THE FABRIC HUT had a most auspicious grand opening Saturday at Quillen's Shopping Center. Miss Delaware, Miss Jackie LaGuardia, cuts the cake while Mrs. Clara Drabbant, one of the owners, awaits.

Governor Sherman Tribbitt officially opened the Fabric Hut, a new shop in Quillens Shopping Center, Sat., Oct. 6. He was assisted by Miss Delaware, Miss Jackie La Guardia of Milford. The shop is owned and operated by Mrs. Clara Drabbant and Mrs. Helen Alterowitz. Jack Wyatt of Harrington City Council, was there to greet the governor.

The shop will be open every day and three evenings a week. Free sewing lessons are given Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Refreshments will be served all week through Oct. 18, when there will be a drawing for door prizes. They will specialize in custom made drapes, slip covers and alterations. They have a wide variety of fabric.

Local Student Awarded National Scholarship

Olin B. Davis Jr., 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Olin Davis of Harrington, has been named one of four national winners of the Harness Tracks of America-Harry M. Stevens Scholarships, inaugurated this year for harness drivers, trainers and caretakers.

Young Davis, whose father is a veteran trainer-driver of standardbred horses, is a sophomore majoring in accounting at the University of Delaware. An honor student who was class president three of his four years at Lake Forest High School, Davis also participated in school music, sports and journalism activities. Davis has worked as an assistant program director at Brandywine Raceway and plans to specialize in race track accounting upon completion of his schooling.

Davis will receive a $500 grant from Harness Tracks of America, the association of North American harness tracks which has introduced the scholarships in conjunction with the Harry M. Stevens sports catering firm of New York City.

The HTA-Stevens Scholarships will honor the memory of the late Harry M. Stevens, founder of the sports catering company that bears his name.

Other winners of the inaugural scholarships include Daniel Wilson, a pre-veterinary medicine student whose father, David, is a trainer-driver in the Robert Williams stable; Bernard Hylan, a junior majoring in biology at Villanova University, who is the son of veteran trainer-driver Joe Hylan; and Molly Lyn Sheaffer, a freshman at Slippery Rock State College planning to specialize in courses leading to a position as a military law librarian, whose late father was the veteran owner-driver-trainer, William Sheaffer.

After the game, the annual goalpost party for alumni and guests will be held in the Field House.

At 4:30 p.m. a free public concert by the group Canyon will be presented in the Student Center Lounge. From 5-6:15 p.m., a multimedia feature, developed and produced by the College of Marine Studies, featuring multiple-screen images and rock music, will be presented in Bacchus at the Student Center. Both programs are sponsored by the Student Center.

Reunion dinners for the classes of 1948 and 1963 will begin at 6:30 p.m., Saturday, in John M. Clayton Hall.

Mushroom Processors Confident Of A Safe Product

The Mushroom Processors Association of Kennett Square, Pa., citing a history of over 50 years of canning mushrooms, including some two and one-half billion consumer cans in the last ten years, states no illnesses have ever resulted from eating canned mushrooms.

In answer to inquiries prompted by a recent Food and Drug Administration release, that it will conduct a nationwide examination of canned mushrooms, the Mushroom Processors Association advised all consumers that there is no reason to be more concerned about the mushroom products on their shelves than they would be about any other canned vegetables.

The Mushroom Processors Association explained that in the Food and Drug Administration's newly launched inspection, its staff will simply be looking for mushrooms that are abnormal-that are leaking or swollen. "This," a Mushroom Processors Association spokesman said, "is a precaution every consumer should always take with any canned food on her shelves."

The Mushroom Processors Association noted that the government inspections have nothing whatsoever to do with fresh mushrooms.

A spokesman for the Mushroom Industry stated that domestic mushroom processors are co-operating in every way possible with the Food and Drug Administration to assure the continued supply of safe and wholesome mushroom products.

BENJAMIN W. EMORY JR., W.W. I VET DIES AT 78

Benjamin W. Emory Jr., 78, of 111 Railroad Ave., died Monday in the Messick Nursing Home after a long illness. Mr. Emory was self-employed as a huckster. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Nellie H. Emory; a daughter, Mrs. Nellie E. French of Harrington; a brother, Lester, of Harrington; and a grandchild. Services will be tomorrow afternoon at 1 at the McKnatt Funeral Home, 50 Commerce St., Harrington, where friends may call one hour before services. Interment will be in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington.

Mr. Emory, a veteran of World War I, was a member of Callaway - Kemp - Raughley - Tee Post No. 7, American Legion, and a member of Harrington Volunteer Fire Company.

