

City Election Petitions Must Be in By Dec. 28

Persons desiring to run for office in the municipal election Tues. Jan. 8, must file their petitions by Dec. 28, City Manager John Harrington said Tuesday. Elections will be held for councilmen in the First and Third Wards, with the victors serving three years. Jack Wyatt, First Ward councilman, as of Tuesday, was the only one to file.

The incumbent in the Third Ward, James Carroll, has not signified his intentions. The petitions will be presented at the annual citizens meeting at the city hall at 7:30 p.m., Fri., Jan. 4.

Christmas Service At Trinity Church

The second annual Christmas Service by the combined choirs of Trinity, Prospect, Bethel and Salem United Methodist Churches will be held this Sunday evening at Trinity Church, Harrington, beginning at 7:30 o'clock. The program will include piano-organ selections by Mrs. Betty Wix and Melvin T. Brobst, as well as solos by Mrs. Mary Ann Draper and Alfred Mann. The combined all-church choir will have as soloists Mrs. Mary Lou Wright and Mrs. Jean Miller, and will be under the direction of Melvin L. Brobst, organist and choir-director at Trinity Church. Everyone is invited to attend.

Newspaper Collection

The Lake Forest Band Boosters will collect paper in Harrington this Sat., Dec. 22. A regular schedule will be followed from now on, with collections in Felton on the first and third Saturdays and in Harrington the second and fourth Saturdays. Papers placed on the sidewalk or front porches will be picked up.

Lake Forest School Board News

It was decided to rebid the proposed addition at Lake Forest East Elementary as the bid of $226,926 was higher than the budget of $215,000, at the Tuesday evening meeting of the Lake Forest Board of Education held in the high school library. Landon Contractors of Laurel was the bidder.

In other business, the Board hired Mrs. Gay Enterline to replace Mrs. Barbara Houser at Lake Forest North, and Mrs. Amy Coker to replace William A. Smith at the W.T. Chipman School.

Richard Seyler was granted a two year contract as assistant principal at Lake Forest North Elementary effective July 1, 1974.

Mr. Price reported at length on the Berry property adjacent to Lake Forest North Elementary School on which it had been proposed to replace a wooden boardwalk. Mr. Price was asked to have additional information for the January meeting.

ICE STORM DISRUPTS ELECTRICAL SERVICE

Residents of lower Delaware struggled Monday in a world of ice which clung tenaciously to trees and power lines. Electrical service and life in general was severely disrupted.

Western Sussex County appeared to be the hardest hit with electrical service in some areas out for 24 hours and in some areas much longer. Adding to the misery was a light blanket of snow which fell in downstate areas in the afternoon and evening.

About 80 per cent of Milford was without electricity from early morning until late afternoon, as were parts of the Laurel-Seaford area.

Some homes near U.S. 13 between Laurel and Felton did not have power until Tuesday morning, even though 50 crewmen of the Delaware Electric Company worked up until midnight Monday, but were pulled off their repair jobs to rest until 6 a.m. Tuesday since most had worked a 16-hour day in freezing temperatures.

The Diamond State Telephone Co. reported an abnormally high number of service disruption complaints. About 200 were reported in Kent County and 400 in Sussex.

Downstate fire companies reported a rash of fires related to the weather, most of them trees or poles set afire by falling power lines.

All schools opened an hour late in Kent County Monday, except Milford, which did not open at all. Again on Tuesday morning schools were an hour later opening as the roads were still in vry icy conditions. In Sussex County, Delmar, Laurel, Seaford and Woodbridge school districts were closed Monday and many were still not opened Tuesday.

The brilliant sunshine Tuesday turned the area into a true Christmas winter wonderland, and while it managed to melt the ice on many roads, the trees and grass remained sheathed in a glassy coating as late as Wednesday night.

Fire Destroys Felton Trailer

Kent and Sussex firemen responded to some 50 alarms during Sunday's storm, and at least two families in each county were burned out.

A young Felton couple lost all their possessions when flames engulfed their two-bedroom mobile home at Flying Dutchman Trailer Park.

Felton Fire Chief William Siple said the front end of the trailer was in flames by the time firemen arrived shortly after 1 p.m.

Edward Lloyd, 20, said he had driven his 18-year-old wife to work at about 11 a.m. and drove to the house of his in-laws with his 17-month-old son, and was not there when the fire started. Lloyd said the 1970 mobile home was insured, but the furnishings were not.

The family Monday appealed for clothing.

Sizes: Edward, 29-29 pants, 8 1/2 medium shoes; Barbara, 10 to 12 size dress, size 9 shoes; baby, size 3 clothing, 6 1/2 baby shoe.

"It's a good thing the baby wasn't in his crib," Lloyd said Monday.

"If he had been, it would have been all over. The whole place was like a match box when it went up."

The Taste Of Christmas

Plum puddings, mince pies, fruitcakes and Christmas cookies have been a part of Christmas for as long as people can remember. All of these goodies actually date back to the time, many centuries ago, when it was the custom to give cakes as Christmas presents. The cakes, shaped like human beings, were meant to represent the Christ Child or the Virgin Mary. These cakes were made of pastry on the outside, and richly-spiced fruits on the inside. The spices recall the gifts that the Wise Men brought to the Christ Child. As the years passed, the cakes gradually changed. Today's gingerbread man, long a popular Christmas tree ornament in Germany, was probably derived from the traditional cakes.

PEOPLES BANK BEGINS RAZING BUILDINGS

The Peoples Bank of Harrington has begun razing buildings along Gaines Alley and on Commerce Street.

Howard Wagner, executive vice president, said the immediate plans called for the land to be used as a parking area and for future expansion.

The old Gaines House, on Hanley Street, and the former bakery buildings on the alley have been razed. Still to be leveled are alley buildings of the Sapp Estate to Commerce Street and an adjoining building to the south. The last-named building is more than a century old.

KENT CHIEF HITS LIBERALIZED EXEMPTIONS

The president of Kent County Levy Court called a policy adopted Tuesday by that body to exempt totally disabled persons from county taxes financially irresponsible.

Provisions adopted allow a husband and wife to earn tax exempt up to $10,000, plus $650 for each dependent, and eliminate tax on the first $10,000 of assessments. The new limits are substantially more than the benefits now received by the elderly under a similar exemption, allowing only $6,000 in combined earned income and a $5,000 exemption from taxes.

Commissioner George W. Cripps, R-Buchanan Acres, suggested the higher limits and moved for the policy's approval. Joshua M. Twilley, commission president, and Commissioner John T. McKenna, D-Dover, voted "no" and were joined by commissioner Samuel G. Thomas, D-Camden, who, after hearing Twilley's argument, said, "Having made no utterance, I will vote no also."

The policy will permit totally disabled persons, with a doctor's certificate, to apply for relief from county taxes on the first $10,000 of property tax assessment. An individual will be able to earn up to $6,000 in addition to Social Security, Railroad Pensions and any pension related directly to the disability.

The combined income of the husband and wife cannot exceed $10,000 plus $650 for each dependent, also exclusive of Social Security and specific pensions. Total family income, then, would be permitted to exceed $10,000.

The original draft of the resolution would have set the same limits on income and exemption as the elderly now enjoy. "I think the resolution as phrased was fair to all concerned," Twilley said, "The resolution which has just been passed I feel to be financially irresponsible."

McKenna also said he felt the original proposal to be very liberal.

"I feel that this will be the beginning of a stampede, because the elderly have just as valid a claim to a larger exemption," Twilley concluded.

Gilbert Wheatley of Dover, a disabled veteran, was present to speak for the proposal. He advocated total relief from county taxes, including school and library taxes but did not propose an income limit.

Janette Hobbs to Be Awarded Ass'n of Del. Hospital's Certificate

Janette Hobbs

Milford Memorial Hospital's chief laboratory technician, Janette Hobbs, is to be awarded the Association of Delaware Hospital's certificate for successful completion of 25 Proficiency Units in a continuing education and in-service training program.

To date, only three Delaware hospital personnel have completed the required number of proficiency units to qualify for Association recognition and Mrs. Hobbs was the first of the three to be cited.

During the in-service training program, which Milford Hospital encourages its personnel to participate in, Mrs. Hobbs specialized in management. She attended courses, seminars, and workshops involving "Personnel Management," "Inter-Personal and Group Dynamics," "Management Engineering," "Systems Approach to Management," "Budgeting Principles and Practices," and "The Effective Executive." Also included was a seminar on "New Developments in Laboratory Services," Mrs.

Hobbs' particular sphere of operations.

Mrs. Hobbs' paper on "Regional Quality Control" was selected for inclusion in the ADH manual of papers on Management Development.

Because Milford Memorial Hospital was a pioneer in the use of DuPont's Automatic Clinical Analyzer, Mrs. Hobbs - as chief technician - developed early expertise on the highly sophisticated testing equipment. Consequently, last year she appeared on national television while serving as a consultant in the preparation of a commercial on the powerful machinery. In the filmed commercial, she helped demonstrate the Analyzer's speed and accuracy in testing blood and specimens, which results in savings in lives, time, and money.

Mrs. Hobbs also has the distinction of being one of the first laboratory technicians elected to the Board of Directors of the Blood Bank of Delaware. During her term which continues until April 1976, she will actively participate in a program designed to assure Delawareans of an ample supply of blood for emergencies and operations.

