Trailer Park Sale Blocked By Injunction

Chancellor William T. Quillen last week ordered a preliminary injunction against any possible sale of the Lake Forest Trailer Park, Felton.

The injunction was granted without prejudice.

Lake Forest Trailer Park, valued at $500,000, has become the center of a legal tangle over ownership.

A holding company, the 3 H. Company, currently owns the trailer park.

Nicolas Rocci of Felton, filed suit in Chancery Court early this month claiming to be a part owner of 3 H.

Rocci charged he was never told of a possible sale of the trailer park, the only asset 3 H has.

Named as plaintiffs in the suit were company founders Edward S. Knight and Edward C. Hardy. Samuel Lewis, attorney for the plaintiffs, said a reply would be filed next week.

"We dispute a number of facts alleged in the case," Lewis said.

Lake Forest Gets New Vice Principal

Due to the increase of students at Lake Forest this year, the administration decided to hire a second vice principal. For this position they chose the very capable Paul Gladden.

Mr. Gladden graduated from the University of Delaware in 1952 with a B.S. in education. He received his Masters from West Chester State College and as a result received his certification in Educational Administration from the University of Delaware. Presently he is working on his Plus 30 at the University of Delaware.

Before coming here, Mr. Gladden was vice principal of DeLaWarr High School, as well as football coach. He has also taught physical education.

When asked why he applied for this job, he replied that he was a native of Georgetown and was better acquainted with this area.

The biggest difference he has seen in students of Lake Forest and those of DeLaWarr is the friendliness of Lake Forest students. At DeLaWarr it took five years before a student really recognized and welcomed him; here many students welcomed him the first day.

His impression of the student body was favorable. He stated that "as a whole, the student body is mature and well-behaved."

In closing, Mr. Gladden wants the students to know that "anything I say will not have a double meaning, I'll tell it like it is."

Since Mr. Gladden is willing to co-operate with us, let's co-operate with him.

Thanksgiving Is A Day Of Sharing

Thanksgiving Day is traditionally a family occasion—a time for fellowship as well as feasting. Infants, grandparents, and all ages in between are often gathered around the same bountiful table to commemorate a festival first begun by grateful Pilgrims in 1621.

Anne Holberton, extension marketing specialist at the University of Delaware, believes Thanksgiving Day can be more meaningful for the whole family if it is shared with acquaintances from other countries. Harvest festivals have been celebrated around the world for thousands of years, but Thanksgiving Day is uniquely American, since the Pilgrims were thankful for much more than their harvest. Their very survival that first winter was in doubt. They were also grateful for the friendship of the Indians, who might have destroyed them instead of helping them.

Miss Holberton believes that visitors and newcomers to our country enjoy hearing the story and learning first-hand about our Thanksgiving customs. She suggests that the children of the family be asked to arrange five grains of corn at every plate, a custom in early New England. This was to serve as a reminder of the first grim

House to Study Solar Energy

The House of Representatives is holding hearings this week on a bill being sponsored by Congressman Pete du Pont that would increase by $50 million the funding of the solar energy development program in this country.

The legislation provides for a $50 million multi-agency program to demonstrate over the next five years the feasibility of utilizing solar energy to heat and cool our homes and businesses. There will be a three-year demonstration of the practicality of solar heating and cooling systems. The program calls for the installation of solar heating and cooling units in about 2000 residences on military and other Federal property and in an additional 2000 private residences, including mobile homes and in town houses.

Du Pont said he was co-sponsoring the legislation because he felt that the work done at the University of Delaware showed that solar energy was one of the more realistic solutions to the energy crisis. "Its proven to be technologically possible, financially viable, and environmentally sound and it's another step toward easing our dependence on oil. Best of all, no one can cut off our imports of sunshine, nor can its price be arbitrarily increased."

He is survived by a son, Jim, of Los Angeles, Calif.; a daughter, Suzannah Isaacson of Crestline, Calif.; and six grandchildren.

Graveside services were held Monday afternoon in Cowmarsh Cemetery, Sandtown.

