Ten Years Ago Twenty Years Ago

Trailer fire under investigation

The state fire marshal's office is investigating a fire that Monday night gutted a trailer at Argo's Acres, a small development of trailers and homes near the Kent County landfill off Kent 397.

Houston fire chief Houston M. Twilley said the blaze started in the livingroom of the trailer and took Houston and Harrington firemen about an hour to extinguish.

Deputy State Fire Marshal John Hurd said the resident of the trailer, Kevin M. Hall, is staying with a neighbor.

"Gas Pains" may be good for the heart

The Delaware Heart Association advises that the current "gas pains" being brought on by the energy crisis could be good for your heart. Getting out of the car and onto the feet to do errands that can reasonably be done without a car, could enhance the quality of life and, along with other measures help reduce the risk of heart attack.

The Delaware Heart Association has always encouraged regular exercise as one means of improving health and performance. Walking is one form of exercise available to all.

The advice to walk more is not limited to adults. Where safe and feasible, youngsters should be encouraged to walk more and ride less.

For more information on how to reduce your risk factors of heart attack, contact the Delaware Heart Association, 654-5269 or, in Georgetown, 856-7386.

Wedding Policy Change

Due to the paper shortage, The Harrington Journal will publish wedding announcements in an abbreviated form. Announcements will no longer include descriptions of the gowns worn by the bride, her attendants and the mothers of the bride and groom.

If a photograph is to accompany the announcement, it should be a 5x7 black and white print of good quality. Wedding photographs and information should be submitted either prior to the wedding or no later than two weeks after the wedding.

For engagement announcements, a wallet-size black and white photograph is preferred.

Good news for bad knees

If your old knee is about to give out because of arthritis, you are in luck, for several "new" knees are about to be introduced in operating rooms throughout the United States.

If your old knee is bad, but still serviceable, you also have a better chance of rehabilitating it than you did some years ago.

This was the consensus of leading orthopedic surgeons and arthritis specialists who addressed a recent regional scientific meeting of the American Rheumatism Association section of The Arthritis Foundation.

Ever since a new man-made artificial hip joint became widely accepted throughout the United States, surgeons have been trying to do the same for the knee, a joint even more frequently affected by arthritis.

But the location of the knee joint -- in between the two longest bones of the body -- and its complex function -- bending, extending, locking and rotating -- makes it a very difficult joint to replace.

Necessity has turned many doctors who try to develop a man-made counterpart to the knee into biochemical engineers.

Dr. Donald Kettlekamp -- an orthopedic surgeon from Little Rock, Ark., analysed the motions and stresses normal knees are subjected to during walking, climbing stairs, lifting an object from the floor and simply sitting down.

Then he studied the same activities in patients suffering from osteoarthritis and from rheumatoid arthritis.

Much stress on the joints can be avoided by teaching the patient to avoid deep squatting, excessive stair climbing, carrying of heavy loads, or using arm rests while getting into and out of chairs, he said.

Simple exercises, involving the tension of the quadriceps -- the large thigh muscles controlling the knee -- also keep many a knee very functional.

"Even though our knowledge of the mechanics of the knee is incomplete," Dr. Kettlekamp said, "what we do know should be used as a guide to therapy."

Treatment should be aimed at removing abnormal stresses of some of the weight-bearing parts of the knee joint. This often will bring pain relief and provide better function.

None of the total knee prostheses available are entirely to Dr. Kettlekamp's liking, though he has used the geometric knee, with great success for patients who needed immediate surgery. This type of knee is suitable for patients who have intact ligaments and good muscle support. For other patients Dr. Kettlekamp prefers to wait, if he can, until the choice of available artificial knee joints is greater.

This wait should not be too long. An entirely new repertoire of man-made knee joints should be available within the next year.

Coming Events

The annual Shrove Tuesday PANCAKE SUPPER will be held at St. Stephen's Church, Harrington, Tues., Feb. 26, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. ALL YOU CAN EAT.

There will be a Band Boosters meeting Mon., Feb. 25, 7:30 p.m. at the Lake Forest High School Band Room.