L.F. South Elementary School Busy With Christmas Activities

The Lake Forest South Elementary School has been quite busy this week with Christmas activities. Two beautiful Christmas trees have been placed in the lobbies of both sections of the school. Trimmings have been made by the art classes from each grade.

The fifth and sixth grades have visited the first grades and kindergarten classes two mornings this week singing carols and special songs of the season for them.

Thursday morning the students from second through sixth are expecting to walk to the downtown section of Harrington to sing carols. Donald Banschbach, music teacher for the school, will be in charge.

A special assembly will be held in the Chipman Field House Friday morning for all of the elementary grades, kindergarten through sixth. In addition to the singing of carols, the Creative Dramatics Group will put on a short skit, and the elementary chorus will sing several selections. A few surprises will be in store for the youngsters also.

Friday afternoon will be reserved for the annual Christmas parties in each of the rooms.

William Cline, principal of South Elementary has co-ordinated the whole week with the assistance of the teachers.

The William T. Chipman Junior School will perform for the South Elementary School Thursday afternoon.

Nine Improvement-of-Instruction Grants Awarded by U. D.

Nine improvement-of-instruction grants for the spring semester have been awarded by the University of Delaware to 15 faculty members, Dr. L. Leon Campbell, university provost and vice president for academic affairs announced.

The grants, designed to foster better teaching and learning through significant course improvement, encourages faculty members to go beyond the normal revision of existing courses, and to develop new offerings.

Two of the nine grants were made for joint projects, involving four faculty members each.

Funding for one joint project will provide for the use of films in an introductory drama course to help bridge the gap between drama as literature and as performing art. This project will be conducted by Robert B. Bennett, Dr. D. Heyward Brock, Dr. George E. Miller and Dr. Daniel P. Poteet, all assistant professors in the department of English.

The other joint project will involve four members of the university's business administration faculty, including Dr. Albert H. Dunn III, professor; Dr. Stephen K. Keiser, assistant professor; Dr. James R. Krum, associate professor, and Dr. Blaine G. Schmidt, professor and director of the university's Bureau of Economic and Business Research. They will work to develop and implement a new approach to marketing instruction, to be called the marketing semester.

Other awards were made to: Dr. George Basalla, associate professor of history, to cover the cost of film rentals for use in a new course on the future as Utopia;

Dr. David F. Bauer, assistant professor of statistics and computer science, to increase the scope of a statistics course to use senior statistics majors in the instructional process;

Dr. Yaroslav Bilinsky, professor of political science, for the enrichment of an introductory political science issues course;

Dr. Melbourne Carriker, professor of marine studies, for the development of a new interdisciplinary course in malacology for advanced undergraduate and graduate students;

Dr. Andrew Hepburn, assistant professor of dramatic arts, to provide for the use of videotapes in recording and communicating the theory and techniques of a master teacher of voice;

Dr. J. Joseph Hutchmacher, Richards professor of American History, to cover the cost of film rentals for a course in American politics from Presidents McKinley through Nixon; and James H. Sills Jr., assistant professor of urban affairs, to provide for speakers in a course on urban community organization.

Tampa Electric Gives $15,000 Grant to U. of D.

The Tampa Electric Company has awarded a $15,000 grant to the University of Delaware to support the research of the university's Institute of Energy Conversion.

The grant provides funding for the institute's continuing research in the area of thermal and electric systems conversion, and storage in the university's "Solar One," the first house to convert sunlight into both electricity and heat.

Tampa Electric Company is now the fourth major power utility to take an active interest in the institute's project and to commit substantial funding to solar energy research. Recently, Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, Delmarva Power and Light Company and Atlantic City Electric Company contributed to the university's solar energy research program.

The Institute of Energy Conversion, established early in 1972, has been investigating the development of integrated systems for conversion of sunlight to both heat and electricity for domestic, commercial and industrial application.

Convention For County ASC Committee Held

Paul W. Carter, a well-known Kent County farmer, was named to the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) committee by delegates to the ASC county convention, held Thursday night, Dec. 13, at the county office at Dover.

Russell C. Bowdle, a grain and vegetable farmer of Harrington, was named chairman of the County ASC Committee. Carter, a livestock-grain farmer of Felton, was named vice-chairman. Carter had just been elected by neighbors to the committee for Community D. Because of this move up to the County Committee he will no longer serve on the community committee and will be replaced by Nolan Sylvester of Felton.

E.T. Horsey, a grain farmer from Smyrna, will serve as regular member on the County ASC Committee. Carter will begin a new 3-year term on the committee on Jan. 1, while E.T. Horsey has two years and Russell Bowdle has one year remaining in their respective terms of office.

James S. Metz, a livestock-grain farmer of Magnolia was named first alternate member and Samuel L. Webb, a livestock, grain and vegetable farmer of Frederica, was named alternate to the ASC Committee for one-year terms.

The county ASC committee is responsible for local administration of government farm programs such as Feed Grain/Wheat Programs, Commodity & Facility Loans program, and the Wool program.

The vacancies were filled by farmer-delegates who are newly-elected ASC community committeemen for 1974. Community committees assist the county committee in farm program administration and help keep farmers informed of program provisions.

County committeemen are elected by the community committeemen to serve staggered three-year terms, so that ordinarily one vacancy occurs each year. J. Heyman Roosa, a livestock-grain farmer of Milford, will complete 3 terms as a member of the ASC Committee at the end of the year. Three consecutive terms are the maximum that the office may be held and Roosa was ineligible for re-election. During his tenure, Roosa served as vice chairman for two years and chairman for five years in addition to his service as a regular member. Roosa's service to Kent County farmers in ASC and predecessor agencies dates back to the early beginning of farm programs as we know them today. During this long period Roosa worked in many different positions and was well known and well liked by those he served and worked with.

The newly elected county and community committeemen take office Jan. 1, 1974.

In the hearty, happy spirit of a real old-fashioned Christmas we wish for you and your family a holiday season warm and bright with good cheer and good fellowship. To you and to our countless friends throughout this area, we extend our most sincere appreciation.

Energy Crisis Report From Sen. Bill Roth

During the past two weeks, you may have been reading about a government agency - the Federal Energy Administration - which is to be set up to help meet the energy crisis. Such an agency is sorely needed; at present some 60 government departments and offices are involved in energy policy, and inter-departmental fights between the Treasury, the Cost of Living Council, the Interior Department, and many others have inhibited effective, decisive government reactions.

Any bill to set up a new government department - or to recognize the government - goes to my Committee on Government Operations. Last week we interrupted hearings on a bill which I and several other committee members are sponsoring to establish an Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA) to oversee a massive energy research effort in order to give immediate consideration to the bill establishing the FEA. Acting with near record speed, the Committee was able to complete action - including two days of hearings - within five days. I offered two amendments to the bill, both of which were accepted by the Committee.

My first amendment will establish an Office of Private Grievances and Redress within the new government agency to handle complaints and provide appropriate means of relief. The director of this office would be a kind of "ombudsman" to help alleviate the hardships that will inevitably occur as the result of the energy measures. The director will also make recommendations to Congress when new laws are needed to prevent undue hardship to any one group. When I offered this amendment, I had the truckers' strikes in mind. In a society as complex as ours, it will be impossible to tell ahead of time who might be hurt next time by the government regulations. Truckers and all future groups need someone in the bureaucracy whose special job is to hear their complaints and try to find ways to solve their problems.

My second amendment provided that future projections of gasoline and oil reserves in the United States should be based on an independent analysis done by the government rather than just relying on the figures of the oil and gas industry. The energy crisis has been characterized by a lack of some of the very basic data needed. We should fill these gaps in order to know exactly where we stand.

The Mistletoe Myth

Mistletoe, which is second only to holly among Christmas plants, is surrounded by strange legends. According to tradition, the ancient Druids cut the sacred clusters with a golden knife and gave them to the people for charms. It was hung over their doors, and, according to the myth, only joy and happiness could enter as long as the plant remained green and fresh. It was held to be sacred that enemies coming upon it in a forest must declare a truce for a day.

Weekly Report From Sen. Joseph Biden

This week I have been working in the Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee to ready legislation to improve and expand the Federal government's efforts to upgrade housing in rural areas.

For too long our rural areas have been inadequately served by our national housing program. All too often, Federal housing efforts have focused upon the large metropolitan areas at the expense of rural America.

The 1970 Census of Housing indicates that slightly over five million American families live in substandard housing. Nearly 60 per cent of those inadequately-housed are found outside the nation's metropolitan areas. In Delaware, for example, 54 per cent of inadequate housing is outside the Wilmington metropolitan area. Despite the pressing rural needs, only about 25 percent of the Federal housing resources go to rural areas.

From my work with rural Delawareans, the importance of these statistics are of special concern to me. The problems which have confronted communities like Laurel and Coverdale Crossroads in Delaware reflect the inadequacies of present Federal assistance. The amendments I supported in Committee during the few weeks are designed to overcome these inadequacies and to provide the tools and the necessary funds to help these local communities.

Basically, the amendments will establish more equity between urban and rural programs. Thus, needy families in both areas will have more equal access to Federal assistance. One specific aspect of the effort is to expand the jurisdiction of the Farmer's Home Administration (FmHA) Rural Housing programs to include all areas outside a Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area and any open country or places of less than 25,000 within a Standard Metropolitan Statistical area. The reason for making this change is that programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development are not reaching these smaller communities. What has been created is a Federal program for communities between 10,000 and 25,000 population as far as housing assistance is concerned. Another main feature of this new legislation is the expansion of the amount of a FmHA loan and/or grant for rehabilitation to a maximum amount of $5,000. Rising costs have made the old $3,000 minimum impractical. The extension of the repayment period from 10 to 20 years should also benefit low income families. It will help them to meet their obligations to repay their loans without overburdening their limited budgets.