Tax Management

Most farmers are completing one of their most profitable years with farm incomes at record highs. But, unless careful planning is done during the next one and a half months, much of this additional income will be absorbed by income taxes.
Income tax management, always an important subject for farmers, assumes even greater importance this year, says W.T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware.
He reminds farmers that gains, profits and income are included in gross income for the tax year in which they are actually received. Tax regulations provide that income is considered to be in the taxpayer's possession for the tax year in which it is credited to his account or set apart for him so that he may draw upon it at any time. Thus, interest on bank deposits, dividends on stocks, checks received but not deposited or cashed, and even checks being held by another party are income to the taxpayer whether they are "in hand" or not.
However, income is not received if the taxpayer's control of its receipt is subject to "substantial" limitations or restrictions. Sales by installment, deferred payment contracts and escrow arrangements, if properly used, are ways of avoiding receipt of income.
McAllister says many corn and soybean growers are electing to sell their grain this year under deferred sales contracts where they will receive payment for their crop next year.
In order to use a deferred sales contract in tax planning, he reminds farmers that the contract should be made before the product is delivered, it

Gridders End Winless, Milford Keeps Bell By 45-7

Lake Forest High's luckless football team ended the 1973 season without a victory, as Milford's Buccaneer eleven romped to a 45-7 decision, in the annual "Battle of the Bell". The Bucs retain the symbolic railroad bell for another year.

Lake Forest got on the scoreboard with an 11-yard pass from Neal Smith to Wayne Voshell. Smith then kicked the extra point.

The Spartan tally came at the end of the first half, after Milford had already tallied 26 points.

Lake Forest then saw the host team cross the goal line three more times in the second half despite yeoman defensive work by Jim Miner, Chip Moore and George Davis. Other Spartans who saw plenty of action were John Pickett and Leon Shockley.

Take a winless football team, subtract eight seniors and what do you have? We are afraid it means bleak prospects for 1974. Only lots of large lads and much hard work can improve the picture for next autumn.

Mosley Leads Spartans To 4th State Run Title

It has been a long autumn for followers of Lake Forest High School's athletic activities. The football and soccer teams suffered through winless seasons. The girls' hockey team didn't fare as well as in 1972, but dented the win column a few times.

Jim Blades' cross-country Spartans can always be counted on to proudly hold high the Spartan banner. Sixteen years of the harrier sport here have resulted in sixteen winning campaigns.

Wednesday afternoon at Newark's Polly Drummond Hill, seven gallant Spartans annihilated the opposition to win a fourth state championship in cross-country, in the last 11 years.

Rounding a tree, 300 yards from the race's end, Mosley still held third. Then across the bridge and out of the woods came an Archmere runner, relentlessly shadowed by Harry Benson. Another Archer narrowly led Thompson.

The Spartans knew what they had to do. Benson and Mosley left behind the Archers (O'Brien and Repka). Tilghman's blazing kick and Pettyjohn's spurt also caught Repka and the local's 12-month quest for the run crown was an unqualified success. Bob Kashner and Steve Saulsbury ran well, also, as all seven Spartans were in the top 30 places.

After the victory ceremony, in which Lake Forest acquired another huge trophy, the jubilant Spartans picked up their youthful coach and gave him a victory ride on their shoulders to the big, beautiful, Blue, White and Gold banner, emblazoned with the legend, LAKE FOREST SPARTANS CROSS-COUNTRY.

Mrs. Blades made the proud symbol of harrier pride last summer. It was designed by Mrs. David Moore.

A year ago Lake Forest was third behind Archmere and Dover Air, in the state meet. Since both of these squads would be losing several runners and Lake Forest had no seniors, it appeared that Blades' boys had a great shot at the 1973 crown.

Some of the harriers never stopped training. Mosley, Thompson and Benson and a few others started log distance workouts with faculty members and ex-college harriers Ed Webster and Dave Buck. A couple of indoor meets gave them good competition, followed by several outdoor tests in January and February.

After the spring track season ended, there were summer meets in Wilmington. The Spartans were looking at the world through rose-colored glasses, when complications set in.

First, Vernon Bowers, one of the top three harriers, switched to football. Then, David Moore, equally as good, came up with physical problems that knocked him off the varsity. Next, Barry Doherty, No. 5, and Jim Guyton, at times in the first seven, both went out for junior varsity soccer, after winning varsity letters in cross-country.

Blades still had six good runners after starting with ten. After three fine practice sessions with Dover Air, Christiansa and Middletown, the season started with the Lake Forest Invitational. One of the six resigned abruptly that day and then there were five.

