Refreshments will be served. The election will be held Fri., Feb. 15.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

"There's a Sweet Sweet Spirit in this place, and I know it's the Spirit of the Lord; There are sweet expressions on each face—and I know they feel the presence of the Lord!"

These modest words of the song by Doris Akers became excitingly meaningful when sung last Wednesday night at Asbury United Methodist Church in Harrington by a group of young people from Asbury Church in Smyrna. The occasion was the Annual Venison Dinner, now named "Fellowship" Dinner, that had been initiated by Cliff Miller twenty-two years ago.

Each year a large group meets to enjoy a covered dish supper, each family attending bringing the favorite dish of the house, and all looking forward to the main course - the Venison. There are usually four or five dependable Deerslayers that provide the meat which is harvested in a freezer or two on Paradise Pastures. When the forty-eight hours prior to Venison Dinner time comes, the meat is painstakingly cleaned and marinated by Mrs. Miller (and Cliff) and then preparation in earnest begins. Although having "retired" about four years ago from venison-cooking, Mrs. Miller did all the preparation this year. Ed Graef and several ladies from Asbury did the honors for a few years, but this year Mother didn't want to let Dad down so she took on the whole 60-pounds worth of basting, tasting, and pot-roasting!

So here was the atmosphere - fellowship, combined effort, breaking bread, greeting friends, and, after a wonderful meal-meeting, through song, a fine group of young people who were inspired by their UMYF leader Mike McGrath, an exceedingly pleasant young man of 24 - beard and all - with the beautiful tenor voice of an Irishman.

Mike has a greenhouse in Smyrna, growing vegetable plants for wholesale use, is a former student of the University of Delaware, and is married to a lovely and totally dedicated young lady named Joan, who is expecting their first child the 18th of April. Joan and Mike are completely caught up in the Lord's work. Their pleasure in and commitment to this end prevails all their thinking, which is what made the singing of their group so inspiring. These great kids number six girls and one young man - not counting Joan and Mike - whose ages range from 21 to 14.

Rick Schuman, 20, a Smyrna High School graduate, has become a carpenter and a witness for Christ. He was not afraid to tell us all that knowing Christ made all the difference in his life.

Diane Erhart, the accompanist, is also the organist at Smyrna United Methodist Church, and not afraid to tell her age - nor of her happiness in doing the Lord's work. Linda Bragg, 14, Diane's sister, is a very sensitive, easily moved young lady and also totally devoted to witnessing through song. Karen Short, 14, Marilyn Jones, 15, Janice Reynolds, 15, and Paula Parish, 15, reminded one of a bouquet of flowers with their fresh, wholesome faces and happy, happy voices. They reminded me of "Sing Out". And they really did "put out" in their singing. It was difficult to realize that they have no set rehearsal periods, in fact, have been singing together regularly for only three months. Prayer meetings, Tuesday or Wednesday nights, "whenever the Spirit moves" - and the Spirit was with them Wednesday night in Harrington. It touched us all.

As the writer mentioned to Gloria Dill, whose husband, Jack, introduced the group, "you people surely know some good singing groups!" Thanks, Glo and Jack. It helped me.

New Medical Educational Program Established in Pa.

Lehigh University and The Medical College of Pennsylvania (MCP), in Philadelphia, have announced the establishment of a joint educational program which will enable selected students to earn both the bachelor of arts (B.A.) degree in biology and the M.D. degree after six years of study at the two institutions.

The program has been approved by the faculties of Lehigh and the Medical College, and will be initiated at the start of the 1974-75 academic year next September (1974) at Lehigh.

A broad benefit of the program, envisioned by the two institutions, will be a reduction in the time necessary to acquire the M.D. degree.

Also, because both Lehigh MCP participate in the Lehigh Valley Area Health Education Center this program will help to attract outstanding young physicians to the Lehigh Valley and Eastern Pennsylvania.

Application for admission to the program can be made jointly to both institutions through Lehigh's Office of Admission. Inquiries may be directed to Samuel H. Missimer, Lehigh director of admission.

It is anticipated that approximately 15 students per year will be admitted to the program. Students whose performance during the first two years meets the expectations of both institutions will be guaranteed admission to medical school.

The program is flexible, allowing students who do not choose to continue to transfer into other Lehigh courses of study.

The first two years of the 6-year program (including summers) will be spent at Lehigh, where participants will take a basic biology course as well as those courses not available at MCP.