The work we have done in writing new legislation to upgrade our national housing program in both rural and urban areas is still not completed. More work must be done, but measures given final approval this week to aid the rural poor will go a long way toward fulfilling our national commitments. The new rural housing legislation will be part of the comprehensive bill on which my Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee will complete action before the holiday recess.

Harrington Bowling League News

Leah S. Wheeler

People's Restaurant continues to dominate the league as they took three points from Wally's Wrecker Service to pad their league lead a little more. Phil Shultie paced People's with a fine 207 game and 552 series, with Cloyd Bushey contributing a real good above average effort. Wally Ryan bowled well for Wally's as they managed to salvage one point.

Larry Horseman was top klegler for the night as he amassed a grand 614 series which included games of 214 and 224 as he led Brother's Five on a four point romp over Penn Central. Buck Thompson and Ray Dennis bowled good efforts also for the Brother's Five squad. Bernard Coffman bowled a fine above average effort in a losing cause for the railroaders.

Taylor & Mesick blew a chance to move up closer to the top as they watched hopelessly as Butler's Fuel take their five points from them, although George Collins rolled a real fine above average effort. Butler's Fuel, who went into the fray shy one man, received a good effort from Sam Lyons.

The Spoilers dropped three points to McKnatt Funeral Home, altho John Shaffer hit a fine 200 game. Harry Jack and Donald McKnatt bowled real good efforts for McKnatt's as the team showed a bit of its winning form from previous years.

Big John's Son and Robbin's Hardware battled to a two-two stalemate in their contest, with Mike Kohel adding a little extra effort for Big John's Son. Herb Robbins bowled a fine effort for Robbins' Hardware to keep things even.

Quillen's Market received goodefforts from Donald Wilson and Earl Quillen as the team took three points from the T & M Rejects. Ray Wright added a good effort for the Rejects which enabled them to salvage one point.

Professor Of Art To Exhibit Paintings

Paintings by Charles Rowe, an associate professor of art at the University of Delaware, will be featured in three exhibits in 1974.

A one-man show of approximately 14 paintings, all done in the past year and a half, will be on display Jan. 7 - 29 in the Mickelson Gallery at 707 G. St., N.W., Washington, D.C.

Another artwork by Rowe, from the permanent collection of Montana State University, will be featured in a rotating show, "20 Contemporary Montana Artists," as part of the U.S. Rep. John Melcher (D-Mont.) Exhibition on Room 1641 of the Longworth Office Building on Independence Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. The exhibit will run for 3 - 4 months, beginning in January.

The artist also has received an invitation to participate in the sixth annual C.M. Russell Museum art auction to be held March 15 in Great Falls, Mont. Each invited artist submits one piece to be auctioned by the museum. Collectors from the United States and abroad attend the annual event.

A native of Great Falls, Rowe joined the U. of D. art faculty in 1964. His areas of instruction include drawing and painting.

Rowe received his bachelor of fine arts degree from the School

Four Corrections Seminars Scheduled At U.D. In January

Four corrections seminars will be held in January at the University of Delaware Wilcaste Center, 2800 Pennsylvania Ave., Wilmington.

"Development of Correctional Moral: Problems and Solutions" will meet from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Thursday and Friday, Jan. 3 - 4. The seminars will feature a discussion of factors contributing to low staff morale and how these might be modified to improve the social climate of the agency or institution.

Instructor will be Dr. Theodore M. Zink, professor of criminal justice at Glassboro State College in Glassboro, N.J. Fee is $20, and registration should be completed by Dec. 29.

A three-day seminar on case studies in youth correctional work will be held from 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., Monday through Wednesday, Jan. 7-9. Designed to offer participants the opportunity to discuss active cases or situations, the seminar will offer suggestions on how to cope with the inherent problems in such cases.

Instructor will be Eugene Montone, executive director of the Youth Study Center in Philadelphia. Fee is $30, and registration should be completed by Jan. 3.

Family crisis intervention will be the topic of a seminar to be held from 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 21-22. The seminar will include discussion of how "aggressive casework" may be used in setting family crisis situations and other family problems.

Instructor will be Mrs. Harriet Goldstein, assistant director of the Association of Jewish Children in Philadelphia. Fee is $20 and registration should be completed by Jan. 17.

The fourth correction seminar in January will be "Use of Role Playing Within Correctional Settings." Scheduled from 8:30 a.m. - 4:30 p.m., the seminar will examine role playing and how its principles and techniques may be applied in working with juvenile and adult offenders.

Instructor will be Jack Mulvena, assistant professor in the School of Social Administration at Temple University. Fee is $20, and registration should be completed by Jan. 24.

For more information on the seminars, contact Jacob Haber, program specialist in the U. of D. Division of Continuing Education in John M. Clayton Hall, telephone 738-2741.

Lake Forest Tops Woodbridge 60-53

Lake Forest High went on a second period spurt and used the cushion to gain a 60-53 Henlopen Conference basketball victory over host Woodbridge Tuesday night.

Lake Forest trailed by two after one period but enjoyed an 18-8 bulge the next quarter and never trailed after that.

Suzanne Moore Receives Appointment At U.D.

Dr. Jorn E. Worthen, vice president for student affairs at the University of Delaware, announced the appointment of Suzanne Moore as assistant to the vice president, effective Jan. 1.

Mrs. Moore will replace Dr. John J. Romano, who has been appointed assistant dean of liberal arts at the Pennsylvania State University.

In her new position, Mrs. Moore will assist Vice President Worthen in the administration of student affairs programs and the implementation of a student development philosophy. Her duties also will include liaison with other offices in the university and managing special projects.

Mrs. Moore, 32, came to the U. of D. in the summer of 1972 as co-ordinator of student activities, and was promoted in July of 1973 to assistant dean of students. She currently works with student government, organizations and activities in the dean of students office.

Before coming to Delaware, Mrs. Moore served as assistant co-ordinator of residence halls at the University of Cincinnati. In addition to her experience in student affairs, she had been a psychometrist, a teacher in public schools and an instructor in French at the college level.

Mrs. Moore holds a masters degree from the University of Cincinnati, where she is also working toward a doctorate. She and her husband and son live in Wallingford, Pa.

Before joining the U. of D. faculty in September 1972, Dr. Romano was administrative assistant to the dean of the College of Liberal Arts at Penn State, where he also earned his

Student Radio Collects $832 For Charity

The University of Delaware student radio station WDRB collected $832 during its recent annual radiothon for charity. The money will be given to the Delaware Lung Assn., area distributor of Christmas Seals.

This year's marathon broadcast was the sixth annual event sponsored by the station.

WDRB is a closed-circuit radio station broadcasting only in university housing facilities.

Bishop's Christmas Message

Dearly Beloved in Christ:

As once again we approach the joyous feast of Christmas the church invites us to look beyond the externals of celebration in order to understand and appreciate better the meaning of the Incarnation mystery.

Christ came to make men great. The greatness consists in this; that we have been called by God to be His own adopted children, sharing the rights and privileges of His only begotten Son. Through Christ we are princes in God's Kingdom, "heirs indeed of God", St. Paul says, "and joint heirs with Christ". This is truly an exalted destiny, a dignity to which our unaided human nature can make no claim.

Christ came to make us free. Naturally speaking, we are a fallen race subject to weakness and shackled by sin. We stand in need of redemption. The message of Christmas is one of hope. It tells us in an incomparably beautiful way that conversion and salvation are possible because of a Savior's coming. The freedom that He brings is of the moral rather than the political order; He reforms the hearts of men, not their institutions; He gives the power to make peace on earth and to achieve eternal happiness hereafter.

Appropriately we Catholics have just begun the first phase of a Holy Year dedicated to two purposes: the renewal of the individual and of society, and the reconciliation of men with God and with one another. There is no better time to reflect on these purposes and to begin the task that they require than at Christmas.

I wish you the best of this happy season. It is my earnest hope and prayer that Our Divine Savior will graciously bless our resolve and assist our efforts to make this truly a Holy Year.

Faithfully yours in Christ,
Most Reverend
Thomas J. Mardaga, D.D.
Bishop of Wilmington

NERC Complaint Line To Be Discontinued

Effective Jan. 1, 1974, the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control's statewide Toll-free complaint line will be discontinued. While the department provides coverage throughout normal working hours and into the evenings and week-ends, we have often found that emergency situations arise that cannot be handled satisfactorily by a recording system.

In order to provide the necessary 24 hour emergency coverage, the department has made special arrangements with the Delaware State Police Troops. After hour calls to the Department's Dover number (678-4580) and New Castle County number (658-6348) will be automatically transferred to the State Police, who in turn will take appropriate action.

With the introduction of the Centrex (direct dialing) system, general information calls will be handled at the Dover number 678-4580; however, individuals with specific requests will be able to dial the appropriate offices or divisions directly by consulting the telephone book for the individual phone numbers.

By using this new system, and discontinuing the Complaint Line, the department will be able to have more effective 24-hour service at a lower cost to the taxpayer.

George W. Miller

George W. Miller, 62, of near Lewes, was dead on arrival Saturday at Besbe Hospital, following an apparent heart attack.

Formerly of Claymont, he moved to Lewes three years ago following his retirement as an excavating contractor.