The other Spartans, 30 in number, worked hard but could not consistently finish close to the best five Spartans. The die was cast. Lake Forest had to sink or swim with what they had left. After a fairly good start it became apparent that Lake Forest would have to work harder, or finish with the also-rans.

Coach Blades stepped up the tempo to the point where his harriers were running up to nine miles a night.

This hardest-working team in local thin-clad history, now unanimously declare that it was worth it.

In 1963, Harrington High won the first state title. Each of the top seven won trophies.

In 1966, Coach Harold McDonald's Lions won it again. This writer wrote an emotional story, then appealed to the public for funds for state championship jackets for ten runners and the coach. This money was soon subscribed.

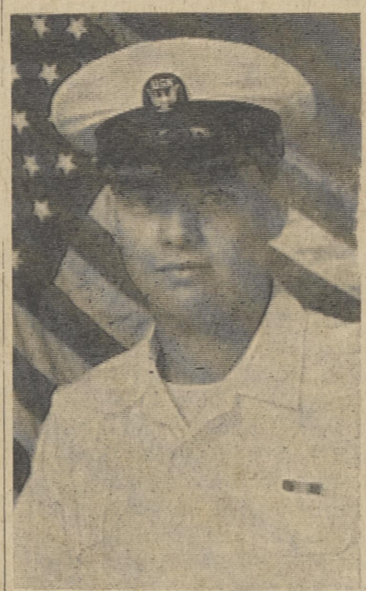

In 1969, Lake Forest won again. Only 13 boys ran that year, including Gunnar Dale, Norwegian exchange student. Lake Forest's student council donated $200, your reporter contacted a few people and service clubs and, voila, 14 beautiful gold, buff and white jackets were purchased.

So, four years later, the boys have done it again and hopefully, we can do it again, reward them for some of the most dedicated, lonely, courageous athletic endeavors ever seen in these parts.

It is hoped that funds can be obtained for the top ten Spartans to get jackets, at $25 each. If anyone wants to help in this worthwhile project, Coach Jim Blades can be located at 120 Front St., Frederica, 335-5831, or call Keith S. Burgess, 398-8838, 308 Second Ave., Harrington. Incidentally, the jackets would go to boys from Felton, Frederica, Canterbury and Harrington.

Wednesday afternoon at Newark's Polly Drummond Hill, seven gallant Spartans annihilated the opposition to win a fourth state championship in cross-country, in the last 11 years.

Ron Mosley, Spartan senior and co-captain, climaxed steady improvement over the last several weeks, by finishing third in the 84-man, two and one-half mile race. Junior Eddie Thompson, the other co-captain and sophomore Harry Benson were eighth and ninth respectively. This trio received trophies for making the top ten. Junior Kit Tilghman picked up 50 yards on O'Brien of Archmere in the homestretch run and just missed overheating the latter.

Sophomore Terry Pettyjohn was 12th behind Tilghman. By finishing five men in the first 12 spots, Lake Forest was already assured of the runaway win.

Their winning total of 40 points left Archmere Academy, the 1972 champion, a distant second-place finisher with 101 points. Tower Hill had 122, Dover Air 131, A.I. duPont 153, P.S. duPont 159, Cape Henlopen 167, St. Elizabeth 204, Seaford 215, Claymont 218, Tatnall 223, and Middletown (point total unknown).

Coach Blades had repeatedly stressed to his seven runners, that it was mandatory to run hard from the start, that lagging back could be fatal. The Spartans got across a narrow bridge, near the start in contention.

The blue-and-white clad locals next appeared, three-quarters of a mile from the finish. Mosley was in third place. His teammates trailed three or four of the green-clad harriers from defending champion Archmere. "Get those guys in green" shouted Spartan rooters, who had to run 500 yards via a short cut to see the finish.

Some of the harriers never stopped training. Mosley, Thompson and Benson and a few others started log distance workouts with faculty members and ex-college harriers Ed Webster and Dave Buck. A couple of indoor meets gave them good competition, followed by several outdoor tests in January and February.