They will spend the next two years as medical students at MCP, after which they will have completed at least 134 credit hours of work and will receive the B.A. degree from Lehigh.

The final two years will be spent in clinical medicine at MCP or at one of its affiliated hospitals, one of which is St. Luke's in Bethlehem. Upon completion of the final two years, participants will have completed all requirements for the M.D. from Medical College of Pennsylvania.

The program with MCP supplements Lehigh's traditional programs in preparing students for medical and dental school through a variety of majors in all three undergraduate colleges, including the College of Engineering. The association with MCP will also facilitate the development of cooperative programs in research and graduate education between the two institutions.

Along with the recent establishment of Lehigh's Center for Health Studies, an interdisciplinary research organization, it is a further indication of the university's continuing interest in medical science.

New postmaster appointed for Farmington

Anna Mae Marvel has been appointed postmaster of Farmington, it was announced Jan. 25 by Francis X. Biglin, Regional Postmaster General for the Eastern Region of the U.S. Postal Service.

Marvel was one of 21 postmasters named in the Eastern Region states of Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia.

The appointments add to the increasing number of postmasters named by the U.S. Postal Service under the non-political merit system established by the Postal Reorganization Act of 1970.

Recommendations for appointments of postmasters are submitted by the Regional Management Selection Boards, consisting of postal and non-postal members.

Marvel was clerk at the Houston Post Office for 14 years before her transfer to the Farmington Post Office.

Other postmasters named from Delaware was Edward A. Biegel of Wilmington.

Boggs against "pooch" racing

Calvin Boggs, Republican candidate for 16th district state senator, declared his support of harness and thoroughbred racing in Kent County, and its further growth and development, and his opposition to dog racing in Delaware.

Boggs, Cheswold farmer and businessman, explained that dog racing would only dilute total revenue now realized by the State of Delaware, and further hamper harness racing in this state already suffering a squeeze by the expansion of horse racing in Pennsylvania.

Boggs said that he believed that should dog racing ever be legalized in this state, any financial benefits to the state or affected tracks would be, at best, only temporary. The senatorial candidate said, "Just as our horse racing successes spurred neighboring states to get in on the action, bringing dog racing to Delaware would open the floodgates of competition in surrounding states, and Delaware's program would go right down the drain."

Boggs said, finally, that should such a bill be introduced in the general assembly he would vote against it, and would oppose any further legislation which might damage the Delaware harness racing industry.

Handbook on light horses available

A handbook describing the breeding and raising of light horses and ponies is available to area horsemen, according to Dr. C. Melvin Reimour, extension equine specialist at the University of Delaware.

The publication, produced by the United States Department of Agriculture, lists 26 common light horse and pony breeds and describes the characteristics of each. Photographs of each breed are also included.

The handbook gives information useful to both amateur and professional horsemen, such as selecting horses, determining age, care and feeding, necessary equipment and diseases and parasites. Valuable tables on recommended allowances of minerals and vitamins and a guide to feeding the light horse should help the experienced.

CALVIN BOGGS TO RUN FOR COOK VACANCY

Calvin Boggs, former Kent County Republican chairman, was selected Wednesday night, Jan. 23, as the GOP candidate for the 16th District Senate seat left vacant by the death of Sen. Allen J. Cook.

Boggs, 52, of Cheswold, was asked by county Republicans to run for Cook's seat shortly after the Senator's death Jan. 9.

Although he turned down their request then, he apparently was persuaded to accept it by a group of Republicans who met with him Saturday.

There have been no other announced candidates for the Republican nomination.

The 16th district Republican

Committee met Wednesday night in Dover to approve formally the selection of Boggs. The election will be held Feb. 14.

Boggs will be facing Mrs. Nancy Cook, wife of the late senator. She was nominated by the Democratic Party Tuesday, Jan. 22. The American Party has also said it will nominate a candidate.

Boggs is a farmer and businessman, and has been active in Kent County Republican affairs for many years. He is the brother of former Delaware Governor and Senator J. Caleb Boggs.

He and his wife Valerie have two sons, Clayton, 30, and Jefferson, 14.

LEGION POST 7 PLANS GALA BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

CKRT Post 7, American Legion, is preparing for a festive day March 30, in observance of the national group's 75th birthday.