He owned and operated a meat store in Milford until about 25 years ago.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Helen R. Miller; a son, James R. of Wilmington; two daughters, Mrs. Carl W. Faust Jr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Brady, both of Wilmington; a sister, Mrs. Harold T. Perkins of Newark; and 11 grandchildren.

Services were held Tuesday at the Berry Funeral Home, N.W. Front Street, Milford. Interment was in Odd Fellows Cemetery, Milford.

Fuel Pinch Might Up Christmas Calls

Diamond State Telephone Company switchboard operators in Dover are expecting an even busier Christmas Day this year, reports Chief Operator Miss Margaret Manly.

She said the fuel shortage could mean more people will stay at home, and this could cause an increase in long distance calls.

The Dover switchboard, located at 124 South State St., will have 44 toll operators on duty on Christmas Day.

The Dover switchboard handles calls from phones in Kent County and also parts of Sussex County.

She explained that the long distance operators are expecting to handle over 4,400 collect and person-to-person calls this year.

"Last year the switchboard operators completed 3,160 Christmas Day calls," she added. To save money and avoid delays, telephone users are being encouraged to dial their own long distance calls, and also call at off peak hours.

"It is cheaper, and faster for callers to dial their own station-to-station calls 'direct' rather than going through the operator," she advised.

Through the years, the heavy telephone usage on Christmas Day is from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., and again from 6 p.m. until 11 p.m. The holiday rates will be in effect from 5 p.m. on Christmas Eve until 8 p.m. Dec. 26.

"On holidays," she said, "calling patterns differ from those on an average business day -- calls are placed over longer distances and between more remote places in the country. And conversations tend to run longer than normal. The average call is about 10 minutes.

"The telephone network,

U.D. Department of Music Elected To Associate Membership in NASM

The University of Delaware department of music has been elected to associate membership in the National Assn. of Schools of Music (NASM), Dr. Kenneth E. Fahsbender, department chairman announced.

Membership of the association includes 400 universities, colleges and conservatories in the United States. At a recent NASM meeting in Denver, the U. of D. and ten other schools were admitted to associate membership and 10 schools were promoted from associate to full membership.

The NASM has been designated by the National Commission on Accrediting as the responsible agency for the accreditation of all music degrees curricula with specialization in the fields of applied music, music theory, composition, music therapy, musicology and music as a major in liberal arts programs.

The department of music submitted to the association last January an extensive self-survey on its faculty, programs, administration, objectives, students, admission requirements and physical equipment.

Then in April, Dr. David Ledet, head of the department of music at the University of Georgia, made a two-day visit to the campus for the NASM, talking to students, faculty and administrators and attending various classes offered in the music curriculum.

After Dr. Ledet submitted a favorable report to NASM, the department was granted tentative approval for admission in June, pending full association approval at the Denver meeting.

According to Dr. Fahsbender, the accreditation assures present university music students a continuation of the department's quality musical education, comparable to other fine music programs elsewhere in the U.S. For students who plan to attend the U. of D. as music majors, the accreditation shows that departmental standards meet those required by the NASM. At the present time, there are 172 music majors on the campus, and 180 are expected by the fall semester of 1974. The number of music majors will then have doubled from the 1971 figure of 90 students.

The department of music moved in the fall from its former home in Old College to the recently dedicated Amy E. du Pont Music Building, located on the corner of Amstel Avenue and Orchard Road on the campus.

"Sometimes we have to send a call all the way across the country and back again to get from a northern point to a southern point on the East coast. But the equipment works so fast that the caller isn't even aware of the distance involved," she said.

University Offers Course On Scuba Diving

The University of Delaware Division of Continuing Education will offer for four and one-half weeks in January an introductory course on the safe and proper use of skin and scuba diving equipment.

The noncredit course will be held from 7 - 10 p.m., Tuesdays and Sundays, beginning Jan. 6. Instructors will be D. Lee Kvalnes of Penns Grove, N.J., a nationally certified instructor in scuba diving.

Instruction in Taylor Pool, located behind Old College on the campus, will include the techniques of skin and scuba diving, downproofing, diving physics and physiology, marine life, diving oceanography, scuba life-saving, artificial resuscitation, dive planning and safety practices.

Participants must be 15 years of age or older, have had a recent medical examination and have swimming proficiency.

Tanks and regulators will be provided for the course. The student will supply mask, fins, snorkel, weight belt and inflatable vest. The necessary equipment and the obtaining of it will be discussed at the first class meeting.

Fee for the course is $60. For additional information, contact the Division of Continuing Education in John M. Clayton Hall on the north campus, telephone 738-2741.

Mrs. John R. Fowler

Mrs. Lydia E. Fowler of Harrington, died Monday in Milford Memorial Hospital after a long illness. Her age was not disclosed.

Her husband, John R. Fowler, died in 1920. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Jeanette Dill of Harrington; and two brothers, John T. Moore of Harrington, and Walter Moore of Felton.

Services will be this afternoon at 1 from the Berry Funeral Home, Main Street, Felton, where friends may call one hour prior to the service. Interment will be in Barratt's Chapel Cemetery, Frederica.

Profit--The Economic Motivator

There's a saying in economic circles that profit or anticipated profits create production. It isn't empty stomachs or shoeless children or inadequate housing, according to W.T. McAllister, extension agricultural economist at the University of Delaware.

It's only when these human needs are backed up with demand, or the ability and willingness to buy, that producers will try to fill these needs.

McAllister points out that since the 1930's, except during war years, farmers' earnings have been well below other industries. Several government programs designed to reduce farm output were tried but the efficiency of farming increased as fast as resources were taken out of production.

In 1970 the farm situation suddenly changed. Private and government held reserve stocks of corn and other feed grains were used. Even wheat which had been in storage for several years because there was no market for it was used for feed. Then in 1971 and 1972 Russia, China, India, Africa, Australia and other countries suffered severe droughts and small food and feed grain crops failed. They were forced to seek additional supplies from other countries to meet the minimum food requirements of their growing populations.

As a result of these short crop years, wheat and soybean prices skyrocketed and corn and other grains almost doubled in price, notes McAllister. "This meant high feed costs for livestock farmers and these higher costs were soon reflected in higher consumer prices of meat, milk, eggs, poultry, cooking oil and other foods."

U.S. farmers responded to the higher crop prices by increasing production in 1973--23 per cent more soybeans, 2 percent more corn, 11 per cent more sorghum and 12 percent more wheat.

McAllister says information from Argentina, Brazil and South Africa indicates they are also planning to take advantage of strong world prices for soybeans and corn. Russia recently reported its largest food and crop production in China and India is above that of recent years.

Why all this interest in increasing farm production? "It's not for humanitarian reasons," says McAllister, "but because there is an opportunity for profit." The profit incentive assures the essential balance between supply and demand.

You're on our greetings list. Happy Holidays and sincere "thank you."

Spirit Of Christmas Rules In Celebrations

It's Christmas time! Everywhere glad sights and sounds reflect the spirit of the season, as this community celebrates the joyous holiday.

The Christmas is seen in gaily decorated streets, stores and homes, in churches where the manger scene tells anew the wonderful old story of a holy babe who was born in Bethlehem nearly two thousand years ago.

The spirit of Christmas is heard, in bells ringing out from street corner to steeple, in happy voices singing the songs of the season, from old familiar carols to the more solemn, but at the same time joyful, anthems and cantatas.

The spirit of Christmas is felt, as last minute preparations for the big celebration are made. There are always, it seems, still some packages to be wrapped, some final trimmings to be put on the tree, some part of the Christmas pageant or choral program that needs just one more rehearsal, some extra touch to make the Christmas feast absolutely perfect.

In the midst of the hustle and bustle, the spirit of Christmas shines through in all its many meanings.

The spirit of Christmas means laughter and joy—best expressed perhaps, by the faces of children, eager and smiling as they wait for Santa, full of reverent wonder as they hear the Christmas story and see the manger scene.

The spirit of Christmas means giving, with love wrapped into every package. And it means sharing—the riches of thoughtful consideration and genuine interest as well as time and money—with the aged, the ill, the needy and unfortunate.

The spirit of Christmas means a warm renewal of family ties and warm friendships, and an enjoyment of traditions treasured, garnered from the lore and legends of Christmas.

As a holy day and a holiday, Christmas means both prayerful worship and festive merrymaking. The holy meaning of the day is expressed in its name.

The Latin name for Christmas translates as the Feast or Birthday of our Lord. The English Christmas means the Mass of Christ, a meaning which is closely paralleled by the Dutch "Kermis." In German it's "Weihnacht," or sacred night. The French "Noel" has several possible meanings—news, birthday, or a "shout of joy". Whatever the exact origin, there is no question that Noel now means Christmas.

How the tree grew
When the German prince Alfred married Queen Victoria, he carried the custom of the Yule tree to England, and from there it spread by imitation and immigration to the United States and Canada.

The German origin is appropriate, since it was in Germany that the English missionary St. Boniface, formerly a monk named Winfrid, first instituted the decorated fir tree, a tribute to the Christ Child as a replacement for the sacrifices made to the oak, which was sacred to the pagan god Odin.

When caroling began
With the joyful strains of "Silent Night," "The First Noel" and other beloved carols, today's carolers carry on a meaningful Christmas custom that originated centuries ago.

As early as the fourth century A.D., a musical poem was sung in honor of St. Basil and his victory in the fight for Christianity over the Byzantine emperor Julian. In Greece, legends of St. Basil were later put to music and sung at Christmas and the new year.