WHERE THE LITTLE OLD LOG CABIN USED TO BE

By J. Harvey Burgess (1942)

As I sit alone, the shadows 'round me falling, Melancholy in the fading evening light, Softly, as a dying cherub's whisper, Borne upon the sighing wings of curtailed night, Comes a mem'ry of the days now gone forever, Undisturbed by life's tempestuous, storm-tossed sea, Safe in mother's arms from low'ring clouds of sorrow, Where the little old log cabin used to be.

When daylight dies behind the distant mountain And the evening air is laden with perfume, The ring-dove's note, in all its tender music, Pours in beauty from the fragrant woodland gloom.

And the stars are bright upon the river's bosom, Stream that whispered once of Forrest and of Lee; Stream that breathed of Southern hope and Southern glory, Where the little old log cabin used to be.

When the fitful dream of this short life is over And my weary form is resting 'neath the sod, May my soul, on wings, be wafted up to Heaven To the bosom of our Father and our God! Let my spirit wander back to scenes of childhood, Where the south winds used to chant their lullaby; Let my body rest beneath the bending willows Where the little old log cabin used to be.

"WELCOME TO THE WANDERER"

By J. Harvey Burgess

Deep in the night and long gone is the day; The mists of tomorrow's morn are far away. Should I, at this dark hour, dare to encoach? One brave small voice now challenged my approach. I called his name, then silence was complete -- And then a crying sound, a rush of feet; Then in my arms, his old accustomed place, Endearing kisses lavished on my face -- Then circling round me, crying, bending low In ecstasies few mortals ever know. It's worth the years you went away to roam To have your dog to welcome you back home.

"HUMILITY"

Those who are intelligent Should say a prayer of thanks, And not belittle those Who fill the less-developed ranks.

For there is no importance In the wisdom we amass, Except as we enjoy it For the good of every class.

The literate and the skillful Who hold their noses high, Are not the one who's lusterous star Will linger in the sky.

They are the vain and selfish, The blind who do not see; That they are gifted only, By God's generosity.

But those who try to share Their genius and their lore, Possess the prominence that will Endure for evermore.

Social Security Questions & Answers

Q - I'm a 61-year-old widower. Since I was totally dependent on my wife before she died, can I get monthly social security checks based on her work record?

A - Possibly, if she worked long enough in jobs covered by social security. Since January of this year, the age of eligibility for dependent widowers was lowered from 62 to 60. You should contact any social security office to apply for monthly payments.

Q - My husband died in an automobile accident 4 months ago and my 20-year-old son was severely injured in the same accident. Since my son had worked for nearly 6 months before his injury, can he get monthly disability checks from social security?

A - Your son needs at least one and one-half years of work under social security during the last three years to get disability payments on his own work record. However, he may be able to get benefits on his father's work record. A child can qualify for monthly payments on the work record of a deceased, disabled or retired parent if the child became disabled before the age of 22.

Q - Since my ex-husband became disabled a couple of months ago, he hasn't been able to pay his child support. I know that he applied for monthly social security payments. Can my 15-year-old son and I also collect monthly checks? I'm 40.

A - You should apply for payments for your son. If your husband's benefits are approved, your son will also be eligible. But you can't get payments now. A divorced wife can get payments on her ex-husband's earnings record only if she's 62 or over and was married to him for 20 years or more.

Q - I've accumulated $82 worth of doctor bills so far this year. When can I send these bills in to the Medicare carrier for payment?

A - You can send your bills in immediately. This year the annual deductible for medical insurance is $60. Medicare will pay 80 per cent of the reasonable charges for your covered expenses above the $60 deductible.

Kindergarten Visit Orchard

Recently Miss Cook's and Mrs. Draine's kindergarten classes went on a field trip to Fifer's Apple Orchard near Woodside.

The children tell their own story: Miss Cook's morning class--Billy likes to eat the apples. Kevin Bolin liked the trip. Kevin Smith likes the pumpkins. Denise liked the apples because they were good. We liked to pick the apples off the ground. We ate some of the apples we picked up. We cleaned them with our hands and coats. We didn't eat all of them because we are going to make applesauce. Sonny saw one pear tree. Bruce said he hoped we had a good time. Most of us ate one apple; some of us ate two apples. Valerie said she had a nice time at the apple orchard. We all liked the trip.