Invitational Pace At Raceway

This Sun., Oct. 14, Harrington Raceway will present a $7,500 invitational Pace with some of the best pacing talent in the nation going to the post in quest of first money. As an added incentive, Herman C. Brown, track president, has announced that the race track will provide a $1,000 bonus to the driver of the winning horse should he break the Harrington track record of 2:01.1 held by Henry Voló. Frank Milby's great pacer, To Ri Boy, will be among the starters and he has the credentials to shatter the old mark. His last effort was 1:58.2 score at Vernon Downs in New York which equaled the world record for three-year-old geldings over a mile track, a record formerly held by the Big Kahuna. To Ri Boy also has the world record for two year old geldings having posted a 1:59.2 effort at Scioto Downs last year during his impressive freshman season. Also in the field Sunday will be Bernard Ewing's Senator Sue, who has amassed earnings of over $36,000 already this campaign and has been finishing right there in 2:00 every time on the race track.

All time world driving champion, Herve Filion, will also be represented in the rich event, but at this writing it was not certain which of his fine charges would be here for Sunday's battle. Joe Marsh Jr., who dualed Herve right down to the wire in Harrington's "Battle of Champions" Sept. 23, has promised to send either world champion pacing gelding Starboard Butler, who just toured Maywood's half mile oval in 1:57 flat, or Mr. Rebel, a winner last week in 2:00.2. Another top driver to be represented in the field is the talented James Larente who is currently campaigning one of the top stables in the country at nearby Liberty Bell Park. He has such great pacers as Good Brother, H.T. Navy, and Doctor Roberts, always able to tackle the best in the business.

Sunday will be another Doubleheader program at Harrington Raceway with the afternoon card beginning at 1:30 p.m. and the evening call to post at 7 p.m. The popular Big E form of wagering will be featured on both afternoon and evening programs.

Income Tax Management

Many Delaware farmers will report record net incomes in 1973 and so may incur greater income liabilities at the end of the year. W.T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware, says farmers should make a preliminary income estimate to see where they stand for the 1973 tax year and plan appropriate ways to legally reduce that tax burden if feasible.

He suggested first making a list of your income and expenses to date and projecting them for the remainder of the year. Then determine the tax liability. If income appears to be exceedingly high you may be able to plan some action that will reduce the tax liability.

Income averaging can reduce taxes if your 1973 income is substantially greater than incomes in the four preceding years. You average out the incomes according to a set formula which may lower your tax this year. The higher income, however, will still result in a larger tax due.

If your estimate indicates income will be high this year you may want to shift some of your income into 1974, leveling out tax liability. Farmers may want to store corn or soybeans for sale next year.

Some farmers will want to use part of this income to purchase new equipment. Regular depreciation, additional first year depreciation and investment credit associated with these purchases could also reduce income taxes.

McAllister says these are but a few ways of reducing your tax liability. But some farmers may be better off not shifting income into next year, he adds. The goal is to maximize income after taxes. Delaying sales or making unwise purchases may reduce income more than it saves in taxes.

ADMINISTRATIVE FACILITIES OF KENT COUNTY wastewater facilities dedicated Saturday morning near Frederica.

Sewage Plant Dedication Marks Renewal of Rivers

When the speechmaking was over at Saturday's dedication of the Kent County waste water treatment plant, what was left was a $12 million asset.

The huge facility southeast of Frederica on Kent 120 takes care of the waste water of about half of the county's residents. Approximately six million gallons are treated and discharged into the Murderkill River each day. The plant removes about 90 per cent of the pollutants.

There are few homes near the plant, but that's not because of a smell—there isn't any. The entire treatment system, from raw sewage to finished effluent, is exposed to the air, using air-breathing bacteria to do most of the work.

Aside from residual amounts of organic material and solids, what remains after the treatment is water and a few viruses, resistant enough to make it through the final chlorine treatment. "They are in very minute quantities, and are not harmful because of the high dilution effect," County Engineer Walter L. Fritz Jr. said. "But you wouldn't want to take that water in a concentrated form and drink it," he added.

The system now handles waste from Smyrna, Dover, Milford and Standard Brands Chemical Industries, all of which formerly went into Delaware River tributaries in much less clean condition. "The most important overriding effect of the system is the environmental one," said county planning director Robert W. O'Brien.

O'Brien also said that the system saves cities and towns the considerable expense of modernization and expansion to their systems. Dover joined the county system after it was told that its own sewage plant was inadequate, and the situations were much the same in Milford and Smyrna.