The first real Christmas carols however, were probably sung in the Italian mountain village of Greccio when St. Francis of Assisi created the first manger scene in 1223. He and his brethren led the villagers in singing hymns of praise to the Christ Child.

Source of giving
Giving gifts at the Yuletide season has many precedents. In the years before Christ, Romans gave branches of laurel, olive and myrtle to each other at the Saturnalia, a pagan festival that occurred about the same time as our present date of Christmas. In England and Northern Europe, Druid worshippers tied gifts on trees during the Yule festival held at the winter solstice.

Roman emperors often demanded Yule gifts of clothing, gold and silver from their subjects, and so did the kings and queens of medieval England. It is said that Queen Elizabeth I gained most of her wardrobe through these compulsory gifts.

In later years the idea of giving in a spirit of kind-hearted generosity developed.

New Films Available On Social Diseases

Two new films about venereal diseases are now available on a free loan basis from the Division of Public Health Film Library.

"Look What's Going Around" (16 mm, sound, color) is a film designed for use in clinics, high schools and colleges. Set largely in a public health clinic, this 16-minute film uses animation and group discussion to present both facts and attitudes about common venereal diseases—especially gonorrhea and syphilis.

Another film aimed at students and adults, entitled "VD: Truths and Consequences" (16 mm, sound, color), is narrated by basketball star Gail Goodrich. It is a 28-minute, comprehensive discussion of VD, its symptoms, cure and prevention.

These films are available on loan to any group or school in Delaware. For information on how to borrow them, interested persons may call or write the Division's film librarian, Jesse Cooper Memorial Building, Dover; telephone 678-4754.

U.D. Takes Further Steps To Conserve Energy & Fuel.

President E.A. Trabant announced today that the University of Delaware is taking further major steps to conserve energy and fuel.

President Trabant said: "It is essential that all segments of the university community—students, faculty and staff—make sacrifices to assist the state and national efforts to conserve energy and fuel. The many letters and other communications I have received thus far reflect the willingness of the university community to do what it can to be of assistance."

First, the university is closing down for the period Jan 2 through Jan. 6, 1974. This will add five days to the period during which the university will be substantially closed. This means Winterim activities will not begin until Jan. 7, 1974.

Second, certain Winterim activities have been greatly reduced. Only one of three charter flights to Amsterdam has been retained. Projects entailing long-distance automobile trips such as to Florida, California, Canada and Georgia have been cancelled. Further, all campus students in Winterim projects requiring travel daily to Wilmington will be required to use chartered buses. The regular campus shuttle bus schedule also will be discontinued during Winterim.

All Winterim lectures and seminars will be rescheduled into two buildings. Only two of the university's six dining halls will be open during the Winterim period. Ten residence buildings will be closed. Students participating in the Winterim who normally reside in the halls marked for closing will be housed elsewhere on the campus. Students in the halls to remain open as well as fraternities will be asked to assist in finding accommodations for these students.

Approximately 950 residence hall rooms which are individually thermostatically controlled will be closed and the heat reduced to minimum standards. Students also will be asked to consolidate room assignments so that heat and electricity can be curtailed in unoccupied sections of those residence halls which will be open.

Finally, during the revised Winterim period, Jan 7 - Jan. 23, temperatures in all campus buildings will remain at the reduced levels established for the Dec. 22 - Jan. 6 period.

Golden Holly

Not all holly berries are red. Some rare plants produce black berries and some a yellow-gold berry much sought after by horticultural collectors.

In Germany, holly is called Christdorn after a legend which has it that Christ's crown of thorns was made of holly. According to the legend, all holly berries were once yellow, but, having been stained by the blood of Christ, turned red and have remained red ever since the crucifixion.

King Of Misrule

Christmas in Rome in the early days of the church inevitably absorbed many pagan traditions. The Feast of Saturnalia was celebrated from Dec. 17 to the 25th in honor of the god, Saturn. All work stopped, gifts were exchanged and revelry ruled.

During this period, the rich were required to honor the poor and masters exchanged places with their slaves, often serving them at table.

Centuries later, during the reign of Alfred the Great in England, the old custom was revived by electing a King of Misrule, a lord of fools who, during his 12 day reign, could say or demand almost anything from anyone including the king and his princes. During the 16th and 17th centuries the Puritans tried to halt the celebration of Christmas except as a church function. People were expected to work as usual on Dec. 25 and any public observance of the day was forbidden.

Much of this suppression carried over to this country when it was first settled. Christmas was not a public holiday in the U.S. until it was so designated by the State of Alabama in 1836, and it was not until 1900 that all the states accepted it as a national holiday.

The Reason For Xmas

Occasionally we hear some well meaning person decrying the use of the word "Xmas" as an irreverent substitute for the word "Christmas," and we wonder why he has never asked himself how the "X" got into Xmas in the first place. The fact is—according to church historians—that "X" is probably the oldest and most universally used Christmon— or monogram— of Christ. Very probably it is an older symbol than the cross itself. It was good enough for the Roman Christians who hid in the catacombs and who were thrown to the lions for their beliefs. It was good enough to serve as the banner of Emperor Constantine. And so it is probably still good enough to be used on a Xmas card or in a letter to a friend.

We're wrapping it up! Our holiday greeting that is, with A-1 hopes of a season filled with happiness and warmth to all our friends, and our gratitude to patrons we've served.

Consumers Day Program To Focus On Family Communications

How can people understand each other better—especially in family relationships? The many sides of this question are to be explored in depth at an upcoming consumers day seminar at the University of Delaware.

"Communication: The Key To Understanding," is the topic of this year's program, which will be held Tues., Jan. 15 from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. in Clayton Hall on the university campus. The conference is sponsored by the Delaware co-operative extension service.

Planners say their goal is to help people realize more fully the tremendous importance of good communications in all sorts of parent-child relationships. The program is also aimed at finding more about ways to establish good communications.

The conference will focus on such questions as to how to bridge the gap between individual differences through communication, the nature of child to parent communications at various age levels, specific communication problems such as talking about sex with your child, dealing with parent-school relationships, and the changing role of the father and the role of the single parent in today's society. Parent-child interactions which affect children's attitudes and behaviors towards others will also be discussed.

The conference will include a number of panel discussions and informal talks which the public is encouraged to participate.

Sessions will be conducted by Dr. Janet Kramer, a physician specializing in internal and adolescent medicine; Kirby Krams, assistant chief of the Delinquency Prevention Bureau, Delaware Division of Juvenile Corrections; and child development specialists Dr. Dene Klinzing, Dr. Barbara Settles, Dr. Mary Jane Strattner and Dr. Penny Ziegenfuss, all on the faculty of the College of Home Economics at the University of Delaware. Key-note speaker will be Dr. Edmund Glenn, a specialist on language and cross-cultural communication, now associate professor of dramatic arts and speech at the university.

This statewide conference is free and open to anyone interested in attending. Extension service planners say educators, professionals working with children, private citizens involved in volunteer work with youth, and family members in general should all find the sessions most useful. For those free to spend the entire day, lunch can be purchased without advance reservations in the cafeteria of Clayton Hall.

Further information is available by contacting your county extension home economics agent.

Using Kitchen Appliances Efficiently

Automatic dishwashers and garbage disposals are considered necessities rather than luxuries by many homemakers, says Coral Morris, extension home management specialist at the University of Delaware. So it's doubtful that the energy shortage will convince owners of these appliances to curtail their use.

Instead, Miss Morris suggests that homemakers make the most efficient use of their appliances by operating them only when necessary, and by following the manufacturer's directions carefully.

For instance, most modern dishwashers are designed to wash even heavily soiled dishes. It's usually unnecessary to pre-wash the dishes in the sink before putting them into the dishwasher. Let the appliance do the job and save the handwashing and the additional hot water and detergent. You can conserve hot water by washing a full load. Instead of washing a small number of breakfast and lunch dishes, wait until after dinner to do a full load.

Dishes that are allowed to air dry on their own in the dishwasher are just as nice as those that are power-dried. This usually involves setting the dishwasher for a "Wash Only" setting, or its equivalent. Dish washers that do not have such a setting can usually be programmed for no heat or less heat. Instructions on how to do this are usually contained in the operating manual.

The water heater should be set for 140-150 degrees, since this is the temperature range for most efficient operation. Insulating the hot water pipes can help reduce heat loss.

Automatic disposals are a real convenience for getting rid of the messier garbage, but there is no real reason for using them for all your food waste. Items like bones, which are difficult to break up and which use a great deal of water in the process, can conveniently be thrown away as is. However, Miss Morris cautions homemakers against trying to conserve water when using disposals. This can result in a build-up of food waste that may cause plumbing problems and perhaps a service call. It is better to use too much water rather than too little.

Use cold water to flush the food wastes through the disposer and down the drain. Fibrous foods, such as celery or corn husks, should be put in first, with other food wastes on top. This arrangement helps break up the fibrous foods and disposes of them more quickly.

Del. River And Bay Authority News

Traffic on the Delaware Memorial Twin Bridges increased 29,820 vehicles or 2.1 per cent in November over the same month last year.

These statistics were made public by Theodore C. Bright, general manager, and are included in his monthly report to the Commissioners of the Delaware River and Bay Authority.

Bridge traffic for the month of November 1973 was 1,453,334 vehicles compared to 1,423,514 for November 1972.