Martin Miller - a Henlopen wrestling champ

Martin Miller, Lake Forest's unbeaten wrestler, won the 129-pound division title, in the Henlopen Conference Wrestling Tournament, held at Laurel High School over the weekend.

Miller won an easy decision over Morris of Indian River, then pinned Travis of Cape Henlopen, and Morris of Woodbridge, to annex the title and qualify for the state meet to be held at the University of Delaware this weekend.

Other Spartans to qualify for the state meet were Rodney Wyatt, second at 122 pounds, Alan Welch, third at 135, and Chris Mertz, third at 141.

Only Caesar Rodney and Smyrna, with six each, qualified as many wrestlers for this weekend's action, as did Lake Forest.

Wyatt, a Spartan with a 10-1 record this campaign, outpointed Norwood of Sussex Central, Peters of Cape Henlopen (also 10-1), then dropped a 3-0 verdict to unbeaten Bob Bosco of Caesar Rodney, in the final. Bosco is a former Chipman School and Lake Forest matman.

Enjoying your fireplace more

You can get more pleasure and more service-out of your fireplace if you know something about the wood you use.

The heat that a fireplace log produces depends on its composition, says Ernest Walpole, extension agricultural engineer at the University of Delaware.

The concentration of woody material, resin, water and ash in a log determines how long it will burn. By knowing something about the wood you buy or the logs you cut yourself, you will be able to mix light and heavy woods for an ideal fire.

A full cord of dry hickory wood weighs about two tons. It's about equal in heating value to a ton of hard coal or 200 gallons of fuel oil, according to the Forest Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

On a pound to pound basis, heavy hardwoods have about half the heating value of coal and a third the heating value of oil.

Some of the woods that will burn longest are Osage orange, dogwood, hickory, beech, hard maple, birch, mulberry, apple and ash. These hardwoods all rate high in heat value. Soft maple, cherry, sycamore, Douglas fir, and tulip or yellow pine are soft woods that ignite faster and burn quicker.

The softest wood suitable for fireplace use is white pine, with half the heat value of hickory. Mix hard and soft woods for the ideal fireplace fire, advises Walpole. And he adds these safety tips.

Make sure the damper is open and the flue unblocked before lighting the fire. Place a screen in front of your grate to catch any sparks. Avoid burning wet or green wood. Keep a fire extinguisher nearby.

Poems from Paradise Pastures

By W. Cliff Miller

I have always been impressed with efforts put forth by the teachers in our schools and churches. These efforts are definitely reflected in the low crime rate of our community and prompts the following lines;

TEACHER

A builder builded a temple;
He wrought with care and skill:—
Pillars and groins and arches
Were fashioned to meet his will.

And men said when they saw its beauty:
"It shall never know decay,
Great is thy skill, O Builder,
Thy fame shall endure for aye".

A teacher builded a temple;
She wrought with skill and care:—
Forming each pillar with patience,
Laying each stone with prayer.

Gone is the builder's temple;—
Trampled into dust,—
Pillar and groin and arches
Food for consuming rust.

But the temple the teacher builded
Shall endure while the ages roll,
For that beautiful unseen temple
Was the child's immortal soul.

Hospital receives portable monitor

Dr. E. Wayne Martz, president of the Delaware Heart Association, has announced that on Jan. 25 a portable monitor defibrillator was delivered to the Kent County General Hospital by the Delaware Heart Association in answer to a request from Joel R. Temple, M.D., medical advisor to the Kent County Heart Association.

Dr. Temple, in evaluating the need for such a system, pointed out that all too often, the painful decision has had to be made to admit a heart attack patient to a non-monitored, non-coronary-care bed, or to move a fairly recent heart attack patient out of the Intensive Care Unit; that is, off his monitor to a regular bed in order to accommodate a new patient in a monitored bed. Experience has shown that most coronary artery deaths occur very early in the course of the heart attack, and transportation of patients without appropriate means of treatment is hazardous and risky.

The acquisition of the portable monitor defibrillator will allow patients who cannot be adequately cared for at Kent General to be transported to another hospital where appropriate and suitable care can be rendered. A coronary care nurse would ride with the patient in the ambulance to the alternate coronary care unit.