Local student earns credit in Central America

Warren L. Stoltzfus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Stoltzfus, of Harrington, is among 80 Goshen College, Ind., students spending 14 weeks of study and service in a Central American nation this winter. Warren is in Costa Rica.

The local students are in the Study-Service Trimester, SST, at Goshen which was started in 1968. SST enables students to be more than just a tourist in each country since seven weeks' time is spent studying the language, culture and customs of the nation. The final seven-week period is spent by the student living with a family in that country while working unsalaried in a hospital, clinic, school, mission or on a farm.

The SST program costs no more than a trimester on campus. It is available to all Goshen students as an international education requirement for graduation at Goshen. A student in the program earns 10 hours of credit.

Since 1968, the SST program has made ten countries available for students at one time or another. These countries have been Costa Rica, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Jamaica, Nicaragua, Germany, Republic of Korea, El Salvador and Belize, formerly British Honduras.

Three different student groups will visit each country in this year's program. Since 1968, 1,423 Goshen College students have been abroad in SST.

The winter SST group left for their country Jan. 10, and will return April 15.

Faculty unit leaders this winter are Dr. and Mrs. Gerhard Reimer, to Costa Rica; Dr. and Mrs. Merritt Gardner to Haiti; Professor and Mrs. Vernon Schertz to Belize; Professor and Mrs. Bruce Glick to Honduras.

Goshen College is a four-year liberal arts college in Goshen, Ind. It is owned and controlled by the Mennonite Church and serves about 1,200 students enrolled this winter.

C.T.C. to Begin Work; Expansion Planned

Consolidated Thermoplastics Company begins training operations Mon., Feb. 4, announced Plant Manager Lyndon Wagenknecht Monday. At the same time, he said a second production line would be installed by the end of the year.

C.T.C., a subsidiary of Dart Industries, will manufacture diaper film from embossed polyethylene, explained Wagenknecht.

He added 12 operators and warehousemen had been employed for the plant off U.S. 13 and the branchline of the Penn Central for the present production line, with four more expected for the second production line.

The plant manager concluded by saying the response to help-wanted advertising was excellent.

C.T.C. is on a 42-acre tract.

Episcopal diocese for women's ordination

The battle for the right of women to be ordained priests was waged for more than an hour on the floor of the annual convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware this weekend.

Even though the convention could not take any definitive action - that must come from a convention of the national church - the battle lines were drawn sharply as arguments flew over a resolution to set up a diocesan committee "to promote the cause of the ordination of women."

The resolution finally passed. The Episcopalians have been arguing the issue since the 1970 General Convention in Houston.

It came up again in Louisville last October, but as yet women can go no further than the first order, that of deacon.

The arguments over the ordination of women lived up what for the most part was a convention concerned with "in-house" issues.

In an unprecedented move Saturday morning, the Rt. Rev. William H. Mead asked that an evaluation committee be named to appraise his work in the diocese over the past five years, to make suggestions for its improvement, and generally to give him an employment review.

His request came at the end of an address in which he had enumerated various strengths and weaknesses of the diocese as he saw it.

The nearly 200 delegates and visitors met for business sessions at the W.T. Chipman Junior High School in Harrington, moved to the parish house at St. Paul's Church, Camden, for a social hour, and heard the Rt. Rev. Lloyd E. Gressie, bishop of the Diocese of Bethlehem, (Pa.), give the banquet address at the Nellig Hughes Stokes Elementary School, Camden.

Gressie and his wife, Marguerite, experienced an "old home" evening as they were greeted by friends in the diocese. He is the former dean of the Episcopal Cathedral in Wilmington.

Gressie said Episcopalians are people of order who use a book in their worship, have orders of ministry and a structure for governing the church.

Cook against dog racing

Nancy Cook, the Democratic candidate to succeed her late husband, Allen J. Cook, as senator in the 16th Senatorial District, today announced she is opposed to the proposed legislation authorizing dog racing in Delaware.

She stated: "My late husband and I worked long and hard for the Delaware harness racing industry. I certainly would not favor any legislation which would be harmful to this industry which contributes so much to the economy of our area."

"I believe that authorizing dog racing in Delaware at this time would have a harmful effect on our harness racing industry because there is only a limited amount of money available for betting at tracks."

"The harness racing industry is already beset with severe economic problems due to the gas shortage and the increased costs of maintaining a racing stable. To divert some of these racing dollars to another competing industry would, in my opinion be a mistake."