Bridge traffic for the twelve-month period ended November 1973 was 19,148,823 vehicles compared to 18,227,242 vehicles for the twelve-month period ended November 1972, an increase of 921,581 vehicles of 5.1 per cent.

Since Aug. 16, 1951, a total of 274,134,909 vehicles have crossed the Delaware Memorial Bridge.

Warding Off Witches Led To Candy Canes

One of the most popular symbols of the Christmas scene—candy canes—began with an old superstition during the Middle Ages. Europeans of that period carried glass canes filled with colored candies to distract evil witches.

Belief was that the evil ones became so interested in sorting the candies that casting of evil spells was forgotten, reports the Candy, Chocolate and Confectionary Institute.

Study Of Marine Policy At U.D.

A center for the study of Marine Policy, the first of its kind in the United States, has been established within the University of Delaware College of Marine Studies, university President E. Arthur Trabant announced earlier this month.

The center will focus upon public policy issues affecting the oceans, the seabed and the coastal zone.

At the same time, Dr. William S. Gaither, dean of the College of Marine Studies, announced the appointment of Dr. Gerard J. Mangone, professor of international law and organization at the university, as the first director of the center.

Dr. Mangone is an eminent scholar in international and marine affairs. The author of several books, he was most recently coordinator of ocean affairs at the Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars in Washington, D.C., and the executive director of President Nixon's Commission on the United Nations.

"The ever-expanding and sometimes-conflicting demands on the finite resources of the oceans and their coasts have underscored the need for a continuous, dispassionate study of marine policy side by side with scientists," Dr. Mangone explained. "The center will be in the College of Marine Studies, whose faculty include distinguished oceanographers, biologists, geologists and engineers. The center will draw upon their expertise while working with public agencies and private enterprise on marine policy questions."

Dr. Mangone has held professorships at Wesleyan University, Swarthmore College and at the Maxwell School of Syracuse University, and has been a visiting professor at Mount Holyoke and Trinity colleges, and at Princeton, Yale and Johns Hopkins universities. He also has served as a consultant to the United Nations, the U.S. Department of State and the White House.

Students in the College of Marine Studies' marine affairs program also will benefit from the center's research by participating as assistants in both theoretical and practical investigations of marine policy. The expansion of the marine affairs research program, moreover, will serve to enhance the curriculum leading to the masters and doctoral degrees in the college.

Other activities of the center will include publishing of research reports and conducting special conferences for public officials and businessmen that focus on marine issues.

Broiler Industry Can Cut Fuel Consumption

can cut its fuel consumption in half without affecting bird performance. This is the conclusion of Ernest W. Walpole, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware, after a careful study of broiler house heating practices on the Delmarva Peninsula.

To prove the point, Walpole and a colleague in the department of agricultural engineering, Norman E. Collins, have developed a computer program which simulates the heat balance in any size or shape of broiler house. The program can also simulate many management practices and predict the effect of these on fuel consumption. It shows that major fuel savings can be made in most operations.

Walpole says it is possible to raise a winter flock of 1000 birds to market readiness--this takes nine weeks--using only 16 gallons of liquid propane gas for heat. A few growers are already doing this in their most efficient houses. But the average broiler house consumes around 60 to 70 gallons per 1000 birds. And there are some operations using as much as 150 gallons. In most houses this fuel consumption can be reduced with proper management.

Walpole recently wrote to each of Delmarva's 15 broiler growers, offering to analyze their operations and advise them on possible fuel savings they can make. A number of growers have already responded, and the agricultural engineer expects others to take advantage of his offer, since his program becomes available at a time when both fuel costs and fuel savings are critical for the industry. Any grower who wants help in heating his broiler houses more effectively just needs to supply Walpole with some details that can be fed to the computer. The kind of information required includes details on the type of house--size, shape, number of windows, materials it is constructed of, and the kind and amount of insulation. The number of birds, their age and the amount of feed they consume are also factors. So is the outside temperature average for the projected period. Walpole feeds all this information into the computer and comes up with recommendations tailored to the individual poultry operation.

Three trouble spots in the heating of a broiler house account for most of the fuel waste: (1) insulation and winterization practices; (2) ventilation control; and (3) brooding and growth temperature schedules. The computer shows adjustments needed for optimum efficiency in each of these areas.

By winterizing a broiler house properly, a grower can save as much as 30 gallons of fuel over a nine-week period, says Walpole. He advises using three-and-a-half inches of insulation. Critical, too, in terms of heat loss is the absence or presence of windows. Also, those long, narrow houses are much more costly to heat than wide ones because they have more wall surface in proportion to the space to be heated inside.

Ventilation control is important, too. Many growers are ventilating at twice the rate recommended by the university. If the ventilated at the recommended rate, they would save about 35 gallons per 1000 birds grown.

The third major problem area is brooding-growing temperatures. An average saving of about 20 gallons per 1000 birds is possible. Just by dropping the temperature inside the houses two degrees more than is presently done. Research indicates such a temperature drop doesn't hurt the birds at all.

There are an estimated 67-and-a-half million broilers right now in Delmarva broiler houses. This is the figure supplied by J. Frank Gordy, executive director of the Delmarva Poultry Industry. Gordy says the industry expects to produce a total of some 3338 million broilers this year--16 million more than last year. So when you talk about cutting fuel consumption in half, you're talking about a lot of fuel--probably six million gallons of LP gas.

Through the use of a computer to determine maximum fuel efficiencies is new to the broiler industry, Walpole expects the idea to catch on. For one thing, growers are already feeling the economic pinch as production costs continue to rise. And there's the whole issue of the scarcity of fuel.

If we have a harder winter this year, this could mean additional problems. If the temperature average is five degrees colder than last winter, the industry is going to need 30 to 40 per cent more fuel. And last year they burned a lot--11,788,985 gallons of LP gas. So, that potential savings of six million gallons could be pretty important in keeping chickens on our tables.

One can't help wondering if Walpole's system of programming data for computer evaluation of best fuel efficiency couldn't also be applied to home heating. He thinks it probably could. But that's another ball game.

Using Holiday Greenery In Your Home

There will probably be more Christmas greenery and fewer electric lights used to decorate homes this year, says Donald Tatnall, extension specialist in ornamental horticulture at the University of Delaware.

One of the most familiar of the traditional plants is mistletoe, although few people know the reason for its popularity. Since earliest times, mistletoe has been revered by different peoples of the world. Special powers have been attributed to the plant, which has been used in medicinal preparations and in religious rites. The popular custom of kissing beneath a sprig of mistletoe probably had its origin in Scandinavian mythology.

Mistletoe is a small shrubby plant that is common in the southeastern part of the country. However, some species are found as far north as Delaware, according to Tatnall. It is a parasitic plant that may be found growing in the branches of maples, sycamores, gums and oaks. The attractive clusters of pearly-white berries can be poisonous and should be kept out of the reach of children and pets.

All greenery should be removed from the house as soon as possible after the holidays, Tatnall advises. As it loses its moisture and becomes brittle, it is much more likely to catch on fire. However, instead of dumping your forlorn Christmas tree by the curb for the trash man to haul away, he suggests using it as a bird feeder. Set it up in the yard where you can see it easily, but yet far enough from the house for the birds to feed undisturbed. Attach suet, strings of popcorn and cranberries, and other treats the birds will enjoy during the cold winter days.

Christmas tree branches can also be used out of doors as protective coverings or screens for plants. If you need additional greens for your garden, Tatnall suggests that you ask your neighbors for their discarded trees. They would likely be glad to have the trees used in this way.

New Century Club Notes

The New Century Club held its regular meeting Tues., Dec. 11 at 6:30 by having a covered dish at a Christmas party.

Mrs. Joseph S. Brinster welcomed the members and guests. Mrs. William Griffin, vice president, gave the invocation. Everyone enjoyed the abundance of assorted foods. Then Mrs. Griffin introduced Donald F. Claycomb, who is the instrumental and vocal director of the Lake Forest High School. Mr. Claycomb is a graduate of Indiana University, of Pennsylvania, located in Indiana, Pa. He came to Lake Forest after having taught in one of the Pennsylvania school districts and has now been associated with Lake Forest High School for two years.

He has become very well known throughout this district due to his outstanding work with the Lake Forest High School band. The band is now recognized in many areas, having won several first place awards in the state and surrounding areas and having been invited to participate in the Lincoln Center celebration of the anniversary of the states of Israel. They participated in the 1973 Miss America pageant in Atlantic City and was recently invited to participate in the International Music Festival held in Holland. They are anticipating being involved in the blossom festival held in Niagara Falls, Canada, in May.

Those in the music group are: Matt Burgess, Robb Wyatt and Clinton Graham of Harrington; Cindy Atkinson, Sharon Fry, Donald Hopkins and Keith Horn of Felton. Bonnie Dill and Sue Hughes of Felton played guitars and sang "Michael Row The Boat Ashore", "Down Town" and "Chestnuts Roasting On An Open Fire", a Christmas song.

Mr. Claycomb announced that the Christmas concert would be held Thursday night, Dec. 20, 7:30 p.m. in Lake Forest School.

Mrs. Brinster read an invitation to the Club to a tea at the home of Mrs. William Draper Dec. 20, 1:30 - 4 p.m. Anyone desiring to go call Mrs. Brinster.

Mrs. Theodore Harrington has an order of place mats and writing paper, anyone wishing to pick up the plates they ordered, may do so.