The unit, purchased and donated by the Delaware Heart Association to the Kent County General Hospital, is the American Optical Company's Pulsar 2,000. The cost was $2,495.

Dr. Temple stated that this is a fine example of Heart Fund dollars being returned to the community to fill a real need and reminded Kent County residents that volunteers will be calling during February for donations to the Heart Fund, which made this gift possible.

MRS. COOK WINS SENATE SEAT BY 2-1 MARGIN

After an intense, two-week campaign, Mrs. Nancy Cook swept to an easy victory in a special election Friday to fill the vacant 16th Senatorial Seat.

Mrs. Cook will fill the seat left empty by the death Jan 9 of her husband, Sen. Allen J. Cook, D-Kenton.

No one really expected her opponent, Republican Calvin Boggs, of Cheswold, to win. Predictions of a two-to-one margin came true. The tally was 3,965 for Mrs. Cook and 1,907 for Boggs. Mrs. Cook took all but one district. She won in the district where she and Boggs both live. The vote there was 483 to 266. She lost the district around Delaware State College.

In Harrington, Mrs. Cook won 859 to 333.

Mrs. Cook victory and the party switch by former Republican Anthony J. Cicione of Elsmere, gives the Senate Democrats a clear 11-10 majority. What effects that will have on the alliance Democrats have with the president pro tem J. Donald Isaacs, R-Townsend, remains uncertain.

Friday night urging her victory celebration at the Harrington Raceway restaurant, Sen. Cook said Isaacs "is still going to be president pro tem. He's still got my vote."

She said she didn't know what effect her election may have on committee structure. Currently, all committees but the agriculture committee are chaired by Republicans. Those positions are named by Isaacs.

College of Ag. Sciences annual report

The College of Agricultural Sciences at the University of Delaware has announced the release of its 1973 Annual Report. The report describes some of the ways in which the college is working to meet the needs of Delaware citizens, says Dr. W. E. McDaniel, Dean of the college.

Included in the report are articles about research into the control of agriculture pollution, a novel program for scouting crop pests, a new research tool for breeding high performance dairy cattle, a method to accelerate sod production, and ways students help solve problems through research. The report also explains the unique interrelationship between the three branches of the college: the College of Agricultural Sciences, the Agricultural Experiment Station and the cooperative extension service.

Planning an emergency food shelf

Severe winter storms, hurricanes, floods and other natural disasters sometimes cause electrical service to be disrupted for one or more days. An emergency food shelf can be a great help at such times, says Marguerite Krackhardt, extension nutrition specialist at the University of Delaware. She suggests that families keep a supply of food available which would last several days and which would not require cooking, heating or refrigeration.

Foods could be purchased over a period of time and stored in a designated cool, dry area as an emergency supply. Containers should be dated at the time of purchase, then used and replaced on a rotating basis to avoid deterioration. In most instances, foods should be used within one year from date of purchase. Some foods have a shorter shelf life, however.

Miss Krackhardt advises homemakers to select canned and securely packaged foods for extended shelf storage. Crackers and cookies should be double-wrapped and stored in tight metal containers. Milk, tea and coffee should be in instant form. Seasonings and sauces which do not require refrigeration can be included to make cold meats and vegetables more palatable.

Don't forget to include a non-electric can opener on your emergency shelf, as well as other items you'll need if the electricity goes off for a period of time. Have on hand a supply of paper plates, cups and napkins, with plastic knives, forks and spoons. In areas where drinking water is not available during an electrical outage, you will want to store bottled water along with the food.

Before shopping for your emergency food supply, Miss Krackhardt recommends planning menus for several days, keeping in mind family preferences. The shopping list should also include infant foods, and special dietary foods for diabetics and others. At the market select a can or package in an appropriate size for the family's needs. Refrigeration may not be possible if electricity is off, therefore, leftovers will not be desirable.