Contracts are currently in the works to include Dover Air Force Base and High Point Trailer Park in the system. The plant is operating at only half its capacity with one 10-million-gallon aeration tank shut down.

Fritz said the pipe lines, which can handle 35 million gallons per day, will be the last item to need updating. He said that by 1980 additional aeration tanks will probably be needed to meet increasing demand.

O'Brien also sees the system as giving the county a tool to control future development. The Kent County Levy Court however, has flip-flopped on requiring developers to put sewage piping in the ground, for present or future use. There was such a requirement in 1971, but it was much later rescinded, Fritz said it is being reconsidered.

The development of the system, which began handling Milford's sewage Jan. 15, has generally followed the population. The network of pipe follows U.S. 13 through the heart of the county, where the bulk of the county's 85,000 residents live.

The system itself pre-dates the county's comprehensive plan, which not coincidentally calls for increased development in primarily the same corridor.

Lately, the systems use as one kind of tool was evidenced in the continuing conflict between the county and the city of Dover. The creation of a sanitary district allowing suburban areas to tie into the county system is underway, eliminating at least one reason for areas in the so-called buffer zone to join the city through annexation.

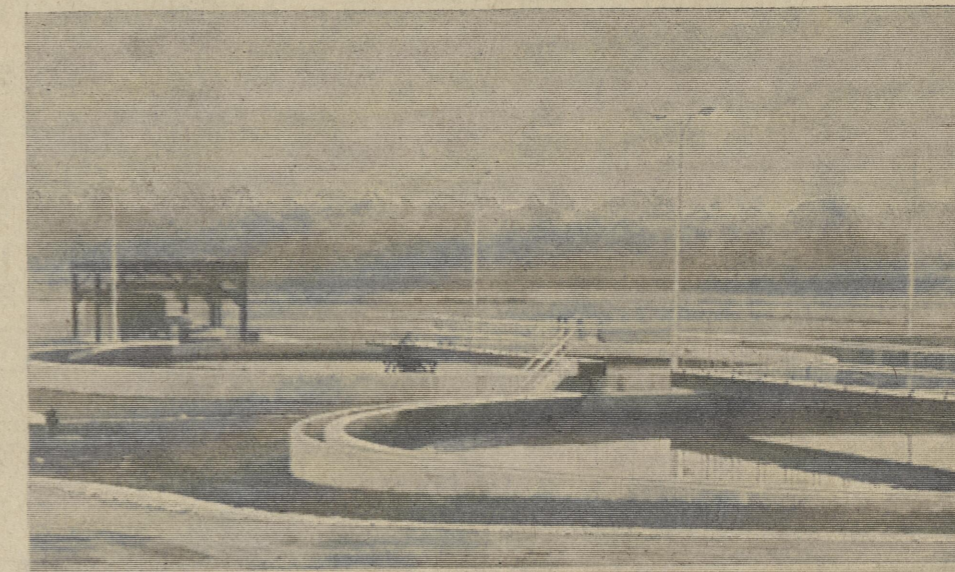

Fritz, however, said the system is not designed to handle "uncontrolled expansion half-way between Hartly and Maryland." He noted the removal of the two-acre lot size restriction for residences in Agricultural Conservation zones has defeated the purpose of the comprehensive plan in restricting scattered development.

Development should be planned so that it can be served by a system, he added.