The next meeting will be held Jan 8, 1974, at 1 p.m. The topic will be "Conservation." Chairman for the meeting will be Mrs. Daniel M. Sweeney, who will be assisted by Mrs. John Curtis, Mrs. C. Fred Wilson, Mrs. Walter Winkler, Mrs. Joseph Konesey, Mrs. Gayle B. Smith and Mrs. Lawrence Jones.

A Joyous Christmas

Take these flowers, gem'd with dew-drops, As a loving gift from me: May thy heart reflect their brightness And thy Christmas joyous be!

Buying Firewood

With less energy available this winter, more families are looking for good firewood to help keep them warm on these cold winter nights.

Before you go out to buy that stack of wood, however, you had better understand the wood dealer's language. When he asks if you want a cord, "pickup" or crib of wood, will you know what he means?

Tom Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware, says a cord is a stack of wood four feet wide, four feet high and eight feet long.

Don't confuse a cord of wood with a "pickup" load, says Williams. A pickup load is approximately half a cord or a stack two feet wide, four feet high and eight feet long—enough wood to fill a half-ton pickup truck.

Some dealers sell wood by the crib. This is something like a wheelbarrow load.

Base your firewood needs on the amount of space you have for storing wood and the amount you are willing to pay. Remember, the smaller the amount you buy at one time, the higher the unit cost.

Among the better fireplace woods are hickory, oak, ash and hard maple. Hickory and oak are the best heat producers. A cord of hickory or oak produces more heat than a ton of coal.

If you want action in the fireplace, osageorange and mulberry make things happen. Both burn well but spark, pop and crack. Remember for safety, use a fine mesh screen at all times, stresses Williams.

MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR

Omens Dim Yule Spirit

"Merry" Christmas? Not always, according to some ancient beliefs once associated with the day.

Take, for instance, the old belief that cattle and other stable animals were given the power of speech on Christmas Eve.

Any person who heard the animals speak would die within a year, so superstition said.

Somber omens of death were read into still other Yuletide legends. When the Yule log burned, bystanders were told to watch the shadows on the walls. If the shadows of any persons appeared to be headless, this supposedly meant death, for those persons, again within a year.

Salt was also said to have the power of forecasting life or death, when used in connection with Christmas. The test could be made by leaving a small mound of salt on the table on Christmas Eve. If the salt melted during the night, that, too, meant death within 12 months. If the salt remained unmelted, the forecast was for a long and healthy life.

John E. Brown

John E. Brown, 62, of near Harrington, died last Thursday at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Elsmere, after an illness of about a month. Exact cause of death was not known.

Mr. Brown, a native of Lawrenceville, Va., had lived in Harrington for about seven years. He was a retired postal clerk.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hilda Mae Brown; three brothers, Waldorf of Fredericksburg, Va., Haywood of Washington, and George of Lawrenceville; and a sister, Mrs. Mabel Flant of Chambersburg, Pa.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the McKnatt Funeral Home, Harrington. Interment was in Williamsville Cemetery, near Houston.

Felton

By Mrs. Walte. Moore

Felton United Methodist Church - minister, the Rev. David G. Paul, Dec. 16, the third Sunday in Advent. The Rev. Paul's Advent sermon was "The Christmas Story." It Seems To Me

Janet Reed

'Tis the season to be jolly! It's a season of parties and entertaining and the season of spots and stains.

Each stain is an individual problem and differs not only in the type of stain, but where it lands. The same substance can be easy to remove in some instances and incredibly difficult in others. You're fortunate if that spot lands on an item that can be laundered and bleached, for this takes care of many problems. Unfortunately, this seems rarely the case.

Remove the stain as soon as possible. Some stains are impossible to remove if allowed to "set".

If the stain is on a good garment and on fabric which might be easily damaged, take it to the spotter at your dry cleaners and explain the nature of the stain. Often he is equipped with special materials and tools to take care of the problem. In the long run, it will be cheaper to obtain professional help than to ruin an expensive garment by ineffectual home methods.

Candles are widely used at holiday times and they have a way of dripping wax on carpets or tablecloths or clothing. Let the wax cool and scrape up as much as you can. If the stain is on fabric, place the stain between layers of facial tissue or between white blotters and press with a warm iron. Replace the blotting material and press again until no more wax appears to be absorbed into it. Then treat the stain with a solvent or alcohol if the fabric permits. If the material is washable, launder as usual.

A candlewax stain on a carpet is another problem. Different carpet constructions will make a difference in the ease of stain removal. It is extremely difficult to remove stains from every yarn surface in a carpet made from loosely twisted yarns. You may be able to absorb some of the wax with blotters and a warm iron, but it won't be very effective because there are so many yarn surfaces to reach by this method. Treat the stain with a dry cleaning solvent, but do not get the carpet wet. Solvents can damage the latex backing on some carpets.

There are so many variables in beverage stains that they, too, can become difficult to remove and complex to treat. Beverages contain colorants and other ingredients which may not become visible until the item has been laundered or pressed or aged awhile. If the material is washable, soak the stain in cool water as soon as possible. Then rub a mild liquid detergent containing a few drops of white vinegar into the spot and let it soak for about half an hour. Then rinse. Vinegar can change some colors, however, so be careful about using this on a colored item.

If the garment is not washable, take the problem to your dry cleaner with a careful and exact explanation for the spotter.

If the beverage is spilled on a carpet, immediately absorb as much liquid as possible by blotting with tissues or other clean absorbent material. Then treat with a solution of one tablespoon of a mild liquid detergent to one-half pint of lukewarm water. Add a small amount and blot, continuing until no more stain is removed. Do not over-wet or rub the area as this can cause distortion or staining from the carpet backing. When the stain has been removed, place a thick layer of clean white absorbent material over the damp area and weight it down.

If you have a spilling accident use the treatment least likely to cause damage first, then progress to other treatments. Keep a carpet care reference handy for emergencies. If you have doubts, call a professional rug cleaner for advice.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

It's the season for special foods and every store is decked out with holiday goodies.

More candies are in stock with an abundance of those red and white striped candy canes that aren't available at any other time of the year. There are boxes and boxes of decorated sugar cookies and small containers of glistening sugar crystals and other tiny candies for the home bakers to use to decorate their own creations. Almost every section in the store has something that says "Merry Christmas".

Supplies of nuts and candied fruit are large. Walnuts, pecans and almonds are available in a multitude of forms — unshelled, shelled, unsalted, salted, blanched, sliced, chopped, halved. The possibilities are endless. When buying nuts you might be in a dilemma as to which form to buy. If you are comparing shelled versus unshelled, there are several factors to consider. To compare the cost of unshelled and shelled nuts, remember that generally it takes two pounds of unshelled nuts to equal one pound of shelled. Another factor to consider, do you have the time to shell nuts? Do you want them sliced? All of these things must be considered.

Should you decide to buy nuts already shelled, you will be confronted with various bag sizes. A rule of thumb at this point is, the smaller the bag, the bigger the price per pound. This is not always true, but generally so.

Here is another point to consider, unshelled nuts keep better than shelled, unsalted better than salted. Store any shelled nuts in air-tight container. They will keep in the refrigerator for six months or more, or in the freezer for approximately two years.

In the produce section what could be more like Christmas than a big bowl of oranges, tangerines, tangelos. 'Tis the season for these fruits and especially for tangelos, this is the peak of their supply. All these fruits are excellent sources of Vitamin C.

Cranberries and sweet potatoes, too other holiday favorites, are still in most stores in fair to good supply. Remember while cranberries are plentiful buy an extra package or so and freeze for later use. All you do is put them in the freezer as they are packaged and all.

What's in the dairy case for Christmas? It's rich creamy egg-nog. Prices vary throughout the stores. You can buy eggnog with a consistency varying from very thin, to a drink almost thick enough to spoon. There are lots and lots of delicious cheeses also available with prices varying also. At this time of the year you will find many foreign cheeses to try. Dips of all kinds are ready for any party, as well as frozen pastries and breads.

In fact, if you have any last minute Christmas presents to buy why not get a gift or one or more of these good things you will find in any grocery store at this time of year. What a pleasant way to say Merry Christmas.

Better Land Use Plans Recommended By Pen-Hort

The development of better land use plans and laws to protect prime agricultural land was recommended by the Peninsula Horticultural Society at its 87th annual meeting in De mar, Md.

They pointed out that present and potential agricultural lands are being used increasingly for non-agricultural purposes such as highways, housing developments, shopping centers and transmission lines. Much of this land, however, needs to be prepared for agricultural purposes if Peninsula farmers are to meet the demand for increased food production.

In a further resolution, the Horticultural Society requested the U.S. Employment Service and the State Departments of Labor in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia to help farmers maintain an adequate supply of migrant labor.

In further action, two members were honored for their contributions to the Society and to Delmarva agriculture.

Exhibit of Molas To Be At U.D. Student Center

An exhibit of "Molas From the San Blas Islands" will be on display Dec. 14 - Jan. 20 in the hallways of the University of Delaware Student Center.

Molas are highly decorative, brightly colored cotton panels sewn by the Cuna Indian women from the San Blas Islands off the coast of Panama.

The molas are to be displayed at the U. of D. are from an extensive collection of Jonathan Leonard. The exhibition currently is touring the United States and Canada under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution. Cunas women have been making molas for generations, using cotton cloth brought to the islands on trading ships. Each Cuna girl is taught to sew when she is very young so that she may have a modest wardrobe of molas by the time she reaches marriageable age.

The higher quality molas take from four to six weeks to make. Elaborate cutting, painstaking folding and hand stitching are used to create a particular design. Traditional molas use red, black and orange for the base layers.

