuesday voted ask Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt to investigate the status of 200 units of modular, low-rent housing planned for the county.

Levy Court Commissioners became concerned when they found that one of the sites, on the east side of U.S. 13 south of Camden, would involve twice as many units as they agreed to. Levy Court President Joshua M. Twilley said when the county signed an agreement with the state to accept the housing, it was to involve eight sites with 25 units each.

Commissioner Samuel G. Thomas, D-Camden, said Tuesday the Camden site involves about 50 units.

A housing project, sponsored by the federal Housing and Urban Development, has been in the mill here for more than a year. It is to include 50 units and a community house. It is located, for the most part, just outside the northwestern city limits.

Twilley said the county has not heard from the state Division of Housing since the county agreed to grant tax-exempt status to the projects more than a year ago. "Neither New Castle nor Sussex County would accept the project and we demonstrated our concern," Twilley said, "but housing is a local issue and I don't think the state is handling it properly."

He said local government should be involved with every step. A proposal for Kent County Housing Authority to administer such projects was made to former Gov. Russell W. Peterson, Twilley said, and he said he would make the same suggestion again to Tribbitt.

That would allow the creation of sanitary districts within the disposal area after referendums. Levy Court attorney N. Maxon Terry, in response to a question, said the move would not hurt and could help the county's Chancery Court case to dissolve the so-called "Buffer Zone" surrounding the city of Dover.

The county and city agreed in 1969 that the county would not provide sewer or water to an area around the city limits, with the idea that they would request annexation to the city to receive the services. That agreement was a condition of the city's joining the Kent County sewer system.

"If anything will help the suit, because we could say we (then would have) the mechanism to get sewer service in there," Terry told the commissioners. At present, only municipalities and industries can obtain county sewer service.

Levy Court Tuesday approved the recommendation of the airport advisory committee to employ the firm of Tibbetts-Abbott-McCarthy and Stratton of New York to prepare a master plan for the proposed county airport. The firm is also employed as a consultant to the state of aviation matters and will be working on the Rehoboth Area Airport plans.

The study will cost $12,000. The federal government is expected to pay for about two-thirds of it.

"And we're going to turn around and grant them tax-exempt status?" Paskey asked.

Also Tuesday, the Levy Court took its first step toward allowing suburban developments in the county to receive county sewer service. A resolution was adopted setting a public hearing on making the entire county a disposal district.

That would allow the creation of sanitary districts within the disposal area after referendums. Levy Court attorney N. Maxon Terry, in response to a question, said the move would not hurt and could help the county's Chancery Court case to dissolve the so-called "Buffer Zone" surrounding the city of Dover.

Law Signed To Protect Marshes and Beaches

Delaware's wetlands are protected under a law signed by Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt Tuesday.

About 40 people watched the chief executive put his signature on the measure, and then shared the champagne John C. Bryson, secretary of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, brought to celebrate the occasion.

Tribbitt also signed a second bill from his "quality of life" legislative package Tuesday, S.S. 1 for 218. That new law strengthens the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control and eliminates the Water and Air Resources Commission.

"The marshes and the beaches are our natural resources," Tribbitt told the onlookers. He said the Wetlands act, S.S. 1 or S.B. 217, will protect those areas from being "destroyed by haphazard or thoughtless abuse."

The law prevents unregulated dredging, dumping, filing and similar activities in areas designated as wetlands.

Tribbitt praised the bipartisan efforts of the legislature in passing these two bills.

Rep. Andrew G. Knox, R-Centerville, added that "the citizens of Delaware should be well pleased in how well we can work together for good legislation."

Democrats William M. Murphy, a Dover senator, and House Minority Leader Hudson E. Gruwell, also of Dover, stood with Knox behind the governor as he signed the bills and passed out the traditional pens.

The three were co-sponsors of the Wetlands bill.

The two bills signed Tuesday were presented to the General Assembly by Tribbitt on April 19 as part of his "quality of life" program.

Four other measures have yet to be acted upon, although Bryson expects they will pass when the legislature reconvenes in January.

Those bills will allow the state to levy a charge on each barrel of oil delivered in Delaware waters, regulates residential and commercial development in the coastal zone, regulate interstate pipelines and sets aside state money for bicycle paths.

Parking Ban On Clark Street Is Merely For One Block

The City Council has issued a ban on parking on both sides of Clark Street from the railroad crossing to Commerce Street.

This measure will enable tractor-trailers to negotiate the curve at the confluence of streets more easily.