Hazel P. Griffith

Miss Hazel P. Griffith, 81, of 102 Dorman St., died Monday at her home after a short illness.

Miss Griffith was a retired school teacher. There are no immediate survivors.

Services will be this afternoon at 1 at the McKnatt Funeral Home, 50 Commerce St., Harrington, where friends may call one hour before services. Interment will be in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington.

"Like every institution of man, the church is assailable now on many fronts in terms of its order," he said.

The standard, he said, was summed up by St. Paul in his writings to the church in Philippi: "Whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is gracious, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things."

Encouraged by a budget which had a $9,000 balance at the end of December, the Episcopalians approved a $346,071 diocesan budget for 1974. It is an increase of $17,700 above last year.

It includes over $100,000 to the national church and is based on acceptances by the 39 Delaware parishes and missions of $241,950.

Additional expenditures anticipated include about $105,000 for programs and ecumenical outreach, the biggest items being support for missions in the diocese and payment of salaries to vicars and a college and university ministry.

In other businesses, the Rev. E.B. Jackson, rector, St. Matthew's Church, Wilmington, and John E. Messick, St. Paul's Church, Georgetown, elected to the Commission on Ministries; Edwin A. Gee, Calvary-Hillcrest Church, Wilmington, re-elected to the trustees; Louis C. Mandes Jr., St. Anne's Middletown, to the committee on constitution and canons, and to represent the diocese at meetings of Province III.

The Very Rev. John C. Sanders, dean of the Cathedral Church of St. John, Wilmington, Mrs. John E. Messick, St. Paul's, Georgetown, and E.R. Kimmel, Christ Church, Christiana Hundred, delegates; and the Rev. Gregory M. Howe, Christ Church, Dover, Mrs. William Eliason, St. Stephen's, Harrington, and Max S. Bell Jr., St. Andrew's, Wilmington, alternates.

Harrington area boy is hit by cycle

Scott L. McKenzie, 9, of near Harrington, was listed in fair condition Sunday night in Milford Memorial Hospital, after being hit by a motorcycle Sunday.

State police said young McKenzie was on Delaware 275, west of Harrington, about 2 p.m. when he was hit by a cycle operated by Scott Short, 18, of Nelson St., Milford.

Short, police said, was one of four motorcyclists riding along the highway when the accident occurred.

Social mobility overloads the American marriage

Marriage is about the only social institution in this country in which interpersonal relationships are allowed to develop on a deep basis of affection, rather than external behavior. As a result, American marriage can be a uniquely rich kind of partnership, says Dr. Edmund Glenn, a specialist in intercultural communications at the University of Delaware. But he warns that the mobility of our way of life can easily overload marriage with unrealistic expectations.

Glenn made these observations as he delivered the keynote address at a recent Consumers Day conference on the university campus. Topic of this year's conference - which was sponsored by the Delaware cooperative extension service - was "Communications: The Key to Understanding." The event was planned as a family interaction seminar, aimed at exploring ways in which communications affect our relationships with each other.

The "couple" concept is basically American, explains the communications specialist. Most other cultures view marriage as a union between two families, rather than two individuals. By contrast, the American husband and wife are almost completely dependent on each other. Their relationship is supposed to be a financial partnership, but at the same time the couple are expected to be lovers and also the closest of friends.

The reason for this is social mobility. The face is that we Americans are geared for a fast-paced life-style in which friendships frequently change as people change jobs or move to new parts of the country. We learn to develop friendships rapidly because of this mobility. But it also prevents us from counting on those relationships for the affection and approval each of us needs.

"Mobility makes for easy development of acquaintances, but at the same time keeps them fairly shallow," explains Glenn. He points out that we seldom quarrel with adult friends. In-

New Century Club Notes

The New Century Club held its regular meeting Tues., Jan. 22. Mrs. Charles L. Peck Jr. presided as Mrs. Joseph L. Brinster was away.

Mrs. Peck opened the program by repeating the "Collect". Mrs. Albert Hickman read the Scripture from Psalms.

Mrs. Peck gave a brief talk on education before introducing the guest speaker, our exchange student from Spain, Miss Marieta Gomez Bernardo.

