The Kent County Board of Adjustment last Tuesday night cleared the way for installation of three propane gas storage tanks near Harrington.

The board also gave approvals allowing location of a truck sales, service and salvage business, three private garages and a horse stable and expansion of a ceramics business.

The board approved a request by Propane Gas Service of Delaware for the installation of three 30,000-gallon propane storage tanks on property on the west side of US 13 near Harrington.

The board approved two similar requests from other propane gas companies last month as dealers contend the additional storage is needed to meet fuel needs this winter.

In other action, the board: — Approved a variance request by Alfred H. Short Jr., to build a garage on the southwest side of Kent 129 in Twin Eagle Farms near Blackston. — Approved a request by Jack

LEVY COURT OKAYS NEW COURTHOUSE

The Kent County Levy Court voted 6 to 1 to go ahead with plans to build a new county courthouse.

The vote followed the recommendation of Commissioner James B. McIlvaine's capital improvements committee to proceed with the new building and retain Chicago architect Walter H. Sobel as the county's consultant. In a report to the county in August, Sobel estimated the county would outgrow even an expanded courthouse on the present site by 1991.

Voting against the decision Tuesday was Commissioner William Paskey, D-Felton. He said he favored an addition to the present building, one of three alternatives that were proposed. "I just hate to see the courthouse leave the Green," Paskey said.

In addition to expanding the present courthouse, the Levy Court had considered a new facility, and purchase of the Farmer's Bank Building on Lockerman Street for additional space. The county is still considering using the bank building for temporary office space until a new building is completed. Levy Court President Joshua M. Twilley said Friday he would press for some action on a courthouse facility at Tuesday's meeting. After the vote, he said the courthouse decision was "one of the few big decisions" remaining for Kent County.

Sobel had estimated a new building would cost the county more than $3 million. His consulting fee for the first phase of the project, to include site selection and preliminary planning, would be about $25,000.

Also Tuesday, the Levy Court: — Asked the planning commission to consider a change in the county subdivision ordinance, requiring a developer to construct streets or post a bond for street work before building permits can be issued.

— Sent to committee a proposal from the Board of Adjustment for changes in the tax exemption regulations for elderly citizens. The board proposed allowing a husband and wife jointly to earn $5,000 instead of the present $3,000; reducing the residency requirement from three years to one year and having the board send out applications annually in December, to be returned Feb. 1, rather than the present April 1;

The exemption presently applies to the first $5,000 of assessed valuation for persons over 65 paying property taxes. The commission also indicated a desire to consider raising that exemption.

Unanimously approved the nomination of former Kent County Deputy Sheriff Hayes Fountain to replace Brice Hickman on the Kent County Regional Planning Commission. Fountain is from Milford and will serve for the remainder of Hickman's term, about three years.

To say that Harrington threw a birthday party Wed., Sept. 26, would be the understatement of the year. It was an occasion acknowledged by President Nixon himself; it was a night when Gene Bookhammer made a three-year-old boy Honorary Lieutenant of Delaware; it was a party where Kent County merchants opened their hearts and their purses in the first step toward establishing an official Delaware Chapter for Cystic Fibrosis research. It was also a night when host Harrington Raceway had its biggest Wednesday night in years.

Guest of honor was Robbie Burgess, Delaware's poster boy for the annual September campaign for Cystic Fibrosis. On hand was U.S. Rep. Pete duPont, state chairman for the campaign, who presented the youngster with a historic flag that had flown over the Capital Building.

The party was the pet project of Harrington Raceway's Director of Special Events, Jeff Hand, himself a CF patient at the Delaware's Veterans Administration Hospital. Backed by Herman Brown, track president, and George Simpson, general manager, Jeff escorted young Robbie as he explored the raceway from the kitchen to the winner's circle to the broadcaster's booth, where announcer Jack Talley and Harrington's judges welcomed him as he watched the final race.

Also on hand were groups from the First National Bank of Harrington and the Civilian Management Club from Dover's Air Force Base, who shared in Robbie's birthday cake.

Record Was Short-Lived For Quillen's Lucky B.K.

For Frank Quillen recognition as one of the top 2-year-old colts owners in the country was short-lived.

The Harrington auctioneer's Lucky B.K. set the season's top mile time when he won the eighth race at Liberty Bell in 2:03 4-5 seconds Wednesday, topping the old mark for the nation's 2-year-old colts and geldings by one-fifth of a second.

Over the weekend, however, Patrick Lobell, a 2-year-old from out west, according to Quillen, toured the mile in 2:00 4-5.