A large variety of main dish foods can be purchased in cans or jars. Among them are spaghetti with meat sauce or meat balls, macaroni and cheese, ravioli, chicken or beef stew, chicken with dumplings or noodles, Spanish rice, meat balls in gravy, sliced beef, luncheon meat, hash, corned beef, Vienna sausage, tuna, salmon and shrimp. These foods can be supplemented with soups, canned vegetables, canned or dried fruits, canned or instant puddings and a beverage make satisfactory meals.

To avoid monotony, Miss Krackhardt suggests including a variety of special foods and snacks on your shelf. Your family might enjoy peanuts, pickles and olives, graham or whole wheat crackers, date nut, orange or brown bread, cranberry sauce, plum, fig or date nut pudding, raisins, dates, apple butter, shoestring potatoes, cereal snack packs. And don't forget everybody's favorite peanut butter!

Del. River And Bay Authority News

The MV Delaware, flagship for the new three-vessel fleet of the Cape-May-Lewes Ferry Service, has been launched in Houston, Tex., and will be delivered to the Cape May Terminal in late Spring.

Action by the Delaware River and Bay Authority to replace its current fleet of ferries with new streamlined shallow draft bayliners, is almost novel in its news value when ferry service along the East Coast is being discontinued or replaced by modern bridges and tunnels. The closing of the Little Creek Ferry Service (replaced by the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel) in 1964, and the Feb. 1 opening of the Commodore Barry Bridge, Chester, Pa., which replaced the Chester-Bridge Ferry, leaves the Cape-May-Lewes Ferry as the only active ferry service in the Delaware Valley area.

The three baylands, under construction at Todd Shipyards Inc., Houston, at a cost of $4 million each, will be diesel-powered with a cruise speed of 15 to 16 knots. Their seven-foot shallow draft design will eliminate the annual expense of dredging the ferry lane of travel. Bow thrusters will cut down docking and departure times.

Passengers will load directly via movable covered steps onto passenger decks while vehicles alight on separate ramps. Passenger loading systems are being Harrington.

constructed for both the Cape May and Lewes terminals. Each new vessel can carry 100 vehicles and 800 passengers. The Cape May-Lewes Ferry, providing a 70-minute cruise across the Delaware Bay since July 1964, is part of the Scenic Hiway System joining the Garden State Parkway and Rt. 9 in New Jersey, with Rts. 18 and 28 or U.S. 113 in Delaware.

New Emergency Phone Numbers

From Harrington Fire Chief Harold Fry and Ambulance Captain Harold Brode.

The Harrington Fire and Ambulance telephone number 398-3511 will be discontinued. All calls will be taken by our new Kent County Call Board in Dover, which is manned 24 hours a day. We are asking you to please take a few minutes of your time NOW and change to telephone number 678-9111. When you have the need to call us in a case of emergency it might be TOO LATE SO Don't forget -- 678-9111.

Charles H. Moore

Charles H. Moore, 79, of near Greenwood, died Saturday in Nanticoke Memorial Hospital, Seaford, after a long illness.

He was a retired farmer. His wife, Mrs. Mabel Moore, died in 1940. He is survived by a son, DeWeese (Bucky) of Greenwood; two sisters, Mrs. John Mantor of Frederica, and Mrs. Mary Falls of Pocomoke City, Md.; five grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Services were held yesterday afternoon at the McKnatt Funeral Home, Harrington. Interment was in Hollywood Cemetery, Harrington.

Minigardens for apartment dwellers

You don't have to have a large backyard to grow vegetables. Even apartment dwellers can get into the gardening act by growing a minigarden.

It's easy to start a minigarden, says Robert Stevens, extension horticulturist at the University of Delaware. All you need is a sunny windowsill or balcony, a container of some sort, some soil and seeds or seedlings.

A bucket, box, tub or pot can be used as a planting container. A large wooden tub or window box is probably best if you plan to grow larger vegetables such as tomatoes, peppers or cucumbers. Small six to ten inch diameter pots will provide sufficient growing space for chives, radishes and herbs. The first step in planting a minigarden is to make sure the container you plan to use allows for proper drainage. Three or four small holes drilled in the bottom of a tub, for instance, should be sufficient.

tinguisher handy. Keep other combustibles at a distance. And never use inflammable fluids indoors to light your fire.
If you have trouble with a smoky fire even with dry wood and an open damper, the problem may be due to faulty fireplace design, says Walpole. The most common design fault is a chimney that is too short. Theoretically your chimney should be higher than the highest part of your house. If your chimney is too short, extending it three to four feet will usually correct the problem.