Miss Bernardo stated that there are 56 provinces in Spain and a total of five different Spanish dialects spoken. Spain is ruled by 83-year-old Franco, has a dictatorship form of government. The main income is derived from agriculture such as grapes, wheat, corn, potatoes and greens. The main industry in Northern Spain is sheep and iron. Miss Bernardo stated that the weather is not quite like what most outsiders think. It is sunny and rainy in the south and gets very cold in the north. Schools in Spain are about the same as in America. Eating habits are a little different. Most foods are cooked in olive oil and they have four meals a day. Breakfast is from 8:30 to 9:30, consisting of coffee and toast, lunch is from 2 to 2:30 and is considered the main meal. At 6:30 in the evening they have sandwiches and between 10:30 and 11 have supper. People do not eat between meals.

School is held from 9:30 to 2 and 4 to 6. From 2 to 4 the children go home and rest. One must take the subjects the government tells them to take. Subjects are not elective as in the States. English and French are two required subjects. One learns a few things about a lot of subjects. Baseball and football are not played and there is very little physical education in Spain. In the winter they ski in the mountains and go to the lakes in the summer. Most families have only one car and that is not driven very much. Spain does have television. Dating is permitted but they must be in by 10:30 p.m.

Miss Bernardo said that hot dogs and hamburgers are unknown in Spain.

The Club presented Miss Bernardo with a charm for her charm bracelet.

The refreshment committee served cake and coffee. Mrs. Charles Peck, program chairman, thanked the committee for helping arrange the program. Her committee consisted of Mrs. Theodore Harrington, Mrs. Albert Hickman, Mrs. William Jester and Mrs. Edgar Tucker.

"Community Improvement" will be the subject of the next meeting, to be held Feb. 12. "The Truth About Trash" will be discussed. Chairman for the meeting will be Mrs. Francis J. Winkler, who will be assisted by Mrs. Earl Sylvester, Mrs. Ridgely Vane, Mrs. Horace Johnson, Mrs. Howard Thistlewood, Mrs. L.H. Rogers.

Veterans Administration News

Q - What's this I hear about husbands of female veterans being eligible for the same Veterans Administration benefits as wives and widows of male veterans?
 A - You heard right. Under PL 92-540 (Oct. '72), the term "wife", for purposes of benefits, includes husbands of female veterans and "widow" includes widowers of female veterans.
 Q - How many spinal cord injury treatment centers and prosthetic treatment centers does the Veterans Administration have?
 A - As of December 1973, the agency had 15 spinal cord injury treatment centers and 18 prosthetic treatment centers for amputees, geographically dispersed around the country.

Spartans lose pair in basketball

Lake Forest's youthful basketball team may be a team of the future, as underclassmen did most of the scoring in losses to Caesar Rodney and Woodbridge.

In a 72-49 defeat administered by a strong Rider quartet, at Camden, sophomores Neal Smith (12) and David Moore (10) were in double figures, as was freshman Ron Shockey (12).

Lake Forest was in contention for most of the first half, but lost contact with the older Riders after intermission.

The Woodbridge loss was a heartbreaker. The Spartans fell behind in the first stanza, but outplayed the Blue Raiders in the second and third periods. Leading by six points going into the final quarter, the Spartans saw the visitors tally the winning basket in the final seconds.

Dave Moore led Lake Forest with 17 points. Neal Smith and Chip Moore added 29 markers between them.

Harrington Bowling League News

Leah S. Wheeler

Brothers Five started out in fine form, capturing the first game from McKnatt's Funeral Home, but then saw their chance to move out from the rest of the teams vanish, as McKnatt just squeezed past them in the second game and won the third game convincingly to get three big points. Buck Thompson rolled a fine 202 game for Brothers as Larry Horseman collected a good 535 set which included a 203 game and Robert Dennis added a good 200 game and a fine 528 series. Harry Jack paced McKnatt's with a good above average effort and Harold Brode hit a good 538 series, with Don Garey adding a fine effort.

People's Restaurant also failed to capitalize on their position as they dropped three points to Fry's American Tuesday night. The bad night for the top two teams has left the race for the title open to four teams, with one more week to go in this third. Bill Manship rolled a fine 535 series as he paved the way for People's Restaurant's one game victory and Frank Collins also added a good effort. Leroy Wheeler rolled a fine 556 series and John Forbes and Stan Johnson contributed a real fine above average effort.

Taylor & Messick crushed Wally's Wrecker in all games to keep their title bid hopes alive for another week. Snooky Collins, who returned to bowling after a week's illness, turned in a stellar performance as he won the top kegger for the night with a superb 611 series which included games of 210 and 220 and Kenny P. Outten added a fine 218 game and 544 set for the Taylor & Messick combine. Wally's Norman Woodall contributed a fine above average effort in a losing cause.