Wednesday night he ran for a $5,000 purse at Liberty Bell and Oct. 10 Lucky B.K. will try for the $17,000 purse which concludes the fall freshman series at the Philadelphia harness track.

Ten children were promoted from Whirly Birds to Jet Cadets and received their cadet hats. Thirteen were graduated from Jet Cadets to Alpha Teens and were presented with corsages and boutonnières and their awards.

Carol Cox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cox, was the guest of honor, having accomplished in one year what would usually have taken three years. She was awarded the Medal of Honor, the highest award that can be achieved in the Cadet program.

The Whirly Bird receiving the highest honors was her little sister, Linda Cox.

Wendy Laughery and Kelly Taylor received recognition for perfect attendance.

The speaker for the banquet was the Rev. William Drury, sponsor of Teen Haven and speaker for the recent "Crusade for Christ". Bob Neff, who works with him, was the guest soloist.

Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Adams were Sunday hosts at the Dutch Inn for Mr. and Mrs. Edgar English.

Mrs. Dorothy Hall was given a surprise birthday party by her little daughter, Dawn Hall.

Harry Benson Is First But Senators Nip Spartans

Jim Blades' Lake Forest Spartans' cross-country team had another tough loss to put behind them, as a strong Dover seven, coached by Grover Johnson, edged the locals 26 to 29. Lake Forest was second in the Henlopen Conference in 1972 and figured to be the team to beat this fall with everybody back, but lost several key men for one reason or another. However, the Spartans can beat anybody in the loop on a good day and are aiming to rack up a 16th straight winning season. Fifteen-year-old soph, Harry "Smooth" Benson, still boiling after an 11th place finish in the Lake Forest Invitational, took the lead early and refused to be beaten, as he fought off two challenging Dover seniors in the homestretch. Benson's 13:26 clocking was 21 seconds better than his invitational performance and gives him the Spartan record here. Ed Thompson (4th) and Ron Mosely (5th) gave Lake Forest a temporary lead, but Dover had the next three spots to get the nod. Terry Pettyjohn was boxed in early by slower runners and had a rare (for him) off day. Kit Tilghman, just off the sick list, ran very well to finish 10th. Steve Saulsbury, a first-year harrier, improved his personal best by 51 seconds to record 14:25. His brother, Grant, lowered his time by 23 seconds, as this pair made the top seven for Lake Forest. Bob Kashner and Bob Mulane were more than half a minute faster this time out. Powerful Danny Parker, a 13-year-old novice, cut his time by 23 seconds and won the reserve race with an excellent 14:10 effort. David Richter was next with a very good 14:31 after a week off because of illness. He and Parker could make the varsity

Dover Air Wins Lake Forest Invitational

Dover Air's Falcons, coached by Charles Bell, upset pre-race prognostications and won the 16th annual Lake Forest Invitational Cross-County championship run, over five opposing teams. Ten days earlier, Lake Forest had scrimmaged the Falcons and had finished four men behind Dover Air ace Bob Baca. This time, however, Bentley and Ridgeway came in second and third to upset several runners rated higher than the flying pair. Lake Forest had three ailing runners and when another pair turned in sub-par performances, had to settle for third place, one point behind Dover. Caesar Rodney and Lake Forest were pre-race favorites. Ed Thompson, Ron Mosely, Terry Pettyjohn and Harry Benson were 5th, 7th, 8th and 11th for the Spartans. The first three named were trophy winners. In the junior varsity division, a new star was born. Danny Parker, a 13-year-old eighth grader, running for W.T. Chipman School, spreadeagled a field of sixty runners. Parker, who showed signs of modest ability in a practice run at Middletown, came in 24 seconds ahead of the second place runner. He easily handled runners as much as five years older. Freshman George Gibbs was 8th in 15:13, followed by Maurice A. Coverdale in 15:14 and Steve Saulsbury in 15:16.