Del. River And Bay Authority

Traffic on the Delaware Memorial Twin Bridges decreased 219,865 vehicles or 16.7 percent in January over the same month last year.

These statistics were made public this week by Theodore C. Bright, general manager, and are included in his monthly report to the commissioners of the Delaware River and Bay Authority.

Bright said the heavy loss in January is attributed to the energy crisis. Holiday and weekend traffic was 73 percent of the overall decrease of vehicles.

Bridge traffic for the month of January was 1,100,162 vehicles compared to 1,302,027 for January 1973.

Bridge traffic for the 12-month period ended January 1974 was 18,703,255 vehicles compared to 18,386,340 vehicles for the 12-month period ended January 1973, an increase of 316,915 vehicles, or 1.7 percent.

Since Aug. 16, 1951, a total of 276,453,463 vehicles have crossed the Delaware Memorial Bridge.

The second step in the comprehensive, programmed inspection of both spans of the Delaware Memorial Twin Bridges was reported at a meeting this week of the Delaware River and Bay Authority.

Director William J. Miller Jr. said this stage of a "first of its kind bottom-to-top inspection" will be a complete and comprehensive inspection of approach spans of the second structure.

The five-year inspection program was instituted in March of 1973 with the underwater examination of all river piers, soundings of the river bottom to determine whether any erosion had taken place around the piers. "All inspections to date were found satisfactory," Miller stated.

Members of the Delaware River and Bay Authority also reaffirmed the position taken at earlier meetings that the Authority is the only local agency to regionalize port development under terms of the bi-state compact which created it. They called upon the governors of Delaware and New Jersey to give early and serious consideration to their position in this regard.

Authority Chairman Clarence B. McCormick observed that the problems of deepwater ports in Delaware Bay, the lightening of oil freighters in the Delaware River and other problems accentuated by the current energy crisis "are not unilateral problems, but regional in nature, and the Delaware River and Bay Authority is the proper agency to seek solutions."

Authority members were informed that construction of its three new shallow-draft vessels, to replace the existing fleet of the Cape May-Lewes Ferry Service was proceeding on schedule. It is expected that a delivery date of the first vessel, the M.V. Delaware, will be announced at the March meeting, following an inspection by Authority officials and its naval architect at the Todd Shipyard in Houston, Tex.

In other action, Authority members voted to appoint Charles Henry James of Wildwood, N.J., as New Jersey Counsel to replace Samuel L. Shapiro of Vineland, N.J. The commissioners selected Dr. Joseph Riley of Bridgeton, N.J., to replace William Doherty, also of Bridgeton, as secretary to the bi-state agency. Both appointments become effective April 1, 1974. Dr. Albert Smith, a Delaware Commissioner, expressed concern about the appointment of a Delaware Safety Consultant, during the three-month period he was absent from Authority meetings. His motion for reconsideration of the action received no support.

The next regularly scheduled meeting of the Authority will be held March 19 at the Administration Building.

Social Security

Questions and Answers
Q - Mrs. B.R. gets monthly retirement checks and works part time as a saleswoman. She wants to know: how much money can she earn this year and still get all her social security checks?

A Mrs. B.K. can earn as much as $2,100 this year and still get her full social security payments for the year. If she earns more than $2,100, $1 in benefits will be withheld for every $2 she earns over $2,100. And no matter how much she makes for the year, Mrs. B.K. can get benefits for any month in which she neither earns more than $175 nor does substantial work in self-employment. As a result of a recent change in the social security law, the amount will go up to $2,400 a year and $200 a month.

Q - I live in a state which has no burial space for veterans in its national cemetery. Will the Veterans Administration pay anything toward costs of burial plots in private cemeteries for such veterans?