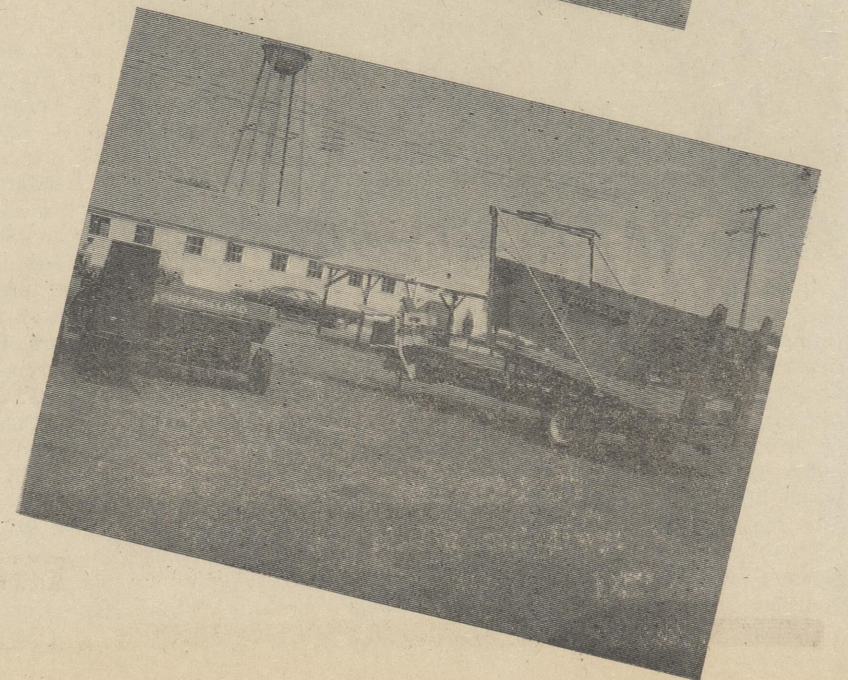

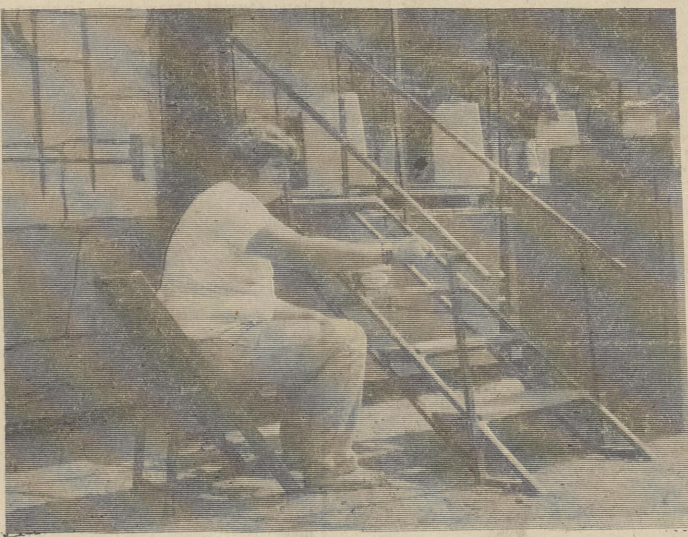

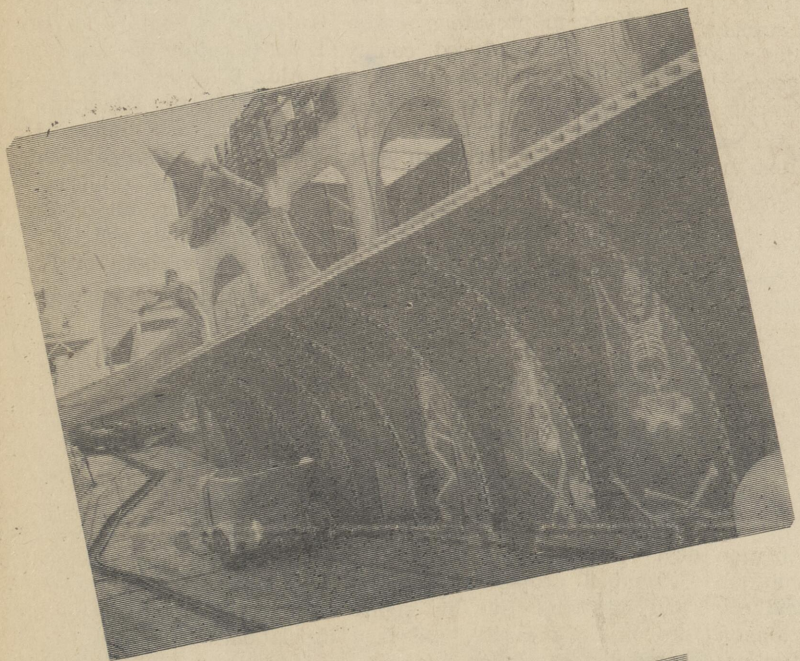

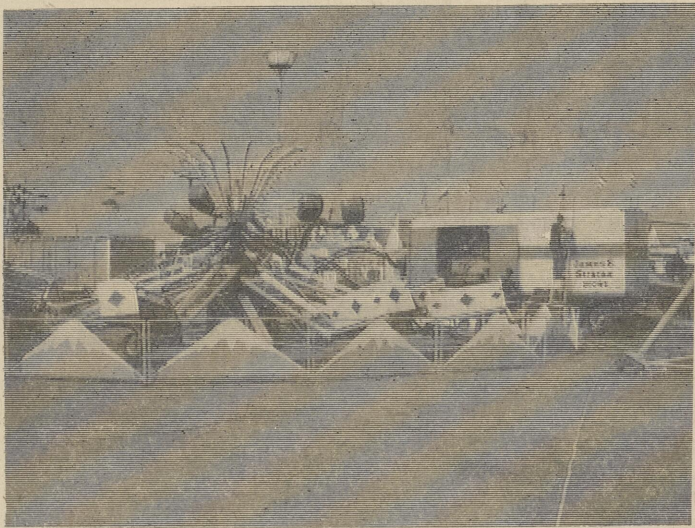

The Journal stated, in last week's issue, all of Clark Street was affected. It regrets the error.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

FRIENDSHIP

Man struggles for glory, honor and fame,
He wants the whole world to know his name,
He amasses wealth by brain and hand;
He may be a power in the land.

But when he hears the end of life
And look back o'er years of work and strife
He finds that happiness depends
On none of these, but the love of friends.

Our good friend "Gus" has a thought for us:
He says he likes to live in a small town where you can talk on the phone for an hour even if you get the wrong number.

Also says he's glad to see some girls marrying for keeps: they keep house and they keep husbands.

ROTARY OUTING

Last Wednesday, (July 11th) the local Rotary Club teamed up with the Crisfield club in a delightful boat trip across Tangier Sound to Smith's Island, then out in Chesapeake Bay under ideal weather conditions.

For most of those from Harrington it was first sight of this wonder-waterland, excepting Richard Johnson, president of the club who really enjoyed a homecoming among his former fellowmen. He had at one time served as president of the Crisfield Club while stationed there by the Delmarva Power Co.

A tasty (box lunch) chicken dinner—was served aboard the good ship "Millard Taves" on the long five-hour trip. Millard, by the way, was very informative on the life and habits of the lone islanders who do a masterful job of survival. He is the only living active charter member of the Crisfield Rotary Club, organized in 1921, found time to serve a repeat term as president of the club in 72-73 as they celebrated their 50th anniversary.

Millard also served the State of Maryland as its governor for eight years. At 78 years young he is still active in government affairs by filling out an unexpired term as treasurer for the state.

All this because he likes people — and water without gates.

Del. Geological Survey Releases Geohydrologic Map of Dover Area

The Delaware Geological Survey at the University of Delaware today released a special geohydrologic map of the Dover area, presenting on a single sheet all significant information on the area's ground and surface water resources.

A year in preparation, the publication was authorized by Kenneth D. Woodruff, senior hydrologist with the survey, and is designed to be easily understood by the layman and readily applied by the administrator or planner.

It is the first of what is hoped will become a statewide series of maps, to be developed parallel to the survey's geologic studies of the state.

The highly condensed map, comparable to about 30 pages of written text, indicates by color those portions of the Dover area in which the main artesian aquifers (sands capable of yielding water) can be reached by wells.

Contour lines in the colored areas indicate the depth at which the primary aquifers, the Cheswold and Piney Point, will be encountered in drilling.

Large numbers show the number of alternative water-producing units that may be expected in each part of the map area. For example, if one unit is preoccupied or contaminated, another may be available for use.

The map cross section shows the relationships of several subsurface units under the Dover area.

The locations of major wells also are plotted and are identified according to the survey's statewide well-numbering system. Symbols also show the units in which these wells are screened, or the depth at which the ground water is withdrawn.

The thickness of the saturated water table aquifer (the level nearest the land surface which yields water) is shown on an inset map.

Drainage basin areas and high and low flows of streams near Dover also are included where they are known. Plots of water levels, water quality, rainfall distribution and well performance curves make up the other insets. A brief summary of the general water use situation in the Dover area also is included.

The Geological Survey and the City of Dover contributed data used in the preparation of the map.

Copies are available from the state's survey office in Penny Hall on the campus.

Then there is the double Ferris Wheel, with each wheel alternating as the top one lifting the rider as high as 200 feet into the sky, and the Rock-O-Plane, whose cars rotate in a direction controlled by the rider while performing a ferris wheel cycle.

The Round Up is a new device involving a center wheel that revolves while the riders stand in small, open-faced booths around its circumference. As the Round Up whirls faster and faster, one end is elevated high into the air. The riders are held into their booths entirely by centrifugal force.

One of the most popular attractions on the Midway is the Swinging Gym, which consists of cages operated entirely by the riders. The cages move back and forth like a swing and can be revolved in a complete circle if the occupants put enough muscle into their work.

The Swinging Gym not only allows the rider to participate in the action; it gives him a vigorous workout in the guise of entertainment. It is both a ride and a challenge to the young at heart.

The Strates Shows also has a Kiddy Land for the six-year-old crowd with rides on everything from the real motorcycles (securely attached to a center ring) to boats and helicopters. These rides may lack the hazards of the Rock-O-Plane or the Sky Diver but for the kindergarten set they are the last word in fun and excitement.

Letter To The Editor

310 2nd Avenue
Harrington, Del. 19952
July 14, 1973

Mayor and Council
City Manager of the City of Harrington
Harrington, Delaware 19952
Gentlemen:

I had a legitimate reason to contact the City Police on June 24, at approximately 11:30 p.m. After several calls to the listed phone number, and no answer, I called Troop 3 of the State Police, and was informed that the Harrington City Police was "not on the air tonight." I then drove to the City Police Station, after finding no one available, I drove around the several main streets but was unable to locate any Police.

Monday morning I drove back to the Police Station several times before I was able to contact anyone at approximately 11 a.m., I talked to the gentleman who identified himself as Police Chief. I explained my reason for wanting to contact the Police the previous evening. He told me what I should do, and the reason why no Police were available Sunday night.