Knights Lance Spartans 30-1

Sussex Central's undefeated Golden Knight eleven, came to Harrington with a reputation as a pass-oriented combine, but eschewed the pass until they had established a strong, running attack. The ground game worked so well that Sussex Central's Joe Shockley went to the air only five times and completed four, all to flanker Tom Marvel, enroute to a 30-0 win. Sussex Central recovered a Spartan fumble on the first play from scrimmage, gained 11 yards to the Spartan 14 and fumbled it back. Lake Forest reached Sussex Central's 48, then turned the ball over again. The Knights went in for the score, staying on the ground to the 15, then covering the rest of the distance as Marvel out-fought a defender for the tally. The extra point try went awry, as it did all evening, but that's not much consolation. Zack Taylor took the kickoff bolted up the middle into the clear, but was eventually hauled down by the safety man at the enemy 28. Sussex Central stopped the threat, then tallied again before halftime on a 14 yard run by Alfred Reed. The second half was more misery for the Spartan cause, as the visitors cashed in three more six-pointers, in the third period, then gave their reserves some playing time. It's time to journey again to Lewes for the annual confrontation between Al Wood's Spartans and Bill Muchleisen's Cape Henlopen Vikings. Muchleisen was head coach at Harrington High and Lake Forest High. Wood was one of his assistants, but has held the upper hand over his old boss since Bill went to the seashore. This year's Viking crew looked good in winning its first two starts, then absorbed a 32-6 shellacking at the hands of Smyrna's unbeaten Eagles. Smyrna beat Lake Forest by a similar margin, but Cape Henlopen has to be the favorite in Friday night's clash, if only because of the home field advantage. The Spartans will be thinking upset as they strive to finally enter the win column.

Dave Richter Makes All-Time List At Rockford Park

Canterbury's David Richter, a 13-year-old distance prospect, who started running this spring, turned in a startling performance at Wilmington's Rockford Park, this weekend. David was competing in a junior high race over the 2.1 miles course and finished 50 seconds ahead of another W.T. Chipman School eighth grader, Danny Parker. Bill Moore and Mike Smith were third and fourth, for a Lake Forest district sweep. David's clocking of 12:10 was the seventh best effort to be recorded over the Rockford course by Harrington High and Lake Forest athletes, over a period of 17 years. During that span of time, hundreds of local athletes have competed there. In fact, every top-flight distance runner of this district since 1957 has vied at Rockford, and there have been many such excellent performers. Chris Wetherhold's 11:24 clocking of 1968 heads the list. Clarence Hackett's 11:27 in 1961, is runnerup, followed by State Champion Harry Knott's 11:35 in 1960. Dennis Roger's 11:40 in 1964 missed a state title by one-tenth of a second. Harry Benson's 11:42 in 1972 was a great run by a 14-year-old freshman. Ronald "The Champ" Morris recorded an 11:58, 4th place performance in the 1966 state meet. All of these races were run in late October or in November, under the stress of championship competition, by high school athletes, in peak form, at the end of the harrier season. Richter is a junior high athlete. He had been out sick for a week before the race and the event was a low-pressure test, in which competition was practically non-existent. Considering all the factors, David's performance would have to rank with Wetherhold's sophomore run and Benson's freshman race, as the best in local history. Maurice "Reese Cup" Coverdale turned in an amazing 13:13 clocking at age 10, to best a previously unbeaten Wilmington lad, by two full minutes in the elementary division.

Harrington Bowling League

Leah S. Wheeler Jarrell Fuel and McKnatt Funeral Home clashed Tuesday night in a strongly contested battle, with McKnatts emerging a three-to-one winner. Jarrell Fuel, by coming out on the short end, found themselves in a tie for the top spot. Robert Jarrell and Howard Tibbitt bowled good above average efforts for Jarrells. Ken Garey and Harry Jack again bowled real well to give McKnatt's a little extra scoring power they needed. The Spoilers caught Robbin's Hardware napping, as they took all four points to move up into a tie for the lead. Leonard Outen headed the team with a fine 525 set and all the rest of the members bowled real well for a full team effort, with Jack Sapp narrowly missing a bid for a triplicate patch Robbin's Hardware received a real good effort from Frank Robbins. Larry Horseman, again this week, paced the Brothers Five squad to a four point victory over Butler's Fuel with a great 551 series as the rest of the team contributed above average efforts. Larry Larimore and Dickie Collins bowled well for Butler's for a losing cause. People's Restaurant lost a bid to overtake the top position by falling victim to the T & M Rejects in two games to break even for the night. Tuesday night's two point win was the first for the Rejects this season, but they have served notice that they are now on the move. Frank Collins scattered the pins for a 206 game as he hit a fine 543 set and William Manship added a good 200 game and 529 series for People's. The Rejects' Bob Wilson scored a great 220 game and a fine series and Junior Bishop rolled a real good 524 set as the four man squad bowled real well. Don Jester amassed a grand 543 series and a 218 game and Leroy Wheeler hit a good 540 series, with John Forbes chipping in with a fine 201 game and