A - Yes. Under Public Law 93-43 enacted in June of 1973, VA pays up to $150 in plot and interment costs of veterans not buried in national cemeteries.

Q - I was discharged from service June 15, 1966, and would like to enter on-job training. What's the time frame?

A - Veterans discharged after Jan. 31, 1955, have eight years from date of last separation or until Aug. 30, 1975, whichever is later, to use flight, farm co-operative and on-job training benefits provided by the Veteran's Administration.

Q - Can the Veterans Administration still guarantee GI home loans for widows based on deaths of their husbands in service in 1946?

A - Yes. The Veterans Housing Act of 1970 restored unused, expired loan benefits to veterans and unremarried widows of World War II and later periods.

Q - The Veterans Administration pays me pension under the so-called "old law". Can I switch to pension under the "new law?"

A - Yes, if it would be to your advantage. It is suggested, however, that you first discuss it with a VA representative, since once you've made the change you cannot return to benefits under the "old law."

Q - A few years ago, my husband took out a government life insurance policy with the Veterans Administration, but I'm not sure I'm the beneficiary. Will VA give me this information?

A - VA is not authorized to provide this information during the insured's lifetime without permission from the insured or his duly appointed fiduciary.

Fertilizer facts for coming season

The big question Delaware farmers are asking is, "Will there be enough fertilizer this spring for our crops?"

"Some fertilizers are in short supply, but shortfalls are slight," according to William H. Brady, state executive director for the Delaware Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. "Transportation and proper distribution, rather than supply, may become the real problems."

Farmers already have more winter wheat planted than last year. They also intend to plant more corn, cotton, spring wheat, and other crops, and they will likely use record tonnages of fertilizer on them. Shipping record amounts will strain already overloaded transportation facilities, causing tight supplies and spot shortages.

Brady outlined the supply situation in light of the latest preliminary estimates.

"Farmers are expected to use all available nitrogen fertilizers this spring," he said. "Supplies are larger than in 1973, but many more acres will be planted to corn, wheat, cotton and other nitrogen users." Preliminary estimates are that available nitrogen will fall five percent under what farmers want.

"Nitrogen prices have skyrocketed lately—a factor that may curb overuse," Brady added. "For example, anhydrous ammonia prices jumped 71 percent nationally between Oct. 25 and Jan. 21. Urea, because of its dual use as a feed and as an ingredient in mixed fertilizers, rose 69 percent nationally in the same time."

Phosphate rock supplies are tight, and in light of expected plantings a 10 percent phosphate shortage could be in sight. Again, recent price jumps may cut into use—reducing shortages. Prices for concentrated superphosphate and diammonium phosphate jumped 42 and 41 percent, respectively, between Oct. 25 and Jan. 21.

Potash is in adequate supply. Any shortages on farms are due to transportation difficulties. Potash prices paid by farmers increased 26 percent nationally between Oct. 25 and Jan. 21; in Delaware all of these fertilizers have increased at least as much in price as they have nationally, and, in most cases, more.

"Many fertilizers will bring record prices. Because of the high prices and the tight supply situation, fertilizer conservation is essential," Brady advised. "Beside making maximum use of manure and crop residue, check the acidity level of your soil and apply lime, if necessary, in order to get maximum benefits from your fertilizer. And do not just stop with a soil test, follow the recommendations shown on the soil test report for each type crop and field. The plant science department at the University of Delaware does an excellent job with soil testing and encourages more farmers to use this tool. They are well aware of the fertilizer situation and take this into consideration when they make their recommendations for any given crop."

Beef tour scheduled

An Upper Eastern Shore beef producer's tour and educational program has been scheduled for Thurs., Feb. 28. The program will start at 9:30 a.m. with registration in the Cecilton Fire Hall, Cecilton, Md.

During the morning session Dr. Robert C. Hammond, extension veterinarian at the University of Maryland, will discuss controlling parasites through proper management. Dr. Lowell L. Wilson, professor of animal science at Pennsylvania State University, will talk about crossbreeding beef cattle, and William A. Curry, Maryland extension specialist, will round out the morning program with a discussion of cow-calf management practices.