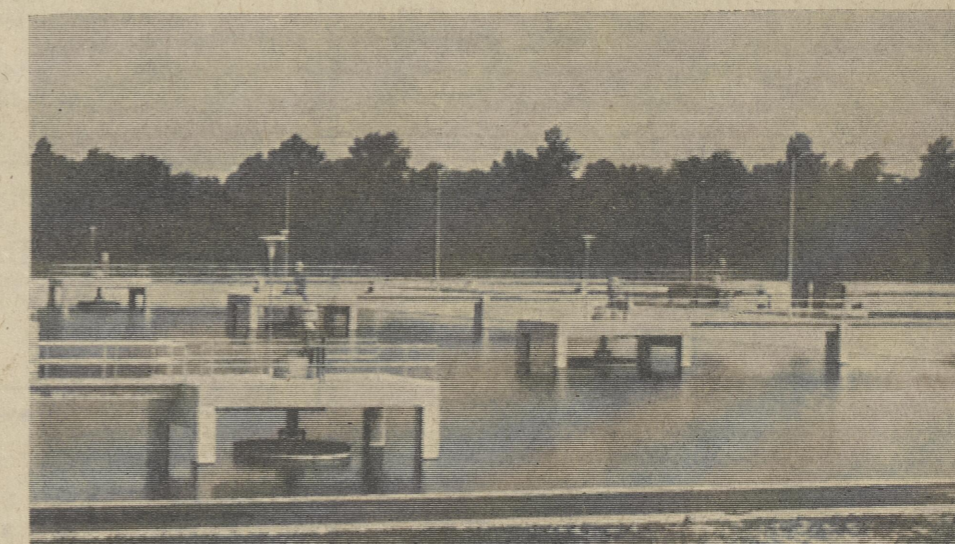

In addition to people, fish are likely to be happier with the new system. The removal of Milford's waste from the Millpond River has already resulted in reports of fish where none had been seen for years.

"Prior to this," O'Brien said, "towns were dumping their waste into streams. With the reclamation of the St. Jones (River in Dover), there is a possibility it will again be an active recreation area."

The dedication ceremonies took place at 10 a.m. Guests included Gov. Sherman W. Tribbitt, U.S. Sen William V. Roth Jr., R-Del., and former Sen. J. Caleb Boggs, as well as county and state officials.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

Absence of this column during the past month has been due to a lot of dental surgery which made September pretty tough.

However, it still had its bright spots as Mollie 'n me celebrated our 66th wedding anniversary on Sept. 22nd. Received many calls and cards from friends and relatives. Among these, the following from Tom and Betty Clarke:

There has never been a moment, Tom and I were unaware, Of your loving selfless giving, That makes each day a joy to share.

And now that Tom's in college, Marianne and Cynnie wed, We're back to JUST THE FOUR OF US, "God plan for Heaven instead."

Cape Henlopen 51, Lake Forest 6

Ex-Spartan coach, Bill Muehleisen, finally got revenge on his erstwhile assistant, Al Wood, Friday night. Bill, now at Cape Henlopen, had been unable to do anything with Wood's Lake Forest Spartans since Muehleisen went to Lewes some three years ago.

Muehleisen had touted his current phenomenon, Henry White, as an exceptional griddier when the Cape mentor spoke at the Lake Forest athletic banquet this spring.

White proved to be as advertised. He's obviously being groomed for a try at annexing the state scoring championship, too. For on orders from the bench, or of his own volition, he called his own number often enough to score six touchdowns all in the first half, yet.

Mercy was shown the beleaguered Spartans in the second half, as the Vikings eased off after leading 51-0 and allowed Lake Forest a meaningless T.D.

Don Bryant ran one yard for the score. Bryant started off this fall by deciding to play no football, later vowed to play defense only, but is now the Spartans third quarterback of this winless (0-4) season. Bryant is as fast as anyone in the Henlopen Conference, but he must get running room to be effective.

Al Woods and his assistant coaches, Jim Hogsten and Bill Falasco, are faced with an almost impossible task. They must try to win football games yet the talent is very thin compared to previous seasons, especially compared to the 1972 personnel.

Going down the Spartan roster, man by man, this writer soon sees the problems confronting the Spartan's coaching staff. Some boys are too small, others are too slow. Strangely enough, there are those who don't like contact and some who aren't very agile (read that clumsy). Add the overall lack of experience and it looks like ulcer time. It has always been a fact of football, that courage alone won't do the job.

But the team must continue to put out 100 per cent and in

Locals Win Junior High Test At Lewes

Dick Lwman's Rehoboth Junior High harriers always furnish a stiff test for Lake Forest School District's younger runners.

Thursday was no exception. Rehoboth's Price, a talented freshman, in his third year of running, was individual winner in 16.11 for a tough 2.7 miles course. But Chipman School's talented pair of eighth grade rookies, Danny Parker and Davir Richter, surprised the veteran by staying close to him all the way, as Rehoboth was outpointed 26-29.

George Gibbs, in fourth place, is starting his annual mid-season surge. Maurice Coverdale, Bill Moore and Jeff Kashner turned in excellent performances.

Chugging on manfully near the rear of the pack of 31 runners were Dave Benson ,10 (first race) and John Miller, 7. Benson had 26.15 and second-grader "Big John" did 29 minutes even.

Woodbridge (here Friday night) they will meet a foe a notch lower than the four teams which have outclassed the Spartans.

The Blue Raiders, however, are no soft touch. It will take a supreme effort and a couple of breaks for Lake Forest to win this one.

Harrington Bowling League

Brothers Five squashed the hapless T & M Rejects Tuesday night in all three games to easily take all four points which propelled them to the top spot in the standings. Buck Thompson paced the Brothers Five squad, hitting a fine 212 game while amassing a great 543 set, and Robert Dennis chipped in with a 536 effort, with Ron Kelly adding a 200 game and a 533 series.