Billy Morris paved the Spoilers with a 216 game and a great 532 series, and Bruce Harrington added a fine 213 game with Jack Sapp hitting a fine 204 game, as the whole team contributed strong efforts for their victory in three games against Big John's Son. Sam Powell added an extra effort which enabled Big John's to salvage one point.

Robbin's Hardware and Quillen's Market battled in a tight contest with Robbin's emerging three to one victor over their opponents. Wallace Wootten and Harry Brown rolled real good above average efforts for Robbin's. William Petty rolled a 204 game and a fine above average effort and Dennis Pase chipped in with a good above average effort for Quillen's Market.

Aaron Hurd rolled a fine effort and Martin Jarrell contributed a good 212 game and 525 set, as Jarrell Fuel collected three points from the T & M Rejects. Junior Bishop bowled a good above average effort for the Rejects.

Butler's Fuel emerged as three point victors over Penn Central Tuesday night as Sam Lyons set the pace and Robert Wright added a good above average effort. Donald Butler rolled a real fine above average set as did Ray Baker, which enabled the rail-rollers to capture one point.

Grapplers best Indians, lose to Blue Jays

Seaford didn't look like winless cellar-dwellers to Lake Forest's fourth-place Spartans. When the evening's competition was over, the Blue Jays had their first win of the campaign by a 38-21 margin.

Lake Forest had a starter missing and another was ailing, but probably could not have handled Seaford this time, at full strength.

Bright spots for Lake Forest were the pins scored by Jamie Simpson (105) and Gary Grove (138).

Martin Miller and Alan Welch won by decision for the losers.

Indian River, which tied Seaford earlier, fell to the Spartans 30-21, as Lake Forest improved its seasonal log to 4-3 and retained a share of fourth place in the 13-team Henlopen Conference.

Johu Moffett, Lake Forest's freshman 98-pound representative, needed three points (a decision win) in order to win his varsity letter L.F. John is now a proud letter-winner, after a pin victory worth six points, over Sturgis of Indian River, in 3.16.

The visiting Indians were to win only one test of the first eight and went down to a 30-21 defeat, despite a late rally.

Alan Welch and Gary Grove were other Spartans to win by falls.
 Tom Ware, Rodney Wyatt, Martin Miller and Chris Adamo had decision triumphs.

SOCIAL MOBILITY

stead, we avoid disputes and drift apart. We deliberately keep relationships superficial and tend to choose or value friends for what they do or say, rather than for simple reasons of affection. Emphasis is on acceptable social behavior when we communicate with others.

Usually we prefer to spend our time with people who share our opinions on a subject, or who like to do the same things we do. For example, we may have one group of friends with whom we play bridge or golf, and another with whom we discuss politics.

Though to a foreign visitor the way in which Americans communicate with each other appears to lack depth or warmth, the specialist believes such a value system is essential in the modern world. It is the only way in which people of diverse backgrounds can communicate and learn to accept each other.

At the same time, this kind of value system places a heavy burden on the institution of marriage because the marriage is expected to meet so many of the inner needs provided nowhere else in our society. This overloading of the marriage concept explains why so many young couples are now not bothering with the institution of marriage. They see it as unnecessary—at least until children come. And they also see it as too demanding to be taken lightly.

Glenn sees no solution to this overloading of marital expectations. In fact he expects the pressure to increase as mobility forces American society to develop even more fluid and temporary relationships in all areas outside the family. The only realistic way to deal with the situation, he concludes, is to learn to accept superficiality and disappointments where they exist, and build toward understanding. In marriage, the system requires partners strong enough to sustain the unavoidable pressure.

Drain fly control a sanitation problem

If you've recently noticed small, hairy flies around your bathroom plumbing or the basement drain, chances are they're drain flies. These flies cling to clothing, forage off food, mar fresh paint, darken lamps, congregate at windows and cause a general nuisance for the homeowner. The flies are irritating both as a matter of social concern and as a possible health hazard, says Frank Boys, extension entomologist at the University of Delaware.

Drain flies are about two millimeters long, with a bulbous, light grey or tan colored body and light colored wings, which fold over the body in a rooflike manner when the fly is at rest. The body and wings are densely covered with hair. This gives the insect a mothlike appearance that leads to one of its popular names—moth fly. They are also known as filter flies or sewage flies.