July 7, at approximately 4:30 a.m. another member of my family had a legitimate reason to call the City Police, but could not contact anyone. After repeated calls by him, to no avail, I called the Mayor and the City Manager but could not reach either one. I then called the Chiefs home in Frederica, and was informed he was enroute to Harrington. At the time, if I had not been able to contact anyone of the City Officials, I had fully intended to contact County or State Officials up to and including the Governor.

I accompanied my son, who had his Auto stolen, to the Police Station. I talked to the Chief, and must say, it is a deplorable condition under which the Police department is expected to operate, as is. Why should the residents of the town the size of Harrington expect to be omitted from any Crimes, Emergencies, or actions detrimental to their safety and welfare from late in the evening until approximately 11:00 the next morning, by perpetrators of ill conduct or misdeeds.

The Chief of Police explained to me the problems confronted by his department, and it is obvious that the fault lies with the City Government and Citizens of Harrington.

I have arrived at the assumption from past news accounts that this town is sponsoring a Training School for Police, that after initial experience, the men find better paying positions in nearby municipalities, but Gentlemen, isn't Money the name of the game? Why should any man be expected to work for the mere pittance expended by this locale, when, by a drive of 10-20 miles he can enhance his income and supply his family with the necessities, and some of the luxuries, that we all expect.

Several years ago a monthly charge was made for the collection of Garbage and Trash, which up to that time was a service financed by property tax. There was no mention at that time of reducing property taxes because of this action.

Now Gentlemen, I mentioned the above, because I feel that if the Citizens of Harrington can accept this extra charge to collect garbage they surely have no objections to properly finance an adequately staffed Police department.

Yes, you can all make the comment that the Signature of this letter is trying to "lock the barn after the horse is stolen" and you may possibly be correct, but in the same token "one generally does not repair a pipe until it starts to leak." I do admit I never realized the situation as it has been explained to me concerning our Police department.

I therefore humbly propose that remedial action be taken immediately by the City Officials to what extent necessary to adequately staff, compensate, equip and stand beside, not behind, the Police department of Harrington, because next time "the horse may be yours."

As a taxpayer of this locale, I do expect adequate Police Protection, and am prepared to pay my fair share for this service.

superintendent of the Floral Department, and Mrs. E.B. Rash. The first annual fair was held July 27, 28, 29, and 30, 1920. Children were admitted for 25c, plus a 3c tax held over from World War I. Adults were admitted for 50c, plus a 5c war tax. Horse-driven vehicles, automobiles and motorcycles were charged 25c, plus 3c war tax.

Harness racing was held daily. Krause Greayer Shows furnished the midway entertainment.

The original land for the layout of the track and grandstand was purchased from William S. and Nellie Smith for $6000. It was 330 acres and was bought Feb. 17, 1920.

In 1921, the fair was held five days and was owned by 118 stockholders. In 1958, there were 322 stockholders. Saturday of 1921 saw the inaugural of automobile races which was to continue throughout the years.

On March 31, 1921, 5200 square feet of land were purchased from Benaiah and Annie Sharp for $30. This tract was just below the old Harry Sharp Hotel and was on the east end of the land formerly bought.

On Sept. 16, 1925, 40 acres were purchased from Albert Thistlewood for $10,000.

In 1924, the Fair ran six days. The stockholders meeting for 1927 was held at The New Century Club. J. Gordon Smith, became a stockholder.

day. On Sun, July 22, 1928, just two days before the fair, President Charles D. Murphy died.

In 1929, B.I. Shaw was elected president; Warren T. Moore, vice president; Ernest Raughley, secretary, and Horace E. Quillen, treasurer.

Ten acres were purchased from William S. Smith April 2 for $1200. This land is now used for the exhibit of farm machinery.

On July 21, 1930, 10 acres were purchased from J. Gordon and Elva Smith for $300. The Swine Building and grove are in this area now. On March 13, 1931, seven acres were purchased from Joseph and Mary Karlik for $300 for clay for the race-track.

May 10, 1938, the Bert Deputy farm, owned by Martha L. Gill, was purchased for $2025 for 10 acres.

On March 12, 1939, three acres were purchased from Harry F. Sharp for $2000. This was cleaned up and made into the East Entrance.

The fair continued during World War II in 1942-43. In 1944, grounds were rented to Libby, McNeil & Libby to harbor 300 German prisoners of war. The prisoners were also there in 1945. These also did some carpenter work on the grounds under the supervision of Wilbur Layton.

In 1945, a committee headed by Sen. Fred Bailey planned parimutuel harness racing to start in 1946 which is still going today.

Jan 4, 1946, application was made to J. Wirt Willis for a 15-day harness-racing meet to begin Aug. 15. The meet, however, lasted 18 nights and cleared $10,980.08. It was the first parimutuel harness meet on the Maryland-Delaware Circuit and one of the first in the East.

President B.I. Shaw died in October, 1947; consequently, Jan. 9, 1948, the following officers were elected: President, J.O. Williams; 1st vice president, J. Gordon Smith; 2nd vice president, Allen Cannon; secretary, Ernest Raughley; treasurer, W. H. Horleman, and assistant treasurer, Fred Powell. C. Tharp Harrington was made treasurer on the resignation of Horleman.

In 1948, it was agreed to buy and from Fount P. Billings to build a mile track, and the VonGoerres property of 75 acres to be purchased for $2500.

Secretary Ernest Raughley died in 1949. He had served the fair since its beginning. In the same year T. Brinton Holloway was employed as general manager of the fairgrounds.

On Dec. 10, 1954, a contract was signed with Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Company to build a grandstand and it was dedicated on Governor's Day at the fair the following year.

President Jacob Williams died Sat., June 1958, and was succeded by the present president, J. Gordon Smith.

General Manager T. Brinton Holloway died in 1961 and was succeeded by George Simpson, the present manager.

Since the building of the grandstand, a mezzanine floor and a clubhouse have been added. A restaurant was also built in 1960.

The name of the fair was changed to Delaware State Fair in 1962, and the name of Kent & Sussex Raceway was changed to Harrington Raceway in March, 1967.

David Richter Wins Another Wilmington Race

Canterbury's David Richter again was an easy winner in the Olympic Development track meet held at Baynard Stadium, Wilmington, Wednesday night.

The W.T. Chipman School trackman set a new personal mark in the 440 yard run, when he recorded a 62.7 clocking in what amounted to a solo run, as all opposition was easily out-distanced after 110 yards.

Dave Douglas, Milford's British track coach, formerly coached Don Rincon in Peru, N.Y., and is still a powerful runner himself, in Masters (40 and over) competition. As Richter accelerated into the lead, Douglas swiveled around to get a better look. "Smooth, smooth," was the knowledgeable veteran's diagnosis of the improving youngster's performance, in the age 12-13 test.

Eddie Thompson and Ron Mosley were second and fourth in the 14-17 mile run in 4:51 and 4:53 respectively. Harry Benson, 14, had a 5:09. This trio combined with Bob Kashner in a surprise victory in the 440 relay. These boys are distance runners, not sprinters, but put together a good 51 second effort, to win.

Frederica's Benson led off with Canterbury's Kashner, Felton Height's Thompson and Harrington's Mosley, finishing up in that order. It was an effort involving four areas of the Lake Forest community.

Allan Parker, former Harrington and Lake Forest runner, resumed training three weeks ago, after a hiatus of six months, caused by a medicinal reaction. He's a long way from the shape he was in last November, when he ran a great race on the Naval Academy golf course, at Annapolis. Yet he ran the first two mile race of his career and had an excellent 10:35 clocking.

Several other local athletes were entered but could not compete in Wilmington, when a bus reportedly going to Baynard Stadium turned out to be a phantom.