Mid-Del Fun Day

Cub Scouts from all over will be converging on Killens Pond State Park this Sat., Oct. 6, as the Mid-Del District stages its second annual Fun Day. The day's activities, which feature a parade, olympics, and carnival, are scheduled from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and are intended to include Cub Scout families as well as the Cubs themselves. Registration from 9 to 9:30 will be followed at 10 by a parade of all participating Cub Scout packs during which each pack will have a two minute opportunity to perform in front of the judges stand. Other events of the day include competition over an obstacle course, a sack race, and carnival type booths to be sponsored by the various packs. This year, prizes will be awarded in the following categories: First Place Marching - a pack trophy; First Place Booth - a pack trophy; First Place Obstacle Course - a pack trophy and a trophy for the fastest boy; Sack Race - first and second place for individual boys. Immediately following the parade, the winner and runners up in the Fun Day Patch contest held last spring will be announced. The Fun Day patches, which will be awarded through the packs to the Cubs and leaders who participate in the day's events, have been made up from a winning design submitted by a Cub Scout somewhere in the Mid-Del District. Mugs with the patch design will be available for purchase. Refreshments including hot dogs and soft drinks, will be on sale at a concession operated by a Girl Scout troop. Families will also have the option of bringing their own picnics.

WORTHY LAD WINS ALL ON THE OUTSIDE

Worthy Lad owned by the Sally Patch Farm of Westminster, Md., and driven and trained by Judy Emerson, showed his heels to the best pacers at Harrington Raceway Sunday despite the fact that he was parked outside for the entire mile. The eight-year-old bay gelding by Direct Lad has found a new lease on life the past two seasons winning on 12 occasions with 11 seconds and eight thirds in 52 starts while earning $18,647 to almost double his previous lifetime output. Judy's charge defeated the ever-present Solar Cain right at the wire stopping the timer at 2:05.4 over a race track dulled by Saturday's heavy rains. Judy exclaimed "He just seems to get better with age. This summer at Brandywine he would have taken a new race record of 2:01 flat, but we were in trouble throughout the mile and the best he could manage was a fast-closing second, pacing in 2:01.3. He's as sharp now as he's ever been and who knows about next year!" Also on Sunday's program Hubert Jackson's El Mayordomo won his fourth in a row with a handy win in 2:08.4 to notch his 13th triumph in 18 1973 tries. The score boosted his earnings for the season over the $18,000 mark as the 17-year-old son of the great Adios Butler continues to add to each $1,000 to his total every time he steps on the race track. The Fall meeting at the Harrington oval has been going well and the handle shows a steady increase over last autumn's record total. Track officials announced that afternoon and evening doubleheader racing will continue Sunday with the day sessions beginning at 1:30 p.m. and the night program starting at 7 p.m. Director of Racing, John Phillips, is busy assembling a stellar field of horses for the proposed $7,500 Invitational event for pacers to be held later in the meeting.

E. Encephalitis Diagnosed in Del.

Delaware has experienced its first case of equine encephalitis (or "sleeping sickness") of 1973, according to Dr. W.H. Towers Jr., Delaware State Veterinarian. The diagnosis was made from the brain of a pony that died in the Kitts Hummock area. The pony had not had a current vaccination for the disease. Dr. Towers explained that the encephalitis virus isolated was the "eastern" type. This is the type of infection usually found in this area and not the Venezuelan strain which invaded Texas in 1971 killing several hundred horses. Other states along the eastern coast are having quite a problem with the disease, especially those in the New England area. Locally, Maryland has had two confirmed cases and New Jersey has had nine. The disease usually appears in this area from the middle of August until the time of the first hard frost. The mosquito is the mode by which the virus is transmitted to horses from the wild bird and wild animal population. The virus can overwinter in these wild creatures with no apparent sign of the disease. The disease is often called "sleeping sickness" because of the symptoms seen in the affected horse. The animal may stand with legs wide apart and head drooping, oblivious to immediate surroundings. Other symptoms include apparent blindness, aimless walking and incoordination. The virus attacks the brain of the horse or pony; therefore, the symptoms seen are neurological in nature. This disease is usually fatal once a horse becomes infected. It is the usual practice to vaccinate horses and ponies against this disease in the springtime before the mosquito population reaches its highest numbers. The vaccine is very effective and provides protection against the "eastern" as well as the "western" types of encephalitis virus. Although the vaccine does not give maximum protection to the animal until about two weeks after administration, there will be some degree of immunity to those vaccinated now that were not done in the springtime. There have been no confirmed cases of encephalitis in Delaware since the summer of 1970. In addition to the one confirmed case this year, there are two suspicious cases awaiting laboratory diagnosis. FRANCIS WEBB
KENT COUNTY AGENT

Examining Christmas trees grown in Pennsylvania was the interest of the Delaware Christmas Tree Growers Association on its recent tour.