Miss Cooke's afternoon class--"It was real fun," said Jimmy Olson. The apples spilled in the bus. There were too many apples in the bag. Some of us helped to pick up the apples. We saw the machine that picks up the apples and dumps them on a machine that takes them up the hill to get washed. They put the rotten ones on top and the good ones on the bottom. We picked some apples. We saw

Kindergarten Visit Firehouse

During Fire Prevention Week we did exciting things. We walked down to the firehouse and saw the fire trucks and ambulance. Mr. Taylor showed us some of the things the firemen use to put out fires. Some of us got scared when he blew the loud siren. He told us what it takes to make a fire--air, fuel and heat. Mr. Short brought us back to school in the rescue truck. They loaned us a fireman's suit to try on in our room. It was heavy. It was fun.

Another day Mr. Taylor and some other men brought the truck out to school and showed us the different hoses and kinds of spray they make to fight a fire. He showed us the masks and air tanks, too. Friday we had a visit from Smokey Bear. The men who came with Smokey showed us a film about how Smokey got his name and he gave us some pictures to color. We learned never to play with matches. The first grades were our guests to see Smokey in the morning and the second grades came to visit the afternoon classes.

Miss Cooke and Miss Draine wish to thank all the firemen and the men from the Agriculture Forest Service who gave their valuable time to make our week educational and enjoyable.

Hospital to Visit Portugal

The Milford Memorial Hospital Women's Auxiliary, 1100-strong, is sponsoring an exciting 7-day trip to sunny Estoril, Portugal, leaving wintery Delaware climes Feb. 23, 1974.

The packaged excursion costs $297 which covers round trip Pan Am 707 jet fare, deluxe hotel accommodations, two meals daily, ground transportation, sightseeing trips, and gratuities. Extras include a special lunch at Lisbon's famous Embalmador Hotel, a dinner show with wines at the Casino Estoril.

"While the cost is exceptionally low, it still leaves the auxiliary latitude for a small profit which will benefit our many hospital projects," said Mrs. Joan B. Tease, president. "Reserved for us are accommodations at the luxurious Hotel Estoril Sol in one of the world's most desirable resorts. The climate is almost perfect. And, Estoril offers many other attractions - casinos, taverns, folk shows, fabulous shopping. Fortunately, Portugal is one of the few foreign ports left where inflation and dollar devaluation are not real problems," she added. "It's a real opportunity for a bargain vacation and to help the hospital at the same time."

The exciting holiday is available to ladies Auxiliary members and immediate families, as well as hospital employees, at the same low price. Interested persons are invited to write for information to Joseph B. Ahlschier, Administrator, Milford Memorial Hospital, Milford, De. 19963. Or, telephone 422-4576.

Veterans Administration News

Q - As an eligible veteran, I'd like to get a GI home loan, but my salary is not large enough for the house we need. Will the Veterans Administration include my wife's earnings in addition to mine in considering our eligibility for a loan?

A - Yes. Since July 18, VA

Q - My daughter attends college under the Veterans Administration dependents' education-assistance program. If she marries, will VA continue to provide this benefit?

A - Yes, VA will continue to pay this assistance. However, the agency is not permitted to pay additional allowances for your daughter's dependents.

Q - As a widow of a veteran who died of a service connected disability, am I entitled to commissary privileges?

A - Yes, provided your husband was retired, or was rated as having a 100 percent service connected disability at the time of his death. Application forms may be obtained from any Veterans Administration regional office or the appropriate military base.

Q - The Veterans Administration is giving my daughter dependents' educational assistance based on the service connected death of my husband. Since she plans to marry soon, I wonder if this will affect her assistance?

A - Your daughter's marriage would have no effect on her education benefits. A widow's remarriage under the same program, however, would result in termination of benefits, unless the remarriage was terminated by death or divorce.

Want to buy a goat?

We have heard many comments about the rising cost of milk to the consumer recently. Consumers must realize that the past year has been a particularly rough one for dairymen because of the high cost of grain. The dairyman is unable to pass on the increase cost to the buyer because the price of milk is controlled by a federal milk order. The price to the dairyman is calculated by a formula which is based on farmers input cost plus other factors related to the dairy business. The results of the formula do not show up in the farmers milk check until sometime later. To make a long story short, our dairymen need this increase in order to stay in business. If they can't make a profit they will sell out and the shortage of milk will be even more acute.