There are lots of kids who would like to compete, but this writer can only get a few in the little Volvo.

Harrington Suffers Trio of One-Run Losses

Harrington's Senior League team lost three games by one run each and fell to a 2-12 record. The local's pitching was effective enough, but the stick-work will have to improve, if the losing streak is to be broken.

Dover edged Harrington 4-3, as a three-run rally in the last inning by the losers just missed tying the score. Jerry Steerman had two hits for Harrington.

Smyrna blanked Harrington twice by scores of 1-0 and 2-0 Sunday. Russ Dill and Bob Nord pitched well enough to win, but were backed by silent bats.

Rodney Wyatt had Harrington's single bingle in the first contest. Glenn Jarrell waded a perfect three-for-three game in the nightcap.

National Farm Safety Week

"National Farm Safety Week, which begins Wed., July 25, is a good time for farmers in Kent County to examine their farming operations and eliminate unsafe practices," reports Lister Hall Jr., executive director of the Kent County ASCS office.

Each year, thousands of farmers and ranchers are killed or critically injured in accidents that could have been prevented, if the basic safety precautions had been observed. This is one of the major reasons President Nixon designated July 25-31 as National Farm Safety Week.

"All farmers are urged to consider ways in which they can incorporate safer practices into their work at home and in the fields," Hall comments. "In addition, community leaders, private organizations, and radio and TV announcers are asked to assist in providing safety information to farmers. Posters, slide sets, and other methods of presenting information will be used."

In addition to this project, the Department of Agriculture is continuing its year-round farm

du Pont Attaches Amendment To Farm Bill

Delaware Congressman Pete du Pont today successfully attached an amendment to the 1973 farm bill which in du Pont words "Will make certain that the recommendations contained in the GOA report on the Russian wheat sale are implemented and don't gather dust on a shelf like most government reports."

The General Accounting Office's report, issued last week, contained a number of specific recommendations on ways the Department of Agriculture could improve its rules and procedures for handling large export sales such as the U.S.-Soviet grain agreement. GOA was highly critical of the Agriculture Department's current procedures and administrative practices.

The du Pont amendment states that the Secretary of Agriculture shall submit to the Congress within sixty days of enactment of the farm bill, a detailed report indicating what steps are being taken to implement the recommendations contained in the GOA report.

leagues du Pont pointed out that his amendment cost nothing and was good administrative procedure.

Pilot Food Program For Pregnant Women & Infants

The start of a pilot food program for pregnant and lactating women, infants and children up to four years of age was announced today by the regional administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service.

W.F. Warren said the special supplemental food program for women, infants and children (WIC) will provide cash grants to health departments or comparable state agencies to make special foods available to new mothers and youngsters.

Participating states may elect to distribute food at health clinics, issue food vouchers redeemable at retail stores or come up with their own system of delivery, he said.

The pilot program will operate through June 30, 1974 in selected project areas in the region which includes 13 states from Maine to the Virginias and the District of Columbia.

Project areas will be required to maintain medical records on participants. The information will be used to evaluate the effect of the supplemental foods on the women, infants and children who take part, the administrator explained.

A local agency may apply for the program if:

it provides health service to residents of areas in which a substantial number of persons have low incomes

--it serves women, infants and children

--its staff includes competent medical personnel to examine persons receiving health services

--its facilities include equipment for conducting evaluation tests. Participants will be eligible for the pilot program if they:

--live in an approved project area

Black Rot Affects Delaware Grapes

Have you suddenly noticed that many of your grapes are turning black? If so, the problem is likely to be due to a disease called black rot, according to Dr. Robert B. Carroll, extension plant pathologist at the University of Delaware.

Black rot is caused by a fungus and is the most widespread disease of grapes. It is prevalent in the hotter, humid regions of the eastern United States and is severe in Delaware this year. It affects all the vinifera varieties of grapes and many of the American bunch grapes are highly susceptible.

The fungus infects leaves, young canes and tendrils early in the spring. Leaf infections result in circular to angular, brownish to tan spots. These spots often have a dark-brown margin and black specks (fruiting bodies of the fungus) can be seen forming a ring just inside the margin. The home gardener usually doesn't notice these spots until the berries begin to discolor.

Symptoms on the berries first appear as light brown, soft, circular spots. These enlarge rapidly and completely discolor the berry within two or three days. The decaying berries shrivel and in about a week become hard, black and wrinkled. These diseased berries are commonly referred to as mummies.

Don't wait until the mummies appear to control black rot. Early season sprays are vital in the control of this disease. Sprays should be made when new shoots are 8 to 12 inches long, just before the blooms open, immediately after bloom, ten days after bloom, and at 7 to 10 day intervals until the berries are full size. It may even be necessary to spray more frequently during a very wet season. Ferbam, folpet, captan and zineb are among the fungicides commonly used for black rot control. In Delaware, plan to control black rot next year by following the spray schedule in "Sprays For Home Fruit Plantings", available from your county extension office.

Spraying is not the only answer to black rot control, says Carroll. Sanitation is of equal importance. Severity of the disease depends in part on the amount of fungus that overwinters on old tendrils, vines, fallen leaves and mummies. Spores produced in these during warm, moist spring weather result in the initial infection of young leaves and shoots. A good fall clean-up will aid greatly in control of this disease next season.

Cargo Planes Belong To State Guard

Public concern has been raised recently over the sighting of large high wing, four engine aircraft flying at low altitudes over Delaware, Maryland and New Jersey. These aircraft better known as C-130 "Hercules" cargo planes belong to the Delaware Air National Guard based at Wilmington.

As a member of the Air Force's Tactical Air Command, the Delaware Air Guard practices airdropping paratroops and equipment at a special drop zone in New Jersey. Traveling at 300 mph, the two to six plane formations fly in trail (one behind the other) at altitudes ranging from 500 to 2,000 feet above ground level.

In order to maintain a flawless safety environment other planes along the flight path are advised of their presence. The Delaware Air Guard briefs the Millville, N.J., Flight Station prior to each practice mission. Millville then passes the word on to other stations along the intended flight route.

Low level missions are usually flown on Wednesday nights, Saturdays and the second Sunday of each month.

KENNY ROGERS AND THE FIRST EDITION, the nation's first pop-rock group to host its own prime-time TV Show, "Rollin' on the River", will headline two grandstand shows at 7:30 and 9 p.m. on Friday, July 27, at the Delaware State Fair in Harrington. The First Edition was formed when three members of The New Christy Minstrels decided to go on their own. The group soon became a top recording and concert favorite with young America with a long list of record hits. They included "But You Know I Love You", "Ruby, Don't Take Your Love To Town", and "Reuben James".

Senator Joe Biden Reports

This week the Senate accepted for consideration a bill which I introduced aimed at improving the quality of mail service, and the Army Corps of Engineers issued its final recommendation on a North Atlantic deep water port.

As it stands now, each year the United States Postal Service has to present its full budget to the Congressional Appropriations Committees, to have it approved or modified.

What isn't required is that the Postal Service first come before an authorization committee, which would study the programs being asked for in the budget, to decide whether they are worthwhile or effective.

The legislation introduced this week would give Congress the right to take a closer look at the Postal Service to find out how its management practices relate to the widespread inefficiencies and delays in the mail system.

The Postal Service is an independent unit in the Executive branch, but its top management is not responsible to any elected public official.

It's my hope that this bill will prod the Postal Service to act more quickly toward solving some of the very difficult problems it faces; and bring us closer to an efficient, high quality mail service.

You may have read that the Corps of Engineers has by-passed Delaware and recommended an area off the Northern New Jersey shore as a primary site construction of a deep-water port. I'm pleased our state was not chosen. But I still have some serious reservations about the Corps of Engineers recommendations -- and the reasoning behind their conclusions.