The Delaware Christmas Tree Growers Association is a group of Christmas tree growers interested in the promotion of live Christmas trees for Delaware as well as high quality trees to be supplied to the market.

The tour group went up in the Reading area and visited three outstanding Christmas tree plantations. New, to you it probably seems a little bit silly to be looking at Christmas trees this time of year, but to the Christmas tree grower, this is the time of year he is making final preparation on his trees for the holiday season.

Production of Christmas trees has the connotation of just letting young evergreen seedlings grow wild until they reach eight to ten years old, then harvest them for the holiday season. This couldn't be further from the truth, because good quality trees do not grow by themselves. It takes cultural care in pruning, maintaining vegetative growth around the trees, as well as spraying for insects and diseases. Only through these practices can a good tree be supplied for your selection.

Let's take a minute to give some highlights of the tour, which, I believe will be interesting to you, even though you are just a Christmas tree purchaser and not a grower. The DeLong Farm was the first visit. This is a 35-acre plantation run by Tom DeLong as a family operation. He grows Douglas fir, Scotch pine, white pine, and a few other insignificant varieties, such as balsam fir and Australian pine. Most of these trees are sold as six to eight foot trees and many have been growing for 14 to 16 years before reaching this height.

You can see this is a long term investment for most Pennsylvania tree growers. Mr. DeLong has been operating this family-run operation for about twenty years. He supplies about 4500 trees of various species each year. He takes a great deal of pride in growing his trees, and every tree grown on his farm is pruned at least once every two years. His trees are very high quality and demands for such trees are high.

To give you an idea on prices given for such trees, six to eight foot Douglas firs are sold for around $7 wholesale, and this is by the truckload. But believe me, with the time he has invested, they are certainly not overpriced. You can also tell they are not overpriced because this variety of tree is in short supply each year.

We then moved on to Sherlund Forest—about 100 acres of trees. This operation, too, was very impressive, but it was more on a commercial basis. At this stop we became aware of a serious problem that has been occurring in many parts of the Christmas tree growing areas of Pennsylvania. Large areas of ten to 14-year-old trees were dying mysteriously. After a thorough investigation by the University of Pennsylvania, growers, and other informed people, it was apparent these trees were dying of an overabundance of water, generally referred to as "wet feet". They believe that the previous three to four years of heavy rains have been the cause of this.

Because this is widespread throughout many parts of Pennsylvania, Christmas trees will be in short supply this season, especially high quality trees. After a thorough discussion of production of trees and demands, the manager at Sherlund Forest displayed a new machine that they had patented for standing your Christmas tree for both displays and the individual homeowner. It is a method of drilling a tapered putting the tree in a stand that holds in the base of the tree and putting the tree in a stand that has the exact same size tapered pin. The tree does not need other support. According to them, this new technique has been widely accepted in the Pennsylvania area. They also supply a home tree stand that holds water with the tapered pin to support the tree.

The group then moved on to our third and last stop—Jacob Koch's. This large supplier of Scotch pine was also an impressive operation. After talking with Mr. Koch for a short period, it became quite apparent that they too, in Pennsylvania, have their problems in growing good quality trees. Apparently, in many parts of Pennsylvania, diseases have set in heavily on Christmas trees, especially on Scotch pines.

While standing on a ridge behind his home place looking out over a 25-acre Scotch pine field, it was almost breath-taking to see literally thousands of perfectly shaped Christmas trees. He impressed us that these trees were eight to ten years old and have had many, many hours of hand labor applied to them for pruning, pest control, and mowing. Mr. Koch thoroughly enjoys growing Christmas trees, but indicated that there were many headaches in that line of work. He also stated, as would be expected, when growing a crop that is only in demand for a few weeks throughout the year, there is a long time between drinks. I think we all know what he means!

It is in these places that the Delaware Christmas Tree Growers Association visited that supplies of many of our high-quality Christmas trees for the holiday season. All of them impressed upon us that it is

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne W. Holberton

With all we've heard lately about food cost, food scarcities and food substitutes, many of you may be thinking of buying a side of beef for your freezer.

Do you know what to look for? Do you understand beef quality, grades, yields and the difference between buying beef in bulk and in the super market?