Jarrell Fuel and People's Restaurant put up a strong battle against each other, with the fuellers just squeezing out a two-and-a-half point victory over their opponents. The half point caused the team to drop from top spot to second place as the league leaders continue to shift around. Martin Jarrell bowled a fine 532 series effort for Jarrell's. Phil Shultie rolled a great above average effort for People's Restaurant.

The Spoilers and Fry's American fought as the teams split the ican contest was also fiercely four points down the middle. Carl Wright and Jack Sapp provided the Spoilers with a little extra power and Don and Kreg Jester came through for Fry's American with fine efforts.

After aiding Ken Garey getting the candy off the lanes (wonder how that got there?), Harry Jack paced the McKnatt Funeral Home quintet with a real fine above average effort at the team collected three points to stay close to the top of the heap. Big John's Son squeaked by in one game as Sam Powell provided the team with a little extra scoring power.

Taylor & Messick's Snooky Collins rolled a fine 208 game and a good series effort and Kenny P. Outten added a great 534 set as the team crushed Penn Central in all three games to collect the four points needed to stay in contention for the league lead. Ray Baker rolled a fine 522 series and Richard Rutledge added a good above average effort for the four-man railroad squad.

Harry Brown gave Robbins Hardware the extra strength the team needed to come out on the winning side of a three-to-one verdict against Butler's Fuel. Ralph Butler bowled well for the fuel team as they managed to salvage one point for their efforts.

Quillen's Market continues to make its presence felt, although they were only able to get one point Tuesday night from Wally's Wrecker Service. Morris Kemp made his debut with the Market team a good one and with a few more nights of bowling under his belt could be a big asset to the team. Wally's Wrecker Service squad just seemed to coast along with the men just staying close to their

Spartan Harriers Win At Cape Henlopen

After a narrow opening loss to Dover, Jim Blades' cross-country Spartans evened the 1973 log at 1-1, by outrunning Cape Henlopen's Vikings, 24-31, at the picturesque 2.7 miles course, in Cape Henlopen State Park.

Lake Forest was "down" after the Dover meet. This must have had an adverse effect against the Cape because the Spartans did not run up to their potential. Don Flood, of the host team, is a good runner, especially at home, but must be rated below four or five Spartans.

Flood led Harry Benson at the first checkpoint, later fought off a challenge from improving Terry Pettyjohn and finished a averages, which was enough for the three points.

Local FFA Member To Participate In National FFA Band

David P. Hrupsa, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Hrupsa, of Harrington, is one of 120 FFA members from across the nation selected to participate in the National FFA Band. David, who will play the trumpet, was selected from over 500 applicants representing 44 states. After two days of intensive practice prior to the convention, the band will perform during all but one session of the 46th National Convention of the Future Farmers of America, in Kansas City, Mo. David is a member of the Lake Forest FFA Chapter where his advisor is Neil Brasque. He is also a member of the Lake Forest High Band under the direction of Donald Claycomb.

Often referred to as the "mail order band" because of the method of recruiting members, the National FFA band was first organized in 1947. Since that time competition for the honor of playing in the band has steadily increased. Under the direction of Roger Heath, assistant director of the Purdue University bands, the FFA band has gained a reputation for its polished performances even though bandmen have only two days of practice together prior to their first performance.

Heath is directing the National FFA Band for the fifth year in a row. He was presented the FFA Honorary Farmer Degree last year in recognition of his dedicated service to the FFA.

"Bandmen are chosen on the basis of tape recorded auditions or competitive auditions in their State FFA bands with supporting recommendations from their high school band directors," explains Heath who has spent many hours during the summer selecting FFA members to fill the 120-piece band. In addition, all applicants are required to list their musical experience and activities such as solo and ensemble performances, special honors and special experiences such as drum majoring or twirling.

FFA members who play in the band arrive in Kansas City two days before the convention starts so they can begin practicing. "Although we send band members the more difficult music ahead of time, it still takes a lot of practice to get ready for our first performance on Wednesday morning," says Heath. "We will spend six to eight hours Sunday afternoon and evening practicing the music and working out marching formations," he explains. "We'll also practice all Monday and Tuesday, and the rest of the week we'll keep in shape by short practice sessions and concert performances."