Following lunch at the Cecilton Fire Hall, program participants will have an opportunity to tour Bohemia Manor Farm operated by Ted Mechling. At Bohemia Manor, Mechling will outline his three-way crossbreeding program featuring Brown Swiss, Black Angus and Hereford. There will also be a demonstration of haystacking and stack moving equipment.

Farmers interested in the beef tour should contact their county extension agent.

Kent County Vo-Tech News

John Leggett, Alan Ford, and Marvin Dukes from Lake Forest Senior High School are members of a VICA Chapter at the Kent County Vocational-Technical Center in Woodside. This Building Maintenance Class, as members of a VICA Chapter, donated many hours of time working on used bicycles. They gathered up enough parts from friends of the chapter to assemble 15 bicycles of assorted sizes, and, on Wed., Jan. 16, delivered the bikes to patients at Stockley Hospital at Millsboro. The class trained several of the young people to ride. They left the bicycles there and all the class felt it was an enjoyable and profitable experience.

TOWN AND COUNTRY TOPICS

DAVE WOODWARD
KENT COUNTY AGENT

Homer Torbert from Kent County has been declared the winner of the 1973 Mid-Atlantic Soybean Yield Contest. He has been awarded a trip to Japan, Taiwan and Hong Kong. The trip is sponsored by the Elanco/Treflan Soybean Champions Tour. Homer's yield of 80.7 bushels/acre was better than all the other entries in the 4-state contest. Those states are Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

We understand by local gossip that Homer's wife, Dorothy, also deserves a lot of credit in the winning of this contest. Some say she can do a better job of running the combine than Homer. Seriously though, we want to congratulate both Homer and Dorothy on this fine accomplishment. We always have known Kent County was capable of obtaining good crop yields. Also, we should mention that John Thomas, of near Marydel, came in second place with a 66.8 bushel/acre yield.

We are very proud that both Homer Torbert and John Thomas live in Kent County and are number 1 and 2 in the Mid-Atlantic Soybean Contest.

ber Pork Producers -- remember the Delaware Pork Industry Day Program, Wed., Feb. 27, at the Civic Center, Salisbury, Md., from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Dr. Roy D. Washam, manager of the swine research division of the Ralston Purina Company will speak at 10:30 a.m. on recent developments in swine nutrition. At 1:30 p.m. William Spruill, North Carolina's outstanding pork producer in 1973 will talk about his program of producing quality pork. Commercial exhibits of modern equipment and supplies along with special demonstrations dealing with raising and marketing pork will be featured throughout the day. Tickets for the pork barbecue luncheon should be secured by Fri., Feb. 22. Arrangements for the tickets can be made by calling your county extension office, 736-1448. A program for homemakers featuring identification of pork cuts and their nutritional value will be presented at 10:30 a.m. and repeated at 1:30 p.m. Attractive door prizes will be given away from time to time throughout the day.

How visible is your clothing in the dark? Clothing can be made more visible for children traveling to school in early morning darkness, or for those who walk or bicycle along highways after sunset.

Fabrics of fluorescent dyes are available for making jackets and other items of wearing apparel. These dyes pick up light and appear to glow in the dark. One of the fabrics is a water-proof nylon core which comes in a fluorescent orange. This fabric was designed originally to trim clothing for school crossing guards and hunters. Heavier nylon fabrics are available with a similar dye. Strips of these fabrics can be attached to outerwear in a decorative pattern. Remember to use them on the back as well as the front of the garment. Keep in mind that the fluorescent properties of these fabrics are lost with age and cannot be expected to last over two years.

Jackets and safety garments of this type may also be purchased ready-made at most sporting goods stores, but the cost may send you to your sewing machine.

One manufacturer makes a reflective tape which can be attached to clothing. It is sold at many notions counters. This tape is 185 times brighter than white paint, and can be sewn on clothing.

Whether a reflective type of material is used or not, light-colored clothing should be worn by those walking or riding bikes before daylight, and after dusk. This is especially important for people with dark skins. A white cap will be visible in the dark, and it will also help keep the hear warm.