There are many generations of this fly each year, Boys says. Under favorable conditions, the fly can go through one generation in as little as one week's time, although two or three weeks is more typical, depending on the temperature of the home.

The pest is associated with decomposing organic matter. It gets its most familiar name—drain fly—from the fact that it often breeds in the gelatinous film that builds up in household drains, especially in their goose-neck or "U"-trap sections.

Control of the drain fly is fairly simple, says the entomologist. Since the pest breeds and feeds on highly moist organic solids, efforts must be made to practice sanitation measures that deprive it of this matter. He suggests you spend time indoors now cleaning drains and garbage containers, removing wet lint from under washing machines and generally wiping up other moist accumulations—especially in the basement.

Some people have had success in controlling these pests using plumbers snakes in clogged drains, followed by an application of strong lye. Aerosol space sprays of vapona or pyrethrins have excellent knockdown effect and kill the adult flies, Boys adds. Vapona bands used at the rate of one band per thousand cubic feet of space will give adequate control in some problem areas.

Outdoors, sprays for drain flies will probably only be effective when the weather is hot. Other outdoor controls include the application of two percent malathion to dirty garbage cans, decomposing compost piles, outside sewers, window frames and similar places. For added protection, sprinkle borax powder or a strong detergent beneath garbage containers and outside drains to control immature stages of the fly.

DAVE WOODWARD
KENT COUNTY AGENT

Talked with "Ike" Thomas the other day, Ike is chairman of the Kent Soil and Water Conservation District. Ike said, "1974 is a year when more food crops will be needed to supply essential needs for all Americans." He also remarked that "some soils are excellent for crop production. But others are not. Wetlands, woodlands, and other marginal land should not be shifted to row crops." For the best scientific advice on proper land use, farmers and ranchers may contact the Kent Soil and Water Conservation District Office or the USDA Soil Conservation Service, 2319 S. Dual Highway, Dover. Phone 679-3119.

Dead branches on trees and shrubs may result from winter damage. Such damage is often caused by the severe cold of winter. It is made more severe by drought conditions during the cold months. In some cases, individual plants are killed outright. In general, however, the greater number are injured to a degree impossible to determine by observation. It often takes several years before the damage reveals itself.

Some plants that have shown particularly severe winter damage in New York State are: Norway and sugar maple, horsechestnut, sycamore, and beech. Himalayan pine and yew (Taxus) have also been badly damaged. Shrubs often hit hard by winter damage include privet, lilac, Philadelphus, honeysuckle, barberry and boxwood.

Other symptoms of winter damaged trees and shrubs include leaves failing to develop fully, early maturity or coloring of foliage or shriveling and drying of half formed leaves. In woody parts of the plants, sapwood rots with their accompanying fungi, darkened, sour-smelling sapwood and wet, slimy flowing sap from cut branches are indications of winter damage. To treat the injured plants, cut back limbs and stems to living tissue. Do this as soon as it becomes obvious that the parts are dead. Such dead parts will often be a different color from the rest of the plant. Usually it will be necessary to repeat this pruning, since successive dying is apt to occur. In addition to the above procedures, fertilize the plant to help it regain its vigor.

Keeping up with the fashion changes could occupy the consumer constantly. Fashion change is not that important to most of us, and not as important in society's values as it was at one time. But it does influence our choice in the marketplace.

Paris still gives direction to American fashion, and definite trends are indicated by those who have previewed some of this spring's fashion showings. In spite of our resistance to changing skirt lengths, the trend appears toward the well-covered knee. Skirts are inching down, bit by bit. Almost everyone reacted negatively to a sudden drastic drop, but perhaps we can accept a gradual change.

The second trend which has been emerging for some time is toward untailored, unstructured looks in slim shapes. This look requires soft, lightweight and sheer fabrics. The influence of the 1930's is a strong fashion force—the romantic, old-fashioned look.