To be selected for the National FFA Band, FFA members must first be recommended by their high school band director and their state FFA association. The State Association forwards applications to Director Heath who bases his selection on the written recommendations, the tape recordings, the instrumentation needs of the band, and representation of most of the states according to their budget imitations. Travel and living expenses for the bandmen are usually paid in part by the State FFA Association, and the bandman or his (her) FFA Chapter pays the remainder of the expenses.

Although participation in the band is a lot of hard work there are lighter moments. A highlight of the week is a trip to Lone Summit Ranch a few miles outside Kansas City where band and chorus members are treated to a barbecue luncheon. After the luncheon though, it's back to work. The Lone Summit Ranch has plenty of wide open spaces and is an excellent place to practice marching for the American Royal Parade on Saturday morning. The band is a featured part of the "Royal" parade which signals the end of the National Convention and the opening of the American Royal Livestock Show. This year for the first time the band will also be featured in a 45-minute noon-time concert at the new Crown Center Square Tues., Oct. 16, prior to the opening of the FFA Convention.

During the convention week the FFA band will play at seven sessions of the Convention. "We will play a wide variety of music," says Heath "including marches, rock tunes, selections from Broadway musicals, serious music, and mood music. We'll use some of the latest hits," adds Heath, who likes to "think young" when planning music for the youthful convention crowd.

Two other men will assist Heath in his job of developing a top-notch band. Leo Vossler, a former high school band director turned vocational agriculture teacher in Parshall, N.D., will assist Heath in the practice sessions. Vossler specializes in working with the woodwind instruments. Leslie Crabbe, assistant supervisor of vocational education in Ohio will handle the multitude of details involved in keeping the band on schedule.

A University of Delaware extension worker has been named the first woman recipient of a Distinguished Service Award presented by the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

Mrs. Marion MacDonald, Camden-Wyoming, was presented the award during ceremonies at the 58th annual meeting of the association, Oct. 4, in Baltimore. She was among less than two percent of the 5,000-plus membership to receive 1973 DSAs.

Mrs. MacDonald, extension 4-H agent for Kent County, has been a member of the Delaware co-operative extension service for 21 years. During this period she has developed numerous educational programs for youths and adult youth leaders. She has organized the Teen Leader Weekend; a Kids Kamp for young 4-H'ers which is led by teen leaders; and a Youth Resource Committee composed of professional leaders of county youth programs.

Dr. Samuel M. Gwinn, director of the Delaware co-operative extension service, says "Marion has proved time and time again her ability to organize programs and successfully carry them through. Her excellent rapport with the county people, as well as with her fellow workers, is a combination that makes her successful in extension work."

Winterize Garden Tools

It won't be long before the lawn and garden tools can be put away for another season and you can take that well deserved rest. However, unless you have properly prepared your small engines, sprayers and other garden tools for storage, unless you're still not finished.

Improper storage can cripple small gasoline engines, says Tom Williams, University of Delaware extension agricultural engineer. Machines such as lawn mowers, garden tractors, rero-tillers and chain saws should be cleaned and examined thoroughly. Worn or lost parts should be replaced.

Remove the spark plug and clean or replace if necessary. Before replacing the plug, however, pour a teaspoon of SAE 10 weight motor oil into the opening and crank the engine several times. This helps to distribute the oil which forms a protective coating over pistons and cylinder walls. Do not reconnect the spark plug wire.

Drain the oil, preferably while the engine is still warm. Then add new oil, making sure you have replaced the drain plug. It is important to drain every drop of fuel from the gas tank and carburetor. Gasoline left standing over a long period can become gummy and foul fuel lines, says Williams.

Garden tools also need attention before they are put away for the winter.

Thoroughly clean your sprayer with water and household ammonia. Operate it for several minutes, pumping the ammonia and water mixture through the system. This will clean and shine the inside of the hose and nozzle.

Williams says lime and fertilizer spreaders should be cleaned with water and a wire brush. After moving parts are cleaned and allowed to dry, coat them with a thin film of motor oil.

Crickets Soon Invade Del. Homes

Watching crickets fight each other is an ancient oriental sport. In this country, the fight is between the homemaker and the cricket. And it's not a sport, it's war.

A cricket indoors is a noisy destructive pest, says Frank Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware. Although they are not likely to chew synthetic fabrics, they damage cottons, woolens, silks and other fabrics, especially if the materials are even slightly dirty, he says.

D-lwareans will probably hear a good deal of cricket chirping this fall. Crickets are around in large numbers already, and some of them will move into houses with cooler weather. They are attracted by lights and get into houses through cracks, window sills and doors. Boys suggests making your house less inviting to crickets by removing tall grass, rubbish and pant debris around the foundation.