Just in case you are thinking about a purchase of this kind here are a few tips from the USDA that will certainly help you. First look for the USDA Quality Grade. This will assure you of good eating quality since there are eight grades to choose from. These eight USDA grades are Prime, Choice, Good, Standard, Commercial, Utility, Cutter and Canner. The federally graded beef will be identified by a red shield-shaped stamp enclosing one of these eight grade names. Choice and Good are readily available and many times you can get Prime. Prime, of course, is the highest quality and will cost the most. However, Choice particularly the upper grade is very high in quality certainly not an easy job, but there can be a lot of satisfaction in that type work.

The Delaware Christmas Tree Growers certainly thank these people for allowing us to visit with them, and for me to be able to extend this information on to you.

and is the most common grade found at the market. USDA Good is also quite satisfactory to most beef eaters. If you are doubtful of this try a piece and see what you think. Now, remember, not all beef is federally graded. Check this out before you buy.

Carcass beef is sold by its "hanging weight" meaning you pay for the whole thing, including the fat and bone that is trimmed away when it's cut. Here is an average example of what I'm talking about: when you buy a 300 pound side of beef you will probably realize about 225 pounds of retail cut to store in your freezer. However, you will pay for the 300 pounds. So when you figure up the cost remember those 75 pounds you paid for—the cost of the edible part is much higher. Remember too, a side of beef is not all steak—there's a lot of hamburger, more than you may have thought.

Be sure when you are checking to look for the USDA Yield Grade. Why? Because some carcasses have much more waste than others—and this is very important in determining their value. To determine about how much waste you will have to pay for refer to the yield grade shield. The highest, Yield Grade 1—will yield about 80 per cent or more retail cuts to take home, compared to the lowest—Yield Grade 5—which will yield about 66 per cent or less retail cuts.

Bulk buying usually involves a considerable amount of money. Learn all about it before you buy. If you are really interested then write for a single free copy of "How To Buy Meat for Your Freezer," (G-166) to: Office of Communications, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250. Please be sure to include your zip code. It's a booklet full of a lot of good information.

Simply elegant! That's the best way to describe a designer collection I was privileged to see recently in New York. Gus Tassell of The House of Norell showed his fall collection at one of New York's department stores. He is a master of tailoring and you didn't need a ring-side seat to observe the superb workmanship, the beautiful fabrics, and the elegance of simple uncluttered lines.

Every designer has his own interpretation of the season. This daytime collection was largely in neutral shades of beige, gray, black, brown and cream. Colors were very subtle peach, cinnamon or brick tones. The one-color effect from head to toe was shown on every model. All daytime outfits featured the same hat and the same neat, low-heeled pumps. Hosiery was light in color. Hair was short and straight. Practically no jewelry was worn except earrings. Just simple, uncluttered, good-looking clothes.

It was interesting to see how one basic silhouette had been varied. The same slightly A-line dress might have a high-shaped collar, or no collar at all. It might have long sleeves or short; patch pockets on bodice, skirt, or pockets in the seams. The dress might have a back zipper, or open in the front with single or double breasted closures. It might be one or two piece. It was shown with a fairly wide belt fastened with two buttons at the side front, or one button in back. The different neutrals of plain wool fabric had perfectly matching hat and shoes. Buttons were either fabric covered or color matched. This basic dress could be worn for years and always be in style.

Tassell used a lot of black for day and evening in dresses and coats. A long, black, wool evening dress with a slip top was revealed with a beautiful sparkling necklace. Other evening clothes were of sequins or of bugle-beaded fabric, and perfectly simple in line to show off the elegance of the fabric. A slight fringe of bugle beads often trimmed a jacket or skirt.

Only two pants costumes were shown in the entire collection, and these were for evening.

Coats were shown in a variety of styles, often in colors to match a dress or suit. There were fitted, straight and back-plicated styles to suit anyone's taste and figure. Fur-collared coats revealed entire fur linings. It seemed a waste of mink and sable to have it all on the inside, but this was in character with the collection.

There are many looks available in fashion today. This collection is only one, but it represents the epitome of true fashion elegance.

HOMEOWNERS CORNER

There is quite a number of distinct kinds of nails, most of them for very special purposes. Generally, the home handyman uses only a few of the more common types. Common nails, for example, are used for heavy work, such as house framing. Box nails are similar with diamond-shaped points. Although they are not so thick or heavy, they are almost as strong. Finish nails have little or no head and are used for decorative woodwork.

We have the supplies you need for all kinds of purposes. Before you start your handyman jobs visit HARRINGTON LUMBER & SUPPLY, Harrington, 398-3241.