The report is based on the assumption that imported oil will be our main source of energy for years to come, and that a deep-water port is the most efficient and economical way of transporting this oil to existing refineries.

In my opinion we should not put ourselves in the position of being dependent on fuel from any foreign country, if it can possibly be avoided. Many of my colleagues and I share the belief that the government should begin extensive research into alternative forms of energy including solar conversion, nuclear power, and the tapping of our vast natural deposits of coal. Such legislation will soon come before the Congress, and I intend to give it my full support.

On the issue of the superport itself, as I have said before, so many important questions surrounding need for and hazards surrounding construction remain as yet unanswered that I could not possibly support such a measure at this time.

Later this month I will be attending special hearings as part of a 15 man special Senate Committee created to study deep-water port legislation, which I hope will provide the further information on the issue.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne W. Holberton

There's been so much said in the news about soybeans that all of you are certainly familiar with the word. But, how many of you have ever seen a soybean plant or the bean itself? Would you recognize the bean if you saw one? The way many people think of a soybean is in the form of soy sauce or a bean sprout.

Are soybeans a new food? No! The soybean is one of the oldest crops grown by man and it is a native of China. Accounts of its use are described by the Chinese Emperor in 2383 B.C. Throughout China's history the soybean was cultivated for use as human food and provided an important source of protein.

The soybeans came to the United States as early as 1894. However, it wasn't until 36 years ago that this bean became a vital food crop here and actually throughout the world.

Although the appearance of vegetable protein and meat mixtures at our meat counters is something new, the presence of vegetable proteins in our diets is not new at all. Textured vegetable proteins officially went to school on Feb. 22, 1971 when the USDA first authorized their use in the Type A school lunch. In fact, you probably use some sort of soybean product every day. The next time you shop read the fine print on the labels and you will find that soybean in the form of soy lecithin, flour, protein, or oil appears in such frequently used foods as salad and cooking oils, mayonnaise, margarine, sandwich spreads, cake mixes, candies, cookies, breads, cereals, doughnuts, frozen desserts, whipped toppings, baby foods, casserole dinners and high-protein and low fat foods.

According to the USDA, isolated soy protein is a product of advancing food technology, and comprises the major protein element in soybeans and contains at least 90 per cent protein on a moisture-free basis. The protein of soybeans resemble animal protein in that they contain essential amino acids. Soybeans are also a good source of Vitamin A and the B Vitamins and such minerals as calcium and phosphorus.

The extracted proteins from soybeans has been processed and spun into edible food fibres. The fibrous nature of the soybean has a texture similar to that of meat and can be shaped, colored and flavored into a wide variety of foods.

The oil of the soybean contains large amounts of a fat-soluble substance called lecithin. Lecithin acts as an emulsifying agent and helps prevent rancidity in many foods.

There are many, many reasons for using soybean products besides what has already been suggested. For instance, when soy flour is added to such things as pancakes, cookies, waffles, and cakes they do not stick to the pan. The addition of the soy flour helps release batter from metal surfaces with ease.

Soy flour makes it easier to blend and have less separation of fats and liquids when used in mixer for cakes and cookies.

There are many pros as well as cons for using vegetable protein products. In spite of drastically increased usage and recent developments, the industry still has many problems to solve before the utilization, these products can really meet its full potential.

Telephone Reassurance Check

Currently operating around the country are programs of telephone reassurance. They range from the daily "Hello, how are you today" one minute safety check, to a more extensive morning call when a weather report and medication reminders are given.

The program is conducted by non-profit groups of neighborly middle-aged or younger volunteers recruited through a religious or service organization. "Larger operations require a salaried co-ordination", according to Daniel S. Keunen, area agent, community resource development, University of Delaware.

Cornell University's Medical Center employs a nurse to take calls from aged or disabled patients to clarify progress, schedule appointments and check on the patient's therapeutic schedule.

Some organizations add the services of a psychiatric professional or clergyman at a suicide prevention center who receives calls over a "help line."

Regardless of the sponsoring group, or the type of volunteers most telephone reassurance services to the elderly, chronically ill or disabled are quite similar, adds Keunen.

The system works this way. A volunteer or paid worker at a central headquarters or in their home, make one or two calls daily, seven days a week at a scheduled time. If the person will not be home at the scheduled time, the caller is informed in advance.

When the phone rings ten or more times without an answer, the caller tries again not long afterwards. A failure to connect on the third try, along with a check to the phone company that the line is in order, puts into operation a network of emergency services.

A neighbor, relative or friend with a key stops by to check on the person being phoned. If emergency assistance is required, a relative, physician, nurse, medical service or hospital is notified, and an ambulance is sent immediately.

BUFFALO BOB SMITH, whose Howdy Doody Show was a daily must for kids in the 1950's, will be the top attraction on Children's Day, Tuesday, July 24, at this year's Delaware State Fair.
Free admission to the fair for all school kids should assure another whopping crowd similar to the more than 30,000 present on kids' day last year.
Smith retired in 1960 but was persuaded last year to revive his Howdy Doody Show primarily to appear on college campus. Students now in college were the kids who in the 1950s' sat on their living room floors to watch their childhood hero, Buffalo Bob. His appearances have been such a tremendous success that he is likely to be back on TV soon.

His fair program will include the appearance of Clarabell the Clown, the Flubadub, Dilly Dally and all the old crew. Fair officials said that they would welcome any young adults interested in indulging in a bit of nostalgia for the good old days.

The Knights will be demonstrating their free-fall skills and precision parachuting accuracy on Thursday, July 26, at the Delaware State Fair in Harrington. S.S. Office Taking Applications For Supplemental Income

The Dover Social Security office is now taking applications for supplemental security income payments, a Federal program scheduled to start in 1974 that will establish an income floor for people in financial need who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, according to W.J. Bulkeley, social security district manager.

But people already getting State old age assistance, or State aid because they are blind or disabled, don't have to apply. They'll be getting more information later this year about how the program will help them.

The first monthly payments under the Federal program will be made in January 1974. Until then, State and local public assistance offices will continue to make payments in the usual way.

People not getting public assistance now who think they may be eligible for the new Federal payments should call or write social security to find out if they should apply.

Federal supplemental security income payments will be made by the Social Security Administration. But the program will be financed by Federal general revenues—not by social security contributions from workers and employers. It's not the same as social security.

The aim of the new program is to provide supplemental payments in cases of need so that people 65 or over, or blind, or disabled will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 a month for a couple.

This doesn't mean that every eligible person or couple will be getting that much from the Federal Government every month. The amount of the Federal payment any person gets will depend on how much other income he has.

If you're single—or married but not living with your husband or wife—you can still own things worth up to $1,500 and still get Federal payments. A couple can own things up to $2,250 and get payments. Not everything you own has to be counted toward your total assets, however.

A home of reasonable value will not be counted as an asset. Personal effects and household goods won't count in most cases. Insurance policies or a car may not affect eligibility either, but it will depend on their value.

Certain income also will be disregarded in deciding on an application for supplemental security income. The first $20 a month of income generally won't affect the Federal payment at all.

In addition, people who are working part time should know that the first $65 a month of earnings won't be included in counting their income and only half of the rest of their additional earnings will be counted.

Apart from earnings, other income above the first $20 a month generally will reduce the Federal payment. This includes social security checks, veteran payments, workmen's compensation, pensions, annuities, and gifts. And if you live in someone else's household, your basic Federal payment will be reduced by one-third before other income that may affect your payment is deducted.

People who need more information to decide whether they might be eligible for the Federal payments should call social security at 674-3610, or write to the office at P.O. Box 478, Dover, Del. 19901. Or, a friend or relative can make the call if the person in need isn't able to.

"Even though payments cannot start until January 1974, we're starting to take applications now so we can process them ahead of time to avoid delays that might occur if there's a rush of applications right at the end of the year," Bulkeley said.