Indoors, sweeping or vacuuming should be adequate to rid a house of a few invading crickets. Spot treatments with two percent chlordane or an aerosol spray bomb of diazinon of malathion gives good control. For effective control with chemicals, apply them behind and under shelves, cabinets and work benches. Treat around windows along wall bases and in corners.

Outdoors, a residual insecticide should be applied to foundation walls, window wells, under garbage cans and at door steps. For chemical control, use only one of the following insecticides: two percent chlordane spray made by using five tablespoons of 72-74 percent liquid chlordane in one gallon of water or one percent malathion in one gallon of water. Chlordane dust or malathion dust may be used.

If misused, these chemicals are poisonous to humans as well as crickets. Boys cautions. Be safe; follow label precautions.

The first hard frost raises many questions as to the effect it will have on our crops and how we should handle them. Particularly our livestock producers raise questions about whether or not to feed a certain crop after it has been killed by frost.

Prussic acid develops to a dangerous level in the grain sorghums, Sudan grass and Johnson grass, when these plants are retarded by frost, drought, cutting or bruising. Prussic acid poisoning occurs in livestock, particularly cattle and sheep when they eat the affected plants.

The young plants under 20 to 30 inches tall contain more prussic acid potential than mature plants. Young second growth plants are extremely dangerous! However, proper management of these forage crops minimizes danger to livestock. We recommend the following as management suggestions:

Do not "green crop" or pasture sorghum-sudan or sudan-sorghums crosses immediately after a killing frost. Do not allow cattle, sheep, hogs or horses to graze these crops for at least four or five days after frost. Do not rely on the frosted forage as the only sources of feed-supplement it with dry hay and/or grain. After the entire plant is killed by frost, and has become brown, toxicity will reach a low level after five days.

What about other crops that have been killed by frost? Immature corn that has been killed by frost and left in the field to be harvested as grain carries the risk of stalk breakage and slow drying. The harvested grain is low in feed nutrients an test weight. Some kernels never dry out and present a problem in harvesting and storage.

When this frosted corn is to be ensiled it should have a moisture content of around 70 per cent. Timing is very important as frosted corn stalks and leaves dry quickly. Adding water to extremely dry corn fodder will help increase the moisture content and aid in proper fermentation. Soybeans are not affected by a light frost. However, when full season varieties have been planted late there could be some immature beans. When killed by frost, green beans on plants with green leaves will continue to ripen, but probably more slowly than normal. However, the very immature beans may retain a green color in the storage bin.

Frost problems are not associated with alfalfa, clover, perennial pasture and hay grasses. They still make good pasture after frost. Slight digestive disturbances may occur on freshly frosted legumes. Harvesting schedules for alfalfa and other perennial hay or pasture crops need not be altered because of the time of the first frost. Grasses may be grazed after frost and through the fall but three or four inches of stubble should remain to assure a good crop next spring.

It's a blue denim world. At least it appears that way on a college campus. One might expect the free-thinking college student to rebel at the monotony of the campus uniform. There are a few creative souls who decorate torn blue jeans with colorful and fancy patches or with embroidered designs, but for the most part it's a fashion story.

As we begin to see blue denim used for home furnishings, auto seat covers, luggage and fashion accessories as well as apparel, we wonder when the saturation point will be reached and we'll all be sick of it.

Blue denim has its imitators. At the recent home sewing fabric market in New York, one manufacturer proudly displayed blue "denim" corduroy-guaranteed to fade and look worn after one washing. It did, too.

Knit "denim" has been around for a while, but unless the fabric is all cotton it may not fade as readily. Indigo dyes used on cotton fade faster than the dyes used on man-made fibers. Therefore, blends of cotton and synthetics have not been as highly prized as all cotton denim.

For many years consumer advocates have pushed for color-fast fabrics, so it is ironic that a faded fabric has gained such appeal. One fashion model reported she saves her most faded jeans for "dress up" occasions. Blue denim is somewhat stiff when new, but becomes soft, supple and more comfortable the more it is washed. Old denim is so highly prized that recycled jeans are said to bring higher prices than new ones in many parts of the country.

Blue denim is rugged and inexpensive, and can cut down on the college student's clothing expenditures. It has also been a boon to the cotton industry, for blue denim accounts for eight and one-half per cent of the cotton market.

Even though we may be tired of seeing blue denim, experts think it still has a great future. A Denim Council has been formed to promote the use of the fabric in new ways. Worldwide markets are opening up. It is reported that denim dungarees are one of the hottest items on the black market in Iron Curtain countries, and that in Russia you can get as much as $75 for a pair of American blue jeans.