Getting back to buying a goat, if you thing that milk prices are too high you can always buy a cow. But cows are expensive - $500 to $800, and it would require a good bit of land and a shelter besides, there might be too much for the family at the start of the lactation and not enough as the cow starts to go dry.

Did you know that a dairy goat or two can supply your family with good, wholesome naturally homogenized milk for much less money than it takes to keep a cow? It may, or may not be the practical thing to do, but you may want to consider the idea. Goats cost less to start with - a doe might cost from $35 to $50.

Goats need less space, pasture, and feed than cows. And a good doe (female goat) produces two quarts of milk a day for about 10 months of the year. A top milker could yield 3 to 5 quarts a day for the same length of time.

Keep in mind, however, that a goat needs about half an acre of pasture during a grazing season of 5 or 6 months. Goats thrive on any good mixed pasture, but do not like clover by itself. What do they eat? Many kinds of feed - beets, turnips, cabbages and carrots. They also need iodized or block salt at all times. You need to supply plenty of clean, fresh water. No special kind of housing is needed - a barn or shed that is dry and free from drafts will do.

If you are really interested, check with your county agent, phone 736-1448. He has the figures on costs of having a dairy goat for home milk production.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

Recycling is a word that has become very common in our every day vocabulary these days. From the way it looks this word may become even more familiar. Many of us are now talking paper, cans and bottles back to be recycled, this is good. Why waste our forest and natural resources if we can reuse many products again. Come the 23rd of this month we will be thinking about another major recycling project right in our own kitchens. All of us will be figuring ways to save the left-over turkey, dressing, sweet potatoes - and all the rest of those Thanksgiving left-overs!

Though most of us "over do it" when it comes to preparing for this special day's meal, remember left-overs need not be classed as "relics" of Thanksgiving dinner. Be creative, use your imagination and plan for left-over meals that look like new ones.

Turn that remaining meat into creamed turkey on toast for one meal or what about serving chunky turkey salad on a crisp bed of lettuce for Friday or Saturday's lunch. Hot turkey salad casserole is something that is a real gourmet's delight and so easy to make. What ever casserole you make with chicken can have turkey instead. For the busy days ahead, those few days remaining before Christmas, it's a good feeling to know you have a casserole in the freezer for super or plenty of frozen turkey cubes to use in a quick curry, a la king, creole, etc.

If you've made too many candied sweet potatoes why not serve them a couple of days later as mashed potatoes over baked apple slices! This is very good and the family will never recognize Thanksgiving's sweet potatoes. If you have left-over mashed sweet potatoes, why not make a sweet potato pie, it's delicious in every way.

Too many of us are guilty of using all our left-overs for every lunch or dinner throughout the weekend. Try using one or two and then have the rest of the food "fresh". If you plan on having the turkey again as sliced turkey then do serve a vegetable and salad that did not appear on Thanksgiving day. When recycling the sweet potatoes or squash, serve them with ham or sausage. It's truly amazing how "left-overs" lose their name and become something respectable even to a "finkly eater".

Dressing or stuffing is one left-over you must handle with care. It should be removed from the turkey as soon as possible after serving on Thanksgiving day. Do not have stuffed turkey sitting out at room temperature. Put the left-over dressing into a covered container and refrigerate. Use it within three days. It makes a great addition to a number of casseroles.

If you decide to freeze much of your left-over meal then have you ever thought of freezing your own TV dinners? They are good and a very easy way to have an excellent meal on a hectic day. There is only one thing to remember, do use these dinners within three to six weeks time.

Organic Acids--Key To Field Crop Nutrition?

Plant scientists have been trying for a long time to find more refined methods of identifying nutritional deficiencies in field and vegetable crops. Researchers in the department of plant science at the University of Delaware are exploring the values of leaf mineral analyses as a backup for soil tests. Together, these tests provide a way to discover and diagnose nutritional stress conditions in plants before the problem becomes so severe that it causes serious yield losses.

The research that has shown the values of leaf mineral analyses originated last year in an undergraduate degree-with-distinction project undertaken by college senior David Hannaway. Hannaway, a plant science major, worked under the guidance of Dr. Merle Teel and Dr. Leroy Svec, professors in the department of plant science.