USDA Revises Milk Program For Children

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) today revised its regulations for the Special Milk Program for children.

One change makes this program available only to schools which provide no food service to attending children. Milk is served as a basic component in all meals which are served in schools which do have lunch and breakfast programs.

Another change sets a uniform rate of reimbursement for all participating schools. The maximum rate of reimbursement is 3 cents a half pint, and schools must use these payments to reduce the price of milk to children.

These changes are designed to adjust program expenditures to the level of $25 million that is provided by the Continuing Resolution under which the program is operating in the fiscal year 1974.

The changes take effect immediately, and complete details were published in the Federal Register.

Pete du Pont Reports

Normally this space is devoted to telling you my interpretation of what goes on in Washington. This week, I thought it would be a change to turn this space over to Anne Board, of Wilmington, who is working as a summer intern in my Washington office and let her share some of her thoughts. Anne --

Walking back to Cannon House Office Building last week, to Congressman du Pont's office where I am interning for five weeks this summer, I tried to put things into proper perspective. Senator Lowell Weicker, of Connecticut, had just finished speaking to over a thousand Congressional interns who had squeezed into a large lecture hall to listen to the tall, deeply tanned Republican senator. Having come into the limelight recently as a result of the televised Watergate hearings, Senator Weicker forewent the opening statement sometimes characteristic of witnesses of "his" committee (as he referred to it) and addressed himself to the occasionally blunt questions of the young interns. In responding, he spoke eloquently and often passionately about the right and wrong in America, about the greatness of our political system, and about the American people as a whole. The Senator appealed to the young audience with his wit, charm and fervent idealism as he comfortably confronted queries about Watergate, Cambodia, the Presidency and other issues concerning the youth of today. At times he abandoned the larger topics and lapsed into a more personal mood, speaking of his long working hours (including weekends) and his recently photographed trips outdoors to the garbage can with the trash. When the session concluded, comments passed freely among my fellow interns, who along with me are trying to gain some practical political experience this summer. Most were favorably impressed although some remained skeptical.

It seems heroes are fashioned quickly in Washington, and sometimes it is difficult to view things clearly, especially where politics are concerned. Only when I arrived back in the office was I able to break through the muddle of thoughts which engulfed me after hearing Senator Weicker. Having mulled over his often theoretical, philosophical comments about America I sat down to answer some legislative mail (as well as the phone from time to time). It took the busy activity of my Congressman's office to put things into proper perspective for me. In the midst of the inner workings of the office, it occurred to me that all I had learned from hundreds of lectures similar to Senator Weicker's, both in college and the outside world, were worthless in light of the practical experience I was gaining right then - researching bills, writing letters and generally participating in staff business. Coming down from the Ivory Tower was so characteristic of student life is not always easy, but after all, that's what internships "are all about," to use the jargon of my peers. And realizing that many "heroes" are only Congressmen, who in turn are only human beings working hard for their constituents, is a large part of being an intern too.

Hunter Orange Becomes Mandatory For Delaware Deer Hunters

The Department of Fish and Wildlife announced that all First State deer hunters must display a minimum of 400 square inches of daylight fluorescent hunter orange. Violating this safety law, Senate Bill 184 signed by Governor Sherman W. Tribbitt June 25, carries with it a fine of $25 to $100.

Rod Harmic, environmental protection officer and co-ordinator for hunter training safety in Delaware, explained that the bill requires the 400 square inches be displayed on the head, chest and back. A vest and a cap exceed the 400 square inch minimum. Although the bill defines "hunter orange" in scientific terminology, practically all hunting vests and hats of this fluorescent reddish hue are acceptable. Hunter orange has proven effective in reducing the incidence of hunting accidents. Since Massachusetts enacted its mandatory hunter orange law, it has experienced a spectacular reduction in "mistaken for game" and "in line of fire" categories. This color is becoming increasingly popular with hunters not only because of the safety factor, but because of the convenience its high visibility offers. Hunters find it easier to keep in constant contact with their hunting partners when wearing hunter orange. A great deal of hunter orange was observed during last year's deer season.

Since deer see only shades of black and white, Harmic says the safety requirement should have no adverse effect on this year's harvest. Deer are alerted more by sudden movements, sounds and scents.

DTC Prospects May Get Federal Aid

Prospective students at Delaware Technical and Community College Southern Campus near Georgetown who need financial assistance may qualify for a new federally funded program open only to first-year students.

The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (B.E.O.G.) program was approved by Congress and signed into law in June of 1972 and is now being implemented for students entering college for the first time this year.

The maximum for eligible students can be as high as $1,400, minus the amount expected to be contributed by his or her family. The parent's contribution is set by federal guidelines and is applied consistently according to a formula based on income, family size and other factors.

The grant will be made directly to the student, who will then be able to set educational goals more flexibly. Those interested in applying may secure the qualifying forms and more information from David Tidwell, financial aid officer at the Southern Campus.

Tips On Current Garden Chores

There are a number of chores facing home gardeners in the next few weeks, according to Robert F. Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware. Here are some timely hints on three of these chores: fertilizing flower and vegetable gardens, pruning shrubs around the yard and thinning out strawberry beds now that they are through bearing.

Heavy rainfall this spring has leached out many plant nutrients, says Stevens. An additional application of fertilizer will help improve growth on many annual and perennial flowers, as well as vegetables. An application of one-fourth cup of 5-10-10 fertilizer per square yard on flowers is needed now. Add about one-half pound of 5-10-10 per 50 feet of row on vegetables like tomatoes, sweet corn, snap beans and limas. Spread the fertilizer on either side of the row and work it in lightly into the soil.

Be sure that you keep the fertilizer at least six inches away from the base of plants to avoid any burn. Fertilizers dissolved in water are safer to use and are quickly available to the plant. But with our heavy rainfall recently, you may not want to add any more water to your garden.

You can still prune most plants. It is important to prune some of the heavy, strong growth on the hedges to encourage more side branching, says Stevens. Other shrubs like yews, hollies, cherry laurel and so forth, may need additional pruning as the spring growth this year was heavy. Do not prune azaleas and rhododendrons now except for a few overgrown shoots. They will be setting buds for next year's flowers in a short time.

As a final chore, how about taking care of that strawberry bed now that this year's crop is finished? Be sure to thin out the bed so that rows are not overcrowded. This past spring many home gardeners had a poor crop of berries, as the plants were too thick. Try to keep the plants at least six inches apart. Rows should be one foot wide now, and not over a foot-and-a-half to two feet wide in August. Prune off all plants produced in September, as they only crowd out the good plants and reduce yields.

Green Salads-- A Summer Favorite

There are very few ingredients that haven't been used in some form of salad. The tossed green salad used along with a dinner or the chef's salad that is a meal are great warmweather favorites. Fortunately, salad greens are available all the year but of course they're less expensive when they are in season, says Gwen Colvin, extension home economist at the University of Delaware.

When shopping for salad greens, you should go to a market where the vegetable area is cooled or refrigerated and delicate greens get the care they deserve. If the greens are not cared for properly you will run the risk of getting "bruised" or "rusty" greens that will not be entirely usable.

A variety of greens will add interest, appearance and flavor to your salads, says Miss Colvin.

Iceberg--a heavy compact head of lettuce, is familiar to most people. Other greens include romaine--a tall head with stiff coarse leaves; escarole--with broad spiny leaves growing from a center stalk; and endive--with narrow, thin, twisted leaves shading from dark green at the edges to a pale yellow heart. These are excellent salad combinations. Of course, spinach, watercress and Chinese cabbage--which is somewhat milder than the regular cabbage--also will add flavor, color and variety to tossed salads.