Blue denim may play a greater role in society than we realize.

Delaware Food Market Report

By Anne W. Holberton

Did you know that the hot dog originated in Europe? It did but we Americans have certainly have made it famous. Exactly where the hot dog was first made is still uncertain but there is reason to believe that the frankfurter and weiner were developed some time in the early 13th century. As the names tell you two countries claim this sausage. Vienna, Austria and Frankfurt, Germany.

According to some, the frankfurter made its American debut at Coney Island during the 1870's. Charles Feitmann, an immigrant German butcher, introduced a new all-beef product called a "dachshund sausage" named after the long bodied German breed of dog. It was an instant success. However, the bun came just a little later so the story goes. Credit goes to Antoine Ludwig Feuchtwanger, who sold Bavarian sausages at the St. Louis Exposition of 1904. Since the "red hots" were too hot to handle Herr Feuchtwanger provided his customers with white gloves. His profit soon disappeared because each customer seemed to walk away with the gloves. This is when the bun was born. The popular sandwich-style "red hot" was launched.

Tad Dorgan, a sports humorist at a football game in the early 1900's developed a cartoon with a talking sausage. Hurrying to meet his newspaper's deadline, Dorgan realized that he couldn't spell "dachshund" so he called it "hot dog" instead. Much to the dismay of most sausage makers all over the world, the name "hot dog" became popular and this sausage became and still is an all-American favorite.

The exact content and processing of hot dogs differs from brand to brand. However, the USDA has set certain limitations which distinguish each type of hot dog.

The "all meat" frankfurter is by far, the most popular in the US today. The "all meat" label means that the frankfurter is made of all skeletal meats, usually beef and pork. Seasonings are added. No fillers are permitted.

If the name of the product is "frankfurter," "weiner" or "hot dog," it is made of a combination of meats and certain seasonings. Approved fillers such as milk powder and soy flour may be present in limited quantities.

The content of the hot dog is stated on each package label with ingredients in descending order by weight. So read carefully before you buy.

The federal meat inspection stamp on a package of hot dogs is the government assurance that the meat product is wholesome and truthfully labeled. So when buying check the label of each package then make up your own mind.

A Successful Morning Begins With Breakfast

The familiar yellow school bus has started its regular runs, and most families have shifted into a different pattern of living from the more relaxed routine of summer. Marguerite Krackhardt, extension nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware, urges homemakers to include a good breakfast for each member of the family in the daily routine. And she reminds every homemaker to remember herself and her husband, each of whom has a morning of work ahead.

Hot dogs may be kept in their original wrappers for about two weeks if the temperature is at 40 degrees or cooler. The sealed packages should not be taken from the refrigerator until just before using. Generally, freezing is not recommended. However, hot dogs may be frozen for one or two months, longer freezing may cause flavor change.

When you buy hot dogs they are fully cooked, but most people prefer to eat them hot. Warm them in the oven, in a frying pan, in the broiler, or out on a grill. Hot dogs really shouldn't be boiled. However, they can be placed in boiling water, covered and simmered five to ten minutes.

All Americans like hot dogs and that's good, because this is a good protein, one that is easy to prepare and delicious to eat.

The effect of little or no breakfast on school children is obvious to every teacher. The child who runs down about midmorning is usually the child who has had an inadequate food supply to start his work day. And it is important to remember that school is work.

Miss Krackhardt believes that breakfast need not be the traditional fruit juice, eggs, cereal, toast and beverage. This pattern is not necessary for a good nutritive meal, and a little variety could well perk up appetites and interest. If the youngest member of the family wants his favorite peanut butter sandwich and a mug of tomato soup, O.K. Slip an orange into his pocket for a snack at recess, and he's off to a good start.

If the family teenager craves a slice of pizza made with cheese and meat, that's fine. The pizza, plus some fresh fruit to munch on the way to school, could very well meet his requirements.

The important thing is that breakfast should supply each person with from one-quarter to one-third of his total daily nutritive needs. This means calories as well as protein, vitamins and minerals to carry him through the morning hours of work and activity. Miss Krackhardt regards a protein food in some form as basic. This could be meat, eggs, peanut butter, baked beans, cheese, whole grain or enriched cereal and bread, and a beverage. For children the most desirable beverage is milk, but even this could be in the form of soup or a simple milk pudding.

So when the family is getting ready to start another busy day, be sure they take time to consume the food they'll need as fuel for the morning's activities. Never mind if the food seems a strange choice for breakfast. It's what is in it that counts.