Subject of his project was a fertility and liming experiment on newly cleared pine forest land near Millsboro, that was established in 1961 by Dr. William H. Mitchell, another member of the department. This land has been under study by university personnel since its initial planting, used as an experimental area for improvement of soil fertility practices through liming. The soil type there is described as Coastal Plains sandy soil.

During the summer of 1972, leaf samples and yield data from corn plants in this area were taken. Hannaway used a system of multiple regression analysis on the university computer to determine leaf mineral relationships which were most closely related to variation in grain yield.

Three types of commercially available limestone have been used at three different rates since 1962 in test plots near Millsboro: 40 percent magnesium oxide ground burnt lime; 10 percent magnesium oxide ground burnt lime; and 20 percent magnesium oxide ground limestone.

With high-magnesium lime (40 percent MgO) grain yields were reduced when the ratio of phosphorus to zinc widened, irrespective of the soil pH. For example, in paired comparisons at pH 4.7 and 4.9, as the P-Zn ratio widened from 72 to 152, grain yields dropped from 148 to 91 bushels per acre. In paired comparisons with soils, each having a pH 6 value, as the P-Zn ratio widened from 108 to 147, grain yields dropped from 162 to 74.6 bushels. This research shows that any condition which reduces zinc uptakes will depress yields on Coastal Plains sandy soils. Leaf mineral analyses thus provided a valuable backup for the routine soil test when it is necessary to diagnose a field problem.

It has been known for years that unbalanced nutrition weakens plants; however, the basic causes have not been understood. Hannaway attempted to explain the "hidden hunger" in plants by examining the organic acids which plants produce, checking to see if certain acids accumulate when the plants are under nutritional stress. Out of the wide number of acids he measured by gas chromatography, only two were related to gain yield, namely l-ascorbic acid and malic acid.

Each acid varied with the manganese content of the leaf tissue, thus reflecting the influence of the liming practices. As manganese content rose from a deficiency level, malate rose sharply while ascorbic acid levels dropped. As the concentration of manganese exceeded the mean value, malate levels dropped very sharply while ascorbic acid levels rose.

High yields at Millsboro were generally found to relate to plots in which plant leaf tissue had high ascorbic and low malic acid levels. Delaware researchers are now investigating in greater depth these apparent relationships.

Delaware Farm Income Sets Record

Income from farming in Delaware set all kinds of records last year, but it was not the typical farmer's best year. This conclusion can be drawn from a report just released by the department of agricultural economics at the University of Delaware. The report is based on the latest USDA figures which cover the 1972 calendar year.

Delaware's gross farm income at $166.2 million was more than $10 million above the previous year and almost $3 million above the previous record set in 1969. Gross income per farm at just under $45,000 also set a record. That was almost $4000 better than the previous high set in 1971.

Despite these records, farmers had less spendable money after their bills were paid than they did in 1969-their best year ever. The report, compiled by Dr. Raymond Smith, chairman of the department of agricultural economics at the university, shows net income per farm in 1972 of $14,373. That's more than $4000 better than 1971 but $1600 below 1969.

The lower net farm income was caused by rapidly-rising farm production expenses which were relatively low in 1969 but have been going up steadily ever since, according to the report. Delaware still ranked fifth in the Continental United States in net income per farm. The leading state was Arizona, followed by California, Florida and Nevada.

Broilers were Delaware's big income producer in 1972, making up half the total. Field and vegetable crops accounted for one-third, with milk, eggs and livestock making up the rest.

The top seven commodities following broilers and their share of the income totals were soybeans, eight per cent; corn, seven per cent; fluid milk, six per cent; eggs, three and one-half per cent; hogs, three and one-half per cent; potatoes, three per cent; and greenhouse and nursery products, three per cent.

Several shifts occurred in 1972 in crop income distribution. Potato income increased $1.4 million to $1.7 million. Other crops with income increases were snap beans, lima beans, watermelons and mushrooms. Income from wheat, barley, tomatoes and peaches decreased.

Sussex county was by far the leading agricultural county with almost three-fourths of the total cash farm income. Sussex produces half of the crop income and almost 90 percent of the livestock receipts. Sussex was the leader in every major commodity except potatoes, mushrooms and milk. New Castle was the leading mushroom and potato county, while Kent was the top milk producer.