Two of these panels form one mola blouse. The term "mola" formerly meant cloth or clothes, but now "mola" refers to the panels which make up a blouse, whether or not they are in blouse form.

The exhibit, sponsored by the university's Faculty Senate Committee on Cultural Activities and Public Events, is designed to explore designs of molas and to distinguish high quality work from the elementary and often hastily made molas for tourists.

The public is invited to view the exhibit at no charge.

Santa Gets His Garb From Poem, Cartoon

Santa first appeared in his now traditional guise as a plump, jovial, white-bearded and pipe-smoking old gentleman—"A right jolly old elf"—in the poem, "A Visit From St. Nicholas," written by Dr. Clement C. Moore in 1822.

Earlier "Santeclaus" had been pictured dressed as a bishop, in a book entitled "The Children's Friend," and in Washington Irving's "Knickerbocker History of New York," published in 1809; Santa was said to wear a broad-brimmed hat and huge breeches.

Even Dr. Moore's poem did not, apparently, clothe Santa in a red suit. "He was dressed all in fur from his head to his foot," says the poem.

Santa, as he looks today, was first sketched by cartoonist Thomas Nast in 1869. The cartoon showed Santa in his familiar red garb, smoking a pipe.

Mrs. George W. Bradley

Mrs. Hattie Mae Bradley, 65, died Friday at Kent General Hospital.

Her husband, Gerge W. Bradley, died in 1965.

Mrs. Bradley is survived by four sons, Joseph W. and Richard A. Bradley of Wyoming, George E. Bradley of Felton and Clifton C. Bradley of Dover; a daughter, Mrs. Gilbert Prince, Wyoming; a brother, Nelson Pritchett of Goldsboro, Md., and 11 grandchildren.

Services were held Monday afternoon at the Berry Funeral Home in Felton with burial at the Mount Olive Cemetery, Sandtown.

Christian Visitors Journey To Bethlehem

Pilgrimage to Bethlehem is for thousands of Christians each year the focal point of the religious observance of Christmas. Visitors of many faiths make the trip to Bethlehem to the Church of the Nativity above the Grotto of the Nativity where Jesus was born.

The manger, so familiar to all who know the Christmas story, was an improvised stable in a cave hewn out of the rock, near the center of the hill town of Bethlehem.

Christmas is observed three times at Bethlehem, and for each observance the Mandelbaum Gate between the Israel and Arab sectors of Jerusalem is opened to admit the Christian pilgrims.

Roman Catholic, Greek Orthodox and Armenian denominations share the Church of the Nativity. Roman Catholic Churches begin the Christmas celebrations with masses on Christmas Eve, December 24.

Eastern churches observe the birth of Christ in January. For the Greek Orthodox churches, which still follow the old Julian calendar, Holy Night is Jan. 6, Christmas Day Jan. 7. Armenian churches celebrate both Christmas and Epiphany on January 19.

Those of the Protestant faiths gather in Shepherds Fields, the nearby site where, according to the tradition, the shepherds heard the angel of the Lord come to tell of the Nativity.

IRA Sponsors Meeting Of Reading Experts

Reading experts from 14 European nations met in Paris Dec. 13 and 14 in a two-day symposium sponsored by the International Reading Association. The meeting, held in the UNESCO House, focused on problems encountered in the teaching of reading in Europe and discussed methods of improving co-operation in the reading field at the European and international levels.

Representatives from Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Great Britain, Iceland, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Switzerland, the United Kingdom and West Germany attended the two-day symposium. These educational leaders represent national reading associations affiliated with IRA or countries which are in the process of organizing reading associations.

Items discussed were the development of national reading associations in Europe and their relationship to IRA; problems in preschool through adult education, teacher training, special education and research with international co-operation in these areas; and joint projects with UNESCO and other international bodies. Another important thrust was a discussion of follow-up activities to International Book Year 1972 and the forthcoming fifth World Congress on Reading to be held in Vienna, Austria, Aug. 12-14, 1974.

A similar seminar was held in December 1971 and provided a valuable exchange of ideas among European nations.

The International Reading Association is a non-profit professional organization for teachers, administrators, librarians, psychologists, and parents interested in the improvement of reading and reading instruction. It has 55,000 members and subscribers in over 70 countries with 800 local councils and national affiliates. IRA is based in Newark, Del., with a European office in Paris.

Early Paintings Tell The Christmas Story

From the earliest times artists found, in the story of the Nativity and the events surrounding it, a source of inspiration and challenge to their talents. The Madonna and Child, the Holy Family, the Magi, the manger scene — these are the subjects that have engendered some of the world's most famous paintings.

And, as students of both art and history know, such paintings not only portray a scene, they also tell something of the times in which they were painted.

As the Middle Ages drew to a close and the Renaissance dawned, new light was spreading over the world.

Mid-15th-century artists were turning from theories of paintings which depicted more stylized poses and ornate detail, liberally touched with gilt, to an approach which emphasized more realistic and lifelike figures and landscapes, as seen in painting of humble peasants adorning the Christ Child, true-to-life stable animals, and even blacksmiths working in the background of the manger.

In "Adoration of the Magi", a painting by Giovanni Di Paolo which is now in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., the Three Kings are depicted in an elaborate, decorative style. The background of the painting, however, shows a more life-like interpretation. The landscape of fields dotted with crops, criss-crossed with roads and bathed in sunlight is refreshing—and a treatment new to the times.

Another "The Adoration of the Magi" at the National Gallery is even more indicative of a world in transition. This ton-do (circular) painting was begun by one artist, Fra Angelico, and finished by another, Fra Filippo Lippi. The principal part of the painting, attributed to Fra Angelico, has an idealized, otherworldly atmosphere.

Realism appears in the solid, substantial figures of the foreground — typical Renaissance forms, the work of Fra Filippo.

Both of these adorations were painted in tempera on wood. Tempera, a mixture of pigments and dyes with egg yolk to produce a dull finish on a surface prepared with egg white for adhesion, was a common media for medieval Italian artists.

In "The Nativity" also in the National Gallery, the Flemish artist Petrus Christus used oil paints on wood, thus making another advance in the Renaissance. Flemish artists were the first to use oil extensively in painting; formerly, it had been used only in glazes for tempera paintings.

A study of "The Nativity" shows that the figures of Petrus' paintings are very natural and realistic. Joseph is an ordinary Flemish peasant, the Christ Child a newborn infant. Baby, Space perspective, too, begins to show a more realistic treatment.

To achieve greater realism, the 15th century artists became the technicians and scientists of their age. They ground and mixed their own pigment to achieve the colors they wanted. And they carefully observed nature, even undertaking anatomical studies.

U. of D. North Campus Receives Building Award

The University of Delaware north campus development, designed by the Philadelphia architect firm of Vincent G. Kling & Partners, was recently cited in an architectural competition for excellence in design. A distinguished building award was presented by the Pennsylvania Society of Architects during its annual architectural competition.

The north campus development is located on a 150-acre tract of partially wooded land about one-half mile north of the main campus. Buildings in the development include the Pencader residence halls and commons complex and John M. Clayton Hall, the university's continuing education center.

Christiana Towers, a highrise residence hall complex, also located on the north campus, was designed by Charles Luckman Associates, an affiliate of Ogden Development Corporation. In 1972, the Christiana residence halls received an excellence-in-design award from the Prestressed Concrete Institute.

The white stucco buildings of the Pencader Complex have black sloping roofs which are designed to fit into the contours of the land. Natural fieldstone walls have been used to adjust the existing grade of the land.

The Pencader Complex is composed of 12 residence halls clustered in three groups of four buildings each. Each group also has a commons building containing the hall director's apartment, lounges, television rooms, recreation areas, a multi-meeting room, laundry facilities and other service areas.

Of the 12 halls, 10 have three levels and house 60 students and two have four levels and house 84 students. They are subdivided into groups of 12 students in four single rooms and four double rooms surrounding a bathroom area. Each room is air-conditioned, carpeted and has a private telephone and private entrance.

The two-story Pencader dining hall is located in the center of the complex. It houses the dining area, lounges, a snack bar, games area, seminar rooms and offices.

John M. Clayton Hall, home of the university's Division of Continuing Education, is located near the Pencader Complex but does not intrude on student activities. The main entrance faces a plaza and driveway which provides the main vehicular access to the north campus. A large parking area is located nearby.

The building's entrance focuses on a large skylighted lounge area capable of accommodating 500 persons. Main conference offices are located in a two-story element of the building which overlooks the central lounge space. The building is completely air-conditioned and each conference room is equipped with electrical dimming equipment, closed circuit television and an individual sound system which is interconnected to a central sound system.

The recent competition was open to architectural firms with offices in Pennsylvania. Of 65 entries received, 11 buildings or building complexes received awards.

Robert M. Lamison, architectural engineer and director of planning and construction at the university, was present at the awards ceremony and accepted the honor for the university.

William P. Welfley

William P. Welfley, 60, of Greenwood, died Sunday in Delaware Division after a short illness.

He was a retired farmer. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Hester Welfley; four sons, William Wade and Thomas both of Harrington, Gary, at home; two daughters, Thelma and Alta, both at home; and two grandchildren.

Services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Greenwood Menonite Church. Friends called Monday night at the Fleischaur Funeral Home, Greenwood, interment was in the church cemetery. In lieu of flowers, the family suggests contributions be made to the Menonite School, Greenwood.