Paris predicts the strong color influence will be powder pastels and the red-navy-white combination. Black is important for both day and evening. American designers are exercising their independence but following some of the same trends. Knee length skirts are appearing more frequently. Even junior fashions are only a couple of inches above the knee. Simplicity is the fashion story for American designers. Monster bell bottoms and cuffs are disappearing from summer casual clothes. Softness and loose shaping are evident in fashion silhouettes, and this necessitates the use of soft, flowing fabrics. Bright prints and colors will be popular for summer clothes. Already we are seeing bright green and bright pink in spring ready-to-wear. There will be a generous sprinkling of the natural look in fabrics—muslin, pongee, and similar fabrics in the natural colors. The 30's influence is observed in American fashion also, with the old movies receiving credit for this inspiration.

If you're recycling your clothes, you are right in style too. Clothing resale shops are said to be doing a great business in some items. Biggest sales are for used blue jeans or for clothing of the 30's.

Delaware Food Market Report

by Anne W. Holberton

On Sept. 17 of last year the press was invited to a conference held by the National Livestock and Meat Board which announced the new standard nomenclature program. The conference was well attended since most newspapers, TV and radio stations carried stories about the new uniform meat labeling system. But today with a store here and one there trying to implement this new (yet old) system there are problems. It seems they too need to study the carcass of the animals since some of the labels are identifying the area from which the cuts come wrong.

This type of labeling is voluntary and it will take some time to get it into practice, yet it is so simple. It should be very easy. What information will the label carry? It will identify all cuts of meat as to species (beef, pork, etc.), the area from which the cut was obtained will be listed (such as loin or rib) and also the recommended retail name will be given. With this information we will know what we are buying and how the meat should be cooked. Meat that is muscle that has been used often will definitely be tougher than a cut of meat coming from a muscle that is seldom used. So moist cookery is needed for such cuts as chuck, arm roast, etc. and by all means broil sirloin, porterhouse, etc. steak.

This new system is built on a master list of about 315 names to identify just about every available retail cut. This reduces a list that was once 1,000 names.

For example, under the new plan a rib eye steak - which has been (still is) sold as Deimonico steak, Spencer steak, Beauty steak - would be labeled "beef rib eye steak." Another example is "London broil." This has been used incorrectly to describe cuts of chuck or round, which are usually tougher than the flank or plate portions that can be broiled successfully if of high quality. Under the new system, one may buy either "beef flank steak" or "beef chuck shoulder steak." London broil will be no longer, so will such names as New York strip or club steak, Kansas City steak, His and Her steaks, Butterfly steak, Chicken steak, Bolar roast, etc. All the fancy names and regions will disappear and we will come back to reality as to where the cut originated in the carcass.

As more and more meat departments go to this system many people will need help. So start looking for display charts to help you understand this new labeling system. Better yet, get a good cook book that has charts of the various meat carcasses with illustrations of the various cuts and where they come from. Learn to know what the arm bone looks like as well as the T-bone. Also, learn the muscles that are tender and that are not. Learn the correct names for the various sections of the meat carcasses and know what you are looking for to do the job you want it for.

From what I've seen so far we will all have to lean on our own knowledge with the help of a good butcher every so often for a value. Spend some extra time to make a wise decision and learn how to buy. This new program is a wonderful aid for us all so help it along.

Extinguishing kitchen fires

Many devastating home fires start with a small fire in the kitchen, according to Thomas Williams, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware. Dealing with a localized kitchen fire immediately, in the right way can prevent serious damage and injury. But using the wrong method in attempting to extinguish a fire can have disastrous results.

Most kitchen fires involve electricity, grease or oil, so dousing them with water is not only ineffective but dangerous. Instead, Williams recommends throwing a handful of common baking soda on the flames. If the fire is in the oven or broiler, throw in some soda and close the door. This should cause the fire to go out.

Baking soda is inexpensive and effective. Williams suggests that homemakers fill a can with soda and keep it handy on the kitchen counter. However, he cautions against using flour, cocoa or other powdered substances instead of soda. These can explode and cause burns.

If a fire occurs in an open pan on the stove, don't try to move the pan. You may spill the contents and spread the fire over a larger area. Instead, throw in some baking soda.

Williams thinks every home should have at least one dry chemical fire extinguisher, and preferably two. They should be located within easy reach of the kitchen and garage. When selecting a fire extinguisher, be sure it carries the Underwriter's Laboratory label on the name plate. This means that it meets certain standards, and tells the relative size and type of fire it may be expected to extinguish. UL listed fire extinguishers are sold in most hardware and department stores.

A dry chemical fire extinguisher should last indefinitely, but its weight should be checked every year. If the weight is less than that indicated on the label, the extinguisher should be re-charged with air.