What you do with greens when you get them home is important, reminds Miss Colvin. Before storing them, rinse them under the faucet, holding the stem end up--with the exception of iceberg--to avoid allowing the water to soak into the inner leaves. Or, dunk loose lettuce heads in a pan of tepid water and let them drain, stem end up.

Greens washed in tepid or lukewarm water will shed their sand more easily than those washed in cold water. Shake greens dry and store in the vegetable crisper of the refrigerator, wrapped in foil, plastic wrap or plastic bags, or store them on a low shelf of the refrigerator. Wrapping should have air holes to prevent decay of leaves.

There are many "do's" and "don't's" in the proper treatment of salad greens. We stand firmly on two "do's". (1) Always chill plates or bowls, and tear--do not cut--the greens. (2) Don't add moisture-producing foods such as tomatoes before coating the greens with a dressing.

Whatever you do, make sure the greens are dry so that the oil will adhere to every leaf.

Farmers Anticipate Corn Drying Problems

Farmers can anticipate drying problems with their corn harvest, if the present fuel shortage continues into this fall, as seems likely. The corn harvest season will begin in the latter part of August and last through October. It is estimated that there will be some 20 per cent more corn harvested here this year than last. But there will probably be 10 per cent less fuel available than last year to dry it.

With these facts in mind, don't install a new grain dryer unless you are absolutely sure you will be able to get the fuel you'll need to operate it, advises Thomas H. Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware. Most fuel suppliers are not taking on any new customers or increasing the amount of fuel deliveries to existing customers, says Williams. In light of the situation, it is important for farmers to find as many ways as possible to stretch their available fuel.

In the case of corn drying, such fuel economies could be critical, since it is essential to dry the corn in order to prevent spoilage. A reduction to 14 per cent moisture in stored corn is needed to keep mold from developing. Farmers can't take chances since even a small amount of spoilage renders the corn unusable for either animal or human consumption, Williams points out.

How can farmers reduce the fuel requirements for corn drying? By delaying harvesting as long as possible, to permit corn to dry in the fields. A hot fall with low humidity would be ideal, but of course there is no guarantee the weather will provide such co-operation. Even so, the longer the corn can dry in the fields, the lower its moisture content will be at harvest, and the less fuel will be needed for drying.

To illustrate, corn harvested at 30 per cent moisture and dried to 14 per cent must have to 14 per cent. This is 42 per cent less water that has to be removed from 24 per cent corn than from 30 per cent corn, which means much less fuel will be required for drying.

Research studies have shown that the maximum combine harvested yield of corn is obtained at 23 to 25 per cent moisture, Williams reminds.

12.8 pounds of water per bushel removed. While corn harvested at 24 per cent moisture requires the removal of only 7.4 pounds of water per bushel when dried

Delaware Produce Coming On Strong

Delaware produce is beginning to come on in volume. The spring cabbage crop is now past peak volume, but some excellent quality local cabbage is still available, according to Roger Ginder, extension marketing specialist at the University of Delaware.

A few Delaware-grown summer squash and zucchini are available at roadside markets. These squash are of excellent quality and can provide eating pleasure for those who enjoy squash dishes with their summer meals.

Locally grown cucumbers are now coming on in volume. Quality cucumbers are on the stands right now, says Ginder.

Two pick-your-own favorites--snap beans and blueberries--are in season now. Snaps can be picked in most parts of the state. Blueberries are available on a pick-your-own basis in the Georgetown-Millsboro area of Sussex County. Both of these items can be frozen for winter use as well as eaten fresh.

DAVE WOODWARD
ASSISTANT KENT COUNTY AGENT

An efficient hay handling results from co-ordination of harvesting, storing, and feeding. Rising labor costs plus scarcity of seasonal labor have forced many farmers to consider harvesting machinery that will reduce labor requirements. This necessitates machine capital investments in modern hay harvesting equipment systems.

A recent study more or less summarizes some of the economics of hay harvesting equipment. An automated system investment, not including the tractor, ranged from $8,000 for the mechanical baler accumulator towed behind the conventional hay bailer to $5,000 for a standard bailer. The hydraulic stack wagon system required an investment of around $6,025, the large round bale system $6,500, and the bale thrower system $6,050. The automatic bale wagon system required an investment of $7,600.

Annual fixed costs, including interest on investments, taxes, insurance and depreciation, amounted to 16.8 per cent of the machine, assuming an equipment life of ten years. Since the total fixed costs do not vary with the amount of use, the more tons of hay harvested each year, the lower the fixed costs per ton harvested.

Variable costs include fuel and oil, repairs and labor. Labor costs in the study were judged at $3 per hour, but individual farmers should estimate their own individual costs. Preliminary information indicates a range of from $1.50 per ton for the hydraulic stack wagon and large round bale system to $5 a ton for the standard bale system.

At low tonnage, all systems studied had very high total costs per ton. At 50 tons harvested annually, the hydraulic stack system and standard bale system had the lowest cost—about $20.85 per ton. This indicates that farmers who have fewer than 100 tons to bale annually should consider hiring a custom operator. In Indiana, custom rates run about $9 a ton, including hauling and stacking in the barn.

At 300 and 500 tons harvested a year, the big package systems had the lowest cost per ton; with the standard baler system the highest—about $7.70.

Other considerations in choosing a hay harvesting system include whether the hay will be sold, type of available storage weather conditions, how the hay is to be fed, availability of custom work, harvest capacity, other harvesting equipment already available on the farm and what other uses can be made of the harvesting equipment, such as baling straw and collecting corn stalks.

A little time spent calculating costs and returns on investments will prove profitable to anyone considering purchasing haying equipment.

For the first time in USDA records, a southern state does not have the most farm residents. The No. 1 farm state is Iowa. These facts are from a new report on farm population that takes the years from 1970 back to 1910.

The South's rapid loss in farms is a result of the mechanization of cotton farming and the near abandonment of the share-tenant system of farming. Non-farm areas have lured farm residents away with higher employment opportunities and living standards. Blacks have left the farms at extremely high rates. The South's black farm population has decreased well over 60 per cent during the 1960's.

The North Central States lost farm population at a much more modest rate than the South and moved up with the biggest regional share of the Nation's farm population—44 per cent as compared with the 39 per cent for the South. The Northeast and the West had about the same share of the farm population in 1970 as they had in 1960, 7 per cent and 10 per cent respectively.

North and South Dakota far outdistanced all other states in percentage of population on farms. Both states had about one out of every four residents living on farms in 1970. Throughout the Nation, only 13 states had a farm population that accounted for 10 per cent or more of the state's total population. This is in sharp contrast to 1920. Then 11 of the 48 states had a majority of their residents living on farms and two-thirds of the states had a fourth or more of their residents on farms. The farm population has decreased, mainly because of higher income opportunities in other non-farm jobs. The farmer has become the most efficient producer of goods in the world, but he must make a profit in order to stay in business.

It Seems To Me

Delaware shines again! We have a first place National winner in the Grange sewing contest. Mrs. Mabel Massey of Dover won first place in Class A division for persons 18 years of age or over sewing for themselves or someone of the same age group. I was privileged to be one of the judges for the state contest so I know what an excellent job, Mrs. Massey did.

A real winner always stands out because the outfit suits the wearer so well. Mrs. Massey's dress is a polyester knit in soft colors becoming to her. The dress fit her perfectly and was one of the best pressed garments I have seen in a long time. The dress had enough detail to be interesting but not so much as to detract from the wearer. Workmanship was perfect. There was no evidence of hem showing on the right side - a common trouble spot in polyester knits.

We are proud of Mrs. Massey and wish her well as she competes with the other class winners from Kansas and Nebraska for the best of show prize. This competition will be at the National Grange meeting in November and the top prize is a week for two in Jamaica.

It's about time Delaware had a winner in the Make It With Wool Contest, too. Announcements are out about this contest so this is another opportunity for Delaware's fine seamstresses to shine. The contest is sponsored by the American Wool Council.

The Delaware Make It With Wool contest will be on Dec. 1 at Agricultural Hall in Newark. Deadline for entries is Oct. 25. Winners will be selected in each of these three classes: Pre-teens (ages 10-13), Junior (ages 14 - 16) and Senior (ages 17 - 21). Winners in the Junior and Senior divisions will participate in a regional judging for the Mid-Atlantic states. Regional winners will compete in the national contest at San Diego, Calif. The national winner will receive a trip to Europe but there are lots of other prizes along the way.

All entries must be made from American wool yarn or American wool fabric. A fabric or yarn which contains no more than five per cent of another fiber may be used. The name of the manufacturer of the fabric

Casseroles Can Be A Questionable Economy

You hear many people say that you save money when you serve a casserole instead of meat. It is true that a casserole can be low-priced. But this is not always the case. Casseroles can be a questionable economy, says Anne Holberton, extension consumer education and marketing specialist at the University of Delaware.

If you add up the cost of making some casseroles, you may be surprised to find they're actually more expensive than a cut of meat. Take for example the casseroles that include condensed soups, sour cream, or such exotic ingredients as water chestnuts, mushrooms, nuts, mandarin oranges or lots of some special cheese. All these good things help make a or yarn must be included on the entry form. If it is not an American firm, the entry is disqualified.

Further information about the contest may be obtained from the State Chairman, Mrs. Paul Roach, Cypress Road, Route 2, Townsend, Del., 19734, or from county co-operative extension offices.

casserole taste better, but they also take it out of the low-cost category. On the other hand, you can really save on food costs when you expand protein foods like meat, poultry and fish with low-cost noodles, spaghetti, rice or beans.

How can you tell whether or not the casserole you plan to make is really an economy? To make cost comparisons, add up the cost of every one of the ingredients, says Miss Holberton. Then divide your total by the number of servings you get from the dish. Anything under 20 cents a serving you can consider economical. But if the price goes much beyond that figure, you may find some meats would actually cost you less, served without all the extras—and the extra work—that went into that casserole.

Right now we see a lot of advertising about prepared products that can be used to make many dishes. Usually they contain everything needed except the meat called for in the dish. They purport to be the key to inexpensive meal-making. But are they really, asks Miss Holberton. Quite probably not.

ingredients together to make the meat go as far as it will go.

But remember one thing. Sometimes you can stretch a good thing too far. So stretch that food dollar as far as you reasonably can in the casseroles and main dishes you prepare. Just be sure you don't stretch it to the point where nobody will eat the results of your economies. Then you've stretched your food dollar too far.

Electric irons should be polished occasionally with waxed paper. Heat the iron on low; then slide it over the paper lightly a few times. This gives the base plate of the iron a slight coat of wax. In turn, this coat of wax will make it easier to slide the iron over clothes. Stains on the bottom of irons can be polished off with silver polish. A harsh abrasive will scratch the base plate so always avoid these.

DTCC Needs Student Services

A share of the preparation for September's entering class at Delaware Technical and Community College Southern Campus rests with the Office of Student Services headed by Dean Robert Trout.

Trout and his staff of counselors have been busy through the year, especially in the spring, visiting area high schools to talk with graduating seniors about educational opportunities at the local campus. Their work continues through the summer months, when prospective students visit the campus for a look at the facilities, for further information about programs, or about financial aid.

The admission procedures require that each entering student participate in a guidance and placement program scheduled by the college, and an individual interview with a counselor. The results of the placement testing will indicate whether a student may be admitted directly into a degree program or whether the counselor recommends "Pre-Technology" in which additional training and individual instruction is given in such subjects as mathematics, English or writing. When a proficiency level is attained, the student then enters the full technology program.

Applications for the fall quarter should be made before Aug. 10; however, counselors in Student Service are ready to process those received after that date.

While many entering students know exactly what program they desire, others may want detailed information about alternatives, and there are some who have not yet made a choice. This is where the counseling service proves its value.

Determinations can be made on particular aptitudes possessed by the undecided, and several options can be offered by the counselors.

Among the associate degree programs that the counselors explain to the prospective students have been adopted by the college to meet area and industrial and business needs. These include architectural engineering design, medical laboratory technology, secretarial technology, manufacturing and industrial laboratory technologies, criminal justice, electronics-electrical engineering technology, civil engineering tech, business administration, data processing, and the newly established programs in agri-business technology, human services technology, retail management, natural resources technology and journalism.

There are also several special occupations and co-operative programs, most of which involve a combination of study and job-interning in business or industry. These include: hotel-motel-restaurant management, journalism, and science education tech.

The South campus also offers a liberal arts program, through a contract with the University of Delaware. This enables area students to complete the first two years toward a baccalaureate degree while living at home, before going to the Newark U. of D. campus to complete the four years required. Applications for liberal arts must be made through the university's college parallel office at the Del. Tech campus.

Students who must work at a job in order to attend the college find that many of the courses required for the associate degree they seek are available through the evening division classes.

A one-year diploma in practical nursing is available, as are several certificate programs of varying lengths of training.

The college has several programs operated through the federal-and state-funded Manpower Development Training Administration, including truck-driver training, combination welding, and auto- and truck-body repair. These are specifically set up to train unemployed or employed persons, with preference given to veterans.

Members of Dean Trout's counseling staff are James D. Fallon, registrar, G. Timothy Kavel, James A. Yori, and Harold S. McTeer Jr., all of Seaford; Terry Johnson, Harrington; Albert J. Jones, Laurel; Paul M. N. Selby, Milton; and David D. Tidwell, financial aid officer, of Georgetown.

Catalogs describing the many programs and details of courses of study are available by calling the college at 856-7711 or writing to Delaware Technical and Community College Southern Campus, Georgetown, Del. 19947.

Pepper Family Reunion

The Pepper Family Association will hold its 38th annual reunion at Trap Pond near Laurel, Sun., Aug. 5. Families will assemble at noon for a picnic dinner. Following a short business meeting history and gifts will be given. President Henry C. Johnson III will preside. Vice president is Mrs. Florence Gillespie, Milford; secretary, Mrs. Sarilee Wharton, Millsboro; treasurer, Warren James, Glenn Mills.

Descendants are from Robert Pepper who migrated to Massachusetts from England in 1640. The late Lt. General Robert Houston Pepper, when visiting the 1962 reunion as speaker, related having looked up Peppers wherever he traveled and said he found them in most every state of the union, New Zealand, England and Ireland. Mrs. Nettie Ziegler, Bridgeville, replacing her mother, Mrs. Ellen Pepper Penuel Chinn, as historian, relates she is corresponding with Peppers throughout the nation. She would like history of all births, marriages and deaths during the year in order to give a more comprehensive report prior to the reunion. This may be sent to her or to secretary, Sarilee Wharton.

Central and western Peppers inspired by Mrs. Florence Pepper Raya, Ft. Madison, Iowa, held their second reunion in June at McMinnville, Tenn., with approximately 100 in attendance from 10 states, Canada and Africa. Mrs. Raya has just published "The History of The Pepper Family in America and Allied Lines". In tracing her family history, Mrs. Raya and her husband, Kaleel, traveled more than 12,000 miles, wrote hundreds of letters and made many personal contacts. They visited Delaware and Mrs. Zeigler in '71. Mrs. Raya is a counterpart of the late Mrs. Chinn and the late Carlton Pepper, both genealogists, whose Pepper history is compiled in Carlton's book published in 1960. Mrs. Zeigler will have on display and for sale Pepper Coat of Arms which she and JoAnn Adams have hand colored and Mrs. Zeigler has decoupage. Profits will go toward the Joshua Pepper Memorial Cemetery Fund. The cemetery is in Georgetown.
